

Making a President.

In this quadro-centennial year, four centuries this side of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, there is being enacted an exhibition more glorious to the sight of those capable of appreciating it, more significant of new world life and liberty, more encouraging to patriots, better worth the attentive study of old world statesmen than any exhibition that will be held in Chicago next season. We mean the spectacle of a republic that contains 65,000,000 people engaged in choosing its civic ruler.

Every part of this contest, at every state from June to November, is an invaluable object lesson, but if we were asked by an intelligent subject of a European monarchy to point out to him a single phase of a Presidential campaign in the United States that would afford most instruction to a busy foreigner, we should unhesitatingly advise him to study a national nominating convention, such, for instance, as that which not a couple of weeks ago at Minneapolis and the one being held in Chicago this week.

To The Women of Michigan.

We take this method of calling upon the women of our state to awaken at once to the magnificent opportunity that awaits them in the World's Columbian Exposition. The time is rapidly approaching when America will welcome to her shores the women of all lands, and in the brief time intervening between now and May 1, 1893, we must work with great diligence and unity of purpose in order to make an exhibit worthy the women of Michigan.

Never within the history of the world have such brilliant possibilities been within the reach of woman, and now, with the gathering of nations at our very door, it becomes us to join heart and hand with our sister states in one grand effort to lead in the triumphal march and in testifying to the observers of the world what the freedom and privileges of our favored country has done for the elevation and advancement of women.

The object of this item is to inform the women of the state that committees on women's work have been appointed in the several counties. These committees are ready to act, and must have the prompt and cheerful co-operation of the women of their respective counties in order to insure success in the work they have undertaken.

We want to know what the women of Michigan have done, what they can do, and what they will do. The time has arrived when we must unite our forces and with one determined purpose move forward. We must give time and thought to the work we have in hand. We must lose sight of individual glory and of individual prejudices, and consider only the final outcome of our labor, which will prove the weakness or the strength of Michigan women.

Chairmen of county committees should lose no time in taking the initiative step, and through the local newspapers appeal to the women of their respective counties for assistance. Throughout the state we believe we will find a friend in that powerful agent, the press, and through the press we must give publicity to our plans.

Upon efficient county work the success of our exhibit depends, therefore, let the women of each county form themselves into a band of earnest workers. All along the line of industrial, intellectual, and moral activity, in the departments of art, invention, authorship, professions, and manufacturing, women are employed, and it is essential that each county be thoroughly canvassed in search of the meritorious work women are doing.

We must earnestly recommend that women and organizations of women, contemplating the preparation of exhibits begin their work at once. Applications for space should be made as soon as possible.

Intending exhibitors at the exposition can get the general rules and regulations for exhibitors, and the special regulations pertaining to exhibits in the department or departments in which they may be particularly interested, by addressing Director-General Davis, Chicago.

Competitive exhibits will be placed in the main exposition buildings.

The woman's building will be open for the display of the most brilliant work of women from all parts of the world. Only articles of superior excellence will find a place in the woman's building. The question is to whether exhibits in the woman's building should be competitive has not been decided by the board of lady managers, but the expectation at headquarters is that they will be.

The Michigan building to be erected on the exposition grounds is intended mainly for a comfortable and convenient home for Michigan visitors. It will contain a suite of apartments for the exclusive use of Michigan women, in the women's reading room we will have on file all newspapers, journals, etc., edited in whole or part by women in the state. We also desire books written by Michigan women, and invite every author to send us two copies of each of her books. One copy is required for the library in the Woman's building which will contain the women authors of the world, and one copy for the women's reading room in our state building, which will include only the women authors of Michigan.

Competitive exhibits will not be allowed in the state building. Each county may contribute views of natural scenery, public buildings, portraits of prominent citizens, objects of historic value, artistic interior decorations, etc., which will be properly displayed and also serve to enhance the beauty and interest of our surroundings.

In order that we may learn to what extent women participate in the industries of the state we desire to come into direct communication with all firms, corporations and individuals who employ women and girls in the conduct of their business. Free communication of information and suggestions will aid us to better accomplish our purpose in this direction.

We will take pleasure in answering any inquiries and in furnishing all necessary information relative to state work.

