Telephone Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Livingston Mutual Telephone Co. was held at the opera house in Howell on Monday. There was a large attendance and the members seem well satisfied with the management as was shown by their electing all the old officers and nearly the entire board.

The report of the secretary showed that the company has been growing the past year. There has been a total of 200 miles of new lines added during the year 1906, 45 new stockholders and 300 rented phones. There are now 346 stockholders.

The following are the officers and directors for the ensuing year:

President, H. Norton
Vice Pres., L. D. Kuhn
Secretary, W. O. Richards
Treasurer, G. A. Newman
Directors, F. T. Hyne
S. E. Swarthout
A. E. Cole
Jute Fuller
P. M. Tatt.

Badly Injured.

Just after commencing work at the flouring mill Tuesday afternoon, Geo. Lumm went into the basement to put on a belt and his clothing was caught by a bolt on the shaft and he was wound up so that his coat and shirt were nearly all torn off from him. The mill was stopped and he had to be cut loose from the machinery. He is very badly bruised but it is thought no bones are broken, although he is in great pain, and it will be some weeks before he will be able to get out. The strain on his shoulder, chest and neck was severe but it is hoped that there is no internal injuries or spinal injury.

This is the second person to be injured in the mill the past month. Floyd Peters, son of the miller having his elbow twisted in the crusher, just before Christmas.

Importance of the Child.

Prof Felix Adler, in his address before the National Child Labor Convention at Cincinnati on "The Attitude of Society Towards the Child as an Index of Civilization," pointed out that, historically, there have been three views of the child in society. There is the primitive view which regarded the child as the essential factor in the system of ancestor worship; the later view, which made him the inheritor and continuator of the family honors and prerogatives; and the modern view, which looks upon the child as so much living material for the society of the future. The classification serves as a basis for the protest against the wastage of child life under the present system of production. Essentially, however, the three historical views are identical, in that they agree in looking upon the child as bearing within himself the seed of the ideal future, whether that ideal be to live in extra-terrestrial bliss and in the memory of man, or the feudal ideal of family, or the contemporary altruistic ideal of the perfect state. And it is by no means certain that the last ideal is not the hardest on the child. It is not only that some of us, in the name of progress, are content to send the child into that industrial slavery against which Prof. Adler pleads his case, says the New York Post; but that most of us, in recognizing the high mission of the young, persist in placing on their tender shoulders a heavy burden of responsibility. If we were ancestor-worshippers or mediaeval barons, we should be quite content to leave our children in undisturbed enjoyment of their right to liberty and the pursuit of happiness; since in merely being they would fulfill their purpose. But the modern child must not be left alone, because there is no such thing as a child in the same sense that there is a cat or a pony or a picture-book. He is a "potentiality," and there are pedagogical principles.

A great popular demonstration took place recently in Belgium. Over 60,000 persons marched through the streets of Brussels to the city hall to ask for obligatory education. The petition presented to the mayor was signed by 200,000 names. Nearly one-fourth of the population of Belgium is illiterate, although the law offers free education to those who cannot pay for it. There is supposed to be a primary school for every commune over 6,500, but only a meager grant is allowed, and the teaching is often of the poorest. The schools are managed by the commune and not by the government, and any private place of instruction may be selected as the communal school. Education practically ceases at the age of 12; what was learned is soon forgotten, and the relapse into indifference and ignorance is inevitable. The schools are inspected once a year. Although the technical schools of Belgium are fine, the primary system of this most crowded country in Europe is wholly bad.

The name of bridge probably grew out of the Russian word "biritch," which is called out when the player declares no trumps, says Scribner's. The appearance in England between 1883 and 1886 of a pamphlet on "biritch," or Russian whist, failed to attract much attention at that period, but during the ensuing ten years the present natural offshoot of the Russian form of play—one variety of which is called leralasch, teralache, yelarasch, by Sir Horace Rumbold—became everywhere quite a favorite pastime. The game is said by some to have originated at Athens, although it is known to have been played, practically in its present form, throughout Turkey, Greece, Egypt and along the Maritime Alps for actually more than 30 years under the name of khedive.

The dean of Canterbury relates this anecdote of his own school days: In the schoolhouse at Rugby, when he was there, new boys in the first winter term had to stand on a table and sing the "Brave Old Oak" before all the boys of the house. If they sang to the satisfaction of the house they were taken into its good-fellowship. Otherwise they had to drink half a glass of salt and water, made so thick that they could stand a ruler up in it. He was very sorry to make the confession that he had to drink salt and water.

SIDE LIGHTS ON MICHIGAN

INAUGURATION OF GOVERNOR WARNER FOR SECOND TERM.

A BRIEF, MANLY ADDRESS.

The Oath Administered to the Governor, Propped Up in Bed, Made An Impressive Scene.

With No Display.

While his aged father, whose hair is whitened by the snows of eighty-six winters, stood looking proudly on, Gov. Fred M. Warner took the oath of office at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, sitting in bed supported by pillows. An invalid mother whose hands are palsied with age, but whose affection for her son is as strong and ardent as in the springtime of life, directed her gaze steadily towards the sick chamber where the governor was taking the oath to fulfill to the best of his ability the duties of the office of governor of the state of Michigan.

It was a remarkable scene. It is the first time a governor of Michigan has ever qualified for office while upon a bed of sickness. It was like the gathering of a little family circle. There was no pretense of a state function. It suggested a little home ceremony that might be of no significance, even to the neighbor in the next block.

Instead of the boom of cannon to proclaim to the world that the chief executive of the commonwealth of Michigan had qualified for the office of high honor, there was only silence.

Instead of the tramp of soldiers' feet, there were soft gliding footsteps and no one made a noise that could be avoided, for fear that the balance might be turned unfavorably to the governor's condition. When the ceremony was concluded the governor said: "I have no prepared speech, but I will always do the best I can, and try to do the right thing at the right time."

A Rare Battle.

Thomas Traynor, of Battle Creek, sold Glen Bowers a horse for $140, and threw in a jug of whisky to bind the sale. The horse balked and when Bowers demanded his money back, Traynor said: "All right, where's the whisky." Bowers could not produce the whisky, as it had already coursed through his system, and Traynor would accept no other liquor than his own, construing the law to read that having accepted part of the goods sold and consumed them, Bowers was in no position to demand the return of his money.

This unique case has been tried in justice court and in the circuit court, where a jury disagreed. For the past week it has kept the local circuit jury busy night and day, and still is unfinished. Each litigant has spent hundreds of dollars for counsel.

Both Were Drowned.

In attempting to rescue Harry Valance, aged 14, from drowning E. R. Gibson, aged 42, principal of the school in Riverdale, was drowned with the boy in Pine River. With Bradley Adams, Valance was playing on the ice and broke through. Adams ran to the residence of Prof. Gibson for help. The professor, in stocking feet and shirt sleeves, rushed to the river and broke through the thin ice, as he neared the drowning boy. The current is swift there, and the two were carried under the ice. Their bodies were recovered at once, but all efforts at resuscitation failed. Harry Valance was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Valance. Prof. Gibson had been teaching in Riverdale three years and was very popular. He leaves a widow and six small children.

Soldiers Dig.

It is claimed that the contractors who have the construction of the M. C. R. tunnel on the Canadian side of the river, have secured a number of men formerly enlisted in the United States army and stationed at Fort Wayne, Detroit. A soldier, who deserted, made the remark that since October 6 there had been 126 desertions of soldiers from the fort. After the first ones got away safely they were followed by others and every day the number is added to.

"The good pay offered by the tunnel people for laborers, and the relief from irksome discipline is responsible for a majority of the desertions," said this soldier.

Scalp and Ear Torn Off.

Clinging to a beam near the roof of a barn, the 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Worcester, of Munith, screamed in agony while the shafting of a wind-power feed mill tore off her scalp and one ear. In play the child had climbed up among the rafters. Her head came in contact with the shafting before she was aware of its presence. The little girl was taken to Jackson hospital, after receiving temporary surgical attendance. An effort is being made at the hospital to induce the scalp to grow again over the skull. The skin was torn off from the bridge of the nose backward, including portions of both eyelids and one ear. Doctors fear she will die.

Crime Unrepeatable.

There was an affecting scene at the Saginaw police headquarters when Hattie Jubbe's father, a respected farmer of Brant township, called to see his wayward daughter who, in company with Bertha Konieczki, is alleged to have been sent to Detroit from a Saginaw resort as a "white slave." The girl broke down at the sight of her father, who bowed his head in silence, and her sobbing could be heard throughout the cell rooms. She lay ill upon her couch and the grief-stricken parent lifted her in his arms, too overcome to say anything for some time, and merely stroking her hair. The hardened characters surrounding the pair as well as the police attendants turned their heads.

