FROM SCHOOL LIFE

TO LIFE'S SCHOOL.

Pinckney High School Stiff
To the Front.

As usual the Pinckney High School comes to the front with a class of graduates. Although the class only numbered two, the exercises were excellent and "We Two" (too) are to be congratulated on their success.

The exercises were held in the opera house on Wednesday evening of last week and fully 500 people listened to the excellent program and went away entirely satisfied. Although the speaker, Jason E. Hammond, State Superintendent of Public Instruction engaged early in the season for the occasion, went back on them at almost the last moment, his place was better filled by one of the graduates and an address by Rev. Fr. Comerford and no one was the loser except Prof. Hammond himself.

The following excellent program was rendered:

"Bell of Kootenay,"	Rev. M. H. McMahon.
"Invocation,"	Emerson Quartette.
"The Water Mill,"	Anna B. Miller.
Class History,	Amelia Clark.
Piano Solo, "Glistening Spray,"	Julia L. Benedict.
Locking Forward,	Orchestra.
"Crown's Folly,"	Prof. W. A. Sprunt.
Presentation of Diplomas,	Orchestra.
"Anita,"	Rev. Fr. Comerford.
"Pleasanties,"	Orchestra.
Presentation of Gifts by the Giftorian,	Julia L. Benedict.
"Under the Mistletoe,"	Orchestra.
Benediction,	Rev. M. H. McMahon.
"Pleasanties on Parade,"	Orchestra.

FUNDED PARAGRAPHS FIGHTED VIOLENTLY.

Republican State Convention of Ohio. Representative, Gov. Bushnell, Senator Hanna, A. Hanna Indicated as the Candidate for Senator.

The Ohio Republican state convention opened at Toledo with over 4,000 people present and a big fight on hand. It has been the custom for the head of the state ticket in Ohio to name the chairman of the state executive committee and thus Gov. Bushnell desired to re-elect the present chairman, Chas. L. Kurtz, but Senator Hanna wanted Maj. Chas. W. Dick, secretary of the national Republican committee, to be chairman and it was on this that the fight came up. Gov. Bushnell was supported by the Foraker followers, but in the meetings of the delegates by congressional districts Mr. Hanna won more than two to one. With this victory assured it was decided to postpone the formality of naming the chairman for two weeks, but Maj. Dick is sure to receive the honor.

With this showing of how completely Senator Hanna controlled the convention the other business was transacted without further trouble. Hon. H. P. Crouse, chairman of the state central committee, introduced Gen. Chas. H. Grosvenor as temporary chairman of the convention, and after a speech by Mr. Grosvenor, the new state central committee and the committee on resolutions were named and adjournment was taken for the day.

The second day's work was finished up in comparatively short order. The temporary officers, Mr. Grosvenor as chairman, and John R. Malloy secretary, were made permanent. The platform adopted is in substance as follows: The Republicans of Ohio rejoice in the magnificent victory of last year, whereby the people of the United States overwhelmingly decided in favor of an honest dollar and a chance to earn it, and elected as President that splendid son of Ohio, Wm. McKinley. We extend our sympathy to the patriots of Cuba in their efforts to achieve freedom, and we hope that the day of their deliverance is near at hand. We believe that the administration is negotiating the treaty for the annexation of Hawaii with a view to the violation of the civil service act by President Cleveland, and demand that the administration be removed from office.

The mention of Senator Hanna's name was greeted with loud demonstrations and he was called for. He thanked the convention for this expression of confidence and pledged himself to co-operate with the standard bearer for Republican success in Ohio. He discussed the pending tariff bill at length and paid a high tribute to President McKinley's efforts to bring about prosperity and the best possible conditions for the country.

Nominations were then made as follows: Governor, Asa S. Bushnell; lieutenant-governor, A. W. Jones; supreme judge, Jacob F. Barrett; attorney-general, Frank Monnette; state treasurer, Samuel Campbell.

Immediately after the adjournment of the convention the new state central committee organized, with Harry M. Daugherty as chairman, and Peter Durr as secretary.

McKinley to Push his Antismoking Treaty. President McKinley has determined to revive the abandoned treaty of general arbitration between the United States and Great Britain and under the direction of Secretary Sherman the matter has progressed to the extent that a new treaty already has been drafted to serve as the basis of negotiations. However, it is not in contemplation that the treaty will be submitted to the senate before next December. The attitude of the new senate toward a new treaty will be fully ascertained and understood before the treaty is signed. It is understood that the initiative in the present case will be taken by the government. The failure of the former treaty by the action of the senate left the subject in such condition that the British government did not feel disposed to renew negotiations, unless first invited by the United States.

A big cattle ranch will be started in the northwestern part of Cassia county.

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER.

