Retires From Business

F. G. Jackson Sells His Business to R. G. Clinton.

F. G. Jackson, well known as one of our most successful and enterprising business men, has sold his stock of dry goods, furniture and general merchandise to R. D. Clinton.

Mr. Jackson is essentially a Pinckney product. He was born on his father's farm near here and started to work for the Mann Bros. twenty-four years ago. He was with them nearly three years, when he accepted a position with Barnard and Campbell and remained with that firm three years. The next two years found him with Burnham Stoeple and Co., of Detroit, at that time the largest wholesale dry goods concern in Michigan.

He then returned to Pinckney, engaging in business for himself in the store now occupied by W. W. Barnard, with a stock of dry goods etc. Five years later he moved the stock to the "Brick Store," where he first began work as a boy, and soon after absorbed the furniture business conducted by Geo. Sigler, and remained there until the present time.

During those years of active business, with his unusually well developed qualifications as a salesman and business manager, Mr. Jackson has attained success financially and made for himself a reputation in his home town for honesty and fair dealing that will not soon be forgotten by the host of friends who regret his departure.

Outside of his business relations he is prominent in social and fraternal organizations, being Master of the Masonic and treasurer of the Woodman and Maccabee orders.

He has served several terms as councilman and is now President of the village and an officer on the Board of Education, and has always been a strong advocate for bettering the appearance and condition of the town and schools.

Mr. Jackson is still identified with the Jackson Electric Lighting company as its manager and for the present will have an office at the R. D. Clinton store.

New Firm in Pinckney

R. D. Clinton Now Owner Of the Jackson Store.

Richard D. Clinton has been too long before the public in this vicinity to need an introduction through these columns. One of the solid citizens of Putnam and with the business ability, gained through many years' experience in various branches, he will, without doubt, prove to be equally as popular as his predecessor has been.

Formerly in the hardware business in Pinckney and later as traveling salesman for one of the great harvester companies, he has had opportunities for ascertaining just what the people want and how to satisfy them, that are not afforded to those with less experience.

Mr. Clinton realizes that the retail business in rural communities is now a different proposition than formerly and has new ideas which he intends to put into practice in the "Brick Store," and which will result in increasing the trade of the village merchant and keep in circulation at home a good share of the money that now goes to the mail order houses.

The Dispatch wishes Mr. Clinton unqualified success in this undertaking and extends the glad hand of welcome to Pinckney's new merchant.

Oyster Supper

This is a special invitation for everybody to attend the oyster supper given by the C. E. society Friday evening of this week, February 3, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Sigler. Good program, pleasant social time and supper, all for 25c. Remember the date.

Daniel Richards

Daniel Richards was born in Monmouthshire, Wales, December 19th 1827, and died at his home in Pinckney, January 26th 1911, age 83 years, 1 month and 7 days. In the passing of Mr. Richards, Pinckney loses a pioneer business man and well known citizen.

He came to this country with his parents in the year 1830, settling in the state of New York. Later in 1844 his father who was a miller came to Michigan with his family and worked in a flouring mill in Washtenaw county where he resided until death claimed him. In 1852, Mr. Richards with a party of friends, went to the gold fields of California. He returned to Michigan in 1856 after which he established the business of blacksmithing and wagon and carriage making with which he was long identified. Oct. 3, 1862 he was married to C. Ellen LaRue of this place. To them were born three sons LaVern of this place Lamont W. now deceased and Glendon A. of Grand Rapids. He leaves one grandson D. Glendon Richards of the United States Navy, now located in the Philippines.

Mr. Richards was a plain man, natural in his taste and conduct, kindly in his judgements, and tolerant but firm in his convictions, a faithful considerate husband, an affectionate father, a staunch friend. A Charter and Life Member of Livingston Lodge No. 76, which attended the funeral in a body. Rev. A. G. Gates, officiated.

Completeness Unequaled

The following briefly enumerated details and valuable features, will give some idea of the completeness which will distinguish the new Livingston County Farm Map & Directory.

