A Surprise.

Last Saturday evening the Eastern Stars gave an enjoyable surprise on Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Peters at their home on Unadilla street before they leave for their new home in Jackson.

F. M. Peters and family have lived in Pinckney for about ten years and during that time Mr. Peters conducted the Pinckney Flouring Mills until a short time ago when he sold to the Hoyt Bros., and while here they made many friends who regret their leaving.

They were presented with a handsome cut glass dish that they may remember their many friends here. Light refreshments were served, an enjoyable time spent, and all departed wishing them the best of success in their new field.

The Bachelor Club.

For some time past the question has been "who shall start a club?" for the purpose of giving a series of dancing parties during the winter months and last Saturday evening the boys got together, raised the necessary money, elected officers and committees, and decided to give their opening party Friday evening, September 30, 1910. Fischer of Ann Arbor will furnish the music, an admission of 75c will be charged and supper will be served at an additional charge. Everybody is cordially invited to come and have a good time and help the boys get started. The plan is to give parties once in every three weeks.

Citizens Lecture Course

The first number on the Lecture course, Beilharz Entertainers, October 14, is but a few weeks away and all those not having tickets will have to hurry if they wish seats. The course this year is one of the best that the citizens have secured in some time.

The Beilharz Entertainers, consisting of impersonations, musical novelties, vocal duets, instrumental and vocal solos, come well supplied with press notices and cannot fail to satisfy the most critical. Don't forget the date, October 14.

Couldn't Get Along Without the Dispatch.

We are in receipt of a letter from Mrs. Claude Hulse of Enumclaw, Wash., in which she thanks us for notifying her of the change and also of her account for the Dispatch, for which she encloses $2.00. She wishes to have the paper continued as she "would find it almost impossible to do without it as Pinckney is my old home town."

Howell Auditorium Thursday, Sept. 22, 1910

Yourself and ladies are cordially invited to attend a dancing party to be given at the Auditorium, Howell, Thursday evening, September 22, 1910. Music will be furnished by the same orchestra that were at the Home-Coming party. Come and have another good time. Ladies free. 37c2

Chicken Pie Supper Postponed

The ladies of the Congregational church and society have postponed their annual Chicken Pie Supper and Apron Sale until Saturday October 1. Everybody cordially invited to come and have a good social time. Remember the date, October 1st, 1910.

Last Call for Taxes.

The village tax-roll for the village of Pinckney is at the Pinckney Exchange bank for collection. All taxes must be paid on or before October 1st. H. R. GEER, Village Treas.

SECRETS OF HONEY BUSINESS

Bees Will Store Just as Much in Old Box or Washing Machine as in Finest Hive.

Bees will store just as much honey in any kind of an old box, keg or deserted washing machine as in the finest hive that was ever made, and that is one of the big secrets of the bee business; the principal thing is keep the box cool by shading it during the heat of the day, though shade at other times I consider objectionable.

Close to the hive have an abundance of water, some salt and slaked lime, writes A. F. Benney in Farm Press. The best watering device I know of is a board set at an angle of about twenty degrees with a can or bucket at the high end which leaks just fast enough to keep the board wet a little. The container must be kept covered, else the bees will get in and drown.

Secret No. 2. Do not molest the bees after they get to work, and give them an abundance of room in which to store honey—2,000 to 3,000 cubic inches is not too much.

No. 3. Bees will sting, for they are built that way. The remedy is to wear veil and gloves until you get to like having the little dears prod you.

Take an old box of about 2,000 cubic inches capacity and across one end fasten a dozen sticks the size of your finger, nailing into the ends of them through the sides of the box. Clean the cover boards together, cut a hole one half by six inches in the lower end and fasten it on with screws. Now tie a wire loop in the top of the box to hang it up by and you have what I call a "tree box." With several of them, which cost me just 15 cents, I got honey enough to sell for $100, but I sorted it carefully, putting the clean white comb into jars (Mason), and selling it for 15 cents a pound. The rest of the honey I strained and put in jelly tumblers, Mason jars and tin (gallon) cans and it averaged me 11½ cents a pound. Labels can be bought at a low price which aid in selling. At the end of the season I had besides the honey several swarms of bees and could have had more.

Exercise for Horses.

Exercise is essential to the welfare of both mare and foal. Green pasture is, of course, the ideal environment for the brood mare, and especially by its cleanliness has a salutary effect in the prevention of ills. The early foal without the advantage of this environment is peculiarly liable to the contraction of disease from germs lurking in the stable.

Vermin on Pigs.

Keep your pigs free from vermin and also free from worms and you will not hear so much about "cholera." Many hogs die from the above causes and the trouble is laid to cholera. If the genuine cholera ever gets into your herd of hogs you will quickly know it, and all the doctoring you may do will be of little use. The many so-called cures are general failures. Kill those showing the disease, and put all the others on new ground where no hogs have been, and feed them but very little, and you may stamp out the disease to a considerable extent.

Hauling Produce.

The average cost of hauling one ton of produce one mile in the United States is twenty-three cents; in Europe it is eight cents. With equally good roads as the French peasant enjoys, the American farmers could save $250,000,000 a year.

Good Pastures.

Shade from the hot sun and pure water are as essential to good pastures as plenty of grass.

STUMP SPLITTER IS UNIQUE

Old Method of Using Wedge or Dynamite Improved Upon by Large Conical Screw.

The usual method of removing stumps from the ground is to split them by the use of a wedge or a blast of dynamite, says Scientific American. The accompanying illustration tration shows a new method. It consists in screwing a wedge into the top of the stump. The wedge is in reality a large conical screw, provided at its lower end with a fine thread used for starting the cone into the wood. The shaft of the screw is provided with a hand wheel, by which it may be steadied and turned. Extending laterally from the shaft is a long arm, at the end of which a whiffletree is coupled. A horse may be hitched to the whiffletree, to turn the shaft and screw the cone into the stump. When the stump is too large for the threaded cone on the shaft to split effectively, another cone section may be added. After the stump has been split by means of the cone into a number of small parts these parts can easily be excavated and removed.

Seed Remained in Ground All Winter and Produced Strong, Vigorous Plants.

Sometimes potatoes left in the ground over winter will produce good crops the following year. Of course such instances are rare and are not easily accounted for. The photograph from which the accompanying cut was made was sent by a man living at Stamford, Conn. He says this hill was from seed which remained in the ground all winter and grew strong, vigorous plants the next spring. The ground had been heavily fertilized for rhubarb.

FARM NOTES

Thin the early endives and keep the cultivation going between the rows.

Bee hives should be made so that they can be opened without jarring them.

Stirring honey unnecessarily causes it to candy sooner than it otherwise would.

Avoid breaking or treading on the vines when gathering cucumbers or melons.

The best way to combat the Hessian fly, is to seed the wheat fields as late as possible.

On the same day that the plowing is done the harrow or packer should follow the plow.

The cool days of middle autumn afford the best time of the year to paint the farm buildings.

Eat the string beans while they are crisp. Take a dish of them over to the neighbor who has none.

One hundred pounds of nitrate of soda per acre will help shove late cabbages along wonderfully.

The queen bee lives to an age of our years or more, but the workers live for only about forty days.

Keep the tomato vines off the ground. Hand-pick tomato-worms; they are easily found and killed.