The girl wanted to be taken home and her father came for that purpose, but her physical condition is so serious that she could not be moved. She has been subjected to such treatment that her condition is truly shocking and she may never entirely recover.

Miss Jubbe, her father said, is but 16 years old and had always lived an upright life until she came to Saginaw for employment. Gradually her visits home became less frequent and finally she ceased coming altogether and for some time her whereabouts were unknown. In fact, her discovery in Detroit was the first intimation her father had of the real character of the life she was living.

Miss Jubbe's name is assumed, and to protect the family her real name has been withheld. She says Mrs. Smith, the keeper of the local resort who is accused of accomplishing the downfall of the girls, paid their fares to Detroit, and that they were sent to the resort kept by the daughter of Mrs. Smith, who is said to keep the former supplied with girls from Saginaw. The Detroit woman has fled and the authorities here are on the lookout for her.

Both girls say that Mrs. Smith threatened to expose them to their parents if they disobeyed her and that she held all of their clothes except what they wore until they arrived penniless in Detroit, and were taken to her daughter's place.

Counterfeiters Caught.

Another arrest was made in Port Huron Thursday in the alleged counterfeit plot owing to investigation by United States secret service officers. Fred Black, aged 35, a hay buyer at Goodells, and well known throughout the county, is the latest prisoner. He declares, however, that he had nothing to do with the alleged counterfeiting. Officers believe they have the leader of the gang in custody. The den in the "fats" district was searched and every article in the place was overturned by detectives. More tools and implements were found and more light was added when another can containing several dollar pieces was found. Marshal Mains expects to corral a big gang before he lets up and several more may be implicated before night self-defense.

Conklin Talks.

Melvin Conklin, the Lansing tobacco fiend, who is under arrest charged with shooting to death his brother recently, and who had maintained a stubborn silence ever since the crime, talked to the officers for the first time Wednesday. He told a wild story about a woman having committed the crime, and says he knew nothing about it. He had started to commit suicide, he declares, and was insensible from the effects of poison.

"How'd you know your brother was dead?" asked Chief Behrendt. Thereupon Conklin began to get sullen and ugly again.

Girl Missing.

Iva Oberlin, aged 13, has mysteriously disappeared from the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Samuel Oberlin, in Ovid. The sheriff has been asked to try to locate her. Iva's father, Alfred Oberlin, is living in Virginia. Her mother's address is unknown, the father and mother being separated. Iva has not been seen since she went to visit a neighbor Tuesday night.

Speedy Resumption.

Just four days after the big fire that ravaged the Detroit plant of the Michigan Stove Co. operations were resumed in the molding department. The promptness with which order was brought out of a veritable chaos, has exceeded even the fondest hopes of the management. It is expected all of the various departments will be in operation by the middle of next week.

Increase of Men.

Authority has been granted by the military board of the state for an increase in the number of infantry in the national guard from sixty-five to eighty. It is the opinion of national guard officers that the larger company is an advantage in that it permits the training of a greater number of men and insures a representative turn-out when the organization is called on for duty.

Secretary Prescott III.

Secretary of State George A. Prescott, a possibility as a dark horse candidate for senator, is the latest member of the state administration to be taken ill. He was seized with a chill at 5 o'clock Wednesday night and went to bed at the Downey house. Auditor General Bradley at Eaton Rapids is still unable to arise, and Treasurer Glazier at Chelsea remains in his house with a severe cold.

An eight-story, fire-proof hotel will be erected in Kalamazoo.

MICHIGAN EVENTS NOTED

WILLIAM ALDEN SMITH WILL BE MICHIGAN'S NEXT SENATOR.

McMILLAN IS SATISFIED

Features of the Caucus Which Made the Nomination, With Expressions of the Candidates.

Congressman William Alden Smith was nominated for United States senator to succeed Russell A. Alger by the Republican legislative caucus Thursday night. It required but one ballot, which was the sixth, five without result having been taken last week. It stood thus:

- William Alden Smith 28
Charles E. Townsend 9C
Charles Smith 2
Arthur Hill 1

Mr. Smith's success was brought about by the McMillan supporters, who went to him in a body, after a conference in which the situation was gone over, and it was decided to throw their support to the Grand Rapids man, who had conducted a clean campaign and whose attitude had always been that of a friend. Mr. Smith subsequently made grateful acknowledgment of the McMillan support in his speech to the members of the legislature.

Before the formal result was announced, Senator Tuttle moved that Smith be declared the unanimous choice of the caucus and the motion was carried.

Then came the cheering. Committees were appointed to escort the nominee and the defeated candidates to the speaker's platform, former Gov. Rich representing W. C. McMillan.

Senator-elect Smith was given an ovation when he appeared and was introduced by Senator Fyfe. It was several minutes before he could proceed. He said: "This splendid compliment I little deserve. Mindful of my shortcomings, appreciative of the claims of my friends, I can only say to you that from the bottom of my heart I thank you for this great honor. Looking into your faces, surveying the countenances of sympathetic friends, I wish to return to each and every one my grateful appreciation. In the presence of my wife and son, (applause) I see faces that are very dear to me, and looking over them all I see sitting by a window of an humble cottage 3,000 miles away the sweet faces of my father and my mother, made happier by this triumph of mine. (Applause) To my distinguished friends I return my grateful appreciation for the many character of your campaign. To Mr. McMillan, who is detained, not from desire, but because the hand of circumstance has laid him for the time under the care of his physician, I wish to express my sincerest admiration, my genuine respect and my undying affection as the result of his generosity and kindness to me in this contest." (Applause)

A veritable love feast followed and addresses were made by Hon. John T. Rich, Candidates Townsend and Hill. Following are statements made after the battle: William C. McMillan received the reports from Lansing last night over a special wire. He had retired when the news came, but was advised of the final outcome and heard the speeches following the nomination by means of the telephone.

"I am very well satisfied with the result and have every reason to believe that the people of the state of Michigan also will be," said Mr. McMillan. "As far as I, personally, am concerned I believe that Mr. Smith is well qualified and will prove himself as valuable a man to the state in his office as a senator as he has been in his district as a congressman."

Governor Warner said: "I am perfectly satisfied with the result. I was confident that the members of the legislature would do that which was for the interests of the party and the state. I believe the best backing in any contest is good true friends, and that Congressman Smith certainly had his share is shown by the result. No doubt he feels as highly honored because of that fact as he does in securing the nomination. Mr. Hill: "We kept friendship; that is a happy outcome of a rather lively campaign." Mr. Townsend: "I am glad to join in the triumph of a man who I believe, will do his duty to all the people without fear or favor."

Not For Mr. Hill.

The alleged boom for Arthur Hill for governor is not regarded as a serious proposition in Saginaw. Mr. Hill has firmly and flatly refused at every juncture to have his name even considered in connection with the gubernatorial nomination, either two years hence or any other time. He is not and will not be a candidate for governor.

Wants His Boy.

Left $5,000 by the death of a brother in Grayling, Mich., Capt. Walter H. Young, an old and well known resident of Port Huron, is now willing to devote the entire sum to secure the liberty of his son, who is now serving three years in the state prison for some petty theft.

Another Russian General Killed.

Lieut. Gen. Vladimir Pavloff, the military procurator or advocate general, generally known since the days of the last parliament as "Hangman Pavloff," fell by the epithet constantly applied to him by the radical deputies, was shot and killed at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning while walking in the garden of the chief military court building near the Molokai camp.

The assassin, who was disguised as a workman; was captured after a long chase through the crowded city streets, during which he fired about 40 shots from two revolvers which he carried, killing a policeman and wounding a small boy.

The crime was executed deliberately and showed evidence of the same careful preparation which was characteristic of the murders of Gens. Ignatieff and Von Der Lantitz and undoubtedly was carried out by the same organization, which it is reported has sentenced Emperor Nicholas and several of the ministers to death.

Shot Striking Rioters.

The Mexican government announces that it has the situation well in hand at Orizaba, where strikers burned a factory store and looted business places and private residences on Monday.

The seriousness of the affair is shown, however, by the fact that the troops were compelled to fire on the main body of rioters before they would disperse, killing 30 outright and wounding 80 more. This conflict took place at Nogales, near Orizaba. One body of strikers numbering 700 gathered on the railroad track and held up the Vera Cruz train for several hours, dispersing only when the cavalry arrived and charged them with broadswords. The jails and armories are filled with imprisoned strikers. The whole of the property destroyed is estimated at $1,500,000, all belonging to Eduardo Garcia, a citizen of France.

Three Hundred Drowned.

A tidal wave has devastated some of the Dutch East Indian islands south of Achin. The loss is very great. According to a brief official dispatch 300 persons perished on the island of Tana, while 40 are known to have been drowned at the island of Simalu.

