BUY MORE LAKE FRONTAGE

Fred and Ross Read who purchased a strip of lake frontage on the south side of Big Portage Lake several years ago from the Birkett estate which they subdivided and sold and on which cottages have been erected on most of the lots,purchased another strip of lake frontage Tuesday. This last purchase is a chunk of land about 700 feet long and 300 feet wide and lies along the Huron River between Portage and Base Lakes and includes the land on both sides of the river between these two lakes. It is bounded on the north by Portage Lake on the west by the Birkett estate, on the south by Base Lake and on the east by the lands of the Portage Lake Land Co. It is a very beautiful piece of frontage, is located on level land is beautifully wooded. The property will be platted and put on the market this year if possible. It was purchased from Mrs. H. Wirt Newkirk, the deal being made by Norman Reason,Pinckney Realtor.

A BIG SUCCESS IN ALL WAYS

The play "Poor Father" presented by the senior class of the Pinckney High School last Friday evening was a big success from a financial and dramatic standpoint. Every seat was filled and standing room was at a premium. Although it is impossible to accurately estimate the attendance it is estimated to have been about 500 as about $180 worth of tickets were sold. The parts were all well taken and the plots and misfortunes which befell "Poor Father" drew laugh after laugh. Elizabeth Bokrus in the role of Poor Father's wife excelled as did Mildred Haines, Hazel Smith and Ruth Evers in the roles of her three elgible daughters. Marjory Allison made a winsome little French maid and Cecil Hendee as the pervicating colored servant kept the audience convulsed with laughter. Mark Nash in the role of "Poor Father" gave the audience the impression that the part was made on purpose for him and the showing of Merwin Campbell as suitor for the hand of the daughter was creditable. Wayne Carr's presentation of the part of the absent minded Mr. Dumbly could not be improved on and neither could the showing of Clare Miller as a physcology student. Norman Miller made an excellent police sergeant and Loretta Dillingham gave a successful impersonation of a gold digging actress.

PINCKNEY 6, HOWELL 8

Pinckney lost her game with Howell last Wednesday but still has a chance for the county championship if she wins from Hartland as then she would be tied with Hartland for second place and would draw with Hartland for the privelige of playing Howell field day. The game was loosely played both teams making many errors and all pitchers showing lack of control. Pinckney got a run in the first when Clare Miller got on by means of a Howell error and scored on Roy Reason's single. Howell tied the score in the second on a single and two Pinckney errors. Swarthout put Pinckney in the lead again in the third when he reached first on an outfield error and scored on a passed ball after stealing second and third. Pinckney held this lead until the fifth and looked like certain winners, as Howell was unable to hit Swarthout. In this innings after two men had been retired on strikes by Swarthout the Pinckney team blew up and made two bad errors which put Howell in the lead However Pinckney came back in the sixth and knocked Filkins out of the box. But in the seventh they made four errors which gave Howell three more runs. Pinckney got their last score in the seventh when Swarthout who was safe on an error scored on Roy Reason's hit. Robb who had succeeded Filkins in the box for Howell looked bad in the eighth when he walked Graves and Campbell and Hornshaw was safe on an error however his teamates came to his support and got Graves and C. Miller on a fast double play when the latter flied to short. This ended the scoring as neither team was able to do anything in the ninth.

DANCE TONIGHT

Division No. 3 of the Altar Society of St. Mary's church give a dance at the Pinckney Opera House tonight.

HOLY NAME RALLY

500 members of the Holy Name Society of Jackson District, No. 6 which includes 16 parishes attended the district rally held at Jackson in St. Mary's church last Sunday. Addresses were given by Attorney J. J. Noon of Jackson, W. T. Marterstock of Jackson and Rev. F. J. McQuillan of Pinckney.

W. V. Dailey of Jackson was elected president of the district and J. A. Andrews of Jackson vice president. William O'Leary of Jackson was chosen secretary and Ambrose Murphy of Pinckney treasurer with George Calkins of Albion marshall. Pinckney was selected as the place for the September meeting.

"I don't believe in quarrels concerning matters relating to tolerance or intolerance. I believe the world is built on love" declared Mr. Noon in his address.

The Holy Name members were urged to become "Soldiers of Christ" by Rev. Fr. McQuillan who was recently appointed spiritual director of this district. He condemned divorce and religious infidelity as dangers attacking the church and home.

Rev. Fr. Cullinane pastor of St. Mary's parish welcomed the visitors. Mrs. Nellie Hauck and Howard Riley sang several vocal selections. Miss Lucile Brogan played a number of harp solos.

Following the program the men proceeded to the church auditorium where the solemn benediction of the blessed sacrement was given with Rev. Fr. McQuillan officiating.

The following from Pinckney attended: L. G. Devereaux and son, Leonard, Louis Clinton, Irvin Kennedy, Ben White, A. H. Murphy, Will Roche, James Stackable, Ted and Wilbur Singer, Dan Driver, George Greiner and A. M. Roche.

ANOTHER BURGLARY

Once again for the fourth time in a few months thieves have visited this peaceful village and appropriated unto themselves the goods and chattels of an auto accessory store and garage. This time W. H. Meyers was the chosen victim, the robbers helping themselves to $400 worth of Miller tites, tubes and auto accessories. The robbery is supposed to have happened two o'clock this morning and as in the other robberies no clues were left. Entrance was gained by forceing the door with a wrecking bar, the same as in all the other robberies. No insurance was carried on the goods. Pinckney seems to be a fertile field for this kind of thievry although many other towns report similar robberies.

CLASS PARTY

The ladies of the Philathea Class of the Congregational Church were very pleasantly entertained at a May party at the home of Mrs. Nettie Johnson last Wednesday afternoon. After the usual social and business session, a fine pot luck lunch was served to those present.

LAVERNE GREER

LaVerne Greer, son of James and Nora Going Greer, was born in Pinckney on June 9, 1906 and died at the Howell Sanitarium on May 14, 1927. When a year old he moved with his parents, both of whom have passed on, to Pontiac. He is survived by three brothers, Earl of the U. S. Navy, and Archie and Roy of Pontiac.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Kellogg Curtly Refuses to Discuss Mellon Letter With England.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WHEN Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in a recent letter to President Hibben of Princeton university stated that "all our principal debtors are already receiving from Germany more than enough to pay their debts to the United States," there was immediate protest in England against the accuracy of the statement in so far as it applied to Great Britain. Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill and others made heated speeches, but it was not supposed that the government would take formal notice of the matter. Last week, however, Washington was surprised to receive from Great Britain a long note attacking Mr. Mellon's letter and asking that the United States government "take steps to remove the unfortunate impression that has been created by the issue of this statement."

Secretary of State Kellogg conferred with President Coolidge and others and then handed to the British ambassador this decidedly curt reply:

"The government of the United States regards the correspondence between Mr. Mellon and Mr. Hibben as a purely domestic discussion and does not desire to engage in any formal diplomatic exchanges upon the subject."

Mr. Mellon, believing the attacks in the British note should not go unanswered, gave out a statement justifying and explaining at length the position he has taken in the discussion.

Diplomatic circles in London were as much surprised by the British note as was Washington. In government opposition circles there was an inclination to suspect that the note was meant largely for home consumption and for the benefit of the Conservative party, which has difficulty in explaining the budget deficit.

AMERICAN correspondents in Geneva say that the underlying idea of all delegations (except the American) at the League of Nations economic conference which opened last week is that the most practical step toward world reconstruction and general prosperity would be the cancellation of all war debts and reparations. Some of them also had schemes for the limitation of production of wheat, corn, cotton, copper and other goods, chiefly produced in the United States. The American delegates, headed by Henry M. Robinson of Los Angeles, were primed to meet all such suggestions. Soviet Russia, having settled her quarrel with Switzerland, sent a bunch of economists led by Valerian Ossinski. That gentleman said they would submit "concrete proposals to alleviate the difficulties of the bourgeoisie world and give a full report on what was accomplished in Soviet Russia."

M. Theunis of Belgium is presiding over the conference and 50 nations are represented. The conference will adopt resolutions and make recommendations, which, however, will not be binding on the countries represented, whatever may be the attitude of their delegations.

FACTS and problems of commerce and trade on the Western continent were brought out and discussed in Washington where both the third Pan-American commercial congress and the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States were in session. President Coolidge was chief speaker at a joint session of the two bodies and set forth the development of trade between the United States and the countries of Central and South America. He said that not only has the United States purchased more from Latin-American countries than it has sold to them, but it had for a long time been the chief foreign purchaser of their products.

Next day the Chamber of Commerce heard reports from the principal sections of the country, all showing present prosperity with prospect of its continuance, except in the case of the farmer. His plight, in the Middle West and the cotton-growing part of the South, was described as discouraging.

FLOOD conditions in southeastern Arkansas, northeastern Louisiana and western Mississippi grew worse steadily during the week. The water, pouring through new crevasses on the Mississippi, inundated a region about 5,000 square miles in extent, only a few narrow ridges being left above the surface. Most of the population already had been gathered at concentration points, but many hundreds were left stranded on the levees and small high places. The rescue of these unfortunates was being carried on as rapidly as possible, being directed by the scores of navy aviators sent there by the government. Civilian Dictator Parker was in general charge of the rescue operations and was doing splendid work. Secretary Hoover returned to Washington long enough to report to the President, and the result was a call for another $5,000,000 subscription to the Red Cross relief fund. The spread of disease in the flooded states was the cause of great anxiety and of such precautions as could be taken.

