Pinckney Beats Hartland 13-0

Wins Game Here Last Friday But Visitors Put up a Stubborn Battle and Threaten on Numerous Occasions

Pinckney won from Hartland here Friday 13 to 0 but the game was more even than the score shows. Pinckney scored a touchdown in the first minute of play and did not score again until the final minutes of the game. The Hartland bunch did not have much weight but more than made up for their lack of heft by fighting spirit. Pinckney kicked off to Hartland. They failed to gain and Pinckney got the ball. Dilloway carried it to the 8 yard line in two tries and Drown went over for a touchdown. The try for extra point failed. From then on until the last few minutes of play the game was scoreless. Pinckney made 12 first downs to Hartland's 5 but most of them were in the center of the field. Hartland three times held them to downs on the ten yard line. Pinckney's big fault in these two scoreless quarters was that they did not mix up their plays enough. Dilloway was given the ball two and three times in succession with a result that Hartland was able to diagnose their plays. A few forward passes were tried but failed. Hartland was unable to make their downs by rushing the Pinckney line and all their gains were by forward passes. However they lacked good receivers and many were incomplete.

In the last quarter the Pinckney team made the best showing they have this year. A fake with Berquist carrying the ball was good for ten yards. Dilloway caught two forward passes. Wylie made ten yards and so did Drown. Dilloway added ten more placing it on the five yard line and Read went over for a touchdown. Dilloway added the extra point.

The Pinckney team was slow in getting started in this game and failed to open up until the last few minutes. Their lack of variety in plays was responsible for the small score.

Dilloway was again the best ground gainer for Pinckney, with Wylie second and Drown third. The line again played a nice game and Hartland found it almost impossible to gain against it. Pinckney completed three forward passes in this game. This is the best they have done this year.

Berquist and Drown played a nice offensive game and made numerous tackles on defense.

There will be no game this week as Pinckney had none scheduled. Their next game is at Pinckney October 20 with Manchester. Pinckney has never met them before.

GET COLD BATH WHEN BOAT TIPS OVER

Last Wednesday afternoon about 5:00 P. M. Dave and John Robert and Lucius Wilson Jr. went out for a sail on Big Portage Lake in the Wilson sail boat. The boat sprung a leak and the water ran in so fast that the boat sank, throwing the boys into the icy waters of the lake. They clung to the wrecked boat and called for help. Mrs. Wilson heard their calls and dispatched Maurice Kelly to their aid. He had trouble starting the Wilson launch and missed out in the hero role when someone else rescued the boys ahead of him.

Would Divert the Auto Weight Tax

State Emergency Director Asks That Weight Tax Be Used for Welfare Purposes. Was Used to Retire Covert Road Bonds Last Year

Last year on account of the great burden of Covert Road bonds in many counties, such as Wayne and Oakland which remained unpaid, an emergency law was put through the legislature providing that these bonds be paid out of the auto weight tax. In Livingston county this was incorporated into the report of the Livingston county road commission and adopted by the supervisors. This resulted in easing the tax burden in Putnam township by some $4,000 in Covert road bonds due on the Pinckney pavement. This year it was supposed that this proceedure would again be repeated and the fifth and last payment on the Covert bonds made from the auto weight tax. However a resolution was sent to the board by Gen. Johnson, Federal Emergency Director, asking that the funds of the weight tax be diverted to the state welfare fund.

News of this came to Pinckney and Monday a delegation from here composed of Floyd Weeks, Fred Slayton, P. H. Swarthout, village president, and P. W. Curlett visited the board of supervisors in session at Howell. Prosecutor Sweeney appeared before the board and gave his opinion that it was compulsory to retire the Covert road bonds out of the auto weight tax and also an opinion from Prosecutor Toy of Wayne county supporting him in this stand. The county road commission also supported Mr. Sweeney's contention and stated if the Covert bonds were not retired from the weight tax a special tax must be levied against the county to retire them. 2:00 P. M. Wednesday was set for considering the resolution of Gen. Johnson. The Pinckney delegation talked with a number of supervisors and all of them seemed to favor the position of Mr. Sweeney and the county road commissioners.

The national government desires to unite the various state welfare bodies under a national head. To that end a county welfare committee has been appointed consisting of George Eckhart of Fowlerville, Mrs. Walter Knapp of Brighton and Rev. Noble of Howell. Alma Pfau of Iosco has been appointed county welfare agent. He is supposed to gradually take over all the county welfare work now handled by the supervisors and superintendants of the poor and also administer the old age pension fund.

HOLD OCTOBER MEETING

The October meeting of Pinckney Circle of King's Daughters was held at the home of Mrs. Lucius Wilson last Thursday with 17 members and 3 guests present. Mrs. Florence AtLee opened the meeting and Mrs. Viola Read led the devotionals, her subject being "Dorcas, the Philantropist." Mrs. Sadie Read reported on the Sewing Committee and Mrs. AtLee on relief work, as well as Mrs. Viola Read. Mrs. Iva Reason gave an interesting talk on Rally Day at Lake of the Woods, held on Sept. 28th. The entertainment committee for the next meeting are Mrs. Teeple and Mrs. Palmer. the devotionals to be led by Mrs. Lamb. The State Convention will be held at Ann Arbor on Oct. 18, 19 and 20 and the following delegates were appointed: Claire Palmer, Blanche Martin, Eloyse Berquist, Mae Daller, Sadie Read. Beth Kennedy, Iva Reason, Kitty Hoff, Dora Swarthout and Viola Read. Mrs. Ethel Smolett invited the Circle to meet at her home for the November meeting. After the business meeting the members were entertained by Mrs. Smolett and Mrs. Wagner with some interesting games, and a delicious pot luck supper completed a pleasant afternoon.

Pavement Dance Is Thursday Eve

The Pinckney Board of Commerce Will Put on a Free Pavement Dance on Pinckney Main Streets Thursday Evening October 12

On Thursday evening, October 12 the Pinckney Business Men's organization will sponsor their second free entertainment. This time it will be a free pavement dance. This is the first time any entertainment of this nature has been put on in this village although other places have put them on successfully. Music will be furnished by the Dalke orchestra and prizes will be awarded to various dances.

The Committee in charge is Wm. Dilloway, chairman, Glenn Slayton, Harry Palmer, Ross Read. If the weather proves inclement the dance will be held in the Pinckney Community Hall.

If you have not yet enrolled in the Pinckney Board of Commerce you should do so at once. The object of this organization is to work for the betterment of Pinckney and vicinity and already it has achieved important results.

Three free prizes will be given away at the dance. One to the oldest dancing couple, another to the one coming the farthest distance and another to the one coming the next farthest distance. The prizes are 5 gallons of gas or an oil change donated by Lee Lavey, a hot water bottle donated by Floyd Weeks and a haircut and shave donated by M. E. Darrow.

RAIL ROAD JACK PASSES

The daily papers of the past few days have been full of accounts of the death of Harry Cooper, 69, at Coldwater. He was known as Railroad Jack and was the possessor of a wonderful memory, having committed to memory some 5,000 characters of history and the dates connected with them. This he made support him and it was his practice to hold forth on street corners and answer questions concerning historical characters for 5c per question. The editor has listened to him many times on Mich. Ave., Detroit street corners some 15 years ago. He always had an audience. He is said have started his career back in the nineties by going to saloons and gathering places and offering to tell the meaning of any word for 5c. His memory he often refreshed by a dictionary carried in his hip pocket. Then he took to browsing in college libraries and absorbing historical dates. There have been several accounts of how he got his nickname. The accepted one is that he formerly travelled in a hammock slung from the rods beneath a freight car. Although he had his picture taken thus, it was probably a publicity stunt as it is doubtful if he ever travelled much in this manner.

Some 30 years ago he visited Pinckney and spoke before the school. This was during Prof. Durfee's time. It is related that one of the scholars asked him, "How many feathers has a duck?" His response was "Son, come up here to the light and we will count them."

