Durand merchants have organized and resolved to advertise in newspapers only. Heretofore, like some other merchants, they advertised in opera house programs, fence corners, or any old scheme, but now they are after the trade and will advertise in newspapers only.

The farmers in the vicinity of Durand have been politely invited to improve the highways or the right of free rural delivery will be taken away from them. Don't ask farmers to build roads now—they are too busy. The rural carriers should work congress.—Democrat.

A letter to the DISPATCH from Ed. T. Kearney of Jackson, Neb., says that he has returned from his six weeks cutting at Minnetonka. He has his own 21 foot gasoline launch in which to ride over the beautiful waters and of course had a good time. His family will remain at the resort until September.

The millers and agricultural papers are advising farmers who have grown wheat not to be in a hurry to thresh it. They advise letting it lay in the straw until cold weather when the berry will be in a much better condition and a higher grade of wheat will be the result. In fact, the best agriculturists advise late threshing for all kinds of grain.

Just as a sample of how the English sparrow thrives it may be interesting to know that in removing a section of cornice, about 30 feet in length, from the Howell High School building nearly five bushels of nests of these little pests were taken out and destroyed. Had the place not been destroyed, just the nests torn down they would all have been rebuilt in a space of two weeks time and another brood soon hatched out.

Uses for the Rubber Stamp.

Labor saving devices are always in demand and the man who thought of rubber stamping outfits had a head that should have made him secretary of the U. S. treasury. However, rubber stamps have their places and occasions for use. If a business man sees fit to daub his letter heads and envelopes with a rubber stamp, thus leading strangers to think there are no printers in this town, he ought to be ostracised. Such a man, when he comes to die ought to have his funeral notice and the usual resolutions of his fraternity printed on a fence board with a rubber stamp. And when he has a baby at his house, or a party, or a son or daughter gets married, or when the neighbors bring in a wedding anniversary donation, a full account of the important events might be printed on packing paper and tacked on the front door. And when he is a candidate for office he might stamp a label to that effect and paste it on the bosom of his trousers. If he has an important advertisement or set before the people he could stamp up a display on some manila paper which would read, "I have for sale at cheaper rates the very same things other folks are advertising in the DISPATCH. Come to study it over there is no end to the use a rubber stamp might be put to in the hands of an energetic, enterprising, up-to-date, economical man."

A little rain Thursday last. Jas. Lyman of Jackson was in town this week on business.

If the time ever comes when people know just what other people think of them there will be quite a lot of embarrassment.

The Linden Leader entered upon its sixth year last week. It is a new sheet and the people of that burg have reason to be proud of the paper.

There is talk of creating the old Allen house at Leshe into a cereal factory. The house never paid as a hotel and it certainly ought to be used to some good end.

A half acre patch of raspberries near Brighton yielded 1,400 quarts of berries this season. At 10 cents per quart this would be $140. A good crop for one-half acre.

Beaten.

At the Anderson Farmer's Club picnic Saturday Aug. 9, North Lake ball team defeated Anderson second team by a score of 14 to 10.

The Anderson first and Isosco played in the afternoon. Isosco won by a score of 9 to 2. An erson boys made a few errors which counted for Isosco every time.

SENATOR McMILLAN DEAD

United States Senator James McMILLAN, of Detroit, Mich., died at 4 o'clock Sunday morning at his summer home, Eagle Head, at Manchester-by-the-Sea, where he has been resting with his family since the close of the last session of congress.

The end came after an illness of but a few hours, and was due to heart failure and congestion of the lungs.

Senator McMILLAN was in his usual good health until Saturday afternoon. For several years, however, he has suffered from a heart affection, principally a weakness brought on by overwork, and has guarded himself against it. However, the extra responsibilities in the senate thrown upon him last winter, when he was placed upon many of the most important committees, including the chairmanship of the District of Columbia committee, together with the shock of losing a brother, son and grandson within one year, were responsible, no doubt, for the trouble which finally ended his days.

Great Lakes Naval Station.

Secretary of the Navy Moody has appointed a board consisting of Rear Admiral Taylor, Lieut. Com. Winslow and Lieut. Rosseau to investigate the available sites for a naval training station soon to be established on the great lakes, and they are expected to reach Detroit between Aug. 10 and Aug. 15.

They go to Chicago first, and will then visit Milwaukee, Duluth, Superior, Detroit, Cleveland, Erie and Buffalo in the order named. Several other places in Michigan beside Detroit will be visited, among them Muskegon and Charlevoix. The navy department wants for the station a piece of land not less than 100 acres nor more than 500 acres in extent. An island is most desired, but failing to procure an island the board wants to pick out land on a peninsula or point which could be easily isolated.

Deep water must be near at hand and climatic conditions must be good.

Eleven Were Injured.

A flange on a wheel of the smoking car on an Ann Arbor line excursion train broke six miles north of Cadillac Sunday morning while the train was running 35 miles an hour, and in the wreck that followed 11 people were hurt.

The train was bound from Durand to Crystal Lake and Frankfort. There were 11 coaches in the train and five left the track.

The engine slanted across the track and the tender and two coaches went over on their sides, three other coaches remaining standing and off the track. There is a swamp on both sides of the track.

A relief train was sent with doctors. The excursionists spent the day in Cadillac with the exception of a few. A train was sent out from Frankfort to meet the other at the wreck. A track has been built around and the trains are running.

What Does It Mean?

About three years ago S. L. Sloan, of Detroit, came all the way from Detroit and made a brutal assault on Horace Johnson in his store at Merrill, Saginaw county. Sloan was convicted in the Circuit Court in Saginaw, but was recently released from prison, clemency being granted by the prison board.

Horace Johnson and his brother, E. E. Johnson, on Tuesday received telegrams from Sloan, which read: "Are you ready to repent and ask to be forgiven? Please answer, as it is important."

The matter was laid before Prosecuting Attorney O'Keefe. Horace Johnson regards the telegram in the sense of a threat, or an evidence of an unbalanced mind.

McGarry Goes South.

Thomas F. McGarry, the lawyer who was mixed up in the water supply scandal and was convicted on the charge, has quit Grand Rapids. The law firm of McGarry & McGarry, composed of himself and his brother W. R., has been dissolved. W. R. McGarry will open an office in Chicago shortly, and T. F. McGarry has shipped his office furniture to Jacksonville, Fla. Thomas McGarry is now on bail pending a sixty days' stay of proceedings, granted immediately after his conviction. This period is up next week, but further time will be asked for, as the prosecutor has not yet completed his answer to the bill of exceptions filed by McGarry's attorneys.

The Condition of the Crops.

The weekly crop bulletin issued Tuesday says that weather conditions last week were favorable for harvest work. Although much hay has been spoiled by rains, a fairly good yield has been secured. The warm, bright weather has made a marked improvement in corn, but the crop is still backward and rather weedy. Beans have somewhat improved, but are still in poor condition and need cultivation. Early potatoes are ripening and are yielding fairly well. Late potatoes indicate a light crop, as much of the seed has rotted. Oats have been ripening rapidly, and they have a fine stand, although in some localities they are badly lodged, but a good yield is indicated.

Marked the Footpad.

As Ransom N. Parshall, the wealthy proprietor of the Owosso City Mills, was going home late Tuesday night, he reached a dark place on West Main street, when a footpad grabbed him. Parshall had been whittling a stick with a large jack-knife, and promptly sunk the blade full length in the man's arm. The fellow turned and fled, Parshall after him, shouting for the police. He followed his assailant two blocks, but the fellow was too swift for him and got away.