Achin, or Acheen, is the capital of Sumatra, and the islands mentioned are presumably small ones, as they are not shown on the standard maps of Oceania. A few days ago European seismographs were reported as indicating a severe earthquake at a great distance. It was then stated that the disturbance was probably in the South Pacific. It is quite likely that the shock caused the tidal wave which has caused so much damage.

SERIAL STORY

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A Tale of the Old West.

By HARRY LEON WILSON

She had been standing much like a statue, in guarded restraint, but at his words and the touch of his hand she seemed to melt and flow into eager acquiescence, murmuring some hurried little words of thanks for her father, and stepping by his side with eyes down.

In words that were well-chosen but somewhat hurried, he proceeded to instruct her in the three-fold character of the Godhead. The voice at first was not like his own, but as he went on it grew steadier. After she drew her hand gently out of his, which she presently did, it seemed to regain its normal and calmness.

He saw her to the door of the cabin on the outskirts of the settlement and there he spoke a few words of cheer to her ailing father.

Then he was off into the desert, pacing swiftly into the grim, sandy solitude beyond the farthest cabin light and the bark of the outmost watchdog. Feverishly he walked, and far, until at last, as if naught in himself could avail, he threw himself to the ground and prayed.

"Keep me good! Keep me to my vows! Help me till my own strength grows, for I am weak and wanting. Let me endure the pain until this wicked fire within me hath burned itself out. Keep me for her!"

Back where the houses were, in the shadow of one of them, was the flushed, full-breathing woman, hurt but dumb, wondering, in her bruised tenderness, why it must be so.

Still farther back, inside the stock-ade, where the gossiping group yet lingered, they were saying it was strange that Elder Rae waited so long to take him a wife or two.

CHAPTER XII.

A Fight for Life.

The stream of Saints to the Great Basin had become well-nigh continuous—Saints of all degrees of prosperity, from Parley Pratt, the Archer of Paradise, with his wealth of wives, wagons and cattle, to Barney Bigler, unblest with wives or herds, who put his earthly goods on a wheelbarrow and, to the everlasting glory of God, trundled it from the Missouri river to the valley of the Great Salt Lake. Train after train set out for the new Zion with faith that God would drop manna before them.

One by one the trains worked down into the valley, the tired Saints making fresh their covenants by rebaptism as they came. In the waters of the River Jordan, Joel Rae made hundreds to be renewed in the Kingdom, swearing them to obey Brigham, the Lord's anointed, in all his orders, spiritual or temporal, and the priesthood or either of them, and all church authorities in like manner; to regard this obligation as superior to all laws of the United States and all earthly laws whatsoever; to cherish enmity against the government of the United States, that the blood of Joseph Smith and the Apostles slain in that generation might be avenged; and to keep the matter of this oath a profound secret then and forever. And from these waters of baptism the purified Saints went to their inheritances in Zion—took their humble places, and began to sweat and bleed in the up-building of the new Jerusalem.

From a high, tented wagon in one such train, creaking its rough way down Emigration canyon, with straining oxen and tired but eager people, there had leaped late one afternoon the girl whose eyes were to call to him so potentially—incomparable eyes, large and deep, of a velvety grayness, under black brows splendidly bent. Nor had the eyes alone voiced that call to his starved senses. He had caught the free, fearless confidence in her leap over the wheel, and her graceful abandon as she stood there, finely erect and full-curved, her head with its Greek lines thrown well back, and her strong hands raised to re-adjust the dusky hair that tumbled about her head like a storm cloud.

Men from the train were all about, and others from the settlement, and these spoke to her, some in serious greeting, some with jesting words.

She returned it all in good part without embarrassment—over the side of the winking man who called out: "Now, then, Mara Cavan! Here we are, and a girl like yourself ought to catch an Elder, at the very least!"

She laughed with easy good-nature, still fumbling in the dark of her hair at the back of her head, showing a full-lipped mouth, beautifully large, with strong-looking, white teeth. "I'll catch never a one myself, if you please, Nathan Tanner! I'll do no catching at all, now! I'm the one will have to be caught!"

Her voice was a contralto, with the little hint of roughness that made it warm and richly golden; that made it fall, indeed, upon the ears of the listening Elder like a cathedral chime calling him to forget all and worship—forget all but that he was five and twenty with the hot blood surging and crowding and crying out in his veins.

Now, having a little subdued the tossing storm cloud of hair, she stood with one hand upon her hip and the other shading her eyes, looking intently into the streets of the new settlement. And again there was bantering jest from the men about, and the ready, careless response from her, with gestures of an impishly reckless unconcern, of a full readiness to give and take in easy good fellowship. But then, in the very midst of a light response to one of the bantering men, her gray eyes met for the first time the very living look of the young Elder standing near. She was at equal to and justly balancing the other. Even when he discovered from the palp, his glance would fasten upon hers, as if there were but the one face before him instead of a thousand, and he knew that she mocked him in her heart; knew she divined there was that within him which strongly would have had her and himself far away—alone.

Nor was the girl's own mind all of a piece. For, if she haunted herself before him, as if with an impish resolve to be his undoing, there were still times when he awed her by his words of fire, and by his high, determined stand in some circle to which she knew she could never mount. That night when he walked with her in the moonlight, she knew he had trembled on the edge of the gulf fixed so mysteriously between them. She had even felt herself leaning over to draw him down with her own warm arms; and then all at once he had strangely moved away, widening this mysterious gulf that always separated them, leaving her solitary, hurt, and wondering. She could not understand it. Life called through them so strongly. How could he breast the mighty rush? And why, why must it be so?

During the winter that now came upon them, it became even a greater wonder to her; for it was common suffering—a time of dark days which she felt they might have lightened for each other, and a time when she knew that more than ever she drew him.

She Had Lowered Her Eyes to No Other But Him.

once confused, breaking off her speech with an awkward laugh, and looking down. But, his eyes keeping steadily upon her, she, as if defiantly, returned his look for a fluttering second, trying to make her eyes survey him slowly from head to foot with her late cool carelessness; but she had to let them fall again, and he saw the color come under the clear skin.

He knew by these tokens that he possessed a power over this splendid woman that none of the other men could wield—she had lowered her eyes to no other but him—and all the man in him sang exultantly under the knowledge. He greeted her father, the little Seumas Cavan, of indomitable spirit, fresh, for all his march of a thousand miles, and he welcomed them both to Zion. Again and again while he talked to them he caught quick glances from the wonderful eyes—glances of interest, of inquiry—now of half-hearted defiance, now of wondering submission.

The succeeding months had been a time of struggle with him—a struggle to maintain his character of Elder after the Order of Melchisedek in the full gaze of those velvety gray eyes, and in the light of her reckless, full-lipped smile; to present to the temptress a shield of austere piety which her softest glances should not avail to melt. For something in her manner told him that she divined all his weakness; that, if she acknowledged his power over her, she recognized her own power over him, a power

For hardly had the feast of the Harvest Home gone by when food once more became scarce. The heaven-sent gulls had, after all, saved but half a crop. Drought and early frost had diminished this; and those who came in from the east came all too trustingly with empty meal sacks.

By the beginning of winter there were 5,000 people in the valley to be fed, with miraculous loaves and fishes. Half of these were without decent shelter, dwelling under wagon covers or in flimsy tents, and forced much of the time to be without fuel; for wood had to be hauled through the snow from the distant canyons, and so was precious stuff. For three months the cutting winds came down from the north, and the pitiless winter snows raged about them. An inventory was early taken of the food-stuffs, and thereafter ration cards were issued alike to all, whether rich or poor. Otherwise many of the latter must have perished. It was a time of hard expedients, such as men are content to face only for the love of God. They ranged the hills and benches to dig sego and thistle roots, and in the last days of winter many took the rawhides from their roofs, boiling and eating them. When spring came, they watched hungrily for the first green vegetation, which they gathered and cooked. Truly it seemed they had stopped in a desert as cruel in its way as the human foes from whom they had fled.

It was now that the genius of their leader showed. He was no longer Brigham Young, the preacher, but a father—Israel to his starving children.

