Pinckney Creamery Sold Again.

We are glad to announce this week that the Creamery plant here has been sold to Elmer Zorn and A. W. Lewis of Detroit, who are here this week looking the matter up and will start a cheese factory at once or as soon as milk can be secured.

The parties desire to meet all milk producers at the Creamery Saturday of this week—all day and evening—for the purpose of talking the business over and making arrangements necessary.

Messrs. Zorn and Lewis have conducted factories in several places in the state, come well recommended, and will furnish the best of references.

It is now up to the milk producers whether we make it a success or not. Come in and have a talk with these gentlemen and then decide what to do and do it at once.

Cheese factories are succeeding in all other places in the state and there is no reason why one should not pay here. See their adv on page 4.

THE NEWER EDUCATION.

The relation of the larger universities of the United States to the practical problems of existence is being emphasized in an astonishing degree nowadays, says Chicago Tribune. If the notion of cloistered halls where pale-faced students pored over dusty tomes once held sway, that idea has entirely disappeared. The dominant thought appears to be, how can the training of the schools be made most useful in bettering the conditions of human life. The University of Wisconsin, for example, has been rendering great service to the people of our neighboring commonwealth through its municipal reference bureau. Recognizing the activity in the field of city administration, it has collected information from all available sources, and is now ready to send out material on such subjects as sewage disposal, water supply and purification, street sprinkling and cleaning, the smoke nuisance, parks and playgrounds, care of trees, the commission form of government, public utilities and public service rates, civic centers and art commissions. The statement that one morning's mail brought inquiries from city officials in nine different commonwealths indicates the importance of such university work.

There is always room higher up for the young American who has the talent and the disposition to win. Few enlisted men in the navy rise to commissioned rank, for the way is long and arduous. But the prize can be secured by proper effort. One of these rare cases is reported from Annapolis, where Frederick M. Earl of Northfield, Vt., lately an apprentice in the navy, has passed the requisite examination and has been admitted to the Naval academy as a midshipman, and in due time of course, if all goes well, will receive his diploma and become an officer. The young man is said to have gone through "with flying colors," and it may be predicted that with such pluck and energy he will make his mark in the service of his country. And he has set an excellent example to other ambitious lads.

Advice by an energetic, efficient business man to a man now going back to work after a tired out spell: "Take things easier and get more fresh air. No worry. Do the most important thing first and then the next; generally the things you don't do aren't worth doing. What you think you ought to do you want to do up to the handle and do it quick and then forget it. Don't putter. The way to get along, in my judgment, is to work up to the limit for a certain number of hours and then stop. A man can get further in the long run walking three and a half miles an hour for eight hours out of each twenty-four than he can going two miles an hour for sixteen hours in twenty-four. The first way he can keep going and improve; the last way he will deteriorate and finally have to quit."

The night letter telegrams have proved a boon to many, but there are patrons that find them somewhat baffling. "Look at that man biting the end of his pen over there," the manager of a New York office said. "He is trying to think what in the world to say to use up the 50 words he is entitled to. I like to watch 'em in here at nights. Most of them have more trouble trying to think up 50 words than they ever did in keeping their messages down to ten. There is only one man who comes in here, sits right down and writes out his 50 words without hesitating. But he's in business down south, and has been in the habit of sending long messages for years."

President Schurman of Cornell points out that the scholarship records of the 1,020 men at the college who are members of the fraternities and clubs do not compare favorably with those of the 2,316 men who are not, and has warned the fraternity and club men that they are in trial, and that they would better set higher ideals in scholarship. There is no objection to liberty and equality at Cornell, but fraternity is looked on with suspicion.

In view of the fact that that Washington society girl's mother says that her daughter has been absolutely forbidden by her to go on the stage, perhaps it is not surprising that the girl is there.

STATE TO PROBE EXPRESS RATES

APPARENT THAT HEAVY BURDEN IS BEING PUT ON NON-COMPETITIVE TOWNS.

R. R. COMMISSION IS LOADED FOR FORTHCOMING MEETING.

Representatives of the Four Companies Will Have a Lot to Explain in Lansing Next Friday.

Lansing, Mich., June 18.—The state railroad commission has notified the six express companies doing business in Michigan to send representatives to Lansing next Friday and give the reasons, if they have any, why there should not be a thorough revision of express rates throughout Michigan. The companies will do so.

The six companies are the American, the United States, the Adams, the Pacific, the Western and the Wells-Fargo.

For several months the commission has had experts collecting, interpreting and compiling tariff rates of the six companies, and the result of the work is a mass of documentary evidence which will be laid before the companies' representatives, and which show hundreds of specific cases where there is discrimination of startling proportions against non-competitive points. Not only this, but the experts themselves are at loss to determine on what method or basis the companies proceed to make rates, except to get every penny possible out of shippers.

Four Rates for Same Service. In the first place, the commission's evidence shows that the six companies have four different rates for exactly the same kind of service. These are rates for non-competitive points for carrying 100 pounds 150 miles. The rates is on file in the commission's department, as in fact are all express tariff rates, and it shows that for carrying 100 pounds 150 miles to non-competitive points, the Adams rate is 90 cents, Pacific $1, American and United States $1.25, Wells-Fargo and Western $1.50. Cases have been found where the express rate is more than six times the rate for first-class freight, and not infrequently four and five times first-class freight rates.

Why this variation is one of the things the companies' representatives will be asked to explain. One expert says there does not seem to be any recognized basis for express rates in Michigan at the present time.