The Sixth's Reunion.

The twenty-ninth reunion of the Sixth Michigan Infantry and Heavy Artillery was held in Charlotte, Tuesday, about 75 members and their wives being present. Maj. Soule, of Ann Arbor, and Dr. Milton Chase, of Otsego, who have been president and secretary since the first reunion was held, were re-elected. Capt. H. Montgomery, who has not been present in 20 years, came all the way from Cedar Point, Kas., to attend. It has been the custom for several years for Company H to hold annual reunions in Charlotte, August 5, the anniversary of the battle of Baton Rouge, in which struggle Company H, of the Sixth Michigan, took a very prominent part.

KING EDWARD CROWNED

Edward VII, R. L. by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and British dominion beyond the seas, king, defender of the faith, emperor of India, was crowned without hitch or harm August 6th, and London noisily celebrated the event for which the world has waited as, perhaps, it never awaited any other coronation.

In all respects the celebration was impressive, and it was carried out with a perfection of detail and lack of accidents that has rarely characterized similar displays. That pride of empire which marked Queen Victoria's jubilee was lacking; and in its stead there pervaded all classes a keen recollection that only six weeks ago their king lay in danger of death, and this produced thankfulness and genuine sympathy for the man rather than adulation of the king. This feeling was voiced by the archbishop of Canterbury when he inserted in one of the coronation prayers, the words "for whose recovery we now give Thee heartfelt thanks." Yet this did not prevent the public from voicing appreciation of such military display as the short procession gave them a chance to see.

In Westminster abbey the scene was nothing less than marvelous. Nearly 7,000 members of the nobility, the clergy and the gentry had gathered, with foreign princes, ambassadors, colonial rulers, Indian potentates and leaders from the farthest quarters of the globe where the union jack flies, to do honor to the king. Two incidents in the service in the abbey will live in the memory of all who witnessed them. The first of these, which almost developed into a dramatic contretemps, centered around the aged archbishop of Canterbury.

From the commencement of the service the archbishop had the greatest difficulty in reading or remembering the prayers. The book from which his almost blind eyes endeavored to read shook in his hands, and when he came to place the crown upon King Edward's head, his huge frame, towering above the seated king, swayed so violently that the bishop of Winchester had to support him, while the dean of Westminster put a guarding hand under the crown.

Archbishop Almost Fainted. A few minutes later came the climax of his feebleness. He was kneeling to do the first homage of all the subjects of the king, when suddenly he almost fainted and would have fallen upon his sovereign's knees had not King Edward tenderly but firmly grasped the prelate's hands and lifted him to his feet. The bishops of London, Winchester and Durham clasped their arms around the archbishop of Canterbury, the king kissed his wrinkled hand, the archbishop's head fell back, his feet moved stowily and mechanically, and thus he was more carried than led from the throne of King Edward's chapel, where he was revived.

The tremor which this event caused had scarcely subsided when another exquisitely human touch, varied the proceedings, and the king was forgotten in the father. Instead of merely accepting the homage of the prince of Wales, King Edward put his arms around the prince and kissed him, and then recalled him and wrung his hand with a manliness of parental affection that brought tears to many eyes.

Another incident relating to royalty was the presence of the duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, who at the express desire of Queen Alexandra, sat at exactly the same spot as she occupied at the coronation of Queen Victoria.

Crowning of Queen.

The queen then rose and accompanied by her entourage proceeded to the altar steps where, under a pall of cloth-of-gold, she was quickly crowned by the archbishop of York, supported by the bishops. She was then led to the throne beside that in which the king sat and her enthronization was accomplished. The queen bowed to King Edward, and both walked to the altar and received the communion, after delivering their crowns to the lord great chamberlain and another officer appointed to hold them.

The pages, while their majesties knelt, still held the queen's magnificent long train with the rest of the nobles present kneeling. The whole spectacle was most impressive and was made more brilliant owing to the electric light.

By a great effort the archbishop of Canterbury was enabled to conclude the service and the king and queen repaired to St. Edward's chapel. Neither of their majesties returned to their thrones after the communion, but remained at the altar. The service, which was completed with the singing of the Te Deum, was brought to a close without a hitch. The king exhibited no outward traces of fatigue.

Until a very late hour dense crowds paraded the main streets of London through which vehicular traffic was forbidden, and watched the illuminations. The royal residences, the clubs, the Canadian arch, the Mansion house and the Bank of England, the electric and gas displays of which were particularly noticeable, were all surrounded by thousands of persons who for the most part were orderly.

The United States battleship Illinois at Chatham dock yard was decorated. Throughout the United Kingdom the cities were illuminated and enthusiastic demonstrations were held.

A Ghastly Find.

The dead body of a woman, entirely nude, in advanced stage of decomposition and apparently the victim of some atrocious crime, was discovered in the weeds near Seventy-fourth and State streets, Chicago, Thursday night. The location is a broad expanse of prairie overgrown with weeds as high as a man's head.

The scalp was torn away from the front part of the skull. At the back of the head hung black hair, but the woman's features were no longer recognizable. It is thought the body had been where it was found for at least three weeks.

The police are of the opinion that the woman was murdered at some distant point and carted out on the prairie.

Are the Boers Plotting?

The correspondent of the Daily Mail at The Hague says it is becoming increasingly difficult to combat the generally accepted Dutch theory that the Boer leaders are campaigning toward the ultimate subversion of British rule in South Africa.

The Boer general, Lucas Meyer, who has just reached Holland from London, instead of going to Germany, has stopped at The Hague, and is going to visit Kruger, while several other prominent Boer leaders are assembling there. Nobody at The Hague, continues the correspondent, believes their story that their mission is to collect funds for the Boer widows.

Funston Is Ill.

Brig.-Gen. Funston, commander of the department of the Colorado, is ill. The attack came upon him suddenly at his office at army headquarters. The trouble is thought to be the lingering effects of the fever from which Funston suffered in Cuba and the Philippines, and which has at different times impaired his health. Fears are also entertained that an abscess has formed around the unhealed portion of the wound made by the operation for appendicitis which the general underwent before coming to Colorado, and that another operation will be necessary.

Thousands of New Pensioners.

Commissioner of Pensions Ware says that legislation enacted by the last session of congress will result in at least 10,000 new pensioners. The number of pensioners on July 1 of this year was 699,440. This shows a steady growth of the roll for a number of years. Commissioner Ware said today that this growth was accounted for by the constant new pension legislation by congress.

The Cuban Tariff Bill.

The bill passed by the Cuban congress to provide for a loan of $35,000,000 to be used to aid the sugar planters to pay the revolutionary army, provides that the duties on the following articles be raised: That on coal, 25 per cent; tallow, 50 per cent; common soap, 150 per cent; pine timber, 40 per cent; chickens, 100 per cent; canned meat, 50 per cent; fresh meat and mutton, 50 per cent; pork, 100 per cent; salt beef, 50 per cent; the present duty on jerked beef is to be raised 50 per cent and may be raised 100 per cent should this be found necessary; bacon, 100 per cent; hams, 50 per cent; lard, cheese, condensed milk and flour, 100 per cent; butter, 75 per cent; fish, 100 per cent; herrings, 50 per cent; rice, eggs, peas, onions, potatoes and olive oil, 100 per cent; coffee, 50 per cent; maize, 33 per cent; shoes, 10 to 15 per cent; wines, 70 per cent; liquors, 70 per cent; cider, 50 per cent; beer, 50 per cent; hats, 60 per cent, and preserved food, 100 per cent. It is estimated that these increases will give a revenue of $520,000 a year.

