A Birthday Party

Mr. and Mrs. Mort Mortenson gave their Son Ralph a party Saturday last in honor of his fourteenth birthday. About 35 of his young friends were present and to say that they had a good time would be putting it mild.

There were enough boys present so they had a good ball game and other sports until time for luncheon, when they were served with ice cream, cakes, etc. They were a tired but happy lot when night came and they wended their way homeward.

The Law in the Case

To answer questions in regard to the milk license law we print it as it was passed, as follows:

"Any person or persons or corporation who shall sell milk or cream from a wagon or other conveyance, depot or store, or who shall sell or deliver milk or cream to a hotel, restaurant, boarding house or any public place, shall be considered a milk dealer, and every milk dealer must first obtain a license from the dairy and food commissioner to sell such milk and cream."

Congregational Church.

Services were held at the Opera House last Sunday and were well attended. The Sunday school attendance was larger than usual, 21 attendants in the pastor's class.

The matter of the disposal of the old church seats was left in the hands of trustees.

Sunday Aug. 13, morning service only followed by Sunday School at 10:30. All welcome.

Young Mens and Boys Clubs

The ball game last Saturday with South Lyon High School was an interesting event and hotly contested. A ten inning game was played leaving the score 5 to 4 in favor of Pinckney.

The Club team has done good playing all season and with regular practice might contend with any big team. The game today will be with a picked team at St. Mary's picnic. The game next week will be at Rush Lake with the N. Hamburg boys at 1 p. m. on occasion of Union picnic.

Wm. Kennedy Junr. Secy.

The weekly newspaper has a far greater influence and force according to its circulation than the daily paper. Advertising in its columns is read more carefully and brings better results. The weekly is taken into the home and read from the first to the last page, including the advertisements. Matters contained in it are discussed among members of the family and are also discussed throughout the community. Not so with the daily. It is glanced at hurriedly in the morning and by evening is consigned to the kitchen and before twenty-four hours have passed it is consumed by the kitchen fire.

Arrangements are being made as usual for a big school exhibit at the state fair this year. Districts would do well to give every teacher a day off for the purpose of visiting the same. Some districts did so last year as well as paid their way to the fair and considered it money well invested.

NEWS OF MICHIGAN

MURDERERS OF MOYER NOW IN DETROIT PRISON CELLS.

CAPTURED IN CLEVELAND WITH THE MOYER JEWELRY IN THEIR POSSESSION.

JOHNSON IN "SWEAT BOX" BLUDERS SADLY INTO WORDS THAT MAY LEAD TO CONFESSION.

The bloody and cruel murder of Pawnbroker Moyer, in Detroit, between 6 and 7 o'clock on Friday, the 28th of July, and the escape of the murderers with the valuable jewelry and diamonds, for which they had committed the crime, seemed to baffle all attempts of the police to take them. On Friday came the startling news that two men had been arrested in Cleveland who answered the description of the supposed murderers, and who had in their possession a large amount of diamonds, watches, etc., which bore the tags of the murdered pawnbroker. The Cleveland police are reticent about the source of their information that the two men were in that city, but that they had a "straight tip" seems very evident. It is said the "tip" came from a pawnbroker with whom one of the men tried to pawn some jewelry. They gave their names as Harry Parker and Harry Johnson. They had just $22.16 in their possession and both were attired in natty black suits, fresh from the store. About $3,500 was the value put on Moyer's goods. The valuation of the property found in the possession of the suspects will reach that amount, it is thought, when inventoried at the prices fixed on the stolen property. The police are sure that they have the proofs to fasten the terrible crime on the two men who can be traced as leaving Detroit for Cleveland on the D. & C. boat the night the crime was committed; that they visited Buffalo and returned to Cleveland, where they were arrested and many other evidences. From the boy who saw the murderers escape over Moyer's rear fence, from the Ohio men, lately located by the police, who also say they saw this escape; from the boat official who can identify Johnson and Parker who left Detroit on the Cleveland boat a few hours after the murder, and from other more or less trustworthy sources will come the identifications, which may fasten the crime upon the two Cleveland suspects. Two women pickpockets, known to the Detroit police and the Cleveland department, are said to have made the trip to Cleveland with Parker and Johnson, and to have talked with the men on the boat, cannot be found at present, but when picked up are expected to be used in identification of the suspects. It is thought they were working partners of the crooks. The manner of the escape of the two men, after they emerged from the alley and ran out on Randolph street, where they disappeared from the view of those who saw them leave the alley, will probably never be revealed. In spite of this cordon of officers, the men, unnoticed, walked aboard the D. & C. steamer and went down the river even while the officers were searching every conceivable spot for them, and while suspects were being brought into the station. The manner in which the men so boldly walked down to the dock and boarded the steamer bears out the supposition that they had all arrangements made whereby they could discard their bloody clothing and don other garments, effectually hiding all evidence of the struggle they had had with the unfortunate Moyer, when he was struck down.

Stolen Papers Returned.

Lieutenant of Detectives Lally of Detroit has been the recipient of a mysterious package, the contents of which proved to be a number of checks, notes and other important papers, aggregating in value over $25,000. It appears that a few weeks ago the office of the Crystal Salt company at St. Clair, Mich., was entered by burglars who blew the safe. Very little cash was stolen, but all of the firm's papers, books, checks, notes, etc., were carried away. Weeks have passed since and the firm had already given up hope of the recovery of their property. Now the burglars, evidently realizing that they cannot dispose of their booty, have returned it to Mr. Lally, who sent it back to the firm in St. Clair.

Sanitary Conditions Good.

Secretary Shumway, of the state board of health, is firmly convinced that the sanitary conditions at Alma college were in no wise responsible for the outbreak of typhoid fever which resulted from a banquet served at the institution in June. He says there is nothing to show that the college was in any way to blame for the outbreak, as the premises are in good condition and the water supply above suspicion.

Thursday night's lightning storm struck John Murray, a Muskegon citizen, while he was asleep, and he will probably die.

STATE BRIEFS.

