Steve Lazlo Is Murder Victim

Alexander Kovac Pleads Guilty to the Murder of his Step-father on Friday Night. Takes Entire Blame

About 4:00 A. M. Saturday morning Andrew Olson of Stockbridge driver of the tank truck for Wayne County Creamery who have a station at Stockbridge. noticed a man lieng at the edge of M-36 as he was on his way to Stockbridge with the truck. Th man was just west of the duck farm on the right hand side of the road about a mile west of Pinckney. Olson stopped his truck & examining the man saw that he was dead. He went to the Spears farmhouse nearby and got Edward Spears and his son. Edward Jr .They returned to the body and the Spears men recognized it as Steve Lazlo.46. a neighbor who lives on what is know as the Hemmingway farm. They called the sheriff's office at Howell and Deputy I. J.Kennedy and Coroner Guy Grieve came over. Examination of the body showed the man had been run over by an auto or truck as the head was crushed and 7 ribs broken. The hat was blood soaked and frozen as were also the arms and legs of the body. A piece of fresh pork was found lieing near the body. However there was no blood on the ground near the body except about two spoonfulls.

The officers went to the Lazlo home about a quarter of a mile away.There they found the dead man's wife.Elizabeth. her son. Alexander Kovac. by a former marriage. his daughter. Thelma. 12. and Louis Lada. 17. who is nephew of Mrs. Lazlo and lives with them.They stated that Lazlo had left home about 9:30 Friday night to take some meat to John Markos who lives on the Willis Tupper farm about a mile from the Lazlo farm.The boys had plaved cards with M. L. Hinchey and Robert Gallup two neighbors untill about 11:00 when Hinchey and Gallup went home. As Lazlo slept in in the basement they had not noticed his absence.

Not satisfied with this explanation Sheriff Fawcett and Hiram Smith who is acting prosecutor during the absence of Prosecutor Sweeney in Florida were called. Search of the Lazlo premises disclosed blood stains on the seat. steering wheel. windshield and running board of a Dodge truck belonging to Lazlos. Search of the house disclosed a pair of blood-stained overalls hidden under a mattress. The door yard had been swept and chaff scattered about but a few blood stains were found outside on road leading to M-36. The Lazlos stated that the blood was from a hog butchered that day that the blood stains on the seat was caused from carrying dressed pigs to market.

About a year ago the dead man was found in a wrecked car badly injured at the overhead bridge near the Conway or Coluser farm east of Pinckney. He was at the Pinckney Sanitarium for severael months and drew considerable accident insurance money. Deputy Kennedy rememberiing this asked to see the policies The officers were shown two. one for $10.000 and the other for $5.000 in case of accidental death. The larger would have lapsed Sunday.

Alexander Kovac. Louis Lada. the blood stained overalls and samples of the blood were taken to Howell The blood was turned over to the state police for analysis.

Sunday officials of the insurance company and state police were here. The truck tires on which blood stains were found were removd & taken to Howell.

Late Sunday after several hours of questioning by Sheriff Fawcett and Deputy Kennedy. Alexander Kovac confessed to the murder of his stepfather taking the entire blame. His story was that they had quarrelled Friday afternoon whil drawing manure and that his stepfather had attacked him with a pitchfork. That about midnight they had quarrelled again and when Lazlo seized a knife he had struck him with a stick of wood killing him. He had then started the truck. taken the body to M-36 where he had left it after running the truck over it.

Deputy Kennedy who was practically in charge of the case deserves great credit for his handling of it.

The Lazlos came here about ten years ago.During that time they have

MANY NEW PARTIES FORMED

Several new political parties will be found upon the November, 1934 ballot, according to information reaching the Department of State. The Progressive-Fusionist and the Peoples Progressive parties and the Comonwealth party, which is to replace the Prohibition party, already have qualified for places on the ballot. A new Farmer-Labor party to replace the one already qualified is being formed and members of the United party are planning to qualify within a few weeks.

INCREASE IN DRUNK DRIVING SHOWN

Drunk driving increased 45 per cent during January, 1934 as compared with January, 1933, according to records of the Department of State. The information reaches the department through the financial responsibility and the motor vehicle operators' license laws.

In January of this year there were 168 persons who either pleaded guilty or were found guilty of drunk driving or 52 more than in January of the year previous.

Since the financial responsibility law became effective last October 17, a total of 659 motorists have been found guilty of some major traffic violation and have come under the provisions of the act. Of this number but 49 have been able to show proper proof of financial responsibility as demanded by the law.

Current Comment

Legislation tending to change the school system will be introduced at the coming special session it is announced. If the bill passes the 6,800 school districts in the state will be reduced to 83. School boards with more than 22,000 members will be eliminated. The county would be made the school unit and the school commissioner would be replaced by a county superintendent. The advantages claimed are reduction in the cost of operation, more efficient education, an equalilation of the tax burden and abolishment of tuition. The principal objection to this proposal is that it is an abandonmnet of the ancient plan of American self-government. No one denies however but that the present school system could be improved. Schools are now maintained for two and three pupils. School boards are stil functioning in districts where no school has been held for a number of years. It would seem that many of these could be consolidated with considerable reduction in expense. This is undoubtedly what is contemplated but the control would be taken from the districts and placed in the county superintendent.

Well, whose side are you on, President Roosevelt's or Colonel Lindberg's? The Washington writer in the Lansing State Journal has the following to say about it:

New York conservatives have played their ace. Now they're waiting to see whether it will be trumped.