It is down on long-faced religion, and is full of sunshine, hope and love. Its humor is pure, plentiful and wholesome. It contains a denominational news, but is full of information about how to get to heaven, and how to live on earth. Every lover of the Bible falls in love with it at sight. It is a favorite with old and young, and if you take a dozen other papers everybody in the family will want to read THE RAM'S HORN first. It can be read clear through from beginning to end like a book, without a break in the interest. No better pictures were ever presented of life in the itinerant ministry than those in the "Wonderful Letters." The characters in them are living people who can be found in thousands of churches.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, JUNE 23, 1892.

Washington is the center of the most intense excitement this week but it is not of noisy sort. There is no hurrah about it. It is more like that of the gambler, who having staked his money, the decision which makes him win or lose, President Harrison and the members of his cabinet are more deeply interested, from a personal standpoint, than anyone in Washington, since Mr. Blaine left, in the out come of the struggle now taking place at Minneapolis. Two private wires running into the White House keep him posted, and he professes confidence, whatever he may actually feel.

Among the rank and file of the republicans there is a disposition to await developments and those who did not declare themselves before the convention met are now studiously non-committal, waiting to shout for the winner. Members of the third party, in and of Congress, are deeply interested. They wish Harrison to be nominated, because they hope then to carry all the States with leaning towards free coinage, which they doubt their ability to do if Blaine is candidate. The democrats are also on the anxious bench, because of the influence the republicans nomination is certain to have upon the fortunes of the several candidates for the democratic nomination.

Congress is trying to make believe that it is at work, but since the first day of the convention it is not succeeding very well. In the Government departments the clerks are doing little except to discuss the situation, while a large percentage of officials of the higher sort are at Minneapolis—members of the cabinet were kept away, out those next in rank were not, a queer thing, when you come to think of it.

If every Monday between now and the 4th of July could be turned into a "suspension day" and the House would show the same hurry to push through legislation on each of them that it displayed on the 1st one, it would certainly be in a condition to adjourn upon that date as provided for in representative McMillen's joint resolution; but even then it could not adjourn without the consent of the Senate. But there will be no "suspension day" again until the first Monday in July, which is the day mentioned for adjournment in Mr. McMillen's resolution, and the House still has an enormous amount of necessary work to do before it will be ready to adjourn which it would be well-nigh impossible to get through with without the aid of at least one "suspension day," even if the national democratic convention were not to meet on the 21, of this month to attract a large number of democratic members to Chicago, and to distract the attention of those who remain here, in time to adjourn upon such an early date. The democratic leaders are more than anxious for an early adjournment, and it is just probable that Mr. McMillen's resolution is put out as a sort of feeler to ascertain what the Senate thinks about adjournment.

There will probably be a very lively debate in the House before the session closes on the subtreasury bill, as the committee on Ways and Means will shortly report that bill, pursuant to instruction from the house, and a majority of the committee on Rules have promised to report a rule setting aside three days for debate thereon. The report from the Ways and Means committee will of course be unfavorable, and it may be that no vote will be reached upon the bill, but the Alliance members hope to be able to get a vote for the purpose of putting the members on record although they know that the bill will be overwhelmingly defeated. Their main object however, is to get their own views upon the subject printed in the Congressional Record, so they will be available as campaign material in the coming contest, in which they confidently predict large gains in their representation in the House.

The World's Fair people are beginning to be a little alarmed at the delay in getting the bill for the loan or outright appropriation of $5,000,000 to the fair before Congress. The House committee chairman says the bill of the fair say they need some of the money right now, and that if they do not get it before the first of July they will be very seriously hampered, if some of the most important work is not brought to a stand-still for lack of funds.

Senator Call, of Florida, has given notice of his intention to address the Senate, next week, on his resolution for an investigation to ascertain whether railroad companies interfere with the election of United States Senators. It is believed that Mr. Call, and at least a score of his colleagues, can, if so disposed, make some startling and sensational disclosures on this subject. Whether, he, or they will do so is a question.

Deadly Work For Children.

