The Pinckney Dispatch Changes Hands.

Twenty years ago the past June, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Andrews purchased the Pinckney Dispatch and have published it ever since under the name of F. L. Andrews & Co. They have during that time made many friends and it is with some reluctance that they lay aside the work that in many ways has been very pleasant and in a measure profitable.

They have graduated from the small print shop over what was formerly Teepie & Cadwells hardware store to a home of their own on the corner of Main and Mill streets where they have held forth for several years.

For the past few years, however, owing to the poor health of Mr. Andrews, it has become imperative that he give up the strenuous labor, incident to the weekly issuance of the paper and Monday papers were made out whereby the ownership of the DISPATCH changed hands, Roy Caverly of Detroit being the purchaser of the printing plant, good will and subscription list of the Pinckney Dispatch.

All advertising accounts up to and including Sept. 1 will be payable to F. L. Andrews & Co., after which time they will be payable to the new owner of the DISPATCH. All subscription accounts will be payable to the new firm who fills all contracts on subscription accounts, having purchased the entire subscription list as represented by our books.

Mr. Caverly, the new proprietor, needs no introduction to most of our readers as he was formerly a Pinckney boy and began to learn the printers trade with us several years ago. He was for some time on a Dundee paper and later was foreman of the Livingston Republican for about three years where he has many friends. For some time he has been employed by the Peninsular Engraving Co., where they do fine printing. As a printer, we can recommend him most highly and with the excellent job department of the DISPATCH back of him he will be able to suit the most fastidious patron.

We desire to thank all who have stood so nobly by us during the past twenty years and shall always remember the kindnesses. We ask that the same courtesy be extended to the new proprietor and we believe that your confidence will not be misplaced.

Yours,
F. L. ANDREWS & Co.

The BRAND NEW WORLD

How old 's the world? they're asking,
An' they whisper in our ears
That they'll soon be unmaskin'
The number of her years.
They reckon it by millions,
Their figures fill the wall,
An' some say it is billions—
But she's not old at all.

She's brand new every mornin'
In silver sunlight dressed
With flowers for adornin'
Her path from east to west;
She isn't growin' older,
She's young as young can be
Though age is growin' bolder
Each day with you an' me.

The good Lord sends the showers,
The sunshine an' the dew,
The sweet breath of the flowers
Each day to make her new.
I wish he thought us worthy
Like in the olden days
To really be earthly
An' walk in newer ways.

I see the stars a-shinin'
Like jewels every night,
The mornin' glories twain
Each mornin' in the light,
An' all these things together
Blend with the song that's sung
In all the summer weather,
The world's forever young.

She's young as when creation
First felt the primal thrill,
When each star took its station
According to His will.
She's brand new every mornin'
In silver sunlight dressed,
With flowers for adornin'
Her path from east to west.

Parlor Magic.

"To do this trick with cards," explained the parlor magician, "you must first slip the card selected upon the bottom of the pack. Then, while talking on some interesting subject, you should peep at the card. Having fixed it in your memory, you count 100, adding to that the number of spots on the card, multiply this by 52 and divide by four because there are 52 cards in the deck and four suits of cards. Take the result, subtract 13, because there are that many cards in a suit, ask the person who drew the card if he or she remembers what it was, and then draw it from the bottom of the pack and show it to him or her."

"But," says one of the audience, "wouldn't it be just as easy to take it from the bottom at the start?"

"True, but wouldn't you rob the feat of all its mystery?"

Her Desire.

"But I tell you I can't afford it," protests the husband. "Can't you get that new hat off your mind for one day?"

"I don't want it off my mind," explains the suffering wife. "I want to eat it over my mind."

Getting His Money's Worth.

"My Uncle Elias," says the man with the mole on his ear, "was one of the most saving men that ever lived. But even with all his economical traits, he never objected to my aunt's having a cow when she washed on the tub at Thank giving, making, how ever, one stipulation."

"What was that?" asked the man with the cauliflower.

"That he should have a mirror face him while he ate, so that he would seem to be eating twice as much as there was on the table."

Divining Rod 200 Years Old.
Winslow W. Fifield of Medford, Mass., owns a metallic divining rod brought from England more than two hundred years ago by one of his ancestors. The rod, says Mr. Fifield, has been used successfully all over New England and in the western mining districts. It is attached to whalebone handles 12 inches long and weighs two ounces. The handles have inscriptions on them which are almost obliterated by age.

The person who brought the rod to America was Isaac Greenleaf, who settled in Massachusetts. The rod became famous as a finder of water. After marking the place of many springs the rod was used in California, Colorado and North Carolina for locating by men in quest of gold mines and other metals. One person who used it with particular success was a blind man, in whose hands the rod is said to have done marvels.

A Strong Preacher.

The minister's eight-year-old daughter was returning with her parents from church, where the district superintendent had that morning occupied the pulpit.

"Oh, father," asked the little girl, her face alive with enthusiasm, "don't you think Brother C. is a very strong preacher? I do."

Gratified by this evidence of unusual intelligence on the part of his offspring, the minister eagerly inquired into her reasons for her statement.

"Oh," replied the little miss, artlessly, "didn't you see how the dust rose when he stamped his feet?"—Judge.

The Counterfeit Southerner.

Of course, there are many counterfeits. A most amusing imitation is one that often passes for the typical southerner in New York. This satchel-mouthed braggart infests the cafes and demands attention by his abusing the waiter for offending his delicate sense of honor. "I hate a nigger, sub," he loudly proclaims, which is a sentiment that one never hears from those of the manner born. He haunts the theaters and parades the streets, since it is poor fun to practise his gentility in private.

He wears a wide black hat, mounts the table and yells whenever the band plays a southern melody. Such a pretentious caricature would be harmless enough, but for the ridicule he brings upon the south. Unfortunately, popular authors seem to accept him at face value and exploit him in novels or plays where a "southerner" is a necessary part of the stage machinery.—Everybody's Magazine.

Wasted Scarcem.

The Philadelphia milk dealers who recently raised the price of their product to nine cents a quart and then lowered it again to eight appear to have been the subjects of a great deal of unjust censure. They announced at the time of the raise that milk could not be sold at eight cents without loss. Finding that the consumers would not pay the new price, however, they are continuing to sell at the old, thereby qualifying as genuine philanthropists. Every purchaser of milk at eight cents a quart will doubtless hereafter feel that he is an object of charity.

Hoodwinking Clergymen

When a small clique of men put up a scheme to harness the clergy of America and induce the ministers to, in turn "hitch up" the members of the churches, we should all take notice.

They couldn't harness the preachers in a bad cause except by deceiving them.

Ministers of the gospel are essentially and fundamentally honest but, like all men who work for the public good, they are at times misled by false statements.

Trust them when they have exact truth to speak from.

Now for the story which should interest every one for we are all either receivers of wages or we pay to wage earners and the freedom of each individual is at issue.

In various papers the following statement has been printed. Read it carefully at least twice.

"Interest in Labor Sunday.

"Labor Sunday—the Sunday preceding Labor day—will be observed generally this year and in future years throughout the United States. This because of the American Federation of Labor declaration for the observance of that day. The numerous letters recently received at American Federation of Labor headquarters from ministers is an assurance that interest in the idea of giving special attention to the cause of labor from the pulpit one day in the twelve months is widespread. Our readers are urged to try to bring about an understanding in their respective districts with representatives of the church so that ministers will make addresses that may attract trade unionists to the churches in large numbers for the day. Ministers should say what they think on the occasion in order that their trade union hearers may put the right estimate as to where the church stands on the question of the organization of labor. The more the subject is discussed the better will it be for labor. Union ethics are sound.—American Federationist."

Observe that "Labor Union" men "are urged" to induce ministers to make addresses that will attract trade unionists to the churches "for the day." "Ministers should say," etc., and winds up with "Union ethics are sound," observe the hidden threat.

This is clipped from the American Federationist the organ of Sam Gompers, et al.

This clipping has been sent to papers throughout the country and the Typographical Union men in the newspaper offices instructed to "urge" that it be printed.

That is one of the ways of the "machine."

It looks harmless so the papers print it.

But! Let's lift the cover and look under.

The hidden motive is as dangerous to the peace and liberty of the citizens as a coiled rattlesnake in the grass.