If you want to enrich your soil cheaply, sow a cover crop as fast as the ground is vacated by vegetables.

Close stopping of fruiting cucumbers is necessary or a lot of useless wood and foliage will be made. Young plants, of course, will need more freedom.

Charlotte's Yokel

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

Mrs. Moore packed the luncheon baskets with skilled rapidity.

"Ready?" called her sister, Charlotte Owen, tying down the stairs.

"Yes, dear. Has Peter brought the car around?"

"He's coming now, Ruth. I'll send him in for the baskets."

Charlotte dropped her burden into the hands of the chauffeur on the veranda and joined the party of young people assembled there.

At the foot of the steps stood the large seven-passenger car which would have to make two trips to convey the party of a round dozen to Mosey Dell, ten miles distant. The first load bore Mr. and Mrs. Moore, the host and hostess of the occasion, her sister Charlotte and the other girls. Mr. Moore and the men waved a goodbye to the fluttering handkerchiefs that disappeared down the long driveway. Dick Fletcher watched Charlotte's pale blue chiffon veil rather wistfully until the bending trees hid the car from view.

The girls scattered among the trees while the automobile whirled back to Sunnyside for the men. Mrs. Moore bustled herself with the tea basket, for the maids had been given a holiday and she had preferred to assume the preparation of the feast. Charlotte joined her, unusually grave and silent for one so merry. Under a large pine the sisters made their kitchen, arranging spirit lamp and tea kettle in readiness for the meal.

Charlotte had pulled out the tea caddy and sat dreamily regarding her own sweet reflection in its polished silver surface. Mrs. Moore watched her covertly. At last she spoke: "Were you surprised at Dick's arrival, Lotte?"

The girl started. "Rather—how did it happen, Ruth?"

"Jack met him in town the other day—he mentioned the picnic and invited Dick; I hardly thought he'd come after the way you had treated him," Mrs. Moore's manner was reproachful.

"Treated him!" echoed Charlotte, indignantly. "Why, Ruth, do you really believe it is ill-using a man to refuse his offer of marriage—if one doesn't care?"

"I don't see how you can help caring, Lotte—Dick is one of the finest fellows in the world."

"Yet you married Dick Moore—how did you escape Dick Fletcher's fascinations?" she queried.

Ruth emerged from the basket with wide opened eyes. "Of course Dick had no attraction for me, child! I was in love with Jack! It is different with you—you don't care for anybody else and—"

"How do you know?" interrupted Charlotte quietly.

"Lotte Owen—are you still in love with that—that yokel, Joel Crane? That towheaded, awkward, freckly country bumpkin? I am surprised!"

Charlotte arose and leaned against the pine tree looking very fair and young and slender in her pale blue gown with the sunshine turning her hair into a thousand tints of bronze and copper. The rose had faded from her face, leaving it white.

"What if I am?" she asked in reply.

"But Lotte, you can't marry him! Would you spend your whole life down there buried on that little farm? When have you seen him? I supposed you had forgotten all that rubbish about his saving your life years ago."

"I haven't seen him for ten years," confessed Charlotte.

Ruth Moore laughed. "You silly, romantic thing! He's probably married long ago and forgotten all about you. We'll motor around by that little farm when we return and you shall see all the tow-headed children playing about the door among the chickens and pigs! I believe you're merely joking, Lotte, after all! Who would look at Joel Crane after knowing that Dick Fletcher, handsome, rich, charming—wanted to marry one?"

"Ruth, did you invite Dick down purposely?" demanded Charlotte.

"I did, Lotte, and I think you're an ungrateful goose not to take advantage of such an opportunity; Dick would buy the Cedars, that charming place next to Sunnyside, and—"

But Charlotte had vanished around the trunk of the tree and Ruth's indignant glance followed her flitting among the brown pine trunks until the pale blue gown disappeared beyond the waterfall. Then she turned to welcome the coming automobile with its gay party, and vainly tried to think of some reasonable explanation of Charlotte's disappearance.

Charlotte clambered up the steep rocks moist with spray from the falling water. Up here in the higher woods there flowed the deep, swift stream that dropped over the rocky brink to form the waterfall below. Charlotte went along the brink until she came to a curve in the bank that formed a dark deep pool that seemed apart from the hurrying stream.

On a large, slippery rock above the pool Charlotte sat down, dreamily watching the rippling brook. As she dreamed the wild rose flush came back to her cheeks.

She saw another summer day—indeed today was its anniversary. She was sixteen, and she stole away from Sunnyside, which had been her father's house, and came to fish in the dark pool for the monster trout. She had been an ardent fisherwoman then, and a skillful angler. Heart-free, care-free, she had gone about her fishing that day; perched on the slippery rock she had cast her fly, the pole dipped and then straightened up as she wound the reel.

The big trout dashed out into the stream with startling suddenness; in another instant the pole flew from Charlotte's clinging hands and she slid swiftly down into the dark pool. She was conscious of sinking to some dreadful depth, there was a drumming in her ears and that was all. When she awoke she was lying on the mossy bank gasping for breath, while over her leaned an awkward country youth, homely enough, but with a world of anxiety in his big brown eyes. He was quite as wet and dripping as she, and Charlotte did not have to guess that he had saved her life.

He carried her home through the woods to Sunnyside, cutting across through devious ways and taking narrow woodland trails that reduced the ten miles to five. She recalled his angry flush as he turned away from the money her father had thoughtlessly produced, and she was glad to remain his debtor.

Ruth had laughed at his country ways after the first fright was over. Afterward Charlotte had met Joel Crane several times by the trout stream; their intimacy grew into friendship and love in the course of a few brief weeks. Then Mr. Owen had discovered it and Charlotte was hustled away to Europe.

Charlotte had waited. Once each year she managed to get down to Sunnyside at this season and the anniversary of the day he had saved her life always found her at the rendezvous. No other man had attracted her, though Ruth had endeavored to secure for her sister a brilliant marriage. But the younger girl, free now to choose where she would, still clung to her old love, though there was little to foster it save memories, for she had never seen or heard of Joel Crane since that distant day, yet the very memory of him thrilled her.

She heard her name called by different members of the picnic party which she would gladly have avoided on this anniversary of hers, but Ruth had unluckily chosen the day for her picnic. Later she would go down and join them—now, she must dream awhile.

A man came swiftly along the bank looking with eager eyes at the rock above the deep pool. Tall and strong, with the liteness of the panther in his step he was one of those who had been born to woodlands and forest solitudes. Under the soft felt hat his hair straggled flaxen in the sunshine. He wore a rough flannel suit and high boots; in his hand was rod and reel.

He paused and looked at the girl with tender eyes aglow; he saw the wistful smile that parted her lips. With a slight exclamation he was beside her.

"I have come back," he said abruptly. His hand reached out and caught Charlotte as, startled, she lost her balance and would have fallen into the pool.

"The second time!" she cried nervously as he helped her to the ground.

Ruth plucked at her sister's skirts as she passed and drew her down.

"Honey," she whispered, "I've made a horrible blunder! It seems Dick Fletcher has been engaged to marry one of the Scott twins for several months; Bell, it is!"

"I don't care if he marries 'em both," said Charlotte recklessly.

"But I feel like a fool, Lotte," said her sister distressfully. "You see, I sort of hinted to some of the girls that Dick—was—er—you know!"