Nearly nine thousand children in New York City are making envelopes at three and a half cents a thousand. Other thousands are feather-strippers, cutting from the stem, steaming, curling, and packing, for ten hours a day, many of the working-places being dark basements, close and foul. A host make paper collars, for a child of five can do this. A girl of twelve counts and boxes twenty thousand a day; and one who pastes the lining on the button-holes does five thousand a day. A grandmother of eighty and a child of four sit side by side stripping tobacco, the hands of the little one covered with sores, and her face wazy pale. Hysteria, epilepsy, nervous diseases in many forms, wau on this work in which the fumes of nicotine take the place of oxygen; yet legislation seems powerless to affect the matter, and only in arousing public feeling, in clear understanding of what price we must some day pay for each and every defrauded body and starved soul, lies any hope of remedy. Whether worker or outcast most needs help many a looker-on has questioned; for often the outcast fares the better, and knows, even at the worst, some joy in living. From child life in the slums of New York," in Demorest's family magazine for July.

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep, depending upon a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look, if your stomach be disordered you have a dyspeptic look and if your kidneys be affected you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alterative and tonic acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pimples, blotches, boils, and gives a good complexion. # Pinkney Dispatch.

PINKNEY, MICHIGAN.

The days of natural gas are numbered. The supply was greater two years ago, and though new discoveries have been made since, some even of these have failed within that time. It may be used for a while for illuminating purposes, but it can not be relied upon to furnish power for factories.

They of Jerusalem abide with us ever—they who, having eyes, yet see not; they who, having understanding, do not comprehend the fact and truths before them. It is not so remarkable. This, as well as some that have gone before, is a stiff-necked generation, prone to error, skeptical, hard to convert from prejudice to fairness, not readily persuaded that all the virtues are not with the Pharisees.

The worst of calm philosophy is that it reduces life to a dead level. If we are not hurt, neither are we pleased; if we do not weep, we do not smile; and many would rather choose the two tropical extremes than take temperate and the middle course. We may, however, at least believe that good and evil are admirably balanced, if indeed, as we think, the former does not greatly predominate over the latter.

Boston is privileged to wear about its neck the phylactery of culture that shall ward off all the hated evils of intellectual immaturity, but so protected from the contagion of material and unesthetic minds it should the more courageously and charitably go forth into the world to discover if perchance the Pierian graces have not found somewhere else a spot to rest them and a people to bless in some measure. Boston as the mother and guardian of intellect in America, the source of literature, the inspiration of arts, the patroness of learning, should be solicitous to know what has been her influence upon this great continental world that practically overflowed from New England and began building new centers to thought and the ideal.

Canada acts on the customary English idea that all the advantages are and should be on her side, and other people be made to contribute to her prosperity and greatness. She sticks to her tolls on American vessels passing through the Welland and Caughnawaga canals, forgetful of the fact that if we put similar tolls on Canadian vessels passing through the Sault Ste. Marie and St. Clair Flats, which have cost the United States a great deal more money than she has expended on her canals, her vessel-owners would find themselves in a bad way for profits. A vastly greater commerce passes through the Sault Ste. Marie than through the Welland canal, that at Montreal and tolls upon it would be a serious burden upon Canadian vessels.

There is a marked demand from all sections of the country for better roads. An observant writer attributes this in no small measure to the extending use of that ingenious vehicle, the bicycle. If the supposition be correct, civilization will owe much to the inventor of the phenomenon that stands upright when it would naturally fall over. For good roads are a true index of civilization. In his barbarous state man has little use for roads. As he progresses above barbarism he seeks for better means of communication with his fellows that his natural longing for society may be gratified and his labor lessened through the greater facility of transporting his surplus products to market.

There are other interests in this world quite as valuable as those that are measured by dollars and cents, and if we will only turn to the consideration of these interests it may perhaps reconcile us to the cost of the European exodus. Art and literature and learning, wider experience of men and countries and governments, closer contact with varied civilizations and with the results of centuries of the world's best endeavor—these are some of the commodities which the transatlantic contingent gets in return for its money. And it would be rather a dangerous experiment for the Gradgrind with his little budget of irrelevant facts to undertake to argue that these gains are not worth the having and not worth many times the cost.

