Get a Divorce Don't Stand For It

Thought you could get Better Goods, Better Service, by changing Clothiers, would you get a divorce from the other Clothier and give us a trial? We would be delighted to convince you that we are Headquarters for best things at a price worth while.

Men who desire the finest tailored, superior, clothes that they could wish to wear, for a price they can afford to pay, will profit in money and satisfaction by joining the ranks of the 200,000 patriotic dressers who every year employ us as their tailors.

From the moment we commenced business 33 seasons ago, faithful adherence to the progressive policy of improving the quality of our wares and workmanship without increasing the cost to consumers, has made us what we today enjoy the distinction of the Largest Tailors in the World of Good Made to Order Clothes.

COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPHS

HOHN CYLINDER AND DISC TYPES

and Hornless Machines. Be up-to-date, try a Columbia and you will have no other. A few of the many reasons why they are the best.

1. Because they have no horn to break up the tone.

2. Because the tone is very much softer and sweeter than any other.

3. Because they have no soft wax records to warp and crack.

4. Because we use soft steel points which produce a sweeter tone.

5. Because they have to change speed when changing records.

6. Because they are room and are unobtrusive.

7. Because the machine has longer as it runs only 80 revolutions per minute with a cylinder which is 4 1/2 inches in diameter.

8. Because they have with no greasy belt to get on your hands.

9. Because they are constructed as found in a better way than any other.

10. Because they are made in your home town and are sold at a low price.

Events of the Year

The alignment and calendar for 1912 are at hand and the former contains most interesting information and data.

In the first place the year 1912 is a leap year and New Year's falls on Monday.

There will be four eclipses, two of the moon and two of the sun, visible in Michigan.

On April 15 a total eclipse of the sun, both invisible here. On April 17 a central eclipse of the sun will occur, visible here from sunrise to 7 a. m. On September 26 a partial eclipse of the moon will occur, visible here about 5 a. m.

Spring will begin on March 21, summer on June 21, autumn on September 23, and winter on December 21.

The feast of the Epiphany falls on Saturday, January 6, and Ash Wednesday on February 21, or the first day of Lent. St. Patrick's day falls on Sunday, March 17, Palm Sunday March 25, Good Friday on April 6, and Easter Sunday on April 7. Ascension day will be Thursday, May 16, and Pentecost Sunday May 26, and Trinity Sunday June 2.

On Thursday February 29, Leap Year day, those persons who were born on the 29th day of the second month will have an opportunity to celebrate their birthday for the first time in four years.

Saints' days, January 27, will be enrollment day, and Monday, April 1, the spring election will take place. This is the earliest possible for the spring election. The general election will take place on Tuesday November 5.

Lincoln's birthday will fall on Monday, February 12, and Washington's day on Wednesday, February 14, while Friday February 2, will be groundhog day, and Thursday, February 23, Washington's birthday.

Memorial day will come on Thursday, May 30. The nation will celebrate the Fourth of July on Friday, July 4, and Emancipation day on Thursday, August 1. Monday September 3, will be Labor day.

Columbus day will fall on Saturday, October 12, and Thanksgiving day on Thursday, November 22. Christmas will come on Wednesday, December 25.

During the year Friday, the 13, will occur twice, in September and December.

Notice

The members of the Postmaster League of Livingston county will hold their annual meeting in Hamburg at Kirby's hall on Tuesday Jan. 16 at 7 o'clock p. m. for the election of officers and the transaction of all business that may come before said meeting. Every postmaster in Livingston county is a member of this league and should make it a point to attend.

News, Not Stush.

The following sensible and truthful article which appeared in a recent issue of the Pinckney Dispatch is well worth reading.