Two Wrecks; No One Hurt. Two remarkable wrecks on the Lake Shore road in a single day have resulted in but slight damage. Eighteen men were hurled to the lower end of an unopened car, and only two slightly injured, while the bottom of the car was shattered, in one case; Engineer R. L. Warn was thrown 150 feet with but slight bruises in a second. The wrecks occurred at Hillsdale. In the first wreck a switch was thrown and an eastbound freight backed down upon a tender engine in the local yards. The caboose of the freight was upended and left a mass of wreckage. The engine and tender were awaiting the load of ties for the Mosherville wreck in which a southbound freight was derailed on the Jackson branch north of Hillsdale county, and over 200 feet of track torn up.

Lansing Elks, 250 Strong. The committee in charge of the arrangements for Lansing lodge No. 196 Elks' trip to the reunion at Detroit have completed all details. The uniform will be white duck trousers, white shirt, white cap with a purple band and a purple sash with tassels. The entire Lansing band will accompany the lodge, and will also be clad in the purple and white uniforms. The special train will leave Lansing at 6 a. m., and will start on the trip back at 2 o'clock the next morning. It is expected that at least 250 members of the local lodge will be in the parade. The special train leaving for Detroit will carry all who wish to go, whether they are Elks or not.

Cashier Shepard Under Arrest. Shepard, former cashier of the defunct Citizens' Savings bank, at Plainwell, was placed under arrest at his home by Constable Brott, of Allegan. He was taken to Allegan for arraignment. He pleaded not guilty and was released on bail of $1,000.

The specific charge against Shepard is a violation of the state banking laws by making false reports to the state banking department. The warrant was issued by Banking Commissioner Zimmerman. The sum named in the complaint is $10,100 and the offense is cited as having occurred March 24 last. The maximum penalty in case of conviction is 20 years' imprisonment.

One hundred members of the Michigan Blind Peoples' Central Welfare association were in session at Lansing in the sixth biennial reunion. The object of the association is the betterment of policies adopted in the care of the blind.

The Advance Thresher Co.'s foundry building, at Battle Creek, temporarily occupied by the John Watkins saw-mill, burned with a loss of between $2,000 and $3,000. Though located a block from fire station No. 4, the building was beyond being saved when the fire was discovered. Much valuable machinery was burned. The blaze was the fourth in this building within a few years, and the second this year. A new building will be erected at once.

Cottagers at Ottawa Beach have brought suit against the Pere Marquette railway and the Central Land Co. to compel them to vacate property on which is situated the Hotel Ottawa and the power and lighting plant. The affairs of the park association were in litigation for many years and the railroad company seized the opportunity to erect the buildings. The litigation was recently decided in favor of the association of cottagers and an attempt will be made to force settlement in the Kent circuit court.

LENTIL AS A FOOD

HAS BEEN TOO LONG NEGLECTED IN AMERICA.

Its Valuable Qualities Better Appreciated in Europe—Requires Care in Its Proper Preparation for the Table.

The lentil is a legume of the greatest antiquity and one of the oldest of foods, yet it is new or entirely unknown in most American households. We probably owe it to the German-Americans that this little, unfamiliar relative of the bean and pea is now one of the dried vegetables which are our staple resources. In Germany the lentil soup is a great favorite. Tons of lentils are also imported in England each year and recipes for cooking them are to be found in most English cook books, as they are not in American.

The native country of the lentil is not known, but it has been raised in Egypt for thousands of years and the Egyptian, or red, variety is that best known to commerce. It was parched in Egypt and Syria in the days of the patriarchs and thus prepared was the most convenient food for long journeys. It is the food of the poor in all countries where it is grown.

Strange beliefs and superstitions have often been connected with different members of the pulse family, as with many other sorts of food, and both the lentil and the bean have been used or rejected because of these. For a long time the English believed the lentil to be difficult of digestion, to cause serious bowel disorders and to injure the eyes, but such ideas have now been pretty generally discarded.

The lentil is richer in nutritious matter than almost any other kind of pulse. Because of its nitrogenous character it is more nearly an equivalent of lean meat than almost any other kind of food.

The lentil should be picked over, thoroughly soaked for seven or eight hours or over night, and cooked slowly in boiling water. The picking over is important, for it is possible for a few seeds of noxious weeds to vitiate any such food, just as they do coffee when they get mixed with the bean.

The lentil lends itself to experiment. The following recipe for lentil rissoles suggests of what sort these are: "Take equal parts of strained, well-cooked lentils and cold mashed potatoes, mix, add one-third of the amount of fine bread crumbs, one teaspoon each of powdered sage and minced onion, and a little salt. Dissolve a teaspoon of nut butter in two tablespoons of hot water and add to mixture. Mix all well together, press into oiled tin, cut into squares with knife and place in a moderate oven for ten or fifteen minutes. Serve hot."

Lentil soups are made with stock and with ham and sometimes frankfurts are boiled in them, but cooked without any of these things, except perhaps a slice of bacon, mashed and strained and then softened in flavor with milk, they make a most delightful soup.

Baked Bluefish. Mix half a pint of dry bread crumbs with two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, and a seasoning of salt and pepper. Pack this into the fish. Scatter bread crumbs thickly over the fish, baste with melted butter and pour around it in the pan half a cupful of boiling water in which a teaspoonful of butter has been melted. Bake about an hour, basting every ten minutes.

Potato Pancakes. Peel and grate four large potatoes. Press in a strainer and add two eggs, well beaten alternately with a cup of flour. Salt and pepper to taste and stir in enough warm water to make a soft paste. Fry in lard or butter to brown pancakes.

Whipped Cream. Be sure that the cream is rich. Pour it into a chilled bowl, and, with a wire egg whip, beat steadily until thick. This is the simplest and easiest way of beating cream. Add sugar and flavoring to taste, and keep in the ice until wanted.

No Egg Cookies. One cup sugar, one tablespoon lard or butter, one cup sweet milk, pinch of salt, one teaspoon soda, two of cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon flavoring. Flour to stiffen.