He died penniless as far as is known and according to his request he will be burried in the Non-Catholic part of the Ann Arbor cemetery by Rev. Fr. Carey of St. Thomas Church, a life-long friend.

Fowlerville Fair Breaks Record

Largest Attendance Ever. Attractive Midway and Exhibits as Well As Ball Games and Horse Races Swell Crowds

The crowds at the Fowlerville Fair were unusually dense. So much so, that it was hard to get through them. The large midway and other attractions here are always good for they come from all over the state for the final grand round up as the Fowlerville Fair is usually the last of such exhibitions in the county.

One of the big drawing cards are the base ball games. This year interest in these was intensified by listing 16 teams for a play off. The eight victors in the preliminary games played at the fair. Wednesday, Durand beat South Lyon and the United Oils of Lansing beat Fowlerville 4 to 0. Cook, a Detroit recruit pitcher who pitched for Shreveport, La., last year, pitched for the Lansing team and Andy Messenger of Perry, old time Fowlerville Fair cleanup star who beat Earl Whitehill several times there, pitched for Fowlerville. Cullenbine, another Detroit recruit, also played with Fowerville. Thursday the Schaberg-Dietrich team of Lansing beat the Howell Dairy 26 to 6. Howell used Lefty Griffin, former Michigan State pitcher and he was way off form.

The horse races were of high class but were marked by an accident Thursday when two drivers were hurt and taken to the hospital. In the third heat of the memorial race for D. P. Wilson who recently died, eleven horses were entered. A grand pile up ensued when one of the horses fell and seven of them were unable to continue the race. Eugene Marsh of Northville and Fred Elliott of Port Huron were taken to the McPherson hospital, Howell, to be treated. Major Elbrino finally won the race from the remaining three contestants.

Friday the United Oils again won beating Durand 10 to 5. Lefty Cook of Grand Rapids once more took the measure of Andy Messenger of Perry who pitched for Durand. Some good races were pulled off on this day. Jeff Riley won the 2:26 trot, and Master Guy the 2.26 pace. Diamond Dewey owned by A. M. Roche of Lansing won the James L. Roche Memorial race or 2:15 trot. His time was 2:10, 2:10½ and 2:11. George Roche drove this horse which was raised and driven by the late James L. Roche in 1931-32. Some excitement was caused in the 2:26 pace by a near fight between a couple of drivers. 14 horses were entered in this race and when two of the horses came together their drivers also did. However, they were separated before any blows to speak of were struck.

Wirt Hendee of Pinckney exhibited the fine wool sheep of W. C. Hendee & Sons and won a majority of the prizes.

INDEPENDENT FOOTBALL TEAM STARTS SEASON SUN.

The Pinckney Independent football team will start their season at Michigan Center Sunday where they meet the strong Michigan Center Sportsmen's team. This team has a practically new lineup this year as Don Swarthout, Lefty Reason, Wayne Carr, Norm Miller, Andy Campbell and others who made up the team for several years have concluded that they are too old for this strenuous game and have retired. The boys have been lining up as follows: ends, Gerycz and Stackable, tackles, Beltz Bros.; Guards. M. L. Hinchey, Percy Fish, Edward Spears, Petras; center, Devereaux; Q. B., M. Kennedy; half backs. Graves, Shehan, Dinkel, G. Kennedy, Blades, Bill Lamb.

The boys have had a hard time getting games and have had to go far afield. They have scheduled the following contests:

Oct. 15—Michigan Center at Michigan Center.

Oct. 22—Fenton at Fenton

Nov. 12, Fenton here.

Nov. 30—Mich. Center at Pinckney

Games are also pending with Chelsea, Durand and Elsie.

Current Comment

The decision of Judge Parker of Flint in acquitting the directors of the closed Clare Bank of accepting deposits while knowing the bank was insolvent, causes considerable thought, especially that part of his decision placing the blame for the acceptance of deposits on the lamentable failure of the State Banking Department and the State Securities Commission to "protect the investment of funds." We wonder just how far the judiciary will carry this attitude. We may, some day read the following: "Judge Blank acquitted two bandits tried for highway robbery yesterday and placed the blame for the crime on the lamentable failure of the sheriff's office and state police to make the highways safe for travel." Of course this is somewhat far fetched but it seems to be the direction in which the wind is blowing. The failure of the state banking department to act was due to a number of reasons. One was the political power of the banks and another their fear that action on their part would precipitate a banking crisis which came anyway in spite of their caution.

Is human life becoming cheaper? An episode in the court of Judge Sample at Ann Arbor would lead one to think so. Several months ago, George Reed, a Detroit fireman brought his estranged wife out to Washtenaw county and shot her dead in cold blood. He was arrested, confessed and was sentenced to life imprisonment. Then he was granted a new trial on the grounds that he had confessed in expectation of getting a light sentence. The retrial started in Ann Arbor last week. Thursday when Mrs. Gorman of Detroit, a witness for the defense was on the stand her remark that if she could have secured a gun Reed would have been saved the trouble of killing his wife was greeted with such applause by the 300 spectators that Judge Sample declared a mistrial and adjourned the case until the Dec. term. We have followed this murder case closely and have failed to find a single detail in it which would tend to make Reed a hero in the eyes of anyone.

The tax roll for Putnam township was received here last week and strange to say it had the paving tax for Main St. back on it again This street was paved about five years ago. The people here paid three installments of the tax. Last year in accordance with a ruling a resolution was passed by the board of supervisors providing that the auto weight tax be used to pay the Covert road tax under which law the Pinckney street was paved. The people were under the impression that this swept the paving tax off the slate but is seems that this was only for one year and this week another resolution must be passed by the county board of supervisors or the citizens here will have the fifth and last installment of the paving tax to pay themselves.

We have received a letter from the Michigan Stream Control Commission in which municipalities are urged to avail themselves of the opportunity to obtain loans under the public works administration. June 1935 has been set as the limit for making applications but this may be terminated at any time. The commission is interested as sewage disposal systems are the projects for which most of the loans are made. At the present time most of the sewage is dumped in the streams of the state. Ann Arbor and Wayne both expect to make application for loans for this purpose.

TEEPLE—COOK

A quiet wedding of interest to many took place in Detroit Saturday, Oct. 7, when Miss R. Marion Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Cook of Sherwood Forest Detroit, Mich., and Mr. Lloyd M. Teeple, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Teeple of this city, were united in marriage by Rev. Fr. Morgan Harris of Detroit. They were attended by Miss Leone Teeple, sister of the groom, and Mr. James Daley of Detroit. After the ceremony a dinner was served for the immediate families at the [illegible] Club after which the bride and groom left for a short honeymoon.

Indians Find Gold in Labrador

Possibilities of Region Are Little Known.

Washington.—Rich gold ore was recently reported to have been brought out of Labrador by Indians.

It is one of many such reports that have been made through the centuries, but still the truth as to Labrador's possibilities as a source of precious metals is unknown, says a bulletin from the National Geographic society. It is for other resources that the country is best known, the bulletin points out.

"Labrador spreads like a rough triangle from Hudson strait to Blanc Sablon, on the Strait of Belle Isle, and from the Atlantic coast inland to the Height of Land," continues the bulletin. "With an area of at least 110,000 square miles, it is almost three times the size of Newfoundland. Its boundaries embrace a fringe of coastal settlements, fur trading posts, and Grenfell and Moravian mission stations; romantic fjords and naked cliffs like those of Norway; rocky islands and narrow 'tickles' (channels); ancient mountains, valleys, and falls; 30-mile lakes and rushing rivers swarming with trout and salmon; forests and barrens where fur-bearing animals roam. Eskimos and whites live along the coast, Indians in the interior.

Pulpwood and Lumber.

