Local Industries of the Past

The Pinckney Mill Was for Many a Thriving Establishment Here and Played an Important Part in the Life of the Community

Probably no institution had a more important part in the life of this village than the Pinckney mill which flourished here for nearly one hundred years. The first mill was built here about 1837 under orders of Prof. Wm. Kirtland. The machinery was installed by Seth Pettys, veteran miller and later founder of Pettysville. Like all mills of this period it was a stone grinding mill and probably did mostly a local business on account of lack of transportation facilities. Just who was the first miller we do not know. Undoubtedly Mr. Pettys operated it for awhile. Samuel Sykes was one of the early millers. His son,Casper,once brought a letter of recommendation in to us written for his father in 1847 by Seth Pettys in which the skill of Mr. Sykes Sr. as a miller was highly praised. The country, west of the Mississippi was not then raising wheat and the huge mills at Minneapppolis had not been built.The railroad came to Dexter in 1841, provviding transportation facilities and small mills in this section boomed. During the civil war the price of flour went sky high and all mills were pressed to capacity to supply the demand. Many millers became wealthy at this time . One of these was Thomas Birkett who operated the mill at Dover on the Huron,just south of Portage Lake. The mills at that time exported much flour,mostly to Boston and Detroit.They could not buy enough wheat locally to fill their flour orders and had to go outside for it, sometimes to the Detroit wheat market. At this time the mills ran night and day. Just what was the output of the Pinckney mill in those boom days we do not know However in an article running in Dexter Leader on early industries,it is stated that the Dexter mill in 1880 made 47,000 barrels of flour a year. Of this 10,000 barrels a year to Detroit and Boston.It also ground 800 bushel of feed a day.The Pinckney mill was not as big as the one at Dexter,, so probably had a smaller output.

Following the civil war a slump hit the wheat and flour market and many millers who had overexpanded went broke. In the meantime the people were demanding white flour and the stone grinding system was being discarded in favor of the improved steel roller system.About this

MICHIGAN MILK PRODUCERS MEET

460 accredited delegates to the Michigan Milk Producers Association registered at the annual meeting at East Lansing last Thursday. Among them was Michael Roche of Pinckney who was a member of the resolutions committee from this county. All of the old officials were re-elected including Ed. Hyne of Brighton, a board member. Most of the oratory was directed in maintaining the price of milk fixed by the milk marketing board and denouncing those who refused to obey it. The Johnson Creamery of Detroit who are paying a straight price of $1.50 per cwt. was especially denounced by B. F. Beach, secretary of the association, who said that the farmers were sure to benefit financially if they stand by the milk marketing program.

Thursday night Prosecutor McCrea of Wayne County who tried to hold a one man investigation of the Mich. Milk Producers Assoc., but failed when it was found that the law under wihch he started action was repealed by the last legislature addressed a meeting at Howell. He does not like the association. A representative of the Federation of Labor was present and again asked the farmers to affiliate with that body.

Over the Hills to the Fox Farm

Fox Farm Replaces Glue and Soap Works As the Ultimate Destination of Old and Useless Horses

Years ago "Over the Hills to the Glue Factory or the Soap Works" was about as popular with the melodrama loving public as "Over the Hills to the Poor House" made famous by Will Carleton. Such writers of animal stories like Anna Sewell, the author of Black Beauty,brought in the high point of their story, as the old faithful family horse who had fallen on evil days and into unkind hands was rescued just in the nick of time by the son and heir who had struck it rich just as the old nag was about to go into the glue pot or soap vat.

Now all is changed. The soap or glue factories evidently don't use old horses any more but another concern does and plenty of them at that. This is the fox farms who buy up old horses and feed their flesh to the foxes. The ones near Fenton use four horses a day and have numerous men scouring the country for them. They pay a cent a pound and the horse must be healthy and have no sores on it. It must also be able to stand up. There are also many other fox farms, all demanding horses. Many horses from this section have gone to various fox farms. Most of them to Fenton.Wm. Cushing, Dexter horse dealer took 87 horses to Fenton last year.Wayne Bennett, Pinckney dealer 62. So far this year Bert and Sylvester Harris have taken 32 there. They are usually trucked there with about 7 horses on a truck. Of course in order to make a profit the dealers must get the horses pretty cheap. They do. Many are given to them and for the others they seldom pay more than $5.

Times have evidently greatly changed and now days apparently no one read the works of Anna Sewell and other great heart throb authors.

PINCKNEY AND STOCKBRIDGE PLAY SCORELESS TIE

Pinckney and Stockbridge high schools played a scoreless tie there last Friday. Neither team has enjoyed a very successful season, Stockbridge having won no games and the Pinckney team but one. Although Stockbridge seems to have gained the most yardage in the game Pinckney had the most scoring shances. In the first quarter Billy Baughn made a 60 yard run for Pinckney and put the ball over. The referee claimed his knees had touched the ground before he crossed the goal line and brought the ball out to the three yard line where Pinckney was held to downs.Pinckney reached the scoring zone several times but could not carry the ball over the goal line. Stockbridge was stopped twice at the Pinckney 20 yard line. The statistics give Stockbridge 11 first downs and Pinckney 6. They gained 180 yards from the line of scrimmage and Pinckney 100. Colling gained 100 yards for Stockbridge.

This Saturday Pinckney ends her season with a game at Saline.This team has won all games so far by good sized scores and has a fine record for the year.

Philathea Notes

Members and friends of the class are meeting this Wednesday afternoon at the parsonage for our quarterly Missionary meeting, with an appropriate program and a special offering.