Freedom of the Will. The freedom of the human will is limited to the choice between what a man is forced to regard as good and what he cannot fail to regard as evil, but in this choice he is unfettered.—Baron Stockmar.

Tragic Death of Stowaway. The body of a stowaway, who had hidden himself on top of a boiler on board an ocean liner, and had been suffocated by smoke, was discovered when the liner reached Southampton from New York the other day.

A Case of Terrible Kidney Trouble.

Henry J. Case and Vincent St. Barneville, Jr. says: "My kidney trouble was caused by hardships and exposure in the army. The awful pains across my back gradually became more severe until I was in constant misery. My feet and hands were swollen to twice their natural size. The kidney secretions were in a terrible condition—for months I voided what seemed to be clear blood. I became so dizzy everything seemed to whirl. My condition was alarming when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Before long I improved and was soon strong and well."

An Almost Universal Prayer. "Among the late Bishop Foss' anecdotes about prayer," said a Philadelphia Methodist, "there was one concerning a very original Norristown preacher.

"This preacher, in the course of a long prayer one Sunday night, recounted the many misfortunes and evils that had befallen him in the course of his long life. Then, sighing heavily, he prayed: "Thou hast tried me with affliction, with bereavement, and with sorrow of many kinds. If thou are obliged to try me again, Lord, try me with the burden of wealth."

SERIAL STORY

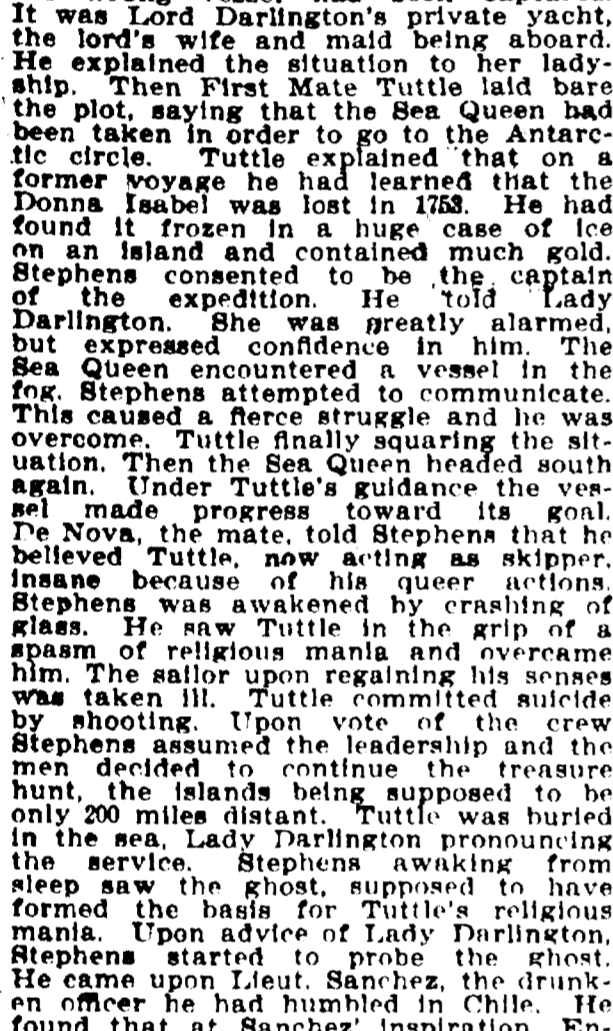

The LAST VOYAGE of the DONNA ISABEL

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the introduction of John Stephens, adventurer, a Massachusetts man marooned by authorities at Valparaiso, Chile. Being interested in mining operations in Bolivia he was denounced by Chile as an insurrectionist and as a consequence was hiding. At his hotel his attention was attracted by an Englishman and a young woman. Stephens rescued the young woman from a drunken officer. He was thanked by her. Admiral of the Peruvian navy confronted Stephens, told him that war had been declared between Chile and Peru and offered him use of his cabin. He desired that that night the Esmeralda, a Chilean vessel, should be captured. Stephens accepted the commission. Stephens met a motley crew, to which he was assigned as first mate. He gave instructions. They boarded the vessel. They successfully captured the vessel supposed to be the Esmeralda, through strategy. Capt. Stephens gave directions for the departure of the craft. He entered the cabin and discovered the English woman and her maid. Stephens quickly learned the wrong vessel had been captured. Then Lord Darlington, private secretary of the lord's wife and maid, boarded. He explained the situation to her ladyship. Then First Mate Tuttle laid bare the plot, saying that the Sea Queen had been taken in order to go to the Antarctic circle. Tuttle explained that on a former voyage he had learned that the Donna Isabel was lost in 1753. He had found it frozen in a huge mass of ice on an island and contained much gold. Stephens consented to be the captain of the expedition. He told Lady Darlington. She was greatly alarmed, but expressed confidence in him. The Sea Queen entered a vessel in the fog. Stephens attempted to communicate. This caused a fierce struggle and he was overcome. Tuttle finally squaring the situation. Then the Sea Queen headed south again. Under Tuttle's guidance the vessel made progress toward its goal. De Nova, the mate, told Stephens that he believed Tuttle, now acting as skipper, insane because of his queer actions. Stephens was awakened by the crashing of glass. He saw Tuttle in the grip of a spasm of religious mania and overcame him. The sailor upon regaining his senses was taken ill. Tuttle committed suicide by shooting. Stephens assumed the leadership and the men decided to continue the treasure hunt, the islands being supposed to be only 200 miles distant. Tuttle was buried in the sea. Lady Darlington, promising the service, Stephens awaking from sleep saw the ghost, supposed to have formed the basis for Tuttle's religious mania. Upon advice of Lady Darlington, Stephens started to probe the ghost. He came upon Lieut. Sanchez, the drunken officer he had humbled in Chile. He found that at Sanchez's inspiration, Engineer McKnight played "ghost" to scare the men into giving up the quest. Stephens announced that the Sea Queen was at the spot where Tuttle's quest was supposed to be. The crew was anxious to go on in further search. De Nova and Stephens conquered them in a fist fight. Lady Darlington thanked him. The Sea Queen started northward. She was wrecked in a fog. Stephens, De Nova, Lady Darlington and her maid being among those to set out in a life boat. Ten were rescued. Stephens saw only one chance in a thousand for life. Lady Darlington confessed her love to Stephens and he did likewise. Lady Darlington told her life story; how she had been married for a year, her yearning for absent love. She revealed herself as the school chum of Stephens' sister. She expressed a wish to die in the sea rather than face her former friends and go back to the life of a fortune teller. The craft proved to be a derelict. They boarded her. She was frozen tight with hundreds of years of ice. The vessel was the Donna Isabel, lost in 1753, 126 years previous. The frozen bodies of the former crew were removed. They read the log of the Isabel, which told how the Spaniards had died from cold, one by one. Lady Darlington sang to prevent the men from becoming morose. The crew commenced the hunt for treasure. They found the iron chest, said to contain a part of 3,000,000 pesos, firmly imbedded in ice.