How long the average citizen would escape the indignation if he filled the columns of his paper each week with the "rich, rare and racy" doings of some of his fellow citizens? Scarcely a week passes without some individual approaching the editor and begging that this or that little episode be kept out of the paper. A stigma of a scandalous nature which would be good for a column writes-up on a city daily are passed up by the country editor. Why? Possibly it is because he is acquainted with practically every man, woman and child in his community, and knows what the effect would be on some gray-haired father or mother, some faithful husband or wife or some innocent child. To publish an item of this sort is to set fire to an explosive. No earthly power can foresee the results. It benefits none, certainly not the guilty party or the newspaper. The paper should be for the uplift of public morals and the editor in most cases is like a father confessor. No day subscriber, because you do not have every bit of local wrong doing dished up for your delectation each issue, do not imagine that the editor does not know what is going on in the city's "underworld." He does, but he has too much manhood about him to keep up to his readers a matter which is sure to poison the mind and serve no good purpose.

It is time to get

The Centauron for $1.75.

The publishers of The Youth's Companion announce that they will accept yearly subscriptions at $1.75 up to the end of March. The new rate of $2.00 will go into effect promptly on April 1. The large number whose subscriptions run over into the early weeks of the year, as well as those who were unable to send in new subscriptions before January 1, will have this opportunity to get The Youth's Companion for another two weeks at the old price. If you had no other periodical reading for your family, The Youth's Companion would be sufficient for your enjoyment by every one, young and old, sufficient to keep you posted on the important news and events of the day; sufficient to give you a mind richly stored with useful knowledge. The new departments have become indispensable features of the paper. The page devoted to the interests of the boys in school and college always has an article of expert advice on athletics by some one who speaks with authority, whether it is football, baseball, skating, bicycling or other vigorous pastime. The page for girls suggests useful occupations at home and profitable occupations in the community, without forgetting that girls like to be ornamental as well as useful. And there is the family page, which in course of a year fills the place of a domestic encyclopaedia.

Subscribe now—to-day—while the Companion may yet be had for $1.75.

A newspaper subscriber once received a dun through the post-office and it made him mad. He went to the editor about it, and the editor showed him a few duns of his own—one for paper and one for type, one for fuel and several others. "Now" said the editor, "I didn't get mad when these came because I knew all I had to do was to ask several reliable gentlemen like you to come in and help me out, and then I could settle them all." When the subscriber saw how it was he was selected, he paid up and received for another year.—Ex.

Tuberculosis Fighters Spend Millions

Over $14,500,000 Spent in 1911—66.6 per cent Public Money—10,000,000 Appropriated for 1912—New York Leads

Money to the amount of $14,500,000 was spent in the anti-tuberculosis work during the year 1911, according to the third annual statement expenditures in the war against consumption issued by The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis to-day. The statement is based largely on reports received from anti-tuberculosis agencies in all parts of the United States, where actual reports were not available, the figures were necessarily estimated.

By far the largest item of expenses was that for treatment in sanatoria and hospitals, and for the erection of institutions of this kind, over $11,800,000 being spent for this purpose alone. Dispenditures for the examination and treatment of tuberculosis spent $590,000. The remaining $1,300,000 was spent for treatment in open air schools, prisons, and hospitals for the insane, and also for the work of state and local boards of health against tuberculosis.

Compared with the expenditures in 1910, those of the past year are practically the same in the aggregate, but they are almost double those of 1909. The National Association points out, however, what it considers more significant than the aggregate expenditures, namely, that the percentage of money spent from public funds in 1911 than ever before, being 66.2 per cent of the total. In 1909 only 53.5 per cent of the total expenditures was from public funds, and in 1910 it had increased to 62.6 per cent. In 1911, over $9,600,000 of the $14,500,000 spent was from federal, state, municipal, or country funds. Since the chief work of the anti-tuberculosis associations is to urge the public authorities to provide for tuberculosis patients, and thus to assume the responsibility for stamping out this disease, the increased percentage of public money is regarded as a very favorable sign of progress.

Appropriations of over $10,000,000 for tuberculosis work in 1912 have already been made by state legislatures and municipal and county bodies. Of this sum about 4,700,000 is from state appropriations, and about 5,700,000 for county and municipal purposes. In addition to these sums, the federal government spends about 1,000,000 every year, supporting its several special tuberculosis sanatoria.

New York State which has led the country in its anti-tuberculosis expenditures for the past two years, still maintains its lead, with a total of $3,550,000 spent. Pennsylvania and Massachusetts are the second and third states, as in 1910.