Charlotte looked thoughtfully down at a little ring woven of sweet grass that circled her engagement finger.

"If it will afford you any comfort, Ruth," she whispered, "you may announce my engagement to Joel Crane—who is growing to be a lumber magnate! I hope that will satisfy your ambition for me!"

WARNING THAT WAS FAMILIAR

Grocer Man Used Formula That Made Little Harry Long to Be Far Away.

Mrs. Jones' favorite warning to her young progeny when they were in mischief was that she would tend to them in a minute. "Tending" was accomplished by applying the open hand where it would do most good. When Harry was four years old he was sent for the first time round the corner to the grocery. In a few minutes he came trotting soberly back with the nickel still in his hand, but no bag of onions. "What's the matter?" asked his mother.

"I'm 'fraid of the man," he said, solemnly.

"Oh, he won't hurt you," reassured Mrs. Jones. "Run along and bring the onions. I'm in a hurry for them."

A second time Harry disappeared round the corner, and a second time returned without his purchase.

"I'm 'fraid of the grocer man," he explained, as before.

"Well, what makes you afraid of him?" demanded his mother, impatiently.

"Why," answered the little fellow, "bofe times when I goed in, he looked at me, an' said, 'I'll tend to you in a minute.'"—Youth's Companion.

Tribute to Hold-Up Artist.

"The train doesn't stop at Crimston Gulch any more."

"No," replied Three-Finger Sam.

"I'm afraid the town doesn't get much respect from the railroad."

"Respect! Why that railroad is clean terrified. Ever since the news got around that Stage Coach Charley had settled here that train jest gives one shriek and jumps out of sight."

CHICAGO'S TOTAL IS 2,300,000

WINDY CITY RANKS WITH PARIS AND BERLIN; NEW ORLEANS' GROWTH 50,000.

IS NOW FOURTH AMONG CITIES OF THE WORLD; ACTUAL GAIN IS 486,708.

As Compared With 1900 Gain is 28.7 Per Cent, Passes Berlin and Tokio.

The population of Chicago is 2,185,283, an increase of 486,708, or 28.7 per cent, as compared with 1,698,575 in 1900.

This announcement by the census bureau leaves Chicago ranking in population as the second city of the United States and the fourth in the world.

Chicago has almost doubled its population since 1890, when the figures were 1,099,850. Its greatest growth during that period was between 1890 and 1900, when there was an increase of 54.4.

Its increase in population during the past decade was not so great proportionately as that of New York, the rate of increase being 10 per cent less than that scored by the eastern city. New York is yet ahead of its closest rival by 2,581,550.

Chicago, however, can claim distinction in having jumped from sixth to fourth place among the big cities on the globe. It is following close upon the heels of Paris, whose population by its last census in 1901, was 2,714,068. Chicago takes precedence over Tokio and Berlin by close margins. According to the census taken in each of the two cities in 1908, Tokio had 2,085,160, and Berlin 2,040,148.

The population of New Orleans is 339,075, an increase of 51,971, or 18.1 per cent, as compared with 287,104 in 1900.

U. S. to Smash Sugar Trust.

A petition for the dissolution of the so-called sugar trust will be filed in the United States court at New York probably next week.

This is an action entirely independent of the indictments, which were found some time ago against the American Sugar Refining Co. and some of its officials.

It was the subject of the conference in New York between Attorney-General Wickersham and U. S. Attorney Wise.

Ballinger to Let Cabinet Decide.

Secretary Ballinger, according to his friends, has determined to submit the question of his retention as head of the interior department to President Taft and the members of the cabinet at their meeting, September 26.

If they concur in the view at present attributed to Mr. Taft, that the accused secretary shall be sustained as an innocent and persecuted man, he will retain his position; if they fail to back him up he will resign forthwith.

Hamilton King's Condition Grave.

Hamilton King, of Olivet, Mich., United States minister to Siam, who was operated on last week at Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, Md., and who Saturday night underwent a great change for the worse, is unimproved. Mr. King entered the hospital September 8, and after regaining strength enough to undergo an operation for kidney trouble was operated on last week by Dr. J. M. T. Finney.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Geo. Palmer reached home after a walk of 8,500 miles. He started from Oklahoma City the first of last December, walked to San Francisco, thence to New York and thence home.

Within an hour after convening, at Sacramento, Cal., the senate passed the two amendments to the state constitution that will mean $10,000,000 in additional funds to the Panama-Pacific International exposition that San Francisco plans to give in 1915.

With 12,000 cigar workers who have been on a strike for nine weeks still out and an increasing disposition on the part of the strikers to create disorders, the clear Havana cigar industry of Tampa, Fla., is paralyzed and is further from settlement than it has been at any time since the strike commenced.

Inspector General Bell, in his annual report, says that the United States army is unprepared for the field. He asserts that the new regulations are purely theoretical and that our transportation system is the same that we had at the beginning of the civil war. Major General Wood has issued orders which will change the method of army training.

Trade between the United States and the Philippine Islands increased 84 per cent during the first year's operation of the new tariff law, according to department of commerce and labor statistics. The new tariff law provides for the free interchange of merchandise between those islands and the United States. On July 31 last the law had been in effect one year.

WASHING OF IRISH CROCHET

Life of Collars and Neckwear is Prolonged by Laundering it the Proper Way.

Irish crochet collars and neckwear may be the most durable a girl can use or the most unsatisfactory. It depends upon the laundering. Wash in thick, hot suds made from pure white soap. Rinse through several waters and put through a thin starch water. Squeeze out excessive moisture between cloths. Pin the crochet piece to a cushion or heavily padded board. Pull out all the points and edges, fastening each one with a pin to the cushion. Allow it to remain until dry, when it will look like new. If the lace is much yellowed the cushion can be placed in the sun during the drying process. A drop of bluing can be added to the last rinsing water, or if a creamy tint is liked the lace can be put through a weak tea.

A great saving of laundry work and linen may be effected by the use of "runners" for the breakfast and luncheon table. Linen crash with blue border is satisfactory. Cut one strip for length of table to extend a few inches over edge, and two strips to cross table. Place on polished table one long and one cross strip for four persons, or one long and two cross strips for six plates. For a summer cottage a plain pine table stained may be made attractive by the use of these "runners."

Almond Cream.

Two heaping tablespoonfuls of powdered gelatine, four ounces of almonds, one pint of milk, one cupful of whipping cream, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, half a teaspoonful of almond extract. Mix the gelatine, sugar and milk together in a saucepan, then dissolve slowly over the fire. Strain into a basin and cool, then add the almonds blanched and chopped finely, almond extract and the whipped cream. Pour into a wet mold and turn out when firm, sprinkle over with ground almonds and serve with orange jelly.

To Remove Odor From Hands.

It is not generally known that dry mustard rubbed on the hands will remove any odor, even those clinging ones of iodiform or onion. Articles that have been cleaned with gasoline or any other pungent fluid can also be sweetened by this same method, only it should be dusted lightly on the article, and not rubbed, and then a gentle shaking should be given until the whole surface has been deodorized.

Meat Toast.

Chop finely six to eight ounces of cooked cold meat. Melt one heaping tablespoonful of butter in the chafing dish, and fry in it one chopped onion, add one tablespoonful of flour and stir until brown, then put in the meat, season with salt, pepper and red pepper, and stir till hot through. Add three tablespoonfuls of stock or water, and cook for ten minutes. Spread the mixture over hot buttered toast. Serve hot.