"We have definite reports of 25 cases of typhoid fever in the refugee camps, and there probably are many others," said Dr. William R. Redden, medical director for the American Red Cross. "And the worst part of the health problem is to come in a week or ten days, when the disease has had an opportunity to manifest itself. The health problem will increase as the waters recede."

A hundred thousand persons were immunized with typhoid and smallpox antitoxin, and the Red Cross obtained from the army ten mobile laboratories for the purification of water.

President Coolidge has indicated that he did not think it necessary to call a special session of congress for providing for relief and rehabilitation in the Mississippi valley. Senators Copeland of New York and La Follette of Wisconsin disagreed with him and both of them appealed to him by wire to call congress together. They asserted that funds from private resources would not be sufficient and that the flood victims were entitled to look to congress for assistance.

When Mr. Hoover returned from the capital he was accompanied by Secretary of War Davis, who was asked by the President to make a comprehensive study of the problem of flood control, in conjunction with the army engineers, and to submit recommendations for remedial legislation prior to the opening of the next congress. A flood-control conference also was held at Peoria, Ill., with numerous experts and officials in attendance. The people of the Middle West are so aroused by this disaster, described by Senator La Follette as the greatest in our history, that the national and state governments may be led at last to provide adequate protection against a repetition. Patchwork measures and dilatory tactics in the past have combined to make unified flood control impossible, according to those who have studied the subject. The federal government is held primarily responsible.

NINETY-FOUR men were entombed in the Everettville mine near Fairmont, W. Va., by an explosion. At the time of writing 29 bodies had been brought out by the rescue crews, and it was thought certain that all the rest of the unfortunate miners had perished, for fire was raging in parts of the workings.

THOUGH the peace conference in Nicaragua failed to accomplish its purpose, because the liberals would not consent to the retention of the Presidency by Adolfo Diaz, a two days' truce was arranged with the prospect of further negotiations. General Moncada, commander in chief of the liberal army, represented Doctor Sacasa at the conference and he said he was willing to treat further with Henry L. Stimson, the emissary of President Coolidge, provided the government troops were withdrawn from the Bonco and Teustepe regions where most of the liberals are concentrated. "Mr. Stimson told me," said General Moncada, "that the United States government intends to restore peace in Nicaragua immediately and to use force if necessary to do so." A number of the general's staff declared that if the United States formally ordered the liberals to lay down their arms and cease firing, they would be compelled to accept. But, he added, so long as the United States attempted to lay down terms, which included the continuance of Diaz in office, the liberals would fight for "constitutionality and justice for Nicaragua."

MARSHAL CHANG TSO-LIN'S Peking government executed the Chinese Reds caught in the raid on the Russian embassy grounds, and the other day it was reported that the Russian propagandists nabbed at the time were to be tried by court-martial. The Moscow government therefore transmitted to Peking a strong note warning Chang that if the Russians received the same sentence as the Chinese Communists, Russia would "immediately take the inevitable steps." The trials were postponed and a conference of Chinese officials was held at which, according to rumor, it was decided that the Russians should be deported. Mme. Michael Borodine, the captured wife of the Soviet adviser to the Cantonese government, presumably will have a separate trial.

Miles Lampson, British minister to China, has reported to his government that the Hankow faction of the Cantonese has offered to oust the Reds and make common cause with the Nanking moderates if the powers will cease further action against it. The offer was made by Foreign Minister Eugene Chen himself, but the London officials were suspicious that it was a ruse to gain further delay.

Some person or persons in Peking, apparently desirous of creating the impression that there was lack of harmony in the American government over its Chinese policy, sent out the report that Minister MacMurray had resigned. This was flatly denied in Washington and the administration showed considerable irritation over this and other false press stories from foreign sources. At present Mr. Coolidge does not see that any advantage could be derived by sending another note concerning the Nanking outrages, and he does not believe the other powers have agreed to follow up the former note and press for compliance because conditions in the ranks of the Nationalist party are too chaotic.

PREMIER POINCARE electrified France by the announcement that the government was planning the construction of a vast system of fortifications on its northern and eastern frontiers, so powerful and extensive that another invasion would be next ing Central and South America, returned last week to Washington. President and Mrs. Coolidge and numerous officials went out to Bolling field to welcome them home, and to each flyer the President presented a certificate for the distinguished flying cross. It was announced, too, that posthumous award of the cross had been made to Capt. C. F. Woolsey and Lieut. J. W. Benton, who were killed when their planes crashed at Buenos Aires.

DETACHMENTS of the Arkansas National Guard were sent to Little Rock by the governor to avert threatened race riots as a result of the lynching of a negro. The victim of the mob had been identified as the attacker of two white women. After a few hours of strenuous work the militiamen gained control of the situation.

New Theories of Life Really Based on Common Consciousness of God

By BISHOP G. G. BENNETT, Duluth.

ON EVERY hand, we see evidence of the theory that the individual is an end in itself. The church today is being acclaimed as an end in itself. It is not; it is merely a means to an end.

Behavioristic psychology is simply a symbol of determination which is prevalent in business, in religion and in society generally.

The ability to reason is not the chief distinction between man and lower types of animal life. Reason is but a part of consciousness which is the greatest factor distinguishing the human being from lower animals.

Consciousness is the common inheritance of mankind. At the basis of this common consciousness is God. The search for him in this modern age is carried on by many so piteously and hopelessly. Men think that they must find God in some other way and channel than the ordinary avenues of life. As a matter of fact, God must be at the elbow of our every necessity, and the sooner we realize this, the sooner will we understand the mysteries of life.

New psychological and scientific theories may be compared to the little child, who at an early age tries to run away down the street and thinks it can get along by itself. Eventually the child must realize that it depends upon its elders for sustenance and livelihood. So the many new theories of life all lead eventually back to the basis of a common consciousness and a common God.

Need for Determining and Correcting Causes of Scholastic Failures

By H. GLICKSMAN, Assistant Dean, University of Wisconsin.

Principal causes of scholastic failures are: Outside work, poor health, mental disquiet, extra-curricular activities, social diversions and the lure of college life in general, noisy surroundings and undesirable associates, inadequate methods of study, meager natural endowments and plain indifference and neglect.

There are no two failing students in whom these various causes operate in the same combination. In educational science, as in the other sciences, we need to draw farther away from the once popular doctrine that disorders are referable to single and separate causes.

More intimate contact between teachers and officials on the one hand and students on the other would help to detect causes of undergraduate failures, and also help us to find and apply remedies.

We need more and more to determine what students have come for an education and what students have come merely to "go to college." If a freshman is found to have the enthusiasm, perception and industry with which to thrive and rejoice over a program, let us say, of English composition, elementary foreign language, medieval history and general chemistry, he is a hopeful risk and deserves careful development. We must not be afraid to say to a student singularly lacking in such enthusiasm and perception and industry that he is not promising college material.

Truthful and Accurate Newspaper Indispensable to the World of Today

By FRED A. WALKER, New York Publishers' Association.

A day without a newspaper would be an inconvenience, and a week without a newspaper would be a catastrophe. Whatever happens, the public looks first to the newspapers for information and this is the greatest tribute that can be paid to the truthfulness and accuracy of the press.

Some people unkindly and untruthfully cast reflections on the dependability of the news as it is printed; yet those who have to do with the making of the newspapers and who have a real acquaintance with the detail of news gathering and distribution know that there is no activity of the human race in which speed and quantity are factors that is so accurately performed as the collecting of the world's news and its distribution through newspaper columns.

The newspapers are the eyes, the ears and the mouth of the world. They perform the functions of seeing, hearing and telling for 24 hours of every day in the year. Upon the publicity afforded by the newspapers depends the prosperity of a thousand different forms of activity and the return on millions of dollars invested. Indescribable chaos would result if the newspapers were suspended.

Modern-Day Extravagance of Both Old and Young Needs to Be Checked

By W. R. MOREHOUSE, American Bankers' Association.

The American people are becoming more and more reckless with their money. It isn't so much the high cost of living in these days as it is the lack of of appreciation of the value of minor coins. Today, if you drop a penny on the sidewalk you almost hesitate to pick it up. If you drop a nickel or a dime in your office, you are tempted to remark, "Oh, let the janitor get it."

Young America is being reared in this environment, which borders on extravagance. Our children are demanding liberal allowances for their school expenses; instead of taking lunch to school, as was the custom 25 years ago, the children today insist on an allowance of at least 50 cents a day.

To offset the tendency toward extravagance in children, I would urge bankers to encourage children's accounts and welcome the deposits of pennies and nickels. Stock salesmen and promoters are getting too many of the savings accounts with promises of high returns, and installment buying is an evil in so far as it encourages the purchase of luxuries, instead of necessities.

Immense Wealth of Nation Is Threatening Spiritual Integrity of the People

By DR. JOHN A. MARQUIS, Presbyterian General Secretary.

America in her 150 years of history has had to face many serious problems. Some were the foundation and interpretation of her Constitution, the acquisition and organization of her immense territory, slavery and many others. But she never has had to face problems more serious than those she faces now; economic, industrial, international and racial. Her people have gotten so wealthy their spiritual integrity is threatened.

Wealth has sapped the moral vigor of every nation in the past that has possessed it. Will it be the ruin of us? It depends on how Christian we are. The task of our missionary boards is to create in our citizenship a spirit that can handle the complex situation. A great crowd of witnesses is watching how we spend our wealth.