They Came Howling About Me Like So Many Wolves, Eager to See.

gazing into each others' faces and actually afraid to talk lest the whole occurrence should prove a dream from which a chance word might awaken us. Three million pesos—here, actually here; almost within reach of our hands; they were digging for them just below; even then, in the silence, we could hear the faint echo of blows being struck against the ice. Three million pesos!—and it was all ours, our very own—to divide, to spend, to do with exactly as we pleased. We had dreamed about all this before, on the decks of the ill-fated Sea Queen, but now we sought to grasp it as an actual existing fact, and our minds seemed paralyzed by the knowledge. I even forgot that Doris was present until she touched me gently on the shoulder, and I looked down into her questioning eyes.

"By God, mates, there's one of 'em, anyhow!" roared a voice, hoarse from exploding excitement. But I was already upon my knees, feeling blindly into the ice cavity.

They came howling about me like so many wolves, eager to see with their own eyes, but I crowded them back, snatching the candle from De Nova's fingers and throwing the flickering light down level with the deck.

"It's a brass-bound chest, men," I cried, straightening up and facing them. "But it is going to require some hard digging to get it out. About all I can see is the handle of it."

I never comprehended before how the passion and lust for gold can express itself upon men's faces. Tense, motionless, breathing heavily, their features drawn, their eyes gleaming feverishly in the yellow flame, they stared at me and then at that ice-front, demented and speechless. No one thought of where we were—castaways, our lives the sport of winds and waves, a sudden wreck under us, our nearest port a thousand miles away across a stormy sea; all we realized at that moment was that there, just before us, under that mantle of ice, lay buried three million pesos. God! the color of my jacket seemed choking me; I breathed as if a man's fingers clutched my throat, and I saw McKnight's burly form shaking as if he had an ague fit. Three million pesos! The hot blood rushed to my head, a lava stream, and De Nova's face, white as chalk behind his little black mustaches, seemed dancing before me ghostlike. Damn him! the fellow made me think of Salvatore, the man who, just above, frozen and dead, had guarded this treasure for 126 years. I cast the suggestion aside with a curse and a laugh, grasping Kelly by the shoulder to steady myself—to realize these were real men, 's task before us real work. It was like coming forth from under an anaesthetic, leaving me weak as a child, yet with brain and faculties aroused to action. Johnson thrust forward the cleaver.

"Let me get in there, sir; I'm the man for a cuttin' job."

I stepped aside, and the broad blade fell slashing against the front of the ice.

"Only two of you men can work here at once," I put in hastily. "Hold on, Johnson, until we get this ship-shape. An axman, with a helper to haul back the ice out of the way, is all we need. Any more would only be in the way; besides, some of us ought to be on deck. It is going to require hours, maybe days, to get that chest out, and meanwhile we must sail this vessel and keep her right side up. The thing to do is to arrange relays, and keep at it steady. Johnson, you and Kelly go to work first. The rest of us will climb up into the cabin, and figure it out."

They went along with me up the ladder as though they were prisoners, casting the last lingering glances below, where the weird flame of the candle flickered yellow, the blows of the cleaver echoing sharply as they clustered about the stove, welcoming the warmth of it. It had been frigid below decks, although we had been scarcely conscious of it in our excitement. But now we stood shivering.

They Came Howling About Me Like So Many Wolves, Eager to See.

gazing into each others' faces and actually afraid to talk lest the whole occurrence should prove a dream from which a chance word might awaken us. Three million pesos—here, actually here; almost within reach of our hands; they were digging for them just below; even then, in the silence, we could hear the faint echo of blows being struck against the ice. Three million pesos!—and it was all ours, our very own—to divide, to spend, to do with exactly as we pleased. We had dreamed about all this before, on the decks of the ill-fated Sea Queen, but now we sought to grasp it as an actual existing fact, and our minds seemed paralyzed by the knowledge. I even forgot that Doris was present until she touched me gently on the shoulder, and I looked down into her questioning eyes.

"Do you not know what we have just discovered below?" I asked, still tingling to the marrow of it. "The treasure, the Spanish treasure!"

"Oh, yes," but the soft voice seemed tinged with sadness. "Yet it does not greatly interest me. Money seems so little here, so utterly valueless."

The simple words, the tone of their utterance brought me to myself as though I had received an electric shock. She was still smiling, yet all at once I noticed how white her face was, how dark the shadows beneath her eyes. The lure of the gold vanished from my mind, as if some wizard's wand had waved it away. I thought of the treacherous sea without, the life and death struggle before us, those dreary leagues separating us from hope. My hands clasped hers, the expression of love in my eyes brightening her face instantly.