The trolley road from Lansing to Pine Lake is finished and regular car service began Sunday. Henry Hoffman, an old citizen, of Metz, has been killed by falling to see a train coming upon him. Five cases of typhoid have been reported in Kalamazoo within the past week, and the health board is looking for the cause. A company is prospecting for coal on quite an extensive scale at Bentley, just west of Standish, and there are all kinds of indications. Gov. Warner has issued a proclamation setting Wednesday, August 9, as Michigan day at the Lewis and Clark exposition at Portland, Ore. Frank Allcott, a Toledo business man camping on the Au Sable, near Grayling, has been fined $10 and costs for killing a deer out of season. Judge Carr of the circuit court has ordered a grand jury for the September term of court, the first in Cass county since the March term, 1859. The attorney general has sent an agent to Alpena to conclude the settlement of the cases commenced against homesteaders on state lands. The 2-year-old son of Capt. Thomas Witt, of Norway, drank some gasoline left in a cup on a window sill after some cleaning and died in 20 minutes. John O. Ross, miner in Pere Marquette No. 2, lies in a plaster cast in a Saginaw hospital, having been crushed by a fall of slate in the mine. After 20 years as a section foreman on the Michigan Central railroad, Dennis Kiley, Jr., of Standish, has quit railroading and will be a coal dealer. Claud Russell, sent to Ionia reformatory from Kalamazoo county March 21 for two years for criminal assault, has been paroled by the state pardon board. Lightning struck in ten places, mostly in Augusta township, one day last week and among other damage killed four hogs, three horses, two cows and one mule. Gov. Warner has commuted to 15 years the 20-year sentence of John Mallach, who shot Frank Grawacki, when several drunken men attacked him on his own porch. The marksmen of Co. D, First M. N. G., challenge any three men from any one company in the state, slow firing, 200, 300, 500 and 600 yards, totals of each man to decide the contest. Ray Bedell, aged 12, living at Aloha, on the Detroit & Mackinaw railroad, piled obstructions on the track and nearly wrecked the northern flyer. He is now in the county jail and says he just wanted to see a wreck. South Haven was a wide open town Sunday and thousands of visitors from Chicago and other places came to help the liberal citizens celebrate. It is said that an appeal has been made to Gov. Warner for troops to enforce the laws. John D. Doyle, aged 27 years, a former Detroit millwright, was scalded to death in the plant of the Helmbacher Forge & Rolling Mills Co., a branch of the American Car & Foundry Co., in East St. Louis, Ill., Saturday. Forest fires started Wednesday afternoon a few miles east of Haakwood in Cheboygan county, and are still raging with considerable fury. About 100,000 feet of logs which were cut and skidded were consumed. The loss will be considerable. Five strike breakers were held for trial in Saginaw on the charge of murdering Henry Wieck, Jr., who was shot on June 7, at the opening of the street railway strike. The five are: Fred Harris, Wm. F. Johnson, W. D. Hurlburt, James Sullivan and Anton Tubak. The body of the man killed by a Pere Marquette train last week at St. Joseph, has been identified by Dr. F. M. Gowdy as James Gray, a farm hand in his employ. Gray was once charged with murder, but proved an alibi. He later served time for robbing mails. Oscar L. Robinson, aged 57, of Ann Arbor, committed suicide by hanging Thursday morning. He was married a month ago yesterday, his bride being Miss Martha McKinnon, sister of his first wife who died about a year ago. Robinson had been despondent for the past two weeks. Assistant Adjt.-Gen. Wyckoff, of the Michigan department, G. A. R., has forwarded to the national department his report for the first half of 1905. It shows that during the six months the department lost 288 members, by death and had a total membership of 11,934 at the close of the period. George Gage had been out of work a long time at Decatur, Ill., when his home and contents were burned, his wife barely escaping with a tiny babe in her arms. He came to Battle Creek six months ago and secured work at Advance Thresher Works. Saturday evening he suddenly dropped dead. Detroit has added many thousands to its population by the annexation of Delray, Springwells and Woodmere. The first Monday in April, Annexation day, Michigan will lose its largest village. According to the last state census Delray had 6,627 inhabitants. Its population at present is estimated at about 7,500. Heavy rains caused dams to burst near Bridgeport, Conn., Sunday, and great damage to property was caused. One man, Wm. Kowzeski, was drowned. Karl W. Jenks, formerly of Belvidere, Ill., a coal prospector, has been made an Arab shah in Kona, Egypt, and commands a troband clan of 300 Bedouins.

HISTORIC MEETING

THE ENVOYS OF PEACE MEET AND GREET EACH OTHER.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S TOAST MAKES A PROFOUND IMPRESSION.

AT PORTSMOUTH, N. H., BEGINS THE WORK OF ENDING A WAR.

History was made in Oyster Bay Saturday. Russians and Japanese clasped hands and greeted one another with all outward evidence of cordiality and for the first time since nations began to have relations one with another, an executive of a great power received the envoys of two belligerent countries on a mission of peace. President Roosevelt, on behalf of the United States and its people, extended formal greetings to the representatives of Russia and Japan, introduced the plenipotentiaries to one another and entertained them at an elaborate luncheon, at which Russians and Japanese fraternized with one another as comrades rather than as enemies. The occasion was impressive. It was attended not by pomp and ceremony, but by a simplicity and frankness characteristic of the president and the people of America. Due honor was paid the distinguished guests of the president and of the country and they were received with all the dignity to which their exalted rank entitled them. The envoys of the two countries were received by the president on board the Mayflower separately. The Japanese envoys who arrived on the cruiser Taocma were the first to board the ship and be received by Mr. Roosevelt. Soon after the cruiser Chattanooga came to anchor about half a mile from the Mayflower and the Russian envoys who were on board were transferred to the reception ship. After receiving the members of the Russian suite and presenting all in turn to his personal guests, the president then brought the two sets of envoys together, introducing them formally to one another. It was a notable scene as the diminutive Baron Komura shook hands with the giant Witte at the instance of the president of the United States. The greetings of the members of the two special missions were distinctly formal, but not the slightest suggestion of enmity was shown on either side. Although the luncheon was served with the other guests standing, the president escorted the four envoys to chairs in one corner of the saloon and in half a minute, through tact and delicacy, the whole party was engaged in animated conversation over their dishes. The conversation generally was in French, as Mr. Witte speaks very little English. Baron Rosen and Baron Komura chatted as if they had been lifelong friends and Minister Takahira, at no time particularly communicative, entered into the conversation with zest and interest. During the luncheon President Roosevelt proposed a notable toast: "I propose a toast to which there will be no answer and to which I ask you to drink in silence, standing. I drink to the welfare and prosperity of the sovereigns and peoples of the two great nations whose representatives have met one another on this ship. It is my most earnest hope and prayer in the interest of not only these two great powers, but of all mankind, that a just and lasting peace may speedily be concluded between them." There was no mistaking the earnestness and sincerity of the president's speech. Every one in the little group, even those who did not understand the language he spoke, was deeply impressed, not alone with the momentousness of the occasion, but each word seemed to impress more thoroughly upon each mind the fact that they had a great duty to perform and that this man was pointing the way. With this sentiment the president left them. It was a scene that will never be forgotten by those who witnessed it. On one side the huge Russian, M. Witte, and on the other side Baron Komura, the diminutive, both so typical of the country they represent. For just a second the eyes of these two great men left those of the man who was speaking and sought each other's.

The sessions of the envoys for the two countries will be held at the navy yard in Portsmouth, N. H., for which port the envoys sailed on the Mayflower and Dolphin, the Galveston escorting them. A girl outlaw, 18 years old, who appears to have captured a gang of thieving desperadoes, is in custody of Sheriff Henry S. Wilson of Bennington county. She will not tell her name. One of her male companions is dead with a bullet hole through his heart and two others are in jail. The camp where the battle took place was found fitted with tents, bedding, cooking utensils, good clothes and stolen plunder of all kinds, including enough provisions to last a month. The captured girl says she planned the robbery and kept camp while the men were away.

STORM'S FURY.

WESTERN MICHIGAN IS AGAIN HEAVILY VISITED.

Reports from various points in western Michigan indicate that Thursday night's lightning and rain storm was the worst of the year. Several towns were isolated; having neither telegraph nor telephone service, nor communication by railroad. Bridges have been washed away and live stock drowned. Lightning caused fires which burned many farm buildings. Indian creek went on another tear. The Grand Rapids Brass and Iron Bed Co. was put out of business, the Malleable Iron Works crippled and the Republican Oil Co.'s plant surrounded by water. At Whitehall in six hours three inches of rain fell, making a total of seven inches in six days. The Pere Marquette is operating no trains on the Pentwater division on account of serious washouts. Peach orchards are damaged badly.

The Canal Zone.

John Barrett, minister to Panama until a month ago, and now minister to Colombia, declares that the yellow fever will be driven out of the isthmus. "The fight against yellow fever is like a great battle," he said. "Every effort is made to stamp out the disease. The people of the United States must not be impatient if the progress of the canal is slow." They must remember that the scene of operation is 2,000 miles away from the base of supplies.

Saved the Girls.

Two Indian girls named Birch and Alder Kawanosh were rescued from drowning Saturday night in the rapids of St. Mary's river by Hon. Chase S. Osborn, and the story has just become public. Their boat upset and Mr. Osborn heard their cries for help from his houseboat. He succeeded in saving both.

After 41 years Henry Duant, aged 63, has returned from New Mexico to his wife in Detroit. Married at Trenton, Mich., while on a furlough, he had rejoined the First Michigan cavalry at the front after four days' honeymoon. He resolved to postpone his return to his wife after the war until he had sought a fortune in western gold fields. All he has now is $1,500 back pension and an income of $10 per month.