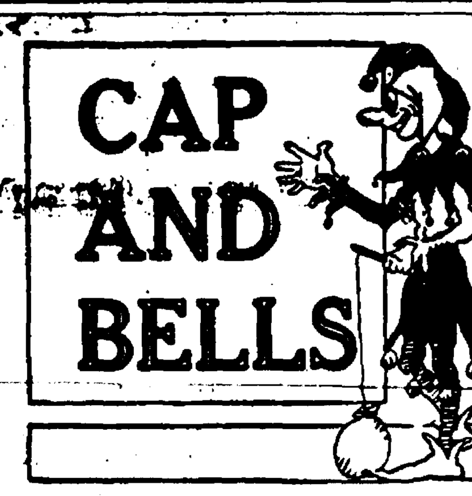
Colonel Lindberg's entry into the air mail controversy was sudden but the groundwork behind it was not. For months he has been privately regarded by a select group of local big-timers as their best—and perhaps only—hope of starting a backfire of public opinion against the new deal.

Those who should know say several hints have been delicately conveyed to the colonel in the past year that his position on matters of national policy would be interesting to the public. Up to now Lindberg has been deaf to such overtures—quietly but firmly maintaining that aviation was his business and his comment on other topics would be irrevalent . Then came the air mail blowup—and it wasn't hard to convince the Lone Eagle where his duty lay.

This doesn't imply even remotely that Lindberg "sold out to the bankers." But his closest contacts of recent years have been conservatives and naturally he has absorbed their viewpoint. From the broad and Wall Street angle it was a sweet break that raised an issue on which he was willing to speak.

We wonder just how much the public at large is interested about the love affairs and matrimonial difficulties of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks. Here were a couple of film actors already married who fell in love. The way was made open for their marriage by a couple of divorces, alhough the legality of the Pickford one was questioned for a time. Incidently she had to leave her church to marry Fairbanks. Marriage evidently meant disillusion as gradually they began to drift apart and take long vacations from each other. They began to fade from the motion picture field before the advent of the talkies which however seems to have obliterated them completely. Fairbanks began to frequent the society of the nobility and confine his efforts to travel talks. Press reports were to the effect that Mary was to meet him at New York Christmas time. Instead she started suit for divorce. Still reconsilation reports appeared until Fairbanks was sued by a British Lord for taking his wife away from him. One would say that both were gold bricked into paying too much for something that did not exist.

The Automobile Club is advocating cutting the automobile license plate tax for autos. Frank Fitzgerald secretary of state, has also come out in favor of it. This is opposed by the state highway commissioner and the county road commissions who want to know where the money for roads and repairs will come from if the license cost is cut. This should cause food for thought. The property tax has already been cut. Shall the state depend on the sales and beer and liquor revenue for all its expenses.



AN INFERENCE

During a history lesson the teacher pointed out to the class that a surname often indicated the trade of the ancestors of those who bore the name. He gave the obviously simple examples of Smith, Taylor, Baker, and others.

The WEDDING MARCH MURDER

by MONTE BARRETT

Copyright, 1932, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. WNU Service.

SYNOPSIS

Waiting in the minister's study while the wedding procession is being marshaled, Jim Franklin, about to be married to Doris Carmody, is stabbed to death. Callis Shipley, one of the bridesmaids, is obviously in a state of anxiety. Peter Cardigan, novelist, and amateur detective of some note, with Sergeant Kilday, of the New York police, begin the official investigation. The dagger used by the murderer is found. Franklin, while waiting, had many visitors, among them his mistress, an actress, "Choo Choo" Train; his intended wife's father, Ambrose Carmody; her brother, Rylie; Daniel Bullis, well-known politician, and an unknown woman in a blue frock, who had quarreled openly with Franklin.

"Where had you been, Royce?" Kilday wheeled quickly to the newspaper man.

"Out in the vestibule of the church, looking for Milo Dunbar," replied Royce.

"For me?" Dunbar looked at the editor inquisitively.

"Jim wanted you to do him a favor," Nick explained.

"We'll come to that later," Kilday interrupted impatiently. "When you got back here to the sacristy, did you see Bullis, or hear anything of his quarrel with Franklin?"

"No."

"How about the woman in blue? Did you see her? Was that Choo Choo Train?"

"No, I didn't see her. But it couldn't have been Choo Choo," Royce was quite positive. Choo Choo entered later, from the outside door. I'm sure she hadn't been here before, because Jim was surprised to see her."

"And you never saw the woman in blue?"

Nick shook his head. "Both she and Bullis must have left by the back door. This is the first I had heard of either of them."

"Didn't Doctor Abernathy say anything about them?" Kilday persisted.

Royce meditated, frowning. "No, he never mentioned them. I remember he did say, 'This is the strangest wedding I ever saw.' I didn't know he was referring to these visitors, however."

Doctor Abernathy leaned forward quickly. "Tell them what you said, in reply to that, Mr. Royce," he urged.

"I don't remember—what did I say?" inquired Royce.

"You said," the rector's face flushed with sincerity, "'It may be stranger, before it's over.'"

"Yes," Nick smiled. "I remember saying that now."

"Just what did you think was going to be so strange, Royce?" Sergeant Kilday was quick to follow up the new lead.

Royce hesitated. "That gets back to the reason Jim asked me to go out in front and find Milo Dunbar," he began slowly. "And to Rylie Carmody's quarrel with him, just after we arrived here."

"Did you hear that quarrel?"

"No. Jim told me about it. Doctor Abernathy was here when Rylie came, though. He can verify that part of it."

The rector nodded, reluctantly, it seemed to Peter.

"It was about twenty minutes to four," Royce continued. "Rylie drove up to the side of the church in a roadster, and came in here demanding to see Franklin alone. He was beside himself with anger.

"Doctor Abernathy invited him to use his study. He and Jim were in there about two minutes. Then Rylie rushed out. He didn't stop to speak to either the doctor or me. He left the church very hurriedly and drove off in his car. I watched him from the door, there."

"But you say Franklin told you about this quarrel?"

"Yes. Immediately afterward, he called me into the study and explained that some one had told Rylie about his affair with Choo Choo Train. The boy had come to demand an explanation. Jim had told him the truth. There was nothing else to do."

