ESTABLISH LIBRARY

School Districts Can Secure Money From the County

School districts, which have not already done so are urged by the Department of Public Instruction to consider the establishment of a library at the annual school meeting to be held Monday July 8. A majority vote of the electors present will carry the proposition which does not cost the district one cent of money. Establishment of a library merely means that the school district will receive its share of the library fund which is made up of the penal fines paid to the county.

As soon as a school district votes to establish a library, the township board must give to the district its share of books in the township library and of library money on hand. Thereafter the district will receive its share of library appointment, this being based upon the number of children on the census roll. A well selected library is recognized by present day educators as the most valuable school equipment possible.

Enroll at Once

Voters Must Enroll Before June 27 to Vote at August Primaries

The state law requires that all voters must enroll their names this year in order to be eligible to vote at the general primary election to be held this fall for the nomination of state and county officers and to voice their preference for United States senator. The time limit for such enrollment is June 27, on or before which date application for enrollment should be made to the township clerk. The advent of the primary election system makes it a duty incumbent on every good citizen to avail himself of the elective franchise at the primary, as well as at the general election, and all who fail to enroll and thus qualify themselves for the discharge of that duty are falling short of their moral obligation as citizens of the commonwealth. A large proportion of country electors were enrolled at the time of the annual spring election, but if you are not among this number you should not neglect to enroll before the legal time limit has expired.

Foss-Carpenter

Married at St. Jacob's church in Lennox, Wednesday, June 19, at 1:30 p.m. Miss Lola Foss of Lennox to Mr. Fred Carpenter of Pettyville. After the ceremony a reception was given in their honor at the home of the bride's parents after which they left for a short wedding trip. They will be at home in Lennox after July 1. Mr. Carpenter is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Carpenter of Pettyville and is well known in this vicinity, and the Dispatch in behalf of his many friends extend congratulations.

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Lightnut, an American with an affected English accent, receives a present from a friend in China. The present turns out to be a pair of pajamas. Lightnut is suspicious of the pajamas, and late at night gets up for a smoke. His servant, Jenkins, comes in and, failing to recognize Lightnut, attempts to put him out. Thinking his master is crazy, Lightnut changes his clothes, gets into his robe, and goes to bed. When he reappears Jenkins falls on his neck with a yell of joy, confirming Lightnut's belief that he is crazy. Jenkins tells Lightnut of the encounter and he has a hideous Chinese dream, regressing in pajamas. In a message from his friend, Jack Billings, Lightnut is asked to put up "the kid" for the night on his way home from college. Later Lightnut finds a beautiful girl in his pajamas. He asks her name, and she says it's Francis and puzzles him with a story of her love for her sister's room-mate, Frances. Next morning the girl is missing. Lightnut hurries to the boat to see her off. He is accosted by a husky college boy, who calls him "Dicky," but he does not see the girl. Jack Billings calls to spend the night with Lightnut. They discover priceless rubies hidden in the buttons of the pajamas. Billings dons the pajamas and retires. Lightnut later discovers in his apartment a beefy person in uniform who wears and wears and wears. Jenkins comes to the rescue and declares the intruder to be a criminal called "Foxy Grandpa." The intruder declares he is Lightnut's guest and appeals to the law. In the meantime Lightnut is astonished to find Billings gone, and more astonished when he gets a message from the latter, demanding his clothes. Lightnut, bound for Tarrytown, Billings' home, discovers "Foxy Grandpa" still wears the pajamas. Lightnut speaks to her and alludes to the night before. She declares indignantly that Lightnut never saw her in black pajamas. At Tarrytown Frances is seen again, this time in the pajamas. Professor Dooneberry is called in to interpret the hieroglyphics. He raves over what he calls the lost art of Si-Ling-Chi. The writing declares that a person wears the pajamas will take on the semblance of the previous wearer. The professor borrows the pajamas for experiment. "Billings" dressed in pajamas is found in the professor's room and is taken home in a sedan chair with Francis and a woman. Lightnut calls "the trump."

CHAPTER XX. (Continued.)

But her claws raked on: "I tell you you just can't be familiar with grooms and hall-follow-well-met with footmen without moralizing them—and that's what Francis does." She jerked this out viciously, and while I gasped, went on: "You know very well, Mr. Lightnut, if you play cards and drink and carouse with your men-servants until two or three o'clock in the morning, you can't reasonably look for respect from them." She breathed heavily. "The trouble is, Francis has no self-respect—no pride!"

"By Jove, if I were you, Miss—" Dash me if I hadn't forgotten her name! "If you feel that way, I don't see why the de—H'm! I mean why do you stay on here and—sacrifice yourself?" I drawled this in the most devilish sarcastic way: "I'd pack my jolly trunk and get as far away as I could."