THE MARKETS.

Detroit—Prices for cattle are about steady with last week. When local butchers buy sufficient for their wants then prices drop. Only the best grades seem to hold up. Good grades of milch cows were a trifle higher but common grades were dull and selling at about last week's prices. One extra fine registered cow brought $50 but it was unusually fine. A few good ones brought $45, but bulk of sales was at from $20 to $35. The trade in calves was lower than last week, but the close was about the same in some time. Best grades at the opening brought $6.50 but $6.50 to $7 and others from $4 to $6.50. Sheep: The run of sheep and lambs was too heavy for the demand. Fair to good lambs, $6 to $7; light to common lambs, $5 to $6; fair to good butchers' sheep, $4 to $5; culls and common, $3 to $3. Hogs: The trade was active and 5 cents higher than last week, nearly everything on sale bringing $6.10. One extra fancy bunch brought $6.20 at the close. Chicago: Good to prime steers, $5.25 @ $5.90; poor to medium, $3.75 @ $5.10; stockers and feeders, $2.25 @ $4.20; cows, $2.40 @ $4.50; heifers, $2.25 @ $4.30; canners, $1.50 @ $2.40; butchers' fat calves, $3 @ $7; Texas fed steers, $3.60 @ $4; western steers, $3.50 @ $4.90. Hogs: Mixed and butchers, $5.50 @ 6.05; good to choice heavy, $5.90 @ 6.05; rough heavy, $5.35 @ 5.75; light, $5.70 @ 6.10; bulk of sales, $5.75 @ 5.90. East Buffalo: Best export steers, $4.85 @ 5.35; best shipping steers, $4.60 @ 4.80; best fat cows, $3.50 @ 3.75; few extra; 1st fat good, $2.75 @ 3.25; culls, $1.50 @ 2.50; best fat hogs, $4 @ 4.25; medium heifers, $3.25 @ 3.50; light butchers' heifers, $3 @ 3.25; common stock heifers, $2.50 @ 2.75; best feeding steers, $2.60 @ 3.75; best yearling steers, $3 @ 3.25; common steers, $2.50 @ 2.75; export bulls, $3.50 @ 3.75; Bologna, $3 @ 3.35. The cow market was dull and from $3 @ 5 lower; good to extra, $2 @ 2.50. Calves—Market higher; best, $8 @ 8.25; fair to good, $7.25 @ 7.75; heavy, $6 @ 7. Hogs—Medium heavy, $6.15 @ 6.25; mixed, $6.25 @ 6.30; yorkers, $6.30 @ 6.35; pigs, $6.35 @ 6.40. ## FEAR FOR NIAGARA

IMMENSE VOLUME OF WATER DIVERTED FROM FALLS

Commercial Enterprises are Making Heavy Drains on This Famous Show-Place—its Tremendous Electrical Power the Inducement.

Niagara Falls, August 7.—The volume of water being diverted from the historic Niagara Falls is reaching such proportions that the people of the State are trying to pass laws which will prevent the possibility of a practical wiping out of this sublime natural spectacle.

Water sufficient to develop nearly five hundred thousand horse-power continuously, twenty-four hours per day, for industrial purposes, is now being taken from the river above the Falls, and further developments requiring more water are contemplated.

Probably the largest user of the electricity produced by the waters of the mighty river is the concern which by the five or six thousand degree heat of the electric furnace brings lime and coke into unwilling union, thereby producing what is known as Calcium Carbide.

Dry calcium carbide is lifeless as so much broken rock, but in contact with water it springs into activity and begets abundantly the gas Acetylene. The light resulting from the ignition of acetylene is the nearest approach to sunlight known.

These facts, though of comparatively recent discovery, were soon seized by men with an eye to the commercial possibilities and to-day calcium carbide is being shipped everywhere and used for dispelling darkness in buildings of all descriptions, from the ordinary barn of the farmer to the country villa of the wealthy, as well as for lighting the streets of a large number of towns. Acetylene can be easily and cheaply installed, and the manufacture and sale of acetylene generators has become a business of recognized standing, has assumed large proportions and is steadily growing.

Silly Ideas About Napoleon.

Thackeray once saw Napoleon on the island of St. Helena. The novelist—he was born in Calcutta, in 1811—was on his way to England as a child. "Our ship touched at an island where my black servant took me a long walk over rocks and hills until we saw a man walking in a garden. 'That is he,' said the black man; 'that is Bonaparte. He eats three sheep every day, and all the little children he can lay hands on.' That black serving man was not the only person of the time to believe the story which he told.

Soldiers Escort Mails.

In some parts of the Sahara desert and in wild and little frequented parts of Asia, where outlaws and brigands abound, the governments send an escort of soldiers with the mail carriers bearing registered packages. In a vast number of cases the cost of the escort is greatly in excess of the value of the package to be delivered, and it would be ruinous to the recipient were he obliged to bear the expense of the delivery. The government, however, relieves the citizen of this expense.—Washington Star.

Sound as a Dollar.

Monticello, Minn., Aug. 7th.—Mr. J. W. Moore of this place stands as a living proof of the fact that Bright's Disease, even in the last stages, may be perfectly and permanently cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Moore says: "In 1898 three reputable physicians after a careful examination told me that I would die with Bright's Disease inside of a year. My feet and ankles and legs were badly swollen; I could hardly stand on my feet and had given up all hopes of getting cured when a traveling salesman told me that he himself had been cured of Bright's Disease two years before.

"He said he had taken to his bed and expected to die with it, but that he had been cured by a remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I commenced taking them at once and I am thankful to say that they saved my life. After a short treatment I was completely restored to good health and I am now as sound as a dollar."

Bride Cake.

Our bride cake, which invariably accompanies a wedding, and which should always be cut by the bride, may be traced back to the old Roman form of marriage by a confarreatio, or eating together.—Lubbock, "Origin of Civilization."

Wren Builds Many Nests.

One of the most energetic nest-builders is the marsh wren; in fact, he has the habit to such a degree that he cannot stop with one nest, but goes on building four or five in rapid succession.

First English Windmills.

Windmills were introduced in England by the Crusaders, who had seen them in use among the Saracens.

AT THE SOO.

FEATURES OF THE GREAT CELEBRATION OF LAST WEEK.

Ten thousand visitors invaded the Soo to take part in the celebration, which began at sunrise Wednesday morning, when the government ships boomed a salute. The United States had assembled all its available craft for the occasion, the most formidable of which was the Yantic, manned by the naval reserves. The naval parade proved to be an exceedingly pretty sight, all the government vessels, including revenue cutters, tenders and tugs, being gaily decorated. Vice-President Fairbanks, Senator Burrows and a number of invited guests boarded the revenue cutter Tuscarora, which acted as the flagship of the fleet, while Gov. Warner and his staff, the legislative delegation and a number of ladies were on the revenue cutter Morrill. Then came the steamer Philadelphia, carrying Attorney-General Lamieux, the official representative of the Dominion government. The other craft in line were the patrol boat Mackinac, supply boats Marigold, Amaranth and Sumac, and the tugs Schenck, Merrick, General, W. A. Routh and W. H. Seymour.

The land parade took place in the afternoon, Charles T. Harvey, who constructed the original Michigan lock in 1855, acting as grand marshal, and he was given an enthusiastic reception. Vice-President Fairbanks and Gov. Warner drove to the reviewing stand and each was the object of a good deal of attention from the crowd. The exercises on Thursday consisted of:

Invocation by Archdeacon Arthur H. Lord, of Sault Ste. Marie.

Address of welcome by Hon. Chase S. Osborn, of Sault Ste. Marie, acting for the mayor of Sault Ste. Marie.