CIMME ME COWHIDE BOOTS.
How oft I long for the cowhide boots
What I wore in the long ago!
They kept me feet so bully warm
When I was wading snow

When I went fishing 'long the rap
To catch a mess of trout
I'd drop them fish down me booties
You bet they couldn't get out!

A rattler sprung out of the brush
An' ketcht me foot so quick,
But he jist broke his teeth all off,
Me ole boot was so thick.

One day I got treed by a b'ar,
I jist pulled off me boot
An' let 'im have it in the jaw,
Gee crippens, didn't he scoot!

Sometimes I slept in them there boots,
They jist stuck on so tight
You couldn't 'a pulled 'em with a mule
If he had pulled all night

When they got stiffer than a board
I'd use sheep's tallow oil
That was the stuff fur greasin' boots
An' bully fur a boll!

Boots is a handy thing to hev
Beside your bed at night,
Fur killin' burglars an' tomcats
They're simply 'out o' sight!

When me ole woman auster snore
I'd start to sass at night
I'd throw me ole boot at her,
An' she would stop up tight!

My 'feather' partner's head was full,
He'd been down with fever
I didn't know 'em no more
When I wore cowhide boots.

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS

Q. In raising guineas, which generally rears more, the guinea hen or the chicken hen? A. Guinea hens are careless with their broods, expose them to the weather and lead them where animals and birds of prey find them an easy mark. They thus do not rear so high a percentage as the hen, but their chicks are better.

Q. When eggs are set in incubators and under hens, which hatches the highest percentage? A. The hen ordinarily gives 20 per cent more chicks, with 25 per cent less mortality.

Q. When is artificial incubation first mentioned and by whom? A. By Aristotle, tutor of Alexander the Great, 384-322 B. C.

Q. Does the female pigeon do all the hatching? A. No. The cock generally sits on the eggs from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., and the hen then takes her turn to 10 a. m. the next morning.

Q. Do you really think it is necessary to test eggs out of incubators? A. Yes. The main reason is that bacteria in eggs with dead germs or rots kill or weaken the germs in good eggs. The removal of infertile and bad eggs also gives room for turning and saves heat.

Q. Which puts more fat on a turkey, old or new corn? A. Old corn. New corn should not be fed to turkeys. It is indigestible and is the cause of many dying in the fall from diarrhea.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.
William Harris of Phillipsburg, Pa., made a mash for his fowls recently and moistened it with salt water from the ice cream freezer. They all quickly went to chicken heaven by the salt water route.

To make those hens lay in winter you must not only feed them well, but keep their blood in circulation. This cannot be accomplished with stimulants, but by exercise—exercise on an open front scratch floor.

True economy does not consist in feeding screenings and damaged grains. Wholesome food to meet the immediate needs of the system and enough over for egg production and stored up energy is the rational rule.

When it comes down to brass tacks the poultry industry of this country depends on the fellow who is producing the meat and eggs. But to hear some show sports hurrah for them selves you would think the crank that breeds for feathers and combs is the sine qua non.

There was a day when the little potatoes were boiled with fresh bones and other butcher scraps, mixed with bran and cornmeal and fed to the hens. It was a savory mess, and the Biddies went for it like hot cakes. Failure of the potato crop and the high cost of living make humans scramble to get these little taters for themselves.

Hens will often refuse to eat certain grains you throw down simply because they like something better, but what they like should not always be fed, because it may not be good for them. They eat corn in preference to other grains, but it makes them too fat, and much of it is unhealthy. So when your Biddies rebel against their food you will just starve them into eating what you consider is best for them.

When the illustration for the White Rock cock bird for the new Standard was sent to the printer by the artist—that is, he said he sent it—some one painted an annex to his tail. At least that's what the artist says. And what a hotch! All the White Rock breeders seemed to kick at once. The Sherlock Holmeses have ever since been trying to "ketch" that nigger in the behcoop and have failed. Maybe the rooster had a fareback.

Rock experts, who are famous the country over for their production of the finest specimens of exhibition Banded Rocks, are coming out in radical articles in the chief poultry journals for the single mating system for this breed. Those popularity they have spoiled by their unnatural double mating method. Why? Mainly because buyers have turned to fowls that may be bred naturally with less room, without a brainstorm, and which throw a large proportion of good quality, instead of a majority of culls as per the double mating system.