FALMAGE PREACHES ON THE NEW RECRUITS

Who Have Put on the Armor in his Fold-Farewell Sermon Before his Departure for the Land of the Militant and Oar.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 12, 1892.—Dr. Falmage prefaced his sermon this morning with a statement to the effect that he would sail on Wednesday next for Europe and might be able to be present at the distribution in the famine-stricken districts of Russia of the Christian Herald relief cargo, consisting of 3,000,000 pounds of flour and other supplies which goes out this week on the steamship Leo, chartered for the purpose. He congratulated the American people on the generous spirit evinced by this magnificent gift to the starving people. His sermon was from the text, Ephes. 6: 11: "Put on the whole armor of God."

There is in this text a great rattle of shields, and helmets, and swords. Soldiers are getting ready for battle. We have had recently in this church new enlistments and I shall address myself to those in this and other churches who are putting on the armor of God, and who may feel themselves to be as yet only raw recruits. "Masterly retreat" is a term often used in military circles, but in religion there is no such thing. It is either glorious advance or disgraceful and ignominious falling back. It would be a strange thing if all our anxiety about men ceased the moment they were converted. You would almost doubt the sanity of that farmer who having planted the corn and seen it just sprout above ground, should say: "My work is all done. I have no more anxiety for the field." No. There is work for the plow and the hoe, and there must be a careful keeping up of the fences, and there must be a frightening away of the birds that would pillage the field. And I say the entrance upon Christian life is only the implantation of grace in the heart. There is earnest, hard work yet to be done, and perhaps many years of anxiety before there shall be the glorious shout of "Harvest home." The beginning to be a Christian is only putting down the foundation, but after that there are years of hammering, polishing, carving, lifting, before the structure is completed. It takes five years to make a Christian character; it takes twenty years; it takes forty years; it takes seventy years, if a man shall live so long. In other words, a man dying after half a century of Christian experience feels that he has only learned the "A B C's" of a glorious alphabet. The next year will decide a great deal in your history, young Christian man. It will decide whether you are to be a burning and shining light of the church, or a spark of grace covered up in a barrel of ashes. It will decide whether you are to be a strong man in Christ Jesus, with gigantic blows striking the iron nail of darkness, or a bedwarfed, whining, grumbling soldier, that ought to be drummed out of the Lord's camp with the "Rogues' March." You have only just been launched; the voyage is to be made. Earth and heaven and hell are watching to see how fast you will sail, how well you will weather the tempest, and whether at last amid the shouting of the angels, you shall come into the right harbor. May God help me this morning to give you three or four words of Christian counsel, as I address myself more especially to those who have just now entered the Christian life.

My first word of counsel is, hold before your soul a very high model. Do not say, "I wish I could pray like that man, or speak like this man, or have the consecration of this one." Say: "Here is the Lord Jesus Christ, a perfect pattern. By that I mean, with God's grace, to shape all my life." In other words you will never be any more a Christian than you strive to be. If you build a foundation twenty by thirty feet, you will only have a small house. If you build a foundation one hundred by one hundred feet, you will have a large house. If you resolve to be only a middling Christian, you will only be a middling Christian. If you have no high aspiration in a worldly direction you will never succeed in business. If you have no high aspiration in religious things you will never succeed in religion. You have a right to aspire to the very highest style of Christian character. From your feet there reaches out a path of Christian attainment which you may take, and I deliberately say that you may be a better man than was Paul, or David, or Summerfield, or Doddridge—a better woman than Hannah More or Charlotte Elizabeth. Why not? Did they have a monopoly of Christian grace? Did they have a private key of the storehouse of God's mercy? Does God shut you out from the gladness and the goodness to which they were introduced? O, no. You have just the same promises, just the same Christ, just the same Holy Ghost, just the same offers of present and everlasting love, and if you fall short of what they were—in any way do not come up to the point which they reached and go beyond it—it is not because Christ has shut you out from any point of moral and spiritual elevation, but because you deliberately refused to take it. I admit that man cannot become a Christian like that without a struggle; but what do you get without fighting for it? The fortresses of darkness are to be taken by storm. You may by acute strategy flank the hosts of temptation; but there are temptations, there are evils, in the way that you will have to meet face to face, and it will be shot for shot, gun for gun, grip for grip, slaughter for slaughter. The Apostle Paul over and over again represents the Christian life as a combat.