Address, "The State of Michigan and the Building of the St. Mary's Canal," by Gov. Fred M. Warner.

Historical address, "The Development of the Lake Superior Region," by Hon. Peter White, president of the Lake Superior canal semi-centennial commission of 1905.

From 12 to 2 o'clock—Intermission. Luncheon at the club room of Le Sault Ste. Marie club and Sault Ste. Marie Elks lodge for guests holding tickets.

Afternoon—Concert by First Regimental United States Infantry band.

Two o'clock, address by Hon. Theodore E. Burton, member of congress from Ohio; chairman of the house of representatives' committee on rivers and harbors.

Address by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, solicitor-general of Canada.

Address, "The Navigators of the Great Lakes," by Hon. William Livingston, president of the Lake Carriers' association.

Address, "The Future of American Commerce," by Hon. Julius C. Burrows, United States senator from Michigan.

The address of Vice-President Fairbanks was devoted largely to the fact that American and Canadian vessels were using the canal without reference to national policies. He hoped the time would never come when forts were necessary on our borders, but that we would continue to dwell in neighborly harmony. He firmly believed that the United States was destined to become the greatest commercial power in the world, and the great lakes was a large factor in making it such.

PEACE ENVOYS.

THE RUSSIAN HIGH GUNS VISIT THE PRESIDENT.

Sergius Witte and Baron Rosen, Russian envoys to the peace conference, whose powers are so great that they could end the war in twenty-four hours, were guests Friday of the president and Mrs. Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill. They arrived in Oyster Bay over the Long Island railroad. They were unaccompanied by any other Russian officials. As the envoys alighted from their car they were met by confidential messengers from the president's official household and escorted to one of the president's carriages sent to the station to convey them to Sagamore Hill. A considerable crowd of residents of the village had assembled at the station to see the distinguished visitors.

Assurance was given that the visit of the Russian envoys does not differ in any material respect from that of Baron Komura and Minister Takahira of Japan last week. Before the formal reception of the envoys M. Witte desired to pay his respects informally to President Roosevelt.

Clergyman to Hang.

Rev. J. G. Rawlins has been found guilty as an accessory to the murder of two children of Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Carter, of Valdosta, Ga., and unless a higher court intervenes Rev. Rawlins and his sons, Milton and Jesse, and Alf Moore, a negro, will have to hang. The Rawlins sons and Moore were found guilty of the murder some time ago.

Rawlins and Carter were ministers in the Methodist church. A feud started and Rawlins plotted to wipe out the Carter family. It was arranged that Moore and Milton, Jesse and Leonard Rawlins were to go to the Carter home and kill the parents as they sat at the supper table. When the children ran out they were to be shot down. The assassins, however, arrived after the evening meal, and only succeeded in killing two of the children who came into the yard. Moore confessed the plot.

Angels envy us our nights because of the moras they bring.

BY OUR OWN OWL.

No wise woman trusts a man who trusts to luck.

Silence is golden—and some remarks are very brassy.

Matrimony has cured many an old bachelor of selfishness.

Some people's goodness is founded upon lack of opportunity.

One way to convince a woman that she is in the wrong is to agree with her.

Honesty between husbands and wives is the best insurance against divorce.

If people were given all they pray for the world would have to be enlarged.

A girl's modesty has reached the limit when she blushes at what she sees reflected in her own mirror.

No man who is ashamed to act as motor to a baby carriage has any business to butt into the matrimonial game.

SPLINTERS.

A man isn't a man until he has passed the swearing-off stage.

It's useless to waste sympathy on a man who has the toothache.

Getting married is as much of a gamble as swapping horses.

A woman isn't necessarily up to date just because her husband is the latest thing out.

A fellow never realizes how many people want to treat until he has sworn off.

THE VIEWS OF UNCLE JOSH.

Them fast steamers are makin' the big pond look small.

Love may be blind, but that doesn't keep it from findin' the way.

I ain't sure that I'd be satisfied if I had a million, but I reckon I'd be as satisfied as anybody could reasonably expect.

I dunno much about this higher criticism except I reckon it's givin' lots of folk an excuse for stayin' away from church.

Wabash Train Is Derailed.

Buffalo, N. Y., dispatch: A Wabash passenger train was derailed three miles west of Buffalo. Five coaches were turned over. Seven passengers were injured, none of them seriously.

The Miracle of Memory

One of the most remarkable of all the mental processes is memory. How are sight pictures and sound pictures and other impressions stored in the mind, and how are we able to recall them? Here, again, we are in the presence of a wonderful miracle, and at best we can only seek to make clear the fact by illustration and comparison. There are certain bodies possessed of a property known as phosphorescence. After having been exposed to daylight for a time, these bodies give off light in the dark. They store up certain portions of the sunbeam, and give them off again. This is a sort of a physical memory. These phosphorescent bodies simply continue in the dark that which they do in the sunlight.

In some way the impressions made through the eye, ear and other senses induce such actions and changes in the nerve cells which are connected with these organs that under the right sort of stimulus the same action may be reproduced, and brought within the range of consciousness. This reproduction of past impressions is secured through the connection of that portion of the brain which is the seat of consciousness with other portions in which impressions are stored by means of the delicate nerve branches previously described. The numerous connections of these nerve fibers bring them in direct or indirect association with all the different parts of the brain. In trying to remember, one often is conscious of an effort, and the brain may be very much wearied in a long-continued effort to recall impressions which have been partially effaced. The mental effort consists in energizing the fibers so as to make them project forward their delicate endings, thus making numerous contacts, perhaps millions, with different cells, until by and by the particular cell or group of cells in which the desired word or other impression was made is recognized. When one is weary, it is often difficult, sometimes impossible, to recall names or data of various sorts which may be entirely familiar. This is because of the impossibility of energizing the nerve cells sufficiently to make the desired contacts. Anything which benumbs the nerves, as alcohol, tobacco, tea, coffee, opium, may have the effect to benumb the nervous sensibility and lessen nervous energy, and thus operate deleteriously upon memory. Memory, however, is perhaps most seriously injured by loss of sleep, whereby brain energy becomes exhausted. Sometimes the memory may be for the time being almost entirely effaced by long-continued loss of sleep.

Depreciation of memory in old age is one of the first indications of failing mental power. It is interesting to note, however, that the memory of events which happened in early life are often remembered, while others of recent occurrence quickly pass from the mind.

How He Became Liveryman

"How'd I come to go into the livery business? Why," said the genial and opulent livery stable proprietor, as he rolled the big black cigar to a slightly different angle between his teeth, "it was kind o' funny."

"You see, I had a large family, all girls, nice girls, all of them, and naturally they all had a good deal of company, and they used to go a good deal, and to a good many places they went to they had to have carriages; and my carriage bill was something frightful for me."

"I was doing a fair sort of a business, very fair, in fact, but I couldn't by any means afford to keep a carriage myself, and every month that carriage bill for my daughters used to bite a frightful hole into my income. And finally that set me to thinking."

"I'm not the only man in the world, I says to myself, with a bunch of fine daughters. The world is full of fine daughters. I says to myself, belonging to fine families that want 'em to make as good a show as anybody and all hiring carriages for 'em."

"Why shouldn't I make, myself, the profit on the business that my daughters would bring to a stable, a pretty fair sort of a business in itself, or at least a sure starter, and do business for other people's daughters, too?"

"That's all there was to it. I was certain of some business and I was willing to take a chance on the rest."

"And everything went all right. My daughters gave me all their patronage, and they used more carriages now than they ever had before—they said they wanted to see their father do well, and I got my full share of the patronage of other people's daughters, and the volume of it was great."

"In the course of time my daughters all married and they all did well; very comfortably, to say the least. Every one of them now keeps a carriage of her own, and keeps it in my stable; and so the girls, nice girls, every one, that once cost me so much, though I never begrudged 'em a cent of it, now send me money, every one."