The church plays a vital part in the answer.

FARM STOCK

BIGGER TEAMS TO INCREASE POWER

In general, the more power a man uses or directs at a profit, the greater will be his income, A. L. Young of the farm mechanics department, college of agriculture University of Illinois, points out in showing the value of large teams in farm work.

"There are, of course, practical limits to the amount of power that can be used profitably, and this amount will vary a great deal with the kind of work as well as with the man.

"If a farmer uses horses as his source of power when doing field work, he must, if he wants to make his own time or that of his helpers count for as much as possible, use reasonably large teams and implements. Certainly the man who uses six horses and plows between five and six acres a day, is making better use of his time than another man who uses two horses and plows two acres a day.

"On some implements, and particularly on plows, it becomes necessary when using the larger sizes of teams, to hitch the horses in tandem. This must be done to avoid the side draft that exists when the horses are hitched abreast. With four horses abreast on a plow with two 14-inch bottoms there is usually from 18 to 22 inches of side draft, which is enough to cause both plow and horses to work at a great disadvantage.

"As a rule one will not want to use less than four horses in tandem. If these are used, two in front and two behind, on a two-bottom plow, they will probably have to be kept pretty well separated (from 44 to 52 inches, center to center of horse) to keep the line of pull on or near the line of draft. Five horses, two in front and three behind, with a distance of about 32 inches from center to center of horse, will pull two 14-inch bottoms with practically no side draft. Where the ground is especially hard to plow, or under other adverse conditions, six horses (preferably hitched three and three rather than two and four) can be used on a two-bottom plow without excessive side draft. As many as seven horses (hitched three and four) have been used on a two-bottom plow, but this necessitates having considerable side draft.

"In a few cases Illinois farmers are using eight horses on three-bottom plows. This seems to be about as large a team as is practicable unless the team is strung out until there are three or possibly four or five horses in tandem. These very large teams, of from 12 to 20 horses, are being used to considerable extent in sections of the country where farms and fields are large. In the corn belt section it is the use of more five to eight-horse teams that should be emphasized."

Better Sheep as Result of New Grading Process

Grading and selling co-operatively has helped materially to improve the live stock of Allegheny county, Virginia, according to information received by the United States Department of Agriculture from County Agent S. B. Surber. Referring to the grading and sale of sheep, Mr. Surber contrasts the old method with the new. "In the old way," he says, "it was the same price to everybody, but under the grading plan the best lambs bring the most money. Our farmers soon learned that if a neighbor had better lambs he received a higher check. This induced them to take notice of what neighbors were doing. It was not long before those with inferior breeding stock obtained better bucks and also gave their sheep the stomach-worm treatment. Briefly, grading has done a great deal toward increasing the use of better bucks and toward the better care of lambs."

The local association has been shipping about 4,000 lambs each year with satisfactory returns to owners.

Parents of 24 in Hard Struggle

All Born Within 23 Years; Six Die in Infancy, 18 Alive.

Goodhue, Minn.—Twenty-four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Anton Rosener of this village, all within 23 years.

Among them were five sets of twins. Six of the children died in babyhood. Eighteen are living, and all but four have left the parental roof. The last born of the children arrived in 1909—Edward, who with his brothers, William, nineteen, and Theodore, twenty, and a sister, Rosie, twenty-one, remain at home.

Anton Rosener is the village blacksmith, who came here about 28 years ago, after seven years in Hastings, Minn., to which city he immigrated from Austria with his wife and three children.

In those early years there was much blacksmithing, much shoeing, much wagon-making and repairing to be done. The arrival of the vanguard of the amazing procession of children was hailed with joy. With the wages from the Hastings shop, a garden and food prices within reason, they could get along, though they could save nothing.

Borrowed to Buy Beds.

When they came to Goodhue their family had increased to six children, the youngest of whom was three months, the eldest, eleven years. They had acquired few household furnishings and Anton had to borrow money from his partner with which to buy additional furniture, including a bed or two to meet the exigency provided by the "little blessings" that were arriving so frequently.

Business was good in the blacksmith shop, but with mounting household expenses—the doctors' bills, the food, the school books—the multiplicity of births caused the parents much concern.

"Would you, if you had your life to live again, like to have another large family?" Mrs. Rosener was asked.

She shook her head; silent a moment while in quick review of the years of her motherhood, then smiled and reconsidering her negative gesture, said:

"If I could have good health—yes."

"Oh, but it was hard work to take care of them," she continued. "I put in a big garden—three lots—and then got use of another lot so I could raise more. I raised all the vegetables for winter use.

"Twenty at the table every meal. But I fed them good. We had a cow and pigs—yes—and some apple and plum trees, and a cherry tree, too. I made sauerkraut and did much canning. Butter I made, too.

"I did all the sewing and mending until the girls got large enough to help. I knitted all their stockings. I got clothes from other people and made them over for us. For myself I never went down in my husband's pocket for a cent.

Illness Passed Them By.

Neither husband nor wife has ever been incapacitated by illness of any sort. All the children that have grown up have had excellent health.

"Smallpox, measles, scarlet fever—all around us sometimes," Anton Rosener said, "but my children, they never have none of them. I think I lucky! We don't keep them in house because weather cold or it rain. They stay out much and they keep healthy."

His sons, William and Edward, help their father in the shop, but in an indifferent way. They view blacksmithing in the village as a waning trade. They do not care to learn it. Their brother, Theodore, is a barber, and that is more to their liking. Or, there is Steve, now twenty-six, chief mechanic in the Red Wing fire department. "He has a real job," these younger brothers say.

Grace was the first of the children to leave home. She married Harry Howard, a Minneapolis painter. One after another, the 14 others went away. "I had to shove them out to care for themselves as soon as I could," Mrs. Rosener said sadly. "Now only four left. Rosie marry, but I keep her here just as long as we can get along together."

German Beauties Shy; Shun Bathing Suits

Berlin.—Germany is soon to have a beauty queen worthy of the title "Fraulein Deutschland" to participate in international beauty contests.

The crowns of all gretchens, including that of Hilde Quandt, who was recently chosen as the prettiest girl from 50 competitors, have been challenged as unrepresentative. So the League of Cultivation of Physical Beauty has organized a contest on the American plan. Forty-four cities already have consented to select their prized beauties.

The rules provide that girls will not have to wear bathing suits unless they desire, but "no artificial aids to shapeliness" are to be permitted beneath whatever single tight-fitting garment the contestants want to wear. The bathing-suit regulation was made optional, the league announced, because many provincial gretchens shy at revealing too much of their figure in public. The winners of the city contests will then enter the finals in Berlin.

Camp McCoy to Be Leader for Artillery

Camp McCoy, Wis.—This military reservation, extending over 1,400 acres of Monroe county, is destined within the next three years to be the greatest artillery training camp in the United States. Thousands of regular army, organized reserve and National Guard artillery troops from nine states will be gathered here each year for intensive training.

This was learned definitely when some of the details of a three-year improvement plan, already under way, were explained.

Such progress has already been made that, beginning in June, the regular and National Guard artillery from Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Nebraska will do their training here. Later, Michigan artillery, which will this year train at Camp Grayling, Mich., will be added to the list. In no other part of the United States will so large an aggregation of artillery be gathered together.

Camp McCoy, named in honor of the late Maj. Gen. Robert B. McCoy of Sparta, commander of the Thirty-second division during the World war, is little known to the average person of the service.

It has been used for a government firing range for 15 years and army officials have long been aware of its advantages as a large camp site.

Royal Chef Prefers Job in American Kitchen

Eureka Springs, Ark.—A chef who served his apprenticeship in the kitchen of the Russian royal palace and prepared food for the tables of three czars finds Americans much easier to please.

After catering to the appetites of monarchs, W. C. Thompson, an Esthonian by birth, now is a chef in a resort hotel here. It is no trouble at all, he says, to cook for American millionaires.

Thompson's first experience as a cook for royalty was under Alexander II and then Alexander III and Nicholas II.

Throng Seeks Cures Following "Miracle"

Edense, Denmark.—Pilgrims are flocking to this famous old Danish city, where Hans Christian Andersen was born, following reports of miraculous cures effected at spiritualist meetings.

The cures are attributed to the intervention of Brother Johannes, who died here two centuries ago. It is declared that he restored the sight of a blind girl recently after noted physicians had failed. Many cures of cripples also are reported.

The police recently forbade the holding of secret meetings by the spiritualists.

American "Friendship Dolls" in Japan

Daughters of wealthy Japanese received 48 American "friendship dolls," one from each state of the Union. The children are seen filing out of the reception salon of the S. S. Tenyo Maru, which brought the dolls, with their mothers at their side. Over 100,000 friendship dolls were received in Japan from America, and distributed. "Miss America" was given to Princess Shigeko, the daughter of the emperor.

ARMY TWINS ARE ALIKE IN BOTH RANK AND SERVICE

Two Sets of Lieutenants Are Serving in the Field and Coast Artillery.

Washington.—The army has two sets of twins who have twin service records, all first lieutenants. They are Herbert E. and Herschel D. Baker, of the field artillery and Claude T. and Clem O. Gunn of the coast artillery.

Similarity in their service records is more pronounced in the case of the Baker brothers than of the Gunn brothers, although the latter seldom have been far apart in any important point. Lieut. Herbert E. Baker is now with the Fourteenth field artillery at Fort Sheridan, Ill., and his brother with the Second field artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C., while the Gunn brothers are at Manila, Clem with the Fifty-ninth coast artillery and Claude with the Sixtieth.