"Besides minerals, other wealth lurks in Newfoundland's mainland domain. There are pulpwood and lumber in the southern forests of black spruce and white spruce, birch, cedar, poplar, and balsam fir; and 'white gold' lies latent in cataracts like Muskrat falls. Grand falls, twice as high as Niagara, could be harnessed, it is estimated, to produce more than 1,000,000 horse power for a part of each year.

"But the sea, not the land, is Labrador's chief source of wealth today. So it has been since Cabot, letting down baskets into the sea, scooped them up full of codfish. Cod is still king on this coast, to the transient summer fisherman from Newfoundland, and the 'liveyere,' who 'lives here' in Labrador all year round.

"Neither 'liveyere' nor Newfoundlander speaks of cod by that name. Salmon is salmon and trout is trout; but cod is always 'fish.'

"The 'liveyere,' like many Newfoundlanders, depends chiefly on the cod fishery for money to buy tea, flour, salt, pork, and molasses for the winter. When the cod 'sets in shore,' he leaves his home and potato patch at the head of the inlet or fjord, and moves down to a shack on the outer coast for the summer. When the cod is running, he works 20 hours at a stretch.

"Back home after winter sets in, he hunts and traps for fur, shoots ducks, and goes on a 'cruise' (visit) to neighbors, traveling from 40 to 400 miles over snow and ice in a dog-drawn komatik, or sled.

Furs Source of Wealth.

"Sometimes a mission holds a fair, and dog teams gallop in from miles around with sled-loads of families. The men hold a shooting match, with a barrel of flour as the prize. The girls fill supper baskets, and the young men bid for them—and the supper partner who goes with them.

"Rich furs—fox and ermine, mink and otter, beaver and bear and muskrat—rank next in importance to cod. The part white, part Eskimo trappers do little cod fishing, for the 'furring grounds' lie miles away from the coast, and the winter hunt, when pelts are prime, keeps the men away from home for weeks at a time.

"Rifles bang good-by as canoes pull out into midstream to begin the long trip up-river to the 'fur paths,' or hunting grounds. When a trapper chooses a certain area, he blazes trails, sets out perhaps 300 traps, and builds 'tilts' (log huts) at intervals of a day's walk apart. Thereafter, this land is his alone to hunt over, and no other trapper thinks of poaching on it.

"The trapper's day is long, work at the traps hard. Storms may overtake him, and 20-below-zero cold. Yet he stops only once or twice to prepare a mug of tea and to take a bite of bread. For supper, cooked on the tilt's tin stove, he stews a partridge with rice and salt pork; or perhaps some beaver or porcupine, whose meat is good eating. If he has time, he bakes 'rose bread' (yeast-raised), or if not, soggy bannock. Then he skins his pelts and stretches them to dry on the fur boards. Frequently he finds that mice have ruined the pelt by chewing away patches of hair.

"Furring over, he piles the pelts on a sled, and starts homeward over river ice and snow. At the end of his trail, perhaps 200 miles away, is home and family, a wood fire roaring in the stove, potatoes bubbling in the pot and sleep—sleep—and more sleep."

Shèila Is the Air Race Mascot

Sheila Brown, champion baby aviatrix, was appointed national air race mascot at Los Angeles. She is only three and one-half, but her amazing record of several hundred hours in the air, two transcontinental air flights, one forced landing and other aerial adventures qualified her as the official mascot of the air meet in July. Sheila is shown perched on the Bendix trophy.

Birthplace of Christ Boasts Deep Sea Port

Haifa, Palestine.—The Holy Land, birthplace of Jesus Christ, has been increased in size by 90 acres.

This is due to reclamation in connection with the building of Haifa's new harbor, now nearly complete. Some of the reclaimed land will be used for harbor and customs purposes. The remainder is intended for a modern townplanning scheme.

The new harbor, which is expected to be opened in October, has cost $6,250,000. The construction was begun in October, 1929. The main breakwater is approximately one and a half miles long and consists of 76,000 square meters of stone. The lee breakwater is, roughly, half a mile long.

Orneriest Rodeo Horse Expires in Shame at 24

Billings, Mont.—Old Butterfly, "the orneriest, pitchingest horse that ever came out of a chute," is dead.

For 15 years Old Butterfly scattered riders over rodeo fields. He was nine years old when he discovered that it was easier to throw a rider from the saddle than to work, and for seven years he was never ridden.

Last fall he made his farewell appearance. Twenty-four years old, he squealed with rage as cowboys easily stuck to the saddle. His owner, Leo Cremer, attributed his death to brooding over this shame.

Movement Is on Foot to Save Historic Buildings

New York.—A movement to preserve this country's historically and architecturally important buildings has been started by the American Institute of Architects with the opening of a national survey of these structures.

The Institute's committee on the preservation of historic building, headed by Leicester B. Holland, chairman, is compiling a list of such buildings. This list will be subdivided into lists applying directly to the various states and cities.

For inclusion in the Atlantic seaboard tabulation, according to Doctor Holland, only buildings at least one hundred years old will be considered. No structure built later than 1850 is to be included in the survey for any part of the country.

"In foreign nations, where architecture is of national importance, historic monuments are listed and cared for by the state," said Doctor Holland. "Here, where democracy leaves cultural affairs largely to public whim, it is proper for architects organized in a national body to assume the leadership of popular interest in preserving important monuments of our past."

Not Guilty, Says Drunk, Actions Lead to Jail

Houston, Texas.—Arrested on charges of drunkenness, two men were haled before Police Judge Turner here.

"Guilty or not guilty?" the judge inquired.

"Not guilty," replied Defendant No. 1.

"Not guilty," echoed Defendant No. 2—but as he spoke he suddenly mistook the corner of the judge's desk for a lamp post and hugged it in the conventional manner of the inebriate.

Without further testimony both men were remanded to jail.

New Guinea Tribe Bears Only Twins

Brisbane, Australia.—Doctor Fortune, of Columbia university, arriving here from New Guinea, tells of an amazing discovery.

The Monduguma tribe develops the trait of twin-bearing almost to the exclusion of single births.

The doctor maintains it is due to a system of intermarriage between cousins.

The women of the tribe do all the work.

White Friars Back in England

Were Ousted 400 Years Ago by King Henry VIII.

London.—After an absence of nearly 400 years the Carmelite monks, known as White Friars, return to an established place among monastic orders in Great Britain.

The White Friars, so called because of a white mantle worn over the brown habit, held wide influence and power in Great Britain until 1538, when Henry VIII ordered their headquarters in London to be razed to the ground. Their chapel and buildings stood between Fleet street and the Thames, adjoining the temple, which was founded by the Templars.

Whitefriars street still bears the name of the order, and a newspaper office in the district is called Carmelite house. But the monks have been gone for nearly four centuries, and were without a home in England until the Catholic bishop of Southwark assigned his churches in Sittingbourne and Faversham to their care.

The White Friars wore their mantles as a sign that the order was founded in Palestine. It was established on Mount Carmel in 1212 by a Crusader named Berthold. White Friars are not common, however, the two at Sittingbourne and Faversham being the only ones in England.

When their London monastery was founded during the Crusades the order immediately attracted royal support, and Edward II gave the White Friars great latitude. Their priory and church were rebuilt in 1350, when it was said that several hundred monks lived there, enjoying wide popularity both as preachers and confessors.

An example of their power is found in the fact that almost from the first the order had the right of sanctuary. Any fugitive from justice could take refuge there for forty days unless accused of treason or sacrilege. The right was retained until 1697, long after the monastery and church had disappeared. After the suppression of the monastery the place became a notorious haunt of outcasts.

The White Friars are altogether distinct from the other order of Carmelites founded by St. Teresa in 1562. Members of this group are known as Discalced Carmelites, because they wear sandals instead of shoes and stockings.