"Their business alone is something tidy, but they are really only a few of many profitable customers, and I have never regretted taking up the livery business."

"But it was sort of funny, now, how I came to go into it, wasn't it?"

If we exclude Chinese laborers or others from the United States, we should recognize the right of China to exclude American laborers from China.

It is as plain as the nose on your face that both eastern nations are sick of fighting. Russia is weary of defeat; Japan is weary of the terrible cost of victory.

Uncle Sam's dragnet caught a lot of big fish in the beef trust cases, and it is hoped the whales will not be allowed to escape while the minnows are held.

The sensible farmer takes things as they come, is not elated to much by success or cast down by failure, but keeps on an even keel both in fair weather and foul.

Although a Philadelphia doctor has been able to sew up a man's heart it is not likely that women with broken hearts will go to him in preference to the civil courts.

It is reported that radium has gone up in price. Seeing it was already $3,000 a grain, a slight variation will not greatly effect its use as a household commodity.

At no time in the past 30 years have the wage earnings of the miners been as fair as they are now, and yet there is the rumbling of a strike. Some people are never satisfied.

One of the state papers in an article regarding Miss Alice Roosevelt refers to her as Princess Alice. This is going beyond true Americanism and we do not believe that even Miss Alice would approve of the title.

The question of teaching agriculture or plant growth in district schools is receiving considerable attention. The advantage of this is to interest the children in the scientific side of agriculture and to show them that they do not need to go to the professions to exercise their intellect.

When some poor fellow swallows poison or puts a bullet through his brain, we cry out, "Suicide! Suicide!" and turn away from the spectacle in horror, little realizing, the meanwhile, that nearly all of us are doing the very same thing—committing suicide. In other words we are rushing through life to eternity, hardly taking time to breathe or eat a decent meal, as Americans we are to much in a rush.

Public is Aroused

The public is aroused to a knowledge of the curative merits of that great medicinal tonic, Electric Bitters, for sour stomach, liver and kidneys. Mary H. Walters, of 546 St. Clair Ave., Columbus, O., writes: "For several months, I was given up to die. I had fever and ague, my nerves were wrecked; I could not sleep, and my stomach was so weak, from useless doctors' drugs, that I could not eat. Soon after beginning to take Electric Bitters, I obtained relief, and in a short time I was cured." Guaranteed at F. A. Sigler's drug store; price 50c.

It seems as if the state of Michigan pays its officials sufficient salary to enable them to buy their own cigars if they wish them without charging them up as "butter and eggs" as Warden Vincent did. There are thousands of taxpayers that do not buy cigars for themselves and do not care to be forced to buy them for others.

Professor Kelsey, in a recent illustrated lecture at Ann Arbor brought out one idea which quite astonished his listeners. It appears that the excavations have revealed a most complete water system in the buried city, so perfect in fact, was the plumbing in that day and so well has it been preserved that since the ruins were uncovered, all that was necessary to use the system was to turn on the water again and it flows through the pipes today as nicely as in any city in this country.—Register

W. C. T. U.

Edited by the Pinckney W. C. T. U.

At an interesting meeting of the W. C. T. U. last Friday at the home of Mrs. Ella Jackson the following is an extract read from Marion Bonsall's "Tragedy of the Morman Woman." The book of Morman as is generally known, is believed by the Mormans to have been restored to the world by the prophet Joseph Smith these records were given to them by an angel. To them is taught that God meant Adam, a polygamous God, and Christ was a polygamous Christ among whose wives were Mary and Martha.

Countless hundreds of years ago the head God called together the other Gods and sat in grand council to bring forth the world, they sent Adam with one of his wives to beautify and people it. Provided that a morman man has been a consistent saint and obeyed the "celestial," which is the plural order of marriage, he will be exalted to be ruler of a planet or a God and his kingdom will consist of his wife and children. In mathematical order he will in turn take one of his wives and go to an uninhabited planet and people it after the manner of Adam and Eve. All of these children will, in their turn, have a similar opportunity of becoming Gods and being as Adam to another planet.

If a man receives a "revelation" to take to himself a plural wife it is easily confirmed by the church and he is justified in possessing any number of wives and he cannot sin "for they belong to him." This vulgar document is put above the words of Him who taught man to love but one woman and forsaking all others to cleave only unto her. But, you say, there is the "Manifesto". So I said when I entered Utah now I tell you that the manifesto issued by the late President Woodruff supposed to prohibit plural marriages not only has news been included in the Doctrine and Covenants but never actually forbade it, the words of the manifesto reading, My advice to the Latter day Saints is to refrain from contracting any marriage forbidden by the law of the land. The purpose of this is to deceive the Gentiles and the government and plural marriages are continually being contracted.

BANNER SALVE

The Last American King.

Maximilian and his followers were shut up in Querataro. Many powerful influences were at work to save him. Seward also did his best. But he made little or no effort to escape. If he had failed as an emperor he could at least face disaster with the courage and the dignity of a right princely nature. Betrayed by the infamous Lopez, tried before a court martial of boys and ordered to be shot, he spent his last days in the discharge of all the obligations of friendship and courtesy. A false report of the death of Carlotta being brought to him in prison he said simply, "One less tie to bind me to the world!" Led forth to his execution and told to stand between two of his generals who were likewise condemned, he surrendered the place of honor to General Miramon in recognition of his courage. The rattle of the muskets marked perhaps the end of all monarchy in the new world. But the bitterest critic of democracy could scarcely desire a gentler figure than Maximilian's to stand before the eyes of Americans as the last representative of aristocracy and of kingship on this continent.—William Garrott in Atlantic.

Just Meandering.

A city girl writes, "It is a fond dream of mine to become a farmer's wife and meander with him down life's pathway." Ah, yes, that is a nice thing! But when your husband meanders off and leaves you without wood and you have to meander up and down the lane pulling splinters off the fence to cook dinner, and when you meander along in the wet grass in search of the cows till your shoes are the color of rawhide and your stockings soaked, and when you meander out across twenty acres of plowed ground with a club to drive the hogs out of the cornfield and tear your dress on the barb wire fence, when you meander back home to the house, and that the billy goat has butted the stuffin' out of your child and the old hen, with forty chickens, in the parlor, you'll put your hands on your hips and realize that meandering is not what it is cracked up to be.—Osborne (Kan.) Noted Dead In Trinity Churchyard.

Alexander Hamilton is buried in Trinity churchyard, at the head of Wall street, New York, and the grave is marked by a conspicuous white marble monument near the Rector street station of the elevated road. His wife, who lived until 1854, fifty years after his death in the duel with Burr, is buried beside him. Albert Gallatin, who succeeded Hamilton as secretary of the treasury, lies only a few feet away, and near by is also the grave of Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat. Another famous occupant of Trinity churchyard, whose monument is near the Broadway gate, is Captain James Lawrence of the United States navy, commander of the frigate Chesapeake, who fell in battle with the British ship Shannon June 1, 1813, in the thirty-second year of his age. As he fell upon the deck he cried to his subordinates, "Don't give up the ship!"

"The Delight of Mankind." Titus, the Roman emperor, was entitled "the delight of mankind." Titus' beneficence was unbounded, and it so happened that during his brief reign there was the most urgent need of its exercise. In the first year occurred the great eruption of Vesuvius, overwhelming Herculaneum and Pompeii and ruining numerous other towns and villages. The next year a fire broke out in Rome, which raged three days, causing great destruction, and in the tracks of these calamities followed a dreadful pestilence. Titus dealt out gifts with lavish hand to the homeless and ruined sufferers. He even despoiled the palaces of their valuable ornaments to obtain money for distribution and schemed and planned to furnish occupation for them. He was now the idol of his subjects, the "love and delight of the human race," but, unfortunately for that part of the human race over which he ruled, in the commencement of the third year of his reign he became suddenly ill and died at his patrimonial villa in the Sabine country.