Organization by workmen to peacefully and successfully present their side is necessary and most commendable.

There are such organizations now rapidly winning their way to public confidence without strikes, dynamite or killing fellow workmen.

(Some facts on this matter a little further along in this article.)

We see here a demand on the ministers of God, that they endorse and help build up the strike-producing, boycotting and violent American Federation of Labor.

Think of the man of God who teaches brotherly love being covertly ordered to praise and help get new members for an organization with a record for violence, crime and murder done by its members the like of which the world has never seen.

Think of the thousands of women made widows and the increasing thousands of children left fatherless by the pistol, club, dynamite and boot heel of members of this Labor Trust.

Any one who recalls the countless murders done in the multitude of strikes in the past few years will agree this is no exaggeration.

Take just one as an illustration:

There were some thirty men murdered and over 5000 bruised and maimed in the Chicago teamster's strike.

There is seldom a day passes but somewhere in our country from one to a score of our fellow men are assaulted or murdered by members of this band.

Then remember the homes blown up or burned. The families hounded, the rioting, burning of street cars, wrecking of trains and attempted or successful killing of passengers.

The general disturbance of industry and the thousands of dollars forced from tax payers to pay extra police, sheriffs and militia to protect, even in a feeble way, the citizens from the mobs of members of the American Federation of Labor.

Then you will realize why the great peace-loving majority of over 80 million Americans protest against the growth of this crime-tainted organization comprising perhaps one and one-half million men, of which it is estimated at least seven-tenths are peace-loving citizens and are members by coercion and are not in sympathy with the three-tenths who have gained control and force their methods.

We find that a few designing men have seized control of the American Federation of Labor, just as some shrewd capitalists have secured control of some railroads and other interests and are now twisting and turning them into machines for personal profit and fame.

These men cunningly plan to force workmen to join and pay 25 to 75 cents a month in fees.

Various methods are used to "induce" workmen to join.

First, they talk of the "tyranny of capital" making slaves of workmen. Then they work up enthusiasm about the "brotherhood of man" and other talk which experience has shown excites the emotions of workmen and they are induced to join and pay fees to the leaders.

The 5000 workmen in Battle Creek are, as a rule, free from the dictates of the great Labor Trust and still get the highest wages in Michigan. If they had yielded to the smooth talk of the agents of the trust and joined, they would pay in fees from $1250.00 to $2000.00 a month to the big trust and be subject to strike orders any time.

Now they save that and put the money into homes and family comforts.

But the managers of the American Federation of Labor have worked hard and long to harness them.

The trust has sent small bales of money and last winter 18 "organizers" to tie up Battle Creek. They hired balls, gave picture shows, smokers, etc., as an investment, looking to rich returns when they succeeded in having them tied hand and foot.

But they failed and the last of these "organizers" left Battle Creek on May 1st saying "it's no use."

The workmen knew the record of this great trust and formed their own association to protect their rights and also to protect them from the big Labor Trust.

In Philadelphia some 4000 independent street car men, who mainly had families, had their own union and refused to join the big trust, preferring to be free to work or not as they pleased.

But the trust planned to force them into the fee-paying ranks, so a strike was ordered to compel the traction company to kick out these men and hire only Labor Trust members.

It was not a question of wages or hours but to push the free men out of their positions where they were earning good money to support their families. The strike was ordered, not to raise wages or reduce hours, remember, but solely to throw out members of an independent union and make places only for Labor Trust members, and thus show the independent men they could not earn a living unless they first paid fees to the trust managers.

Incidentally the people of Philadelphia must submit to no car service, rioting and bloodshed with millions in loss while these fee-hunting, notably seeking trust leaders were teaching the world that industry cannot be carried on except by workmen who first bend the knee, bow the head and pay fees.

How these men as strike leaders love to see their names in the papers each morning! It's meat and bread to their souls.

Then think of the lordly power, and don't forget the steady flow of money squeezed from the workman's hard earned pay envelope.

But when these leaders "tie up" any industry no man can hold a job who refuses to pay fines even on trumped up charges, and steadily pay fees whatever they are.

The workman is absolutely at the mercy of this band of men who have secured and hold control.

Many and many an honest workman has raised his voice and appealed to his fellows to rise and throw off the yoke of Gompers, et al. But, as one writes, "At every convention of the American Federation of Labor, strong opposition comes up but at the critical moment the impassioned orator appears and most dramatically puts the spot light on the leader and covers him with a mawkish film of 'martyrdom' and the emotional delegates yell in delight, forgetting the instructions of the peaceful workmen at home who desire to free themselves from the odium of membership under the great advocates of strike, boycott, violence and hate."

So we see the unequalled insolence with which these trust leaders propose to "induce" ministers to pull their chestnuts from the fire by preaching modern aggressive and violent labor trust methods.

There is a better way to secure justice for workers, as will appear further along.

Just a little diversion here.

I am charged with having first brought to the attention of the public some years ago, the name "Labor Trust."

A trust is a combination of men or organizations for the purpose of selling their product at a profit and restricting production to effect it.

We will say a large Oil Company gathers in smaller ones and thus controls production.

The Labor Trust "gathers in" local trade organizations and thus has power to say how much work each man shall do.

The Oil Company then fixes prices. The Labor Trust does likewise.

The Oil Company may "use methods" to force an unwilling dealer to join.

The Labor Trust men go further and slug the independent man if he tries to sell his labor without paying fees and "obeying orders." They are both exactly alike in purpose, which, in both cases is entirely selfish to gain power and money for the leaders.

Certain Labor Trust members do not hesitate to use violence, dynamiting of property, burning homes of independent men and even murder to force obedience.

The Oil Company doesn't go so far. Both are extremely dangerous to the welfare of people and communities, for power placed in the hands of a few men either representing Capital or Labor is almost always abused and the public suffers.

Remember, reader, that your safety lies in strenuous opposition to all trusts which try to ride over and dictate to the people.

Only by opposing their growth can you retain your personal liberty.

Now to ministers.

The average congregation is made up of about 90 per cent. of free citizens and much less than 10 per cent. of members of the Labor Trust.

The free citizen wants to hear words defending the rights and independence of the common man, free from the arbitrary dictates of any self-seeking organization either of Capital or Labor.

The merchant, lawyer, school teacher, doctor, clerk, farmer and workman rebels against any forcible stopping of trains, boats, street cars, or factories, for the prosperity of the community is entirely dependent on steady continuance of these things.

Men don't like strikes, boycotts, injured workmen or burned cars and factories.

A famous divine says: "These men may hate capitalists but their hate for other laboring men burns like a flame, eats like nitric acid, is malignant beyond all description."

Then we remember cases of acid throwing, eyes gouged out, children pursued, women stripped, homes destroyed, men murdered and the long, long list of atrocities practised by Labor Trust members on other human beings who cannot agree with the trust methods.

Now for the better way.

Workmen are now organizing in the old fashioned trades union or "guild" way, affiliated with the National Trades and Workers Association whose constitution provides arbitration of differences with agreement for no strikes, boycott, picketing or hateful coercion of any kind.

This Trade Association has evolved from the experience of the past and is the highest order of Trades Unionism at the present day.

Under its laws it is not possible for the Hod Carriers Union or the Street Sweepers Union to order the school teachers or locomotive engineers to quit work in a "sympathetic strike."

If any craft finds injustice, the case is presented to properly selected arbitrators, testimony taken and the case presented to the public through the press. Thereupon public opinion, that greatest of all powers, makes itself felt and curiously enough a fair settlement is generally the result.

There is no strike, no loss of wages, no loss to the community and yet the faithful workers get their just treatment.

There are many details which have been worked out by men skilled in labor matters.

It will recompense any interested man to know these details which can be secured by a postal request for constitution and by-laws written to the National Trades and Workers Association, Kingman Block, Battle Creek, Mich.

Reader, look carefully into this great question of the relations of Capital and Labor and its successful solution. The new plan works and brings results for the members.

I became so favorably impressed with the trustworthiness and practicability of the leaders of this new labor movement that I gave the Association a sanatorium at Battle Creek worth about $400,000 and with about 300 rooms, to be used as a home for their old members and the helpless babies, sometimes made fatherless by the pistol, club or boot heel of some member of the violent "Labor Trust."