Born at Waltonville, Ill., November 21, 1896, the sons of Col. David Baker of the medical corps, the Baker brothers attended the Marist college, Atlanta, Ga., from January, 1909, until November, 1913.

They enlisted in the regular army February 3, 1917, and were assigned as privates to troop C, Second cavalry, afterward rising to the grade of privates, first class, in that troop and subsequently serving in headquarters troop, Fourth division, and the One Hundred Forty-seventh field artillery until they entered the third officers' training school at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., January 5, 1918.

They were commissioned second lieutenants with emergency rating and served in the American expeditionary forces together from April, 1918, until August, 1919, being wounded on the same day, October 26, 1918, in the Meuse-Argonne engagement. Permanent rating as second lieutenants was given them a year later, and promotion followed in July, 1921. Both took the basic course in the field artillery school, 1921-1922, but after that parted company to take separate assignments.

Each is married and has one child. Herschel D. has the army serial number 0-11391, while Herbert E. has 0-11392, and their promotion numbers are 7144 and 7145 respectively.

DEFORMED HEAD TO SAVE INFANT'S LIFE

Beauty Not First Idea of Disfigurement.

Although not so common as it was in years gone by, there are still numerous places in the world where deformities are manufactured for various purposes. This forms the theme of an interesting article which recently appeared in the Popular Science Magazine by Victor Raymond.

The deliberate flattening of the human head, for instance, says the article, continues to enjoy something like universality among savage and semi barbarious people. Naturally, the operation is carried out during childhood of the subject, when the skull is still soft and malleable. The effect is to make the skull long, or short and broad, according to the particular method favored.

Nowadays, the head so disfigured is regarded as an object of beauty, but beauty was not the initiatory cause of the practice. Indeed, the flattened head was not originally a deliberately arranged result at all.

The custom dates back to the time when the man-pack still wandered from camping place to camping place. During such treks the head of the new-born babe must often have lolled in a dangerous manner, and, no doubt, sometimes resulted in a broken neck. To prevent this it became customary to secure the infant's head by some means during the trek. The flattened head was an unlooked-for product. Time passed, man gave up his nomadism and acquired settled habits, but the flattened head had become a tribal characteristic, and so was perpetuated.

The method employed to flatten the head varies with the district. In some places the child's head is strapped against the headboard of its cradle. In other places the necessary pressure is applied by bandages. Some tribes employ a contrivance made up of two boards. By the Klemantans of Borneo a device is used which flattens the forehead, the object being to give the face, as near as possible, a half-moon shape.

The device, known as Tadal, is secured firmly to the infant's head when it is a month old, but the pressure is applied only when the child sleeps. Contrary to what one would expect, this deformation does not appear to have any injurious effects.

Many savage peoples render the faces of their womenfolk hideous by grotesquely disfiguring their lips. As with the artificial deformation of the head, the operation is carried out during childhood.

The girl's lips are pierced, straws being inserted in the holes. Next day another straw is added, and, when the holes have been sufficiently enlarged, pieces of wood with the thickness of a pencil are plugged in. This process continues until eventually the holes are capable of containing large disks. Filled thus, the lips at first project horizontally from the face, but as the disks grow in size, the facial muscles become unable to support them, and the lips droop.

In the Lake Tchad district of central Africa, the disk in the lower lip eventually reaches the size of a dinner plate, the whole hanging like a shield on the breast. The disk in the upper lip attains the dimensions of a saucer, and droops similarly.

Pocket Flask Revived

Americans have revived the pocket flask. Flasks are made here today in more than 100 different designs. The present forms are the outcome of endless experiment.

Man discovered the need of a container for carrying refreshments at a very early period, long before he had acquired the necessary skill to construct them. The first flasks were doubtless made from horns by plugging the open end. When man learned to use metal and make glass he applied the materials to the construction of flasks to fit into holsters or saddles, leather or wicker cases, safeguarding them against breakage. Flasks were often made of leather in the Sixteenth century.—New York World.

Ancient Ceremonial Masks

What is believed to be the first collection of ceremonial masks ever gathered from the regions of the upper Amazon has been brought to America by Arthur H. Fisher, a Philadelphia naturalist, who made an expedition into South America in the interests of the Museum of the American Indian Heye foundation. The pieces represent beasts and birds as well as human subjects, and are curiously fashioned and painted. They were obtained from a tribe in Peru. Pieces of pottery were also collected. To the uninitiated, the masks bear a strange resemblance to the figures appearing on totem poles, or to the crude designs made by children.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Defect in Mental Tests

Doctor Binet, the French psychologist, is called the father of intelligence tests, now so much in vogue in American schools and colleges. Binet, after prolonged experiments, is quoted as having cautioned educators that tests are never absolute and cannot be wholly depended upon to give a pupil's true mental rating. Teachers, he urged in effect, should rely to a large extent on their own judgment, using intelligence tests not as a crutch but rather as a convenient point of departure in any effort to help youth find itself.

POULTRY FACTS

COCCIDIOSIS IS CAUSING LOSSES

Coccidiosis is a parasitic disease of chicks over two weeks old and is causing unnecessarily large losses to poultrymen, states J. J. Black, assistant poultry pathologist, New Jersey agricultural experiment station.

The disease is picked up from contaminated soil or from brooder houses that have not been properly cleaned. The parasite that causes it may be carried on the feet of attendants or on feeding vessels.

Coccidiosis may be prevented by raising chicks in confinement, using a concrete slab for a run in front of the house, advises Doctor Black. Only new equipment or that which has been disinfected by a high degree of heat should be used. When a person is entering the poultry house, he should slip on a pair of rubbers kept for that purpose or clean and disinfect his shoes in a box of wood shavings saturated with a pure, coal tar disinfectant.

It has been found that losses from coccidiosis may be checked by cleaning the brooder as soon as disease makes its appearance. A small amount of litter should be used and the brooder cleaned every day for three days and then every third day until losses stop. All visibly affected chicks must be removed and the carcasses of those that die should be burned. It is of great value to keep the floor of the brooder house warm and dry. This prevents the development of the parasite.

California milk mash is advised for feeding. It consists of dry skim milk or dry buttermilk, 40 pounds; wheat bran, 10 pounds; yellow corn meal, 30 pounds; ground barley or rolled oats, 20 pounds.

This mash should be furnished as soon as disease appears. Grain is fed twice daily, but is restricted to one-third the amount of mash consumed. This system of mash and grain feeding is continued as long as there is any indication of the disease. The grain is supplied in the usual manner. The change back to the regular ration is made gradually. All mashes should contain 2 per cent of cod liver oil.

Where liquid milk is used, all mash and water are withheld, and grain is fed sparingly—a little in the morning and more at night. It is often difficult to get the chicks to consume enough liquid milk, especially if it is not of good quality.

Habits of Guineas

For some reason the mother guinea does not seem to realize that her little ones are frail creatures, unable to withstand extremes of heat and cold, moisture and long tramps afield. Their habits seem to be about as senseless as their noise, which probably accounts in a large measure for their culture having been neglected. They make their nests in remote places, under hedges, bushes, brush heaps or wheat shocks, and if their nests are disturbed they will move to another place.

Poultry Items

Wood shavings make better poultry nests than hay or straw.

The first off the roosts in the morning and the last to roost at night are the best layers.

This is the season when mites and lice multiply so fast that one of them becomes a grandma of hundreds in just a few days.

Poultry should always be fattened before killing. This means better quality, more weight and a considerably higher price per pound.

For fattening broilers a good ration is made up of seven parts of corn meal by weight, three parts wheat middlings, and one part bran. Wet with milk until it will pour like batter, and feed to the birds in shallow pans.

Mold is one of the commonest troubles in sprouting oats, and moldy feed is dangerous.

Follow directions and handle the incubator correctly if the best hatch of livable chicks is to be secured, say poultry workers.

Hens must eat plenty of mash, if they are to lay their best. Have you made enough hopper room so that every hen can get their fill? There should be a foot of space for every five or six hens.

Keep the chicks that are raised in a brooder pretty close to the heat during the first three days.

High-priced seeds that produce high yields are cheaper than low-priced seeds that produce low yields.

It takes 21 days for a hen egg to hatch, about 28 days for ducks, from 30 to 34 days for a goose egg, and 28 days for turkey eggs. The time may vary somewhat according to conditions.

Slowing Up?

OVERWORK, worry and lack of rest, all put extra burdens on the kidneys. When the kidneys slow up, waste poisons remain in the blood and are apt to make one languid, tired and achy, with dull headaches, dizziness and often a nagging backache.

A common warning of imperfect kidney action is scanty or burning secretions. Doan's Pills assist the kidneys in their eliminative work. Are endorsed by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Suffered for Over 10 Years

Then Mrs. Precour Took Tanlac and Got Relief

The amazing recovery of Mrs. Thomas Precour, 505 Helen Avenue, Detroit, has excited a great deal of comment. She says: "For many years rheumatism bothered me so I could hardly walk, much less do my work. My arms were so drawn that I could not comb my hair. My nerves got on edge so I couldn't sleep more than one or two nights a week. My appetite failed me and food that once agreed with me now made my condition worse.

"Then a neighbor told me of Tanlac. With the first bottle I began to feel better. Now my stomach never bothers me. Rheumatism is greatly relieved. I can eat every thing without trouble. Tanlac gets all the credit."