The efforts of Brigham to put heart into the people were ably seconded by Joel Rae. He was ~~not~~ like Brigham; but not feared. He preached like Brigham; submission to the divine will as interpreted by the priesthood, but he was more extravagant than Brigham in his promises of blessings in store for them. He never resorted to vagueness in his pictures of what the Lord was about to do for them. He was literal and circumstantial to a degree that made Brigham and the older men in authority sometimes writhe in public and chide him in private. They were appalled at the sweeping victories he promised the Saints over the hated Gentiles at an early day. They suggested, too, that the Lord might withhold an abundance from them for a few years until he had more thoroughly tried them. But their counsel seemed only to inflame him to fresh absurdities. In the very days of their greatest scarcity that winter, when almost every man was dressed in skins, and the daily fare was thistle roots, he declared to them at a Sunday service:

"A time of plenty is at hand—of great plenty. I cannot tell you how I know these things. I do not know how they come to me. I pray—and they come to life in my spirit; that is how I have found this fact; in less than a year states goods of all needed kinds will be sold here cheaper than they can be bought in eastern cities. You shall have an abundance at prices that will amaze you."

And the people thrilled to hear him, partaking of his faith, remembering the gulls that ate the crickets, and the rain and wind that came to save the pioneer train from fire. To the leaders such prophesying was merely reckless, inviting further chastisements from heaven, and calculated to cause a loss of faith in the priesthood.

And yet, wild as it was, they saw this latter prophecy fulfilled; for now, so soon after the birth of this new empire, while it suffered and grew weak and bade fair to perish in its cradle of faith, there was made for it a golden spoon of plenty.

Over across the mountains the year before, on the decayed granite bedrock of the tall race at the mill of one Sutter, a man had picked up a few particles of gold, the largest as big as grains of wheat. The news of the wonder had spread to the east, and now came frenzied hordes of gold seekers. The valley of the mountains where the Saints had hoped to hide was directly in their path, and there they stopped their richly laden trains to rest and to renew their supplies.

The harvest of '49 was bountiful in all the valley; and thus was the wild prophecy of Joel Rae made sober truth. Many of the gold seekers had loaded their wagons with merchandise for the mining camps; but in their haste to be at the golden hills, they now sold it at a sacrifice in order to lighten their loads. The movement across the Sierras became a wild race; clothing, provisions, tools and arms—things most needful to the half-clad, half-starved community on the shores of the lake—were bartered to them at less than half-price for fresh horses and light wagons. Where a $25 pack-mule was sold for $200, a set of joiner's tools that had cost $100 back in St. Louis would be bought for $25.

The next year the gain to the Saints was even greater, as the tide of gold seekers rose. Early that summer they sold flour to the oncoming legions for a dollar a pound, taking their pay in the supplies they most needed on almost their own terms.

This passing of the gold seekers was not, however, a blessing without drawbacks. For the Saints had hoped to wax strong unobserved, unmolested, forgotten, in this mountain retreat. But now obscurity could no longer be their lot. The hated Gentiles had again to be reckoned with.

First, the United States had expanded on the west to include their territory—the fruit of the Mexican war—the poor bleak desert they were making to blossom. Next, the government at Washington had sent to construct and administer their laws men who were aliens from the Commonwealth of Israel. True, Millard Fillmore had appointed Brigham governor of the new territory—but there were chief justices and associate justices, secretaries, attorneys, marshals, Indian agents from the wicked and benighted East; men who frankly disbelieved that the voice of Brigham was as the voice of God, and who did not hesitate to let their heresy be known. A stream of these came and went—trouble-mongers who despised and insulted the Saints, and returned to Washington with calumnies on their lips. It was true that Brigham had continued, as was right, to be the only power in the territory; but the narrow-minded appointees of the federal government persisted in misconstruing this circumstance; refusing to look upon it as the just mark of Heaven's favor, and declaring it to be the arrogance of a mere civil usurper.

Under such provocation Joel Rae longed more than ever to be a Lion of the Lord, for those above him in the church endured too easily, he considered, the indignities that were put upon them by these evil-minded Gentile politicians. He would have rejected them forthwith, as he believed the Lord would have had them do,—nay, as he believed the Lord would sooner or later punish them for not doing. He would have thrust them into the desert, and called upon the Lord for strength to meet the storm that would doubtless be raised by such a course. He was impatient with the older men cautioned moderation and the petty wiles of diplomacy. Yet he was not altogether discouraged; for even they lost patience at times, and were almost as outspoken as he could have wished.

The spring of '56 found them again digging roots and resorting to all the old pitiful makeshifts of famine.

"This," declared Joel Rae, to the starving people, "is a judgment of Heaven upon us for permitting Gentile aggression. It is meant to clench into our minds the God's truth that we must stand by our faith with the arms of war if need be."

"Brother Rae is just a little mite soul-proud," Brigham thereupon confided to his counselors, "and I wouldn't wonder if the Lord would be glad to see some of it taken out of him. Anyway, I've got a job for him that will just about do it."

Brigham sent for him the next day and did him the honor to entrust to him an important mission. He was to go back to the Missouri river and bring on one of the hand-cart parties that were to leave there that summer. The three years of famine had left the Saints in the valley poor, so that the immigration fund was depleted. The oncoming Saints, therefore, who were not able to pay their own way, were this summer, instead of riding in ox-carts, to walk across the plains and mountains, and push their belongings before them in hand-carts. It had become Brigham's pet scheme, and the Lord had revealed to him that it would work out auspiciously. Joel prepared to obey, though it was not without aversion that he went again to the edge of the Gentile country.

He was full of bitterness while he was obliged to tarry on the banks of the Missouri. The hatred of those who had persecuted him and his people, bred into him from boyhood, flashed up in his heart with more fire than ever. Even when a late comer from Nauvoo told him that Prudence Corson had married Capt. Girway of the Carthage Grays, two years after the exodus from Nauvoo, his first feeling was one of blazing anger against the mobocrats rather than regret for his lost love.

Pious Mahometans Would Not Let Sons Wear European Garments.

Many of the chiefs in the protectorate of Gambia wish to have their sons educated in the new Mahometan school of that region; but there was a bar to their full enjoyment of the education they were likely to receive, says a writer in the Tailor and Cutter. The pious Mahometan papas were afraid that the wearing of modern trousers was part of the school curriculum, and therefore they viewed the school with peculiar suspicion. The governor of Gambia reports that the parents have been assured that their children will not be converted into "trouser men," and the prospects of the school are now very bright.

It would be interesting to learn how this suspicion of the modern nether covering arose, and whether the dry goods merchants denied the native's ordinary material. But it may be interesting to recall the fact that the British government forbade Highlanders to wear the kilt for many years after the battle of Culloden. However, the government were in a tight corner during their continental wars, and they were glad to raise several regiments of Highlanders, who resumed the kilt, and the trouser wearing edict died a natural death.

Travels Much With Gems.

Miss Grace M. Varcoe, who is now in New York, has crossed the Atlantic 21 times as the agent of an English diamond concern, and on each trip she has carried with her gems valued at $150,000 to $300,000. Miss Varcoe is said to be an expert lapidist. She has traveled in all the principal cities of this country, Canada and Europe as the representative of her firm. She speaks four languages and incidentally carries a revolver, which, should occasion require, could also "speak."

In African Abyssinia, there has been but two murders in several years. The government not only does not allow the sale of liquor there, but will not allow it to be manufactured. Christian America might learn a lesson from these "heathen."

Piles get quick relief from Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment. Remember it's made ALONE for Piles—and it works with certainty and satisfaction. Itching, painful, protruding, or blind piles disappear like magic by its use. Try it and see. All Dealers.

Third assistant postmaster general, Madden is intent on trying to raise the postoffice deficit of about $10,000,000 by raising the price charged newspapers from 1 cent per pound to 4 cents. According to official statements all departments of our government, including Congress, use the mails free. The postal service thus rendered amounts to $20,000,000 per year. If regular rates were charged this department there would be a surplus of $10,000,000 a year instead of the deficit.

Cured of Lung Trouble

It is now eleven years since I had a narrow escape from consumption, writes C. O. Floyd a leading business man of Kershaw, S. C. "I had run down in weight to 135 pounds, and coughing was constant, both by day and by night. Finally I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and continued this for about six months, when my cough and lung trouble were entirely gone and I was restored to my normal weight, 170 pounds." Thousands of persons are healed every year, guaranteed at F. A. Sigler's drug store. Prices 50c and $1.00 Trial bottle free.

Alexander Hamilton once said: "The road to tyranny will be opened by stifling the press." If Congress upholds Madden in his demand that the rate of postage on newspapers be raised from 1 cent to 4 cents per pound it will stifle thousands of papers that today are great educators. With a million foreigners entering our borders every year, it is a poor time to place a restraint upon the press. The proposed change will place the publications of class catalogue houses and "yellow covered" literature in the same class as the local paper.

I had tried everything for my baby until Dr. Lyle recommended Cascasweet. I can truthfully say it is the best medicine I ever used for babies. Hickory Trees.