When the war-vessel of Christ's Church comes into glory bringing its crew and its passengers, it will not come in like a North River yacht, beautifully painted and adorned, swinging into the boathouse after a pleasure excursion. Oh, no. It will be like a vessel coming with a heavy cargo from China or India, the marks of the wave and the hurricane upon it—sails rent, riggings spliced, pumps all working to keep her aloft, bulwarks knocked away. I see such a vessel coming and get out my small boat and push towards her, and I shout: "Ahoy, captain! What are you going to do with those shivered timbers? That was a beautiful ship when you went out, but you have ruined it." "Oh," says the captain, "I have a fine cargo on board, and by this round trip I have made ten fortunes." So I believe it will be when the Christian soul at last comes into the harbor of heaven. It will come bearing upon it the marks of a great stress of weather. You can see by the very looks of that soul as it comes into glory that it was driven by a storm and dashed in the hurricane; but by so much as the voyage is rough, will the harbor be blessed. "If ye suffered with him on earth, ye shall be glorified with him in heaven." Aim high. Do not be satisfied to be like the Christians all around about you. Be more than they have ever been for Christ. An old Arabian king was showing a beautiful sword that had been given him, when one of his courtiers said: "This sword is too short. You cannot do anything with it." Said the king's son: "To a brave man no sword is too short. If it be too short, take one step in advance, and then it is long enough." So now when a young Christian enters the church, God does not ask him to retire from the world. The anchorite that lives on acorns is no nearer heaven than the man who lives on partridge and wild duck. Isolation is not demanded by the Bible. A man may use the world with the restriction of not abusing it. But just as soon as you find any surroundings pernicious to your spiritual interest, quit those associations. This remark is more especially appropriate to the young. Now it is impossible that the young and untroubled should seek their associations with those who are aged and worn out. As God intended the aged to associate with the aged, talking over the past and walking staff in hand along the same paths they trod, thirty, forty, and fifty years ago, so I suppose he intended the young chiefly to associate with the young. The grace of God does not demand that we be unnatural. I do not want you to take this caution I have given you as that of a growling misanthrope, hating hilarity. For you must have a spring bow if you want to make the arrow fly. But while this is so, I want you to be especially on guard in this matter, and let the religion of Jesus Christ control you in all your associations. I know young people who have meant well enough, but they have floated off into evil influences, and they have associated day by day with those who hated God and despised his commandments, and their characters are all depleted. I can see they are changed for the worse, but they are not aware of it. O young man, come out of that bad association.

My next word of counsel is that you be actively employed. I see a great many Christians with doubts and perplexities and they seem to be proud of them. Their entire Christian life is made up of gloom, and they seem to cultivate that spiritual despondency, when I will undertake to say that in nine cases out of ten spiritual despondency is a judgment of God upon idleness. Who are the happy people in the church to-day? The busy people. Show me a man who professes the religion of Jesus Christ and is idle, and I will show you an unhappy man. The very first prescription that I give to a man when I find him full of doubts and fears about his eternal interest is to go to work for God. Ten thousand voices are lifted up asking for your help. Go and help. Here is a wood full of summer insects. An axeman goes into the wood to cut firewood. The insects do not bother him very much, and every stroke of the ax makes them fly away. But let a man go and lie down there and he is bitten and mauled, and thinks it is a horrible thing to stay in the wood. Why does he not take an ax and go to work? So there are thousands of Christians now in the church who go out amid great annoyances in life—they are perplexed, they are all the time busy; while there are others who do nothing and they are stung and stung and covered from head to foot with the blotches of idleness and inactivity, and spiritual death.

There is a fountain filled with blood,
Drawn from Immanuel's veins;
And sinners plunged beneath that flood,
Lose all their guilty stains.

The dying thief rejoiced to see,
That fountain in his day;
And there may I, though vile as he,
"Wash all my sins away."

KILLED AT PRAYER.

Lightning Strikes Two Churches Killing Fifteen Worshipers.

Madrid cable: Terrific thunderstorms prevailed in various parts of Spain and heavy loss of life and injury by lightning is reported. The electricity appeared to pick out the churches as the objects on which to show its power, and, unfortunately, it did so while the services were in progress. At Melias in the province of Grouse, the parish church was crowded with worshippers attending mass when the storm burst. Though the peals of thunder were very loud and the flashes of lightning extremely vivid, not much attention was paid to the storm at first. Suddenly a flash of lightning, blinding in its intensity, accompanied by a terrific crash of thunder, caused the worshippers to spring to their feet in fear.