The Philatheas were appointed as Table Committee for the Church Night of last Monday evening. These are pleasant family affairs to which all friends of the Church are invited

After a helpful Missionary sermon on Sunday, we enjoyed the music by the new Sunday School Choir, and then the Philatheas had the usual splendid discussion of the lesson. The topic was the very fruitful one, "Righteousness in the Kingdom", with passages from the sermon on the mount. A good offering for Benevolences was given by the Sunday School.

Matthew 6:19-34 forms the basis for next Sunday's lesson; and we welcome all who can meet with us.

Have Excellen. Play For This Week

It seems like the longer the Caldwell Players come to Pinckney the better plays they bring and the larger the audiences get. Last Friday night the Community Hall was well filled and the play, 'The Good Bandit' seemed to please them all and 'Toby' kept the large audience in an uproar of laughter from the rise to the fall of the curtain.

This Friday evening Mr. Caldwell has announced another dandy play that is entirely different from the others presented here, this play deals with the most timely question of the day and is called "G'Man" and of course Dick Caldwell will have the role of the "G'Man" and George O'Brien will have a character old man comedy role, this is different from the other parts he has had here and your are going to get many a laugh out of his comedy, he is everything in a small town from the constable to the mail carrier. Evelyn Easter, will also have another dandy part in this play, as will Lucile Blackburn, Roy Kinkle, and in this play Eva Kinkle, has a comedy old maid role, we can assure you that you are going to like this play of "G'Man" as Dick Caldwell has personally guaranteed it to be one of the best, there will also be new vaudeville between the acts and a new musical program by the orchestra before the start of the performance.

Don't forget to ask most any merchant in Pinckney for the special courtesy tickets and save money, and school children no matter what age will be admitted for a dime.

NO AGE LIMIT UNDER SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

Workers in commerce and industry who are over 65 years of age are now covered by the Social Security Act. Their wages are taxable just the same as those of younger workers who have been covered by the old-age insurance program it began to operate in January of 1937.

"Employers who have such workers in their service must make the usual deductions of one per cent from the pay of older employees," it was said today by E. E. Pollock, manager of the Lansing Social Security office.

"The wages of older workers are taxable back to January 1 of this year. Social Security numbers must be obtained for such workers in order to submit full reports to the United States collector of internal revenue to whom the taxes are payable quarterly."

Disposal of Tax Delinquent Lands Which have Reverted to the State Presents a Serious Problem

Effective in Michigan this week is a new statute which strives once more to untangle the old-age problem of land.

It mirrors a major part of the history of Michigan itself. This history is written in the terms of human use of land and of exploitation by outside interests of the land's natural resources and by-products such as fur, timber, iron, copper, oil and gas.

It recalls the hey-dey of greedy speculation of land in the Detroit-metropolitan area during the boom years of 1924, 1925, and 1926 when a wave of excessive and poorly controlled subdividing swept over the city and its environs, leaving in its wake a trail of tax delinquencies and overdeveloped realty.

It reveals a shameful neglect and indifference by state and local government in intelligent planning and conservation.

It reviews a reoccuring cycle of human ambition and disillusionment, success and failure, happiness and heartaches.

Here is a subject so commonplace that it is almost practice.

Yet there is no one other thing in Michigan which affects so many people. Consider then for a few minutes this paramount problem of land and how our state government is trying to solve it.

The New Land Plan

Confronted with the cold fact that 1938 advertising of delinquent land in Michigan had disclosed the existence in tax default of approximately 1,500,000 acres in northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula and literally millions of dollars in undeveloped residential and business lots in the Detroit metropolitan, the '39 state legislature arrived at this solution:

(1) Tax delinquent land north of the south line of Arenac, Midland Isabella(Mecosta, Newaygo and Oceana counties would go to the state conservation department for disposal through its land division. Thus, suitable forest land (and unsuitable agricultural land) could be added to the state forests. Municipalities would be given an opportunity to acquire lots within their boundaries for purpose of school sites, playgrounds or parks.

(2) Tax delinquent land lying

PINCKNEY GOOD— LIKE HOLLYWOOD

The past few weeks saw our miscroscopic neighboring village of Pinckney which nestles in its cradle of lakes and hills north of Portage Lake in Livingston County, a scene of activity wherein the Wilding Pictures Croporation took numerous shots at the village and its inhabitants.

According to the lengthy articles in last Sunday's Free Press,Pinckney went Hollywood. The entire village co-operated in the production of "The Scarecrow Takes up Magic". Paul Curlett of the Pinckney Dispatch was quoted as saying, "I guess Pinckney is typical. Not many floaters here—just good solid people. It hasn't become citified like Dexter.

Does Dexter really appear citified? Maybe it does to the rural community in the south of Livingston county. Pinckney has all the modern advantages except city water and a sewer system. They possess more civic spirit than most communities, Dexter included. They put through more civic demonstrations with high success than any village of its size in Michigan. If Dexter had the same spirit of Stick-to-gether, and co-operation, we would be in the front rank of small cities. The Dexter Kiwanis Club is striving to bring this same civic consciousness to our community. Let us all get together, pull together, push together, boost together. No knocking, please.—Dexter Leader.

The Canadian government has barred Rev. Coughlin's magazine 'Social Justice' from circulation in Canada, as a war emergency measure. This publication is strongly against the Allies. The magazine Look and Pets were also barred but no reason given.

CURRENT COMMENT

"By Ye Editor"

Halloween seems to be getting a great deal more civilized each year. It was but a few years since when if a city or village did not find more than a thousand dollars worth of damage to repair the day after Halloween they considered themselves fortunate. In the old wooden sidewalk and horse block days was when the damage was really done. Of late years the old boys who did the damage in past years have seen the errors of their ways and have endeavored to get the youth headed into other channels by promoting Halloween parties, dances, parades and free lunches etc. This year there was but little damage done in Pinckney and no windows to speak of were smeared with soap. The old destructive spirit which prevaded the land on Halloween in years past has gone and it is well.