Each piece of land will be shown with (1) land owner's name (2) acreage (3) property lines (4) location of houses (5) proper relation to township and section (9) relative size and location compared with other farms and (7) an indication of whether rented or not.

The map will include such general features as:— (8) public roads and highways (9) prominent private roads (10) Village streets outlined (11) towns named (12) townships named (13) each township in separate color (14) bordering and counties named (15) railroads named and outlined (16) lakes in blue and named (17) rivers and creeks (18) principle county ditches (19) sections numbered (20) section lines 21, school districts outlined; 22 township and range numbers; 23 cemeteries; 24 churches; 25 schools; 29 country stores; 27 grange halls; 28, town-houses and other public buildings.

Residents are easily found by a directory which gives: 29, each land owner's name; 30, the location of his farm by township and section; 31 address if a resident of the county; 32, and specially inditates the supporters of the undertaking. Supplemented by a directory giving: 33, tenants names; 34, location of their residence by township and section; 35, their addresses; 36 with subscribers notes; 37, also business directory of village subscribers; 38, and the whole simply explained with directions on the map.

Much of interest might be said about the No. 1. quality and accuracy of the map, the pocket road map in addition and free to subscribers, the guaranteed covering all, and the low price of $2.85.

This is the map for which well known local men are securing information and corrections, and ascertaining whether there will be enough orders taken to warrant the publication of the map.

Ignorance.

Laura Jean Libbey, discussing in Brooklyn her appearance on the stage, said:

"I talk in my monologue about love, marriage and the other interests of the heart. On these subjects women, especially young women, are strangely ignorant."

"They really make me think, you know, of the little girl who was asked by her teacher:

"What can you tell us of Solomon?"

"Solomon," replied the little girl, "was very fond of animals."

"And how, my dear," said the teacher, "do you make that out?"

"Because," answered the little girl, "the Bible says he had five hundred porcupines."

A Robber.

"Were you ever confronted by a robber?"

"Sure."

"And did you play the part of a hero?"

"No, indeed; you can't throttle a gas meter."

In Saskatchewan (Western Canada)

800 Bushels from 20 acres of wheat was the thresher's return from a Lloydminster farm in the season of 1910. Many fields in that as well as other districts yielded from 25 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre. Other grains in proportion.

LARGE PROFITS

are thus derived from these fertile Western Lands.

This excellent showing causes prices to advance. Wheat should double in two years time. Grain growing on the prairie is all profitable. "A CITY WHERE PALACES ARE"

By EDWARD B. CLARK

COPYRIGHT BY W.A. PATTERSON

IT ALWAYS has seemed that the poet John Boyle O'Reilly must have had Washington in mind when he wrote the poem which begins with the words "A city where palaces are, is best." I am more convinced than ever that Washington must have been in the poet's mind because he added the words, "No, not quite, a city where palaces are, is best." One can forget all about the beautiful government buildings in this city, and yet know it as a place "where palaces are."

The capital city has within its borders hundreds of the mansions of the rich. More and more every year it is becoming a residence city, a sort of place of rest and refuge after the storm of business life, for the retiring men of wealth. Here they build beautiful homes, and here they are more than content to stay from the early fall days until the heat of the summer drives them to the seashore and the mountains.

When a man is elected a senator of the United States and knows that he has six years' lease of official life he is almost certain either to rent or to buy outright one of the palaces of the city, or if he is morally certain that he is to have two leases of official life, the chances are that he will build a castle for himself.

Foreigners in Washington say that residential sections of that city are the most beautiful in the world. Poverty and wealth appear side by side in the capital of the Union. In scores of the city blocks little frame structures, many of them shaky on their foundations, the homes of negroes, stand under the shadow of the marble and granite palaces of the rich, so it readily can be seen that the words of the poet, "A city where palaces are, is best," fit the case perfectly.

John Hays Hammond was a classmate at Yale of President Taft. Two years ago last spring Mr. Hammond developed suddenly an ambition to be the candidate of the Republicans for the office of vice-president of the United States. It was a perfectly worthy ambition of course, for every American ought to have the right, if he has lived a square life, to feel a pulsing desire to serve his fellow man in office. Mr. Hammond was not nominated, but has been in the public eye in Washington only to a less extent than he would have been were it he instead of James S. Sherman who presides today over the deliberations of the United States senate. The city home of Mr. Hammond has a history of some interest.