This tonic, made from roots, barks and herbs, helps build up weak bodies, put flesh on scrawny bones, free the system of poison and drive out causes of pain. Get your first bottle from your druggist. 40 million bottles sold.

-better vegetables

"After applying Vigoro," writes Ad Hennig, of Neenah, Wisconsin. "I had tomatoes three weeks earlier than the year before. They were of a better quality, more delicious, and uniform in size.

"The same success was evident with the rest of my vegetables."

Vigoro is the ideal plant food for lawns, flowers, gardens, shrubbery and trees. It is easy to apply; results are quick and certain.

Clean, dustless, weedless, and Odorless! Vigoro is not to be compared with any other plant food you have ever known. It isn't at all costly.

The Sandman Story

By Martha Martin

IN THE AQUARIUM

"I AM going to tell you a story of the aquarium tonight," said the Sandman.

"The aquarium, you know, is the home of many members of the fish family. This is a big city aquarium I am now speaking about, though of course there are little aquariums, too."

"Yes," said Nancy, "for I call my fish bowl where my two gold fishes are an aquarium."

"Of course," agreed the Sandman.

"Well, in this big aquarium there have been many new arrivals, some sea robins, toad fish, a new pipe fish. The pipe fish daddies help the mothers carry the little pipe fish eggs about and are really very useful pipe named, so you may take your choice here.

"But it is of the talk between two lobsters that I want to tell you about.

"'It was a great joke,' said Louis Lobster, and how I did laugh in my lobster fashion when I first heard it.'

"'Tell it to me,' said Leon Lobster.

"'You see,' Louis Lobster continued, 'some one wrote a story about lobsters. Now the only lobsters which had been seen by the one who made the pictures of the lobsters were lobsters all ready boiled and ready to eat.

"'Of course, such lobsters are red.

"'But the one making the pictures never thought that lobsters were any other color at all at any time.

"'And so the lobsters in the pictures were painted red and they were supposed to be in the sea and were supposed to be adventuring lobsters, and not ones ready to eat.

"'Wasn't that absurd? But at the same time, it was a little sad.'

"'It was perfectly absurd,' said Leon, 'but why sad?'

"'Sad,' said Louis, 'to think how little some people know of lobsters.

"'Now, here was some one with a great talent for painting and yet some one who knew nothing about lobsters!

"'It was so dreadfully ignorant. Almost as though one knew how to skip a rope but didn't know who discovered America!

"'Almost as ignorant as that.'

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

THE MISSION OF SORROW

IT IS from some vineyard of sorrowing experience that the best fruit of life is pressed. Had it not been for the death of Arthur Hallam and the broken heart of Tennyson, we would have had no "In Memoriam." At times the poet Robert Browning wrote with so great a sorrow in his heart that he could not see his pen for the thick darkness. In his dungeon cell Bunyan wrote his "Pilgrim's Progress." Dante in the loneliness of his exile journeys in a real experience from hell to heaven. For four long years the heart of Angelo suffers, during which time his crushed spirit is transformed into beautiful angels painted upon chapel walls. As the product of Luther's experience Germany got her Bible. Mozart wrote his Requiem suffering from a disease that was fast eating away his life. The beautiful music of "Blossom Time" is the product of the broken heart of Schubert. The exquisite poem, "O, Love That Will Not Let Me Go," was written by George Matheson as he was going blind.

Many attempts have been made to escape sorrow. "Drown your sorrow in the flowing bowl," are the last words of an old festival song. It is the way of the fool. Sorrow is not escaped by such a process; it only leads to despair at the last. Another attempt to escape sorrow is to become indifferent to it. Desire nothing and we shall not be disappointed. If one could remove from the heart all emotions one could perhaps live an impassive life. Human nature makes such an attitude of heart impossible. Another way of escaping sorrow is to deny it. This makes such a draft upon the imagination as to render it impracticable. The stern realities of our modern life will not stand for it.

There is no escape from sorrow. The problem is not one of escape but of purpose. Sorrow is an angel of mercy sent to reveal the deep secrets of life. He who suffers becomes strong. Sorrow is a voice speaking messages of courage, hope and love heard like the cry, "All's well"—it the darkness of the night—

All is well tho' faith and form
Be sundered in the night of fear;
Well roars the storm to those that hear
A deeper voice across the storm.

Winsome Dresses for Little Girls

Junior Frock Long-Waisted, Straight of Bodice, Full of Skirt.

The long-waisted dress for school, play or parties, says the Woman's Home Companion, is the style chosen in nine cases out of ten for the girl who is going on fourteen. The junior frock is long-waisted, straight of bodice and slightly full of skirt.

In the picture it is shown in two ways. For the eight-year-old at the left it is made in nileen green chambray with snug little pockets at either side of the low waist. The lower edge of the waist is bound and lapped over the gathered skirt.

You'll notice that the unusual cut of the dress at the shoulder line is itself a trimming touch. The back is cut almost straight across at the top and the edge is bound and lapped diagonally over the front at the shoulder. This version of the junior frock may strike the popular compose note if the bindings at neck, shoulder and waist are of a contrasting color or fabric.

The older girl at the right wears a dress of washable silk. It is a warm shade of beige with a rippling peplum lined with self-color fabric, set up on the waist. A bright red patent-leather belt encircles the top of the hips and is repeated at a low waistline. Belts, sleeve buttons and tie of narrow ribbon are of the same bright red.

Flannel, kasha and jersey are equally suitable materials to use if the young girl wants a dress of moderate warmth. If developed in crepe de chine or in printed or wash silks you'll have a charming party frock. A wide variety of cottons will make up most attractively in this design either with or without the peplum—gingham, light-weight madras, sateen, cotton print or linen. Among the sheer fabrics organdie, batiste and flowered or cross-barred dimity are good for a simple cool summer frock. A soft fabric like voile may also be used but in this case the peplum should be omitted.

Dainty Powder Boxes and Caricature Pins

Square little powder boxes, with colored enamel tops and center settings in cut-out motif, acquire an antique touch in a little protruding edge of engraved gold. A mirror is the only adjunct, aside from the powder which the box may contain, for it is taken for granted that only powder is required after milady has stepped from her boudoir for the evening ball or party. Black is the favored choice in these little boxes, with navy next and the pastel shades of rose, yellow, lavender and green following.

Caricature pins made of white metal, resembling platinum, and set with small rhinestones, are being featured in an array of sizes and designs to suit the many demands made. Squares, ovals and angular shapes of solid design or cut-out, as well as those with figures surrounded by a fine framework, may be worn as hat ornaments, shoulder pins or belt buckles.

Sashes of Sheer Net Now Much in Evidence

As the season advances the popularity of the sash will increase. We see them on sports frocks, tailored dresses and dance frocks. Even the obi sash has come back, and is strongly stressed by a prominent French couturier as a front decoration for afternoon and evening dresses. Sashes of sheer net are much in evidence, and the embroidered net sashes are decidedly effective on white evening gowns.

Many novel arrangements of the sash are introduced by the various dressmakers and huge buckles are often used to catch the folds together.

So the sash is very much a matter of individual taste. And if you prefer a belt you may wear a narrow or wide one. All widths are fashionable and you may wear two or three of the narrow width.

Ribbon Adds to Beauty of Fashionable Felt Hat

Anna Q. Nilsson, the "movie" star, whose delicate blond beauty lends itself exceptionally well to the new mode in millinery, is seen wearing a small black felt in her film, "Easy Pickings." The grosgrain ribbon band remains important on most of the new felt hats. The bands may be matching or merely harmonizing in tone and sometimes appear in as many as three shades for contrast.

Long Sleeve Is Favored by Cheruit for Evening

Cheruit develops a new evening theme based on the luxurious coat of the Persian prince and applies a deep band of chiffon on the bottom to give length. A number of these models are developed with long sleeves for evening in copper or brass, silver and black solid sequins. The same idea marked by a hip flare falling from heavily corded or stitched or finely tucked theme over the hip is shown in evening wraps and those for daytime.

A point movement is emphasized in many models. The backs are slim and straight, while this pointed movement comes at the front and extends, often, at the sides. Some of them are like single petals of a flower and may be folded back without cutting the goods.

A lot of coat collars, especially for evening, are composed entirely of either one tone in chrysanthemums or in two tones—some in black, with an occasional one in orange, in the coat fabric often. Frocks are sometimes fastened with big buttons at one side, moving from the top of the shoulder down under the arm to the hip.

An important evening theme, too, is the reiterated use of the "smoking," which usually has a full, flounced skirt in either chiffon or in tulle, while the jacket may be solid sequins embroidered in gay motifs, in colored lace or embroidered chiffon such as one worked in white chenille dots which increase in quantity and become solid at the bottom.

The single button fastening comes at the tip of the square-cornered revers which lifts the waistline above normal, but on the whole the waistline in these "smoking" themes is normal.

The typical deep ruffle on many frocks is used in many themes and is shown quite often in taffeta frocks. Deep chiffon ruffles are sometimes used on bolero types in flat materials.

Newest in Earrings Are Long and Slender

Earrings are long and slender. Women are seen wearing long strings of tiny brilliants with a colored gem at the end. This is a decided novelty, in any case, for the ultra-fashionable woman. Emeralds, a perfect match if possible and somewhat large, are eagerly sought after to make the "drop" for these new earrings. The characteristic of the new ornament is the size of the final gem, which is very much larger than those composing the string that supports it. The string sometimes looks quite inadequate to the purpose. When very tiny brilliants are used they are enclosed in a "claw" and a platinum chain holds them firmly in place.