"That is so much better, Jack," she said tenderly. "I knew it was only the madness of a moment which caused you to forget. Come out on deck with me until you lose all memory of it—until I bring you back to real life again."

"I do not need it, sweetheart," and I bent low, looking into her eyes. "The fever has left my blood. I hardly know how it ever laid such hold upon me, but the thought of all that wealth below drove me as mad as the others. You see how much I need you."

"Oh, no; you would have recovered without my help, although it might have required more time to complete a cure. But I fear there is no hope for the men."

"I certainly shall not spare you to minister to them."

She laughed, her happiness of disposition returning.

"That would be useless; they are of different stamp. The fever for sudden wealth is in the blood of all of us. See how excited Celeste is. Perhaps if I had ever experienced poverty I might be crazed also. But it is so foolish here—here," and she swept her hands about in comprehensive gesture, "when we know it can be ours only for a day, or at most a week."

"But we have not given up hope," I protested. "Why should we? The Donna Isabel seems stanch beneath us."

"Even in case of that miracle I want nothing to do with this treasure," she said gravely. "It seems to me, Jack, there must be a curse upon that gold below. It will never do good to any human being. It was stolen by the sword, won for Spain by the shedding of blood, and has since cursed this ship and all who sailed in her. The living and the dead guarded it, and now we have come into its evil clutch. It is not superstition but faith which makes me say this—the Donna Isabel will never make port; that gold below will never do a soul on board anything but harm. I wish it could be left where it is, buried in the ice."

"At such a suggestion the men would mutiny."

"I suppose so," she acknowledged sadly, "and the end will be the same in either case. But I want you to be different. Let them build their air castles; but do you come out on deck with me, where the sea and sky will give us other thoughts."

Comprehending only vaguely what she meant, yet beneath the witching spell of her presence I went gladly enough, forgetting utterly that useless treasure imbedded in the ice below.

CHAPTER XXVII.

In Which the Treasure Causes Trouble

But the men did not forget, or cease in their eager efforts to rescue that frozen gold from the grasp of the ice. By this time, thoroughly convinced myself that our final preservation of this wealth would prove impossible, I was still far from devoid of interest in its recovery, and consequently made no effort to interrupt the work being carried on between decks. It was better that the men be busy and their minds occupied than to have them roaming aimlessly about the decks in discontent, now that the ship and weather gave us little occasion for concern. Here they vigorously plied the cleaver, working in relays of two hours each, during the remainder of the day and night. After breakfast had been served we all of us went below to unite our strength in hauling forth the loosened box from the ice cavity.

We accomplished this by resorting to block and tackle, and even then experienced no small difficulty in dragging it away from the ice grip. Under the dim candlelight it appeared a fair-sized sea-chest, constructed of some heavy, dark wood, and bound securely by metal bands, with a cumbersome lock. A considerable quantity of water from somewhere continued to seep down into the lazarette, making the floor an icy puddle, and so we talked on to the ropes again, and hoisted the chest up through the trap-door out upon the cabin deck. I could find no keys in any of the state-rooms, and we must have been half an hour breaking the rusty lock and prying open the lid, the only sounds audible the blows struck and the heavy breathing of the men. Finally we wrenched apart the last band, and our eager eyes beheld the revealed contents—pieces of eight, yellow and level to the top! There was a wild yell, a fierce scramble, the crazed men digging their fingers into the coins, handling them, fondling them, laughing and crying like children in their excitement, and cursing each other as they struggled for a chance at the box. For the moment, staring down at the dull glow of the metal, I even lost control of myself, scarcely aware of the mad uproar. It was actually there—there before me! That old Spanish record had all been true; here, and beneath that ice between decks lay the remainder—three million pesos! Here was the wealth of a king; here, almost within reach of our hands, and it was all ours—ours, if we could only bring it forth to where it possessed value.

If we only could! The thought struck me like a blow. I knew the truth, the truth. There was not one chance in a thousand—not one. I made no effort to deceive myself. The men, even the mate, blinded by the gold-just had ignored facts plain as day to me—the terrible listing of the ship to port, the constant seeping of water into the hold, the increasing soddiness of the staggering hull—all these combined to tell the story—that the Donna Isabel was doomed. No could ever save her. The protecting ice-sheet, by help of which she had drifted ghost-like out of the Antarctic, pounded by the fierce seas, loosened by the milder air of more northern latitudes, had already commenced to take on, and the invading water was discovering crevices everywhere along her ancient seams. We had come to the gold; we had discovered it; it was ours. But we could only gaze on it, and give it back to the ocean in exchange for our lives. I straightened up, my lips compressed, and looked beyond the struggling figures of the men into Doris's questioning gray eyes. Father of Mercy, I possessed something worth more than money—the love of a woman! Ay, but what of the men? What of the men? It would be cutting their hearts out; yet it must be done—done, if necessary, with all the brutality of a slave driver. She had said this treasure was a curse, a legacy of crime and death, a prize for dead men. Not while I retained mind and body to battle should it cost our lives. I pushed De Nova backward, and planted myself across the open chest, scowling into the uplifted, angry faces.

"That's enough, men. This is part of the treasure all right, but there is no occasion for you to go crazy over it. Put those coins back—do you hear, McKnight?—put them back, and we'll shut down the lid. They're nice to look at, and dream over, but that's about all the good we'll ever get of them. Were there any signs of others down there in the ice, Johnson?"

The Characteristic National Meal.