Halibut Steaks.

Have the steaks one inch thick, sprinkle on each steak salt, pepper, paprika, dip in bread crumbs, then in beaten egg, and then in crumbs again. Put three heaping tablespoonfuls of butter in the blazer of the chafing dish and when smoking hot put in the halibut and fry till it is nicely browned on both sides. Garnish with thin slices of lemon and sprinkle over with finely chopped parsley.

Puff Balls.

One egg, one-half cup sugar, beaten together, one-half pint of sweet milk added and about one pint of flour in which is sifted one teaspoonful baking powder and a little cinnamon, nutmeg and salt. It will be a thick batter. Drop small spoonful into hot fat and fry like doughnuts. Drain on brown paper and roll in sugar.

Lemon and Apple Pie.

Chop finely one large sour apple which has been peeled and cored. Add the pulp of a lemon, grated lemon peel and the juice. Beat in one egg, a tablespoonful of butter and half a cupful of sugar. Beat until thoroughly mixed and bake between crusts of puff paste for three-quarters of an hour.

Care of Silver.

Put silverware into an aluminum kettle with enough boiling water to cover it. Boil until silver is bright. Dry thoroughly.

Another Way.—Use one quart of lukewarm water with one teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in it. Put in the silverware and let stand several hours until bright.

Preserving Peas.

Shell peas, take a stone jar and put a layer of salt in the bottom and then a layer of peas and salt again until the jar is filled. Be sure to have the top layer well covered with salt. When you want to cook say take out what you want and soak in several waters until the salt is out, then season like fresh peas.

Someone Might Get Hurt. Pietro had drifted to Florida and was working with a gang at railroad construction. He had been told to beware of rattlesnakes, but assured that they would always give the warning rattle before striking.

One hot day he was eating his noon luncheon on a pine log when he saw a big rattler coiled a few feet in front of him. He eyed the serpent and began to shift his legs over the log. He had barely got them out of the way when the snake's fangs hit the bark beneath him.

"Son of a guna!" yelled Pietro. "Why you no ringa da bell?"—Everybody's Magazine.

Concrete Tower and Tank.

A combined water tower and tank has been built of concrete blocks near Brussels, where it is to be used in connection with the international exhibition. The tower and tank have a height of 145 feet, and the latter has a capacity of 280,000 gallons. The structure is circular, and is built entirely of concrete blocks, and without molding of any kind, except that used in the building of the concrete reinforcing strips surrounding the top of the tank proper.

Remembering Each Other.

He sat on the sand at Atlantic City in a bathing suit. About ten feet away she was drawing pictures in the sand with a small brown forefinger. He noticed her complexion, her curves and the glint of gold in her hair. He wanted to speak, and yet— Finally he summoned courage and walked over to her.

"Didn't I talk with you for about five minutes two summers ago?" he asked.

"Two years ago," she said dreamily. "Two years ago—let me see—did I wear blue silk stockings?"

True Independence.

You will always find those who think they know what is your duty better than you know it. It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after our own; but the great man is he who, in the midst of the crowd, keeps, with perfect sweetness, the independence of solitude.—Emerson.

Attention Sick Women

If you had positive proof that a certain remedy for female ills had made many remarkable cures, would you not feel like trying it?

If during the last thirty years we have not succeeded in convincing every fair-minded woman that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured thousands and thousands of women of the ills peculiar to their sex, then we long for an opportunity to do so by direct correspondence. Meanwhile read the following letters which we guarantee to be genuine and truthful.

Hudson, Ohio.—"I suffered for a long time from a weakness, inflammation, dreadful pains each month and suppression. I had been doctoring and receiving only temporary relief, when a friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and wrote to you for advice. I have faithfully followed your directions and now, after taking only five bottles of the Vegetable Compound, I have every reason to believe I am a well woman. I give you full permission to use my testimonial."—Mrs. Lena Carmichael, Hudson, Ohio. R. F. D. No. 7.

St. Regis Falls, N. Y.—"Two years ago I was so bad that I had to take to my bed every month, and it would last from two to three weeks. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in dry form. I am happy to say that I am cured, thanks to your medicine and good advice. You may use my letter for the good of others."—Mrs. J. H. Breyer, St. Regis Falls, N. Y.

There is absolutely no doubt about the ability of this grand old remedy, made from the roots and herbs of our fields, to cure female diseases. We possess volumes of proof of this fact, enough to convince the most skeptical.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Worms

"Cascarets are certainly fine. I gave a friend one when the doctor was treating him for cancer of the stomach. The next morning he passed four pieces of a tape worm. He then got a box and in three days he passed a tape-worm 48 feet long. It was Mr. Matt Freck, of Millersburg, Dauphin Co., Pa. I am quite a worker for Cascarets. STATE OF MICHIGAN, The Circuit Court for the County of Livingston. In Chancery.

WILFRED T. SCOTT, Complainant vs.
BERTHA E. SCOTT, Defendant

Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County of Livingston, in Chancery at Howell on the 29th day of August A. D. 1910.

In this cause it appearing from an affidavit on file that the defendant, Bertha E. Scott, is a non-resident of this State, but is a resident of Muskegon county, Ohio, and resides near Gayport in said state.

On motion of William E. Robb, solicitor for complainant, it is ordered that the appearance of the said non-resident defendant, Bertha E. Scott, be entered here in within four months from the date of this order; that in case of her appearance she cause her answer to the bill of complaint to be filed and a copy thereof to be served on complainant's solicitor within twenty days after service on her of the copy of said bill and notice of this order. And if default thereof said bill will be taken as confessed by the said non-resident defendant.

It is further ordered, that within twenty days the complainant cause a notice of this order to be published in the Pinckney Dispatch, a newspaper printed, published and circulated in said county and that said publication be continued therein once in each week for six weeks in succession; or that he cause a copy of this order to be personally served on said non-resident defendant at least twenty days before the time thereof prescribed for his appearance.

County School Commissioner

Pinckney is proud to be represented on the County Ticket this year by such a man as H. D. McDougall, Superintendent of the Public Schools of Pinckney and Candidate for County Commissioner of Schools of Livingston county on the Republican ticket.

Mr. McDougall was born in Ontario, Canada, and after attending the Ontario public schools, entered the Strathroy Collegiate Institute and completed a four year course there. He then came to Michigan, taught three years, and entered the Michigan State Normal College, where he completed a four year course, obtaining a life certificate.

Mr. McDougall, as a Superintendent teacher and disciplinarian has been eminently successful, having taught three years in the public schools, at Napoleon, five years in Carleton, two in Dundee, and this is his second year in Pinckney.

He realizes fully the responsibilities and duties that devolve upon him, he loves his work, throws himself into it body and soul, hence the secret of his success.

The voters of Livingston county will make no mistake by casting their vote for him November eight, next, and he will fully appreciate any favor you may bestow upon him.

Circuit Court Commissioner

It will become necessary to elect a Circuit Court Commissioner at the fall election November eight. The office of Circuit Court Commissioner pays a small salary and has always been considered a young man's office and has been held by a young man up to two years ago. The Republican candidate is Mr. Glenn C. Yelland, a bright young attorney at Howell. He is a graduate of the Detroit College of Law which is classed among the leading law schools of the United States and is a nephew of Probate Judge Judd Yelland of Escanaba, Mich., formerly one of the leading attorneys in Howell.