As a variation of the colored drop earring, there is the diamond drop, held in place at the end of a chain of diamonds, that in some ways look still handsomer than the colored drop, which, curiously enough, always smacks of lack of perfect style.

New Silhouette Mode in New York Resorts

Youthful frequenters of New York clubs and dancing places are setting a new silhouette mode. These gay young things are either wearing period frocks with full fluffy skirts and slender bodices or tightly-fitted sheath lines which outline their half-developed figures. One sees more sheath gowns than period types worn on sophisticated girls. Beaded sheaths fitting snugly over the bust line, nipped in at the normal waist line and drawn snugly over the hips ending in very abbreviated skirts, are recent additions in flapper styles. Many girls are wearing black fitted sheaths and when dancing among well-formed women they look like small ants.

Cleansing Mercury

The bureau of standards says that a simple way to remove dirt from mercury is to shake the mercury vigorously with some cane sugar, after which the metal is filtered off through a pinhole in the bottom of a paper cone. The whole operation may be repeated if necessary. Instead of filtering through a pinhole, the mercury may be squeezed through several thicknesses of cloth.

TWO WOMEN FOUND HELP

Their Sickness Banished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Nina Matteson, Box 206, Oxford, N. Y., writes—"If it had not been for your medicine, I could not have done my work as it should have been done. Mother told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I had read in different papers what it had done for different women. She wanted me to try it, so my husband got me one bottle at first; then I took two others. Now I am feeling quite strong again."

Mrs. Ernest Tanguay of Adams, Mass., says she was ill for four years and could not sleep nights or go out on the street. She read about the Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking eight bottles she was able to do all her work and go anywhere and is quite herself again.

This dependable Vegetable Compound is a household word in thousands of homes. The fourth generation is now learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than half a century, this reliable medicine has been used by women with very satisfactory results. If the Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

A Man's Man

Abraham Lincoln has always been our favorite American statesman, but since learning from no less a historical authority than our Mr. McKee himself that James Madison did more than any of our great Americans to introduce and popularize long trousers to take the place of knee breeches, we feel, what with our legs and all, that perhaps we have underestimated this great man's service to his country.—Ohio State Journal.

PANCAKES RARE ON ENGLISH MENU

Appears Only as Special Delicacy for Dessert.

London, England.—The lowly pancake may be a popular breakfast dish in the United States, where it is eaten by the half dozen at one sitting, but here in England it is a rare delicacy to be eaten singly as dessert at the end of one's dinner.

At the Cheshire Cheese, the famous London inn, which was once the gathering place for Doctor Johnson and his erudite circle, and now is a center for American tourists, the distinction is the cause of constant difficulty.

A pancake-hungry American came to the old inn for luncheon recently. As he glanced over the menu the word, or what he thought was the word "pancake," struck his eye.

"I'll have half a dozen of these," he confided to the waiter, briskly.

"Half a dozen pancakes, sir?" said the waiter in a polite surprise, elevating his eyebrows slightly.

"Sure, that ought to hold me for a while, I guess. I'll probably come back for more later."

The six pancakes appeared and disappeared. In due course the bill likewise appeared. The American looked and his jaw dropped.

"Six shillings for six pancakes! That's a mistake, isn't it?"

"Oh, no, sir," said the waiter, and pointed to the menu, where in old English type was printed: "Ye pancake, 1 shilling."

The American paid, but as he went out, he sputtered to a friend:

"A dollar and a half for six pancakes! Next thing you know we'll be eating baked beans at a shilling ye bean."

Oldest Public Library in West at Madison, Ind.

Madison, Ind.—The first public library in the Northwest territory, established 109 years ago in a wayside inn along the Ohio river, ministers today to the community which has grown up around it.

Across the Appalachians and down the river to southern Indiana a group of men of learning came soon after 1810.

Led by Alexander Meek, attorney, they formed a circulating library for mutual exchange of books. In 1818 the men of the hamlet met at the inn and formed there a public library of voluntarily contributed books.

Twenty-four subscribers paid $5 apiece in its first year for borrowing privileges. It outgrew quarters in the inn, moved to a store, and after the Civil war became a county enterprise.

To day it occupies an entire floor of the Masonic temple. Its shelves still hold most of the worn and rare volumes which started it—notably a French atlas published in Amsterdam in 1733.

Former Royal Yacht Hauls Vegetable Cargo

Oakland, Calif.—Ripening vegetables and fruits are brought to local markets from Mexican west coast ports on a yacht that formerly belonged to the king of Spain. The boat is the Camina, built on the Clyde 30 years ago for a Scotch millionaire. It was purchased by the Spanish crown for the king and remained in his service many years. The United States government acquired it during the World war and later sold it to Capt. Ralph Gaertner.

The Camina's partitions and lockers were ripped out to make room for freight, but the richly carved sideboard still does duty in the mess room and the crew eats off a hand-made oak table.

News Supplies Plots

New York.—Newspapers' value as the basis for books is shown by the report of E. H. Anderson, director of the public library. Authors of fiction study the news to develop their plots.

Fed by Airplane

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Two men marooned atop Pike's peak for a week because of snow had plenty to eat. An airplane climbed 22,000 feet to drop food to them.

Moose Makes Himself Captive in Snow Zoo

Anchorage, Alaska.—The Alaskan railroad now boasts a zoo. The menagerie was thrust upon the organization and there appears no way to get rid of the extra burden but to declare war and use gunfire.

It happened at Tunnel, where the road maintains a gigantic hole, known as the gravel pit. Into this snow-covered, innocent-looking clearing walked a large bull moose not yet relieved of its antlers. He floundered and floundered about in the loose snow until he tramped out a pit whose high wall prevented all exit. When men approach he charges at them with the arrow-pointed shovels. He exhausted the crop of willows for food and railroaders have been hauling hay to him. How to get the moose, declared by every one as the largest ever seen in the North, out of its dilemma uninjured is a problem.

'BLOOD RAINS' FAIL TO FRIGHTEN FRENCH

Phenomenon No Longer Is Cause of Terror.

Paris.—A few days ago a shower of red rain fell at many places in southern and central France. It is significant of the progress of popular enlightenment that, although the event was generally described in the French press as a "shower of blood," this phrase was used in a conventional and not a literal sense. No attempt appears to have been made in any quarter to invest the phenomenon with a miraculous or mysterious character, and no superstitious fears appear to have been aroused by its occurrence.

Times have changed. Among the so-called prodigies recorded in ancient and medieval chronicles, none are more frequently mentioned than strange showers, of one sort or another, which alarmed mankind not only on account of their apparently supernatural character, but also because they were regarded as portents of coming wars and other calamities. The catalogue of things alleged to have fallen in these showers is a long one. It includes fishes, frogs, rats, mice, serpents, insects, grain, honey, manna, sulphur, ink, milk and—most frequently of all—blood.

Homer and Virgil Mention Them.

Stories of bloody rain are related by Homer, Virgil and several Roman historians. Plutarch speaks of showers of blood following great battles and asserts that bloody vapors, distilled from the bodies of the slain, impregnated the clouds, from which they were subsequently shed on the earth.

Gregory of Tours declared that a shower of blood fell over Paris in the year 482 A. D., when "many people had their clothes stained with it and cast them off in terror." The same phenomenon was observed at Brescia for three days and three nights before the death of Pope Adrian II in the year 872. Another three-day shower of blood is said to have occurred in France and Germany in March, 1181.

In 1669 one of these "blood rains" took place at Chatillon-sur-Seine. "There fell in various parts of the town," says the "History of the Academy of Sciences," "a sort of rain, or reddish liquid, thick, viscous, and foul smelling, which resembled a rain of blood. The prints of great drops of it were observed on walls; it was this fact that led to the belief that this rain was made of stagnant, muddy water raised by a whirlwind from some pond in the neighborhood."

Although the nonmiraculous nature of red rains was thus suspected at a comparatively early date, they continued to be a sources of terror to the ignorant majority of Europeans until a generation or so ago, while even in scientific circles some curiously erroneous notions concerning them prevailed down to the middle or latter part of the Nineteenth century.

Wind-borne Material.

Microscopic examination showed that the rain was reddened with earth, or mineral material, but the source of this material remained for a long time uncertain. It is now well recognized that the falls of colored rain and also of dry dust that occur at rather frequent intervals in southern and central Europe are due, in most cases, to wind-borne material blown up from the Sahara desert.

Several cases in which enormous quantities of solid matter have been carried great distances by the winds have formed the subject of elaborate investigations on the part of meteorologists.

Thus during the three days, March 8 to 10, 1901, heavy dust storms occurred in the deserts of southern Algeria, and the sequel of these storms was carefully studied by Hellmann and Meinardus. A widespread cyclonic storm, centered over Tunis at the time, sucked up the dust, which was carried northward by the winds at high altitudes.

Deposits from this dust cloud occurred over an area extending as far as 2,500 miles from the place of origin. Reports collected from hundreds of observers indicated that 1,800,000 tons of dust fell over the continent of Europe, and one-third of this fell north of the Alps.

As much more is believed to have fallen over the Mediterranean, while on the African coast itself the deposit is supposed to have amounted to 150,000,000 tons.