Royce left his chair and walked restlessly about the room as he continued his story. "It seems that Rylie demanded to know if the affair had ended. Jim made the mistake of trying to talk to the boy as one man of the world to another. It didn't work. Rylie declared he was going to stop the wedding. Before Jim could stop him, he rushed out of the room, and was gone.

"Jim was worried. He was afraid the boy might cause some sort of disturbance during the ceremony. He was just wrought up enough to do such a thing. So he asked me to hurry out in front and find Milo Dunbar. Mr. Dunbar is—or was—Jim's law partner. I was to explain what had happened and ask him to keep an eye out for Rylie, when he entered the church. Jim was certain that Mr. Dunbar could handle it.

"But I couldn't locate Dunbar. That was why I was gone so long. But Rylie wasn't there, either, and I finally decided that the boy would be all right, after he had had time to think things over. At any rate, I couldn't remain away any longer, as it was about time for the service to start. So I came on back here."

"I was right there in the church, all the time," declared Milo Dunbar. His alert gray glance was fastened on the newspaper man.

"I'd like to know where? I couldn't locate you."

"Let's get all this straight." Kilday, hands behind him, studied Royce shrewdly. "Shortly after you and Franklin arrived, Rylie Carmody came. He was evidently very angry. Both you and Doctor Abernathy saw him. He talked with Franklin in the rector's study, and then left hurriedly. Later Franklin confided the nature of this quarrel to you, and you went out in front in search of Mr. Dunbar, but were unsuccessful in finding him.

"While you were away, Doctor Abernathy was called to the telephone, and when he came out he found Franklin quarreling with a mysterious woman in blue—a blond. Franklin declared the woman was hysterical over a trust fund and hurried her into the study, where they quarreled. This woman was not Choo Choo Train, because Choo Choo was wearing green. At any rate, while the woman was still in the study, Daniel Bullis came here demanding to see Franklin. He refused to wait, and pushed on into the study in spite of Doctor Abernathy's warning that Franklin was busy. Then you came back, Royce.

"And when the doctor told you he had never seen such a strange wedding, you told him it might be stranger, before it was over. You say you were referring to Rylie Carmody."

"I was," declared Royce emphatically.

"Never mind that now." Kilday brushed aside the interruption. "Neither of you saw the woman in blue or Daniel Bullis leave the study. But just a few minutes before the ceremony was to start, you say that Mr. Ambrose Carmody came back to see Franklin. I believe your inference was that they quarreled."

"I can explain that." Ambrose Carmody broke in. "I did have an argument with Franklin. Just before we left the house for the church, some one telephoned. It was an anonymous message. Normally I would have paid no attention to it. But it so vitally concerned the welfare of my family, I thought it deserved recognition. After reaching the church, I asked Franklin for an explanation."

"What was that message, Mr. Carmody?"

"It concerned this actress, Choo Choo Train. I was informed of her affair with Franklin."

"Was it a man's voice, or a woman's?" demanded Peter Cardigan.

"A man's."

"And you asked Franklin about it?"

"Yes. When I reached this room, both Royce and Doctor Abernathy were present. I inquired for Franklin, and they informed me he was in the study. I knocked. Franklin opened the door almost immediately. I don't know what had become of all these people they say had been in the study. There was no one else there at the time. I told Franklin what I had heard, and demanded an explanation. I made it clear that I had to know the truth before the wedding. Franklin denied there was any truth in the message. He gave me his word as a gentleman on it and I believed him."

"That was all then?" Kilday prompted him.

"Yes." Except for the heightened color in his face, Carmody gave no outward sign of emotion.

"I can substantiate a part of that," volunteered Doctor Abernathy. "When Mr. Carmody left the study, I heard him say, 'I have your word for it?' and I heard Mr. Franklin say, 'You have.'"

Peter Cardigan interrupted with a question. "Did you take advantage of Mr. Carmody's presence to inform him of this quarrel which had so disturbed you?" he asked the rector.

"No." Doctor Abernathy again moistened his lips. "I decided against it."

"But earlier you had made up your mind to tell him," the novelist persisted. "What caused you to change your decision?"

"I only intended to interfere if, in my opinion, there were cause to question the advisability of proceeding with the ceremony," replied the rector slowly. "After consideration, I decided this was not true. The woman in blue had confirmed Franklin's statement that her quarrel was of a business rather than a personal nature. Of course," he added, "it would have been different had I been present when Miss Train, the actress, arrived. This is the first I had heard of that."

"H'm!" Sergeant Kilday digested this in silence for a moment. Then he turned to Royce. "When was it Choo Choo arrived on the scene?"

"After Doctor Abernathy had entered the church," said Royce. "When Mr. Carmody left the study, Doctor Abernathy walked to the door with him. Mr. Carmody walked around the outside of the church. The last thing I heard him say was, 'Let's start on time.' It was then only about one minute of four. Doctor Abernathy turned to us and asked if we were ready. Jim said we were. Doctor Abernathy then entered the church, through this door. I was standing here, by the door, leaving it open a crack so that I could see what happened inside, so, naturally, my back was to Jim.

"I never saw Choo Choo enter. The first I knew that she was here, was when I heard Jim say, 'What are you doing here? I thought I told you to stay away?'

"She said, 'I intended to, Jim, until Fletcher phoned me that you said to come, after all,' she said.

"Jim denied that he had told Fletcher to phone, and they started to quarrel. I was afraid they could be heard in the church.

"'Pipe down,' I warned them. 'Do you want to break up the wedding?'

"'That's exactly what she'd like to do,' Jim said. 'Come on in here where we can talk.' And he pulled her toward the door of the study. That's the last I saw of Choo Choo."

"Who is Fletcher?" Kilday wanted to know.

"That's Jim's man-servant," Royce explained.

"And that was the last you saw of Franklin, too?" inquired Peter.

"Yes. But I spoke to him after that."

"When?"