The embargo repeal is now in full effect and it does not seem to be much of a surprise to anyone. True, a handful of senators fought it to the last ditch but the final vote was strictly on party lines with few exceptions. The Democrats voting to repeal and the Republicans to retain. All Mich. G. O. P. representatives were against the repeal. Still there were some exceptions. Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, a leading candidate for the Republican nomination for president in 1940 was big enough to vote for repeal. Those who voted against the repeal were classed as Hitler adherents, including Rep. Fish of New York who recently visited Hitler in Europe. The repeal was the proper thing. No one can deny but that the sympathies of the great majority of the people are with the Allies in the present struggle and to refuse to sell them supplies would be in effect the same as an alliance with Hitler.

Since the European war the popularity of President Roosevelt has increased by leaps and bounds and bids fair to reach its all time high of 1936. The war which takes up about half of the front pages of the newspapers has apparently driven all else from the peoples minds and the charges and denouncements hurled against President Roosevelt by the German and Russian spokesmen have caused thousands to flock to his support. A news commentator who writes for the Washington column in the daily papers says that the president could carry New York, Massachusetts and Illinois at the present time. However, they add that this popularity extends to no one else but the president.

The question of whether the 'Cut Rate' dentists shall advertise or not will be decided by the voters next fall as Judge Lee Carr of Mason has dissolved the injunction obtained against it by the Michigan Dental Association. They claimed that many signatures on the petition for a referendum were fraudelent. Judge Carr said another kind of action would be necessary than an injunction.

The airplane industry seems to have shifted to California and the factories there are busy making airplanes for Great Britian and France. The embargo last summer caught them with many undelivered planes on their hands which had to be stored until the embargo was lifted. At Burbank, California, there were 650 bombing planes completed or under construction, at Santa Monica 100 Douglas bombers built for France. The Downey factory is doubling its size, the Inglewood factory has increased force from 4,000 to 6,000 men. The Santa Monica plant has a building backlog of near fifty million dollars. A strange thing happened there last week. The factories received orders to fly nearly 670 completed planes to the Atlantic seaboard for shipment to Europe. They evidently had advance information that the embargo would be lifted. A number of factors caused the airplane factories to go to California. The warm climate does not make it necessary for them to heat their factories. Labor is cheaper and it is not necessary to build such substantial factories on account of the warm climate. Also the long dry periods in which no rain falls make flying conditions ideal.

TRUTH

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys fail, and diuretic medicine would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK. — This department flushes a swarm of rumors about drastic changes in our naval building plans, said to have been induced by new problems of defense against planes and subs as disclosed by British disasters.

British Disasters Bring Check on Our Naval Plans

So far as we can learn, there are impending some possible changes in personnel, and a general check and overhauling of work on new ships to date, but nothing revolutionary. It is indicated that there will be intensive studies and training in coordination of ships, planes and submarines.

At the highest peak of American naval construction in peacetime history, Rear Admiral Alexander Hamilton Van Keuren is made chief of the bureau of construction and repair. That puts him right in the wheelhouse of the navy efficiency drive, as this is the acid-testing bureau for fighting ships, and it bears the responsibility for their being sound and fit, structurally and in design. Defects have been found, and are being remedied in several 10,000-ton cruisers.

Admiral Van Keuren, a navy technician for 36 years, is one of the most highly rated specialists in naval construction. He smokes a dropstem pipe, carries on easily and informally, and marshals engineering data with a precise mastery of detail. His previous post has been that of industrial manager at the Philadelphia navy yard. He is a dependable safeguard against pitted or pithy armor plate, such as we heard of years ago. He is a native of Michigan, graduated from Annapolis in 1903. His predecessor in the bureau, Rear Admiral W. G. Du Bose, becomes commander of the new model basin at Carderock, Md.

MAJ. GEN. DANIEL VAN VOORHIS, assigned to the supreme command in the Panama Canal Zone, is an officer up from the ranks who has been entrusted with many critically important assignments in the past—among them the guardianship of the bulk of the nation's $17,000,000,000 gold reserve, at Fort Knox, Ky. The fact of his selection is evidence of the crucial importance of the canal defenses, in the eyes of the high command.

Our Gold Guard Now Gets Canal Zone to Watch

From Zanesville, Ohio, he enlisted in the Tenth Pennsylvania infantry in 1898 and won a commission as second lieutenant in the Philippine insurrection. He is the army specialist in mechanized defense and attack, and just now the canal is a concentration of swift mechanization. In the World war, he was chief-of-staff at Brest, and holds the Distinguished Service medal, the Navy Cross, the Silver Star and the Legion of Honor decorations.

IN HIS new book, "The Defense of Britain," Capt. Liddell Hart, the British military expert, says, "Our chief risk of losing a war lies in trying to win the war." His general finding is that modern war cannot be supported in the style to which it has been accustomed, and observes that "War will only be ended when the power-lusting nations recognize its futility. The growing power of modern defense is bringing that prospect in sight."

Britain's Danger Is in Trying to Win, Says Hart

In his preceding book, "Europe in Arms," published in August, 1937, he thought there was hope of ending war in the limitations of the military mind. Fat-headed generals would cling to gaudy mass attack and make war so stupid and ridiculous that anybody surviving would just forget it. But the trouble with a war expert is that you can't bottle him up, and other nations in the past have used him as a military consultant.

In the World war, a stripling just out of Cambridge, a captain and a war correspondent, he gave the generals a lacing to the limit of the censorship, and, although they growled menacingly, they took him into their counsels. He invented a lot of new trick plans, including the "indirect approach" and the "expanding torrent" system, and his reputation was well on its way before the war ended.