ST. FRANCIS SCOTT KEY.
 O say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
 What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming—
 Whose broad stripes and bright stars,
 through the clouds of the fight,
 O'er the ramparts we watch'd were so gallantly streaming?
 And the rocket's red glare, the bombs
 bursting in air,
 Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there;
 O say, does that star-spangled banner
 yet wave
 O'er the land of the free and the home
 of the brave?
 On that shore dimly seen through the mists of the deep,
 Where the foe's haughty host in dread
 silence reposes,
 What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
 As it fitfully blows, now conceals, now
 discloses?
 Now it catches the gleam of the morn-ing's first beam,
 In full glory reflected now shines on the stream,
 'Tis the star-spangled banner; O long may it wave
 O'er the land of the free and the home
 of the brave!

And where is that band who so vauntingly swore
That the havoc of war and the battle's
confusion,
A home and a country should leave us
no more?
Their blood has washed out their foul steeds' pollution
No refuge could save the hireling and slave
From the terror of flight or the gloom
of the grave;
And the star-spangled banner in triumph doth wave
O'er the land of the free and the home
of the brave.

O! thus be it ever, when freemen shall stand Between their loved homes and the war's desolation!
Blest with victory and peace, may the heav'n-secured land Praise the power that hath made and preserved us a nation.
Then conquer we must, when our cause
it is just,
And this be our motto—"In God is our trust!"
And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home
of the brave.

On January 3, 1862, The Hon. Jos. R. Polineett, a native of South Carolina, and one of her most gifted sons, during the latter part of the administration of John Quincy Adams, it will be remembered, represented the United States at the capital of Mexico, which was then much distracted by internal dissensions. While Mr. Polineett resided there, the city was captured by one of the warring factions, and he and his family incurred no small degree of personal danger from the violence of the soldiers, by which they were suspected of affording concealment to certain obnoxious individuals. In the height of the anti-slavery controversy after his return, he had an address delivered to the people of Charleston, the following eloquent

"Wherever I have been, I have been proud of being a citizen of this great republic, and, in the remotest corners of the earth, have walked erect and secure under that banner which our opponents would tear down and trample under foot. I was in Mexico when that city was taken by assault. The house of the American ambassador was then, as it ought to be, the refuge of the distressed and persecuted, it was pointed out to the infuriated soldiers as a place filled with their enemies. They rushed to the attack. My only defence was the flag of my country, and it was snatched out. At the instant, that hundreds of muskets were leveled at us. Mr. Mason, and myself placed ourselves beneath the waving folds. We did not blench; for we felt strong in the protecting arm of this mighty republic. We told them that the flag that waved over us was the banner of that nation to whose emblems they owed their liberty, and to whose protection they were indebted for their safety. The scene changed us by enchantment, and the same men who were on the point of attacking my house and menacing the inhabitants, cheered the flag of this country, and placed sentinels to protect it from outrage. Fellow-citizens, in such a moment as that, would it have been any protection to me and mine to have proclaimed myself a Carolinian? Should I have been here to tell you this, and if I had hung out the Palmetto and the single star? Be assured that to be respected abroad, we must maintain our place in the union."

BIRTH OF

IRVING LAMB
JULY

VEH memorable and glorious fourth. The sun
 went down last night beyond the hills. Was an Olympian chariot, with
 unfurled streamers,
 gliding up golden clouds behind its wheels. Along the way, flanked the heavy drapery of retiring day, and the horizon, glowing with the prophetic glory of the coming morn. Nature braced her sides for ten thousand successive convulsions of gunpowder, and the atmosphere cleared itself in ominous purgations for considerable smoke. Yesterday, "Warren West came to Dunsmuir," at to town, and began to stand up again, before booths and beer shops. Pine, cedar, spruce, all look spruce, and straight, and natural, as though trying to make people believe they sprang up and grew of Jonah. If another Macbeth may take no alarm, Delavan and his army may, in prospect of Macbethian commemorations.

At eleven o'clock last night, was heard the first preludes of the great day, in the sound of the crickets, scyllas and scorpions, serpents and snakes. The big serpents, snakes and scorpions the ancient people, but without a brazen serpent to cure the bitten. All the poles bear flags, instead, whose stripes and stars indicate a union of a universal nation, that sort of nationalism which ends capitalism in torpedoes and navy-winged reptiles.

The booming cannon at midnight ushers in the evening anniversary,
and now

"Go sleep till morn," or thereafter? You begin to dream of the olden-time that "wild souls," when men started from their couches at the sawp of a foreign lion; and thereon—your window goes off a gun, or something worse. You console yourself. However, with the thought this may be the first and the last salutation so near at hand; and with this reflection you are falling into a delicious lapse, when, bang!—another is heard, nearer still. And such another?
You listen, and wonder whether the instrument burst or not, almost hoping it did, in order to terminate this serenade of thunder. Well, you about conclude an actual explosion took place, and you begin to fear the juvenile Jupiter has been kicked over and wounded in the cause of his country. In your sympathy for the fallen patriot, you listen anew, and are tempted to turn out to his relief, when—by the shadow of Elbe, and all his subterranean armory!—right under your window, balloos, such another gunpowder fufmination as you never expect to hear again. No matter, however, for the occasion gives moment to the most trifling circumstances; and you feel reminded with thoughts on the bleakness of liberty. Yet, with a remnant of desperation, you wish all the sulphur and saltpetre of the under kingdom thrust into some piece of artillery, like that which Milton ascribes to the inventive genius of Satan, and touched off at once and forever.