Suppose you attend church Labor Sunday and hear what your minister has to say in defense of the safety and rights of the common, everyday man.

Let me ask you to read again a portion of one of my public articles printed a few years ago.

"The people of the world have given me money enough to spend in these talks through the papers in trying to make better and safer conditions for the common people, whether the Postum business runs or not.

Scores of letters have come to me from work-people and others, some from union men recounting their sufferings from union domination and urging that their cases be laid before the public.

It will not answer for us to only sympathize with the poor, the oppressed, those who haven't power enough to drive off tyrants and resent oppression, we must help them tie the hands of the oppressors. Americans must act.

Some of my forebears in New England left comfortable homes, took with them the old flint locks, slept on the ground in rain and frost, hungry, footsore, and half clothed they finally pushed on where the Eternal God of Human Liberty urged them. They gave for me and for you a mantle of freedom, woven in a loom where the shuttles were cannon balls and bullets and where swords were used to pick out the tangles in the yarn.

These old, sturdy granddads of ours stood by that loom until the mantle was finished, then, stained with their blood it was handed down to us. Shall I refuse to bear it on my shoulders because the wearing costs me a few dollars, and are you cowards enough to hide yours because some foreign labor union anarchist orders you to strip it off?

I have faith that the blood of 1776 still coursing in your veins will tingle and call until you waken. Then Americans will act." "There's a Reason."

Lemons Cure Malaria.

Lemons are said to be an infallible cure for malaria. This is the method of preparation: Take one lemon, wash thoroughly with a brush and hot water till all germs are gone, cut in very small pieces, using skin, seeds and all; cook in three glasses of water till reduced to one, and take this while fasting. A cure is generally effected within a week.

A Wise Old Owl.

In her trim little bathing suit she sat on the white sand.
 "I adore intelligence," she cried.
 "So do I," said he. "All the same, though, beauty and intellect never go together."
 "And do you think me intellectual?" she faltered.
 "No," he confessed, frankly.
 With a faint blush she murmured, "Flatterer!"

FASTIDIOUS.

"Lady, can you give me a little gasoline?"
 "For the land's sake! You don't drink gasoline, do you?"
 "No, lady. I want ter clean me gloves wit it."

LACK OF MONEY

Was a Godsend in This Case.

It is not always that a lack of money is a benefit.
 A lady of Green Forest, Ark., owes her health to the fact that she could not pay in advance the fee demanded by a specialist to treat her for stomach trouble. In telling of her case she says:
 "I had been treated by four different physicians during 10 years of stomach trouble. Lately I called on another who told me he could not cure me; that I had neuralgia of the stomach. Then I went to a specialist who told me I had catarrh of the stomach and said he could cure me in four months but would have to have his money down. I could not raise the necessary sum and in my extremity I was led to quit coffee and try Postum.
 "So I stopped coffee and gave Postum a thorough trial and the results have been magical. I now sleep well at night, something I had not done for a long time; the pain in my stomach is gone and I am a different woman.
 "I dreaded to quit coffee, because every time I had tried to stop it I suffered from severe headaches, so I continued to drink it although I had reason to believe it was injurious to me, and was the cause of my stomach trouble and extreme nervousness. But when I had Postum to shift to it was different.
 "To my surprise I did not miss coffee when I began to drink Postum.
 "Coffee had been steadily and surely killing me and I didn't fully realize what was doing it until I quit and changed to Postum."
 Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Says Esperanto is Coming Talk.

Dr. H. W. Yemans, of the Fort Wayne post, who presided at the international congress of Esperantists held in Washington, D. C., last week, returned to Detroit.
 "The congress, which is the sixth annual meeting of World Esperantists, was not only the largest of its kind yet held, but was the most representative meeting I will venture to say, ever held in the United States," said Dr. Yemans. "We had delegates from the shah of Persia, the emperor of Russia, the president of France, and other European powers, South American is with us heart and soul. While we make it a rule to limit our discussion to educational matters, there is no question but that Esperanto will do more than any other thing to preserve peace among the nations. Our next international congress will be held at Antwerp, Belgium. The question of holding the next peace conference in Esperanto will be discussed more fully at that time.
 "The educational value of Esperanto keeps pace with its political importance. It is an excellent corrective for slovenly English. There are no irregularities whatever in it."

Will Stop Land Grabs.

"The worst plunder of lands and land-grabbing ever known has been disclosed by the investigations of the congressional committee in Oklahoma," said Congressman Philip P. Campbell, who arrived here in Pittsburg, Kans., after a month's absence with the committee in Oklahoma. "The investigation has called attention to the manner in which this land grafting and grabbing has been going on, and for one thing, there will be no more Indian land grafting or grabbing. This plundering of Indian property will be stopped. No more will the Indian be permitted to sign away his rights. The government will see to that. No more big fees for attorneys and no more lobbying in Washington. Indian affairs will be conducted properly hereafter.
 "The government will sell the land for the Indians. The government will employ the necessary attorneys for the Indians and they will be paid at a rate fixed or approved by the government. The lands will be placed on the market in September. They will be sold and the Indians will get their share from the sale."

Crippen and the Girl.

Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, the American dentist, and his typist, Miss Ethel Clara Leneve, arrived in London from Canada, where they were arrested on suspicion of being connected with the disappearance of Dr. Crippen's actress wife, Belle Elmore, and with having knowledge of the mutilated body, believed by the police to be that of Mrs. Crippen, which was found in their Hilldrop Crescent residence.

The New York North American Y. M. C. A., with 2,017 associations, has passed the half million mark in membership. They have a total of $67,865,000 in property.

Automobiles and motorcycles may now be driven through the Gen. Grant National park in California unmolested. The secretary of the interior has decided that the roads of the park are of such a character as to permit of the operation of motorcycles with perfect safety to the horse-drawn conveyances.

THE MARKETS.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Also causes out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

The Stylish Fisherman.

One of the guests of a fashionable summer resort in West Virginia got himself up in his best fishing togs and started along a certain mountain stream.
 Meeting a native, he asked: "Here, my good man! Kindly tell me whether it would be worth my while to try fishing in this vicinity."
 The native regarded him scornfully. "The fishin' ain't good," he finally said, "but I ain't informed as to how you values your time."—Lippincott's.

IN AGONY WITH ECZEMA

"No tongue can tell how I suffered for five years with itching and bleeding eczema, until I was cured by the Cuticura Remedies, and I am so grateful I want the world to know, for what helped me will help others. My body and face were covered with sores. One day it would seem to be better, and then break out again with the most terrible pain and itching. I have been sick several times, but never in my life did I experience such awful suffering as with this eczema. I had made up my mind that death was near at hand, and I longed for that time when I would be at rest. I had tried many different doctors and medicines without success, and my mother brought me the Cuticura Remedies, insisting that I try them. I began to feel better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap, and one application of Cuticura Ointment.
 "I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and have taken four bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, and consider myself well. This was nine years ago and I have had no return of the trouble since. Any person having any doubt about this wonderful cure by the Cuticura Remedies can write to my address. Mrs. Alta Etson, 93 Inn Road, Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 16, 1909."

WESTERN CANADA'S 1910 CROPS
 Wheat Yield in Many Districts Will Be From 25 to 35 Bushels Per Acre

Land sales and homestead entries increasing. No cessation in numbers going from United States. Wonderful opportunities remain for those who intend making Canada their home. New districts being opened up for settlement. Many farmers will net this year, $10 to $15 per acre from their wheat crop. All the advantages of old settled countries are there. Good schools, churches, splendid markets, excellent railway facilities. See the grain exhibit at the different State and some of the County fairs.