He has scolded many of the main panjandrums of the big war, in the post-war years, apparently with public approval, judging from the sale of his books. He was a war buddy of Lawrence of Arabia and insisted that this human cryptogram knew more about war than all the generals put together.

Ask Questions To Get Ahead In the World

By GEORGE T. EAGER

"HOW little we use our opportunities to absorb information that is helpful in our work," said a business man in discussing the success of John Graham, the president of an important bank.

"I remember when John started at the mail desk as a boy just 30 years ago. He hadn't been there three months before he know more about postal regulations than our lawyers, seemed to be friends with everybody at the post office, could tell you in a minute just when you had to mail a letter so as to have it in Buffalo next morning. Any one with any question about the mail soon found it easier to say "Get Johnny" than to bother to look it up. As he was promoted from one department to another it was still the same story.

"People say he is the best informed banker in this section. The reason is that he never stops asking questions. I've gotten in a taxi with him and before long he has found out how much a driver makes a day, what share the company gets, whether the company is fair to its employees, how long a cab will last and so on. A week later the head of that taxi company may be asking for a loan and wonders where John Graham ever learned so much about his business.

"In one way or another the average business man comes in contact with at least 50 people a week. Most of us never think of asking them questions. But think of the information a man like John Graham accumulates and stores away each week."

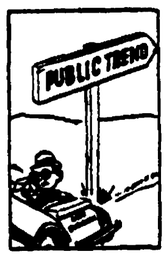
No wonder this whole community says "Get Johnny," when there is a tough business problem to be solved.

PUBLIC TREND IS IMPORTANT

A GREAT textile manufacturing business that once employed 15,000 has been ordered liquidated by a federal judge. Thirty years ago it was a leader in its field, a power in the industrial world. Today it is nothing but an assortment of buildings and machinery to be sold to the highest bidder.

As a rule the cause of the failure of many a business is the inability of its management to sense public trends, to study the speed with which they develop and then quickly adapt products to these trends.

A large manufacturer of umbrellas foresaw the adverse effect of closed automobiles on umbrella sales. Sensing the great future growth of aviation the company quickly dropped out of the umbrella business, and devoted its entire efforts to the manufacture of parachutes. Today it is a going business.



When the automobile business was in its infancy the United States was dotted with wagon and carriage manufacturers, many of them large and well financed. Out of all of them only one foresaw the trend from horses to gasoline motors clearly enough to see the advisability of becoming an automobile manufacturer. The rest have fallen by the wayside.

Business men have been known to get visions of the future from small incidents. One of the financial powers in the aviation business was asked why he had dared risk so much capital in the industry in its early and hazardous days. "I just looked around at the youngsters in my neighborhood and saw them discarding fire engines and trains for model airplanes," he replied. "That's when I became convinced the aviation business had a great future."

PARIS.—A gas mask has been invented for horses and mules, providing them with the same protection now available to human beings, cats and dogs.

These inexpensive

cover up glaring lamp bulbs in your ceiling fixtures

The Science of Seeing has demonstrated the danger of glaring, unshaded lamp bulbs in wall brackets or ceiling fixtures. This "raw" light causes squinting and eyestrain. But there is a simple and effective remedy for glaring fixtures: Slip these Adaptor Shades over the bare lamp bulbs and enjoy soft, diffused illumination. It's as easy as that to improve your lighting! The Detroit Edison Company does not sell Light Adaptors, but you may see them in a wide variety of styles and colors at department stores, hardware stores, lighting fixture stores and electrical dealers.

Conservation Dept. Notes

14 counties received a total of 41 drilling permits for oil and gas in Michigan during the week of October 25 to November 1. Kent received 13, Ottawa 9, Monroe, Van-Buren, Montcalm, and Isabella 2 each and Gratiot, Clare, Genesee, Clinton, Cass, Barry and Arenac 1 each.

Wisconsin has adopted Michigan's minimum size limit for lake trout and whitefish.

Improvement work at four Michigan state parks will be carried on during the fall and winter by WPA and CCC crews. The parks are in Cheboygan, Clare and Chippewa counties and in the Keenaw peninsula.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN "The Safety Man"

Recently the safety department of the Wisconsin Highway Commission stated that the "man on the street" is less careful about oncoming cars than the woman pedestrian.

The safety department reports these findings:

"The safest place to walk is on the left side, facing oncoming traffic.

The most dangerous place to walk on a rural highway is on the right side, with traffic coming from behind you.

"The safest place to cross a city street is at a marked intersection, with the traffic signals.

"The most dangerous place to cross is in the middle of a block."

Statistics prove conclusively that these are the prominent places and some of the prominent causes of automobile accidents. Laws will not abolish them. It will require the definite safety conduct of each and every one of us to help eliminate some of these causes of accidents from our highways.

"It's Smart To Drive Carefully."

MAKE MICHIGAN HIGHWAYS THE SAFEST HIGHWAYS

Do you know?

That uniform traffic laws became effective recently in Michigan.

That it is now unlawful to make a right hand turn when a traffic light is red.

That there are many other new rules concerning Stop and Go Signals.

That 25 miles an hour is now the legal limit in residential and business districts.

That the new law regulates pedestrians and bicycle riders.

That stringent provisions govern the operation of vehicles on multiple lane highways.

That parking provisions have been revised in many respects.

That you may get into serious through lack of knowledge of these Rules of the Road.

Harry F. Kelly, Secretary of State is distributing, free of charge, a booklet, "What Every Driver Must Know", containing a clear summary of all the new rules. Get your copy today at any office of the Secretary of State. Study the rules carefully and observe them in your daily driving or walking.