Royce faced Peter squarely. "When Callis Shipley came," he said.

"Callis Shipley? Who is that?"

"See here, this is preposterous," Ambrose Carmody interrupted angrily. "Callis was one of the bridesmaids. She was out in front all of the time."

"Oh, no, she wasn't," Nick denied. "She was back here just before the wedding. She came running in the side door, very excited and out of breath.

"'Where's Rylie? Is he back here?' she wanted to know.

"I told her I didn't think so.

"'Then where is Jim Franklin?' she asked me breathlessly. She was so agitated, I was afraid something was wrong, particularly in view of what had happened between Rylie and Jim, just a short time before. So I knocked on the study door.

"Jim asked me what was wanted.

"'Have you seen Rylie Carmody?' she asked him. 'He isn't in there, is he?'

"When Jim said he wasn't, the girl sort of caught at her throat, and said, 'Oh.'

"I could see she was very much excited. 'You'd better let me take you around front,' I urged her, but she said, 'Oh, I'll be all right,' and left the way she had come."

"Mr. Royce," demanded Kilday eagerly, "did Callis Shipley have on a blue dress?"

The newspaper man hesitated. "Why, yes, I think she did," he said finally.

Doctor Abernathy sprang to his feet. "You're making a terrible mistake," he cried. "Callis Shipley wasn't the woman in blue—not the woman in blue I saw. That—why, that's absurd." His fingers fumbled with his handkerchief as he mopped his brow.

"I'm sure she was out in the vestibule, in front," added Ambrose Carmody. "You're getting nowhere, jumping about this way, trying to connect innocent people with the crime."

Sergeant Kilday frowned slowly, from one man to the other. Then he turned back to Nick Royce. "You say Callis Shipley came back here after Doctor Abernathy left the room? She was the last visitor?"

Royce nodded.

"There couldn't be any mistake?"

"Not a chance. You see, I've met Miss Shipley a dozen times, recently, at parties given for the bridal party."

"But you never saw the woman in blue that Doctor Abernathy told us about, did you?"

"We've been over that," Royce declared impatiently. "I was out in front, looking for Milo Dunbar."

The sergeant turned to the rector. "How well do you know Callis Shipley, Doctor?"

"I've known her all her life. I christened the child."

"There isn't any chance that you could be mistaken, then?" Kilday worried the question, like a dog with a bone. "You're positive that the woman in blue you told us about, earlier, could not have been Callis Shipley?"

"I am positive of that," declared Doctor Abernathy, and his manner was convincing.

Kilday was baffled. "What do you make of this, Peter?" The detective turned to his friend for suggestion. "Jim Franklin was murdered at or about the stroke of four. He arrived here at twenty minutes of four. In that twenty-minute interval, eight people visited this room, that we know of." Here he ticked them off on his fingers. "Doctor Abernathy, who was in the church when Franklin was killed; Nick Royce, who was his best man, and claims he was standing right at this door at the time of the murder; Rylie Carmody, who was to have been his brother-in-law, and who quarreled with him in the study, according to two witnesses; Mr. Carmody," Kilday glanced respectfully toward the banker, "who explains that he came to demand the truth from Franklin regarding Choo Choo Train; Callis Shipley, one of the bridesmaids, who did not see Franklin while she was here, but did see Nick Royce; another woman, dressed in blue, like Miss Shipley, who has not been identified; Choo Choo Train, the actress, who is supposed to have been in love with the dead man; and Daniel Bullis, who evidently was very angry when he entered the study without knocking.

"All this," he threw out his hands in a gesture of despair, "in twenty minutes, and we can't find anybody that seems to know anything."

"And yet we have enough to go on," Peter expressed a confidence he did not entirely feel. "We can talk to Choo Choo Train. We'll want to ask Daniel Bullis some questions. We can discover something of Franklin's private life from his man-servant, Fletcher, whom Mr. Royce mentioned, which may put us on the trail of the mysterious woman in blue; we can locate and identify that woman; we can question Callis Shipley and discover why she was so eager to find Rylie Carmody, and what she was doing back here in the sacristy, when, as a bridesmaid, she was supposed to be with the bridal party, in the front vestibule, and we can look up Rylie Carmody, who quarreled with Jim Franklin so shortly before—"

VAST CEMETERY IS WAR MUSEUM

Impressive Remembrances of Italian Valor.

Caporetto!

Those who are old enough to remember the October of 1917 recall the great retreat of the Italian army through Caporetto to the Piave river. Under the direction of the German high command, the Austrians attacked the Italians over a wide front "beyond the Alps" with such vigor that resistance was for a time impossible. The retreat quickly assumed the proportions of disaster. Britain and France, themselves sorely pressed, had no other alternative than to rush reinforcements to the Italian front.

Just when it seemed that Italy would be put out of the war, her soldiers and her allies made a stand at the Piave river. Italy was saved and the allied cause did not suffer the calamity which threatened.

The Globe has gathered a collection of pictures taken in a war cemetery at Redipuglia, Italy, near Montfaucone (not Montfaucon, France, near which is the American cemetery at Romagne).

The unusual thing about the Italian cemetery (which is the final resting place of 30,000 soldiers, of whom only 5,800 were identified before burial) is that it also is an impressive war museum. The markers are made of things military, the debris from many battlefields.

One of the pictures shows the graves of a father and son. Beneath the photograph appears verse, which, freely translated, reads:

Look at my breast, Father.
Are you glad?
Albert, more now I feel I
Am your father:
But your poor mother
Is left alone.
Another mother, Italy,
Will Console her.

Over the grave of one is set up a shielded machine gun taken from the field of battle to mark the place where a soldier lies. Above the mound that shrouds the other stands a cross, fashioned also from war relics—shell-casings.

Throughout this memorial book there are scattered pictures similar to the one shown and described here. The cemetery at Redipuglia is more than a burial ground, it is a national shrine.—Boston Globe.