Letters similar to the following are received every day, testifying to satisfactory conditions; other districts are as favorably spoken of:

- THEY SENT FOR THEIR SON.
 Maidstone, Sask., Canada, Aug. 24, 1910.
 "My parents came here from Cedar Falls, Iowa, four years ago, and were so well pleased with this country they sent to Gustaf Alene for me. I have taken up a homestead near them, and am perfectly satisfied to stop here."
 Leonard Douglas.
- WANTS SETTLER'S RATE FOR HIS STOCK.
 Stettler, Alberta, July 31st, 1910.
 "Well I got up here from Forest City, Iowa, last spring in good shape with the stock and everything. Now I have got two boys back in Iowa yet, and I am going back there soon to get them and another car up here this fall. What I would like to know is, if there is any chance to get a cheap rate back again, and when we return to Canada I will call at your office for our certificate."
 Yours truly, H. A. WIL.
- WILL MAKE HIS HOME IN CANADA.
 Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 1st, 1910.
 "I am going to Canada a week from today and intend to make my home there. My husband has been there six weeks and is well pleased with the country, so he wants me to come as soon as possible. He filed on a claim near Landis, Sask., and by his description of it it must be a pretty place."
 Send for literature and ask the local Canadian Government Agents for Excursion Rates, best districts in which to locate, and when to go.

Our Trip to Georgia.

The timber in Georgia is a good deal like that in Michigan, altho we have some here that is not seen there of course. The oak, hickory, basswood, birch, chestnut, walnut, and pine are all here. The pine is nice and is sawed into lumber at small mills and is sold at about $8 per M. This of course is not dressed at all and but little dressed lumber is used and few houses painted. The Laurel and Christmas Holly grows here in abundance, but owing to the distance from the railroad none of the holly is shipped, in fact few know that it is used for Christmas decorations. There are three kinds of gum trees—the sweet gum with a leaf something like the maple only deeper notches, the black and sour gum have leaves more like the elm. The popple is much different than our home popple as we have seen trees 70 and even 100 feet high, smooth as can be found and as straight as an arrow. The popple green cuts very easily but when dried or seasoned is very hard and light.

On to the South.

Having spent three weeks in the Blue Ridge mountains, we ordered our rig in from Cornelia and Wednesday, July 26, we returned over the trail to Cornelia. Here, let me say, were meet with surprise as we found that the crop of peaches were being harvested in the surrounding country and was being shipped out at the rate of from 7 to 12 cars per day, all going to New York. Of course we purchased a basket—10 cents—and proceeded to enjoy them. They were selling at from $1 to $1.50 per bushel. Here we took the train for Atlanta where Mr. Glenn took a northbound for Detroit and we a southbound for Lake City, Fla.

An all night ride landed us in this southernmost state but several hundred miles from the southern extremity. However, it was Florida and somewhat of a change from the mountains. Lake City is the county seat of Columbia county, one of the northern counties of the state, and contains 6000 people nearly half of them colored. Each race however mind their own business and there are no clashes. The whites employ the colored people in all kinds of work but there association ends. They have their own places of worship, schools, etc., and the children of the colored people are given the same chances of education in their school as the white pupils in their school. While colored teachers are employed in the first case they are required to pass the same grade of teachers examination as in the other case and are governed by the same rules.

Continued Next Week.

FAMOUS RIFLE SHOT.

Princess Wenona is one of the big attractions of California Frank's wild West show, one of the biggest and best shows to be seen on the Midway of the coming State Fair at Detroit, Sept. 19-24th. There is a mandatory state law that requires and orders every school district to have published a financial exhibit of cash on hand at the beginning of the school year, show cash received, from whom and when, and also an itemized list of cash paid out and for what. This seldom is done and for punishment in case of neglect to do this a fine of ten dollars can be imposed.

A United States senator, governor and lieutenant governor will be nominated by the people of this state, and county officers in nearly all counties, Tuesday September 6, primary election day. The direct primary method is to be adopted for the first time by all parties and with the heavy registration which has already taken place and the sharp campaigns that are being conducted by several candidates, the vote on that day promises to be a large one.

Attention has been called to the fact that during three successive days, Sunday September 4, Monday the 5th, and Tuesday the 6th, the saloons of Michigan will be required to refrain from doing business. The standing and the status of the saloon business is very vividly indicated in this state requirement, that saloons shall be closed in order that the homes of Michigan on Sunday, the laboring men of Michigan on Monday and all the voters of the state on Tuesday shall be protected from an institution recognized by the laws of our state and by all the people of our state as demoralizing and undesirable.

WOMAN UNIQUE FIGURE IN FAIR MANAGEMENT

Miss Zue McClary, Midway Expert, Has Charge of All Midway Shows.

The thousands who stroll along the Midway during the coming State Fair, going into the shows here and there, entering into the fun which runs riot on all sides at such an exhibition, will be surprised to know that a woman has charge of and is responsible for all the exhibitions on the Midway.

Miss Zue McClary occupies the unique position of being the most expert Midway manager in the world today. A queer business for a woman, many say, yet Miss McClary in the last five years has built up a reputation second to none in the world, as a successful Midway manager.

The State Fair management turned the entire Midway over to Miss McClary several months ago, and she has been working on it ever since, selecting the best shows possible to be had and giving the matter her personal attention so as to present a well-balanced Midway and at the same time furnish entertainment which will please and be popular with the thousands of State Fair visitors the week of Sept. 19-24th.

The results of her efforts will be judged during the Fair, and it is safe to predict that the public will come away from the Fair with an exalted idea of woman's ability in this peculiar line of endeavor. No fake or questionable shows will be allowed, says Miss McClary; only those holding, and entitled to hold, good records for giving value received for the public's money have been engaged. The days of fake shows, so far as the Michigan State Fair is concerned, have passed, and only legitimate, entertaining and instructive shows will be shown, presenting the most famous performers in the world and giving more good hearty laughs to the minute than any other congregation of shows ever displayed within the borders of the state. Fun, unalloyed pleasure and jollity, is the mainspring of all Midways, and so it will be with the Michigan State Fair's Midway. Miss McClary is thoroughly conversant with all sorts, kinds and conditions of entertainments, and she will furnish only the best.

BIG EFFORT MADE IN THE FIREWORKS DISPLAYS

State Fair Visitors Will See Many Figures Never Before Shown.

The fireworks part of the State Fair this year bids fair to surpass anything ever before attempted at the State Fair exhibitions. The Gregory Fireworks company of Chicago, at the time the contract was awarded them, bore down on the fact that the program of pyrotechnics this year would be "100 per cent better" than last year. In all, the State Fair management is spending $5,000 for this part of the entertainment this year.

The program selected by the fair management includes seventy-two numbers, besides several special exhibitions and the spectacle "The Fall of Port Arthur," in which the fireworks play an important part.

One of the most elaborate pieces to be seen in the nightly display is the "Mammoth Star and Garter." This figure will be 120 feet in circumference, a revolving wheel, representing the garter, and showing a circle of the cloth of gold with a fringe of lace and a brilliant diamond star in the center. The style of the garter will be changed nightly. Swarms of fireflies and lightning bugs, jorum rockets, a figure called the "Shower of Pearls," another entitled the "Mammoth Windmill," and many more go to make up what is said to be about as complete a program of fireworks ever chosen.

In arranging the program for the Michigan State Fair there were several special features decided upon, never before shown. Principal among these was the "Halley's Comet" figure. This is accomplished by the discharge of a 30-inch shell, bursting high in the heavens and sending forth an immense parachute bearing a beautiful magnesium light representing the head of the comet. Aluminum gerbs throwing out long trails of brilliant illuminating fires represent the tail of the comet. The fireworks experts say this device has never been shown before and predict a sensation when it is shown.

There will be amusing comic effects, the kicking mule, dancing Teddy bears, performing elephants and brother acrobats, which will be varied during the week. On the first and third nights a mammoth device, "My County 'Tis of Thee," will be given. This shows the facade of the capitol at Washington, with Old Glory floating from the dome. In the foreground at the right is shown a heroic figure of a plowman tilling the soil and on the left a figure of a national guardsman. This immense picture is outlined with brilliant colored fire. At each end a mammoth battery of stars in the national colors discharge in an arch, meeting high in the heavens above the dome. The whole picture when in action covers a total of 2,000 square feet and is one of the most elaborate devices ever attempted in fireworks.

The "Michigan People" is another feature of interest. It is a picture of the state of Michigan, with the names of the cities and towns, and is shown in a unique position, being by means of a special device, projected on the capitol dome at the end of the main battery of stars, and held in place by a powerful magnet and lighting effect.

There will be several other appropriate features in the fireworks program, and it is one of the most interesting features of the fair week.

THE DANGEROUS HOUSE FLY.