HOWELL LIQUOR CLUB FIGHT TAKEN TO GOV. OSBORN

SEVERAL CITIZENS DECLARE PROSECUTOR IS NOT ENFORCING LOCAL OPTION LAWS

Trouble Results from Raiding of Locker Society Over Officials' Heads

After Warm Discussion Another Attorney is Chosen to Aid Prosecution

Lansing, Mich., Jan 4. — In the execution of his duties, Governor Howell found it necessary to call upon the citizens of Livingston county, who is a democrat, and Seth Robert, lumberman and well-known republican politician at Howell...

The raid was made over the heads of the prosecuting attorney, and Sheriff William Stoddard, also a democrat. The raiders aver that the sheriff was in the club drinking a bottle of beer when it was raided...

Livingston County adopted local option by 1,252 majority in a total vote of about 5,000. Ed Scully and Louis Brayton started a soft drink emporium. Then a few months ago the Howell Business Men's Association came over to Lansing to see what were the privileges...

The club was organized and rooms engaged over the soft drink shop. Mr. Reed, speaking for the rest of the committee, said that drunks in public places became so numerous as to be disgraceful...

The joke on John Lockwood, who is president of the club, according to Mr. Reed is that he not only took the detective around and introduced him, but proposed him for membership. To avoid the raid tipped off, they went to Fowlerville and secured a search warrant from Squire Horton...

Mr. Reed said that the prosecutor did not seem to be sympathetic with the club as far as the law as far as the club was concerned. They made no other allegations, but they asked that the governor direct the prosecutor to engage Democratic State Chairman Shields, who is one of Howell's best known lawyers, to assist in the prosecution of Scully and Brayton and put the club out of business.

The governor and Tiny Marsh, attorney for the State Anti-Saloon league, had written to him about the case and Mr. Marsh explained that no reflection was meant on prosecutor Robb by what the boys were doing.

The prosecutor got the floor and told the governor the committee is composed of republicans and that there is a personal animosity in the case. When he heard from the attorney general's department that social clubs had certain privileges in the matter of selling drinks he told the Howell club's promoters that if they obeyed the law it would be none of his business, but if they violated the law he would prosecute.

"Certain persons seem to be much concerned about conditions in Howell when here in Lansing three such clubs are running undisturbed. It is not surprising, when you know the crime was committed in Howell, that Mr. Reed was one who signed a petition to be lenient in prosecuting the criminal, as did other very solicitous about conditions in Howell. Mr. Reed denied he signed such a petition and came back by saying he heard the prosecutor had been conferring with the club managers since their arrest.

"Any man who says so tells a falsehood," shouted the prosecutor. The prosecutor went on to say that he does not want the democratic state chairman to assist him. "And I'll tell you why. He's a friend of Scully, one of the men under arrest. He and Scully go fishing together. Rupert wants him appointed, and that's a reason I don't. I know all here want Shields appointed, and they are not friends of mine."

Gov. Osborne: "Do I understand, then, that you feel that they are urging Mr. Shields with the idea of embarrassing you?" Prosecutor Robb: "That's it." The governor asked the committee to suggest some other lawyer. W. P. Van Winkle was suggested. He was agreeable to both the committee and the prosecutor. Mr. Van Winkle in addition to being a lawyer is a bank president and a democrat. The Governor showed a telegram which he had received during the afternoon signed S. H. Munnell, president, and Mrs. Joseph S. Brown secretary. It reads: "Whereas, our county has been disgraced by the open and continued violation of the local option law; and whereas, the present executive force of this county seems inadequate to the enforcement of the law; therefore the Howell Farmers' club in session assembled earnestly requests Gov. Osborne to give to the matter careful and earnest consideration and give us such assistance as shall enable us to maintain the dignity of the law."

Both the governor and attorney general commended the Howell committee for their spirit in seeing that the laws are enforced.—Detroit News.