The utmost confusion prevailed. Finally, when order was restored, the congregation were horrified to find that 10 of their number had been struck by the lightning and instantly killed, and that 28 others had been seriously injured. When this became generally known the people were panic-stricken and rushed from the church into the pelting storm.

An almost similar scene occurred at Mucientes, in the province of Valladolid. The church in that village was also struck by lightning. Five of the worshippers were killed and 10 injured. At Burgos, capital of the province of that name, considerable damage was done to the famous old cathedral by the lightning. The Burgos Cathedral is one of the oldest buildings in Spain, having been founded in 1071 and finished in 1067. Nobody in the cathedral was hurt.

SOUGHT GRANT'S PROTECTION.

Three People, Who Sought Shelter in Grant's Monument, Killed by Lightning.

Three persons were killed, two seriously injured and the Grant monument slightly damaged in a short but fierce thunderstorm which visited Chicago. The killed are:

- LEWIS MEYER.
- Mrs. SHELDON, of Chicago.
- AN UNKNOWN MAN.
- The injured are:
- HARRY PHILLIPS.
- MISS MARY DESEN.

The catastrophe was the result of a bolt of lightning which struck the monument in the corridors of which nearly 50 persons had sought shelter. At the first signs of the approaching storm Lincoln Park, in which the monument stands, was covered with people who had prepared to enjoy the cool of the evening.

The storm began with a slight shower, which rapidly developed into a small hurricane, accompanied by a downpour of rain, vivid flashes of lightning and terrific peals of thunder. When its fury was at its height a blinding flash struck the statue, taking its course directly through the little crowd who had sought safety in its enclosures. Everybody with the exception of three men were thrown to the ground, but all were uninjured except those named. The bolt did not strike the bronze figure of Grant, and the damage to the monument will be covered by a few dollars.

PRINCE MIKE ON TRIAL.

Big Crowds Flock to the Court Room to Hear the Racy Testimony.

The trial of Michael K. Mills, who, owing to the public sentiment and general ill-feeling prevailing against him in Detroit, was granted a change of venue to Washtenaw county, has commenced in the circuit court at Ann Arbor. Judge Edward D. Kinne presided. For the prosecution appeared Samuel W. Burroughs and Assistant Oscar M. Springer. The attorneys for the defense are Colonel John Atkinson, his law partner, E. L. Broke, both of Detroit, and A. T. Kearney, one of the foremost members of the Ann Arbor bar.

The charge upon which Michael Mills is being tried is that of carnally knowing a female between the ages of 14 and 16 years. The complainant is Bernice Bechel, 14 years of age, who was for some time an inmate of the "Godhouse" at the Israélite colony on Hamlin avenue, Detroit.

Grant Force, a teamster, employed at Commer's lumber camp, while trying to guide a pair of loaded logging wheels down a hill, slipped and fell beneath the load, the rear end of which struck him on the head fracturing his skull.

PARSHALLVILLE.

Rev. Wright returned from Whitmore lake on Thursday last.

Mr. Day picked over 40 bushels of strawberries from his patch on Monday. They are very fine this year.

F. L. Andrews, of Pinckney, visited his father and mother, and called on many of his friends here the past week.

The children's day exercises which were held here were a grand success. The little folks fairly outdid themselves.

Old Mrs. Dormire, who has been sick died last Thursday. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Wright on Saturday at the Tyrone M. E. church.

A number of the friends of Miss Blanche Avery gave her a pleasant surprise one evening last week. All report a fine time. Miss Avery gave a birthday party on Saturday afternoon.

Mesdames Knapp and Andrews, of Howell, gave short talks on temperance at the Baptist church on Sunday afternoon and then organized a W. C. T. U. society. Mrs. Andrews is the president of the county W. C. T. U.

The mill at this place is doing a rushing business now. Although they had the bad luck to break part of the machinery last week everything is in running shape again and Mr. Wolverton is trying to catch up with orders. The mill is doing a better business than it has done in many years.

Michael Says:

"I desire by the strength of God, to bear whatever burden may be laid on me for my people of God."