Face Full of Pimples Could Not Go Anywhere

Healed by Cuticura

"My face was full of hard, red pimples. My skin was very sore and red and I could not go anywhere without everybody looking at me. The pimples were very itchy and I scratched them until they bled. I lost my night's sleep so many times I was disgusted.

"I tried different things, but without success. I happened to see an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I bought more and after I had used three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment my face was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Anna Krouchick, 430 Emmett St., Scranton, Pa.

Doctors Give Creosote For Chest Colds

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creomulsion with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements, quickly and effectively stops coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creomulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creomulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creomulsion on hand for instant use. (adv.)

but don't ignore medical opinion

if you want to –relieve constipation gently and safely

–take the exact dose suited to your need
–avoid danger of bowel strain

A doctor will tell you that the careless use of harsh laxatives will often do more harm than good.

Harsh laxatives often drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form.

Can Constipation be safely relieved?

"Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say thousands who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose that you find suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without assistance.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptional preparation containing senna, a natural vegetable laxative which relieves constipation gently and safely. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is no "convenience" in any cathartic that's taken so frequently, you must carry it wherever you go!

What is the "Right" Laxative?

In buying any laxative, read the label. Not the claims, but the contents. If it contains doubtful drugs, don't take it. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin contains no mineral drugs. By using it, you avoid danger of strain.

How many dimes and quarters are spent on "popular" laxatives! How quickly they count up, if you frequently use habit-forming helps! A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin would save you money—and bring you real relief.

Why Doctors give a liquid laxative

The habitual use of harsh salts, or powerful drugs in the highly concentrated form of pills or tablets is risky.

The properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without discomfort or injury. You need not take a "double dose" a day or two later.

The public can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE

WHEREAS default has been made in the payment of the money secured by a mortgage dated September 7th, A. D. 1928, executed by Arthur A. Perry and Jessie Ruth Perry, his wife, to Thomas P. Riordan, as Trustee, which said mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Livingston County, Michigan on the 15th day of October, A. D. 1928, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, in Liber 130 of Mortgages, on pages 573-579; and whereas said mortgage is now held and owned by said Thomas P. Riordan, as Trustee, and

WHEREAS the whole of said indebtedness remaining secured by said mortgage has become due and payable under the terms of said mortgage, and

WHEREAS the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of $2,954.28, including interest computed to the date hereof, and also including an attorney fee provided by law and stipulated for in said mortgage; and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

NOW THEREFORE, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises herein described at public vendue, to the highest bidder on Wednesday, April 25th, A. D. 1934, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, Eastern Standard time, at the front entrance of the Court House in the City of Howell, Michigan (that building being the place of holding the Circuit Court for the County of Livingston, in which said mortgaged premises are located.) Said premises are described as follows:

The following described premises, situated in the City of Howell, County of Livingston, State of Michigan, viz:

Commencing in the South line of Whipple Street in the City of Howell, at a point where the Easterly line of Lot No. 97 of Whipple's Second Addition to the Village of Howell (Now City of Howell) if projected southerly would intersect the said south line of Whipple Street, said point being the Northwest corner of land formerly owned by Fred L. Phillips; running thence Westerly along the Southerly line of said Whipple Street 100 feet, thence running Southerly at right angles to the Southerly side of said Whipple Street, 132 feet; thence running Easterly and parallel with the Southerly line of said Whipple Street, 100 feet to the Southwest corner of land formerly owned by the aforementioned Fred L. Phillips, thence running Northerly along the said Phillips' land 132 feet to the place of beginning. Said land being on the West one-half of the Southeast quarter of Section 36, in Township 3 North, of Range 3 East, Michigan.

Dated: Flint, Michigan, January 24, 1934.

OF ELECTRIC COOKING—
PROVE IT FOR YOURSELF
ON ONE OF THESE . . . .

TRIAL RANGES

WE CAN tell you about the delicious natural flavor that electric cooking retains in foods. We can tell you that meats and vegetables cook to melting tenderness in their own juices, with all their goodness SEALED-IN. We can tell you how easy it is to bake light, fine-grained cakes and flaky pastry in an electric oven. We can tell you how simply you can secure fluffy, golden-brown biscuits time after time. We can tell you these things, but the best way to convince you is to let you actually TRY AN ELECTRIC RANGE FOR YOURSELF.

That is what we want you to do. And to enable you to do it, we are making a special trial offer. We will install an electric range in your kitchen without initial charge, and let you use it for six months, removing it without charge if you do not like it. This permits you to try electric cooking in your own home without making any investment. During the trial period, you pay for the service as registered by your meter, plus a monthly charge of $1 for the range. If you decide to keep the range, your monthly payments will be applied toward the purchase price. If you decide that you do not want it, the range will be removed at our expense.

We believe that once you have tried electric cooking, you will never again be satisfied with any other kind. Send in your order for a trial range today.

TO ORGANIZE FOR GREATER BUYING POWER

THROUGH their county corn-hog control associations, American farmers can follow the pathway to increased purchasing power for corn and hogs. Under the corn-hog reduction plan, the [illegible] to control production and [illegible] will receive the full benefit for their efforts.

Although the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is charged by law with the responsibility of directing the corn-hog reduction program, the actual sign-up of contracts and the local administration will be in the hands of the corn-hog control associations which will be organized in major corn producing counties [illegible] contract signers. Each farmer w[illegible] signs a reduction contract beco[illegible] a member of the association and is entitled to a vote in its affairs.