But the sun is up, and the "rock-ribbed hills" tremble at dawn with the boom of a hundred cannonading echoes. From yonder tall staff streams the banner high and gay in the morning light and breeze—a ribbon sail strung out from the fleecy cloud on which the angel of freedom rides in the heavens over the nations of earth. Angel of Columbia, weep, not! for though millions beneath thee groan, yet a little while longer, and the shout that rises from Maine to Oregon shall be the shout of a race redeemed from the last bond. Now mellowly mingles the sound of martial music with the morning air—gay troops march, with gay plumes and glistening arms, along the thoroughfare, as proud of themselves as the boys are who march by their side, in anarchical file, keeping time with life and drum. Room, room, now, for the land-sons of Neptune, with coats of many hues and Joseph shirts, dragging their tridents behind, trimmed and trusty for the raging conflagration. And then comes Flora, with her fairy band, decked in green and blossom array, moving onward in gentle and smiling procession; like a feverish flame, glowing down the main stream, to the music of nymphs and the tripping of Eden-waters. The thrilling in joyous peal, and each stroke of the mallet thrills the tramping multitude with a shock of indelible enthusiasm. Great thoughts of the glory and greatness of the country swell in many a bosom, wholly unused to any extraordinary emotions. With what profound awe and admiration does that youth stand yonder in the street, now widely gazing, with awe, and warmth wide open, first at the crowd, and then at the banners, strung from chimney to chimney, and simple to simple! The town folk take him to be an amiable vegetable, just because he wears what he pleases—boots for service, more than for squeaking—coat, bob-skirted and gray, rather than ruddy-fleecing, and a bell-crowned hat, capricious enough to hold all the finger-ends he can afford to purchase. Well, if he has no right to look as he pleases, nor to thrust his hands deep into his pockets, in support of the independent indifference of his passion, and on such a day, of what avail are all the boasted privileges of the country?

the shops and factories have turned out their flaunting troops of fashion and beauty—long processions, streaming with pennant and bегrimed with clouds of the mother element, are completing their wondrous circuits through the populous streets. Squads of juvenile followers have fallen out, and musical instruments begin to sound as though that evening legends of desecrated graves and war-mare liquid martial melody were in need of some sort of liquid transmittance. The vid members of the procession, having ended their journey, stand quite at ease, converting their hands into fans, and, considering the circumstances, look with very cool complacency upon the unfortunate ones who are left to bring up the rear. Soda fountains and small beer establishments are now in the height of operation. Phis!—crack!—popple!—popple! and expelled stopples go whizzing and booming from the foaming muzzies of angry bottles, how glad to break loose and take revenge for past confinement. A thousand throats are gurgling the delicious liquids, and twice that number of lips are smacking, expressive of grateful satisfaction, much to the aggravation of innumerable youngsters who stand looking on, mournful from the want of a few coppers, to enjoy similar indulgences.

Beneath, backing pavilions, in crowded halls, or happily in the green grove, at last gather the eager host. Fans flit like swarms of cooling phantoms before glowing faces, and the orator of the day opens with the ominous "Fellowcitizens!" For an hour he sines and soars, generalizes from Rome to Plymouth, and becomes lost in the immensity of themes. But now the grand festival is at hand. Toasts, music, cheers—and, then, there is no calculating how easily the responsibilities of the country weigh upon the minds of the well-feasted multitude.

The day declines and the sun hovers
In the west like a Roman candle, flinging
His heavy light over the hills. Or,
There it glared, with a great red eye,
Towards the east, as though winking
In defiance of the monarchical powers Beyond the Atlantic. The streets begin to echo the tread of flagging feet.
Day pales into twilight, and, as 'the western star comes out, a rocket ascends to greet it, and mock its distance.
As darkness creeps over the landscape, lawns and parks darken with human throngs; while windows, balconies and housetops tremble under the weight of pyrotechnical gasers.
Shout after shout rises through the smoky air like the murmurings of the sea, as the heavens glow with eccentric fires, in mimicry of the fireworks of the armament. But the hour has gone by, and in the gloom of night the weary wanderers lie to their homes.
Silence and darkness draw their curtains over a sleeping nation, while dreams of the departed day still linger around. Morning will soon come again, and call forth the tolling millions to the heat and burden of a weary day. But sleep now in peace, ye suffering sons and daughters of Mannandom! and dream ye of a liberty not your own, though a name dear, and adored by hearts of Columbians soil!
Sad and solemn the scene of exaltated multitudes, yet ever glorious with prophecy is the jubilee of an American Fourth.

An Island Domain.

THE HAWAIIANS, THEIR CLIMATE, THEIR COUNTRY, THEIR HISTORY.