Mrs. Peary's Quest.

Provisioned for several months and all equipped to withstand the rigors of the polar seas, the Peary relief steamer Windward sailed from Halifax Tuesday for the far north. Aboard are Mrs. Peary and her little daughter Marie. CHAPTER II. The Storm Bursts.

There was a cloud hanging over the distant mountain peak, and occasionally the low muttering of far-off thunder could be heard, but it did not disturb the young pleasure seekers, who had come out from Fresno, California, to have a good time. One tall, graceful girl whose golden hair and deep blue eyes would have attracted any beholder, was standing in the shadow of a tree, whither she had wandered alone. She took very little interest in the sports of her youthful companions, no more youthful, however, than herself. As she strolled under the shades of the pines her pale blue parasol half concealed a face that was exquisite in its loveliness.

"Oh, Laura, why are you alone?" asked a pretty, dark-eyed girl leaning on the arm of her lover as she passed. "There are plenty of young fellows who would be glad to take Paul's place. Shall I tell them they can?"

"Thank you, Nellie; I do not want them," while a faint smile flitted over her face.

At this moment another couple passed where the three stood, their faces half hidden behind a pink umbrella. Nellie, smiling, said:

"There goes Clarence and Nellie Bush. People say they are to be married in the spring and start for the Klondike."

Laura sighed and her little friend went on. The gaze of Laura Kean was now riveted on Clarence Berry and Ethel Bush. The rumor that they were going to that strange, far-off northern country awakened in her mind a new interest in them. Ethel Bush was one of her dearest friends, and Clarence and Paul had been boys together.

As Clarence and Ethel sat in the shade of a tree, they built anew their air castles amid the glaciers and icebergs of the frozen north.

"I hope I don't intrude," said a sweet, silver-like voice, and, looking up, they beheld their friend Laura Kean standing near, a smile on her pretty face. "My excuse for coming is to discuss your intended journey to the Klondike. I have heard you are going in the early spring."

"We have so decided," Clarence Berry answered.

"And if agreeable I have decided to accompany you."

Ethel Bush was delighted, and declared if they could find a preacher in Alaska the wedding would be celebrated in the frozen north. The three sat on the green and planned and talked with increasing enthusiasm, and Laura, with her pretty face beaming with happiness, arose, left the lovers to themselves, while she strolled down the grove, that her mind might conjure up her lover's joy and surprise at meeting her in those faraway regions.

Unconsciously she strolled deep into the wood and was lost to the sight of her friends, when a footstep near caused her to start in surprise if not alarm. Before her stood a young man of twenty-eight, with a pale cast of countenance and keen blue eye. He was of a figure that might have been called handsome, but to Laura Kean he was repulsive. She gave him a glance and gasped:

"Mr. Lackland!"

Theodore Lackland had followed Laura to this picnic and into this wood with a set purpose in his heart. He was wealthy, a young man of good family and reputed ability, but a man of firm and fixed purposes. To accomplish an end he would go to almost any limit. He had known Paul Miller long before he set off for the Klondike and hated him because he loved Laura Kean. Why should this beautiful girl, the only woman whom he had ever loved, prefer this rude, penniless country boy to himself?

Mr. Lackland failed to realize what so many have in this life—that it is the soul that attracts and not the face and figure. There is no freemasonry so subtle as the freemasonry of the soul.

"I am pleased to see you happy, Miss Kean," he said. "There has always been something wrong with me, and while others are happy I am sad."

"Surely it is a morbid fancy," said Laura. The light was dying out in her eyes. She made one quick downward look at the path, as if wishing to pass him. He observed her glance and said:

"No, no, Laura, wait a moment; I have something of great importance to say to you, which I must say now."

"I have just been told that you have decided to go to Alaska in the spring." He looked earnestly into the girl's glowing face, and added, with deliberation:

"Laura, there are reasons why you should not undertake such a journey."

"What reasons?"
"A million natural obstacles are in the way."

"If Ethel Bush can go, why not I?"
He did not answer immediately, but stood at the side of the path carelessly kicking the leaves with the toe of his boot. At last he answered:

"Laura, if your love had been a great love, you must have read my secret, just as I have read yours." In a low tone he continued: "Long ago I knew that you loved, or thought you loved Paul Miller. I saw it before he died—even before you realized it."

The red glow covered her cheeks more deeply than before. She was silent, and he was tramping nervously backward and forward. Then he went on rapidly in a tone of irritation. "Laura, I understand you. It is not for a rude man like this Alaskan miner to do so." Then in an eager voice he said: "Dearest, I bring you a love undreamed of among such low creatures."

"Low creatures!" she hissed, almost breathlessly.

His cheeks quivered; his lips trembled; his voice swelled, while his nervous fingers were riveted to his palm. He approached her and took her hand. She seemed benumbed by the feeling. She stood as one transfixed, a slow paralysis of surprise taking hold of her faculties. But at his touch her senses regained their mastery. She flung away his hand. Her breast heaved. In a voice charged with indignation she said:

"So this is what you mean! I understand you at last!"

Theodore Lackland fell back a pace.

"Laura, hear me—hear me again."

But she had found her voice at last.

"Sir, you have outraged my feelings as much as if I was at this moment Paul Miller's wife!"

Theodore Lackland felt his self-control rapidly slipping away, and in the height of his passion said:

"You shall never marry Paul Miller, Laura Kean! I swear it! I hold your fate and his in my hand, and have more ways of crushing you than you imagine. Be sensible; recall your insulting words, and do not throw yourself away on that impecunious ne'er-do-well—a hulking brute, made for a pick-ax and shovel!"

"Enough!" she cried. "I would rather marry a plow-boy than such a gentleman as you!"

Face to face, eye to eye, with panting breath and scornful looks, there they stood for one moment; then Laura, without a word, swung about and walked away to where her friends were preparing to return to town.

The features of Theodore Lackland underwent a frightful change. The gathering thunder cloud was not more black than his face. He raised his clenched fist to heaven and cursed his rival, heedless of the rolling thunder and on-coming storm.

"It is a long way to the Klondike," he finally muttered, while the smile of a devil flitted over his face; "but, great as the distance is, he will feel my power, and so shall she."

A heavy peal of thunder and the falling of rain roused him to the fact that the little excursion had all gone, leaving him alone in the wood and storm. He hurried to where his horse and buggy were, and, leaping in, drove furiously to town. He took the train that night to San Francisco and spent a whole day in consultation with two ill-favored looking men.

In a few weeks Laura had forgotten the unpleasant scene with the wealthy Mr. Lackland. She was busy preparing for the journey in the spring.

It was the last of February, and on the next day Laura was to draw her money from the savings bank and put it in the hands of a friend to secure her a passage and outfit for the Klondike. Late in the afternoon she saw a great crowd of men on the street talking in an excited manner, and a moment later Mr. O'Bourne, the butcher, came running toward her, wringing his hands.

"What is the matter, Mr. O'Bourne?" she asked.

"We are ruined, Miss Kean; we are ruined. The savings bank has failed; can't pay a cent!"

She grew dizzy and clutched at the door for support. Quickly all her bright dreams of surprising her lover vanished.