DECKERVILLE (MPA) - Roses thrive in this section of the state, or at least that is indicated by the late blossoming of two bushes at homes in and near Deckerville. Both bushes bloomed in June, and flowered again in September.

IRON RIVER (MPA) - Julius Lindsten got his bird early in hunting season with no effort at all. Returning from meeting an early morning train, he found a dead partridge on the porch of his home. Apparently the bird lost its bearings in the city and flew into the porch. Its neck was broken.

LINCOLN PARK (MPA) - While traffic was at a standstill at an Ecorse intersection, police, firemen, and the dog warden debated on how to remove a three pound fox squirrel crouched near high tension wires on a utility pole. The warden refused to shoot for fear of hitting the wires and firemen refused to climb for fear of touching them. Finally a small boy took things in his own hands, shinnied up the pole and got a pet to take home. Traffic moved.

PORTLAND (MPA) - Dale Franks and Jerry Holloway didn't want to roll in a ditch with five hogs, but they couldn't do much about it when their truck collided with another car recently. The crash threw the men out of the cab, broke the rack, and released the hogs. Holloway was burried beneath three on the animals but was not badly injured.

CLARE (MPA) - A large grey timber wolf has been reported to have been sighted wice in Clare county. According to the state conservation department, only four wolves have been killed and bounties claimed in lower Michigan in the last several years, all in northern counties. The department said it is possible that the animal seen near Clare is a coyote.

ST. CLAIR (MPA) - John Bessay 86, who took his first airplane ride recently, likes to fly, for he said it won't be his last plane trip 'because it is just as safe in an airplane as in an auto.'

ADDISON (MPA) - Atmosphere of sunnier climes is a feature of Mrs Charles Estes' home here. She has a lemon tree over 30 years old that is now bearing lemons. When ripe, the fruit, which has been borne every year, averages from 1 1-4 to 1 1/2 pounds each, and some have reached two pounds.

If You Don't Know Your Vitamins

Know the Maker

To the purchaser one vitamin product may look like another, but the effectiveness and merit of each product depends solely on its actual vitamin content. We know that vitamin containing materials may vary widely in potency. For this reason it is necessary to determine and to evaluate the amount of each vitamin present. International vitamin research has made such measurements possible. However these various procedures are quite complicated, and their accuracy depends largely on the experience and laboratory facilities of the maker.

One of the foremost pioneering laboratories in the world is maintained by Parke Davis & Company. Vitamin study, under the direction of a large and highly trained staff, has been maintained continuously for over twenty years. From this rich background of experience has come a fundamental understanding of the problems associated with proper preparation & testing of vitamin-containing materials. This vitamin testing is carried on in one of the largest laboratories of its kind in the world. As a result Parke-Davis Vitamin Products are carefully adjusted to a definite known potency as stated on each label.

Parke-Davis & Company supplies various vitamin products to fit the needs of each individual person as recommended by the physician. When continued treatment appears desirable, and when several members of a family are using the same vitamin product, the larger size package will be found the most economical. Ample intake of the various vitamin factors can be provided for only a few cents each day.

INDUSTRIES OF THE PAST

time Messrs Thompson Grimes and Frank Johnson became owners of the Pinckney mill and operated it until the nineties. During this time many different millers were employed by them.Some of them were Wm. Pyper, Dell Griffith, Mr. Rosencranz Wm. Voorhees and Harry Rogers.

Messrs Grimes & Johnson sold the mill to Ed. Mann who operated it for a number of years. Mr. Mann sold out to Thomas Birkett whose mill at Dover had burned down. Mr. Birkett also purchased the Dexter mill and operated both. A number of persons operated the mill for him. Among them were William Hooker and Robert Irwin,both of whom had worked for him at Dover.

Mr. Birkett sold the mill to Frank Peters, an excellent miller who ran it for a number of years. He sold to Hoyt Bros. of Clinton. Ernest Hoyt operated it and took a prominent part in the life of the community. During all this time Pinckney Purity Flour had a wide reputation and was on sale in all the near by villages.

Hoyt Bros sold to a Mr. Hudson. He was here but a short time and traded it to Frank Mackinder who in turn sold it to Richard Clinton. None of these last three persons operated the mill much and it began to decline. About 1921 Henry Ford began to buy up water power right and left and he purchased the mill and water rights here. The mill he tore down and moved that and the machinery to River Rouge. Then he expected to build factory but it did not materialize then. A year ago came back and purchased additional flowage rights and people are hopeful that a factory will be a reality here in the near future.

Besides the Pinckney mill similar mills were operated at Reeves, Unadilla and Pettysville.

Most ofthe above named persons are dead. Several of Prof. Kirtland's children gained fame as writers and in public life. Mr. Petty's daughter, Viola, lives at Lakeland.Dr. Hollis Sigler and brother, Donald, are great grandsons of Samuel Sykes. Thompson Grimes had no children but Frank Johnson's three sons, Gayle, Victor and Harvey are living, two of them in Detroit and Victor in Shreveport, La., Ed. Mann's three sons, Gene, Earl and Erwin live in Detroit. Wm.Hooker later owned the Pettysville mill where he died. His son, Bert, lives near Lakeland and a daughter, Maude, in Ann Arbor. Mr. Roseencranz went to Corrunna where his son became a banker and later was elected state senator. Robert Irwin went to Alma where he was employed in the Wright mills. His son, Dr. Frank Irwin of Alma survives him. Thomas Birkett is dead and has one daughter, Mrs. H. W. Newkirk of Ann Arbor. Frank Peters lives at Jackson. Mrs. Fred Read of Pinckney is his daughter. Ernest Hoyt lives in Clinton. Frank Mackinder was in Marshall at last reports. Richard Clinton has been dead several years. Harry Rogers died at Reading, Mich.