He is striving diligently to build up a law practice in Howell, despite the competition in the legal profession there, but Mr. Yelland is a bright, energetic, straight forward young man and is destined in the future to be one of Michigan's foremost attorneys. A young attorney has a rough road to travel and it takes a long while for him to build up a practice. If there is anyone that a person would help along, it is a young man who is putting forth his best efforts to succeed. Therefore the people of Livingston county, irrespectively party politics should put their shoulder to the wheel and elect Mr. Yelland Circuit Court Commissioner, which office will hold him up and boost him along until he succeeds in building up a law practice, and the citizens of the county will never regret it and will discover that they have one of the most competent Circuit Court Commissioners that ever held office in old Livingston county.

Don't Break Down.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause breakdowns. You can't overtax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run down or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters the matchless tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. Van de Sande of Kirkland, Ill., writes "That I did not break down while enduring a most severe strain for three months is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. Satisfaction positively guaranteed. 50c at F. A. Siglers.

NO CLOUDS IN SIGHT

COLONEL GEORGE HARVEY SAYS COUNTRY ALL RIGHT.

THE WRITER SEES NO CLOUD

Striking Article in North American Review That is Attracting Wide Attention.

The attention of business and professional men in all portions of the country has been attracted to a strikingly strong article by Col. George Harvey in the September issue of the North American Review in which the writer takes a view of the greatest hopefulness for the future of America and Americans. The article is entitled "A Plea for the Conservation of Common Sense," and it is meeting with the cordial approval of business men of all shades of political opinion throughout the entire country. In part, Colonel Harvey says:

"Unquestionably a spirit of unrest dominates the land. But, if it be true that fundamentally the condition of the country is sound, must we necessarily succumb to despondency, abandon effort looking to retrieval and cringe like cravens before clouds that only threaten? Rather ought we not to analyze conditions, search for causes, find the root of the distress, which even now exists only in men's minds, and then, after the American fashion, apply such remedies as seem most likely to produce beneficial results?"

Capital and Labor Not Antagonistic.

"The Link that connects labor with capital is not broken but we may not deny that it is less cohesive than it should be or than conditions warrant. Financially, the country is stronger than ever before in its history. Recovery from a panic so severe as that of three years ago was never before so prompt and comparatively complete. The masses are practically free from debt. Money is held by the banks in abundance and rates are low.

"Why, then, does capital pause upon the threshold of investment? The answer, we believe, to be plain. It awaits adjustment of the relations of government to business. . . . The sole problem consists of determining how government can maintain an even balance between aggregations of interests, on the one hand, and the whole people, on the other, protecting the latter against extortion and saving the former from mad assaults. The solution is not easy to find for the simple reason that the situation is without precedent. But is not progress being made along sane and cautious lines? . . ."

Conserve Common Sense.

"Is not the present, as we have seen, exceptionally secure? What, then, of preparations for the future? Patriotism is the basis of our institutions. And patriotism in the minds of our youth is no longer linked solely with fireworks and deeds of daring. It is taught in our schools. A new course has been added—a course in loyalty. Methodically, our children learn how to vote, how to conduct primaries, conventions and elections, how to discriminate between qualifications of candidates and, finally, how to govern as well as serve. They are taught to despise bribery and all forms of corruption and fraud as treason. Their creed, which they are made to know by heart, is not complex. It is simple, but comprehensive, no less beautiful in diction than lofty in aspiration. These are the pledges which are graven upon their memories:

"As it is cowardly for a soldier to run away from battle, so it is cowardly for any citizen not to contribute his share to the well-being of his country. America is my own dear land; she nourishes me, and I will love her and do my duty to her, whose child, servant and civil soldier I am.

"As the health and happiness of my body depend upon each muscle and nerve and drop of blood doing its work in its place, so the health and happiness of my country depend upon each citizen doing his work in his place.

"These young citizens are our hostages to fortune. Can we not safely assume that the principles animating their lives augur well for the permanency of the Republic? When before have the foundation stones of continuance been laid with such care and promise of durability?"

"The future, then, is bright. And the present? But one thing is needful. No present movement is more laudable than that which looks to conservation of natural resources. But let us never forget that the greatest inherent resource of the American people is Common Sense. Let that be conserved and applied without cessation, and soon it will be found that all the ills of which we complain but know not of are only such as attend upon the growing pains of a great and blessed country

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS

Ann Arbor.—At the closing session of the annual convention of the Michigan Retail Shoe Dealers' association, the following officers were elected: President, O. D. Allen, Detroit; first vice-president, Fred B. Elliott, Flint; second vice-president, Leo Granner, Ann Arbor; third vice-president, Rolla Chase, Owosso; fourth vice-president, Joseph H. Bresset, Ray City; secretary, Fred G. Clark, Detroit; treasurer, Edward Stocker, Detroit. Dr. Carrie Classen of this city, was elected president of the state board of osteopaths, after resigning the secretaryship. Doctor Classen replaced Dr. William Jones of Adrian, who resigned the presidency and was elected to the position left vacant by the resignation of Doctor Classen.

Owosso.—Ainsley Phillips, residence unknown, was caught in Rundell Bros' commission house at one o'clock and at eight had been bound over to the circuit court for burglary. Two neighboring business places had been broken open, but nothing taken.

Muskegon.—Klass Battema, an aged Holland-American pioneer, died after his skull was fractured in a fall to the pavement from an interurban car. He never regained consciousness following the accident.

Muskegon.—Albert Condon of Hart was probably fatally injured and 200 more passengers badly shaken up as the result of refrigerator car getting loose and crashing into an excursion train which was just pulling out of the north yards. The runaway car had been left on a siding and no one knows how it got away, but it is thought that the brakes were improperly set. Condon was sitting in the combination baggage and smoking car, which the heavily loaded freight car struck first, and was hurled to the floor with awful force.

Holland.—In a letter written to Sheriff Andre, Richard H. Post, the young Holland real estate dealer, wanted here on the charge of issuing fraudulent paper, remonstrates against the delay in bringing him here for trial and reiterates his willingness to face the charge. Post has been confined in the Mexican prison at Monterey for 51 days and is willing to waive all formality of extradition papers. He has, since his arrest, refused the offer of friends to obtain his freedom.

Cadillac.—Jack Summerfeldt, aged about twenty-five years, died here of typhoid fever. Where his home was or who his relatives are the nurses at Mercy hospital were unable to learn from him. He had been working here all summer. It is supposed he had a brother at Saginaw and a sister at Merrill.

Port Huron.—William Bennett, aged 65 years, one of the best known farmers of Buel township, Sanilac county, was thrown against a manger in his barn while loading sheep, and was so seriously injured that he died soon afterwards. Mr. Bennett was one of the first farmers in the vicinity. He was the father of Thomas Bennett of Port Huron.

Ionia.—Arthur W. Normington, a prosperous young farmer of Orange township, is dead here as the result of an accident. He was assisting in moving a separator from his barn to the street. The machine got away from them and Normington, who had hold of the tongue, was knocked down. The wheels of the front truck struck him, crushing in four ribs, from the result of which he died.