It is not only in Scotland that breakfast is the characteristic national meal, says the London Chronicle. Travel where you may, the first meal of the day is the one that strikes the foreign note, luncheon and dinner having gradually absorbed cosmopolitan qualities that are not even confined to hotels. But you never feel so much of an Englishman as when Switzerland gives you rolls and butter and honey, and nothing more, with your coffee, or when France makes this into one exquisite crumbling "croissant," with an inch or two from a yard long loaf, or when Denmark adds cream instead of milk to the coffee and a dangerous piece of pastry to the black bread and round white roll.

Yet our English breakfast became an institution only in the eighteenth century. Before that only royalty breakfasted off meat, bread and cheese and ale. The commoner, such as Peppy, took merely a morning draught of buttered ale.

Hot Water Cure for Insomnia.

To insure the benefit of the hot water, it must be taken off the fire the moment it boils—not just before or after—and poured at once into a cup or glass. Then it should be taken while very hot. A little practice will enable one to swallow it at little less than the boiling point, and in addition to the proper temperature, the proper time must be observed. It is most efficacious in curing indigestion and improving the general tone of the system if taken immediately on waking in the morning, again an hour before lunch and an hour before dinner also, and to drink two glassfuls on retiring will almost positively insure sound sleep. It may require two or three days' trial before the desired result is effected, but once gained it can be held without interruption by faithfully pursuing this method.

Married Women Must Work.

As long as women workers stop work at marriage they will continue to be, as a class, low-paid, over-worked, unskilled, looking only to the day and never to the future, entering industry casually without training, retiring from it unexpectedly without warning, hard to organize into trade unions, hard to interest in technical improvements, hard to inspire with financial ambition, behaving, in every respect, with the utmost good sense, just exactly in the manner in which any class of admittedly and consciously temporary workers should behave. It is hard to believe that such a situation can be right either for women or for industry. The women lose opportunities. Industry loses abilities.—Everybody's.

Puzzled Innkeeper.

Rear Admiral Philip C. Cooper, chief of the Asiatic station, complained in a recent letter home of the extortions of innkeepers in out of the way parts of the globe.

"In Montenegro, once," he wrote, "I asked for my bill, after having slept over night at a certain inn, and, as soon as the document was handed to me, I took out my purse to settle it. I did not bother to verify the various items. What would have been the use?"

"But my readiness to pay amazed the landlord. He thought a moment, and then he said, unasily: 'Will you let me have another look at that bill, sir? I think I have omitted something.'"

Teaching Canadians to Shoot.

The Canadian minister of militia hopes by reason of the prizes being offered that within a few months every boy in Canada will be undergoing instruction in rifle shooting.

A Tart Tongue.

Col. Robert C. Carter, at a Nashville banquet, was talking about campaign comrades.

"Then there was Dash of Company A," he said. "Dash had the reputation of being the nastiest-tongued man in the regiment."

"It was Private Dash, you know, who, out foraging one evening on a rich estate, came accidentally upon the owner's wife, a grande dame in evening dress.

"Dash asked her for food. She refused him. He asked again. But, still refusing, she walked away.

"No," she said, "I'll give you nothing, trespassing like this! I'll give you nothing. My mind is made up."

"Made up, is it?" said Dash. "Like the rest of you, eh?"

Why He Quit.

"Bondsonby has given up smoking."

"Impossible. He's been a slave to the habit for years."

"He's given it up, all right."

"Why? Did the doctor order him to do it on account of his nerves?"

"No, I don't believe so; but you know that peach of a stenographer he's had for the past few weeks? Well, I happened to overhear her say one day, when Bondsonby was listening, that she would be as willing to kiss a pig as to kiss a man who was always smoking."

Decimals and Duodecimals.
Herbert Spencer offered a characteristically original system of reckoning. He clung to the duodecimal system: "infinitely because twelve can be divided by three and four as ten cannot." But he suggested that all the advantages of both systems might be combined by making twelve the basis of calculation. Inventing two new digits to take the places of ten and eleven and making twelve times twelve the hundred. Spencer scornfully remarked that the decimal system rests solely on the fact that man has ten fingers and ten toes. "If he had had twelve, there never would have been any difficulty."

Wrong Diagnosis.

A drummer was taken ill suddenly. He went to see a physician of considerable standing, and the following conversation ensued: "I feel very sick," declared the drummer. "What's the trouble?" asked the physician. "Severe pain in my side." "Humph," said the doctor slowly, "I think you have appendicitis." "You have made a mistake, doctor," replied the salesman. "I'm not a millionaire, just a plain drummer." "Well, I guess you just have the cramps, then," replied the indignant personage. "Five dollars, please."

Paired.

She was an amiable old lady, and volunteered much information to the fair stranger who had come down to see an important event in the country town—the laying of the foundation stone of the new church.

"Yes," prattled the old lady, "that is the duke and duchess, and the couple behind them are the mayor and mayoress; and those two to the right are the vicar and—er—vixen."—Ideas.

Not Transferable.

Miss A. had on a skirt of delicate fawn color, which the others coveted. "Do bequeath that skirt to me, Miss A.," said one friend; "it matches a waist of mine exactly." "I don't see what you want of this old skirt," Miss A. replied. "It's on its last legs now."—Success Magazine.

Barber-ous Humor.

Barber—How would you like your hair cut, sir?
Stude—Fine. Do you think I came in here to discuss the tariff?

A DETERMINED WOMAN Finally Found a Food That Cured Her.

"When I first read of the remarkable effects of Grape-Nuts food, I determined to secure some," says a woman in Salisbury, Mo. "At that time there was none kept in this town, but my husband ordered some from a Chicago traveler.

"I had been greatly afflicted with sudden attacks of cramps, nausea, and vomiting. Tried all sorts of remedies and physicians, but obtained only temporary relief. As soon as I began to use the new food the cramps disappeared and have never returned.