TO DESIGN PLANES

Young Richard Dupont, twenty-two-year-old heir to the fabulous Dupont fortune, has his own ideas of the career he wishes to follow. Instead of becoming an elite sportsman, learning his father's business, or merely drifting in the best social circles, Richard plans to learn the trade of airplane designing and aeronautical engineering. He started in as "grease monkey" at the Curtiss-Wright School of Aeronautical Engineering at the Grand Central airport, Los Angeles, getting in his hours at the controls of student planes.

How I Broke Into The Movies

Copyright by Hal C. Herman

By WILLIAM HAINES

TRUTHFULLY, I broke into the movies with a boil on my nose—but more of that later. Let's start at the beginning.

If you ever hope to stay out of pictures never have your photograph taken. It gets to be a habit, like dope, and once you've started it you can't stop.

I was in New York, "just a young man trying to get along" by selling bonds. I read all the books on salesmanship and attended all the meetings and hoped some day to be president of the firm. Then, I had my photograph taken.

The trouble with that is you don't have just one picture, you have another and another. I had so many that I decided that I should, to save my conscience, make this terrible habit pay, so I began posing for what the well-dressed man will wear.

I posed in suits and hats and overcoats, when I wasn't selling bonds—and that was most of the time, because I was a rotten salesman.

It was during the time when Goldwyn Picture corporation was scouting the country for new faces. I heard about this search and as I had all the photographs taken that could possibly be taken, I felt that the moving picture field was the place to unload them.

I called at the office and as my face despite my years, still seemed very new, I was given a test the next day. I gave up the bond business at once and waited to hear the outcome of the test. I waited three and a half weeks and was, at the end of that time, seriously contemplating going back into the bond business, when I had a call to come to the office at once.

William Haines.

Shall I ever forget going into that office and being told that I was to start for California at once to make pictures! A girl had been chosen to be given a contract, too. She was in the office signing up and getting her instructions.

I remember that she wore a fur coat and a little fur hat and pretty flat-heeled slippers. Her hair was light—what I could see of it under her hat—and her eyes were a blue-gray. This other new discovery was Eleanor Boardman.

I arrived at the studio in a big way, with the boil on my nose. But it passed away with time and I began getting the habit of motion pictures. "That's how I broke into the movies."

Perhaps those who rejoiced most at my entrance into the cinema world were my former employers in the bond house and those New York photographers, who really started me on my downward path.

Hollywood Makeup Artists Supply New Faces for Old

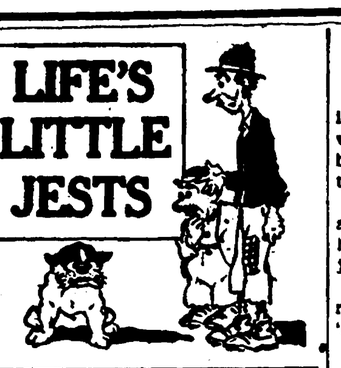
The makeup men of Hollywood, who have done wonders for both male and female players from time to time, making beauties occasionally out of rather plain-faced folk, seem to be headed for fresh triumphs. At any rate, they have now solved the problem of furnishing completely new faces for old, to be worn temporarily.

"The beauty of it," says Percy Westmore, who is chief of the makeup department of the Warner studios, "is the absolute plasticity of the whole thing. We are now able to create a completely new face, using the actor's own features as a foundation, which is completely in contact with his own facial muscles at every point and which he can vivify at will, more easily than the fingers of your hand can move inside a silk glove."

Jack Holt Launched His Screen Career "Stunting"

Jack Holt launched his screen career several years ago as a "stunt" man and shortly became a western star. As such he rose to unprecedented heights. When the popularity of "cowboy" films began to wane, Holt on the verge of retirement was signed by Columbia for a series of pictures. Since then he has appeared in such outstanding productions as: "Flight," "Submarine," "Father and Son," "Hell's Island," "The Last Parade," "Dirigible," "Subway Express," "Fifty Fathoms Deep," "A Dangerous Affair," "War Correspondent," "This Sporting Age" and "Man Against Woman."

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS



Grandpa's Static

Grandpa was having his afternoon sleep in the armchair and emitting sounds that might easily have come from a cross-cut saw. As father entered the room he saw little Jackie twisting one of grandpa's waistcoat buttons.

"What are you doing?" he whispered, "you mustn't disturb grandpa."

"I'm not, daddy," said Jackie, "I was just trying to tune him in on something different."

Exception

A little boy came home from school very much annoyed with his teacher.

Little Boy—I hate her!

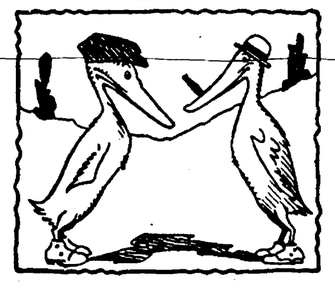
His Mother—Oh, you mustn't say that. The Bible tells us to love everybody.

Little Boy—I know, but she wasn't alive when the Bible was written.—Chelsea Record.

Not to Be Used

Little Jane had been asked to show the week-end guest to her room. Pausing on the way, she pointed out the bathroom, and touching one of the pretty embroidered towels, said: "Of course you know that these are not to be used."—Indianapolis News.

JUSTIFIED



"Why did they expel Mr. Crow from the Country club?"

"Oh, for caws."

Misunderstanding

"Were you never tempted to become a linguist?"

"What's the use?" rejoined Senator Sorghum. "Even the people who speak the same language are no longer able to come to an understanding."—Washington Star.

Determined

"It is not the time to ask me for a job. My goods are being seized tomorrow."

"Do you know if they want anybody to help seize them?"—Lausanne L'Illustre.

New Models

Dick's father is an automobile salesman. Recently his sister came home displaying pennies she had earned. The lad looked them over and said:

"I'd sure like to have them, they are the new models."

No Tips

Old Gentleman—There's been no change here for ages—has there?

Waiter—Not under the plates.—London Humorist.

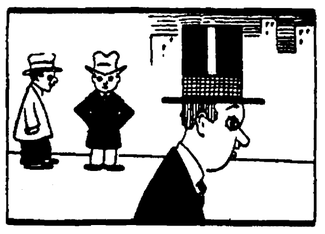
No Duck!

"Mamma, there's a man here at the door to see you."

"Does he have a bill?"

"No, mamma. Just a plain nose!"

HIS ERROR



"Jones is a self-made man."

"I know. He surely made a mistake in not consulting an expert."

Forbidden

"My wife has been forbidden to cook."

"Is she ill?"

"No, I am."—Madrid Buen Humor

A Little Premature

First Little Girl—What's your last name, Marie?

Second Little Girl—I don't know yet; I ain't married!

FOLLOWING "COPY"

The amateur band practice was being held, but something had gone wrong in the piece which had just been tried. Somebody had spoiled the effect.

The conductor of the band glared at the cornet player. "Why on earth," he yelled, "did you leave off playing just as we got to the chorus?"

"Well," said the cornet player (a raw recruit), "on my music it said, 'Refrain'—so I did!"

Find a Synonym

"Jack Newlyrich seems to have quite a lot of common sense."

"Don't let his mother hear you say that; she hates anything common."—London Tit-Bits.

TRACING HIM

"Where is Jones?"

"Cruising around somewhere in the business section."

"I'd like to see him. Are you acquainted with any of his coaling stations?"

Too Much Competition

"Excuse me, sir, but have you finished your soup?"

"Yes. Why do you ask?"

"Now we can begin the concert."—Olten Woche im Bild.

A Problem

"So you like your two lovers equally?"

"Yes, dad. I simply don't know which to marry first."—Venice Gazzettino Illustrato.

Followed Instructions

"Did you do as I told you, Mary, and ask whether the chicken was young or old before you bought it?"

"Yes, ma'am; it is old."—Dublin Opinion.

Rare Meat

Landlady—Do you like your beef this rare, Miss Phim?