Dick Whittington's Cat Called Myth by Mayor

London.—History won't vouch for a cat that has charmed children for centuries, Sir Rowland Blades, lord mayor of London, shocked traditionalists by announcing in a speech here. The cat which is supposed to have brought his predecessor, Sir Richard Whittington, fame and fortune never existed, Blades declared.

The lord mayor said he had been seaching the records and had failed to find any contemporary reference to the cat. The story of Dick Whittington's cat, he added, has been traced to an Austrian source two centuries later and truth must prevail over sentiment.

'SUCKER' WINS BET BUT LOSES $5,000

Alabama Man Taken in by Confidence Men.

Birmingham, Ala.—Birmingham detectives are looking for two confidence men, said to be from New York, who swindled Alexander B. Lischkoff, Birmingham real estate broker, out of $5,000 cash.

The game played by these men is a new one in this section of the country. The two men met Lischkoff accidentally on the street. They talked of a business deal. An engagement was made for the three to meet at a downtown hotel that afternoon.

At the time stated all three sat in a hotel room and talked business. "The two men bet me $100 I could not raise $5,000 in several minutes," Lischkoff said. "Well, I went down to the bank to prove it to them. I got the money and was back at the room in less than ten minutes. 'Well, you win,' said one of the men. 'Now you ought to buy the cigars.'

"Sure, I'll buy a whole box," replied Lischkoff with glee as he jumped up and left his $5,000 on the table in the room and ran for the smokes.

A few minutes later Lischkoff returned with the cigars. His two friends were gone. So was his $5,000.

A checkup at the bank revealed that Lischkoff made a note for the $5,000, giving as security his savings account.

The two confidence men were registered at the hotel as Joe Singer and S. Rosen, New York city.

When asked what he would do if he had his $5,000 back Lischkoff said: "I'd buy $3,000 worth of locks and lock the other $2,000 up and throw away the key."

New Sword for Mikado Being Cast With Rites

Tokyo.—Forged with ceremonial solemnity, the new state sword of Emperor Hirohito is in the hands of the most famous craftsmen in Japan. When the new mikado goes to join his fathers the weapon will be lowered into the imperial sarcophagus with his body.

In having a sword specially cast for him, Hirohito has departed from the custom of his father, the late Emperor Yoshihito, and his grandfather, Emperor Meiji, who used only swords made many years ago by noted artisans.

Sadakatsu Tsukiyama of Osaka, the most noted modern swordmaker of Japan, started the forging with prayers and ceremony. Priests stewed incense and Tuskiyama, with two assistants all in white ceremonial garments, solemnly placed the iron ore in the furnace and a new scepter for a new mikado was begun.

After being treated to the expertness of Tsukiyama, the weapon will be turned over to Riko Hishida, the leading sword polisher, who will give it the finishing touches.

Inventor Risks Life in Test of Autogiro Plane

Southampton, England.—Frank B. Courtney, an experimental air pilot, deliberately risked his life to prove the principle of his windmill plane was right.

The experiment ended in a crash in which Courtney was slightly hurt. One wing of the plane had come off while 60 feet in the air and another came off when within 15 feet of the ground, letting the machine fall like a stone.

"I am still convinced," Courtney said, "that the principle of the autogiro is right. I shall go on with the experiments, though in a different way. I knew that the breakage was inevitable and I had put in a report previously to that effect. But as no one would believe me the only way to test my theories was to break the machine in the air."

Ban Planes, Too

Princeton, N. J.—An airplane is a motor vehicle in the official view at Princeton university. Therefore, like automobiles, planes will be forbidden to students after July 1.

Cost of Education

New Haven, Conn.—The cost to parents of the average Yale education is $7,200, a questionnaire shows. Student expenses average $1,800 a year.

Lighting of Airways Heavy Expense Item

Washington. — Establishment and operation of lighting systems to permit night flying is the chief item of expense in the maintenance of airways.

W. P. McCracken, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce in charge of the government's efforts to assist development of commercial aviation, has ascertained that the required number of lights can be installed at a cost of $337 a mile, and maintained at an annual expense of $197.30.

His figures are based on the cost of lighting parts of the 1,105-mile airway from Chicago to Dallas. Air mail contractors who are operating on the route are taking in about $800 a day and McCracken expects the business to double during the year.

"Beware, my son, beware!"

"Stay away from Peterman's! It has killed your whole family!"

"DON'T walk through it. Don't smell it. Don't touch it. Go hungry for days first."

She's right. Peterman's Roach Food exterminates every roach in your house. Nothing is left but a little dry dust.

Some housewives make the mistake of fighting cockroaches with a spray. Those are the houses roaches stay in. They live down behind baseboards, under the floors. No spray can possibly reach them, or their young, or their eggs.

Only a powder can exterminate them. Peterman's Roach Food is the right powder. Just one roach gets a little powder on his legs. Back to his nest he goes. He crawls over the others and eggs. Every roach he touches dies and disintegrates.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD exterminates cockroaches.

PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD exterminates ants.

FLYOSAN kills flies and mosquitoes.

PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY exterminates bedbugs.

PETERMAN'S MOTH FOOD protects against moths.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We know that is true. We have had nearly 50 years' experience.

Peterman's has the right insecticide for each insect. On sale wherever drugs are sold.

Work and Bolshevism Not Closely United

Secretary Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, was praising labor's repudiation of Bolshevism and Communism.

"Look at what the demagogues of Bolshevism and Communism," he said, "are doing in Europe. Look at what they're doing in China. I heard a story from China the other day.

"A conservative old mandarin rose to address a Bolshevized crowd in Shanghai. His address began and ended like this:

"'My brothers, you are working men!'

"'Hurrah! Glory!'

"'And being working men—'

"'Hurrah! Glory!'

"'You must work.'

MOST FARM AUTOMOBILES INSURED IN THE HOWELL COMPANY

In 1915 the Howell company started in a small way in writing farmers and business men in the small towns for automobile insurance, and for twelve seasons this company has led all others in farm business. Many of its officers and directors are owners of farms, and the company has always given a special rate to cover the country districts of the state. The company has handled more automobile insurance than any other company in the state of Michigan, and the farmers of the state are proud of the record this company has made in building up its assets. The company has succeeded because it has stayed in a single state, thereby concentrating its business efforts. The companies that have spread over many states have found it unprofitable, and during the past twelve years six companies have either failed or retired.

Why take chances with a new company, or one with a business in many states, when you can stay in this company that has made a success. In case of a serious loss, you can go to the home office in a short time and meet the officers, who will coöperate and give you assistance.

For the last five years the assets have increased as follows:

Dec. 31, 1922	$266,499.45
Dec. 31, 1923	375,945.95
Dec. 31, 1924	565,225.96
Dec. 31, 1925	704,152.41

OBITUARY

Ann Harris, daughter of the late Martin and Mary Ann Harris, was born on the Harris farm southwest of Pinckney on April 11, 1847. This was later owned by Patrick Kennedy who sold it to A. J. Snyder. When a young girl she entered the employ of the late Patrick Gallagher of Webster where her principal duties were to assist in the care of his two children. She continued in this position for many years and when Mr. Gallagher moved to Corunna she accompanied the family there where she remained for several years. At Pinckney on January 24, 1900 she was united in marriage to Caspar Vollmer of Putnam township and came here to reside where Mr. Vollmer operated a thresh outfit for a number of years. A few years ago they purchased the Perry Blunt home on Pearl St. and moved to Pinckney. On May 5, 1927 she suffered a paralyetic stroke from which she failed to rally and passed away on Tuesday, May 10. The funeral services were held from St.Mary's church Friday morning at 10:00, Rev. F. J. McQuillan officiating. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The deceased is survived by her husband, two brothers, John M. and William Harris of Putnam, one sister, two neices and two nephews.

Slow Breathing Best

It has been noted by scientists that the slow breathing animals are the longest lived and the least susceptible to tuberculosis. The rabbit, which is the most susceptible to the disease, breathes 55 times a minute, while the horse, the least likely to contract it, breathes but ten times a minute at rest. The animal which never is attacked by tuberculosis and which is perhaps the longest lived is the turtle. Its respirations are so few that they are scarcely perceptible. The observations and tests on animals have been made by experts in pulmonary diseases for the purpose of trying a slow breathing treatment on tuberculosis patients.

DOMINICANS LET CONTRACT FOR NEW PAROCHIAL SCHOOL

Contracts have been let for the new St. Dominic's school, Warren and Trumbull avenues, Detroit. The building, which will cost approximately $150,000, will include 12 class rooms, a large auditoriu mand facilities for social affairs.

St. Dominic's parish was established only about six months ago by the Dominican Fathers with the Rev. Vincent F. Kienberger, O. P., as pastor. The attendance at services has grown until the crowds at Sunday services have reached 5,000.

Manistique—At least 150 delegates of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters will convene in this city, May 24. Elaborate plans for their entertainment have been made by the Manistique Court of the W. C. O. F. In audition to delegates from nearby points, visitors are expected from the iron and copper country.

Marquette—Two Redemptorist missionaries from the famous shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, Quebec, conducted a two weeks' mission in St. John's church here recently. Services were held in both French and English by the priests.

Some x for Myopia

Myopia or short sightedness, is a condition in which the rays from a distance are focused in front of the retina of the eyes which results in the image being blurred. Such an eye is permanently focused for near objects but may be corrected by the wearing of concave lens which diverge the rays and in this way prevent their coming to a focus too soon.