The city department of public health gives a timely and needed warning to those leaving the city for their vacations to avoid places where there are many flies. Those who follow this advice will avoid places which are uncleanly, which allow food and garbage to be so exposed as to attract and feed the flies, says the Philadelphia Press. They will avoid places where stables and dwellings are in near vicinity, as the exposed manure is the choice breeding place of thousands and even millions of flies. In other words, to avoid disease-conveying flies avoid places where they permit flies to breed and feed. Formerly the conditions which multiply flies and the flies themselves were considered objectionable but endurable. Now the patient toleration of flies is known to be a heedless trifling with the health and life of human beings. Disease germs are for the most part innocuous to man, until through some convenient medium they are conveyed to his system. This purveyor of disease is the fly. His guilt has been proved to a demonstration. His capacity for carrying on his feet from foul and putrescent sources the bacteria of disease has been recorded by gelatin plates on which he has been made to alight and have proven his guilt.

The raisin growers of Fresno county, California, are trying to promote the consumption of raisins by establishing "raisin day," on which all patriots who believe in patronizing home enterprise and consuming home productions are expected to indulge in raisin cakes and puddings, raisin bread, etc. The boys and girls will fall in line for this, and as they are the best consumers of things sweet, it would seem to be good policy to awaken the enthusiasm of young eaters. Parents are now busy striving to get enough of things more staple than raisins, which would be adopted generally if they could be made to take the place of meat, eggs and other products. Moreover, it is suspected that if all were to do as the raisin growers desire there would be a boom in the price as a result of the boom in the demand.

Smokers who are going to France should know that, now the French duties on tobacco and cigars have been increased, travelers entering France are allowed to bring into the country free of duty only ten cigars, 20 cigarettes, or 1 1/2 ounces of tobacco, and this must be on their person, or in their hand luggage examined at the frontier. The customs officials are fully entitled to confiscate or tax any quantity of tobacco or cigars however small which may be found in the heavy luggage of passengers sent under seal to a terminal station (St. Lazare or Gare du Nord) and examined there, and just now they are very strict.

The British commercial attaché at Yokohama reports that there has been a sudden development at Tokyo and Yokohama in the use of solid rubber tires for jiririkshas, and the adoption of the new tire promises to become general in Japan. The utilization of rubber and its products for every conceivable purpose is so rapidly swelling the demand that there will have to be a corresponding augmentation of the annual crop or prices will bound to prohibitory heights. The world will shower wealth on the inventor who produces an artificial rubber that will give service approaching that of the genuine article.

Misfortune seems to follow the Zeppelin concern. Hard upon the recent disasters to several of the flying machines come the explosions in the works at Friedrichshafen, resulting in serious damage to property and the death of one man and the injury of a number of others. Still, German determination is of the holdfast order, and it is quite likely that there will be persistent effort toward perfecting the Zeppelin principle to the point where present perils will be minimized.

THE POPULATION OF MICHIGAN

STATE HAS 2,810,173; AN INCREASE OF 16.1 PER CENT DURING PAST DECADE.

CENSUS FIGURES SHOW INCREASE OF 389,191; 26 COUNTIES SHOW DECREASE.

Manufacturing Cities Gained at the Expense of Agricultural Communities—Means One More Member of Congress.

Despite the fact that the census returns from 26 counties in the state of Michigan show a decrease during the last decade, the state has a population of 2,810,173 in 1910 as compared with 2,420,982 in 1900 and 2,098,889 in 1890. The increase from 1900 to 1910 is 389,191, or 16.1 per cent, while the increase during the preceding decade was but 15.6 per cent, or 327,093.

Officials of the census bureau attribute the falling off in the population of so many counties in the state to the fact that those who have previously lived in the suburbs, attracted by the inducements held out to them by the manufacturing centers, have moved into the large cities. For instance, Wayne county, in which Detroit is situated, shows an increase in population during the past ten years of 182,797, while these counties not dependent upon more thickly populated centers all show decreases.

Those Which Decreased.

The 26 counties which show decreases are as follows: Antrim, Arenac, Branch, Cass, Clinton, Eaton, Gratiot, Hillsdale, Ionia, Isosco, Lake, Lapeer, Lenawee, Livingston, Macomb, Manistee, Mecosta, Menominee, Midland, Montcalm, St. Clair, Sanilac, Shiawassee, Tuscola, Van Buren and Washtenaw.

Most of these, it will be noticed, are the populous counties in the southern part of the state, where agriculture is the principal occupation, and the ones which would be most affected by the movement of the young men of the farms to the factories of the big cities.

The total losses of these 26 counties amount to but 27,482, which is hardly more than the gain of the city of Flint alone, 25,477. In eight of them, Antrim, Arenac, Isosco, Lake, Manistee, Menominee, Midland and Mecosta, the decrease can be ascribed to the falling off in the lumber industry. The greatest decreases, however, are in the counties whose bulk of population is engaged in agricultural pursuits, as follows: Branch, 2,206; Clinton, 2,007; Eaton, 1,169; Gratiot, 1,069; Lapeer, 1,608; Livingston, 1,928; St. Clair, 2,889; Sanilac, 1,125; Washtenaw, 3,047. All of these, it will be noticed, are within easy reach of the one or other of the three automobile centers of the state, Detroit, Flint or Lansing.

It is also noticeable that only one of the upper peninsula counties, Menominee, shows a decrease, the others show substantial gains.

Michigan stood eighth among the states in the matter of population in 1900, and will probably maintain her relative rank in this year's census.

Another Member of Congress.

Despite the apparent unfavorable showing of Michigan on the whole, the state will be entitled to an additional member of congress by the official population returns, no matter what apportionment may be agreed upon by the next house.

More Census Figures.

The population of Lansing is 31,225, an increase of 14,744, or 89.4 per cent, as compared with 16,481 in 1900.

The population of Saginaw is 50,540, an increase of 8,185, or 19 per cent, as compared with 42,355 in 1900.

The population of Bay City is 45,166, an increase of 17,528, or 63.5 per cent, as compared with 27,638 in 1900.

Grand Rapids "Homecoming."

If thousands of Indians with tom-toms, gongs and all of the rest of the paraphernalia which goes to make up a first-class band were turned loose at once they couldn't have made any more racket than the folks made in Grand Rapids Friday. Friday practically marked the end of the homecoming celebration. It was allegorical, historical and phantasmagorical day, and all the "oricals" were present.

Late Thursday night all the guests' badges were gone and Friday the town was packed with people from all parts of western Michigan who had to do without badges.

The parade was what the crowd called "a winner from start to finish." Included was the historic carriage once owned by Stephen A. Douglas, in which he and Abraham Lincoln rode to their several joint debates in the fall of 1858.

William Jennings Bryan will not attempt to get the Democratic presidential nomination in 1912. He acknowledged this while passing through Kalamazoo on his way to Paw Paw to address a Chautauqua meeting.

MICHIGAN ITEMS.

F. H. Dodds, Republican, has been nominated alone on the congressional primary ballot for the eleventh district.

A message received at Lansing says that the 14 students of the M. A. C. who were in the fire-swept districts of the northwest, are safe.

P. D. Pettit, ex-sheriff of Gratiot county, and formerly state oil inspector, died at Ithaca from typhoid fever. He leaves a widow and one son.

The Michigan Sportsmen's association will hold its annual meeting in Owosso, Sept. 14. Several men of national prominence have accepted invitations to address the meeting.

Thomas A. Harvey, for many years prominent in business and banking circles, died suddenly at Saginaw from heart trouble. He was 58 years old and leaves a widow and one son.

The home of Charles Schickum, in Saginaw, treasurer of Bloomfield township, was entered and an endorsed check, made in favor of the county, for $978, and $14 in cash was taken.

The grocery firm of Carlton & Slayton, of Grand Rapids, established five years ago, was closed by the Judson Grocery Co., of Grand Rapids. No statement as to the liabilities or assets has as yet been made.

The Mershon-Whittier swimming pool, the gift of E. C. Mershon and Thomas Palmer-Whittier in honor of Augustus Hall Mershon and Joseph Albert Whittier, has been formally turned over to the city of Saginaw.

Sheriff Graham has received word from New York that Benedetto Recklecke, an Italian, who escaped jail at Marshall, some time ago, has been apprehended and awaits extradition. He is charged with a robbery at Albion.