Mrs. Miller consoled her with the assurance that the loss would be made up by the great fortune Paul was taking from the Klondike. A few days later she learned that the bank had been wrecked by Mr. Tom Harris, the cashier, speculating on San Francisco Board of Trade. Later came the whisper that Harris had fled to avoid arrest, but before going had confessed his crime, and said that he was induced by Mr. Lackland to speculate.

He went on the wrong side of the market and was ruined.

The evening post brought Laura a letter. It was addressed in the well-beloved hand of Paul Miller. But there was something in the chirography to alarm her. It was in a scrawling, feeble hand, and with many misgivings she broke the seal and glanced at the contents. Then, with face ashen white, she shrieked:

"Wounded, robbed, ruined!" and fell senseless to the floor.

Ethel Bush, learning of her friend's trouble, hastened to see Laura, who sank so rapidly under the double blow that she was confined to her bed.

Ethel tried to console her.

"Don't worry, dear. We shall soon be with Paul, and if I find him I will nurse him back to health, and Clarence will defend him if he is attacked until he is able to defend himself."

"Will you take a message to him from me, Ethel?"

"Yes, dear, a thousand."

"Warn him, Ethel; warn him!"

"Of whom or what shall I warn him, dear?"

"Of Theodore Lackland. He is our evil genius."

"I fear you wrong Mr. Lackland."

"No, no; he threatened me last autumn when we were up the valley to the picnic. I forgot it at the time, but it is all very fresh and vivid to my mind now."

Ethel remained with her for over two hours and spoke encouragingly, then left, urging her to recover her strength and spirits in time for the wedding.

For downright luck and pluck the bridal trip of Clarence Berry was without parallel. On the day he and sweet Ethel Bush were married they were poor in everything but luck, pluck and faith in their future. Their worldly possessions consisted of just enough to pay their passage to San Francisco, thence to Juneau, and on to Forty-Mile Camp, and provide themselves with the necessary stores for a year.

On the 15th they were married at the pretty little church in Fresno, and their friends in great numbers gathered about them to congratulate them and bid them a tearful adieu.

Next day the bride and groom took their departure for San Francisco. Laura imprinted a kiss on the young bride's lips and whispered:

"Give it to him! Oh, I wish I could go with you!"

They went to San Francisco, where they met the remainder of their party bound for the Klondike. Among the party was a tall young fellow named Dick Ronald, from Seattle, who from his height soon acquired the sobriquet of Long Dick. There were half a dozen other men, some young and some middle-aged, but Ethel was the only lady in the party bound for the frozen north.

The voyage and journey to Juneau was made without any unusual discomfort, but from that on it became perilous and every mile marked with danger.

They engaged some Indians as guides and an Esquimaux with the euphonious name of Umstich, which Long Dick translated for convenience into "Hemstitch."

Umstich was engaged as a sort of general superintendent of the dogs and sleds, of which they had several to convey themselves and packs across the bleak, white deserts, the dog being the only animal capable of making those journeys in all weather.

The accommodations for the young bride were poor, but Clarence did the very best he could for her. They carried a stove and tent, and every night the latter was pitched in some spot where the snow was hard. Beds of boughs were made, and Ethel was wrapped in furs until there was little chance for her to suffer from cold. She rode all the way from Juneau to the mining camp well muffled in bear-skin robes and furs, strapped on a sled or boat as the case might be, and while this method of travel was much better than walking, the uncertainty of her position made it anything but comfortable.

CHAPTER III.
Paul's Discovery.

It is essential at this point in our story to return to the Klondike. It is again night, and the little camp on the densely wooded stream is wild with excitement and confusion. Men were hurrying to and fro and giving utterance to angry exclamations. Among the most excited was our old friend Gid Myers. Gid had a rope in his hand, and was gesticulating wildly toward a cabin that had been erected on the banks of the stream, around which stood four or five men with rifles in their hands.

No wonder the gold-diggers were excited. A terrible crime had been committed in their little community. It was the first that had ever been known on the Klondike, and these hardy frontiersmen felt like wreaking vengeance upon the perpetrators.

"I tell ye, boys, we ought to make a holy example of that precious rascal in yonder shanty. We have found gold here by the million of dollars, and when we thought we had an honest community four thieves pounce upon us, rob one of us, and almost kill him. Now let's hang the feller Crack Lash wounded."

"Wait, boys," cautioned Glum Ralston, who had listened to the harrangue of Gid Myers. "This chap what got a little more lead in his skin than he calkerated on ain't goin' to git away. I tell ye that robbery warn't done by accident. It warn't planned in a minute neither."

"Now yer shoutin', comrade," put in a grizzled veteran.

THE SPICE OF LIFE

EFFORTS OF THE FUNNY MEN TO DRIVE AWAY DULL CARE.

Marriage As It Is To-day—A Lesson in Horticulture—Why He Thought His Wife Should Be Satisfied—Those Summer Tennis Men.

Hadn't Forgotten an Old Trick.
"Miss Helen Gould was out calling the other day."

"Well?"
"She left her card at one place where the lady of the house was out. The servant who waited on the door was once the cashier of a New York bank."

"Go on."
"He looked at the card and then at the lady."

"What did he do then?"
"Drew out a fountain pen and wrote 'certified' across the face of the card and put his initials under it."

'Twas Impossible.
"Colonel, do you believe in dreams, apparitions, or anything of that sort?"

"No," he says, with emphasis, toying with the mint julep. "I do not, suh. Once I had the delirium tremens, suh, most infernally bad, suh, and I saw snakes."

"Well?"
"Scrutinizing those reptiles closely, suh, I saw that they were watin snakes. Watin snakes! It was, of co'se, impossible!"

A Lesson in Horticulture.
Four-year-old Nellie was with her father one day while he was hoeing potatoes.

There were turnips on the other side of the garden, which, of course, never needed any hoeing, and Nellie very earnestly asked:

"Papa, how do the turnips grow?"

"God makes them grow, my child, he answered.
"Well, that's funny," said Nellie. "I never saw Him in here hoeing them."

Negative Satisfaction.
Mr. Brighteyes—I don't know whether I ought to tell you, but I won $200 from Briggs last night playing poker.

Mrs. Brighteyes—O, how nice. Now you can afford to get me that new dress.

Mr. Brighteyes—What an unreasonable woman you are. It ought to be satisfaction enough for you to know that Mrs. Briggs won't be able to have a new dress.

Entirely Different.

Mrs. Timmins—John, I must say you are the narrow minded man I ever saw. You have an idea that nobody is ever right but yourself."

Mr. Timmins—"Better look to home. Were you ever willing to admit that anybody was right who differed from you?"

Mrs. Timmins—"That's an entirely different thing, and you know it, John Timmins."—Boston Transcript.

His Complaint.

Judge—"Your only complaint against this woman is that she threw a brick at her husband?"

Complainant—"Well, yes."

Judge—"Then what business is that of yours? She didn't throw it at you."

Complainant—"I know, but if she had she might have hit her husband, and I wouldn't have this black eye."

These Summer Tennis Men.

Miss Million—Mr. Bluff's serving was marvellous!
Miss Million—No wonder; he's a waiter at the best hotel in the city.

Doomed.

The Count—I tell your fader I cannot live midout you.
The Lady—And what did he say, Ferdinand?

The Count—He say I vill die von horrible death py starvation.

Concerning Length.
"Have you been married long?" asked the lady, who was making conversation, of the six-footer.
"Just as long as I am now," he replied.