"My old attacks of sick stomach were a little slower to yield, but by continuing the food, that trouble has disappeared entirely. I am today perfectly well, can eat anything and everything I wish, without paying the penalty that I used to. We would not keep house without Grape-Nuts.

"My husband was so delighted with the benefits I received that he has been recommending Grape-Nuts to his customers and has built up a very large trade on the food. He sells them by the case to many of the leading physicians of the county, who recommend Grape-Nuts very generally. There is some satisfaction in using a really scientifically prepared food."

ELDEST SON OF ROOSEVELT WEDS

Theodore, Jr., and Miss Eleanor Alexander Are Married.

CULMINATION OF LOVE MATCH

Former President Witnesses Ceremony in New York Church—San Francisco to Be Home of the Couple.

New York.—Of all the June weddings of 1910, the one that has aroused the most general interest was that of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Miss Eleanor Alexander which was celebrated in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church on June 20.

A large number of prominent people witnessed the ceremony, but naturally one years old, of a little more than medium height, slender, and of very attractive appearance, having an especially beautiful complexion. She is as animated as her famous sister-in-law, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, whose house guest she was for a time just before Mrs. Longworth sailed for England to join her father.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., strongly resembles his father in looks, but is decidedly reserved and is generally credited with being far less democratic than certain other members of the family. As a boy he rode horseback and engaged in all the other outdoor pursuits of the juvenile Roosevelt clan at their home at Oyster Bay and he took some part in athletics during his preparatory school course at Groton and his collegiate course at Harvard, but in the main he has been less enthusiastic on the subject of life in the open than his father and brother Kermit. He has always been of a studious nature and his romance with Miss Alexander is said to have had its beginnings in the mutual love of these young people for music. For all that "Teddy, Jr.," has eschewed the sensational in outdoor athletics, he did participate two years ago in a bal-the most noticed person in the church, after the bride and groom, was Col. Theodore Roosevelt, father of the young man who was entering the state of matrimony. The date of the wedding had been set to permit the attendance of the former president, and this was one of his very first social engagements after his return from abroad, for he landed in New York only two days before.

Mrs. Snowden Fahnstock, who before her own recent marriage was Miss Elizabeth Bertron, was the matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Ethel Roosevelt, Miss Jessie Millington-Drake, Miss Janetta Alexander, Miss Jean Delano and Miss Harriet Alexander.

The Roosevelt Home at Oyster Bay.

Rev. Henry M. Sanders, a great uncle of the bride, officiated, assisted by Dr. Gordon Russell of Cranford, N. J.

After the ceremony the bridal party was entertained at the home of the bride's uncle, Charles B. Alexander. At least a part of the honeymoon will be spent at Sagamore Hill, the country home of the Roosevelt family at Oyster Bay, Long Island. Later in the summer the young couple will start for San Francisco, where Mr. Roosevelt is to be in charge of the interests of the carpet manufacturing firm with which he has been associated for some time.

The love story of the young couple has been a quick-moving romance. Their engagement was announced only last winter, and the news was cabled to Colonel Roosevelt, resulting in the speedy receipt of his approval and congratulations. The bride, who is the daughter of Henry Addison Alexander of New York, is twentyloon flight from Washington, in which he and the two army officers who were his fellow passengers had some rather exciting experiences.

There was no little surprise on the part of the public when Theodore, Jr., upon the completion of his college course two years ago, chose a business career as his life work, and still more wonder was aroused when he took employment in a Connecticut carpet factory in order to gather knowledge at first hand of the practical side of carpet manufacture. He started at the lowest round of the ladder, as an unskilled workman at a small salary. Of course he was promoted as he mastered the intricacies of the business, but he continued to live quietly in a modest boarding house. Many persons were skeptical as to whether young Roosevelt would stick to so prosaic an existence, but he is evidently determined to win his fortune in this sphere.

Raven's Sharp Trick.

The best talking-bird new to the big collection in the London "Zoo" is a raven who came to the aviary last year. "Hullo! Jack!" is his favorite remark, and it is the voice of one who meets an unworthy friend. Soon after he arrived he used his conversational powers with great effect upon a lammergeier who shares his cage (relates the London Spectator). The lammergeier had a piece of meat which the raven desired, but he was unwilling to surrender it. The raven hopped up. "Hullo! Jack!" he began, and the lammergeier, aghast at the voice of man, dropped his dinner and fled. But the lammergeier was never a bird of much spirit.

OWES MICHIGAN $285,000.

Balance Due From Government On Sale of Public Lands.

The United States government is indebted to the state of Michigan in the sum of $285,000 and the money remains in the treasury of the United States waiting for some able-bodied citizen from the state to lay claim to it.

Under the "enabling act" by which Michigan was admitted into the union, 5 per cent of all moneys derived from the sale of certain public lands by the government was to be paid into the state treasury. There was paid to the state on this account $286,751.49. No accounting has ever been made by the government to the state.

In 1836, under the Jackson administration, a very large surplus accrued in the treasury and the government concluded it advisable to distribute this sum among the several states and an act of congress was passed to that effect. From the debates which occurred in congress at the time of the passage of the act it is learned a large amount of the surplus then in the treasury arose from the sale of public lands.

Circus Lions Freed by Wreck.

The Frank A. Robbins circus train, of fifteen cars, was wrecked one mile from Ebsenburg, Pa., on the Cambria & Cresson branch of the Pennsylvania road.

Two lions, an elephant, one leopard, one hyena, one jaguar and an ibex are reported at large. Ten circus employees were injured. The more seriously injured were removed to hospitals in Altoona.

At the scene of the wreck a low bridge spans a deep gully. As the train passed over, three of the wagons containing the animals struck low-hanging girders and were overturned. The cars carrying the wagon cages were derailed and thrown over the embankment leading to the bridge.