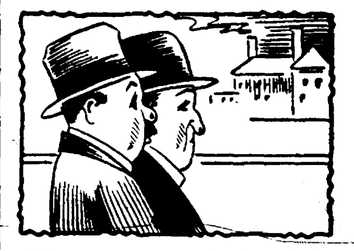
Boarder—Since you ask me; it is too rare—I would like it a little oftener.

Singing

Wife (at bathroom door)—Dinner's on the table, John. Hurry and finish your bath.

Husband—Coming, dear! Just one stanza and I'm through.

UNIQUE



"They say opportunity knocks but once."

"Yes, it's the only knocker that stops there."

Saving Dad Trouble

Irate Parent—When that young cub who's paying you attention comes again I'll sit on him.

Daughter—Oh, let me do it, father.

Rare Sight

Blinks—The papers say there are a lot of counterfeit twenty-dollar bills in circulation.

Jinks—Huh! There are so few genuine ones in circulation, any twenty-dollar bill I got would convince me it was counterfeit.

His Humble Opinion

Motorist (inquiring his way)—Boy, am I all right for the zoo?

Bright Lad—As far as I know you are, Mister, but I'm not running the zoo.—Montreal Gazette.

Social Question

Mrs. Newrich—What is that?

Mr. Newrich—Just a common gray squirrel.

"Should I notice it?"—London Tit-Bits.

Weekly Reminder

Friend—You will soon forget her and be happy again.

Jilted Suitor—Oh, no, I shan't! I've bought too much for her on the installment system!—London Answers.

If your stove isn't electric

IT ISN'T MODERN !

You can go out today and buy a brand new stove—and it won't be any more up-to-date in its method of cooking than the stove shown above. It won't have changed a bit fundamentally except for its appearance and a few slight changes in design. But if you buy an ELECTRIC range—that's a different story! An electric range is NEW . . . it's really modern, and gives you something more than your ancestors enjoyed 50 years ago.

For example, it gives you cooking without flame. It gives you PURE HEAT from a glowing wire - without smoke or soot or fumes. Electric heat is as clean as [illegible] gives you added healthfulness in cooking

TWO PERSONS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Two persons were taken to McPherson Hospital, Howell, Friday as the result of an auto crash four miles north of Fowlerville. T. Truett of Moscow, Mich., is the most seriously hurt, his back being injured. The injuries of Mrs. C. O'Neil of Redford are not considered serious. Stanley Kirshman, 17, of Linden accompanied by his mother was driving west. When he came to the Free Methodist church he paused and then started across the county road there. As he did so he crashed into a car coming north, driven by C. O'Neil of Redford. The impact was terrific and Mr. Truett, an elderly man, was thrown over a fence nito a field where he was picked up by Deputy Sheriffs Kennedy and Finlan. Both cars were wrecked.

PHILATHEA NOTES

This is the week for the October class party at Mrs. Bert Daller's. Don't forget the pictures and recipes and come without fail.

No Philathea should have missed the sermon by our pastor last Sunday in connection with the Communion service. The theme was, "A Visit to Calvary."

A helpful lesson period followed though the number in class was rather limited. A Saturday night chicken supper in the church parlors is a somewhat wearying affair to the ladies. Mrs. Euler continued the special research topic about Paul's name, to allow for furthr Bible study.

Keep alert for the coming Rally Day and also for the Annual Church meeting.

The third in our quarter's lessons on Paul will be from Acts 11:19-30 and 12:25. The subject is, "Paul in Antioch." Come and enjoy the study with us.

Miss Hazel Hinchey of Marion was a Saturday caller at the R. G. Webb home.

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church Celebrates Its Ninetieth Anniversary with a Homecoming

With the weather so nearly ideal for the event that it seemed as if ordained by heaven, the home-coming held at St. Stephen's Episcopal church Sunday in commeration of the ninetieth anniversary of the founding of the church will long live in the memory of the many who were privileged to have been in attendance. The church was a riot of color with the season's blooms. The only regrettable features of the day were the illness of Archdeacon, Leonard P. Hagger, preventing his attendance, and the illness of the wife of Edward Collins.

Promptly at 10 o'clock the services opened with morning prayer followed by the rites of baptism which was administered to Donald William Richards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Richards of Detroit, Barbara Jane DeWolfe of Ann Arbor township, and Bobby Wayne Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne [illegible] Billy Jr., Ella Mya, Dana J. and Shirley Ann Gray, children of Mr. and Mrs. William Gray and Donald and Edward Moon, sons of Mr. and Mrs. George Moon, by Rev. Edward Collins. This was followed by Holy Communion by Rev. Wm. F. Jerome assisted by Rev. Edward Collins and lay reader, Arlain Taylor, 61 came to the Communion table. Rev. William F. Jerome delivered a fine sermon on the subject "Bring Your Tithes and Vows to the Church." Music was furnished by the vested choir of the church.

Next on the program was the serving of a wonderful Bohemian dinner in the dining room of I. O. O. F. hall. Following the dinner with Rev. Jerome acting as toastmaster, a program was given as follows: Letters were read by Miss Jule Adele Bell from Mrs. Ellen Burnett Beach of Ann Arbor, Mrs. Buddie Grisson St. Johns of Los Angeles, Cal.; Norman L. Saunders of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Stella Hollister Kerstetter of Oneida, Wis.; Dr. J. Terrill Jerome of Chicago, Ill.; and George William and Lewa Olsaver Lease of Harbor Springs. Many other names were mentioned from whom letters and cards had been received. Mrs. William Keedle read a letter from Rev. Denham Quinn of Rutherford, N. J. a former lay reader here, and gave a most interesting history of the church (which will be published next week). This was followed by reminiscences and remarks (serious and otherwise) by William H. Keedle, Leon B. Royce of Lansing, Charles S DeWolfe, Miss Sophia Galatian of Kalamazoo, Mrs. Louis S. Schleede of Ann Arbor, Mrs. Etta Turnbull, Miss Bessie Hollister of Green Oak, Albert Ball, Mrs. Flora S. Jones of Ypsilanti, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis S. Olsaver, Mr. and Mrs. E. Wray Hinckley, William H. Gilbert, Dr. Alex H. Pearson, Mrs. Henry M. Queal, Charles M. Borabacher of Ann Arbor, Mrs. Edward J. Sheridan, Mrs. Henry B. Pryer, Mrs. Florence Newberry of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Emil J. Kuchar, and Arlain Taylor, Miss Lydia Greedus and Rev. Collins of Detroit.

Returning to the church at 4 o'clock, a most wonderful pageant "The Little Pilgrims or The Book Beloved" was presented by a cast of 45 characters from St. Mark's Episcopal church of Detroit, under the leadeship of Mrs. Jean deCaussin. The setting for the pageant made by Mr. deCaussin, art director of the Fox Theatre, Detroit, was a beautiful out door scene, the crowning feature being a large cross to which each character paid due reverence as they came upon the scene. The lighting effects were beautiful. The first character to appear was Humanity who laid his harvest at the foot of the cross, followed by the Church Mother and two little pilgrims from a heathen land. These were followed by personifications of the divisions of the Prayer Book, The Book Beloved Preface, Morning Prayer, Evening Prayer, The Litany, Holy Communion, Baptism, Confirmation, Matrimony, Churching of Women, Visiting the Sick, Burial, The Psalter Ordination, Institution. "The Book Binder" who united the divisions into one Beloved whole; Uncle Sam who represented the ratification of the Prayer Book in the United States, little America carrying a United States flag; Faith, Hope and Charity; a bearer of a large cross with the motto, "Lift Up Your Hands" and another bearing a banner, "All The World For Christ." As a recessional the cast sang "Savior, Blessed Savior, Listen While We Sing." The costumes were in keeping with the characters portrayed. Thus ended one of the most notable events in the annals of St. Stephen's. One waited ninety years for.

Indians Find Gold in Labrador

Possibilities of Region Are Little Known.