Frankfort.—The people who have been circulating the petition to be presented to the board of supervisors this month asking that the local option question be again submitted to the electors of Benzie county, have turned in their papers with 1,200 names attached. Two years ago the county went dry. From present indications the next election will see it wet again, as the wets secured more than half of the names of the electors in the county on their petition.

Adrian.—Lottie Frey of Kalamazoo county and Pearl Blakeley of Lapeer county, inmates of the state industrial school for girls at Adrian, escaped. They were caught near Onsted by Deputy Sheriff Bert Short, after they had tramped all night without food, covering a distance of 23 miles, and were returned to the institution.

Alpena.—Joseph Sylvestre, who was found dead in the finishing room of the Huron cement plant, his body lying near an electric motor, is believed to have been electrocuted. He leaves a large family.

Flint.—The Flint schools are so crowded that 1,500 children have been unable to find seats, and the board of education will hold a special meeting to provide quarters for them.

Pontiac.—Mrs. Albert O. Savage, aged thirty-eight, was found dead in bed at her home in Clyde at an early hour. She had been ill for some time, but death is believed to have been due to heart disease. Her death was a severe shock to her family, consisting of a husband, two sons and a daughter.

"OLD GUARD" DOWNED.

Insurgents Carry Washington; Poin-dexter is Sent to Senate.

In the insurgent storm that swept over the state of Washington at the primaries the "old guard" of the Republican party lost everything.

Miles Poindexter, of Spokane, an insurgent leader in the present house, was nominated for United States senator by 40,000 plurality, carrying every county in the state, defeating his leading opponent, Judge Burke, of Seattle, in Burke's own precinct, and carrying Pierce county, the same of the other regular candidate, James M. Ashton.

President Taft made an effort two weeks ago, through Secretary Ballinger, to concentrate the opposition to Mr. Poindexter in one regular candidate. The president obtained the withdrawal of former Senator John L. Wilson, of Seattle, according to Mr. Wilson, but James M. Ashton, of Tacoma, and Thomas Burke, of Seattle, insisted on remaining in the race and dividing the regular vote.

The balloting shows that a concentration of the regulars would not have won.

Browne Freed in Bribe Case.

Lee O'Neil Browne, of Ottawa, Ill., democratic legislative leader, charged with bribery in connection with the election of William Lorimer to the United States senate, was acquitted by a jury in Judge George Kersten's division of the criminal court at Chicago. The jury, which took eight ballots, was out 21 hours. On the first ballot it stood eight to four for acquittal. The final juror standing out for conviction was won over to sign the verdict of acquittal. The verdict was returned in open court.

President Taft Celebrates Birthday.

President Taft was 53 years old Thursday, and celebrated his birthday anniversary quietly. He was fairly deluged with telegrams of congratulation, one of the messages coming from King George V. of England. Aunt Della Torrey sent her love. The president golfed during the morning with John Hays Hammond and Captain Archie Butt and ate a birthday dinner with his friends, the McMillans, of Cincinnati, who have a summer place near Beverly. Mrs. Taft is in New York.

Gerbracht Gets Two Years.

Ernest W. Gerbracht, former superintendent of the Williamsburg refinery of the American Sugar Refining Co., who with Charles R. Heike, former secretary and treasurer of the company, was convicted last spring of conspiracy to defraud the government by the underweighing of sugar, was sentenced at New York to two years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta and fined $5,000 by Judge Martin in the United States court.

Liberia Thanks America for Aid.

A mass meeting was held at Monrovia, Liberia, recently at which resolutions were passed thanking all the American friends of the republic for the aid rendered that state during the recent critical period of its history, and declaring that the help of the United States alone saved Liberia from dismemberment at the hands of the powers of Europe.

Lorimer Resigns From Hamilton Club.

Senator William Lorimer resigned from the Hamilton club of Chicago. In his communication to President John H. Batten withdrawing from membership the senator merely confines himself to the announcement that he wishes to cease being a member of the organization. No reason is assigned.

MEET IN CONGRESS AT ROME

International Gathering of Foes of Tuberculosis to Be Held Late in September.

Official announcement of the Seventh International Congress on Tuberculosis, which will include representatives from every civilized country in the world, has been made by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The congress will be held in Rome from September 24 to 30, 1911, and will be similar in many respects to that held in Washington in the fall of 1908. The congress, which meets every three years, will be under the direct patronage of the king and queen of Italy.

An American committee of 100 will be appointed as the official representatives of the United States. Meanwhile the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis is acting in that capacity and its office in New York will be the headquarters for the United States delegation. The secretary general of the congress is Prof. Vittorio Ascoli of Rome.

As a direct result of the stimulus of the last international congress held in this country, the American committee will be able to report that the number of tuberculosis agencies in this country have been tripled in the three years. More than twice as much money is being spent in the fight against tuberculosis by private societies and institutions, and the appropriations of federal, state, municipal and county have increased nearly fourfold. It is estimated that nearly $15,000,000 will be spent in anti-tuberculosis work in 1910.

Taken at His Word.

"Since you are so busy today," said the urbane journalist, "will you kindly tell me when and where I can meet you for an interview?"

"Go to blazes!" exclaimed the irate politician.

"Thanks. I'll consider it an appointment."

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburgh with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's house he is attracted by the picture of a girl whom Gilmore explains is his granddaughter, Alison West. He says her father is a rascal and a friend of the forger. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a man in a drunken stupor in lower ten and goes to bed in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds that his bag and clothes are missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. His name, it develops, is Simon Harrington. The man who disappeared with Blakeley's clothes is suspected. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. Circumstantial evidence places Blakeley under suspicion of murder. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. His arm is broken. Together they go to the Carter farm for breakfast. The girl proves to be Alison West, his partner's sweetheart. Alison's peculiar actions mystify the lawyer. She drops her gold bag and Blakeley, unnoticed, puts it in his pocket. He returns home and learns from his landlady of strange happenings. Blakeley learns that a fellow victim of the wreck, is in the hospital.

And there was no one I could talk to about it, no one to tell me how hideously absurd it was, no one to give me a slap and tell me there are tons of fine gold chains made every year, or to point out the long arm of coincidence!

With my one useful hand I fumbled the things back into the bag and thrust it deep out of sight among the pillows. Then I lay back in a cold perspiration. What connection had Alison West with this crime? Why had she stared so at the gun-metal cigarette case that morning on the train? What had alarmed her so at the farmhouse? What had she taken back to the gate? Why did she wish she had not escaped from the wreck? And last, in heaven's name, how did a part of her necklace become torn off and covered with blood?

Downstairs McKnight was still at the telephone, and amusing himself with Mrs. Klopton in the interval of waiting.

"Why did he come home in a gray suit, when he went away in a blue?" he repeated. "Well, wrecks are queer things, Mrs. Klopton. The suit may have turned gray with fright. Or perhaps wrecks do as queer stunts as lightning. Friend of mine once was struck by lightning; he and the caddy had taken refuge under a tree. After the flash, when they recovered consciousness, there was my friend in the caddy's clothes, and the caddy in his. And as my friend was a large man and the caddy a very small boy—"

McKnight's story was interrupted by the indignant slam of the dining room door. He was obliged to wait some time, and even his eternal cheerfulness was ebbing when he finally got the hospital.

"Is Dr. Van Kirk there?" he asked. "Not there? Well, can you tell me how the patient is whom Dr. Williams, from Washington, operated on last night? Well, I'm glad of that. Is she conscious? Do you happen to know her name? Yes, I'll hold the line."