From the lips of a genuine martyr about to suffer for the truth's sake those would be affecting words. Coming from a polluted, hypocritical wretch as they did, who was about to receive a five-years' sentence for a crime which is named only in low breath, they are words which add blasphemy to the original crime. Prince Michael has permitted himself to become confused concerning the identity of the people of God. The people of the State of Michigan have assumed that God's people must not be defiled, and they have specially included in that sacred family all female infants under 16 years of age.

The conviction and sentence of Mike Mills vindicate certain moral decencies in the State of Michigan, and they are wholly just. It is difficult to understand how the convict's attorneys could hope for anything in a change of venue. The facts of the case were too clear to be seriously doubted, and the moral sense of this whole state is a unit on the horrible nature of Michael's crime. Religious liberty in this country does not extend to the right to commit crime in the name of the Lord.

The imposition of the maximum sentence in this case will give universal satisfaction, because it is fully deserved.—Times.

WALKING FISH.

They Have the Power of Using the Fins as Feet or Legs.

The ability of a fish to retain its vitality out of water depends in a great degree upon its ability to keep the delicate tissues of its gills wet, and this ability is increased in a few species by means of a peculiar construction in the head, in which water is retained after the fish is taken out of a river or lake; the gills being kept wet by percolation from this reservoir. Some such species have also the power of using the lower fins as feet or legs. The Youth's Companion says are enabled by these two singular gifts of nature to pass over land from one body of water to another.

A correspondent in Province Wellesley—as quoted in the "American Angler's Book"—relates that while passing along during a shower of rain, the wide sandy plain which bounds the sea coast in the neighborhood of Panaga, he witnessed a singular overland migration of Ikan Puyu, from a chain of fresh water lagoons toward a second chain of lagoons, about 100 yards distant.

The fish were in groups of from three to seven, and were pursuing their way in a direct line, at the rate of nearly a mile an hour. When disturbed they turned and made an effort to make their way back to the lagoon they had left, and would very soon have reached it, had they not been secured by the Malays who accompanied the teller of the story, and who looked upon the migration as an ordinary occurrence at that season of the year.

Upward of twenty were thus taken during a walk of about half a mile, and no doubt many more could have been obtained had the Malays been given time.

The ground these fish were traversing was nearly level and only scantily clothed with grass and creeping plants, which offered very slight obstruction to their progress.

Sir Emerson Tennent mentions the fact that he has seen fishes walking across the country. In India a writer speaks of fish that, by making an extraordinary use of their fins, can climb trees.

The NEW WAY

There is an old saying that there is nothing new under the sun. We want to tell you that there is something new, and it's very new, too. It is the new way to the Summer Resorts, Petoskey, Bay View and Charlevoix, and one that will prove to be as popular a means of reaching them as the places are popular in themselves. From all parts of the country come every year—the number increasing—as the resorts become better known—a throng of tourists, some bent on pleasure only, and going from one resort to another, enjoying to the utmost the pleasures afforded by each. Others go to some favored place, spending the hot months in quiet rest and regaining the health and strength impaired by too close attention to business and the cares of every day life.

But everybody knows of the advantages to be derived from a vacation spent among the woods and lakes of Northern Michigan, and our object now is to tell you of the "New Way" to reach them.

The extension of the popular Chicago & West Michigan Railway is now completed, the new line running from Traverse City, through Charlevoix, to Petoskey to Bay View, a distance of seventy-five miles through magnificent forests and along the shores of beautiful lakes and rivers. Passing directly in front of the two resorts of Charlevoix (one of the most delightful places for a summer home of the many in that region) the road, a few miles further on, strikes the shore of little Traverse Bay, which, almost at the water's edge it follows into Petoskey and Bay View.

Through train service will be commenced via the new route on June 26, and with the excellent service and fast time, which will be a special feature, "The New Way" cannot fail to prove a popular one with travelers.

Through parlor and sleeping cars run from Chicago via the West Michigan and from Detroit via the other line of this system, the Detroit, Lansing & Northern R. R., to Grand Rapids, thence via the C. & W. M. R. Y. to Petoskey, through Traverse City and Charlevoix.

Try the "New Way" this year, and be convinced that it is a good one. 253w Geo. DeHaven, G. P. A.