Washington.—Rich gold ore was recently reported to have been brought out of Labrador by Indians.

It is one of many such reports that have been made through the centuries, but still the truth as to Labrador's possibilities as a source of precious metals is unknown, says a bulletin from the National Geographic society. It is for other resources that the country is best known, the bulletin points out.

"Labrador spreads like a rough triangle from Hudson strait to Blanc Sablon, on the Strait of Belle Isle, and from the Atlantic coast inland to the Height of Land," continues the bulletin. "With an area of at least 110,000 square miles, it is almost three times the size of Newfoundland. Its boundaries embrace a fringe of coastal settlements, fur trading posts, and Grenfell and Moravian mission stations; romantic fjords and naked cliffs like those of Norway; rocky islands and narrow 'tickles' (channels); ancient mountains, valleys, and falls; 30-mile lakes and rushing rivers swarming with trout and salmon; forests and barrens where fur-bearing animals roam. Eskimos and whites live along the coast, Indians in the interior.

Pulpwood and Lumber.

"Besides minerals, other wealth lurks in Newfoundland's mainland domain. There are pulpwood and lumber in the southern forests of black spruce and white spruce, birch, cedar, poplar, and balsam fir; and 'white gold' lies latent in cataracts like Muskrat falls. Grand falls, twice as high as Niagara, could be harnessed, it is estimated, to produce more than 1,000,000 horse-power for a part of each year.

"But the sea, not the land, is Labrador's chief source of wealth today. So it has been since Cabot, letting down baskets into the sea, scooped them up full of codfish. Cod is still king on this coast, to the transient summer fisherman from Newfoundland, and the 'liveyere,' who 'lives here' in Labrador all year round.

"Neither 'liveyere' nor Newfoundlander speaks of cod by that name. Salmon is salmon and trout is trout; but cod is always 'fish.'

"The 'liveyere,' like many Newfoundlanders, depends chiefly on the cod fishery for money to buy tea, flour, salt, pork, and molasses for the winter. When the cod 'sets in shore,' he leaves his home and potato patch at the head of the inlet or fjord, and moves down to a shack on the outer coast for the summer. When the cod is running, he works 20 hours at a stretch.

"Back home after winter sets in, he hunts and traps for fur, shoots ducks, and goes on a 'cruise' (visit) to neighbors, traveling from 40 to 400 miles over snow and ice in a dog-drawn komatik, or sled.

Furs Source of Wealth.

"Sometimes a mission holds a fair, and dog teams gallop in from miles around with sled-loads of families. The men hold a shooting match, with a barrel of flour as the prize. The girls fill supper baskets, and the young men bid for them and the supper partner who goes with them.

"Rich furs—fox and ermine, mink and otter, beaver and bear and muskrat—rank next in importance to cod. The part white, part Eskimo trappers do little cod fishing, for the 'furring grounds' lie miles away from the coast, and the winter hunt, when pelts are prime, keeps the men away from home for weeks at a time.

"Rifles bang good-by as canoes pull out into midstream to begin the long trip up-river to the 'fur paths,' or hunting grounds. When a trapper chooses a certain area, he blazes trails, sets out perhaps 300 traps, and builds 'tilts' (log huts) at intervals of a day's walk apart. Thereafter, this land is his alone to hunt over, and no other trapper thinks of poaching on it.

"The trapper's day is long, work at the traps hard. Storms may overtake him, and 20-below-zero cold. Yet he stops only once or twice to prepare a mug of tea and to take a bite of bread. For supper, cooked on the tilt's tin stove, he stews a partridge with rice and salt pork; or perhaps some beaver or porcupine, whose meat is good eating. If he has time, he bakes 'rose bread' (yeast-raised), or if not, soggy bannock. Then he skins his pelts and stretches them to dry on the fur boards. Frequently he finds that mice have ruined the pelt by chewing away patches of hair.

"Furring over, he piles the pelts on a sled, and starts homeward over river ice and snow. At the end of his trail, perhaps 200 miles away, is home and family, a wood fire roaring in the stove, potatoes bubbling in the pot and sleep—sleep—and more sleep."

Sheila Brown, champion baby aviatrix, was appointed national air race mascot at Los Angeles. She is only three and one-half, but her amazing record of several hundred hours in the air, two transcontinental air flights, one forced landing and other aerial adventures qualified her as the official mascot of the air meet in July. Sheila is shown perched on the Bendix trophy.

Movement Is on Foot to Save Historic Buildings

New York.—A movement to preserve this country's historically and architecturally important buildings has been started by the American Institute of Architects with the opening of a national survey of these structures.

The institute's committee on the preservation of historic building, headed by Leicester B. Holland, chairman, is compiling a list of such buildings. This list will be subdivided into lists applying directly to the various states and cities.

For inclusion in the Atlantic seaboard tabulation, according to Doctor Holland, only buildings at least one hundred years old will be considered. No structure built later than 1850 is to be included in the survey for any part of the country.

"In foreign nations, where architecture is of national importance, historic monuments are listed and cared for by the state," said Doctor Holland. "Here, where democracy leaves cultural affairs largely to public whim, it is proper for architects organized in a national body to assume the leadership of popular interest in preserving important monuments of our past."

New Guinea Tribe Bears Only Twins

Brisbane, Australia.—Doctor Fortune, of Columbia university, arriving here from New Guinea, tells of an amazing discovery.

The Monduguma tribe develops the trait of twin-bearing almost to the exclusion of single births.

The doctor maintains it is due to a system of intermarriage between cousins.

The women of the tribe do all the work.

Birthplace of Christ Boasts Deep Sea Port

Haifa, Palestine.—The Holy Land, birthplace of Jesus Christ, has been increased in size by 90 acres.

This is due to reclamation in connection with the building of Haifa's new harbor, now nearly complete. Some of the reclaimed land will be used for harbor and customs purposes. The remainder is intended for a modern townplanning scheme.

The new harbor, which is expected to be opened in October, has cost $6,250,000. The construction was begun in October, 1929. The main breakwater is approximately one and a half miles long and consists of 76,000 square meters of stone. The lee breakwater is, roughly, half a mile long.

Orneriest Rodeo Horse Expires in Shame at 24

Billings, Mont.—Old Butterfly, "the orneriest, pitchingest horse that ever came out of a chute," is dead.

For 15 years Old Butterfly scattered riders over rodeo fields. He was nine years old when he discovered that it was easier to throw a rider from the saddle than to work, and for seven years he was never ridden.

Last fall he made his farewell appearance. Twenty-four years old, he squealed with rage as cowboys easily stuck to the saddle. His owner, Leo Cremer, attributed his death to brooding over this shame.

Not Guilty, Says Drunk, Actions Lead to Jail

Houston, Texas.—Arrested on charges of drunkenness, two men were haled before Police Judge Turner here.

"Guilty or not guilty?" the judge inquired.

"Not guilty," replied Defendant No. 1.

"Not guilty," echoed Defendant No. 2—but as he spoke he suddenly mistook the corner of the judge's desk for a lamp post and hugged it in the conventional manner of the inebriate.

Without further testimony both men were remanded to jail.

White Friars Back in England

Were Ousted 400 Years Ago by King Henry VIII.

London.—After an absence of nearly 400 years the Carmelite monks, known as White Friars, return to an established place among monastic orders in Great Britain.

The White Friars, so called because of a white mantle worn over the brown habit, held wide influence and power in Great Britain until 1538, when Henry VIII ordered their headquarters in London to be razed to the ground. Their chapel and buildings stood between Fleet street and the Thames, adjoining the temple, which was founded by the Templars.

Whitefriars street still bears the name of the order, and a newspaper office in the district is called Carmelite house. But the monks have been gone for nearly four centuries, and were without a home in England until the Catholic bishop of Southwark assigned his churches in Sittingbourne and Faversham to their care.