Some years ago Levi P. Morton, who was vice-president of the United States under Benjamin Harrison, built a great palace-like house on a triangle of land bordered by Rhode Island avenue, M and Fifteenth streets. It is said that this residence still belongs to Mr. Morton. It has been the scene of official social gatherings uninterruptedly for years. When Mr. Morton retired from the vice-presidency the residence was taken by Count Cassini, the ambassador of the czar of Russia to the United States. The Russian and his niece, the Countess Cassini, were great entertainers, and in their residence met the high representatives of all the different departments of government, the twin armed services, and the diplomats from all parts of the world.

The Morton house, under the rule of the Cassinis, was the scene of social activity season after season. Then the house passed into the possession of Elihu Root, secretary of state in Theodore Roosevelt's cabinet. The secretary and his wife are domesticity inclined. With the exception of small affairs to which only close friends were invited, the former home of the Cassinis saw little gaiety during the occupancy of the family of the former secretary of state, although there were certain "official society" affairs which, because of his office in the government, the secretary was in bound to hold and to countenance.

The most interesting gathering, from the social point of view, which the old Morton house ever held was that of the invited guests who came together to witness the marriage of the only daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Root to U. Simpson Grant III. It was a simple affair, in perfect keeping with the desire of both the bride and groom, for young Grant, who is a subaltern army officer, is of a retiring disposition, and is not given at all to a desire for the social limelight, either from his own nature or from the fact that he is the grandson and namesake of the great "Silent Soldier" of the Civil war. When the Root family gave over their lease of the Morton residence John Hays Hammond then took it up and there he lives today.

Levi Z. Leiter, now dead, a Chicago multi-millionaire, built one of the most imposing residences which the city of Washington holds. It stands close to Dupont circle, a fashionable residence section, and its front and side grounds are of greater extent than are usually found adjacent to a house in the city where every inch of land costs much money. The widow of Mr. Leiter still occupies the great pillared house which her husband built. Within a stone's toss of the Leiter residence is the marble Washington home of Mrs. R. M. Patterson, daughter of Joseph Medill, the great editor of the Chicago Tribune. The Patterson house was designed by Stanford White, who was killed by the degenerate Harry K. Thaw in New York city three or four years ago. The design for the Patterson house was one of the last works of the great architect.

Close to the marble Patterson residence is the home of William Boardman, his wife and daughters. The Boardmans are Cleveland people. They came here some years ago, as other rich people have done, to take up their residence and to lead the life of the capital. It is, however, rather a different life which the Boardmans lead. Miss Mabel Boardman is the chief American spirit in the Red Cross movement. She is devoted to this work, and gives to it the major portion of her time. The Boardman house is a scene of many gatherings of people, but at least one-half of them have humanitarianism for their object.

The Boardman home is one of the few in Washington which President Taft visits in a purely informal way. He "drops in" at Boardman's for afternoon tea or for an evening call just as he would if he were not president of the United States and therefore bound by strands of the tape of etiquette. The president is greatly interested in the work of the Red Cross. He is the organization's president, as Miss Boardman is one of its hardest workers and its guiding spirit.

There is one home in Washington with which there is connected a curious story. It is the Massachusetts avenue residence of Mrs. R. H. Townsend, who is known in Washington as Mrs. Scott-Townsend. She is the niece of "Tom" Scott, the Pennsylvania multi-millionaire, who died several years ago. Mrs. Townsend's only daughter, Matilda, generally has been pronounced the most beautiful of the young women of the capital city. Rumor connected the daughter "in marriage engagement possibilities" with half a dozen foreigners, all of them well within the titled circles, and one or two of them of the blood royal. The daughter showed her good sense and her rare discrimination by marrying an American.