Fight Anywhere in Nevada.

That the law of Nevada would permit the Jeffries and Johnson fight in the state was the statement made by Justice Sweeney, of the supreme court when the question was put to him in the absence of Governor Dickerson. With only the formality of obtaining a license, for which $1,000 must be deposited, he said that the fight could be held in any county in the state without fear of interference.

The law permitting contests of unlimited number of rounds in Nevada was passed for the Corbett and Fitzsimmons fight, and has not been amended or repealed.

Another Interurban Line.

Contracts have been awarded for the construction of an electric road between Lansing and Grand Ledge. The line is to be constructed on a private right-of-way with third rail motive power. J. S. Mudge and J. W. Ewing, of Grand Ledge, promoted the road and R. E. Olds, of Lansing, is said to be interested with them in the company. The road is to be in operation next winter.

NEWS TOLD IN BRIEF.

In a factional difficulty at Athol, Breathitt county, Kentucky, Miles Crawford was shot and killed by Ellisha Johnson. It is charged that Crawford attacked his cousin, Clay Crawford, and was killed by Johnson. The slayer surrendered.

Discouraged in his attempt to induce congress to increase the number of officers in the army, Secretary Dickinson has taken steps to recall officers from detail stations to the line. "As it is not at all probable that congress will take up the bill to give additional officers to the army," said the secretary, "it has become necessary to take immediate action to get as many officers back to duty with the depleted companies and regiments as possible."

Honored by the Governor. Effusive compliments have been paid to Governor Marshall many times, but it remained for an old Irish woman to cap the climax.

The governor met her at a funeral which he attended the other day and she was full of reverence for the Indiana executive.

ROYAL WELCOME FOR ROOSEVELT

Vast Throng Greets the Former President at New York.

HE IS MET AT QUARANTINE

Escorted to the Battery by a Great Flotilla—Speeches and Land Parade—Affair is Spontaneous and Non-Partisan.

New York.—He has come back! Theodore Roosevelt returned to his native land June 18, and was given a welcome home such as was never before accorded to a citizen of this republic. The whole country joined in it, and it was so spontaneous and so utterly non-partisan that it could not but be most flattering to the former president.

Since emerging from the African jungle the latter part of March, Mr. Roosevelt has been the guest of nearly every European ruler and almost unprecedented honors have been heaped on him. The reception by his fellow citizens was a fitting climax to his triumphal tour and must have been the most satisfactory event connected with it.

Flotilla Meets Him at Quarantine. More than a month ago every available craft in New York harbor had been engaged for the day, and numerous big organizations, like the Republican club of New York and the Hamilton club of Chicago, had chartered regular coast line steamers. Early in the morning this immense flotilla sailed far down the bay, and when, about 9 o'clock, the scouting tugs and motor boats came flying in with the word that the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria was approaching, all made ready for the first greeting.

As the big liner came into sight, every whistle on every vessel was tied open and shrieked the welcome to the returning wanderer. Colonel Roosevelt, with Mrs. Roosevelt and Kermit by his side, stood on the deck, waving his hand and smiling the familiar smile, and the waiting thousands cheered him again and again.

Reception Committee Takes Him.

At Quarantine the necessary formalities were quickly over and the official reception committee took the colonel and his party aboard its revenue cutter. That vessel at once started up the harbor and all the gaily decorated craft, filled with clubs and private parties, fell in behind and formed a most spectacular water parade. On almost every boat was a band, and all the way the musicians played at the top of their lungs. The shores were black with people who shouted their greetings to "Teddy" as he passed and the factories and mills added the noise of their whistles to the general din.

So it went all the way up to Twenty-third street, where the parade turned and made its way back to the Battery. At that historic spot at the lower end of Manhattan island Colonel Roosevelt landed to receive the formal welcome home.

Welcomed by Mayor Gaynor.

certain blocks along the line of march; for instance, one or two blocks were assigned to some visiting club, and the next to the public, and so on.

The procession itself was comparatively small and was led by the mounted police of New York, who were followed by the police band on foot. Then came the escort of 500 Rough Riders under the command of Robert Hunter of Oklahoma city, president of the organization. Colonel Roosevelt came next in a carriage, and his carriage was followed by a long procession of vehicles containing the members of the committee and the speakers.

The procession made its way up Broadway to Fourth street where it turned into Fifth avenue and proceeded up that thoroughfare to Fifty-ninth street, where it disbanded. The route was lined with visiting organizations, and their bands struck up as the procession approached and continued until it had passed by.

In order that Mrs. Roosevelt might share in her husband's honors and view the procession from an advantageous point, Mrs. Donald McLean, president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, had cabled her an invitation to be the guest of honor at a luncheon at Sherry's tendered by prominent members of various female organizations. Following the parade, Mr. Roosevelt joined his family and a little later went to his Long Island home.

Conditional Piety.

Two Scotch fishermen, James and Sandy, belated and befogged on a rough water, were in some trepidation lest they should never get ashore again. At last Jamie said:

"Sandy, I'm steering, and I think you'd better put up a bit of prayer."

"I don't know how," said Sandy.

"If ye don't I'll chuck ye overboard," said Jamie.

Sandy began: "Oh, Lord, I never asked anything of ye for fifteen years, and if ye'll only get us safe back I'll never trouble ye again, and—"

"Whist, Sandy," said Jamie. "The boat's touched shore; don't be beholden to anybody."—Short Stories.

The pupils recital of unusual interest of merit and one in which the work of the pupils elicited enthusiastic applause from a fair sized audience was given last eve by the pupils of Mrs. Jessie Dicken Reed at the school of music. Quite remarkable things have been done this past year with Miss Kice's naturally beautiful contralto voice. It has depth, resonance and sweetness and she uses it wisely.