We clip the following from the Ann Arbor Argus which will be read with interest at this time:

The Hawaiian Islands comprise an archipelago in the Pacific Ocean about 3,500 miles west of Mexico and 2,700 miles southwest of San Francisco. They lie between latitudes 18 degrees and 51 minutes and 22 degrees 50 minutes north longitudes 154 degrees 50 minutes and 161 degrees 40 minutes west. There are twelve of them, covering an area of 6,677 sq. miles. There are two active volcanoes on this island—Bilauea and Mauna Loa. Many eruptions attended with loss of life, have occurred.

The highest point on Hawaii, Mauna Kea, is 13,905 feet above the sea level, and there are other great altitudes on the island.

The rock of the whole group is volcanic. The following are some of the minerals that have been noticed: Sulphur pyrites, common salt, garnet, labradorite, feldspar, gypsum, soda, alum, copers, glauco-salt, nitre and calcite. The vegetable kingdom is rich in interesting forms, and many new species and varieties have been discovered.

A CLIMATE HOT AND COOL.

The climate is much affected by locality and varies from cool, frosty weather to a high average of heat. The northeast trade winds blow the greater part of the year and prevent the heat from becoming oppressive.

The soil is fertile and well adapted to planting and grazing. It is estimated that there are nearly 2,000,000 acres of grazing land and 290,000 acres of arable land. The mountain sides abound in forests in which there is plenty of ship timber and ornamental woods. Sugar, of course, is the principal product. There were in 1890 between forty and fifty plantations which raised and manufactured about 40,000 tons of sugar, besides quantities of molasses. Wool, hides, tallow, rice and bananas are exported in considerable quantities. Nearly all the crops of temperate climes can be grown but they are not profitable because of lack of markets. In 1890 the value of sugar plantations was estimated at $32,847,690 owned as follows: By citizens of the U. S., $24,735,610; by British, $6,088,130; by Germans, $2,008,600 by Hawaiians, $266,250; by all other nationalities, $299,100. The area of land under sugar cultivation was 67,839 and the exports of sugar were 292,083,580 pounds.

WHO ARE THE HAWAIIANS.

There are two theories as to the origin of the Hawaiians. One contends for their relationship with the Toltec branch of the great Nahoa family of Mexico. This makes the Hawaiians the oldest Polynesian colony, from which the other branches of the family sprang. The other theory supports the hypothesis that all the Pacific archipelagoes and islands were colonized by successive migrations from southern Asia. This theory has the support of the Hawaiian traditions.

In 1891 the real and personal property was estimated at $32,000,000, the public debt was $2,313, 900 and the postal savings bank held deposits of $982,861. The foreign trade was $11,698,270 of which the United States had $15,490,556.

The population in 1890 was 89,990. The natives were 34,486; half-castes, 6,186; born in Hawaii of foreign parents, 7,495; Chinese 15,301; Japanese, 12,360; Portuguese, 8,602; natives of the United States, 1,928; British, 1,344; Germans, 1,034; Norwegians, 227; French, 70; Polynesians, 588; other foreigners, 419.

WHEN THEY WERE FOUND.

The islands were discovered in 1542 by a Spanish navigator named Gaetano. Long before this several Spanish vessels, had been wrecked on the coast of Hawaii and the survivors had intermarried with the natives. Captain Cook visited the islands in 1778 sighting the islands of Oahu and Kauai on January and anchoring at Waima, Kauri, January 19. After visiting the island of Niha he sailed for the American coast but returned and was finally killed by the natives.

THE HAWAIIAN FEUDAL SYSTEM.

The Hawaiians at this time supported elaborate feudal system, closely analogous to the system in Europe in Middle Ages. Kamehameha I. was the first king. In 1892 and the two following years Vancouver visited the Hawaiian islands and introduced cattle on May 8, 1819. Kamehameha died after a successful reign in which he had established his kingdom over the whole group. His eldest son, Liholiho succeeded him under the title of Kamehameha II with Kaahumanu widow of Kamehameha I, as Premier, and she in influence and power was the real sovereign. Shortly after, on April 4, 1820 the first missionaries arrived from the United States—seven men with their wives. They immediately began to reduce the language to writing. The first printing was done in 1822. In 1823 the King and Kamamalu his queen visited Great Britain where they both died the year following. Then the Premier became regent and governed until the majority of Kamehameha II, brother of the late King, a period of nine years. In 1825 the Ten Commandments were adopted as laws, and a few criminal laws were enacted in 1827 and 1828. The first Roman Catholic missionaries arrived July 7, 1827. Kamehameha assumed the government in 1825 as Kamehameha III. In 1840 the King and chiefs promulgated the constitution granting civil rights to the people. On February 25, 1849 the provisional cession of the islands to Great Britain occurred in consequence of the harsh demands of Lord George Paulet. This arrangement was terminated by Admiral Thomas on July 31 of the same year. In 1846 Kamehameha III approved the famous Land act by which he released the royal right to a large portion of the lands of the Kingdom and provided for their conveyance to the people.