Why Trees Are Tagged. If the observant foreigner abroad observes an expert setting out trees in a public square he will discover that attached to a leaf on one side of each tree there will be a bit of white tape. It is at once apparent that the marking is in no sense distinguishing. But as the gardener goes about setting the trees in the holes prepared for them the traveler will observe that each tag of white is brought around to face the east. Upon inquiry the foreigner will be told that unless the tree, say a palmetto uprooted from the nursery, had the same eastern exposure of the same part in transplanting it would fail to take root and flourish.—Exchange.

THE GOOD AND THE BAD. One ought to balance the good with the bad and also the length of time a man has lived to form a true estimate of his character. Polybius, the Greek historian, says, "There is no reason why we should not sometimes blame and sometimes commend the same person, for, as none is always right, neither is it probable that he should be always wrong."

Frightful Polar Winds blow with terrific force at the far north. They have with the skin of a man, such or sore chapped lips, that need a salve to soothe and protect. It makes a great difference in the soft and warm winds, but in the cold, biting winds, a salve is a necessity. Brown's Drug Store.

A Mystery In A Freight Car By ADOLPH SNYDER Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I am a brakeman on a freight train. One day during the winter season, when we had come to a stop, I was walking alongside the train and saw a thin smoke coming out from under one of the cars. Thinking it to come from a hot box, I stooped to examine the truck, but the running gear was as cool as a cucumber. Then, looking up, I noticed a small tin pipe protruding from the bottom of the car, through which smoke was coming in little puffs.

"Well, I'll be jinged!" I said to myself. "Here's a freight car, sealed with a lead that hasn't been opened since it started three days ago, and a steam engine in it. All I do my right hand, I don't know what the brake wheel is doing, I was sitting a spell ago."

I stooped a trifle lower and craned my neck in a little further in order to get a better view. There was the pipe, evidently a part of a leader from a gutter belonging to the roof of a house. It extended a few inches downward, then turned with an elbow, the second part extending about a foot rearward. As I looked the puffs continued as regular as those coming from a locomotive making a steady gait.

What to do I didn't know. I was afraid to notify the conductor for fear I'd find out that I'd had a stroke and saw things that didn't exist. Some thing occurred just then that made me think I'd surely gone daff. I heard a girl's giggle. There wasn't any connection between a steam engine and a girl shut up in a box car, especially a sealed box car, but there was a good deal to excite curiosity. I stopped worrying about myself and began to wonder what there was inside that car. I stood off, looked at it and walked all around it. A freight train is made up of different kinds of cars, and this car was especially different from the others.

I looked as though it might have been a caboose turned into a box. The thing most noticeable about it was a door at one end. Why I hadn't noticed this before I don't know unless it was because the end was only about two feet from the end of another car. I saw that there was or had been a lock on the door. There wasn't any knob, but a nail had been put through the screw hole of the steel piece on which the knob had been fixed. I climbed up on the coupling and tried to turn the nail to open the door. I didn't succeed. I listened, but everything was still. But I didn't forget that giggle, and pretty soon I knocked. In a few moments I heard whispers within. Then all of a sudden the door was pulled open, and there stood a boy and a girl.

Besides these, I got a view of the car. There was a carpet on it, the worse for wear; in one corner was a mattress with bedclothing; in the center was a pine table, and at one side was a cook stove. And I noticed that the stovepipe was run down instead of up or horizontal and passed through a hole in the floor. "Please don't give us away," said the girl, going for me with a pair of blue eyes not many could resist. "You'd better let me come in," I answered. "If the conductor or any of the train hands should come along there'd be no need of giving you away."

I went inside and shut the door after me. Then I asked, "Will you be good enough to tell me what this means?" "We're a bride and groom," said the young fellow, who couldn't have been over seventeen years old. "On our wedding trip," the girl added. "A bride and groom on your wedding trip!" I exclaimed. "How did you get in here?" "I'll tell you all about it," said the boy. "We're not only on our wedding trip, but we're a runaway couple."

"Are you sure you're not a pair of escape lunatics?" The girl laughed; the fellow looked kind of queer and talked on. "We were engaged, but neither her dad nor mine would let us get married till we were older. I had a clerkship in a railroad freight house, and I managed to get hold of this car, and one night when you men were making up this train I give the engineer a signal to hook up against it, and the next time he backed up against a car this was in the train. I'd fixed the door and put in the bridal furniture."