Now, as for the story about the Townsend house, it should be said that it is of rather gawdiness interest. Mrs. Townsend, some years ago looked at the site of her present home, and decided to build. There was a small house on the grounds. The story is that a fortune teller informed Mrs. Townsend that if she built a new house and took up her residence therein she would be dead within a year. She therefore resolved to compromise. She built a magnificent new house, but in such a form that it encloses like an envelope the old house which stood on the building site.

The Association of American Architects has been occupying recently what is known as the Octagon house. It is the famous old Tayloe mansion. The Octagon house is one of the historic homes of the District of Columbia. The chances are that the spirit of patriotism will see that the structure is preserved for all time. When the British entered Washington Dolly Madison fled from the White House just before the Red Coats arrived to apply the torch. Mrs. Madison went to the Octagon house, which was the residence of the Taylor family. Suddenly she remembered that the Stuart portrait of George Washington had been left hanging on the wall of the White House. She ran back and cut the picture from its frame and escaped with it just as the British soldiers crossed the threshold.

On Eleventh street hill in Washington is the house known to the populace as Henderson castle. It is the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson, who have lived in Washington ever since Mr. Henderson was, years ago, a Republican senator from the state of Missouri. The Henderson house has every appearance of a castle. It is of brown stone, turreted, and it stands on a commanding hill. The Henderson home is the scene of constant hospitality, and the diplomats representing foreign governments in the capital are frequently dinner guests of the "castle" host and hostess.

Larz Anderson, a relative of Nicholas Longworth, lives on Massachusetts avenue in a huge house about which the "lecturer" on the big sight-seeing automobile calls out interesting information to the passengers eight or ten times a day, and the megaphonic tones of the information giver penetrate to every recess of the Anderson family mansion. The automobile barker tells his bride and groom passengers and other sightseers that "This is the Larz Anderson house; it has 120 living rooms and 60 bathrooms; it is truly a regal residence."

Only the initiated know how much of a romancer the lecturer is, but in very truth the Anderson residence is as large as an ordinary hotel. Mr. Anderson is forever looking out for novelties, and he has just obtained from the manufacturers an automobile nearly as large as the sightseeing affair which goes crunching by his home every day with the leather-lunged lecturer howling aloft.

Should Mr. Anderson or any of the members of his party become hungry on the long stretch of road between inns, all that would be necessary to do is to push a crank an inch and give a little tug, and out will come a cook stove, a supply of fuel, kettles and pans and a dining-room table. The food is kept in a refrigerator in another part of the machine, and another little tug brings to view spring chickens, ham and eggs, bread and butter, coffee and the rest.

As a matter of fact, Larz Anderson's automobile is nothing more or less than a traveling hotel, and at that it is a hotel which makes as fast a run on the road as is made by any of the automobiles which are guiltless of tavern attachments.

The residence of Gifford Pinchot is a mansion. Of course everybody knows that it is Mr. Pinchot who has made the great American fight to save the forests of the country, and it is he who has been one of the two chief figures in a controversy which led to a congressional investigation, and which in its first stage led to the separation of the government's chief forester from Uncle Sam's service.

The Pinchot residence has large rooms, magnificent staircases, a dining room which is almost a banquet hall, and a library which for size and for books would suit the service of a city. This home was not built by the forester; it is the property of his mother with whom he lives, for he is a bachelor. Mr. Pinchot makes the trees his closest companions, and apparently he loves them above all other society, although there is a large social element in his life. The former chief forester of the government gives dinner parties regularly at his residence and fine affairs they are, but it is known that he prefers the campfire banquet—whether it be served in the Dismal swamp of Virginia or in the mountains of Montana.

$3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS, FREE

RELIEVES URINARY AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, BACKACHE, STRAINING, SWELLING, ETC.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the swelling, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $25.00 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop up a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, R-256 Lusk Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power. It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

The Walkers.

James M. Beck, the famous corporation lawyer of New York, is a native of Philadelphia and to Philadelphia he often returns to see his old friends.

Mr. Beck, in a recent banquet in Philadelphia, defended corporations with an epigram.