In 1849 the temporary occupation and embargo of the port of Honolulu by the French took place. In 1852 free suffrage was granted as a civil right. The King died in 1854 and was succeeded by Alexander Liholiho, son of Kinan, the daughter of Kamehameha I. He reigned as Kamehameha IV. Lot Kamehameha brother of the late king, succeeded as Kamehameha V, and abrogated the national constitution and promulgated a new one limiting the right of suffrage by a property qualification. He died

Over Thirty Years Without Sickness.

Mr. H. WETTERSTEIN, a well-known, enterprising citizen of Byron, Ill., writes: "Before I paid much attention to regulating the bowels, I hardly knew a well day; but since I learned the evil results of constipation and the efficacy of AYER'S Pills, I have not had one day's sickness for over thirty years—not one attack that did not readily yield to this remedy. My wife had been, previous to our marriage, an invalid for years. She had a prejudice against cathartics, but as soon as she began to use Ayer's Pills her health was restored."

Dec. 11, 1872 leaving the Kamehameha dynasty extinct. After a four week interregnum, Lunalilo was nominated unanimously by the people and was elected King by the Legislature. His short reign, one year was noted for the institution of measures for the restoration of liberal principles of the old constitution for the unpopular ministerial effort for the commercial reciprocity with the United States on the basis of a cession of the Pearl River Lagoon, and for the bloodless mutiny of the troops at the barracks in Honolulu. Lunalilo died February 3, 1874 and left no issue. On February 12, Kalakaua was elected King by the Legislature notwithstanding the determined opposition of Queen Dowager Emma, which culminated at the election in a riot by her supporters in which many of the representatives were severely injured and the legislative hall was partially demolished. Order was restored by armed forces from British and United States warships in the harbor.

QUEEN LIL APPEARS.

In 1887 the progressive party demanded a new constitution providing for a cabinet removable only by vote of the Legislature. This was accepted by Kalakaua who afterward however tried to regain his lost power. Kalakaua died in January 1891 and was succeeded by his sister, Liliuokalani, who from the first was opposed to the new constitution. Soon she began to evade some of its essential provisions, especially by the repeated appointment of ministries in opposition to the vote of the Legislature and gave further offence by her alliance with a lottery project and the opium industry. Finally it was learned that she intended to proclaim a new constitution. This caused her overthrow. A provisional government was established which finally led to the present republic.

Interesting Items,

Jackson will hold a coldwater celebration on the 5th. All temperance and law-abiding people should patronize it. The Grand Trunk will run special rates for that and the next day.

A wild-eyed, bareheaded individual was seen to take it southward on Clinton street Tuesday afternoon at a century gait, frantically beating a tin pan. He was neither drunk nor crazy. It was the editor vainly endeavoring to corral a swarm of runaway bees. —Stockbridge Sun.

The Dexter marshall lodged four young men, hailing from Detroit, in the village lock-up one night last week for riding their wheels on the walk. They were released the next morning and went to Jackson where they were arrested for stealing three of their wheels from Detroit parties.

G. G. Carter of White Oak had 12 bushels of wheat stolen from his granary. He found it in a neighbor's granary and a young man by the name of DeWitt in the employ of the neighbor, owned up to taking the wheat and leaving it there. He was given time to leave the neighborhood and he left.—Sun.

Fourth of July Excursion Rates.
Excursion tickets will be sold by the Grand Trunk Railway System, leaving out of the Detroit and St. Clair Rivers, July 3, 4, and 5, 1907, good to return up to and including July 6, 1907, at rate of one fare for the round trip between all stations.

It required just five hours to arrest, try, convict and imprison an Ohio postmaster who was $3.38 short in his accounts. The facilities for locking up small thieves are unsurpassed.

Mr. J. R. Hayes, proprietor of the Wayne Hotel, Detroit, recognizing the very popular demand for cheaper hotel rates, not only from the commercial men, but from the traveling public in general, has decided to satisfy this demand in making some radical changes in price by reducing the rates of the Wayne hotel to $2.00 and $2.50 per day and the rooms with bath $3.00; single meals to be 50c. Mr. Hayes wants it thoroughly understood that the reduction in rates will not in any way interfere with the hotel being kept up to the same standard of excellence as in the past.

We are in receipt of the Michigan Farmers' Institute Bulletin No. 3, a book of 275 pages, giving a report of the work done at Farmers' Institutes during the past winter. A large portion of the book is taken up with very interesting and complete reports of the large Round-up Farmers' Institute held at St. Louis last March. In addition to this is a series of lectures on "The Soil" by Dr. R. C. Kedzie of the Agricultural College, which lectures alone are well worth the cost of joining the Institute. In the book are the quotations from many of the best local papers read at the various Institutes. Besides this, there is a complete report of the Superintendent, Conductor and Secretaries of reports from each institute held last winter, together with attendance at each meeting and officers of the different Institute societies. The Superintendent of Institutes informs us that these books will soon be shipped to the Secretaries of the various county Institute societies by whom they will be distributed. Each paid-up member of a county institute society is entitled to and should insist upon receiving from the secretary one of these books. Such members can get their books by calling on the Secretary of our county Institute, Mr. F. J. Fishbeck at Howell.

Dr. Maybe and Mustbe.