HOWELL LIQUOR CLUB FIGHT TAKEN TO GOV. OSBORN

SEVERAL CITIZENS DECLARE PROSECUTOR IS NOT ENFORCING LOCAL OPTION LAWS

Trouble Results from Raiding of Locker Society Over Officials' Heads

After Warm Discussion Another Attorney is Chosen to Aid Prosecution

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 4.—In the executive session this morning, Governor Osborn heard it necessary to call Prosecuting Attorney William Robb, of Livingston county, who is a democrat, and Seth Robert, lumberman and well-known republican politician at Howell that they were showing a degree of belligerency towards each other. Loud and angry noises, not permissible in such a place were heard. The subject of the meeting was the raid on the Howell business men's social club last Saturday afternoon, it being a business mens club in name only, the prime object for which I exists, according to the raiders being so members can get beer and whisky to drink daily in local option territory.

The raid was made over the heads of the prosecuting attorney, and Sheriff William Stoddard, also a democrat. The raiders aver that the sheriff was in the club drinking a bottle of beer when it was raided. R. C. Reed told in the executive office that he personally got the sheriff's partly filled beer bottle slipped in his pocket and now has it at home in his safe to be used as evidence against the sheriff. Mr. Reed is a stock breeder and president of the State Live Stock association. He was one of the raiders. It became known in the governor's office that charges may be made against the sheriff and submitted to the governor. Mr. Robert was one of the delegation of Howell citizens who came here this afternoon with a complaint about liquor violations in Livingston county. The others beside Mr. Reed were the mayor, H. L. Williams, A. L. Smith, cashier of the State Savings Bank; V. E. Hill, a merchant and Freeman V. Johnson. Prosecutor Robb appeared at the meeting. The governor rounded off their attack in the executive parlors, and Attorney-General Kahn was called in and this is what was recited and what happened.

Livingston County adopted local option by 1252 majority in a total vote of about 5,000. Ed Scully and Leslie Brayton started a soft drink emporium. Then a few months ago the Howell Business Men's Association came over to Lansing to see what were the privileges, if any, for a club to organize and sell liquor to members only. There seems to be a difference of opinion as to the advice they got.

The club was organized and rooms engaged over the soft drink shop. Mr. Reed, speaking for the rest of the committee, said that drinks in public places became so numerous as to be disgraceful, and the prosecutor or sheriff did not proceed against the club. The anti saloon people were inclined to believe that the club had nothing to fear from either of these officials, so they hired a private detective, who posed as a buyer of hickory bolts; he secured membership in the club and got the needed evidence.

The joke on John Lockwood, who is president of the club, according to Mr. Reed is that he not only took the detective around and introduced him, but proposed him for membership. To avoid the raid tipped off, they went to Fowlerville and secured a search warrant from Squire Horton; then, when everything was ready, a deputy sheriff was called in and without any explanations he was given the warrant and told to lead the way. About half a dozen saloon loes were at his back. So quietly was it done that the deputy wasn't given a chance to notify his superior officer, the sheriff. In the club a dray load of beer, some whiskey and a hot machine were seized. Thirty lockers were in the room. The raiders have the names of 300 said to be members of the club.

Mr. Reed said that the prosecutor didn't seem to be in sympathy with strict enforcement of the law as far as the club was concerned. They made no other allegations, but they asked that the governor direct the prosecutor to engage Democratic State Chairman Shields, who is one of Howell's best known lawyers, to assist in the prosecution of Scully and Brayton and put the club out of business.

A Mystery In A Freight Car

By ADOLPH SNYDER

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I am a brakeman on a freight train. One day during the winter season when we had come to a stop, I was walking alongside the train and saw a thin smoke coming out from under one of the cars. Thinking it to come from a hot box, I stooped to examine the truck, but the running gear was as cool as a cucumber. Then, looking up, I noticed a small tin pipe protruding from the bottom of the car, through which smoke was coming in little puffs.