The Mimic World.

"I met the moonlight beautiful this evening?" I say to the gentleman with the flowing hair and the expression of unuttered woe.

He glanced at me, at the moon, at the scenery, and at the other surroundings with languid interest.

"It is fair—only fair," he says. "You should have seen the moonlight effect I staged for the 'Heroines of the Harem' extravaganza company last season. It made this thing look like a burnt match.—Judge."

The Way Now.

"Do you think she is going to marry Lord De Broke?"

"Very likely. I understand that the expert accountant who has been going over her father's books has reported very favorably to his lordship."

Not Personal.

"I think the 17-year locust is an interesting study," observed the lady of uncertain age.

"It must be," we answered, thoughtlessly, "especially to one who has traced them down from generation to generation."

But, of course, it was her own fault that she took it personally.

Reasoning from Experience.

"I see that Weatherman Moore has patented an invention to keep houses cool in summer," said the man who reads the papers.

"So?" queried the man who reasons by induction. "It must be something on the same order as the furnace I threw so much coal into last winter."—Baltimore American.

Not to Be Bluffed.

"I will have to have three more days out a week, and receive my company in the parlor," said the cook lady firmly.

"Bridget," replied the mistress of the house, "I warn you not to push me too far. You seem to forget that I belong to the Housewives' union No. 17!"

A Man of His Word.

"You know, he promised her if she'd marry him she wouldn't have to cook anything."

"I didn't think he could keep a servant girl."

"He couldn't; but his promise held good. He lost his job shortly after the wedding and then she didn't have anything to cook."

Not Strenuous Enough.

"Why, papa," she argued, "you know Arbutnot never drinks; plays cards, smokes, bets on horses, or swears."

"Yes, I know," the rugged, unromantic old man answered, "but I don't want a chap for a son-in-law who merely doesn't do things."

Guilty.

"Do you know anything about hypnotism?" asked the girl in the pink waist.

"Well," replied the fluffy-haired maid, as she held up her left hand to display a sparkling solitaire to better advantage, "you can judge for yourself."

Wanted a Home.

Irate Father—"Young man, if my daughter marries you I will cut her off without a cent."

Suitor—"O, that's all right, sir; we don't care so much about money; all we expect of you is to give us a good home."

True Courage.

Phyllis—"Yes, he was paying attention to her quite a long time."

Blanche—"Perhaps he hadn't the courage to propose."

Phyllis—"O, I don't know. Perhaps he had the courage not to propose."

Absent-Minded Beggar.

"Have you really no affection for any other girl, dear?" she asked of her fiance.

"No," replied the drug clerk, absent-mindedly, "but I have something just as good."

The light of God cures the lust of gold.

Easy Diagnosis.

Mrs. Fondma—Sorry to disturb you at this hour, doctor, but we can't imagine what ails the child.

Mrs. Chugwater—I'd be ashamed to sleep in church the way you do.

Mr. Chugwater—I can't help it. It's the only way I know how to sleep.—Chicago Tribune.

Dysentery cured without the aid of a Doctor.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux" (dysentery) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. "I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. Our Trip West

What We Saw and How We Saw It F. L. ANDREWS.

As usual after making a trip of any extent we shall endeavor to give our readers a glimpse of "what we saw and how we saw it" or in other words how we were impressed by what we saw.

In these days of rapid transit and palace cars with cheap excursions and home-seekers rates to the western states, a trip to Chicago and further is taken by a good many of our readers each year, but there are probably those like ourselves who have never been west of Chicago and who will be as interested in what we saw and perhaps as surprised at some things as we were.

With this thought in view we will try and make our article as plain as possible to convey our meaning and will give you first

CHICAGO AS WE SAW IT.

When people visit a great city some will be impressed with one thing and others with another. The one thing that impressed us about Chicago was the fact that the second greatest city of the United States is builded upon a soft foundation or where the civil engineers have to use all their power of ingenuity to build a solid foundation.

New York's foundation is solid rock, and except to blast this out, builders have had few foundation problems to face. Consequently their wits and ingenuity have not been exercised in this direction, and their contributions to this phase of building science have been few.

In Chicago the city's foundation is just as safe as that of New York, once the blue clay bed is penetrated, but getting to that bed and utilizing it has required the highest degree of skill. Caissons have been sunk, foundation wells and other inventions, but the steel or wood pile driven one upon the other deep into the earth and then grouted or left as they are, appear to provide a supporting base not equaled by anything else, even rock. The serious objection to a solid rock basis is the enormous cost of blasting it out. Just because originally Chicago as to soil foundation was not the most favorable spot in the world for a large city, their engineers have defied every obstacle of nature and conquered.

They have not only conquered but we find in Chicago some of the largest and finest feats of engineering in the world. If we stand on the crest of the dome of the Masonic Temple and look out over the city, at Taylor street we see the largest bascule bridge in the world; at Halstead street the largest tower hoist bridge in existence; at Campbell avenue the largest eight-track railroad bridge ever built; at Robey street the beginning of the longest, deepest and most effective drainage channel man has ever made; at Rush street the largest shipping and receiving port of any city; at South Chicago the greatest grain elevators known; at Randolph street the first steel sheathing coffer dam ever sunk in water; at Sixteenth street the most difficult track elevation problem yet solved by man.

Land is so expensive in Chicago that many buildings are being raised higher and other stories added to the structure. The Masonic Temple is proving too small and another story is to be added to the 21 already completed.

A man took the elevator journey to the dome of the Temple the other day and sat down under the time ball. He had a pencil and a pad in his hand and he was quite unconcerned as to the problem before him. A little man who was with him walked around nervously and talked.

"Now," said he to the man with the pad, "another story is needed up here. You just find out how we can get it. We wish to drop the floor beneath the dome to the big cross-beam over the light well on the nineteenth floor. I think that's about a six-foot drop. Then the roof must go up six feet. When that is done we have what we wish."

"Yes," said the man with the pad, and made some rapid calculations. After that he looked reflectively at the distant river, and then out to the haze-covered lake. When he had finished his viewing he yawned, for fear he would seem too interested in the subject.

"I believe," he said, "we can do the job in a month or six weeks and not disturb anyone. The letting down of the floor is comparatively an easy matter. I guess a little compressed air will raise the roof. We can uncover the skeleton construction of the dome, place jacks beneath it, and by the application of air raise the whole roof at one time. We can hold it up on the air, too, until we have the new supports underneath and permanently fixed. The interior finishing will be an easy matter."

He and the little man had a few words and the matter was settled. Next October the builders will come with yards of cable and chains, tackle and jackscrews, and as unconcernedly as though merely moving a frame shanty will hoist up the largest dome roof in the West, lower a floor and create the new story desired.

And this is Chicago as we saw it. The charm, the life, the greatness of Chicago lies in the fact that it is a city of doing; that it knows no impossibilities; that while it is yet crude, unfinished, smoky and soiled, it "gets there."

It Needs a Tonic.

There are times when your liver needs a tonic. Don't give purgatives that gripe and weaken. DeWitt's Little Early Risers expel all poison from the system and act as tonic to the liver. W. Scott, 531 Highland ave., Milton, Pa., says: "I have carried DeWitt's Little Early Risers with me for several years and would not be without them." Small and easy to take. Purely vegetable. They never gripe or distress. At W. B. Darrow's.

Railroad Time Folders.