It is rather a pity that our hickories should receive highest appreciation from us when they are yielding up their substance in roaring flames in our fireplaces. For nowhere in the forest world can we find a genus of trees that is, as a whole, more attractive and valuable than the genus hickoria. Most of the hickories are beautiful in summer when their glossy foliage is at its best. In autumn this foliage turns the color of uncoined gold, and when bare of leaves there is revealed an oaklike twist to the branches which makes these trees most picturesque and beautiful objects in the winter landscape. We have never made as much commercially of the nuts as we might well have done. Our Indian predecessors knew how to make a most attractive beverage from them, and the early settlers pressed from them an oil that was a luxury. The pecan is the only hickory species that has been developed and cultivated to any extent, and this has only recently begun its career as a cultivated tree.—Country Life in America.

A Royal Locksmith.

Louis XVI. had a passion for the locksmith's trade, and it is said that over his private library he had a forge, two anvils and a vast number of iron tools, together with all kinds of locks, common as well as those of a secret and elaborate variety. It was here that the king would conceal himself from the queen and the court to file and forge with the infamous Gamlin, who taught him the art of locksmithing. It is said that Gamlin while teaching the king his trade took upon himself the tone and authority of a master, and, according to this same master, the king was good, forbearing, timid, inquisitive and addicted to sleep. Louis had also a great passion for timepieces, and the difficulty which he found in adjusting his clocks and watches, is said to have drawn from him the reflection that it was absurd of him to attempt to bring men to anything like uniformity of belief in matters of faith when he couldn't make any two of his timepieces agree with each other.

Don't Talk Much to Your Horse.

A horse who has always been made to obey quickly will respond to commands from any one, whereas the creature who has been petted and talked to accords, unless hungry, scant attention to any one. We talk to horses, altogether too much, and it is a silly and dangerous custom. "Whoa!" should mean but one thing and, slip, slide or fall, should meet with instant obedience. Not another word should ever be used, beyond possibly the order to "stand over" in the stall (although even that is best unsaid) except the "click" of the tongue for increased speed. The animal's attention is kept if you are silent. He does not know what you will do next, and as he distrusts and merely tolerates you, even as he fears you, his anxiety is always to find out what you wish done or what move you will next make.—F. M. Ware in Outing Magazine.

Didn't Know the Cipher.

The inability to read a cipher once cost a notable of France his head. When the Chevalier de Rohan was in the Bastille his friends, wishing to let him know that his accomplice had died without confessing, passed the following cipher, written on a shirt, into his dungeon: "Mg duxkeelgu gixj; lm et ulge all." The cipher was not a difficult one, being arranged by a complete transposition of the alphabet, but De Rohan did not have the clue, and he puzzled over the meaningless words in vain. A solution of the riddle meant the guillotine or his freedom, but the puzzle was beyond him, and he pleaded guilty because he could not decipher "Le prisonnier est mort; il n'a rien dit."

Origin of Croquet.

The origin of croquet is certainly involved in mystery. Some authorities are of the opinion that it is founded on the old game of "pale malle," or pell-mell, from which we have the street Pall Mall. This is described by Cotgrave in his dictionary as "a game wherein a round box bowle is with a mallet struck through a high arch of iron," and a picture of this in Strutt's "Sports and Pastimes" shows that these had a strong resemblance to the croquet implements of today.—London Academy.

Labeled.

In the Legard house there was a great dinner. After awhile the maid was called, and the mistress said: "Serve the dinner. There is no one else to come except a relation of little importance." Five minutes afterward the maid announced in a loud tone: "The relation of little importance."—Lo Scaccapensieri.

Try Silence.

The man who counts thirty in his mind before he speaks soon discovers that when he talks he says something Try silence for a change. It builds up a wonderful reserve force in your physical organization and surely overcomes your temperamental inclinations to babble.—Cairo Bulletin.

He Disappeared.

Jerome K. Jerome once figured in what the reporters call a "mysterious disappearance." On a wager he agreed to vanish, and took himself off while his friends were still on the alert. He disappeared while they were reading a mysterious letter which he handed to one of the party. When last seen he was stepping aboard a houseboat on the Thames. Then for a month he seemed to have gone out of existence. His friends put the police on his track, calling for his arrest for stealing the boat. A month passed and then the novelist and the boat appeared at the latter's old moorings. What he had done was simply to take the boat a little upstream, then during the night erase her name and substitute another and change the color of the paint here and there so as to render her as unlike her former self as possible. His scheme was a success in every particular.

The Origin of a Word.

The origin of the word "typhoon" traces the origin of the word "typhoon." "Typhoon" is explained in some dictionaries as Chinese for "a great wind," and since the typhoon is a phenomenon of the Chinese seas it seems conclusive. But there is no doubt, apparently, that "typhoon," which Hakluyt spelled "tounfon" and Dampier "tuffon," comes to us through Portuguese for the Arabic, Persian and Indian "tufan," and it is almost impossible not to see in this a relation of the ancient Greek "typhos" or "typhon," a whirlwind. But these are practically identical with the Greek word for smoke or vapor, from which come our "typhus" and "typhoid." So perhaps the Chinese part of it is only an extraordinary linguistic coincidence, after all.

Caged Until Married.

On a certain island in the Pacific it is stated that the natives are still in the habit of confining their girl children in cages until they are of an age to marry. These cages are constructed of palm branches, and the girls are imprisoned in them when they are two or three years old. They are not allowed to leave their cage under any pretext whatever, and they are only taken out once a day to be washed. The children are said to grow up strong and healthy in spite of their incarceration.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, the probate court for the county of Livingston. At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the village of Howell in said county on the 28th day of December A. D. 1906. Present: Hon. Arthur A. Montague, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of RYAL BARNUM, deceased.

W. T. Barnum having filed in said court his petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to W. T. Barnum or some other suitable person.

It is ordered that the 25th day of January, A. D. 1907, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition.

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Pinckney Dispatch, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county.

ARTHUR A. MONTAGUE, Judge of Probate.

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation. The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark has given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenious and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No gripping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

Hascall's Original Carbon Paint

For use on Tin, Iron, Felt, Canvas, or Shingle Roofs, Especially suitable for Bridges, Iron or Steel Buildings, Machinery, Tanks, etc.

Elastic Inexpensive Durable

Stops Leaks, Prevents Rust, Checks Decay, Guaranteed for 5 years. Made in BLACK only.

This paint is the old original roof and iron paint placed on the market by us many years ago. It is the pioneer of roof paints, and we are the parents of the roofing paint industry in this country. Through all these years this paint has sold in greater quantities each season, despite the fact that hundreds of imitations, represented to be "just as good" have flooded the country with advertising similar to ours in an attempt to divert our trade.

For use on Roofs, Iron or Metal Buildings, or any surface where a thoroughly good paint is required, Hascall's Carbon Paint is unequalled, as time and experience and thousands of imitations prove.

Nearly all the saloon keepers in Chelsea complied with the sheriff's demand to turn over all slot machines last Saturday, and what was not brought forth were hunted out. Two hundred men from Glazier's factory, and about 100 other citizens then had great sport breaking them up and burning them in the public streets. The machines were proving a great detriment to the town in getting much of the wages which should go for the support of families, and all the best thinking people desired the destruction of the slot machines.

LIEUTENANT BOWMAN.

IN FORTY-EIGHT HOURS PE-RU-NA CURED HIM.

Cold Affected Head and Throat—Attack was Severe.

Chas. W. Bowman, 1st Lieut. and Adj. 4th M. S. M. Cav. Vols., writes from Lanham, Md., as follows:

"Though somewhat averse to patent medicines, and still more averse to becoming a professional amfavit man, it seems only a plain duty in the present instance to add my experience to the columns already written concerning the curative powers of Peru-na.

"I have been particularly benefited by its use for colds in the head and throat. I have been able to fully cure myself of a most severe attack in forty-eight hours by its use according to directions. I use it as a preventive whenever threatened with an attack.

"Members of my family also use it for like ailments. We are recommending it to our friends."

Origin of Starch.

The art of starching was not introduced into England until the ingenuity of Dutch women in starching ruffs induced Queen Elizabeth to turn to them when she took to wearing cambric and linen cuffs. In 1564 Mistress Dinghein von den Plasse, the refugee daughter of a Flemish knight, came with her husband to London, according to an old writer, and set up an establishment for starching, where she not only piled her trade, but instructed English classes in her art.

SCALY ERUPTION ON BODY.

Doctors and Remedies Fruitless—Suffered 10 Years—Completely Cured by Cuticura.