Diplomacy. "What did papa say?" "He showed me the door." "And what did you say?" "I said it was certainly a very handsome door, but not what I had come to talk about. That made him laugh, and a minute later you were mine."

Swells of Ancient Egypt.

From what has come down to us, written, painted or chiseled, the Egyptian lord must have been a great swell. The details of the twelfth dynasty show Egyptian elegance at its best. The lord has a male housekeeper, his maitre d'hotel, called "superintendent of the provision house." There was a "superintendent of the baking house," and the mixer of drinks had the title of "scribe of the sideboard." Perhaps he was a butler and regulated the supply of wines from the cellar. There were gardeners, porters and handcraft men, all busy in attending to the master. "A preparer of sweets" must have been a confectioner. The Egyptian when he was no longer mortal had hopes of being well fed in the hereafter, as he believed he would be nourished in his particular heaven with abundant goose and beef. Offerings to gods show the variety of the Egyptian menu, and in one are included ten kinds of cooked meat, five kinds of birds or game, sixteen varieties of bread and cake, six assorted wines, four brews of beers, eleven sorts of fruits and an endless number of sweet things.

James Crossley, a noted English bibliomaniac, hid him one memorable day to a bookstall in Shudehill market and, spying a little volume, took it up and glanced carelessly through it. After awhile he asked its price from an old woman and was told it was two and sixpence. "I'll give you sixpence for it," said Crossley. "Nay," replied the poor old dame; "it cost me 2 shillings." Whereupon our book devourer threw it down in disgust and retired. A gentleman, overhearing the altercation, stepped forward and purchased it at the sum demanded. Crossley returned soon after and, noticing the book had gone, anxiously inquired what had become of it. "Sold," answered the woman, "for what you refused to give." "Tell me who bought it, and I'll give him 10 shillings for it!" said Crossley eagerly. The moral is self evident.

THE GIRL WHO WAS TOO GOOD

[Original.]

I was obliged to leave college during the spring of my senior year. I had devoted myself exclusively to study, and this had broken down my health. I was advised by my physician to go to some quiet country place and do nothing from morning till night but lounge. I chose the village of N. When I went there the leaves were budding, the air was soft and balmy, the walks were beautiful, and I gave myself up to strolling. On one of my routes there was a young ladies' seminary surrounded by a high brick wall. One morning while passing I heard a voice—it was soft and melodious and evidently came from a young girl—uttering a string of words that could only be expected from one of the opposite sex:

"By thunder! A thousand devils! Confound it!"

The expletives were not all as innocent as these. There were many that would have done credit to the forecastle. A repetition of them would repel the reader, though to me the words came out with such apparent unconsciousness of guilt that I was simply amused. It was like a child just learning to talk, getting hold of expressions the meaning of which it does not understand. The girl did not seem to be angry with any one. She was evidently fascinated with the sounds, bringing them out with great gusto, as we students fired from our throats the college yell. I was attracted to the girl without even seeing her. I pictured her as one of those little imps who by their roguish ways fascinate all who come within their influence. She must have laughing eyes, a dimple in each cheek, the whitest of teeth constantly displayed in smiles by the parting of a pair of red lips. Then when romping with other girls I fancied her kicking off their hats, though if seen by a man she would turn scarlet. With my conception of her I fell in love, and, having nothing else to occupy my mind, I dwelt upon her charms constantly. I passed the school often, hoping again to hear the incongruity of a charming voice uttering such rough expressions, but this was not likely, and, though I often loitered for hours under the wall, I never heard the youthful swearer.

Ten years later I chose a wife. I always regretted that fate had never thrown the swearer in my way, though I feared if I had met, loved and won her she might have been altogether too peppery for me. My fiancée, the daughter of a clergyman, was her very opposite—a girl of character, one who took great interest in the charitable work connected with her father's church—indeed, what might be called a model woman. After all, though I, my little swearer must have turned out full of the old Nick, if not positively bad. Girls who have spice in them are attractive, but one never knows when a taste for wickedness is going to make them a trial to their husbands.

Nevertheless I wished that my fiancée had just a dash of this same spice. She seemed to me to be almost too steady. Men of my kind, men who are themselves reserved, dignified, methodical, always superior to temptation—because, I have often thought, we are not of a nature to be tempted—usually admire our opposites. I felt myself getting a trifle wearied by my fiancée's similarity to myself. As our wedding day approached this feeling grew upon me. Was I not about to make a mistake—the mistake of a whole lifetime? This set me to brooding when I should have been looking forward to the delights of a novel condition.

In time this something on my mind attracted the attention of the girl who was to be my bride. Instead of upbraiding me, as another woman would have done, she bore my condition without a murmur. This only dissatisfied me the more. "If she only had enough wickedness in her," I said to myself, "to tell me to go to the deuce I think I could be happy. As it is, she is killing me with her self control, her piety, her interest in good works. I should have known better than to marry a minister's daughter."

My condition was such a few days before our wedding that after a bitter mental struggle, which left me awake all night, I resolved to go to my bride expectant and make a confession. I went to her house in the morning after breakfast and asked for her. She came down with a happy look on her face, but when she saw my careworn expression it left her at once.

I led her to the library and shut the door.

"I have called," I said lugubriously, "to say before it is too late that I fear we are going to make a mistake, and it is better to back out at the last moment than ruin a whole lifetime. I have come to the conclusion that we are too much alike—both too steady, too upright, too serious—indeed, you are too good."

"So this is what has been troubling you," she said, her expression relaxing. "By thunder! A thousand devils! Confound it!"

"Are you"—I gasped.

"The girl you have told me about so often? Yes. From what you said about her I supposed you condemned her. It appears I have made a mistake."

With that she went on with a string of oaths so terrible that I put my hands to my ears that I should not hear. Then I caught her around the waist and stopped the flow of words with kisses.

All the real, practical goodness my wife had developed remained with her. The spice which she had concealed from me has been sparkling in her ever since our marriage.

I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—stinging sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. # THE MISSING MAN

By MARY R. P. HATCH

Author of "The Bank Tragedy"

Copyright, 1893, by Lee and Shepard

CHAPTER X—Continued.

"It is hard on you, if you were not to blame."

"Yes, but no one else ought to suffer."

"Vane," said his wife, "will you tell us why you went away?"

The children had now retired and the three sat alone together.

"I went on business. Did I not tell you so?"

"Yes, you told me so; but that does not explain why you went away every May since our marriage and stayed two weeks. You know and I know that there was a secret reason for your going."

"The same reasons for not telling you are still in force. The secret is not my own. If it were I would tell you. But the time will come when I can tell you. For the present it is too much to ask that a wife trust her husband?"

Constance turned away as if unsatisfied, but in a moment said in a low tone:

"You recollected the children's commissions, but did you not forget mine?"

"Did I? Was it not myself I was to bring?"

She did not answer.

"Was there anything else? If so, I have forgotten."

"You have not brought the same seal that you took away," she cried, passionately. "You are not the same."

He started to his feet as if stung by her words, but was calm in a moment, and answered reasonably and kindly.

"Is not the defect in you, Constance? I see none in myself. I feel the same toward you. It is you who are changed."

He arose and looked for his hat and gloves.

"I will go to the hotel for the present. Is that your wish, Constance?"

She bowed her head and murmured something about "changes to be made."

"What do you mean, Constance, by maintained after Mr. Carter went to his office and the children to school, for a meeting of the bank directors had been called at ten o'clock at his own residence.

In the hour of waiting there was much serious conversation between husband and wife. At last he said:

"I can see you doubt me. I have been gone so long; so many troubles have intervened they have tended to set you apart from me. Is not that so?"