The average person who picks up a railroad time folder does not realize the enormous amount of work which the preparation of such a publication involves.

The Big Burlington system, for instance, has a general time folder made up from sixteen different division time tables. The folder contains 2,000 names of towns, gives the schedules of over 500 trains, and whenever there is a change in time 60,000 figures have to be carefully checked and corrected.

CAUTION.

This is not a great word, but when you think how little you are not to purchase for 75c the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Baschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. Sold by all druggists in the civilized world.

THE FORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT THE ORIGINAL LIVER MEDICINE

A sallow complexion, dizziness, biliousness and a coated tongue are common indications of liver and kidney diseases. Stomach and bowel troubles, severe as they are, give immediate warning by pain, but liver and kidney troubles, though less painful at the start, are much harder to cure. Theford's Black-Draught never fails to benefit diseased liver and weakened kidneys. It stirs up the torpid liver to throw off the germs of fever and ague. It is a certain preventive of cholera and Bright's disease of the kidneys. With kidneys reinforced by Theford's Black-Draught thousands of persons have dwelt immune in the midst of yellow fever. Many families live in perfect health and have no other doctor than Theford's Black-Draught. It is always on hand for use in an emergency and saves many expensive calls of a doctor.

Mullins, S. C., March 10, 1901. I have used Theford's Black-Draught for three years and I have not had to go to a doctor since I have been taking it. It is the best medicine for me that is on the market for liver and kidney troubles and dyspepsia and other complaints. Rev. A. G. LEWIS.

BLOOD DISEASE CURED.

Cured When All Else Failed
 "Could I live my early life over, this testimonial would not be necessary, though I was no more sinful than thousands of other young men. Early indiscretions, later excesses, exposure to contagious diseases all helped to break down my system. When I commenced to realize my condition I was almost frantic. Doctor after doctor treated me but only gave me relief—not a cure. Hot Springs helped me, but did not cure me. The symptoms always returned. Mercury and Potash drove the poison into my system instead of driving it out. I bless the day your New Method Treatment was recommended to me. I investigated who you were first, and finding you had over 25 years' experience and responsible financially. I gave you my case under a guarantee. You cured me permanently, and in six years there has not been a sore, pain, ulcer or any other symptom of the blood disease."

W. C. T. U.
 Edited by the W. C. T. U., of Pinckney

The German government proposes to take definite steps in the direction of controlling the sale of intoxicants in Prussia. Count Douglas has introduced a measure into the diet which is supposed to represent the emperor's views. It prohibits the sale of spirits containing fusil oil or other injurious elements; their sale in the early morning hours before work begins, or to intoxicated persons, or persons under sixteen, or those designated by the police as habitual drunkards.

Dr. T. D. Crothers, editor of the American Quarterly Journal of Inebriety, says on this subject: "In a report which I made before the American Society for the Study of Inebriety where the histories of 1,744 inebriates were studied, 1,080 had a distinct history of heredity. Many of these cases were direct heredities, the impulse to drink passing down from father to child with great exactness. Usually the transmission of a drink impulse ends in extinction of the race after the second generation, not always by inebriety or drug taking, but by other diseases which are encouraged by the low vitality of the victim." "Unto the third and fourth generation," says Holy Writ.

When the rural free delivery system was first advocated, few urged its adoption as a means of increasing temperance. Yet if the following conversation with a village saloonkeeper, reported by an eastern daily, be true, the advent of the system should be hailed with delight by all enemies of the nefarious traffic: "Why" said Mr. Saloonkeeper, "when men came into town every day for the mail they were sure to drop into my place while they waited; everybody drank, everybody treated everybody else and it made trade lively. Now the farmers come into town but two or three times a week and more often but once, and the worst of it is they don't happen to come in together, for they only come in for groceries or some other supplies, and no two men's supplies are apt to give out at exactly the same time. This, you see, does away with the matter of treating and reduces trade tremendously. It's ruining business, I tell you."

A Liberal Offer.
 The undersigned will give a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets to any one wanting a reliable remedy for disorders of the stomach, biliousness or constipation. This is a new remedy and a good one.

 ACCOUNT FILES have long since become a necessity in the conduct of any business. They are especially adapted to a small business, of any description where credit is given and are generally used by the larger trade, to keep a record of goods sent out on approval, and also in connection with a set of books, to keep the small petty accounts, with which a book-keeper does so dislike to encumber his ledger.

Glorious Old Spain

(Special Letter.)

IN recrossing the frontier from Portugal into Spain, via Frinte, San Esteban, the first thing one notices the country-side changes is that the bright green of all at once to a half-desert, where agriculture can only be pursued with much pains and difficulty. After a few hours in a train which has assumed the Spanish rate of speed, the fields grow greener, and by the time Salamanca is reached the crops look worth gathering.

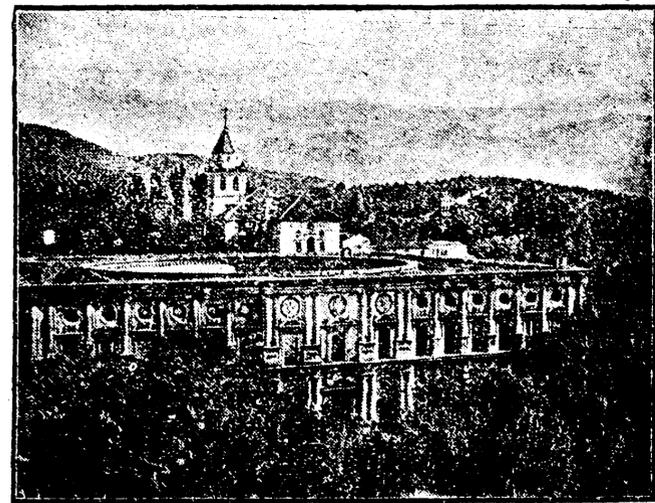

An all night ride in the train brought me to Escorial, and the next day I reached Madrid. Neither there nor elsewhere in any part of the country is seen evidence that the people have so recently passed through a humilating war. Madrid, the third most engaging capital in the world—(only place Paris and Vienna before it)—is as gay to-day as it was ten years ago, the streets pulsating with happy life, the spacious parks filled with chattering and laughing crowds.

"A sight of the "Boy King" was, of course, one of the things to be obtained, for since his coronation, only a few weeks previously, the 16-year-old monarch has become one of the most interesting of contemporary soverigns. I had learned that he was to attend the "Salve" at one of the smaller churches on the afternoon of my arrival, and made haste to reach the place.

The sight inside the edifice was most interesting. Lighted candles so numerous as to give the effect of a great blaze covered the high altar. Music by orchestral instruments was accompanied by only one fire tenor voice, the strain seeming at times lively enough for a dance. Gorgeously clad priests of various grades, attended by boys in red, repeated the service. Below a large image of the Holy Virgin was a most enchanting little figure of Christ, at the apparent age of three years, with tightly curled blonde hair and gold-braided garments.

In a sort of private box on the level of the gallery Alphonso and his mother could be seen, leaning over the windowsill and watching the proceedings. Pleased with his new honors, as any other lad would be, the young king is still a boy. His dignity is that of youth, not the apling of mature manners.

As he re-entered his carriage, sitting with his back to the horses, to give his mother and sister the best places, he bowed smilingly to the on-lookers, and was driven back to his home, perhaps the statehest royal residence in Europe.