"When I was about nine years old small sores appeared on each of my lower limbs. I scratched them with a brass pin and shortly afterwards both of those limbs became so sore that I could scarcely walk. When I had been suffering for about a month the sores began to heal, but small scaly eruptions appeared where the sores had been. From that time onward I was troubled by such severe itching that, until I became accustomed to it, I would scratch the sores until the blood began to flow. This would stop the itching for a few days, but scaly places would appear again and the itching would accompany them. After I suffered about ten years I made a renewed effort to effect a cure. The eruptions by this time had appeared on every part of my body except my face and hands. The best doctors in my native country advised me to use arsenic in small doses and a salve. I then used to anoint the sores in a mixture which gave almost intolerable pain. In addition I used other remedies, such as iodine, sulphur, zinc salve, —'s Ointment, and in fact I was continually giving some remedy a fair trial, never using less than one or two boxes or bottles. All this was fruitless. Finally my hair began to fall out and I was rapidly becoming bald. I used —'s but it did no good. A few months after, having used almost everything else, I thought I would try Cuticura Ointment, having previously used Cuticura Soap and being pleased with it. After using three boxes I was completely cured, and my hair was restored, after fourteen years of suffering and an expenditure of at least $50 or $60 in vainly endeavoring to find a cure. I shall be glad to write to any one who may be interested in my cure. B. Hiram Mattingly, Vermillion, S. Dak., Aug. 16, 1906."

If you are a gay old dog you have no right to whine.

From the State Capital
Information and Gossip Furnished by Special Correspondent at Lansing.

Lansing.—Gov. Warner is not to be sued by Senatorial Candidate Arthur Hill for the alleged slander contained in the executive's statement that issued from Farmington. Though this course has been suggested, Mr. Hill will not take any such action, and in explanation of his attitude he gave these reasons:

"Because he is our governor, lying on a sick bed unable to attend to ordinary business, and therefore entitled not to be seriously disturbed while in that condition.

"Because the governor may have had information in the form of rumors which justifies him in his original announcement. There remains, however, this for his friends to do, namely, to file with the attorney general at once specific charges which affect the method of my candidacy, in order that they may be legally investigated in season to permit my reputation to stand unchallenged before the Republican caucus.

Sickness Among Statesmen.

The reports to the state department of health show an extraordinary and alarming increase of the grippe and pneumonia," said Dr. Shumway, state health officer. "The recent weather has been extremely favorable to such ailments, and when men are exhausted or excited and are exposed to such weather their danger is especially great. The diseases have not yet spread to the magnitude of an epidemic, but conditions are heading that way."

Not only were Gov. Warner and W. C. McMillan stricken down, the one with pneumonia, the other with the grippe, but Representative James D. Jerome, of the Wayne delegation, Representative Woodruff and Senator Traver are reported ill among the McMillan men. Representative Benton among the Townsend men, and others, like Representative Erickson, will be kept away from the caucus by other causes.

Auditor General Bradley is the most prominent of the victims to bronchial pneumonia. He is at home in Eaton Rapids, very ill, unable to speak, according to reports received here.

The grippe is highly communicable, pneumonia extremely so. The conditions in Lansing, have been just as would produce considerable spread of such diseases, for the great crowds that have gathered here have been both excited and exhausted, and likewise exposed to the inclement weather. Although some think the crowd of visitors to Lansing may be greatest seen since the laying of the capitol corner stone, others have figured that from 20 to 30 members of the legislature may be prevented by illness from attending. No candidate is expected to be cheerful in this prospect developments, and unless some of the patients get well rapidly or are constrained to come here anyway, there may be another postponement.

The crowds, as already stated, will be very great. From both Saginaw and Grand Rapids big crowds are looked for. The Grand Rapids traveling men will be here in big numbers, and the delegation from Saginaw will be much larger than that which came a week ago.

William Alden Smith is Senator.

Congressman William Alden Smith of Grand Rapids received the nomination for the senatorship after the most exciting contest in many years.

Mr. Smith received 98 votes, Congressman Townsend had 26, Arthur Hill of Saginaw had 1 vote, Charles Smith of Hubbell had 2, and William C. McMillan of Detroit, son of the late Senator James McMillan, withdrew. Congressman Smith's nomination was made unanimous amid great cheering.

The formal election of the senator will take place January 15.

Following the announcement of the result, Congressman Smith spoke, and each of the defeated candidates, except W. C. McMillan, who is ill and has not been at the capital, followed in addresses.

William Alden Smith was born at Dowagiac, Mich., May 12, 1859. He received a common school education and removed with his parents to Grand Rapids in 1872. He was appointed a page in the Michigan house of representatives in 1879. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1883. He was elected to the Forty-fourth, Forty-fifth, Fifty-sixth, Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth congresses, and reelected to the Fifty-ninth congress. He was unopposed for a seventh term and unanimously reelected to the Sixtieth congress. He graduated from Dartmouth and received the degree of M. A. in 1901. Mr. Smith is owner of the Grand Rapids Herald.

Governor Must Be Careful.

Gov. Warner's condition has not been changed materially, although his lungs are beginning to clear up and those nearest him are more hopeful for an early recovery. Dr. A. J. Miller said that it will be at least two weeks, if the improvement is steady, before the governor will be able to be out again, though he may be able to sit up within a week. Inasmuch as his entire system is run down and his recuperative powers are below normal, the slightest setback will add days to his confinement. His temperature varies around one degree above normal, with the usual morning and evening changes. He either reads, or has read to him, the headlines in the newspapers, but aside from this every feature of the strife is being eliminated from the daily program. Although solicitous of an early recovery, the governor is at times over-zealous, and the mental exertion caused by it is not conducive to the early fulfillment of his hopes. Dr. Miller is of the opinion that the state executive will have to be very careful of himself, even after he is able to resume the duties of his office.

It is hoped that Gov. Warner may be able to leave his bed in another week if he has absolute rest and quiet. Dr. Henry J. Hartz, the Detroit specialist who was called to Farmington, says the governor's recuperative powers are beginning to assert themselves, although a constant low fever with a slight rise in the evenings, still hangs on. Dr. A. J. Miller, of Farmington, the governor's family physician, said that his patient was much improved. Mr. F. S. Neal is in full charge at the governor's home and handles all the business that would otherwise go to Gov. Warner. Mrs. Warner is worn out by constant attendance in the sick room, and is now getting a much needed rest, a Detroit trained nurse having complete charge of the patient.

Murder Conviction Affirmed.

The conviction of George Tubbs, of Eaton county, of the murder of John Boutts in November, 1904, was affirmed by the supreme court. Tubbs was convicted of first degree murder and is serving a life sentence in Jackson. The murder caused a sensation. Implicated in the murder was the respondent's father, Levi Tubbs, and his uncle, Charles Tubbs. George Tubbs demanded a separate trial, and the other cases are still pending. The victim of the crime was a drain contractor who had the job of constructing a drain across Tubbs' farm.

Primary Election Law.

It has been determined at the secretary of state's office that the new primary election law has no application in the coming nomination of candidates for justice of the supreme court and regents of the state university. While the Republican convention for these nominations has been called it was thought that possibly the law would apply to the election of delegates, but it does not and these are to be chosen in the old way.

State Finds Positions.

The report of the state employment bureau is out. It shows that since June, 1905, 1,985 applications for employment were received and that all were filled except 194. At the same time 15,920 applications from employers were received, and of these only 3,129 were not filled. Labor Commissioner McLeod speaks in high praise of the work done by the bureaus.

To Reduce Railroad Rates.

In the legislature bills were introduced to establish two cents per mile as the maximum passenger rate in the lower peninsula and three cents per mile in the northern peninsula, over all railroads where the passenger earnings annually exceed $1,000 per mile. These measures were recommended by Gov. Warner in his message to the legislature.

Seeks Change in Law.

A bill providing for the repeal of the Bailie limited liability law was introduced by Senator Russell, of Kent. The Bailie law makes it impossible for one to collect for the pain and suffering of another killed by an accident but merely for the actual loss to the plaintiff by the death of the victim.

State Supervisors' Association.

The annual meeting of the State Supervisor's association will be held in this city February 8. Charles H. Kimmie is a leading member of the association, and it is expected there will be another railroad assessment to be discussed by the date of the meeting.

MEN STILL LIVE IN CAVES.

Troglodyte Villages Are Found in Northern Africa.

Grottoes and caverns are used more or less as shelters by primitive peoples and thus inhabited caves are of course most frequent in Africa. A considerable number of natives make their homes in caves along the southern shore of the Strait of Gibraltar and in some of those caves are found the polished stones and arrow heads of the stone age. Troglodyte villages are frequent in the Tebessa territory of Algeria, one of which, at Djeurf, 250 feet above the gorge of the Wadi Hallali, is reached by steps cut in the rock.

The inhabitants of the Tunisian island of Gallite are cave dwellers, their habitations being grottoes which they have dug out of the limestone, or ancient burial caverns that they have enlarged. The subterranean villages of Matmata and of Medennie, hewn out of the rock, are in southern Tunisia.