Severe electrical storms accompanied by heavy hail prevailed in the copper country Wednesday evening. Mrs. W. M. Sewell, of Hancock, was struck by lightning and her left side paralyzed. Several small buildings were burned.

About 5,000 outsiders were in Charlotte attending the grange and farmers' picnic at the fair grounds. J. C. Ketcham, of Hastings, delivered an address to the grange, basket dinners, sports and ball games being the other features.

Water in the east and west arms of Grand Traverse bay, at Traverse City, suddenly receded Tuesday morning. Launches were left high and dry and boys picked up fish in the Boardman river. Two hours later the water reached normal stage.

Mayor Carr and City Attorney Burns, of Niles, may demand the dismissal of Supervisor J. M. Pierson, of the second ward, because he, unknown to the other board members, reduced the tax assessment $2 on two pieces of property owned by widows.

Jack Winters, a farmer near Sebewaing, received a black hand letter demanding $1,500 on penalty of having his entire family slain. The officers were notified, but did not arrive until after a stranger had visited a mail box where William was told to place his money.

A plot to break jail at Muskegon was frustrated by the sheriff. Five prisoners converted a caseknife into a saw and sang as they worked at the bars of their cell. The officer, thinking they were making too much noise, investigated, and found one bar sawed in two and the prisoners making ready to leave.

Martin Steadwick, an inmate of Jackson prison, lost in a race with death. He received word that his mother was critically ill and Gov. Warner permitted him to come to Detroit, under guard, to see her before she died. He arrived too late, but the authorities allowed him to stay for the funeral.

After two of their number had robbed a farm house, stolen $15 from a store, been fined and ordered to leave the village, an armed band of gypsies returned to Buckley and were met on the outskirts of the place by residents armed with shotguns. The band was driven from the vicinity. No shots were fired.

Mrs. George Bardeen, 68, wife of the millionaire paper manufacturer of Osgood, died suddenly on a Pere Marquette train en route from her summer home, Charlevoix, to a sanitarium in Flint. Her husband was called to Detroit on business just before the arrival of the train carrying the body of his wife.

To help pay the hospital expenses of young John Nyquist, the Muskegon boy who had his leg cut off above the knee while jumping a Pere Marquette freight train some time ago, a club of fellow playmates has been organized to canvass the city, asking for only small sums of money to aid the youth. The boy is now improving, but the case is pathetic, as the mother is supporting the family, the father being now confined in the asylum at Traverse City.

Auditor-General Fuller has awarded the state tax sales of the various counties to 83 newspapers in the state, one paper in each county being awarded the contract of publishing the list for the county in which the paper is located. The total amount that it will cost the state will be approximately $20,000. The largest list comes from Wayne county, and Roscommon came second. The newspapers do not seem to be as eager for the tax sales as formerly. There are several counties in the state containing papers that have made no application for the publishing of the sales.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR DURAND WRECK

EACH TRAIN CREW TRYING TO PLACE THE BLAME WHOLLY ON OTHER.

SIX DEAD BODIES AT DURAND ARE AT LAST POSITIVELY IDENTIFIED.

Five Other Victims Are in Hospitals More or Less Seriously Injured and Two Trainmen Likely to Die.

To add to the difficulty of identifying the victims of the wreck Wednesday night on the Grand Trunk railway near Durand, bones said to be those of two additional bodies in a sack that had been overlooked in excitement were found in the morgue by Undertaker C. E. Mapes, who is in charge of the dead. This brings the number of dead to eight, the number first fixed upon by the newspapers.

Repeated inquiries from relatives of passengers thought to have been on the ill-fated Pullman sleeper Nebraska, led Dr. R. C. Fair, surgeon for the Grand Trunk, to remark to Undertaker Mapes that there must have been more bodies in the wreck than were recovered. This reminded Mr. Mapes that a sack had been brought to the morgue Thursday morning. In the confusion incident to assembling the other six bodies, Mapes says, the sack was pushed into a corner and was forgotten. When the sack was brought out and its contents were examined, Dr. Fair stated that the bones represented probably two additional dead.

Mrs. Lewis Squires, of Chicago, who is missing, has not yet been identified. The body originally identified as hers has been found to be that of Mrs. Jeffers, from Toronto. Two sisters of Mrs. Squires will be asked to come from Chicago to aid in the final identification.

It is now known with certainty that the nurse accompanying Mrs. Alma Woodward, one of the victims, was Miss Marie Amstead, of Fargo, N. D. Investigation revealed that Miss Hella Scott, a school teacher of Chicago, who was on her way to visit a sister in Toronto, and a daughter of George Jagaman, of Chicago, who was bound for Chicago, are missing.

Responsibility a Problem.

While this seems to settle the problem of the number of victims of the accident, the matter of responsibility for the wreck is far from being settled. The question agitating the minds of the persons who were on the train, the residents of Durand and the whole locality is:

Who is at fault, the flagman of the wrecked train, or the engineer whose train crashed into the sleeping car? Trainmen and others believe that one of the two is to blame, but on which is the responsibility to be placed?

Railway Commission to Investigate.

Members of the state railway commission announced after a conference with the attorney-general's department, that the commission will conduct an independent investigation into the Grand Trunk wreck near Durand when six persons were killed and eight were injured.

The decision of the commission was the direct result of the activities of Prosecuting Attorney Hicks, of Shiawassee county, who is also attorney for the Grand Trunk. The commission learns that Hicks is threatening to cause the arrest of Engineer Spencer, of the train which struck the stalled passenger.

The attorney-general has signified his willingness to co-operate with the railroad commission in the investigation into the causes and culpability for the wreck.

Abandon Hope For Foresters.

Forest fires have slain more than 200 persons, nearly all fire fighters, in Idaho, according to figures compiled from latest reports.

Supt. Weigle, of the Coeur d'Alene national forest, after receiving many reports of disaster to various parties of his 600 employes, posted a bulletin in his office at Wallace, Idaho, announcing the death of 114 of the men.

He also expressed grave concern for the safety of Ranger Jos. R. Halm and 74 men who were surrounded by fire Saturday night in the forest on the Big Fork of the Coeur d'Alene river near where another party lost 13 men. Halm was for four years the best football and baseball player of the Washington state college at Pullman.

New President of Nicaragua.

Jose Dolores Estrada, to whom President Madriz turned over the administration of the Nicaraguan government before fleeing the country, retired from the presidency in favor of Gen. Luis Mena, who was designated by him as acting president of the republic. This change of administration was in accordance with instructions from Estrada's brother, Gen. Juan J. Estrada, the head of the provisional government and leader of the successful revolution against Madriz. Gen. Mena immediately took possession of the presidential mansion.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburg with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's house he is attracted by the picture of a girl whom Gilmore explains is his granddaughter, Alison West. He says her father is a rascal and a friend of the forger. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a man in a drunken stupor in lower ten and goes to bed in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds that his bag and clothes are missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. His name, it develops, is Shinnon Harrington. The man who disappeared with Blakeley's clothes is suspected. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. Circumstantial evidence places Blakeley under suspicion of murder. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken.

Her voice and my arm were bringing me to my senses. "I hear," I said. "I'll sit up in a second. Are you hurt?"

"No, only bruised. Do you think you can walk?"

I drew up one foot after another, gingerly.

"They seem to move all right," I remarked dubiously. "Would you mind telling me where the back of my head has gone? I can't help thinking it isn't there."

She made a quick examination. "It's pretty badly bumped," she said. "You must have fallen on it."

I had got up on my uninjured elbow by that time, but the pain threw me back. "Don't look at the wreck," I entreated her. "It's no sight for a woman. If—there is any way to tie up this arm, I might be able to do something. There may be people under those cars!"

"Then it is too late to help," she replied solemnly. A little shower of feathers, each carrying its fiery lamp, blew over us from some burning pillow. A part of the wreck collapsed with a crash. In a resolute endeavor to play a man's part in the tragedy going on all around, I got to my knees. Then I realized what I had not noticed before: The hand and wrist of the broken left arm were jammed through the handle of the sealskin grip. I gasped and sat down suddenly.

"You must not do that," the girl insisted. I noticed now that she kept her back to the wreck, her eyes averted. "The weight of the traveling bag must be agony. Let me support the valise until we can get it cut off."