There was a long pause, then McKnight's voice:

"Hello—yes. Thank you very much. Good-by."

He came upstairs, two steps at a time.

"Look here," he said, bursting into the room, "there may be something in your theory, after all. The woman's name—it may be a coincidence, but it's curious—her name is Sullivan."

"What did I tell you?" I said, sitting up suddenly in bed. "She's probably a sister of that scoundrel in lower seven, and she was afraid of what he might do."

"Confound this arm," I said, paying for my energy with some excruciating throbs. "There's so much to be looked after, and here I am, bandaged, splintered, and generally useless. It's a beastly shame."

"Don't forget that I am here," said McKnight pompously. "And another thing, when you feel this way just remember there are two less desirable places where you might be. One is jail, and the other is—"

He strummed on an imaginary harp, with devotional eyes.

Put McKnight's light-heartedness jarred on me that morning. I lay and frowned under my helplessness. When by chance I touched the little gold bag, it seemed to scorch my fingers. Richey, finding me unresponsive, left to keep his luncheon engagement with Alison West. As he clattered down the stairs, I turned my back to the morning sunshine and abandoned myself to misery. By what strain on her frayed nerves was Alison West keeping up, I wondered?

But McKnight had not gone, after all. I heard him coming back, his voice preceding him, and I groaned with irritation.

"Wake up!" he called. "Somebody's sent you a lot of flowers. Please hold the box, Mrs. Klopton; I'm going out to be run down by an automobile."

I roused to feeble interest. My brother's wife is punctilious about such things; all the new babies in the family have silver rattles, and all the sick people flowers.

McKnight pulled up an armful of roses, and held them out to me.

"Wonder who they're from?" he said, tumbling in the box for a card. "There's no name—yes, here's one."

He held it up and read it with exasperating slowness.

"Best wishes for an early recovery. A COMPANION IN MISFORTUNE."

"Well, what do you know about that?" he exclaimed. "That's something you didn't tell me, Lollie."

"It was hardly worth mentioning," I said mendaciously, with my heart beating until I could hear it. She had not forgotten, after all.

McKnight took a bud and fastened it in his buttonhole. I'm afraid I was not especially pleasant about it. They were her roses, and anyhow, they were meant for me. Richey left very soon, with an irritating final grin at the box.

"Good-by, sir woman-hater," he jeered at me from the door.

So he wore one of the roses she had sent me, to luncheon with her, and I lay back among my pillows and tried to remember that it was his game, anyhow, and that I wasn't even drawing cards. To remember that, and to forget the broken necklace under my head!

CHAPTER XIII.

Faded Roses.

I was in the house for a week. Much of that time I spent in composing and destroying letters of thanks to Miss West, and in growling at the doctor. McKnight dropped in daily, but he was less cheerful than usual. Now and then I caught him eyeing me as if he had something to say, but whatever it was he kept it to himself. Once during the week he went to Baltimore and saw the woman in the hospital there. From the description I had little difficulty in recognizing the young woman who had been with the murdered man in Pittsburgh. But she was still unconscious. An elderly aunt had appeared, a gaunt person in black, who sat around like a buzzard on a fence, according to McKnight, and wept, in a mixed figure, into a damp handkerchief.

On the last day of my imprisonment he stopped in to thrash out a case that was coming up in court the next day, and to play a game of double solitaire with me.

"Who won the ball game?" I asked. "We were licked. Ask me something pleasant. Oh, by the way, Bronson's out to-day."

"I'm glad I'm not on his bond," I said pessimistically. "He'll clear out."

"Not he," McKnight pounced on my ace. "He's no fool. Don't you suppose he knows you took those notes to Pittsburgh? The papers were full of it. And he knows you escaped with your life and a broken arm from the wreck. What do we do next? The commonwealth continues the case. A deaf man on a dark night would know those notes were missing."

"Don't play so fast," I remonstrated. "I have only one arm to your two. Who is trailing Bronson? Did you try to get Johnson?"

"I asked for him, but he had some work on hand."

"The murder's evidently a dead issue," I reflected. "No, I'm not joking. The wreck destroyed all the evidence. But I'm firmly convinced those notes will be offered, either to us or to Bronson very soon. Johnson's a blackguard, but he's a good detective. He could make his fortune as a game dog. What's he doing?"

McKnight put down his cards, and rising, went to the window. As he held the curtain back his customary grin looked a little forced.

"To tell you the truth, Lollie," he said, "for the last two days he has been watching a well-known Washington attorney named Lawrence Blakeley. He's across the street now."

It took a moment for me to grasp what he meant.

"Why, it's ridiculous," I asserted. "What would they trail me for? Go over and tell Johnson to get out of there, or I'll pot at him with my revolver."

"You can tell him that yourself," McKnight paused and bent forward. "Hello, here's a visitor; a little man with string hair."

"I won't see him," I said firmly. "I've been bothered enough by reporters."

We listened together to Mrs. Klop-ton's expostulating tones in the lower hall and the creak of the boards as she came heavily up the stairs. She had a piece of paper in her hand torn from a pocket account-book, and on it was the name, "Mr. Wilson Budd Hotchkiss, important business."

"Oh, well, show him up," I said resignedly. "You'd better put those cards away, Richey. I fancy it's the rector of the church around the corner."

But when the door opened to admit a curiously alert little man, adjusting his glasses with nervous fingers, my face must have shown my dismay.

It was the amateur detective of the Ontario!

I shook hands without enthusiasm. Here was the one survivor of the wrecked car who could do me any amount of harm. There was no hope that he had forgotten any of the incriminating details. In fact, he held in his hand the very note-book which contained them.

His manner was restrained, but it was evident he was highly excited. I introduced him to McKnight, who has the imagination I lack, and who placed him at once, mentally.

"I only learned yesterday that you had been—er—saved," he said rapidly. "Terrible accident—unspeakable. Dream about it all night and think about it all day. Broken arm?"

"No. He just wears the splint to be different from other people," McKnight drawled lazily. I glared at him; there was nothing to be gained by antagonizing the little man.

"Yes, a fractured humerus, which isn't as funny as it sounds."

"Humerus—humorous! Pretty good," he cackled. "I must say you keep up your spirits pretty well, considering everything."

"You seem to have escaped injury," I parried. He was fumbling for something in his pockets.

"Yes, I escaped," he replied abstractedly. "Remarkable thing, too. I haven't a doubt I would have broken my neck, but I landed on—you'll never guess what! I landed head first on the very pillow which was under inspection at the time of the wreck. You remember, don't you? Where did I put that package?"

He found it finally and opened it on a table, displaying with some theatricalism a rectangular piece of muslin and a similar patch of striped ticking.

"You recognize it?" he said. "The stains, you see, and the hole made by the dirk. I tried to bring away the entire pillow, but they thought I was stealing it, and made me give it up."

Richey touched the pieces gingerly. "By George," he said, "and you carry that around in your pocket! What if you should mistake it for your handkerchief?"

But Mr. Hotchkiss was not listening. He stood bent somewhat forward, leaning over the table, and fixed me with his ferret-like eyes.

"The Stains You See and the Hole Left by the Dirk."

"Have you seen the evening papers, Mr. Blakeley?" he inquired.