Little space need be given in this letter to Segovia, where I went next, except to recall the marvelous aqueduct that supplies the city—built in the time of Trajan, of massive stone blocks, unfastened by either rivets or cement, and with double arches 90 feet high in some places.

How imperishable those Roman works seem! Water still comes to Seville on arches built soon after the time of Christ, and at Cordova and other places Roman bridges defy the passage of time. La Granja, seven miles by carriage from Segovia, is a royal palace and park, which is considered to rival Versailles, especially in the elaborate fountains. Alphonso is expected to reside here this summer for the first time in his life, and the residents of the village are suitably excited over the prospect. No king or queen has been among them since the death of Alphonso XII, more than sixteen years ago.

The cathedral at Burgos delayed me two nights, though I confess to being disappointed in everything but the octagonal dome, which is certainly unique.

Just a word should be said about Bilbao, the one town in all Spain that gives the idea of Yankee push and energy. It is situated on the Nervion, about eight miles from the open sea, and contains perhaps 75,000 inhabitants, nine-tenths of whom are Basques. This remarkable race is a fond of work as the Andalusian, for instance, is fond of rest. As soon as the train enters the Basque province the difference is perceptible.

From Bilbao to Portugalette, at the mouth of the Nervion, I counted more than 100 seagoing steamers, and yet these far-seeing people have reserved nearly all of one bank of the river for a promenade and parkway. Both banks are walled with cut stone, making at least fifteen miles of wall that has been built; and at Portugalette a "flying ferry" conveys passengers and teams across the river, so that a bridge may not interfere with navigation.

I want to speak just once more, before I finish with Spain of the universal courtesy of the people, high and low, toward Americans. Especially do I dwell upon this because no other land among those so accessible and little traveled offers so much of interest to our people, and some, no doubt, have hesitated to make the journey since the late war.

The question is often asked, "Why do people travel abroad who have not seen all of their own country?" One might as well inquire, "Why do people go to a concert or an opera who have a parlor organ at home?"

A new country like America cannot have as many places of interest as old ones like those of Europe or Asia. Within the distance between Boston and Chicago the European traveler can compass the wonders of ten nations, each with its own language, customs, architecture, historical monuments and natural scenery.

In a dozen Spanish towns of the fifth rang there are mediaeval churches of surpassing beauty. Among the pleasant hills are picturesque palaces and monasteries, across the valleys run aqueducts that seem built by a race of Titans, while rivers are crossed by bridges on which St. Paul may have set his feet. And Spain does not exceed in interest, does not even equal several other lands that may be traversed in the time it takes to go from New York to Galveston.

A Self-Made Englishman. Sir Ernest Cassell, whom Lord Salisbury is said to have declined to make a peer, though urgently requested by King Edward to do so, has given largely to charity and especially to aid in medical investigations. He is a self-made man, having advanced from clerk to a high position in finance. He had a good deal to do with the late Baron De Hirsch, and found the connection quite profitable.

Cathedral Interior.

Held Up the Train.

Two masked men held up the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Limited, north-bound, two miles north of Savanna, Ill., Tuesday night. They cut off the Adams Express car, forced the engineer to run up the track, and then blew up the car. The robbers torpedoes exploded the engineer quickly brought the train to a stop. One man boarded the engine and ordered the engineer to run ahead, while the other man cut the express car from the train.

Trainmen hurried to Savanna and gave the alarm, and a posse of officers and citizens armed with shotguns and revolvers hastened to the scene. The limited is said to carry heavy and valuable express. It is reported that the robbers secured about $20,000.

Murdered by Gamblers.

Isaac Finkelstein, whose crusade closed the eight gambling houses in Des Moines two weeks ago, was murdered Tuesday night. He was on his way home, less than a block and a half away, when a man stepped out of the shadow of the alley and struck him a blow over the head with a heavy stick. Finkelstein fell to the ground. Four men less than a block away saw him fall and ran to assist him. He was dead when they arrived, his skull crushed.

Jim Highpeach and Brooks Carter were killed, John Carter is supposed to have been seriously wounded and a man by the name of Richmond was shot through the wrist in a fight in Jackson county, Tenn., resulting from an old feud between the Carter and Lynch families of that section.

Combine Poultry Raising and Farming.

Poultry raising as a separate business is very much more difficult to manage than is poultry raising when combined with farming. The farmer has a decided advantage. In the first place he can usually utilize the extra help to advantage and much help that would otherwise be wasted can also be utilized. The feed question is not such a great one for him as for the professional poultry raiser. He raises the feed and thus saves the cost of commercial handling and the middlemen's profits. This makes a considerable balance in his favor. At certain seasons, as in the fall after the harvests have been gathered, immense quantities of feed are produced on the farm, such as the second growth of young clover. If the fowls have a free range the insect supply is not an unimportant factor, which is not the case on the ground of the professional poultry raiser. When insects are plentiful the fowls are most profitable. The range alive with insects is a great thing for the young and growing birds, as it induces a very large amount of exercise and establishes their health. The marketing of eggs and poultry is also worked into the trips that are taken to the city for other things. In fact the raising of poultry is essentially a part of the scheme of general farming that cannot be cast aside.

Only Good Cows.

In the great business world no man now thinks of succeeding with inferior machines. The farmer that keeps cows should take the lesson to heart and discard all dairy machines—cows—that are not up to modern requirements. No matter what a machine costs, it is better to throw it out on the dump than use it at a constant loss. Only good dairy machines can be profitably used. The good cows make butter at a profit. The ordinary dairy cows make butter without profit or loss, and the poor cows make butter at a loss. Now it is evident that no matter how much a cow costs, it is best to send her to the butcher if she either loses money or makes butter with no profit. There are in the hands of farmers many cows that have cost a good deal of money once and were perhaps good cows at one time, but have outlived their usefulness. These should be fattened up at once and sent to the butcher. Some men say they will fatten and dispose of their cows a few months hence, when they have dried up. But what is the use of keeping cows at all if they are losing money for their owners every day. The sooner they are sent away the richer will their owners be. Farmers and dairymen can afford to keep only good cows. All others are a detriment to the farmer and the farm.

Minnesota Fears a Dairy Trust.

Reports continue to come from Minnesota of the attempts of great moneyed interests to get control of the creamery butter interests. One of the officers of the state dairy commission declares that the time is near at hand when the co-operative creameries will have to fight for existence. Big concerns will be established at central points and these will pay big prices for cream till they have annihilated the creameries, after which they will buy butter at their own price. In like manner big establishments in St. Paul and Minneapolis will attempt to get control of all the cream within 150 miles of these cities. In the meantime some of the big packing firms of Chicago are taking steps to secure control of the output of a good many creameries in the state, paying an advance over the market price for the goods. The firms are evidently planning to spend a good deal of money in the development of this new line of interest. The near future will see tremendous changes in the butter trade. The event to be feared is the formation of an immense butter trust that can control the price paid the producers and also the price to be paid for butter by the consumer.

For a Kansas Dairy Commissioner.

The dairymen of Kansas are moving for the establishing of a state dairy and food commission. At the present time that state has nothing of the kind, the present law prohibiting only the adulteration of milk and vinegar. Many of the progressive dairy states have well-established commissions, while in some others the laws pertaining to the adulteration of dairy products are administered by the state boards of health. It is claimed that Kansas manufactures 50,000,000 pounds of butter per year. The state developed along this line with great rapidity during the depression of a few years ago, and there is no doubt that a dairy commissioner would find enough to keep him busy.