Mrs. Ida Fiedler of New York is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ross Read.

Bruckart's Washington Digest

Investigation of Un-American Activities in U. S. Bearing Fruit

Gives New Perspective on Foreign Influences at Work in Our Midst; Shows How Our Citizens Are Used To Promote Ends of Dictatorship.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — The long, and sometimes wearisome, investigation by the special house committee on un-American activities, headed by Rep. Martin Dies of Texas, has begun to bear fruit. It is not yet clear whether all of the fruit will be good. But there surely is reason to believe that, even with some of that fruit slightly decayed, a great deal has been accomplished that will be helpful in retaining America for Americans.

I have a feeling that when the committee's work finally is brought to a close, most of us will have a new perspective on the foreign influences that have been at work in our midst. We will know more about the "isms" that have been transported to our shores and spread among us under organization names that are designed wholly to conceal the purposes of a controlling clique which gains its strength and its money, to a considerable extent, from foreign lands.

For another thing, it is now evident that whatever else the Dies committee has done, it has disclosed how thoroughly easy it is for a few rat-eyed, scheming foreigners to feed upon American resources and use our citizens to promote the ends of dictatorship. Moreover, the testimony thus far taken has shown how these weasels operate, the methods they use.

The testimony has brought out the fact again that one of the simplest things in the world is to "organize" Americans. Some vague promises, delivered with oratorical fervor; citation of some wrongs and theories for correcting them, stated only in generalities, and a group of active organizers, working for pay—that is what you have to have to "organize" in the United States. And the tragedy of it is that thousands of individuals will part with coin "for this great movement," or that one, without knowing that the leaders are using the membership only for whatever crooked purposes will serve their own interests.

Activities of Nazis and Communists in U. S. Revealed

The committee has been attacked, threatened. Even President Roosevelt characterized some of its operations as a "a sordid procedure." Members of the groups whose history and purposes have been laid bare have shouted their heads off about "unfairness," and "injustice." But I repeat, the Dies committee has served a useful purpose and the public should remember that the stuck pig squeals the loudest.

Let us look back over the record. It shows that the "German-American Bund" is a tool of the Nazi leaders, if not directly of the German government. It shows that communists have been and are operating in countless "cells" in the United States, and because of the record the committee made, Earl Browder, the boss communist in the United States, is under indictment charged with having forged passports that enabled him to make frequent trips to Russia without the facts being known. It shows also that there are numerous organizations in this country which are simply the catspaw of the communist party of Russia.

It appears there is more scandal, more evidence of violation of law, yet to come. Largely, because of the committee's exposures there probably will be prosecutions of various foreigners or officials of so-called American organizations because they have failed to comply with our law. They have not registered with the department of state showing their connections with foreign governments or foreign groups.

In addition to all of these, the committee has made a ghastly expose of communists within the offices of our own government. It published the names of 563 persons, on the government payroll, who are members of the American League for Peace and Democracy, with the assertion that part of them, at least, were avowed communists.

Publication of Names Considered Grave Mistake

Publication of the list stirred official Washington. It was an action that was undoubtedly a grave mistake, because anyone can examine the list and find "victims" of the racketeering organizers — persons who were misled, persons who believed they were serving a sincerely fine purpose. Many of them are likely to lose their jobs in the government—minor clerks, messengers, stenographers—because of their alleged connection with an outfit whose motives, unknown to most of the members, were designed to destroy our form of government.

It was about this action that President Roosevelt spoke, although it has been known for months that he had little respect for the Dies committee program. Chairman Dies undoubtedly deserves censure for publication of the entire list. Common, ordinary horse sense ought to have shown him and his committee that only a comparatively small number of those people were "guilty." It would have been so easy to have rooted out the real crooks and no one could have had sympathy for them. But the others were just victims and ought to have been treated as such.

In other words, this bad mistake by the Dies committee has done much to nullify the good it has done, otherwise.

I am hopeful that the department of justice will be forced into the position where the real leaders, behind the scenes, will be kicked out of their government jobs from which they have been promoting destruction. But leniency is called for with respect to those other stupid, but sincere, individuals who make up the majority of the list. Their only blame is that they were so gullible that they did not attempt to find out who was behind the "great movement."

Operations Are Directed From Moscow and Berlin

But how did the Russian "Comintern" operate to get into these various organizations and promote its nefarious schemes toward world revolution in a so-called intelligent race of people here?

The processes, according to the testimony by Browder and others before the committee, were very simple. The American Communist party sends delegates to the Communist Internationale in Moscow. Decisions are made by the Moscow group. Browder explained that the delegates came back with these decisions and policies but he described them as only "voluntary agreements" between the Americans and Russians. The Americans were not "compelled" to observe the Russian-made rules or follow Russian-made orders, according to Browder. But the head-communist in this country was squeezed into a corner by committee questions and finally explained that it was "customary" for American members of the party to "part company" with the group when they failed or refused to agree with the imported schemes. And thus voluntary action was forced action, directed from Moscow, as far as I can understand words.

American "Fuehrer" Kuhn, of the German-American bund, appears to have had something of the same system. He nevertheless insisted before the committee that his organization had no connection with the Nazi party leaders and was not guided in any way by them. This statement was made despite testimony, some from Kuhn, himself—that he had many close contacts in Berlin and that he had made recent visits to Adolph Hitler.

There has been considerable suspicion that both Browder and Kuhn have many men and women in their organization who can be described only as racketeers. That is to say, they have numerous "workers" who are fully aware of the general purposes but who are willing to engage in the "movement" solely because they have well-paying jobs within the ranks—which, in my opinion, rates them as completely dirty crooks.