"Perhaps so."

"Then I would not have you do violence to your feelings. I will stay here—it is better so for many reasons; but you shall live your own life until such a time as you can truly feel that you love me as you once did. I want to be near the children. I want to be near you, Constance. May I? May I have the room next to your uncle's?"

"Yes."

"And will you try to love me again?" he asked gently, yet with an eagerness he could not quite conceal.

"Love cannot be forced," she answered.

"But it will come in time if you will let it."

But suddenly, evidently recollecting some resolution he had made, he checked himself and said no more, while Constance sat idly turning over the leaves of a book until she saw the bank officers coming up the street. Then she arose to go.

President Hartwell and eight trustees, with Tony Osborn, soon entered. The new cashier, or treasurer, was not present.

Mr. Hamilton's manner was very cordial and easy. Well as the several gentlemen thought they knew him, they were not prepared for so much composure and freedom from nervousness. A rumor of lost identity as the sequel of his mysterious absence had already reached them, early as it was in the day; and they were, therefore, prepared to listen without interruptions or exclamations, until he had

Mr. Simon Low's letter in regard to Hamilton's having presented one of them to the National Bank in Boston. What could have been harder to bear than this if he were guilty? they thought, as they watched him gravely studying the notes and letters.

"The forgery was cleverly done," he said, handing them back. "I could never have detected it any more than Low did, and Low is above suspicion, of course. No doubt the matter is just as he states it. A man resembling me, doubtless, presented the note."

"But it was you who came to the bank, anyway."

It was Tony who spoke, at first seemingly with a little doubt clinging to his mind. But the anyway he brought out boldly, almost defiantly, as he looked at Mr. Hamilton, who for a moment lost his composure. He did not answer at once, and when he did it was in a hesitating way.

"I cannot dispute you, Tony. Would to Heaven I could. But consider this. If it was I who came there, should I not have come home? would not my footsteps have unconsciously brought me to my own door?"

"Perhaps not," said Mr. Taylor, a quiet man who had not before spoken.

"I have read of instances of dual life where everything is changed. Memory is a thing apart from consciousness. It is said to be a function of matter to be impressed with its own actions. When an action has been repeated many times, or even, once, strongly, the memory of it becomes stamped upon a little cell of the brain, and the stamp dominates the cell. When the stimulant again comes, the cell reacts as it formerly has done. Now here comes the point in question. When the stimulant falls, from overwork or worry or other powerful causes, the cell is useless, the memory is gone, while other cells continue active, perhaps more so than formerly."

Science as applied to a bank robbery was something new and startling to the others. What might not a man do under these conditions? Atavism was less strange to consider. And yet was it not true that human reason was often insufficient to set against the commonest delinquency? The gentlemen sitting at the table were nonplussed, all but Mr. Taylor, who had faith in his theory. He, evidently, believed Mr. Hamilton's statement.

"But," said he, "in the present state of society there are no provisions made for this sort of lapse, outside of insanity, and a man so afflicted can do no less than suffer the consequences of his acts, however they may have occurred. At least it is not fair for others to suffer. The money, if taken by your own hand, should be refunded and—"

"Mr. Taylor," interrupted the president, frowning a little, "are you not a little fast? The matter as it now stands is of serious import. It will have to be investigated. A warrant was made out for arrest, and was, or is now, in the hands of Bruce, the detective. It was made out by Justice Bailey. Sheriff Gray is away on business, and Bruce acts as his deputy. I telegraphed Bruce last night, and it is nearly time," looking at his watch, "for him to arrive. You must see that all this naturally follows, Mr. Hamilton."

"I see," he replied, a little pale, but otherwise composed. "As I said, I court the closest inquiry. Points may be evolved which may make it clearer to myself. I thank Mr. Taylor for his confidence in me, or, rather, for his belief in my statement."

"You must not think we doubt it," said the president, more mildly, "because we say less. There is no other course open but to let the matter go into a natural issue. Too much has already transpired."

"You are right, without doubt," said Hamilton. "But you must see that to one, who has been ignorant of any stir, who returns to his home, imagining everything to be in its normal condition, and who is first confronted by his own monument, then these suspicions, it is sufficiently confusing."

"Certainly it is," said Mr. Taylor; "though, undoubtedly, Mr. Hastings is right," mentally thinking that a specialist on mental derangements would most likely be summoned, and the investigation be no less interesting and profitable than necessary.

If He Could.

It was the opening day of the session, when everyone was at his Sunday best. The Senator, who always wears a short coat and carries his right hand in his trousers' pocket, with his left ready to emphasize his words, by shaking his forefinger, leaned against the cloak-room door, meditatively rolling a cigar between his lips.

One of the three best-dressed men in the Senate approached. The foreigner rose, and the Senator remarked: "I have a friend who would give you a hundred dollars for that vest, if he could only set eyes on it."

"Take me to him at once," said the other. "He shall set eyes on it forthwith and have it C. O. D."

"I wish he could," said the Senator sadly; "but he's been stone-blind for twenty years."—The Sunday Magazine.

NATIONAL MATTERS

MEMPHIS HAS SHOTGUN GUARD TO KEEP OFF YELLOW FEVER.

THE SITUATION IN NEW ORLEANS SERIOUS BUT HOPEFUL.

MILWAUKEE MEN IN THE LIME LIGHT ON BOODLE CHARGES.

Memphis will return to primitive shotgun quarantine methods which ruled during the epidemics of 1878-79, when fever patients died by the thousands. At a meeting of the city council it was decided to close Memphis to the world after 12 o'clock noon on August 7. A cordon of armed guards will be placed around the city, guarding all roads and intervening points and no person will be allowed to pass in unless he holds a written permit from the Memphis board of health. It is estimated that the cost of the shotgun quarantine will approximate $50,000, which amount is expected to be raised by popular subscription.

The federal officers made no attempt to conceal the fact that the situation in New Orleans is serious, but they say it is not without hope, and that success is possible in spite of the headway the fever has gained, particularly in the foreign neighborhoods below Canal street. One of Saturday's yellow fever victims is Archbishop Chapelle. The trouble on Lake Borgne between Mississippi guards and the Louisiana naval brigade is considered to have ended.

Four Indicted.

Chas. E. Pfister, one of the wealthiest and most prominent citizens of Milwaukee, was indicted by a grand jury Saturday charged with stealing $14,000 belonging to the Wisconsin Rendering Co. of Milwaukee. Indictments were also returned against John F. Dittmar, former supervisor, bribery; George F. Reichert, supervisor, bribery; Barney A. Eaton, state senator, bribery; Frank F. Schultz, former newspaper reporter, perjury. The indictment against Pfister alleges that on March 30, 1901, the accused was ballee of a sum of money said to be $14,000 placed in his hands for the Wisconsin Rendering Co. to obtain for the company a large contract from the city for the disposing of garbage. It is charged that the money was not used for the purpose intended and that Pfister fraudulently converted the money to his own use.

Horrible Work of Sluggers.

The tortures inflicted for three weeks on William H. Wilder by three Chicago bandits in an effort to get $160 he had concealed is now alleged to have been the work of union sluggers, who turned Wilder loose a physical and mental wreck, after getting his money and torturing him in the most terrible way.

Every day and night Wilder's captors, who kept him naked and bound tightly, would visit him, prick him with brad awls, burn his feet with matches and his mouth with acid and pour water into his throat until he was unconscious. Wilder's tongue is one solid blister from acid and fire, his body is covered with burns, and his condition is critical.

The police believe the case will furnish clues to mysterious murders. Headless bodies bearing marks of inhuman torture have been found in the river, and heretofore there was no clue at all to the perpetrators. The existence of a sluggers' inquisition has been hinted at before, but the police scoffed at it.