The White Friars wore their mantles as a sign that the order was founded in Palestine. It was established on Mount Carmel in 1212 by a Crusader named Berthold. White Friars are not common, however, the two at Sittingbourne and Faversham being the only ones in England.

When their London monastery was founded during the Crusades the order immediately attracted royal support, and Edward II gave the White Friars great latitude. Their priory and church were rebuilt in 1350, when it was said that several hundred monks lived there, enjoying wide popularity both as preachers and confessors.

An example of their power is found in the fact that almost from the first the order had the right of sanctuary. Any fugitive from justice could take refuge there for forty days unless accused of treason or sacrilege. The right was retained until 1697, long after the monastery and church had disappeared. After the suppression of the monastery the place became a notorious haunt of outcasts.

The White Friars are altogether distinct from the other order of Carmelites founded by St. Teresa in 1562. Members of this group are known as Discalced Carmelites, because they wear sandals instead of shoes and stockings.

TO DESIGN PLANES

Young Richard Dupont, twenty-two-year-old heir to the fabulous Dupont fortune, has his own ideas of the career he wishes to follow. Instead of becoming an elite sportsman, learning his father's business, or merely drifting in the best social circles, Richard plans to learn the trade of airplane designing and aeronautical engineering. He started in as "grease monkey" at the Curtiss-Wright School of Aeronautical Engineering at the Grand Central airport, Los Angeles, getting in his hours at the controls of student planes.

How I Broke Into The Movies

Copyright by Hal C. Herman

By WILLIAM HAINES

TRUTHFULLY, I broke into the movies with a boil on my nose—but more of that later. Let's start at the beginning.

If you ever hope to stay out of pictures never have your photograph taken. It gets to be a habit, like dope, and once you've started it you can't stop.

I was in New York, "just a young man trying to get along" by selling bonds. I read all the books on salesmanship and attended all the meetings and hoped some day to be president of the firm. Then, I had my photograph taken.

The trouble with that is you don't have just one picture, you have another and another. I had so many that I decided that I should, to save my conscience, make this terrible habit pay, so I began posing for what the well-dressed man will wear.

I posed in suits and hats and overcoats, when I wasn't selling bonds—and that was most of the time, because I was a rotten salesman.

It was during the time when Goldwyn Picture corporation was scouting the country for new faces. I heard about this search and as I had all the photographs taken that could possibly be taken, I felt that the moving picture field was the place to unload them.

I called at the office and as my face despite my years, still seemed very new, I was given a test the next day. I gave up the bond business at once and waited to hear the outcome of the test. I waited three and a half weeks and was, at the end of that time, seriously contemplating going back into the bond business, when I had a call to come to the office at once.

Shall I ever forget going into that office and being told that I was to start for California at once to make pictures! A girl had been chosen to be given a contract, too. She was in the office signing up and getting her instructions.

I remember that she wore a fur coat and a little fur hat and pretty flat-heeled slippers. Her hair was light—what I could see of it under her hat—and her eyes were a blue-gray. This other new discovery was Eleanor Boardman.

I arrived at the studio in a big way, with the boil on my nose. But it passed away with time and I began getting the habit of motion pictures. "That's how I broke into the movies."

Perhaps those who rejoiced most at my entrance into the cinema world were my former employers in the bond house and those New York photographers, who really started me on my downward path.

Hollywood Makeup Artists Supply New Faces for Old

The makeup men of Hollywood, who have done wonders for both male and female players from time to time, making beauties occasionally out of rather plain-faced folk, seem to be headed for fresh triumphs. At any rate, they have now solved the problem of furnishing completely new faces for old, to be worn temporarily.

"The beauty of it," says Percy Westmore, who is chief of the makeup department of the Warner studios, "is the absolute plasticity of the whole thing. We are now able to create a completely new face, using the actor's own features as a foundation, which is completely in contact with his own facial muscles at every point and which he can vivify at will, more easily than the fingers of your hand can move inside a silk glove."

Jack Holt Launched His Screen Career "Stunting"

Jack Holt launched his screen career several years ago as a "stunt" man and shortly became a western star. As such he rose to unprecedented heights. When the popularity of "cowboy" films began to wane, Holt on the verge of retirement was signed by Columbia for a series of pictures. Since then he has appeared in such outstanding productions as: "Flight," "Submarine," "Father and Son," "Hell's Island," "The Last Parade," "Dirigible," "Subway Express," "Fifty Fathoms Deep," "A Dangerous Affair," "War Correspondent," "This Sporting Age" and "Man Against Woman."

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

Grandpa's Static

Grandpa was having his afternoon sleep in the armchair and emitting sounds that might easily have come from a cross-cut saw. As father entered the room he saw little Jackie twisting one of grandpa's waistcoat buttons.

"What are you doing?" he whispered, "you mustn't disturb grandpa."

"I'm not, daddy," said Jackie, "I was just trying to tune him in on something different."

Exception

A little boy came home from school very much annoyed with his teacher.

Little Boy—I hate her!

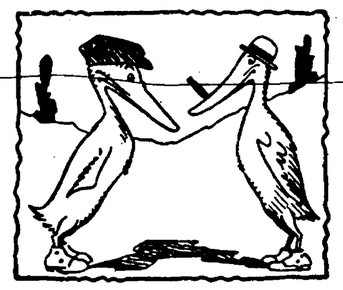
His Mother—Oh, you mustn't say that. The Bible tells us to love everybody.

Little Boy—I know, but she wasn't alive when the Bible was written.—Chelsea Record.

Not to Be Used

Little Jane had been asked to show the week-end guest to her room. Pausing on the way, she pointed out the bathroom, and touching one of the pretty embroidered towels, said: "Of course you know that these are not to be used."—Indianapolis News.

JUSTIFIED



"Why did they expel Mr. Crow from the Country club?"

"Oh, for caws."

Misunderstanding

"Were you never tempted to become a linquist?"

"What's the use?" rejoined Senator Sorghum. "Even the people who speak the same language are no longer able to come to an understanding."—Washington Star.

Determined

"It is not the time to ask me for a job. My goods are being seized tomorrow."

"Do you know if they want anybody to help seize them?"—Lausanne L'Illustre.

New Models

Dick's father is an automobile salesman. Recently his sister came home displaying pennies she had earned. The lad looked them over and said: "I'd sure like to have them, they are the new models."

No Tips

Old Gentleman—There's been no change here for ages—has there?

Waiter—Not under the plates.—London Humorist.

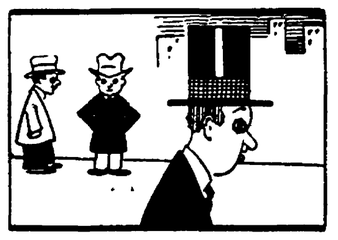
No Duck!

"Mamma, there's a man here at the door to see you."

"Does he have a bill?"

"No, mamma. Just a plain nose!"

HIS ERROR



"Jones is a self-made man."

"I know. He surely made a mistake in not consulting an expert."

Forbidden

"My wife has been forbidden to cook."

"Is she ill?"

"No, I am."—Madrid Buen Humor.

A Little Premature

First Little Girl—What's your last name, Marie?

Second Little Girl—I don't know yet; I ain't married!

FOLLOWING "COPY"

The amateur band practice was being held, but something had gone wrong in the piece which had just been tried. Somebody had spoiled the effect.

The conductor of the band glared at the cornet player. "Why on earth," he yelled, "did you leave off playing just as we got to the chorus?"

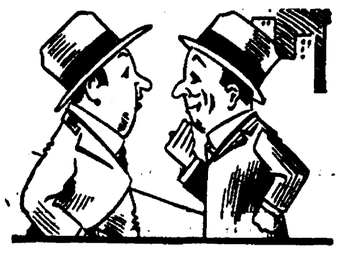
"Well," said the cornet player (a raw recruit), "on my music it said, 'Refrain'—so I did!"