You choose the old doctor, before the young one. Why? Because you don't want to entrust your life in inexperienced hands. True, the young doctor may be experienced. But the old doctor must be. You take no chances with Dr. Maybe when Dr. Mustbe is in reach. Same with medicines as with medicine makers—the long-tried remedy has your confidence. You prefer experience to experiment—when you are concerned. The new remedy may be good—but let somebody else prove it. The old remedy must be good—judged on its record of cures. Just one more reason for choosing AYER'S Sarsaparilla in preference to any other. It has been the standard household sarsaparilla for half a century. Its record inspires confidence—50 years of cures. If others may be good, Ayer's Sarsaparilla must be. You take no chances when you take AYER'S Sarsaparilla.

STOP IT NOW!

Stop It Now! Just the same as 184
Mr. Charles H. Hoffman, of 123
Ten Byek Street, Jackson.

If you have a pain in your back, stop it! A lame back, stop it! An aching back, stop it! Do you want to know how? Let us tell you—in the first place, never try to rid yourself of pain without knowing the cause of it. If you are aching, there is a reason for it. Find out the reason and get after it. Sprain, cause a stiff back with the right weapon, and its allies, pain and ache, will flee like chaff before the wind. To get right down to it, back-ache is indicative of kidney disorders, a spy placed there by nature; listen to his warnings and take up the weapon, strike before disease is reinforced with strikes that can not be routed by band of men, such as Bright's disease. Let us introduce to you this weapon. Let us prove its superiority to all others. Here is a blow it strikes.

Mr. Charles H. Hoffman is a farmer on the M. C. R. R. and resides at 123 Ten Byek Street, Jackson, Mich. He says: "I have suffered for a long time from a kidney and bladder disorder which has at times rendered me incapable of work; had been at the hospital for my complaint and discharged from there as cured, but the old complaint has invariably come back again. Some time ago I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I began taking them, with most gratifying results. Urgency complaints which bothered me greatly are very much improved, and the pain I suffered in my back has entirely left me. My general condition is much improved. I would not like to be without Doan's Kidney Pills. I think others should know what a valuable remedy it is."

For sale by all dealers, price 50 cents. Sold by Foster-McBurr Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

It is agreed with the INTERNATIONAL PRESS ASSOCIATION.

CHAPTER II.—(Continued.)
The eyes of the two old men met; the minister flushed slightly, while Solomon's dry lips assumed the shape generally taken when one is about to give a prolonged whistle; but no sound followed.

"Whaur did your reverence find the beirn? On the doortane, did you say?"

The minister nodded. Thereupon Solomon walked over to the chair, put on a pair of brass-rimmed spectacles, and inspected the child much as his master had done, but with prolonged and dubious shakes of the head.

"Laird preserve us a!" he muttered. "Solomon," cried Mr. Lorraine impatiently, "what's to be done?"

Solomon scratched his head, then his face lightened with sudden inspiration, as he answered:

"Put the thing whaur ye found him, on the doortane. Lee' him there—he's nane o' ours. Maybe the mither will come back and take him awa'."

The minister's face flushed indignantly.

"On such a night as this! Solomon Mucklebackit, if you have no more Christian advice than that to offer, you can go back to bed."

Solomon was astonished. Seldom had he seen his master exhibit such authority, tempered with indignation. Not knowing how to reply, he effected a diversion.

"See, sir," he said, still inspecting the child as if it were some curious species of fish, "the cratur's wringing wat'!"

Such was the fact, though it had escaped the minister's agitated scrutiny. The shawl and under-dress of the infant were soaked with rain or melted snow.

"Bless my soul!" cried Lorraine, bending down by Solomon's side; "and its little body is quite cold. Fetch Myrie Simpson at once."

Solomon shook his head. "Myrie's wae," he said, "is her kinsfolk at the mair."

"That's the only one thing to be done," cried Mr. Lorraine, with sudden decision. "We must undress the child at once and put him to bed, and in the morning we can decide how to act. If we leave him like this he will die of cold."

"Put him to bed!" echoed Solomon.

"In my room, Solomon, unless you would like to take him with you."

"Wi' me! I'm no used wi' beirn! I couldna sleep a wink!"

"Then he shall stay with me. Look, Solomon, how pretty he is, how bright his eyes are! Fetch me a blanket at once, and warm it by the fire."

Solomon left the room. The minister lifted the burden in his arms, and sat down by the hearth. Then, nervously and awkwardly, he undid the shawl and put it aside; loosened the baby's outer garments, which were quite wet, and drew them gently off. Then, engaged, the good man was indeed a picture to see—his soft eyes beaming with love and tenderness, his face pensive and troubled, his little plump hands at work with clumsy kindness.

Solomon entered with a blanket, warmed it for a minute at the fire, and then placed it softly under the child, which now lay mother-naked—as sweet and bright a little cherub as ever drew mother's milk.

Suddenly the sexton uttered an exclamation.

"Laird preserve us all. Hivna a man-child ava! It's a wee lassie!"