"Will it have to be cut off?" I asked as calmly as possible. There were red-hot stabs of agony clear to my neck, but we were moving slowly away from the track.

"Yes," she replied, with dumfounding coolness. "If I had a knife I could do it myself. You might sit here and lean against this fence."

By that time my returning faculties had realized that she was going to cut off the satchel, not the arm. The dizziness was leaving and I was gradually becoming myself.

"If you pull, it might come," I suggested. "And with that weight gone, I think I will cease to be five feet eleven inches of baby."

She tried gently to loosen the handle, but it would not move, and at last, with great drops of cold perspiration over me, I had to give up.

"I'm afraid I can't stand it," I said. "But there's a knife somewhere around these clothes, and if I can find it, perhaps you can cut the leather."

As I gave her the knife she turned it over, examining it with a peculiar expression, bewilderment rather than surprise. But she said nothing. She set to work deftly, and in a few minutes the bag dropped free.

"That's better," I declared, sitting up. "Now, if you can pin my sleeve to my coat, it will support the arm so we can get away from here."

"The pin might give," she objected, "and the jerk would be terrible." She looked around, puzzled; then she got up, coming back in a minute with a tangle, partly scorched sheet. This she tore into a large square, and after she had folded it, she slipped it under the broken arm and tied it securely at the back of my neck.

The relief was immediate, and, picking up the sealskin bag, I walked slowly beside her, away from the track.

The first act was over; the curtain fallen. The scene was "struck."

CHAPTER IX.

The Halcyon Breakfast.

We were still dazed, I think, for we wandered like two troubled children, our one idea at first to get as far away as we could from the horror behind us. We were both bare headed, grimy, pallid through the grit. Now and then we met little groups of country folk hurrying to the track; they stared at us curiously, and some wished to question us. But we hurried past them; we had put the wreck behind us. That way lay madness.

Only once the girl turned and looked behind her. The wreck was hidden, but the smoke cloud hung heavy and dense. For the first time I remembered that my companion had not been alone on the train.

"It is quiet here," I suggested. "If you will sit down on the bank I will go back and make some inquiries. I've been criminally thoughtless. Your traveling companion—"

She interrupted me, and something of her splendid poise was gone. "Please don't go back," she said. "I'm afraid it would be of no use. And—I don't want to be left alone."

Heaven knows I did not want her to be alone. I was more than content to walk along beside her aimlessly, for any length of time. Gradually, as she lost the exaltation of the moment, I was gaining my normal condition of mind. I was beginning to realize that I had lacked the morning grace of a shave, that I looked like some lost hope of yesterday, and that my left shoe pinched outrageously. A man does not rise triumphantly above such handicaps. The girl, for all her disordered hair and the crumpled linen of her waist, in spite of her missing hat and the small gold bag that hung forlornly from a broken chain, looked exceedingly lovely.

"Then I won't leave you alone," I said manfully, and we stumbled on together. Thus far we had seen nobody from the wreck, but well up the lane we came across the tall dark woman who had occupied lower 11. She was half crouching beside the road, her black hair about her shoulders, and an ugly bruise over her eye. She did not seem to know us, and refused to accompany us. We left her there at last, babbling incoherently and rolling in her hands a dozen pebbles she had gathered in the road.

The girl shuddered as we went on. Once she turned and glanced at my bandage. "Does it hurt very much?" she asked.

"It's growing rather numb. But it might be worse," I answered mendaciously. "If anything in this world could be worse, I had never experienced it."

And so we trudged on bareheaded under the summer sun, growing parched and dusty and weary, doggedly leaving behind us the pillar of smoke. I thought I knew of a trolley line somewhere in the direction we were going, or perhaps we could find a horse and trap to take us into Baltimore. The girl smiled when I suggested it.

"We will create a sensation, won't we?" she asked. "Isn't it queer—or perhaps it's my state of mind—but I keep wishing for a pair of gloves, when I haven't even a hat!"

When I reached the main road we sat down for a moment, and her hair,

"Then It's Too Late to Help," She Replied, Solemnly.

which had been coming loose for some time, fell over her shoulders in little waves that were most alluring. It seemed a pity to twist it up again, but when I suggested this, cautiously, she said it was troublesome and got in her eyes when it was loose. So she gathered it up, while I held a row of little shell combs and pins, and when it was done it was vastly becoming, too. Funny about hair: A man never knows he has it until he begins to lose it, but it's different with a girl. Something of the unconventional situation began to dawn on her as she put in the last hair pin and parted some stray locks to place.

"I have not told you my name," she said abruptly. "I forgot that because I know who you are, you know nothing about me. I am Alison West, and my home is in Richmond."

So that was it! This was the girl of the photograph on John Gilmore's bedside table. The rich McKnight expected to see in Richmond the next day, Sunday! She was on her way back to meet him! Well, what difference did it make, anyhow? We had been thrown together by the merest chance. In an hour or two at the most we would be back in civilization and she would recall me, if she remembered me at all, as an unshaven creature in a red cravat and tan shoes, with a soiled Pullman sheet tied around my neck. I drew a deep breath.

"Just a twinge," I said, when she glanced up quickly. "It's very good of you to let me know, Miss West. I have been hearing delightful things about you for three months."

"From Richey McKnight?" She was frankly curious.

"Yes. From Richey McKnight," I assented. Was it any wonder McKnight was crazy about her? I dug my heels into the dust.

"I have been visiting near Cresson, in the mountains," Miss West was saying. "The person you mentioned, Mrs. Curtis, was my hostess. We were on our way to Washington together." She spoke slowly, as if she wished to give the minimum of explanation. Across her face had come again the baffling expression of perplexity and trouble I had seen before.

"You were on your way home, I suppose?" Richey—spoke about seeing you," I floundered, finding it necessary to say something. She looked at me with level, direct eyes.

"No," she returned quietly. "I did not intend to go home. I—well, it doesn't matter; I am going home now."

A woman in a calico dress, with two children, each an exact duplicate of the other, had come quickly down the road. She took in the situation at a glance, and was explosively hospitable.

"You poor things," she said. "If you'll take the first road to the left over there, and turn in at the second pigsty, you will find breakfast on the table and a coffee pot on the stove. And there's plenty of soap and water, too. Don't say one word. There isn't a soul there to see you."

We accepted the invitation and she hurried on toward the excitement and the railroad. I got up carefully and helped Miss West to her feet.

"At the second pigsty to the left," I repeated, "we will find the breakfast I promised you seven eternities ago. Forward to the pigsty!"

We said very little for the remainder of that walk. I had almost reached the limit of endurance; with every step the broken ends of the bone grated together. We found the farmhouse without difficulty, and I remember wondering if I could hold out to the end of the old stone wall that led between hedges to the door.

"Allah be praised," I said with all the voice I could muster. "Behold the coffee pot!" And then I put down the cup and folded up like a jack-knife on the porch floor.

When I came around something hot was trickling down my neck, and a despairing voice was saying, "Oh, I don't seem to be able to pour it into your mouth. Please open your eyes."

"But I don't want it in my eyes," I replied dreamily. "I haven't any idea what came over me. It was the shoes, I think; the left one is a red-hot torture." I was sitting by that time and looking across into her face.

Never before or since have I fainted, but I would do it joyfully, a dozen times a day, if I could waken again to the blissful touch of soft fingers on my face, the hot ecstasy of coffee spilled by those fingers down my neck. There was a thrill in every tone of her voice that morning. Before long my loyalty to McKnight would step between me and the girl he loved; life would develop new complexities. In these early hours after the wreck, full of pain as they were, there was nothing of the suspicion and distrust that came later. Shorn of our gauds and baubles, we were primitive man and woman, together; our world for the hour was the deserted farmhouse, the slope of wheatfield that led to the road, the woodland lot, the pasture.

We breakfasted together across the homely table. Our cheerfulness, at first shyer reaction, became less forced as we ate great slices of bread from the grumpy oven back of the house, and drank hot fluid that smelled like coffee and tasted like nothing that I have ever swallowed. We found cream in stone jars, sunk deep in the chill water of the springhouse. And there were eggs, great yellow-brown ones—a basket of them.