I glanced to where they lay unopened, and shook my head.

"Then I have a disagreeable task," he said with evident relish. "Of course, you had considered the matter of the man Harrington's death closed, after the wreck. I did myself. As far as I was concerned, I meant to let it remain so. There were no other survivors, at least none that I knew of, and in spite of circumstances, there were a number of points in your favor."

"I verified your identity, for instance, as soon as I recovered from the shock. Also—I found on inquiring of your tailor that you invariably wore dark clothing."

McKnight came forward threateningly. "Who are you, anyhow?" he demanded. "And how is this any business of yours?" Mr. Hotchkiss was entirely unflinched.

"I have a minor position here," he said, reaching for a visiting card. "I am a very small patch on the seat of government, sir."

McKnight muttered something about certain offensive designs against the said patch and retired grumbling to the window. Our visitor was opening the paper with a tremendous expenditure of energy.

"Here it is. Listen." He read rapidly aloud:

"The Pittsburg police have sent to Baltimore two detectives who are looking up the survivors of the ill-fated Washington Flier. It has transpired that Simon Harrington, the Wood street merchant of that city, was not killed in the wreck, but was murdered in his berth the night preceding the accident. Shortly before the collision, John Flanders, the conductor of the Flier, sent this telegram to the chief of police:

"Body of Simon Harrington found stabbed in his berth, lower ten, Ontario, at 6:30 this morning."

"JOHN FLANDERS, Conductor."

"It is hoped that the survivors of the wrecked car Ontario will be found, to tell what they know of the discovery of the crime."

"Mr. John Gilmore, head of the steel company for which Mr. Harrington was purchasing agent, has signified his intention of sifting the matter to the bottom."

"So you see," Hotchkiss concluded, "there's trouble brewing. You and I are the only survivors of that unfortunate car."

I did not contradict him, but I knew of two others, at least: Alison West, and the woman we had left beside the road that morning, babbling incoherently, her black hair tumbling over her white face.

"Unless we can find the man who occupied lower seven," I suggested.

"I have already tried and failed. To find him would not clear you, of course, unless we could establish some connection between him and the murdered man. It is the only thing I see, however. I have learned this much," Hotchkiss concluded. "Lower seven was reserved from Cresson."

Cresson! Where Alison West and Mrs. Curtis had taken the train!

McKnight came forward and suddenly held out his hand. "Mr. Hotchkiss," he said, "I'm sorry if I have been offensive. I thought when you came in, that, like the Irishman and the government, you were 'ornish' us. If you will put those cheerful relics out of sight somewhere, I should be glad to have you dine with me at the Incubator." (His name for his bachelor apartment.) "Compared with Johnson, you are the great original protoplasm."

The strength of this was lost on Hotchkiss, but the invitation was clear. They went out together, and from my window I watched them get into McKnight's car. It was raining, and at the corner the Cannonball skidded. Across the street Mr. Hotchkiss, Johnson, looked after them with his crooked smile. As he turned up his collar he saw me, and lifted his hat.

I left the window and sat down in the growing dusk. So the occupant of lower seven had got on the car at Cresson, probably with Alison West and her companion. There was some one she cared about enough to shield. I went irritably to the door and summoned Mrs. Klopton.

"You may throw out those roses," I said, without looking at her. "They are quite dead."

"They have been quite dead for three days," she retorted spitefully. "Euphemism said you threatened to dismiss her if she touched them."

MISSIONARY TELLS OF WORK

Labor and Perils of Those Who Go Among Savages to Carry Gospel Message.

In the course of a lecture on "The Savages of New Guinea" at the London Institution, A. H. Dunning referred to Dr. Chalmers, the great missionary, who died in the island, and said that for many years there was no photograph of the Goaribardil tribe which murdered him. He placed on the screen a portrait of a savage who was not only a member of the tribe, but he had reason to believe was the actual man who struck Dr. Chalmers down and helped to eat him. A profile photograph of the same native showed an extraordinary receding forehead, the sign of a low type of humanity. The savage was taken prisoner in the course of a governmental expedition to recover the remains of Dr. Chalmers' fellow victim, Mr. Tompkins, and he was generally stated by the other natives to be the man who struck the missionary.

Mr. Dunning gave an amusing account of his adventures among the savages, one of his stories relating to a bottle of strong smelling salts. The first man who smelt, under the impression that it was a "white man's love charm," was so startled that he fetched a friend to try. Then they formed the salts into a sort of trust and scoured the neighborhood for recruits. Nobody gave the show away. They brought new people up one after the other, propped them up against a tree and sat round like Christy minstrels to wait for the result.

Kissing or fondling was unknown in New Guinea until the advent of the missionaries. These were seen kissing the children and the custom spread. Having been kissed by oily natives, he preferred the old style of salutation.

She Took No Chances.
A happily-wedded matron is the principal of an odd incident, which one of her "dear" friends relates.

Before the matron's engagement to her present husband was announced, she met her "dear" friend on the street. The new matron was hurrying toward one of the large jewelry stores of the city.

"John gave me an engagement ring," she explained, without a shadow of embarrassment, "and I am going down to see how much it cost. You see, I got the jeweler's name off the box," and she hurried on.

The same friend said that another bit of information the matron got was the commercial standing of the prospective husband, which she secured by paying for a special report from a commercial agency.

Confusing.
Craig Biddle, at a dinner in Newport, was describing the changing odds on the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Reno.

"Eight to four and a half on Jeffries—nine to six the other way about—three to one and a quarter—it's rather confusing, isn't it?" he said. "In fact, it's almost as confusing as the two girls' talk about a secret."

"Mary," said the first girl, "told me that you had told her that secret I told you not to tell her."

"The nasty thing," said the other girl, "I told her not to tell you I told her."

"Well, said the first girl, 'I told her I wouldn't tell you she told me—so don't tell her I did.'"

Foiled.
He was very bashful and she tried to make it easy for him. They were driving along the seashore and she became silent for a time. "What's the matter?" he asked.
"O, I feel blue," she replied. "Nobody loves me and my hands are cold."

"You should not say that," was his word of consolation, "for God loves you, and your mother loves you, and you can sit on your hands."—Success Magazine.

PUZZLED
Hard Work, Sometimes, to Raise Children.

Children's taste is oftentimes more accurate, in selecting the right kind of food to fit the body, than that of adults. Nature works more accurately through the children.

A Brooklyn lady says: "Our little boy had long been troubled with weak digestion. We could never persuade him to take more than one taste of any kind of cereal food. He was a weak little chap and we were puzzled to know what to feed him on."

"One lucky day we tried Grape-Nuts. Well, you never saw a child eat with such a relish, and it did me good to see him. From that day on it seemed as though we could almost see him grow. He would eat Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper, and I think he would have liked the food for dinner."

"The difference in his appearance is something wonderful."

"My husband had never fancied cereal foods of any kind, but he became very fond of Grape-Nuts and has been much improved in health since using it."

"We are now a healthy family, and naturally believe in Grape-Nuts. A friend has two children who were formerly afflicted with rickets. I was satisfied that the disease was caused by lack of proper nourishment. They showed it. So I urged her to use Grape-Nuts as an experiment and the result was almost magical."

"They continued the food and today both children are well and strong as any children in this city, and, of course, my friend is a firm believer in Grape-Nuts for she has the evidence before her eyes every day."