The Board of Directors of the County Corn-Hog Control Association will be composed of representatives from the various communities within the county, elected by con[illegible] [illegible] producers, themselves. How To Make An Ivory Yacht And Conduct A Yacht Race Too

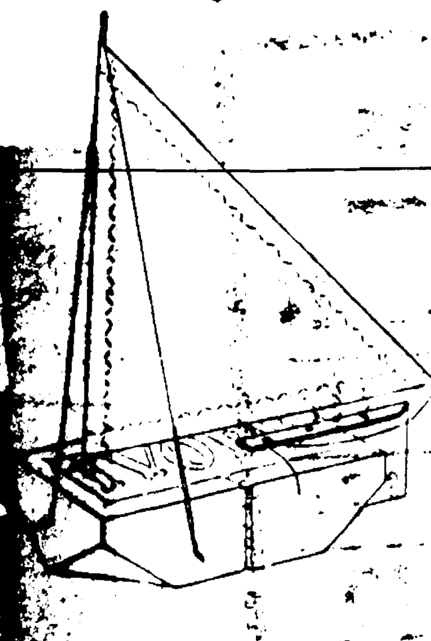
ONE simple and inexpensive solution to the problem of keeping children entertained nowadays is to arrange an Ivory yacht racing party. The best part of such an affair is that it is really two parties, combining an indoor craft with an outdoor sport. For the yachts have to be made before they can be sailed. If the children are old enough the boats can be made and sailed on one day. Other wise it will really take a day to make the boats and another to hold the race.



Completed Ivory Soap Yacht

All you need are the following materials and directions:

1 cake Medium Size Ivory Soap
[illegible] sticks (for holding sail)
[illegible] size wire brads
[illegible] weight canvas or linen for [illegible]
[illegible] piece of light-weight [illegible]

To Make the Hull

With a knife cut off the four corners from the bottom of the cake. This is to make the yacht speedier. With a nail, bore a clean hole in the center of the "I" of the word "Ivory", on the top of the cake, about one-half inch deep, to hold the mast.

To Make the Sail

Take a square of white cloth, measuring about six inches by five. Cut in half, from corner to corner. Turn up edge along "B", sewing edge firmly as far as point "D". Turn over edge along "A", sew securely, insert lollypop stick so that pointed end extends above and below sail. Insert shorter stick in hem "B" as far as point "D". This allows the sail freer play in swinging.

The sail is attached by cord from the top of the mast, to "brads" inserted in the soap, as indicated on Figure 3.

One brad goes in front of the hull, one on each side, a little back of the mast, and one cording, attached to the end of the rear stick, fastens to a brad inserted in the middle of the "R" of the word "Ivory". Do not pull this cord taut, for it must allow the sail to swing freely.

To Make the Rudder

With a piece of light weight cardboard (an old post card will do) make a rudder twice as large as the rudder shown in Figure 4, cutting where the black lines are shown and folding on the dotted lines. (Before folding, the longest part of your rudder should be 3¼ inches, from top to bottom it should measure 1 13-16 inches.)

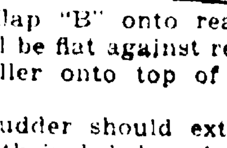
Nail flap "B" onto rear of hull, so it will be flat against rear of hull. Tack tiller onto top of hull with brad.

The rudder should extend about one-eighth inch below the hull. The tiller may be manipulated by loosening the brad that holds the tiller, moving the rudder in whichever direction is necessary, depending on the wind, and then pushing the brad down again, to hold the tiller in that position.



A breath will start the boat in motion. The sail should be able to swing from corner to corner of the hull, so allow enough rear cord.

Wind or weather need not interrupt the plans for this party. If the weather is not right for outdoor play, the bathtub will serve very well as a lake and even though the indoor party has to be conducted on a smaller scale, the fun and excitement will be just as great.

The race should be conducted in as formal and grown-up a manner as possible. The boats and their owners should be identified; there should be an official starter at whose whistle the children should launch their yachts. Being made of Ivory soap the yachts will float.

Prizes should be provided for the winners and, of course, the guests will take away their own yachts for further sailing.

PHILATHEA NOTES

The first of the year's series of Missionary meetings of the Philathea Sunday School Class and Ladie's Bible Class was greatly enjoyed on Wednesday last at the home of Mrs. S. E. Swarthout. The President presided for the short business meeting after the opening hymn and Devotional service. Mrs. Jennie Wegener and Mrs. Hattie Swartout ably presented the entertainment features. Among these were readings by Mrs. Mable Dinkel and Mrs. Millie Elliott and by Mrs. Hattie Swartout. Mrs. Villa Richards and Mrs. Carrie Swarthout sang "In the Cross of Christ I Glory". A Bible Question test caused much interest. One question was "What was the greatest number of generations alive at one time? (Genesis 5) This chapter showed that Methuselah headed four generations, but it was brought out that one of our members was one of five living generaions.

The singing of "Blest Be the Tie," with Mrs. Florence Baughn at the piano, completed the committee's program and the usual co-operative lunch was an ejoyable closing feature. The matching of valentines reminded us of the date. A generous offering for Missions was extremely gratifying, and it hoped we can materially add to this amount during our future meetings.

The next meeting of the Philthia Class is to be held with Mrs. Dede Weeks on the second Wednesday in March. The program committee being Mrs. Lucy Reason and Mrs. Mable Dinkel.

Last Sunday's class hour, with good attendance and Mrs. Elliott teaching was full of inspiration as we discussed the topic of the lesson. "Jesus Power to Help". Notice our next subject "Why Win Others to Christ?" Three selections from the ninth of Matthews form the lesson material for the missionary topic.

STICKER SALE STARTS FEB. 23

Sale of windshield sticker permits under the two-payment plan allowing legal use of 1933 plates until August 1, 1934 will start Feb. 23 according to announcement by Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald.

Under this plan motorists, upon payment of one half of the weight tax will receive a permit which must be fastened on the lower right hand corner of the windshield. With this sticker in place, the 1933 license plates can be used. In event that the legislature reduces the annual weight tax in the next few months, proper adjustment will be made when the second half of the weight tax is paid if authorized by the legislature, Mr. Fitzgerald announced.

Howe About:

Drinking and Smoking Policemen Some Writing

By ED HOWE.