Confidential Information Available to Foreigners

But to get back to the Dies committee list of alleged communists, or fellow travelers, within the government itself. Those of us who have been in constant contact with individuals in various official capacities recognize the dangers that are inherent in their situations. I, for one, am genuinely fearful of them. Any government worker comes into possession of vast quantities of highly confidential information. It is information that belongs to you and to me and to others, because we are compelled by law to supply to the government all records and facts which the government seeks.

It is not information that belongs to any one government employee or official and that person has no right to use it or disclose it to others, except as the laws require.

I believe, therefore, it does not take a vivid imagination to see how such information can be used destructively by one of the rats who secretly owes allegiance to the Soviet or the Nazis or to the Fascists, of Italy. America long has proceeded upon faith. If that faith is breached between individuals, our laws and our courts are available for correction, for damages, for enforcement of rights. But what, I ask, are any of us going to do when, within the offices of the government itself, there are concealed men and women who descend below the level of common thieves and secretly supply facts about our nation to foreigners whose purpose is to destroy us? Who knows but that this sort of thing goes on within our army and our navy?

Canada to Send Mobile Force

Unit Will Be Smaller With Heavier Arms Than In World War.

OTTAWA.—Details of Canada's proposed expeditionary force show it will be a smaller but more mobile and more heavily armored force than the last one.

It had already been announced that Canada's active service force would consist of two divisions with ancillary troops such as medical and survey regiments. (A Canadian division numbers about 16,000 men.)

The announcement indicates the earlier idea of one "mobile division" has been dropped and that instead there will be two infantry divisions. They will conform, however, to recent reforms instituted by the British war office in the number and composition of such units.

Battalion Strength Reduced.

Battalion strength, for instance, has been reduced from 1,000 to 680 men. Cavalry has been mechanized into a modern scouting or skirmishing force. An anti-tank regiment has been added. Fire powers of artillery and machine guns has been greatly increased. Enough transport will be provided to carry at least half the divisional personnel.

Every rifle battalion, it is understood, will possess 52 light Bren machine guns in addition to those of the three machine gun battalions proper. Ten of these will be mounted on armored carriers.

The artillery will fire the new 25-pounder gun-howitzer instead of the old 18-pounder. There will be no tank battalions.

The division thus will consist of a mechanized cavalry regiment; 12 batteries of field artillery; an anti-tank battalion; three field companies, and a field park company of engineers and three companies of signals.

Smaller Than in 1914.

The total manpower of the 1939 divisions—16,000 of all ranks—will be 4,000 less than of the 1914 one. It will offer a smaller target while being able to direct a far heavier fire on the enemy. The units which comprise it have been drawn from coast to coast. One of them, the Twenty-second Regiment of Montreal—the famous "Van Doos," who won such a reputation for daring and tenacity in the last war—is French-Canadian.

The dress of officers and men, also the new uniform, with its belted waist and turned down collar, are said to be more serviceable and more comfortable. The old puttees have given way to a small six-inch canvas gaiter; brass buttons with their need for polishing have disappeared. Breeches have been replaced by slacks which fit into gaiters like skipants, and there is a new wedge-shaped cap.

Walnut Tree Dispute Is Nut for Judge to Crack

MODESTO, CALIF.—Here is a tough nut for a judge to crack:

John Jacobs asked the court, in a suit against Joe Anderson, to determine his share of the crop from 21 walnut trees standing on or near the line dividing plots of land owned by Anderson and himself.

If the trunks are on the boundary, Jacobs argued, each owner is entitled to an equal share of the walnuts, regardless of what proportions of the trunk or trees may be on the other's land.

However, if it is found that the trunks are wholly on Anderson's land and he is entitled to all the nuts, Jacobs wanted the court to give him permission to cut off any branches overhanging his land and any roots protruding into his property.

Infantile Paralysis May Be Acquired Through Eyes

WASHINGTON.—Infantile paralysis may be acquired through the eyes.

Two scientists of Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, reported in the Scientific Monthly, journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, that they had been able to infect monkeys with the virus which causes polio-myelitis by dropping it in the eyes.

The usual mode of infection has been proved to be through the mucous membranes of the nose. Thence it spreads to the nerves of the spinal cord and brain, Dr. Howard A. Howe and Dr. David Bodian said.

The monkey experiments showed, however, that virus could find its way into the nose from the eyes through a tiny canal.

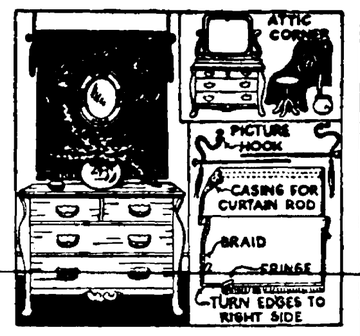
Guard U. S. Capitol Against Bombing

WASHINGTON. — Precautions are being taken to safeguard the Capitol and to prevent a recurrence of the bombing which damaged part of the structure prior to United States entry into the first World war.

Orders were issued closing the Capitol to the public on Sundays and forbidding all but members of congress from entering either the house or senate office buildings after midnight.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears



THE bride came home, but not to weep on Mother's shoulder. "There are too many bare spots in our house," she said; "and I want to rummage in your attic." "You are welcome to," replied Mother.

A golden oak dresser; a fish bowl; an old portier; a chromo in a wide gold frame; and an old piano stool; were carted away.