Mr. Lorraine started, troubled and almost dropped his head; then, hastily, and tenderly, he wrapped the warm blanket around the infant, leaving only his face visible.

"Laird preserve us," he said, "the Lord has left it to our keeping!"

Stooping to the hearth-rug, Solomon lifted from it a tiny chemise which had fallen there, and examined it with ludicrous haste. Suddenly his eyes perceived something which had escaped Mr. Lorraine's nervous gaze. Pinned to the chemise was a piece of paper with some writing upon it.

"Look, meenister!" cried Solomon, explaining the paper and holding it up; "there's a letter addressed to yourself here. Will I read it?"

"Certainly."

Then Solomon read, in his own broad accent, which he will not reproduce, these words, which were written in a clear though tremulous female hand:

"To Mr. Lorraine—By the time you read this, the writer will be lying dead and cold in Annan Water. You are a good man and a clergyman. Keep the child, as a gift of God, and as you see her may God bless you."

That was all. Solomon stammered through the words in horror, while Mr. Lorraine listened in genuine astonishment.

"There, meenister!" exclaimed Solomon, indignantly. "Did I no' tell ye? It's a scandal, an outrage! Keep the beirn, indeed, and a woman-beirn! Absurd notion!"

"Hush, Solomon," interposed the minister solemnly. "I begin to see the hand o' God in this."

Opening the bedclothes, he placed the infant in a cozy spot, and arranged the blankets tenderly around it.

"Look, Solomon! Is she not bonny?" Solomon gave a grunt of doubtful approval.

A word of protest was on the sexton's tongue, but he checked it in time; then with one last stare of amazement, perplexity and surprise he left the room.

"The war's comin' to an en," he muttered, as he ascended the stairs to his room. "A woman-beirn in our house!—a lassie in the minister's ain bed! Weel, weel, weel!"

Meantime, Mr. Lorraine sat by the bedside, looking at the child, who had almost immediately fallen asleep. Presently he reached out his arm and took one of her little hands into his own, and his eyes were dim and his soul was traveling back to the past! Hours passed thus, and he still sat in a dream.

"Mortie, my bonny doo!" he murmured aloud again. "Is this indeed a gift from God—and you?"

CHAPTER III.

FIVE o'clock the next morning, when Solomon Mucklebackit, candle in hand, descended the stairs, he found the minister sitting by the bedside fast asleep, with his gray head resting on the side of the pillow, and his right arm outstretched over the counterpane above the still slumbering child. At the sound of Solomon's entrance, however, Mr. Lorraine awoke at once, rubbed his eyes, and looked in a dazed way around him; then his eyes fell upon the infant, and his face grew bright as sunshine.

"Bless me, meenister! Hae ye been watching here a night?"

"I fell to sleep," was the reply, "and I was dreaming, Solomon, such bonny dreams! I thought that I was up yonder among the angels, and that one of them came to me with a face I well remember—ah, so bright!—and put a little beirn—this beirn—into my arms; and then, as I held the pretty one, a thousand voices sang an old Scotch song, the 'Land o' the Leal.' Dear me!—and it is nearly daybreak, I suppose!"

Solomon did not reply in words, but, pulling up the blind, showed the outer world still dark, but trembling to the first dim rays of wintry dawn, while snow was thickly falling, and the garden was covered with a sheet of virgin white. The minister rose shivering, for the air was bitter cold; his limbs, too, were stiff and chilly.

"What's to be done now?" asked Solomon, gloomily. "I mair awa' as feenish the grave, but Myrie will be here at six."

"I will watch until Myrie comes," answered Mr. Lorraine, then, bending over the bed, he continued: "See, Solomon, my man, how soundly she sleeps, and how pretty she looks."

Solomon grunted and moved toward the door.

"Will I put on the parritch myself?" he demanded. "Ye mair be wanting something after six a night."

"Nothing, nothing. Go on to the kirkyard."

An hour later, when the old woman appeared, having let herself in by a key at the back door, she was at once apprised of the situation. Having learned by old habit to keep her thoughts to herself, and being of kindly disposition, and the mother of a large grown-up family, she at once, without questioning, entered upon her duties as nurse. The child having awakened, crying, she took it up in her arms and hushed it upon her bosom, where it soon became still; then, passing to the kitchen, she warmed some new milk, and fed it with a spoon.

By this time day had broken, and when he had seen the child comfortably cared for, the minister put on his cloak and waited forth to make inquiries.

The village consisted of one straggling street with numerous small cottages, a few poverty-stricken shops, and a one-story tavern. Jack Stevens, who kept the latter, was standing on the threshold with a drowsy stare, having just thrown open the door; and on questioning him Mr. Lorraine gained his first and only piece of information. A woman, strange to the place, had stayed the inn over night, carrying an infant underneath her shawl, and asked for a glass of milk, which she had drunk hastily and flitted away—like a ghost. Her face was partially hidden, but Jack was certain that she was a stranger. Stay! yes, there was something more. She had inquired for the manse, and the inn-keeper had pointed out the direction of the church and the minister's abode.

Further inquiries up and down the village elicited no further information.