SISTERS GIVEN NEW HOSPITAL

Three Quarter Million Dollar Institution at Battle Creek Presented to Nuns

The State of Michigan and the Roman Catholic diocese of Detroit were represented by their highest dignataries when the Leila Y. Post Montgomery Hospital in Battle Creek, was formally presented to the Sisters of Mercy recently.

Governor Fred W. Green, the Rt. Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, D. D., Bishop of Detroit and Sister Ursula, of Dubuque, Ia., Mother-superior of the Sisters of Mercy, were among the 300 persons assembled at a dinner given in the basement of the newly completed $750,000 institution, considered to be one of the most modern and finely equipped hospitals in the country.

The Rev. Fr. David L. Dillon acted as toastmaster at the dinner and William J. Smith of Battle Creek, presented the deed of the hospital to Bishop Gallagher who received it on behalf of the Sisters. Bishop Gallagher declared that for him the occasion was unique.

"In the past 10 years I have dedicated many hospitals, laid many cornerstones," he said. "But always the Sisters have had the burden and care of how to pay for the building. Here things are different. The Sisters have from Mrs. Montgomery a clear deed to the property. She has desired to share in the high merit of caring for the sick and injured. And in proportion to what she has done will be her reward. Christ said that a cup of cold water given to the thirsty should not be without its reward. How much more to one who has given nearly three-quarters of a million."

The necessity of hospitals in every community was stressed by Gov. Green, who declared that along with churches and schools, they are among the most important adjuncts of municipal life. He also stated his belief that the span of life in Battle Creek would be increased because of the new hospital.

"I hope that the time will come when men will endow beds in this institution," he said. "I understand that all who come here are treated alike, whether rich or poor. And I hope the time will come when those without means can come here for treatment without it costing them a dollar."

The medical profession of Battle Creek and of the entire state was well represented at the dedicatory ceremony, including a delegation from the medical faculty of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor.

GIRLS' HOME DEDICATED BY BISHOP GALLAGHER

Will Shelter Employed Girls Recently Arrived in City

In the presence of a large group of representative Catholics, both clerical and lay, the Rt. Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, D. D., Bishop of Detroit, recently laid the cornerstone of the new Catholic Women's Activities Building, in Detroit. In addition to being a center for all Catholic women of the city the building will serve as a residence club for 250 employed young women.

Among those present at the dedicatory ceremony were delegations from the League of Catholic Women organizations of Flint, Ann Arbor, Mt. Clemens, Pontiac, Saginaw, Jackson and other lower Michigan cities. The sermon was preached by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael Grupa, D. D. of S. S. Cyril and Methodius Seminary, Orchard Lake.

In the new building, young women who have come to the city to work will be able to live in home-like surroundings at a reasonable cost to themselves. The problems of the employed young woman in the city will be solved by intelligent and sympathetic advice from trained social workers who will always be at the service of employed women.

A campaign for $500,000 to enable the League of Catholic Women to complete the building free from financial encumbrances which was conducted for six weeks will be continued informally until the whole amount is raised

A FINE CLUB MEMBERSHIP

The enrollment in the Boy's and Girl's Club work this year will be especially large if the applications for membership continue to come into the County Agents office. 21 boys have already enrolled in the corn club with nearly the same number in potatoe work. The following is the list of official corn club members:

Frank Ruttman, Fowlerville; Ralph Holmes, Howell; Wm. Hosley, Howell; James Hosley, Howell; Lyle McKenzie, Fowlerville; Wilfred Hosley, Wilbur Sweeten, Fowlerville; Kenneth Gardner, Fenton; Daniel VanSlambrook, Pinckney; Henry Cornell, Howell; Arnold Zwinck, Fowlerville; Glenn Caskey, Gregory; Edward Holmes, Howell; Vivian Hosley, Howell; Robert Hosley, Howell; Thomas Fear, Fowlerville; Max Musson, Howell; Russell Ward, Fowlerville; Arden Lamphere, Fowlerville; Asa Clark, Howell; R. C. Zwinck, Fowlerville.

The livestock and canning clubs have not been completed, however this list will be published later. Committees not already represented in any club are requested to get in touch with the county agent at once.

CORN BORER CLEAN-UP

The corn borer clean-up in Livingston county is progressing in fine shape according to reports of County Supervisor Fred Schrepfer who has charge of the inspection work. The farmers in the county deserve a great deal of praise for the manner in which they have co-operated in the clean-up work. The inspectors have seen every farmer in the county and so far only one farmer has refused to do his duty.

The big difficulty now is the necessity of cleaning up unoccupied property, and in a few cases where sickness or other difficulties have prevented. The Federal Department is now busy cleaning up such places.

Some folks are under the impression that the premium up to $2.00 per acre will not be available to farmers. This is false however, as half of the ten million dollars appropriated was set aside for this purpose.

LEGISLATURE ADJOURNS

The record of another session of the legislature has been written and the lawmakers have returned home to face their constituents. Opinions vary as to the results accomplished despite the fact that they stayed in session longer than any other legislature in many years.

During the final days of the session they approved an amendment which will be submitted to a vote of the people in November 1928. This provides that the pay of a legislator would be $3 per day during the period for which elected. This would amount to $2190 per two-year term.

An effort was made to revive the twice defeated capital punishment bill in the senate by circulating a petition asking that it be reconsidered. However this was abanddoned when only thirteen signatures of senators could be secured.

The new School Code, a bill consisting of 324 pages was approved as was also the Horton-Brake bill requiring all hunters to get permission of the owners or lessees of farms or woodlots before hunting on same.

A bill providing for the complete reorganization of the state tax department was also passed and signed by the governor.

The bill of Senator Baxter repealing the 35 mile an hour speed limit and providing that every car must be kept within such control at all times that it could be brought to a full stop within the assured clear distance head.

One of the last acts of the legislature was to appropriate $5000 of state funds for the relief of the Mississippi Flood victims.

DR. DERRY CHOSEN HEAD OF CATHOLIC COLLEGE

For the first time in the history of Catholic education a man has been chosen to head an institution of learning for women. He is Dr. George Hermann Derry, formerly of the faculty of Marquette University, who has been named as president of Marygrove College, Detroit.

Dr. Derry received his early education under the Jesuit Fathers in Maryland. Later he was graduated from Holy Cross College and went to the famous English university at Oxford for post-graduate work. He was later given the degree of Doctor of Philosophy upon the completion of his work at Stonyhurst, England.

Returning to the United States, Dr. Derry took up teaching actively and has been connected with the faculties of a number of leading educational institutions. Before his recent appointment as the head of Marygrove College, he headed the department of Economics and political science at Marquette University.

PONTIAC GETS NEW HOSPITAL

Modern Fireproof Structure Has Four Operating Rooms and 100 Beds

Pontiac—St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital, Pontiac's newest civic pride, was dedicated here recently by the Rt. Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, D. D., Bishop of Detroit. The building has four floors and 100 beds. The architecture is of the Gregorian style and the structure is of brick and stone fireproof construction throughout.

The hospital has four operating rooms including the main operating auditorium, which is built with a balcony, from which medical students and surgeons may witness unusual operations. Another feature is that the building does not contain wards. This does not mean, however, that patients who are unable to pay for a private room will be denied admission.

St. Joseph's is the most recent Catholic hospital to be opened in the Detroit diocese. Within the past five or six years, Catholic hospitals have been opened at Lansing (St. Lawrence), Battle Creek (Leila Montgomery), Detroit (St. Joseph's), and Mt. Clemens (St. Joseph's). Plans have been announced for the erection of a large hospital under the direction of the Sisters of St. Joseph in Kalamazoo.

With the exception of the Battle Creek institution, which was the gift of Mrs. Leila Post Montgomery, fund campaigns were conducted for these hospitals and Catholics and non-Catholics joined in promoting these projects in a true spirit of charity and civic devotion.

St. Joseph's Hospital at Pontiac is conducted by the Sisters of Mercy, with headquarters in Dubuque, Iowa.

LIFE-SAVER LOSES LAST BATTLE; DEATH IS VICTOR

Girl Saved Eleven Children From Drowning; Succumbs to Disease

Muskegon—After a two-year fight to regain her health, Miss Gladys A. McCarthy, 24 years old, who won state-wide fame for her life-saving feats, died recently in the Muskegon County Sanatorium. Miss McCarthy's death was the second sorrow to afflict the family within eight days. Her brother, Thomas J. F. McCarthy, 22 years old, died at the same institution on April 11.

During the summer of 1921, Miss McCarthy was credited with saving the lives of 11 children at the municipal beach here where she served as a life-guard. She is survived by her mother and one brother, Cecil McCarthy, of the United States Air Mail Service, Kelly Field, Texas.

Funeral services were held in St. Mary's Church with the Rev. Fr. James D. Kenny officiating.

LUDINGTON WILL GET GRANITE MONUMENT

Spot of Father Marquette's Burial to be Marked by University

Erection of a monument to Pere Marquette, Jesuit priest and early American explorer, on the spot where the missionary was buried near the present city of Ludington, is under contemplation by Marquette University of Milwaukee.

The Rev. Fr. James Golder, of Ludington will confer with a group of Ludington men in an effort to determine the exact location where the missionary was buried in 1675.

History records that Father Marquette was buried near Ludington in the winter of 1675 and that the following spring, a band of Indians who had been converted to Christianity, reverently exhumed the remains and removed them to a spot near St. Ignace.

The University will erect a granite shaft at the spot and annual visits of the Marquette students are planned.