A MAN of thirty-five lately wrote me he drank so much he lost his job. He could quit two weeks, he said, he could overcome his bad habit, and again become a salary earner and respectable citizen.

In my reply I said if he would quit drinking and write me in six months, I would quit smoking, a habit in which I had indulged many years. Something I wrote seemed to encourage him; he replied later he had passed the critical two weeks, was again on the pay roll, and doing well. He further said he, too, was a smoker, and if I'd quit right away, he would.

In replying, I said: "Another of my bad habits is to put off until tomorrow that which I should do today; so I beg you will grant the delay I ask. In addition, I suggest you do not overload yourself in good endeavor. Would it not be wiser for both of us to have the solace of smoking while thinking of the great reform we have promised to accomplish in six months?"

Everyone has probably remarked how bold policemen are in arresting citizens disposed to obey the law. Such a man, I learn from the Associated Press, was lately arrested and fined three times in ten minutes. The man said in court he had been a taxpayer forty years, and had never before been arrested. The judge fined him a fourth time for that. The offending citizen had bought a pistol, owing to the prevalence of burglars, and was taking it home. Also everyone has probably remarked how slow policemen are in arresting men who not only carry concealed weapons, but machine guns, or sawed-off shot guns, which cannot very well be concealed about the person.

I am greatly interested in a manuscript sent me lately for criticism. The author says in an accompanying letter that I once suggested that a writing entitled "The Autobiography of a Failure" might attract public favor; that he has prepared such a writing, partly while an inmate of an insane asylum (where he spent ten years), and partly while an inmate of a poorhouse (where he is at present, troubled with palsy, rheumatism and bad eyes.) As to the merit of the writing, I will let the reader judge, by giving several examples. The author confesses he may occasionally quote unconsciously from others, of which the reader may also judge from the following paragraphs: "It is quite a job to maintain a sane policy in an insane world. He is a prudent man who is not only undeceived by apparent stability or instability, but is able to forecast the lines on which movements will take place. . . . An optimist is one who believes that nothing will happen but materialization of his dreams. . . . How unanswerable history proves that nothing inspires bad faith like perfect faith! . . . Though I would not part with such scraps of education as I have learned at school, I do not place the same store by them as for certain odds and ends I came by in the streets. . . . If nobody dropped out at the eighth grade, who would hire the college graduates? . . . Ambition beyond mediocrity is the first American weakness. . . . The only semblance of equality is found in an insane asylum. There all are treated alike; it is socialism in action. . . . One woman outlived three husbands, each leaving her a fortune. When she died, her money was left to spread a screech from the grave of man's worthlessness. . . . But at a second-hand bookstore I saw books of 'deep thought' in which a former owner has marked numerous passages. I have them lying about your room. The chambermaid will see them, and be awed by your learning. She will tell the neighbors; they will tell everybody. . . . Judging a man by what he reads is as wrong as to say he swallows all he smells. . . . No man is a complete failure until he delights to think his virtue is what keeps him poor."

Some [illegible] I have carried along in my mind for years, as new, important, and inspiring hope. I cannot remember whether I read it in newspaper, book, job, magazine, or heard some one say it; nor can I recall the name of the author. . . . Briefly, the statement was that if a man practices good behavior for its own sake (because it is finally easier and more profitable than bad behavior, and renders his success in life more probable), such practice improves his intelligence; strengthens and betters his brain, as other organs of the body may be improved by exercise. . . . Thus a well-behaved man has a double advantage: 1. His good conduct pays him, in increasing his comforts; 2. He is pursuing the course in life best calculated to improve his intelligence and his character.

O. O. McIntyre often writes of old country boys who have made good in the city. I wish he would reprint this case: A man named Roy Roberts was born in Atchison county, Kansas, where I live, and made so good in the city that he became president of the Gridiron club in Washington: the only club the members of which have the privilege of making fun of Presidents to their faces. . . . And when members of the Gridiron club tell Presidents the truth, the Presidents do not recognize it: they think it a joke.

Plain Evening Home Dinner

Eggs a la King Proposed as Headline on the Menu, With Versatile French Toast as a Delicious Dessert; Special "Quick Meal."

Eggs a la King
Parsley Potatoes Mixed Pickle Salad
French Toast Honey
Coffee

Two of the best helps to the housewife are used together in the main dish for the quick meal. I am giving a special recipe for eggs a la king given me in turn by a cook who is famous for the dish. The marinating of the eggs with the French dressing gives them a flavor which is individual and delicious.

For special occasions cream may be used in preparing the dish instead of milk. Even a few tablespoons of cream, added just before serving, is an improvement in flavor. We are using boiled potatoes with the egg dish. They may be cooked in their skins, which should be taken off before dressing them with melted butter and chopped parsley. Paring potatoes is to be avoided when possible by the business housekeeper, because it is hard on time, and also hands.

A bottle of chow-chow or chutney, or some other mixed pickle, as well as chili sauce or ketchup should always be kept on hand to vary the dressing for salad. This may be used with mayonnaise or with French dressing or with that favorite of mine—"spicy" dressing—which has equal amounts of vinegar and just a little oil in it.

Of course if there is any sour cream in the house, that makes a dressing, delicate and piquant, with the pickle added to the whipped cream.

For dessert we are choosing French toast. Perhaps you call it German or Spanish toast. It goes by all these names and actually is fried bread—bread dipped in egg beaten into milk and sauted in a little fat. To get it the perfect brown, add fat only as the pan begins to dry. It is also good when fried in deep fat. Honey, sirup, or cinnamon and sugar may be served with it.

A more elaborate dessert may be made of French toast by serving a whole canned peach or plum on it and further dressing it up with a sauce of fruit juice, and a flavoring, thickened slightly. French toast has other uses as well as that of dessert. It may be used as a basis for creamed meat or vegetables and may take the place of potatoes. French toast is one of the housewife's best aids to attractive quick meals.