Wilder has said that his $160 was discovered in his hat band by his captors the first day and that one of them remarked: "It is now good union money." Wilder, as claim agent for the Johnson Express Co., incurred union enmity because of his fearless attitude, and had been warned by union sluggers that they would "get him."

A Russian Victory.

It is officially reported that two Russian torpedo boat destroyers appeared off Chung Ching on the northern coast of Korea Thursday morning and attacked the Keisho, a small merchant steamer. The destroyers fired sixty shots, seven of which hit the port side of the engine room and bridge, killing the captain and one boy and wounding two of the crew. The destroyers then ceased to fire and steamed toward Vladivostok. The Keisho was able to continue her voyage and escaped.

Two Children Eaten.

The drought has destroyed the harvest in Cebu, and the peasants are in a half starving condition. They are eating roots and dogs and copta. Two known cases of eating of children have occurred. Others are reported. The merchants of Manila have sent $5,000 to the relief of the sufferers. The government has given $60,000 to buy rice and has suspended the land taxes. Drones of farmers, begging, are invading the cities.

TWENTY YEARS OF IT.

Emaciated by Diabetes; Tortured with Gravel and Kidney Pains.

Henry Soule, cobbler, of Hammondport, N. Y., says: "Since Doan's Kidney Pills cured my eight years ago, I've reached 70 and hope to live many years longer. But twenty years ago I had a terrible trouble so I could not work. Backache was a persistent and was agony to lift anything. Gravel, whirling headaches, dizziness and terrible urinary disorders ran me down from 168 to 100 pounds. Doctors told me I had diabetes and could not live. I was wretched and hopeless when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but they cured me eight years ago and I've been well ever since."

ORIGIN OF WORD BONFIRE.

Expression Most Probably Dates Back to Druidic Days.

Was "bonfire" originally written "bone-fire" and were "bone-fires" anciently so called from the burning of the martyrs? This is one theory of the origin of the word. From ancient times bonfires have formed a striking part of the celebration of St. John's eve, or Midsummer eve, June 24, which was observed with similar rites in every country in Europe. Fires were kindled in the streets and market places of the towns. The young people leaped over the flames or threw flowers and garlands into them with merry shoutings and songs and dances. A heathen origin is believed to be indicated by these acts. A writer says: "On the whole it seems probable that the druidic fires, round which it was considered lucky to leap and dance on the occasion of the summer solstice, were built up of contributions brought by every one who wanted to secure his luck for the coming year, and so bonfire is really a boon-fire."

American Accent in English.

Not only the nasal sounds, but many American phrases are quite common in Suffolk, England, among the farmers and the peasantry, and a stranger passing an afternoon in Woodbridge market might fancy himself in Massachusetts.

"I am a most unhappy woman," she sobbed, "I know that."

turning a man out of his own house in this way?" burst forth her uncle, as soon as he was gone.

"Uncle Carter," said Constance, facing about and setting down her lamp, for she had started to retire, "I don't feel quite sure that it is Vane."

"Are you crazy, Constance?"

"I say I have a doubt. At all events he will have to prove his identity, and he will have to tell me why he went away before I receive him. About that I am determined."

"What folly is this? Constance, you are a changed woman."

To his vexation she burst into an uncontrollable fit of weeping.

"I am a most unhappy woman," she sobbed, "I know that."

"Unhappy when your husband, for whom you mourned, has just come back?"

She did not answer, but took up her lamp and went to her room, her form shaking with emotion.

When there, she sat down, still and quiet now, and thought deeply. Then the sounds of a violin stole across the fields and reached her, though faintly. But she did not raise her window for a moment, as she had sometimes done. She sat still and listened till the sound died away and then she retired. But she did not sleep. She lay all night thinking, pondering, wondering, fearing—what?

CHAPTER XI.

A Meeting of the Bank Officers. Mr. Hamilton, for so I shall call him despite the doubts of Constance, evidently had no intention of deserting his own fireside for hotel precincts. He returned early and breakfasted with the family, much to Mr. Carter's delight and not to the too-evident displeasure of his wife. He still refinished the tale up to the awakening of his dormant perceptive faculties, which had occurred, he said, but a short time previous to his return.

There was a silence of many seconds ere any one spoke. At last Mr. Hartwell said, cautiously:

"Did you say your memory had returned to you?"

"Not fully. I remember all of my past life, I think, now, with the exception of the brief time when the suspension in my ordinary faculties took place."

"You came to yourself in Seattle, you say?"

"Yes."

"Can you give us addresses there where we may be able to learn corroborative facts, Mr. Hamilton?"

"I can give you addresses of the workmen and of the men who owned the factory, Barnacle & Co.; that is all."

The president took down four or five addresses given him by Mr. Hamilton.

"No doubt," said Mr. Cowdrey, one of the trustees. "You have heard something of the grave charges made against you. Indeed, there is, I believe, a warrant out for your arrest."

Mr. Cowdrey knew perfectly well that there was, but it was an awkward thing to say to a man in his own house.

Mr. Hamilton gave a start.

"I did not know that," he said; "but it is as well, perhaps, that the investigation should be made public. I wish you would tell me exactly how matters stand at the bank."

A succinct statement was made by the united accounts of the president and trustees, and by young Osborn, whose position at the bank was nominally that of teller. He was even shown the altered notes, the letter thrust under the president's door, and

The big department mail order houses get their patronage almost entirely by advertising, but not in the local papers, as their columns are usually closed and not for sale to such concerns. How well the local merchants appreciate what the paper is doing for a town can be told by its advertising columns.

President Roosevelt Sunday afternoon delivered a lay sermon to the Christian Brotherhood of Oyster Bay. He emphasized especially the necessity of sound character building, holding that high moral character was the real essence of christian life. This nation should be proud of a president who can preach as well as direct the affairs of so great a country. He places the Bible above every other book.

Called Suddenly

While sitting in a chair in the Masonic lodge rooms at Sault Ste. Marie L. C. Goodrich of Ann Arbor expired suddenly from apoplexy Aug. 6. He was paying the lodge an official visit as grand lecturer of Michigan grand lodge Royal Arch Mason. Death came without warning. Persons sitting near him saw him sink suddenly in his chair. Dr. F. H. Husband, who was in an anteroom, was summoned but Goodrich was dead when he arrived.

Mr. Goodrich was a brother of Warren Goodrich of this place, who was found dead in his home two days after he expired, last winter. Mr. Goodrich was one of the most prominent Masons in Michigan. He had been grand lecturer for the past ten years. He is survived by a family in Ann Arbor. He was born in Pinckney in 1854 and went to Ann Arbor when but a young man and has lived there ever since. He has many friends among the "old boys and girls of Pinckney."

A Losing Dream.

"I made a nice idiot of myself the other morning," said the commuter, who is paying teller in a savings bank. "My wife was afraid I'd miss my train, and she got me by the shoulder and shook me, telling me that it was time to get up. I got about half awake, and, somehow, I thought I was at my window in the bank with a long line of women awaiting their turn. The one at the window was handing me a check, and, from force of habit, I said: 'How much money do you want?'"

"You know, most women who present checks want to draw some and deposit the rest. Well, what do you think the wife did? Quick as a flash came her answer to my 'dopy' question: 'Five dollars will do.'"

"She got it, but I hope I won't dream any more."—New York Post.

An Eccentric Painter.

William Willard, well known as the painter of Massachusetts' governors, was very eccentric in his ways. His special aversion was the attempted purchase of his many old relics of furniture by people of wealth. A New York woman visiting in the vicinity of Sturbridge, hearing that the old artist possessed a beautiful colonial mirror and a rare clock, tried to buy them. Mr. Willard seemed to readily agree to the sale, but when asked when it would be convenient to have them packed replied, "Not until after the funeral." "Whose funeral?" asked the visitor. "Mine," replied Mr. Willard, with a chuckle.