"The trust buster and the Socialist may do what they please," he said, "but mankind will still be divided into two great classes—those who walk to get an appetite for their dinner, and those who walk to get a dinner for their appetite."

ECZEMA GONE, BOILS CURED

"My son was about three weeks old when I noticed a breaking-out on his cheeks, from which a watery substance oozed. A short time after, his arms, shoulders and breast broke out also, and in a few days became a solid scab. I became alarmed, and called our family physician, who at once pronounced the disease eczema. The little fellow was under his treatment for about three months. By the end of that time, he seemed no better. I became discouraged, and as I had read the advertisements of Cuticura Remedies and testimonials of a great many people who had used them with wonderful success, I dropped the doctor's treatment, and commenced the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a few days noticed a marked change. The eruption on his cheeks was almost healed, and his shoulders, arms and breast were decidedly better. When he was about seven months old all trace of the eczema was gone.

"During his teething period, his head and face were broken out in boils which I cured with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Surely he must have been a great sufferer. During the time of teething and from the time I dropped the doctor's treatment, I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, nothing else, and when two years old he was the picture of health. His complexion was soft and beautiful, and his head a mass of silky curls. I had been afraid that he would never be well, and I feel that I owe a great deal to the Cuticura Remedies." A clergyman not long ago received the following notice regarding a marriage that was to take place at the parish house. "This is to give you notice that I and Miss Jemima Arabella Brearly is comin' to your church on Saturday nex' to undergo the operation of matrimony at your hands. Please be prompt, as the cab is hired by the hour.

This office has received this last week a goodly number of new subscribers and one man in particular tells us that he has got through borrowing. If you are a borrower of this paper, don't you think it is an injustice to the man who is paying for it? He may be looking for it at this very moment. Make it a regular visitor to your home. The subscription price is an investment that will repay you well.

A. F. Curtis says that he is going to tear down the south side of the Howell house and replace it with cement blocks and put on it some kind of a fire proof roof. The south side of the house was so badly burned recently that he thinks it will not pay to repair it and so will replace it with a new structure. The north part can be saved. Mr. Curtis expects to commence work as soon as weather conditions will permit.—Republican.

Life saved at Death's Door

"I never felt so near my grave," writes W. R. Patterson of Wellington, Tex., as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 100 pounds, in spite of doctor's treatment for two years. My father, mother and two sisters died of consumption, and that I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 187 pounds and have been well and strong for years. Quick, safe, sure, its best remedy on earth for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup, and all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00 Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by F. A. Sigler, druggist.

The dates for the farmers roundup institute at Howell have been fixed for Friday and Saturday, February 17 and 18; N. P. Hull will be the director in charge. The local program and state speakers are being decided upon. Ralph Eastman, president of the association, has the matter in charge. Mrs. F. H. Lare is chairman of the woman's section which will be held Friday.

Livingston County is fortunate in Judge Montague's wise selection of J. E. Monks to fill the vacancy of the office of School Commissioner caused by the death of Wm. Grocinger. Erwin is a graduate of the State Normal School at Ypsilanti and has taught for several years, always giving thorough satisfaction. The last four years of his pedagogic labors were spent at Hadley, Lapeer County, and Sanduskey, Sanilac county, where he was Principal of the high schools. He resigned the position of staff correspondent for the Detroit News, with headquarters at Ionia, which position he resigned to accept the office he now holds. With his genial disposition he makes many friends and the qualities of close application and untiring energy which he possesses in a marked degree will assist in making him successful as School Commissioner.

A Good Lecture

Sylan S. Grosner of Washington D. C. student at Ann Arbor, gave a very interesting lecture last Friday evening at the M. E. church, on the rare question. Subject, "The White Man's Burden." His presentations of the subject showed he was deeply in earnest. The problem he says is a serious one and will be long in its solution. He thinks the government should take hold of it and do the work now being attempted by the churches and Brooker T. Washington, and says it is not only the problem of the south but of the nation. All went away well satisfied, feeling that more consideration should be given by us to a question so vital to our nation. The next number on the course will be given February 24th. Subject will be announced later.