How to Prepare Quick Meals.

Start potatoes cooking
Prepare salad and chill
Cut bread for French toast
Prepare eggs a la king
Fry toast
Dress potatoes
Start coffee a few minutes before serving first course

Eggs a La King.

6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
3 tablespoons oil
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of paprika
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
6 fresh mushrooms
1½ tablespoons butter
⅛ green pepper, shredded
2 teaspoons grated onion
1 cup milk or cream
1 egg yolk, beaten

Mix oil, salt, paprika and lemon juice, scatter over sliced eggs.

Melt butter in saucepan and cook mushrooms, pepper and onion in it four minutes. Add cream, cook slowly, stirring frequently. Drain eggs, set dish over hot water and heat thoroughly (about ten minutes). Add to beaten egg yolk the dressing drained from eggs, and add to hot mixture. Stir until egg is set (about one minute). Pour over hot egg slices and serve at once.

Neige Creme.
(Snow Cream.)

1½ cups cream
2 egg whites
2 teaspoons vanilla or lemon extract
½ cup powdered sugar
½ cup browned almonds, chopped

Whip cream and set on ice. Beat the whites of the eggs to a foam, add the sugar and flavoring and beat until thick and glossy. Stir in the whipped cream and arrange with layers of sponge cake in a mold. Sprinkle with chopped almonds, blanched and browned. Chill several hours or until thoroughly cold.

Marshmallow Pudding.

½ pound marshmallows
2 cups shredded pineapple
Sugar
1 cup cream
2 tablespoons candied orange peel

Cut the marshmallows in quarters, put in a serving dish with pineapple and place in the refrigerator to chill for several hours if possible. Whip the cream, pile on top, and garnish with the candied orange peel. Add sugar is needed.

TOO TIDY

Some women demand that all magazines and papers be carefully kept in the receptacle provided. This should be a breakable rule. People like to have papers to hand, but naturally forget to replace them, and a few magazines here and there give a "lived-in" look to a room.

Here's Quickest, Simplest Way to Stop a Cold

1. Take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets.
2. Drink full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.
3. If throat is sore, crush and dissolve 3 Bayer Aspirin Tablets in a half glass of water and gargle according to directions in box.

Almost Instant Relief in this Way

It is recognized as the QUICKEST, safest, surest way to treat a cold. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get the real BAYER Aspirin Tablets. They dissolve almost instantly. And thus work almost instantly when you take them. And for a gargle. Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablets dissolve so completely they leave no irritating particles. Get a box of 12 tablets or a bottle of 24 or 100 at any drug store.

Washing for Ten Took Two Days —until she tried Oxydol

"Washing used to take all day Monday to do, and all day Tuesday to get over. But—by doing all the heavy work in washing for a family of ten, by making my clothes beautifully clean without effort, by making them so much easier to rinse and iron—Oxydol has given me back two brand-new days a week!"

THE amazing new discovery of the world's most famous soap experts, the makers of Ivory—this new and improved OXYDOL does these things no other soap can do or has ever done:

(1) Soaks clothes clean in 15 minutes. Without boiling, without back-breaking rubbing. Hence cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine, saving hours of labor.

(2) Gets clothes 4 to 5 shades WHITER, by scientific Tintometer test, than other soaps. Whiter in ONE washing than ANY other soap can get them in TWO to FOUR washings!

(3) Yet, due to the special mild protective elements it contains, it neither fades nor injures color or fabric. Even cotton prints and children's dainty frocks are safe. And—it's so kind to hands that you're amazed at its power to clean clothes!

Thick 3-inch Suds in Any Water

OXYDOL is specially fitted to water conditions in each district where it's sold. The OXYDOL you get here already contains just the right amount of water-softener to fit the water you use. You can see the results in the suds. OXYDOL multiplies 500 TIMES in suds! Makes rich 3-inch suds in any water, hard or soft!

And OXYDOL is economical. By actual test, a regular 25c package will do the work of 8 to 10 cakes of bar soap or 2 to 3 times as much flakes!

Steve Lazlo is Murder Victim

had three fires in which two houses and their barns were burned. All insured in the Livingston County Mutual but since the last fire when state fire marshall made an investigation this company has not insured them.

Joseph Kovac. an older brother of Alxander is now in the jail awaiting sentence on his confession of stealing $80 worth of wool from R. G. Webb. Pinckney farmer.

At the time of Lazlo's accidnt a year ago he first claimed to have been struck over the head with a club but later refused to talk.

Alexander Kovac was a quiet boy and seldom came to town except to play basket ball or foot ball in which he was greatly interested.

Lazo had not been getting along well with the family and lived all the past summer on land owned by him near Schoollot Lake in a shack.. returning home when the weather became cold.

Deputies Kennedy and Passett took Mrs. Lazlo to Howell for questioning Tuesday afternoon. Louis Lada has been released.

Th funeral of the murdered man was held from Swarthout's Funeral Home at 10:00 this morning. Rev. Berquist officiating. Burial was in the Pinckney cemetery.

The autopsy on the body was performed Sunday by Dr. Huntington and Hollis Sigler of Howell.

A COMFORTING THOUGHT

The greatest service of the modern funeral director is that of lifting the load of responsibility from the shoulders of the bereaved. From the moment that he is called, he assumes charge of the many details which require attention. We give special attention to this comforting service.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.

IT'S INCONVENIENT AND EMBARRASSING FOR BOTH

Repeated requests to use a neighbor's telephone soon prove embarrassing and inconvenient for both persons. The "borrower" has to leave her house, even in bad weather, to use the telephone. The accommodating neighbor is interrupted in her work or rest. And sometimes she even is asked to deliver a telephone message!

You can have your own telephone at a cost of only a few cents a day! It will pay its way in the convenience and protection it provides for the entire family. Any Telephone Business Office will furnish complete information, and take your order.