So, like two children awakened from a nightmare, we chattered over our food; we hunted mutual friends, we laughed together at my feeble witticisms, but we put the horror behind us resolutely. After all, it was the hat with the green ribbons that brought back the strangeness of the situation.

All along I had had the impression that Alison West was deliberately putting out of her mind something that shrouded now and then. It brought with it a return of the puzzled expression that I had surprised early in the day, before the wreck. I caught it once, when, breakfast over, she was tightening the sling that held the broken arm. I had prolonged the morning meal as much as I could, but when the wooden clock with the pink roses on the dial pointed to half after ten, and the mother with the duplicate youngsters had not come back, Miss West made the move I had dreaded.

"If we are to get into Baltimore at all we must start" she said, rising. "You ought to see a doctor as soon as possible."

"Hush," I said warningly. "Don't mention the arm, please; it is asleep now. You may rouse it."

"If I only had a hat," she reflected. "It wouldn't need to be much of one, but—" She gave a little cry and darted to the corner. "Look," she said triumphantly, "the very thing."

"No, I Did Not Intend to Go Home."

With the green streamers tied up in a bow, like this—do you suppose the child would mind? I can put $5 or so here—that would buy a dozen of them."

It was a queer affair of straw, that hat, with a round crown and a rim that flopped dismally. With a single movement she had turned it up at one side and fitted it to her head. Crotesque by itself, when she wore it it was a thing of joy.

Evidently the lack of head covering had troubled her, for she was elated at her find. She left me, scrawling a note of thanks and pinning it with a bill to the table-cloth, and ran upstairs to the mirror and the promised soap and water.

I did not see her when she came down. I had discovered a bench with a tin basin outside the kitchen door and was washing, in a helpless, one-sided way. I felt rather than saw that she was standing in the doorway, and I made a final plunge into the basin.

"How is it possible for a man with only a right hand to wash his left ear?" I asked from the roller towel. I was distinctly uncomfortable. Men are more rigidly creatures of convention than women, whether they admit it or not. "There is so much soap or me still that if I laugh I will blow bubbles. Washing with rain water and home-made soap is like motoring on a slippery road. I only struck the high places."

Then, having achieved a brilliant polish with the towel, I looked at the girl.

She was leaning against the frame of the door, her face perfectly colorless, her breath coming in slow, difficult respirations. The erratic hair was pinned to place, but it had slid rakishly to one side. When I realized that she was staring, not at me but past me to the road along which we had come, I turned and followed her gaze. There was no one in sight, the lane stretching dust white in the sun—no moving figure on it, no sign of life.

It Went Too Fast.

Mrs. Wabayeke (whose husband has just returned from his first visit to the city)—Did yer go inter Kashner's department store, Abner?

Abner—Yes, Susan, I went inter the store, but I didn't buy nothin'.

Mrs. Wabayeke—worn't ther' no bargans?

Abner—Well, I didn't see none. I seen one man buyin' a pair of socks an' he give the gal behin' the counter a $10 bill fer 'em.

Mrs. Wabayeke—Fer the lan's sake Abner! A $10 bill!

Abner—Yas; an' the gal put the bill inter a littal roun' box, an' pulled a string, an' the next thing I seen was thet box an' the $10 bill in et whiz zin' through the store like 'Towser chasin' a rabbit. Then I says to my self, 'Abner Wabayeke, you'd be a plumb, big fool to buy anything in a store whar money goes as fast as thet.' An' then I gits out.—The Housekeeper.

The Child Problem.

The problem of the child is the problem of the race. If we would look forward to a mighty nation in the future, a nation to conserve the heritage of the past and prove worthy of the proud traditions of its history, we must emancipate the children, free them from slavery, from ignorance, from neglect, take them out of the shadows of disease and the clutch of death and place them on the sunlit path of health, along which they can joyfully march to the goal of usefulness and victory.

The Victims.

Paradoxical as it may seem, the world's surplusage of gold seems to be causing trouble only for those who haven't got any of it.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WELL?

The kidney secretions tell if disease is lurking in the system. Too frequent or scanty urination, discolored urine, lack of control at night indicate that the kidneys are disordered. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.

S. E. Vaughan, 601 E. South St., Iola, Kan., says: "Diabetes had set in and I expected to live but a short time. Kidney secretions were milky white and back pains were terrible. I was so dizzy my wife had to lead me. After trying everything else, I began with Doan's Kidney Pills and was soon helped. Continued use cured me."

How Lightning Splits Trees.

Lightning makes trees explode, like overcharged boilers. The flame of the lightning does not burn them up, nor does the electric flash split them like an ax. The bolt flows through into all the damp interstices of the trunk and into the hollows under its bark. All the moisture at once is turned into steam, which by its immediate explosion rips open the tree. For centuries this simple theory puzzled scientists, but they have got in right at last.

It takes a strong-minded spinster to believe that the reason men don't propose to her is that she never gives them a chance.

Some men are self-made and some others are wife-made.

For State Senator.

In this senatorial district which is composed of Genesee and Livingston counties the First Representative District of Genesee county is entitled by former agreement to the candidate for state senator at the Republican primaries next Tuesday and it presents an especially strong candidate in the person of Albert E. Ransom of Flushing.

He is a life long resident of Genesee county and enjoys a wide acquaintance throughout the same. He is a broad minded man and his long and varied experience both in business and educational affairs peculiarly fits him for the office and one who can render the district most satisfactory and excellent service. He has always made a success of his own business affairs and is recognized as a public spirited and progressive citizen.

His strongest recommendation perhaps for the place lies in the fact that his candidacy is not being urged by any clique of men but by the people of his county and district who know him to be a man who will serve his district and the state faithfully, conservatively and honestly if entrusted with the office. Although he is being bitterly opposed by the bosses of the present Warner administration who frankly admit that they desire to control the next session of the State senate it is predicted by his friends that he will carry his home county by a large majority.—Flint Globe and News.

EVERY REPUBLICAN SHOULD VOTE FOR SENATOR BURROWS

SENATOR J. C. BURROWS
Republican Candidate for Renomination at the Primaries September 6th

He served with honor in the Civil War and is the warm friend of the soldier.

He is a party builder—not a party destroyer.

His record of achievement in Congress is not excelled by that of any man Michigan has honored.

He is at the threshold of his greatest usefulness. He will head the great Committee on Finance. He will be the Senate leader. Michigan cannot afford to lose this prestige and power.

Senator Burrows should have an overwhelming endorsement in the primaries.

WHY TURN DOWN A FAITHFUL SERVANT?

(1)

HE has been loyal to the Republican party and its principles. He has always championed the protective policy.

He helped establish the Sound Money System, and is devoting his energies to its perfection.

His wise course in both branches of Congress entitles him to first consideration.

He is a progressive, uncompromising Republican. He was a loyal supporter of Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, McKinley and ROOSEVELT, and is now of WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT. He is a man of high ideals, unquestioned integrity and patriotic zeal.

He has always safeguarded the interests of the American farmer and workman.

Of Interest to the L. O. T. M. M.

To the editor.—Please allow me space in which to correct some mis-statements which seem to have gone out regarding changes in rates recently adopted by the Lady Maccabees. I wish to assure every member there is no change whatever in the law governing the maturing of old age claims. They still draw the money at 70 years of age. This law is the same as has been in force ever since the beginning of the Order. The only changes made in the laws at the last convention were slight ones merely to bring sections into harmony, except that governing rates. This change to adequate rates is no experiment. A great many fraternal orders having all ready made the change and ALL will be compelled to do so within a few years.

We have varied plans that will fit every one and every purse. If a member feels she cannot continue to carry $1000 protection she will carry $750 or $500 and then receive at 70 years or at death more money than she has paid into the order. Every member over 50 years of age (no matter how much over) will be given a rating as though she but 50. While those under 50 will be given a rating as of two years less than her present age. Should either of these rates be higher than the rating at the age she entered the order, then have the difference between what she has paid and what she would have paid under adequate rates charged against her certificate at death or she may pay up this and receive full face of certificate. Remember you of 50 are many years away from a medical examination and that impaired health would bar you from securing protection elsewhere. Yet our Order waives these conditions and extends favors not obtainable from any other society. I will be in Pinckney Friday and Saturday of this week and desire to see every member, especially those who are over 50, also those who have allowed themselves to become suspended.