Good clover hay is hard to excel as a feed for the dairy cows.

The Chinch-Bug Campaign.

The multitude of letters now received daily at the Ohio Experiment station indicate that the chinch bug is threatening immense injury to the corn and oats crops of the state, and it is feared that farmers are expecting too much of the fungus which the station is distributing.

In the first place, the amount of this material which it is practicable to send out is extremely small, and it can only infect a comparatively small number of bugs at the best; the infection, moreover, will require four or five days, by which time the army of bugs will have done great injury. Our advice is, therefore, not to wait for the fungus, but to organize a campaign at once for the immediate relief of the crop, depending upon the fungus to finish the work by destroying the bugs which would otherwise live over winter to menace the crops of next year.

The chinch bug, though able to fly, prefers to travel on the ground, and its migration from wheat to oats or corn may be intercepted by making a V-shaped trench, as with the corner of a hoe or the outside tooth of a cultivator, and pouring in a little coal tar. A line of tar an inch across will be sufficient. When a crust forms over the tar it must be freshened with a new supply. As the bugs enter the cornfield their progress may be impeded by frequent cultivation of the outside rows of corn, thus burying many of the bugs. When they cluster on the stalks of corn they may be killed by sprinkling with kerosene emulsion, made as follows, and thrown with sufficient force to wash them off the corn:

Kerosene Emulsion.—Dissolve half a pound of soap in one gallon of water and heat to boiling; remove from the fire and while hot add two gallons of coal oil, churning the mixture with a force pump for fifteen minutes or until it resembles buttermilk. To each quart of this emulsion add fifteen quarts of water and apply with spray pump or sprinkling pot.—Chas. E. Thorne, Director Ohio Experiment Station.

Every Facility.

The testing of cows as to their milk quality and production may seem something that takes a good deal of time. This is not so, if every facility be provided. Scales should be arranged in the stable and near the cows, so as soon as a man has milked his cow he can step to the hook, hang his pail on it for a second, record the weight, register it on the chart hanging on the wall and go his way. This takes but a moment's time. But every facility should be provided. The scales should not be sitting on a table or bench where it will take a dozen unnecessary steps to reach them, but should be on the nearest wall. The milk sheets also should be tacked to the wall and a pencil should be hanging near it. If the record is kept in a book it takes a minute or so to find the book, open to the page and make the record. This is too much time to have to devote to this work at the milking of each cow. If the sheet is placed on the wall the work is almost instantly done. The arrangements for testing should be also complete. If composite samples are to be taken the spoon for stirring the milk should be ready and the bottles into which to pour the samples. No extra steps should be necessary and no extra manual labor. Every facility being present will make the work popular and lead to its continuance. Lack of facilities will cause the work to be neglected in the case of emergencies on the farm and this in turn will render the tests and weighings of less value than they would otherwise be.

Nurse Crops.

It appears from our results that nurse crops, as a rule, are inadvisable. Barley is the best, as it is more open and does not shade the young clover and grass plants so much, and as it comes off the ground earlier than other cereals, it does not extract so much moisture and leave it in such a dry condition. Oats, wheat and rye are not considered successful nurse crops, and in fact our experiments indicate that it would be much better to discard the nurse crop altogether and devote the land exclusively to seeding to clover and grass. The attempt to "kill two birds with one stone" in that it is hoped to get a crop of wheat and also a crop of grass and clover from the soil during the same year has been shown to be a failure so repeatedly that further discussion is unnecessary.—Andrew M. Soule.

Fruit that the farmer picks from his own vines, bushes or trees, is far superior for home use to that that is purchased in the market. Market fruit must be picked before it is at its best, while the fruit for the farmer's table can be picked at its best as it is needed.

THE OPEN AMERICAN YARD.

One Feature of Our Life That Impresses Englishmen.

"One thing that impresses the stranger is the houses without fences around them," remarked an Englishman at the Waldorf-Astoria to a New York Herald reporter. "In England, when we build our houses, we put walls around them, and build the walls so high that no one can look over."

"Not that we are ashamed to be seen, but because every man's house is his castle, you know. I suppose the Americans build their houses having in mind the maxim of the old Roman—I will build my house so that all the world may see my every action."

"As I walked down a residence street the other day I saw the family eating breakfast, and through the window of another house the domestic making beds. On the lawn of a third house were playing a score of the neighbors' children."

"An Englishman is like a bear if any one steps on his lawn. You know the story told of Tennyson? Several young women anxious to see him made a pilgrimage to his country seat. Tennyson was seated on the front steps, smoking an old pipe, when they appeared in the distance. The old poet watched them crossing his lawn and his brow lowered."

"Is this Lord Tennyson? Well, we're so sorry to intrude. We wish to apologize for entering in this unceremonious fashion."

"Then why don't you go?" said Tennyson, surrounding himself with a cloud of tobacco smoke."

What a Good Name Does.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 11th.—Mr. Vahlberg of 222 South Peoria St., this city, had for years been an invalid with liver complaint and kidney trouble which was fast hastening him to the grave. The Doctors gave him up and his friends and neighbors all declared he could not live.

His brother came from Minneapolis to see him before he died and inquired if he had tried Dodd's Kidney Pills.

On being told that this remedy had not been used he went out at once and bought a box, feeling satisfied from what he knew of Dodd's Kidney Pills and the noble work they had been doing in Minnesota, that they would save his brother's life.

The first two days Mr. Vahlberg seemed to grow worse, but after that he gradually improved under the treatment and was soon restored to complete good health.

Two Ornaments That Are Rarely Found Upon Hotel Waiters.
"Ever see a waiter wearing glasses?" demanded the inquisitor.
No one could remember, although just why a waiter should not be seen with glasses as well as any other man was not apparent.
"It's just like the wearing of beards," went on the inquisitor. "The proprietors of our important hotels, restaurants and cafes will not permit either beards or glasses to be worn by their waiters. It is possible that in some old fashioned family or commercial hotel the servitors may be found with their noses straddled by optical helps, but you won't find 'em along Broadway."
"Now, this is a fact worthy of note because in every other calling in life the number of persons wearing glasses is on the increase, and even in our schools a considerable percentage of very small children will be found wearing glasses, and while, as I say, hotel, restaurant and cafe proprietors are opposed to the glasses, still I have seldom found a waiter whose eyes indicated that he was in the slightest need of them."
"You may argue that restaurant waiters are generally young men. Grant you that instantly, but all the same thousands of men of similar age have to wear them in almost every other occupation."
"The majority of those servitors commence in boyhood, and the demand of their vocation causes no strain on the eyesight. Consequently that may account in a measure for the absence of any necessity for the use of specs. Moreover, the steam from hot viands would render them useless probably."
—New York Telegram.
A Simple Matter.
"John, I'd like you to wake me at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning. I want to catch the early train."
"All right, sir; all right," replied the able servitor expressively; "all you got to do, sir, is to ring."

Another Statesman Gone.

Senator James McMillan passed away at his beautiful summer home at Eagle Head, Mass., Sunday morning at 4 o'clock, after an illness of but four hours' duration. Heart failure and acute congestion of both lungs were the causes. His wife and daughter Amy, and his grand-daughter were at his bedside when he died, with the attending physician, Dr. G. H. Washburn.
Mr. McMillan was a Michigan Statesman and the announcement of his death came as a thunderbolt and has proved a terrible shock to the family, as well as to the community and the country at large.