Perplexed and weary, the good man trotted back to the manse. Here, in the rudely-furnished kitchen, he found a bright fire burning, his breakfast ready, and Myrie seated by the fireplace with the child in her lap. In voluble conversation with the old sexton.

The wretched mother, whoever she was, had indeed chosen wisely when she had resolved, while determining to abandon her infant, to leave it at the gentle minister's door. Days passed, and in spite of Solomon's protestations, it was still an inmate of the manse. Myrie Simpson understood the rearing process well, and since the child, as she had surmised, had never known the breast, it thrived well upon "the bottle." The minister went and came lightly, as if the burden of twenty years had been taken from his shoulders; had it indeed been his own offspring he could not have been more anxious or more tender. And Solomon Mucklebackit, despite his assumption of sternness and indignation, was secretly sympathetic. He, too, had a tender corner in his heart, which the child's innocent beauty did not fail to touch.

One morning, some seven or eight days after the arrival of the infant, when the storms had blown themselves hoarse, and a dull black thaw had succeeded the falling and drifting snow, news came to the manse that the body of a woman had been found lying on the brink of the Annan, just where its waters meet the wide sands of the Solway, and mingle with the salt stream of the ocean tide. Greatly agitated, Mr. Lorraine mounted his pony, and at once rode along the lonely highway which winds through the flat reaches of the Moss. Arriving close to the great sands, he was directed to a disused outbuilding or barn, belonging to a large sea-faring, and standing some hundred yards above high-water mark. A group of fishermen and peasant men and women were clustered at the door; at his approach the men lifted their hats respectfully, and the women courtesied.

On making inquiries, the minister learned that the body had been discovered at daybreak by some salmon fishers, when netting the river at the morning tide. They had at once given the alarm, and carried "it" up to the dilapidated barn where it was then lying.

The barn was without a door, and partially roofless. Day and night the salt spray of the ocean was blown upon it, incrusting its black sides with a species of filmy salt; and from the dark rafters and down the broken walls hung slimy weeds and mosses; and over it a pack of sea-gulls wheeled and screamed.

The minister took off his hat and entered in bare headed.

Stretched upon the earthen floor was what seemed at first rather a shapeless mass than a human form; a piece of coarse tarpaulin was placed over it, covering it from head to foot. Gently and reverently, Mr. Lorraine drew back a corner of the tarpaulin and revealed as view the disfigured remains of what had once been a living face; but though the features were changed and unrecognizable, and the eye-sockets were empty of their shining orbs, and the mouth disfigured and hidden by foulness, the face was still set in a woman's golden hair.

With the horror deep upon him, the minister trembled and gasped. Then, drawing the covering still lower, he caught a glimpse of the delicate hand, clutched as in the agonies of death; and sparkling on the middle finger thereof was a slender ring of gold.

"God forgive me," he murmured to himself; "if this is the mother of the child, I did her a cruel wrong."

He stood gazing and praying for some time, his eyes were dim with sympathetic tears; then, after regaining the covering reverently, he turned away and passed through the group which clustered, watching him, at the door.

With the exception of the noted World's Fair number of the Cosmopolitan, which reached a price of five dollars a copy after the last edition had been exhausted, no stronger number of this magazine has ever been issued than that for July, 1897. The report of Julian Hawthorne, the special commissioner sent by The Cosmopolitan to India to investigate the horrors of the plague and famine is of an extraordinary character and will open the eyes of the world to conditions which were scarcely suspected. The same number contains what is probably the greatest poem of this quarter of the nineteenth century. This new rendering of Omar Khayyam's Rubaiyat which departs entirely from Fitzgerald's occupies four pages. Amelie Rives reappears as a story-teller for the first time since her marriage with Prince Troubetzkoy. One of the cleverest stories yet from the pen of Robert W. Chambers is given. The remarkable story of the War of the Martians, by Wells, which is attracting the attention both of the scientific and the non-scientific good-story-loving public is continued and there is a fourth story by a 'Buck' elaborately illustrated by the humor of Peter Newell. The educational discussion—this time by Professor Peck of Columbia—the story of "The Every-Day Life of a Sister of Charity" elaborately illustrated; "The Genesis of a Comic Opera" given by Reginald de Koven; President Gilman of the John Hopkins University on "The Bankruptcy of Science" and an interesting story by the Greek who conceived and brought into existence "The Streets of Cairo at the World's Fair" these are some of the contents of this ten-cent magazine.

W. J. Black and family spent Sunday with Munith friends.

If you are going anywhere to enjoy the 3rd of July, why not come to Pinckney and take in a day of sports. A good time is promised.

Ann Arbor expects to do herself proud in a celebration on Saturday next. When the University city undertakes anything of the kind they always succeed.

Today the bill permitting the printing and use of private mailing cards with a one cent stamp affixed will go into effect. The progressive business man will have his own advertisement conspicuously displayed and the printing of millions of cards will be a feature of business. The bill is approved by the post office department as it tends to popularize postal cards, besides affecting a saving to the government of the difference between the cost of cards and the stamps.