Find a Synonym

"Jack Newlyrich seems to have quite a lot of common sense."

"Don't let his mother hear you say that; she hates anything common."—London Tit-Bits.

TRACING HIM



"Where is Jones?"

"Cruising around somewhere in the business section."

"I'd like to see him. Are you acquainted with any of his coaling stations?"

Too Much Competition

"Excuse me, sir, but have you finished your soup?"

"Yes. Why do you ask?"

"Now we can begin the concert."—Olten Woche im Bild.

A Problem

"So you like your two lovers equally?"

"Yes, dad. I simply don't know which to marry first."—Venice Gazzettino Illustrato.

Followed Instructions

"Did you do as I told you, Mary, and ask whether the chicken was young or old before you bought it?"

"Yes, ma'am; it is old."—Dublin Opinion.

Rare Meat

Landlady—Do you like your beef this rare, Miss Phim?

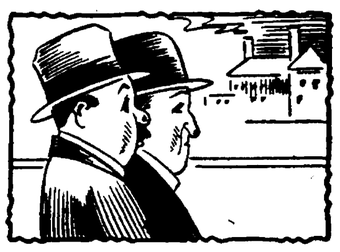
Boarder—Since you ask me; it is too rare—I would like it a little oftener.

Singing

Wife (at bathroom door)—Dinner's on the table, John. Hurry and finish your bath.

Husband—Coming, dear! Just one stanza and I'm through.

UNIQUE



"They say opportunity knocks but once."

"Yes, it's the only knocker that stops there."

Saving Dad Trouble

Irate Parent—When that young cub who's paying you attention comes again I'll sit on him.

Daughter—Oh, let me do it, father.

Rare Sight

Blinks—The papers say there are a lot of counterfeit twenty-dollar bills in circulation.

Jinks—Huh! There are so few genuine ones in circulation, any twenty-dollar bill I got would convince me it was counterfeit.

His Humble Opinion

Motorist (inquiring his way)—Boy, am I all right for the zoo?

Bright Lad—As far as I know you are, Mister, but I'm not running the zoo.—Montreal Gazette.

Social Question

Mrs. Newrich—What is that?

Mr. Newrich—Just a common gray squirrel.

"Should I notice it?"—London Tit-Bits.

Weekly Reminder

Friend—You will soon forget her and be happy again.

Jilted Suitor—Oh, no, I shan't! I've bought too much for her on the installment system!—London Answers.

GUILLOTINED HER FAITHLESS "ROYAL" LOVER

Read in The American Weekly, with next Sunday's Detroit Times, the case of an unhappy woman who gladly gave her husband, honor and fortune, for the man who claimed to be an emperor's "love child"—until he called her an "Old Fool".

SCHOOL NOTES

The Junior Class has organized with the following officers:

President ..... Constance Darrow
Vice President ..... James Lamb
Secretary ..... Robert Read
Treasurer ..... Betty Clinton

Well, we won another game last Friday but we certainly had to go some. Hartland showed more fight than any team that ever played on the Pinckney field.

Leon Rancour, former Howell high school star, refereed. He attended Western State Normal at Kalamazoo last year but is not in college now.

The Pinckney line again showed up strong. Hartland made a couple of first downs through it the first quarter and then failed to gain at all on line or running plays.

Pinckney's one big fault was that they did not mix up their plays and used Dilloway too much in carrying the ball. He has been the only consistant gainer and the team depends on him too much. His gains made the first touchdown possible and then Hartland stopped him cold and blocked the Pinckney offensive for two whole quarters.

Pinckney failed to forward pass until the final quarter, depending almost entirely on line plays which were blocked repeatedly. A few passes or open plays would have scattered the Hartland defense and made a higher score possible.

The two passes caught by Dilloway were beauties and gained about 40 yards. They placed the ball on the 5 yard line where Read took it over for his first touchdown of the season.

The following are the points scored by the boys: Dilloway 7, Wylie 7, Drown 6, Read 6.

Lyman Battle who has been out of the last two games was back in uniform again but did not get into action.

When will Pinckney be able to use some of her hard playing substitutes? Up to date all contests have been so close that not many of them get into the game.

The fans would like to see Chuck Clinton, Billy Meyer, Dock Hendee and others in action.

There will be no game here this week as Pinckney has an open date. The next game is with Manchester here on October 20. Other games are Oct. 27, Hartland at Hartland; Nov. 3, Fenton there; Nov. 10, St. Thomas here; Nov. 17, Brighton here. The Fenton contest is reckoned the hardest as the enrollment of the school is nearly 800. St. Thomas will also put up a hard contest.

The Sophmore class organized Monday with the following officers:

President ..... Margaret Curlett
Vice President ..... Ralph Clinton
Secretary ..... Janis Carr
Treasurer ..... Robert Richardson

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Malice to All—Charity toward None

Who is the black-haired gal that's hanging around the new Oldsmobile next door lately? And while your answering that one, why does the owner of said Oldsmobile visit school every noon?

Why does the Captain of our football team send so many notes to the little blonde back of him?

Whose watch was Connie Darrow exploiting a few days ago?

Was it only the old school spirit that called Hookey Battle back to the football team?

Has Murray Kennedy started a kindergarten bus for the sake of a red-headed woman?

Why has Jack Dilloway taken such an active interest in a certain brown-eyed damsel?

What does Leo do when he can't tell the twins apart?

Why doesn't that grease-monkey with the cunning cookie-duster ever date the women?

Why, we wonder, did Florine slip in front of those two ardent admirers of hers, Lemuel and Fritz, and neither one offered their assistance?

Is there any reason other than dramatic lessons that calls Mary Jane to Ann Arbor every Saturday?

Can you answer these?

Guy Michaels of Pinckney and Miss Franklin of Detroit were married there October 7.

Miss Mary Curlett of Roseville called at the Curlett home here last Thursday.

Gerald Kennedy and his grandmother, Mrs. P. Kennedy, were in Grand Rapids the first part of the week.

Walter Mall of Howell and Leon Allis of Fleming called on Pinckney friends Sunday.

The Dexter base ball team lost the third and deciding game of the Washtenaw county series last Sunday to the Ann Arbor Moose at West Park 5 to 2, giving the latter 2 wins out of three. Nowak pitching for Dexter allowed but three hits.

FIVE SUITS TOTAL $110,000

Five suits aggregating claims of $110,000 have been filed in the Washtenaw Circuit Court by Harry Ladd, administrator of the estate of Arthur Ladd, deceased, Nora Ladd, Lorene Hale, Zelpha Hale and Eunice Schultz, all of Pontiac, against George Cooper and The Oaklands, a corporation, of Washtenaw county. The suits are for damages claimed to have been caused by an automobile accident on March 19th, last, on the Plymouth road about five miles east of Ann Arbor. Mr. and Mrs. Ladd had been in Ann Arbor attending some student activities of the University which their sons were attending and were on the way back to Pontiac about 10 P. M. when an automobile driven by George Cooper and owned by The Oaklands, a large dairy farm, and approaching from an opposite direction, collided with the Ladd car. The Ladd car was being driven by Mr. Ladd who had been cashier of the First National Bank of Pontiac for several years. He suffered a fracture of the skull from which he died seven days later in the hospital at Ann Arbor. All of the occupants of the Ladd car were injured, Mrs. Ladd's and Miss Hale's being the most severe. Mr. Cooper, the driver of the other car, was also badly cut. The suits were commenced for the plaintiffs by Shields and Smith, attorneys, of Howell, Michigan.

How Can We Help In the National Crisis

Probably no one knows or can prophesy definitely when business will be back to normal. We do know that general business is now at least 20 percent better than it was last spring.

Here's one thing that we know will help. One hundred Dollars deposited in the bank will do ten to twenty times that amount of business through credit expansion.

Your business always appreciated.