A Christian monastery built underground in the twelfth century still exists at Goba, Abyssinia. The enormous cavern discovered several years ago within two hours' walk of the port of Tanga, in German East Africa, contains rooms the roofs of which are from 120 to 250 feet above the floor. Only a few of these vast chambers have yet been explored, for the entire cavern seems to be inhabited by millions of bats. One of these killed with a stick measured nearly five feet across its extended wings.

SAVES HER VISITING CARDS.

One Woman's Pet Economy Certainly a Queer One.

Women are proverbially niggardly on one or two points; every woman that ever existed had some pet economy, no matter how extravagant she may be in some respects. There's the woman who spends hundreds of dollars on imported gowns, but hates to give up one penny for a paper of pins. The paper-saving person who drops into department stores and hotels to borrow stationery rather than spend any money upon the commodity always is with us; we all know the stamp stealer and the match borrower; but the visiting-card economizer is a new brand of woman who exists only in the most exclusive society. She niggardly is she on the point of her visiting cards that she demands them back from her intimate friends; from her mere acquaintances she steals them at an opportune moment when the servant's back is turned, or when the mistress has left the room. She puts them slyly back into her card case. By a clever series of manipulations it is said she can make 100 of them go as far as 500 went before.

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILROAD AND WESTERN CANADA.

Will Open Up Immense Area of Free Homestead Lands.

The railway facilities of Western Canada have been taxed to the utmost in recent years to transfer the surplus grain crop to the eastern markets and the seaboard. The large influx of settlers and the additional area put under crop have added largely to the grain product, and notwithstanding the increased railway facilities that have been placed at the disposal of the public, the question of transportation has proved to be a serious one.

It will, therefore, be good news to everyone interested in Western Canada to know that an authoritative statement has been given out by C. M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, that that railway will do its share towards moving the crop of 1907 from Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba to tide water, and thus assist in removing a serious obstacle which has faced the settlers during recent years. Mr. Hays, who has just completed a trip from Portage la Prairie to Edmonton in a prairie schooner, a distance of 735 miles, which was covered in eighteen days, is enthusiastic about the country.

This will be gratifying to settlers in the Canadian West, even if Mr. Hays declines to be bound to a time limit with the exactitude of a stop-watch. The Grand Trunk Pacific road will be in a position to take part in the transportation of the crop of 1907, and that will be satisfactory to the settlers in that country when the harvest is garnered.

The wheat crop of 1906 in Western Canada was about 90,000,000 bushels, and, with the increased acreage which is confidently expected to be put under crop next year, it is safely calculated that fully 125,000,000 bushels will be harvested in 1907. The necessity for increased transportation facilities are, therefore, apparent, and the statement made by Mr. Hays will bring encouragement to the farmers of the Canadian West, new and old. The opening up of additional thousands of free homesteads is thus assured by the agent of the Canadian Government, whose address appears elsewhere.

THE FIRST TWINGE

Of Rheumatism Calls for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills if You Would Be Easily Cured.

Mr. Frank Little, a well known citizen of Portland, Ionia Co., Mich., was cured of a severe case of rheumatism by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In speaking about it recently, he said: "My body was run down and in no condition to withstand disease and about five years ago I began to feel rheumatic pains in my arms and across my back. My arms and legs grew numb and the rheumatism seemed to settle in every joint so that I could hardly move, while my arms were useless at times. I was unable to sleep or rest well and my heart pained me so terribly I could hardly stand it. My stomach became sour and bloated after eating and this grew so bad that I had inflammation of the stomach. I was extremely nervous and could not bear the least noise or excitement. One whole side of my body became paralyzed.

"As I said before, I had been suffering about five years and seemed to be able to get no relief from my doctors, when a friend here in Portland told me how Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured him of neuralgia in the face, even after the pain had drawn it to one side. I decided to try the pills and began to see some improvement soon after using them. This encouraged me to keep on until I was entirely cured. I have never had a return of the rheumatism or of the paralysis.

The pills are for sale by all druggists or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

INDUSTRY STOPS TEMPORARILY

MICHIGAN STOVE WORKS SWEEP BY FIRE WHICH DESTROYS THE PLANT.

ONE KILLED, SIX INJURED

Twenty-Two Hundred Men out of Work and a Loss of Over Five Hundred Thousand Dollars.

Cause Unknown.

Fire, fierce, spectacular and devastating, invaded the plant of the Michigan Stove company, Jefferson avenue and Adair street, early Tuesday night, and within a few hours the immense building, with its costly contents, was reduced to a great heap of smoldering and blackened ruins, with here and there a charred and broken wall to mark the path of the flames.

The plant, the main part of which was six stories in height, and extended from Jefferson avenue toward the river to Wight street—a distance of three blocks, with half a block frontage—was practically destroyed, the main office being the only part of the structure left intact at the time the fire was gotten under control.

George H. Barbour, general manager of the company, estimates the loss at considerably beyond $400,000, the amount of the insurance. It may be more than $500,000.

Through the burning of the plant 2,200 men are thrown out of employment, and the fire removes from Detroit's municipal map one of its oldest and most honored business institutions.

Death in violent form came to one man and several other persons were more or less seriously injured. The dead man's body lies unidentified at the county morgue—the others are being cared for at various institutions.

Despite the fact that their great plant was almost swept away by fire, the officials of the Michigan Stove Co. immediately began preparations to rebuild and resume operations. General Manager Barbour said, as he stood by the smoldering ruins: "Our engineer informs me that the power of the plant remains intact. The engines and boilers are practically uninjured, and we shall go to work to rebuild as rapidly as possible. The main office fronting on Jefferson avenue, the display room, the foundry and one storage building remain in very good shape. It is difficult at this time to estimate the loss. It may be anywhere from $500,000 to $750,000. In exact figures our insurance is $380,000."

There is absolutely no clue as to the origin of the fire. It started at a most inopportune time of the day; at a time when a great many of the workmen were at supper.

Educated Himself.

William D. Riley, the negro, who is serving a life sentence in Jackson prison for holding up J. D. Light and shooting Fred Williams, in March, 1895, has issued a neat leather-bound booklet, giving a history of his life and crime. He says that he went to Jackson 12 years ago, a low, vicious, black robber, but continues:

"So long as a prisoner who is guilty fails to make any advancement above his condition at time of sentence he should stay in prison. Have I made any advancement? I have become a fairly good mathematician, am now in Sheldon's Complete Algebra and Wentworth's Plane and Solid Geometry. I can read understandingly my first and second Spanish readers and have read the best books of our library. Early in life I had a liking for poetry; since my imprisonment I have cultivated that love, and now have a book of over 300 poems, and am writing a book on the folly and ignorance of my race."

Delivered the Coal.

Benton Harbor's fighting constable, Richard C. Sinsabaugh, is breaking up a threatened coal famine in the city. The Benton Fuel Co. had several cars of coal on the Pere Marquette tracks for several days, but delivery was refused. The Pere Marquette owes the fuel company for sand to the amount of several hundred dollars and in order to get even the coal company has been refusing to pay freight, and the railroad refused to deliver the coal. The constable spent his time Friday delivering coal from cars to fuel wagons under a writ of replevin.

No Reason Known.

No reason can be ascribed by the family of Add Fuller, Ogden residents, for their 15-year-old daughter Hazel leaping from the bridge into Black creek in an apparent attempt to take her life Thursday. George Wicker and Clarence Bruce rescued her from deep water.

Hazel was excused from school on the plea that she wished to go home as she told that her mother was ill. Her sister, Gladys, tells that Hazel had no trouble at school or at home.

Survived the Pressure.

Buried under a mass of two or three tons of slate, Conrad Kuendinger, a miner employed at the Watcher shaft, Bay City, could scarcely breathe, and could not call out. He lay for 45 minutes pinned to the earth until discovered by a coal driver. It required 15 minutes to release him.

UTTERLY WORN OUT.

Vitality Sapped by Years of Suffering with Kidney Trouble.

Capt. J. W. Hogun, former postmaster of Indianola, now living at Austin, Tex., writes: "I was afflicted for years with pains across the loins and in the hips and shoulders. I had headache also and neuralgia. My right eye, from pain, was of little use to me for years.

The constant flow of urine kept my system depleted, causing nervous chills and night sweats. After trying seven different climates and using all kinds of medicine I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy has cured me. I am as well to-day as I was twenty years ago, and my eyesight is perfect."

Hints for the Pipe Lover.