Varnish remover and plain drawer pulls transformed the dresser into a good-looking chest of drawers. A glazier put a mirror in the oval gold frame. Those are dusky pink branches in the fish-bowl—lovely against the rose-red brocade hanging. The diagram shows how the hanging was made from a part of the portier. The edges were finished with dull gold colored braid and fringe; and it hung with matching cord, tassels and an ordinary curtain rod. What became of the stool and the mirror will be told next week.

south of the above line which extends generally from Muskegon to Bay City would be offered for resale by a state land board at a "salvage" auction in May, 1940. All such land will be offered for sale at a minimum of 25 cents on the dollar of assessed valuation. Dispossessed owners may have the privilege of matching the highest bid and of obtaining title again. Former titleholders may enter into an agreement with the state land board to pay such a redeeming price over a period not exceeding 10 years.

If the lands are not redeemed by former owners within the 30 day period, a deed will be issued conveying absolute title to the "salvage sale" purchaser.

Northern Michigan

In Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula the state conservation department may dispose of the delinquent tax lands in one of three ways:

(1) Reserve the land for state forests and other conservation units. This would recognize the character of the land as being suitable for agricultural use. Speculators could not obtain the land for exploitation after which the land likely would revert to tax delinquency and thus proceed once more through the process of being advertised, offered for sale, and so on.

2() Offer at public auction after appraisal and establishment of minimum prices--owner at time of tax sale having 30 days following the auction to redeem for the amount of the auction bid. This corresponds with the plan for southern Michigan with one exception that while is discretionary in northern Michigan it is mandatory in southern Michigan.

(3) Exchange with the United States and individuals when such procedure is for the best interests of the state.

In the place of speculation and of spoilation, through which hundreds of millions of second-growth trees might be stripped by lumbermen and "timber skinners". Northern Michigan land is to be carefully administered by a state department created in 1921 for the purpose of fostering conservation of natural resources.

Southern Michigan

The land problem that exists in southern Michigan is largely the result of a subdivision boom, quite like the Florida boom which developed in the mid-twenties.

Today, in the city of Detroit and in an adjacent area, enough subdivided lots are on the tax rolls to accommodate an increase in population of three million people.

The Michigan Planning Commission, in a survey completed in 1939, found that only 4.3 per cent of subdivision lots in four townships in Wayne county, immediately adjacent to Detroit, were being utilized. The commission also pointed out that a lack of coordinated policy of restrictions had produced "rural slums". Out of 5,523 residences constructed in four townships, 60 per cent are with furnaces, 58 per cent without bathrooms, and 54 per cent without basements.

In thirteen metropolitan townships studied, 65.1 per cent of all subdivision lots platted were advertised in the 1938 tax sale. More than three-fourths of all advertised lots were tax delinquent for five years or more.

The commission concludes: "The return of this land to private ownership, unencumbered by delinquent taxes, will not assure the payment of taxes in the future, unless the return is accompanied by a program which will bring this land into proper use." It would only mean a repetition of existing abuses, another turn in the land merry-go-round.

Responsibility for prevention of such abuses should be vested, the commission continues, with "legally constituted planning authorities having jurisdiction broad enough in the scope to encompass the overlapping interests of municipalities, townships, and counties in the area affected by the plat.

Land Grants

Originally all land in Michigan belonged to the federal government, and prior to that, of course, to the Indians.

In 1837, when Michigan was admitted to the Union, section 16 of every township was turned over to the state with the stipulation that sale proceeds would go to a state primary school fund. Later, the state colleges were given a grant of 30,000 acres for every representative in congress. In 1850 Congress passed a swamp land act whereby six million acres came into state ownership for drainage development. The state would give swamp land script in payment for the building of roads and bridges, such script being discounted at banks and by land speculators.

Then came federal land grants to builders to railroads, whereby belts of land six to eleven miles in width were granted outright to railroads. (1866, Lansing to Traverse Bay railroad.) Builders of the Soo ship canal and the Keweenaw ship canal, for example, were given a choice of desirable timber lands.

Between 1870 and 1890 came the timber-cutting boom when lumber interests stripped much of the land of valuable pine and then left idle cut-over land, tax delinquent, for the state to worry about.

It was not until the 1893 depression that the state, after trial and error process, established a sound general tax law which provided that five-year tax default lands could be sold to homesteaders and land companies.

Into the modern picture comes the 1929 oil and gas discovery in Midland and Isabella counties--an interesting story in itself.

Tax Moratorium

In 1933, the year of the bank moratorium, the state legislature enacted a tax moratorium for relief of distressed property owners.

In May of 1936 a tax sale was to have been held to sell 1933 tax default land and any unpaid installments (10-year plan) on 1932 and previous tax years. The legislature later delayed the tax sale to May, 1938, when the accumulation of all tax defaults were compiled into one gigantic tax list. In metropolitan areas the tax deliquencies had mounted to astounding proportions, and the cost of publication in these counties (despite a 50 per cent reduction by the 1937 legislature) was abnormally large for reasons found in simple arithmetic.

Thus, the land story unfolds a history of Michigan from the era of Indian fur trade to the present week. The state once again seeks a solution for an old problem in which speculation and exploitation have had such a prominent place.

Armistice Day

Twenty-one years ago, November 11, 1918, the Representatives of the Allies and Imperial Germany signed the Armistice ending the World War

To the Americans who fought in that conflict for approximately two years, we do honor. However, many of them, no doubt, have spent twenty-one years wondering whose "Democracy" they fought to save, for today Europe is again at war and the people are more regimented than in 1914.

We have our own Republican form of government, which has remained unchanged basically for 152 years. It has stood the tests of time. Our fight is to protect our Flag at home. We can best show Europe her shortcomings by demonstrating how 130 million people with ancestral roots in all parts of the globe can govern and be governed. How they can work together to produce the greatest assortment of commodities. How our capitalistic system resulted in the highest level of wages and highest standard of living known.