"Well, I'll be jinged," I said to myself. "Here's a freight car, loaded with coal, that hasn't been opened since it started these days ago, and a steam engine in it, and yet the smoke comes out from the bottom of the car. It's getting a spell ago."

I stepped a rifle lower and craned my neck in a little further in order to get a better view. There was the pipe, evidently a part of a leader from a gutter belonging to the roof of a house. It extended a few inches downward, then turned with an elbow, the second part extending about a foot rearward. As I looked the puffs continued as regular as those coming from a locomotive making a steady gait.

What to do I didn't know. I was afraid to notify the conductor for fear I'd find out that I'd had a stroke and saw things that didn't exist. Something occurred just then that made me think I'd surely gone daff. I heard a girl's giggle.

There wasn't any connection between a steam engine and a girl shut up in a box car, especially a sealed box car, but there was a good deal to excite curiosity. I stopped worrying about myself and began to wonder what there was inside that car. I stood off, looked at it and walked all around it. A freight train is made up of different kinds of cars, and this car was especially different from the others. It looked as though it might have been a caboose turned into a box. The thing most noticeable about it was a door at one end. Why I hadn't noticed this before I don't know unless it was because the end was only about two feet from the end of another car.

I saw that there was or had been a lock on the door. There wasn't any knob, but a nail had been put through the screw hole of the steel piece on which the knob had been fixed. I climbed up on the coupling and tried to turn the nail to open the door. I didn't succeed. I listened, but everything was still. But I didn't forget that giggle, and pretty soon I knocked. In a few moments I heard whispers within. Then all of a sudden the door was pulled open, and there stood a boy and a girl.

Besides these, I got a view of the car. There was a carpet on it, the worse for wear; in one corner was a mattress with bedclothing; in the center was a pine table, and at one side was a cook stove. And I noticed that the stovepipe was run down instead of up or horizontal and passed through a hole in the floor.

"Please don't give us away," said the girl, going for me with a pair of blue eyes not many could resist.

"You'd better let me come in," I answered. "If the conductor or any of the train hands should come along there'd be no need of giving you away." I went inside and shut the door after me. Then I asked, "Will you be good enough to tell me what this means?"

"We're a bride and groom," said the young fellow, who couldn't have been over seventeen years old.

"On our wedding trip," the girl added.

"A bride and groom on your wedding trip?" I exclaimed. "How did you get in here?"

"I'll tell you all about it," said the boy. "We're not only on our wedding trip, but we're a runaway couple."

"Are you sure you're not a pair of escaped lunatics?"

The girl laughed; the fellow looked kind of queer and talked on.

"We were engaged, but neither her dad nor mine would let us get married till we were older. I had a clerkship in a railroad freight house, and I managed to get hold of this car, and one night when you men were making up this train I gave the engineer a signal to hook up against it, and the next time he backed up against a car this was in the train. I'd fixed the door and put in the bridal furniture."

"The bridal furniture?" I said, looking around. "So this is a bridal chamber, is it?"

"Well, it's all we got," he answered. "What have you had to eat?" I asked.

"Bread, bacon, eggs and a few other things. There's our stove. We got a good enough draft when the train's moving."

"And when it isn't moving you fan the fire?"

"Just so."

Hearing some one coming, I put my finger to my lips, and when the sound had passed I went out and shut the door. That was the most original wedding trip I ever saw or heard of, and I wouldn't have given the children away for a farm. I couldn't make up my mind whether they were really on a honeymoon journey or whether they were married, as children do.

When we got to the end of the run the train disappeared, and I never found out what had become of them.

THE GOOD AND THE BAD.

One ought to balance the good with the bad and also the length of time a man has lived to form a true estimate of his character. Polybius, the Greek historian, says, "There is no reason why we should not sometimes blame and sometimes commend the same person, for, as none is always right, neither is it probable that he should be always wrong."

Frightful Polar Winds

blow with terrific force at the far north and play havoc with the skin. The nose, lips, ears, hands and feet, and all the exposed parts, become stiff and numb. It makes the eyes and the face, and the feet, feel as though they were being frozen. It is a most distressing trouble. There is no need of suffering.