The Canadian Cigar and Tobacco Journal gives some hints to those who smoke pipes. Everybody thinks he knows how to smoke a pipe, but to do it perfectly is not easy. "Time is a keynote of successful pipe smoking," says the Journal, "and another is gentleness. Take it easy. Don't crowd the pipe to the top of the bowl. Never get a pipe hot. Keep cool, and keep your pipe cool. You can relight a pipe, and if you are an old smoker you will be all the better for it. When you have finished do not refill a heated pipe."

Always to Be Depended Upon.

When a person gets up in the morning with a dull headache and a tired, stretchy feeling, it's an almost certain indication that the liver, or bowels, or both, are decidedly out of order.

At such times Nature, the wisest and best of doctors, takes this means to give warning that she needs the help and gentle assistance which can best be obtained from that old family remedy, Brandreth's Pills, which has been in use for over a century.

They are the same fine laxative tonic pill your grandparents used when doctors were few and far between, and when people had to have a remedy that could absolutely be depended upon.

Brandreth's Pills can be depended upon, and are sold in every drug and medicine store, plain or sugar-coated.

HEADS SHAPED TO ORDER.

German Doctor Explains Causes of Various Formations.

At a recent convention of German naturalists and doctors Dr. Walcher, of Stuttgart, in an instructive paper put forth a sensational theory to explain the formation of the shape of the head of infants. He maintained that the head of a child could be molded artificially. He found by experience that when a medium-shaped head is placed in a soft cushion the child turns on its back, or rests on the back of its head, in order to free mouth, nose and face. In this manner the head rests smoothly, and a short head is developed. But if the medium-shaped head of a child is placed on a hard under-rest, like a hair mattress or roller carpet, the child's head turns aside, as it cannot stand any more on its head than an egg, for the muscle of the back is weakened. Therefore, with continued resting on the side a long head is developed. To prove his assertions the lecturer presented a child whose mother and sister are short-headed. The child at its birth had a short head, now after 13 months it is long skulled. If the child had been placed on its back, according to other experiences its head would have been short-headed. Dr. Walcher did not deny that the shape of the head was inherited, but asserted that it could be greatly influenced by the way the child rested.

COSTLY PRESSURE.

Heart and Nerves Fail on Coffee.

A resident of a great western state puts the case regarding stimulants with a comprehensive brevity that is admirable. He says:

"I am 56 years old and have had considerable experience with stimulants. They are all alike—a mortgage on reserved energy at ruinous interest. As the whip stimulates but does not strengthen the horse, so do stimulants act upon the human system. Feeling this way, I gave up coffee and all other stimulants and began the use of Postum Food coffee some months ago. The beneficial results have been apparent from the first. The rheumatism that I used to suffer from has left me. I sleep sounder, my nerves are steadier and my brain clearer. And I bear testimony also to the food value of Postum—something that is lacking in coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. There's a reason. Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescription from reliable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c. per bottle. American Idealism.

Since my first arrival in America I have held that the real spirit is idealistic and that the average individual American is controlled by idealistic impulses. Those who may contradict me can not have sounded the depths of the philosophy of Ralph Waldo Emerson, or studied the life and read the speeches of Abraham Lincoln, and considered their far-reaching effect on the American people. In Lincoln's great character nothing can be more striking than the way in which he combined reality and the loftiest ideal, with a thoroughly practical capacity to achieve that ideal by practical methods. This faculty seemed to give him a far-sighted, almost superhuman vision, which enabled him to pierce the clouds obscuring the sight of the keenest statesmen and thinkers of his age—Baron Speck von Sternburg, in Forum.

Of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the Great Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

No other medicine for Woman's ill in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

No other medicine has such a record of cures of female illnesses or such hosts of grateful friends as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing all forms of Female Complaints, Inflammation and Ulceration, and consequent Spinal Weakness.

It has cured more cases of Backache and Local Weaknesses than any other one remedy. It dissolves and expels tumors in an early stage of development.

Irregularities and periodical pains, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility quickly yield to it; also deranged organs, causing pain, dragging sensations and backache. Under all circumstances it acts in harmony with the female system.

It removes that wearing feeling, extreme lassitude, "don't care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, dizziness, faintness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy or the "blues". These are indications of Female Weakness, or some derangement of the organs, which this medicine cures as well as Chronic Kidney Complaints and Backache, of either sex.

Those women who refuse to accept anything else are rewarded a hundred thousand times, for they get what they want—a cure. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Refuse all substitutes.

Soap as a Medicine.

"When I was a boy," said the old man, "they often made me take a little soap as a medicine. It did me good. Soap was prescribed in the village for cramps, for sick headache, for a half dozen complaints. The people admitted that it was a nauseous dose, but on the other hand they pointed to its efficacy.

"When I was taken down my mother would cut from the cake of yellow soap in the kitchen a chunk about as big as a chestnut.

"Now, sonny," she would say, "swallow this," and she'd hold the yellow morsel in thumb and forefinger close to my lips.

"I'd begin to whimper. The smell of it and the idea of the lather that would form in my mouth—the lather I'd have to swallow—would fill me with despair. But my mother was inexorable. With stiff lips I'd take the soap into my mouth, I'd chew the soft and slippery stuff a little and then, with a groan and a dreadful gulp, I'd swallow it. Horrors!"

"Horrors!" said the old man, smiling. "I can still taste those doses of soap that were so common in the village in my boyhood."

Original of "Uncle Toby."

Captain Roger Sterne, the father of the author of "Tristram Shandy," was the original of Uncle Toby. As captain of Chudleigh's regiment of foot, a marching regiment ever on the move, Roger Sterne and his family tasted the most varied military and domestic experiences in Flanders, at Gibraltar and finally at Jamaica, where the old campaigner died of "country fever." A simple minded, good natured, but shiftless and rather peppery Irishman, Roger bore his disappointment bravely and carried his load of debt with a light heart. "My father," says Sterne, "was of a kindly, sweet disposition, void of all design and so innocent in his own intentions that he suspected no one, so that you might have cheated him ten times a day if nine had not been sufficient for your purpose." Such a character and such a father supplied the germ from which the genius of the son developed his conception of one of the most perfect and delightful portraits in the gallery of English fiction.

Cause and Effect.

Shakespeare saw life in large and wrote as he saw. He never "blamed it on to God." His pages are full of the inexorable sequence of cause and effect, and the swift march of deeds: points the moral of individual responsibility. If things were "rotten in Denmark," it was because the fathers had eaten sour grapes and the children's teeth were set on edge; if Macbeth trembled at the knocking at the gate, it was because conscience doth make cowards of us all. The ghosts that haunted Bosworth field were of Richard's own creating, and Regan and Goneril, desperately dead, reap but their inevitable due. In short, Shakespeare's message is the message of a robust manhood and womanhood: Brace up, pay for what you have, do good if you wish to get good. Good or bad, shoulder the burden of your moral responsibility and never forget that cowardice is the most fatal and most futile crime in the calendar of crimes. Cowards die many times before their deaths; The valiant never taste of death but once. —Martha Baker Dunn in Atlantic.

Self Made Man.

A rich financier said to one of our contrabands who has more wit than wealth, "When I began business, sir, I had nothing." "But those with whom you did business had something." —Independence and Romaine.

Of course you have read adv. week after week of E. L. Moore, dentist and noted the line "he don't hurt you." Well it is a fact. We had an old molar that hurt us for months and when we got up our grit enough to go up and visit him he took the thing out in a jiffy and we were hardly aware of the fact. This is not a "paid local."

M. E. Church Notes.

The special services are still being continued and are resulting in good. Several have started in the new life and members have been quickened.

The Sunday school is a power for good in the work and the interest in this branch is increasing. Attendance 109 last Sunday.

Clothing Store

L. L. Holmes of Belding, was in town the last of last week and rented the Clark store just west of the Bank, and will put in a stock of clothing in the near future. Mr. Holmes is in business in Belding and J. T. Prestley of that place will have charge of the store here. We are glad to welcome any new business to our village, and believe that a clothing store is needed here.

ANDERSON FARMERS' CLUB.

The Club met at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Clinton, just west of this village, on Saturday last, and about 70 were present to enjoy the social intercourse and festivities of the occasion, and these Anderson people know well how to enjoy themselves.

The program was short but excellent. A piano solo by Miss Mabel Clinton; recitation by Alger Hall; paper, "Why farmers receive so little for their labor," Miss Cora Devereaux; recitation by Edna Webb; and piano solos by Mabel Clinton and Flossie Smith, both responding to encores.

R. Clinton had been studying up on the 'bean' question and gave the farmers something to think about in regard to controlling the price of this product. He has a very feasible scheme, and as the bean market can practically be controlled by two states, there is no reason why it will not work. You will probably hear more about it in the future. More decisive steps will be taken at the next meeting which is to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Wilson, next month, and will be an oyster dinner and the election of officers.