I added earnestly—coaxingly: "And stay away, you know!"

And I took a deep breath, for I expected to see her witt or go straight up in the air. I knew it was a toss-up for either.

Not she! She just twisted a sour smile at me.

"Ummh!" she grunted. "Perhaps you don't know that Francis has suggested that to me several times—frankly and rudely—when I have complained. That may surprise you."

"Dare say you've put up with Francis though for Jack's sake!" I let her have it coldly, deliberately. "Brother Jack has been a sort of compensation—that's it, eh?"

And I shot her a fox yink!

That is, I almost did—pulled up, though, just on the brink. By Jove, gave me cold shivers for an instant, thinking how I might have compromised myself, you know. Besides, I could spare her that—had rubbed it in so devilish raw, anyhow. That is, you would have thought so; for that sort of fibbing said to a normal Yankee girl would have stirred her pride or unchained the jolly Lightnings from her eyes, you know! ?

But indeed, if this impudent freak didn't suddenly nod with a sort of chokey snuffle and reach out her hand, for mine.

"How you do understand!" she crooned unblushingly, and she leaked a big cold tear down upon my hand and let another splash my cuff—and Jenkins hadn't come with my things yet, ha-ha-ha! "I do try to be patient about Francis for Jack's sake—he asked me to; and I do try not to mind the way things are run, but oh, Mr. Lightnut, what this place needs is a head!" She almost squeezed my hand, and blinked damply at me out of her pasty face. "And then," she snuffed, "I do so want to make a home for my father and my brothers. They have never known what it was to have a home—think about it!"

"See here!" I said, fixing my monocle sternly and folding my arms—for I had not been my hand, under protest of being part. "You don't mean to say that Jack would ever ask me to take charge here!"

Rather plain and direct, that, don't you think? Sort of heavy broadsword stroke, you know. But she took it full and clean—never winced or turned a hair. Just looked thoughtfully.

"Yes," she said slowly. "Jacky says it'll have to come to that some day—some arrangement. Neither of us ever want to marry."

"Oh!"

And my monocle dropped!

CHAPTER XXI.

A Message and a Warning.

"It's all right, miss," Wilkes reported; "at least, I hope so. Perkins is with him—we've been trying to persuade him to have a bath and it's a Chinese dream in pajamas. The intruder declares he is Lightnut's guest and appeals to the law. In the meantime Lightnut is astonished to find Billings gone, and more astonished when he gets a message from the latter, demanding his clothes. Lightnut, bound for Tarrytown, Billings' home, discovers "Foxy Grandpa" still wears the pajamas. Lightnut speaks to her and alludes to the night before. She declares indignantly that Lightnut never saw her in black pajamas. At Tarrytown Frances is seen again, this time in the pajamas. Professor Dooneberry is called in to interpret the hieroglyphics. He raves over what he calls the lost art of Si-Ling-Chi. The writing declares that a person wears the pajamas will take on the semblance of the previous wearer. The professor borrows the pajamas for experiment. "Billings" dressed in pajamas is found in the professor's room and is taken home in a sedan chair with Francis and a woman. Lightnut calls "the trump."

Lightnut, in his pajamas, goes to bed. When he reappears Jenkins falls on his neck with a yell of joy, confirming Lightnut's belief that he is crazy. Jenkins tells Lightnut of the encounter and he has a hideous Chinese dream, regressing in pajamas. In a message from his friend, Jack Billings, Lightnut is asked to put up "the kid" for the night on his way home from college. Later Lightnut finds a beautiful girl in his pajamas. He asks her name, and she says it's Francis and puzzles him with a story of her love for her sister's room-mate, Frances. Next morning the girl is missing. Lightnut hurries to the boat to see her off. He is accosted by a husky college boy, who calls him "Dicky," but he does not see the girl. Jack Billings calls to spend the night with Lightnut. They discover priceless rubies hidden in the buttons of the pajamas. Billings dons the pajamas and retires. Lightnut later discovers in his apartment a beefy person in uniform who wears and wears and wears. Jenkins comes to the rescue and declares the intruder to be a criminal called "Foxy Grandpa." The intruder declares he is Lightnut's guest and appeals to the law. In the meantime Lightnut is astonished to find Billings gone, and more astonished when he gets a message from the latter, demanding his clothes. Lightnut, bound for Tarrytown, Billings' home, discovers "Foxy Grandpa" still wears the pajamas. Lightnut speaks to her and alludes to the night before. ## The New Manager

By Mary Barrett Howard

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Mrs. Amos Rood was bustling happily about her neat kitchen, her pleasant face even more beaming than usual.

"Amos is sixty years old today," she explained to the milkman from whom she bought a half-pint of cream besides the customary pint of milk, "an' I'm goin' to get an extra nice dinner."

The 12 o'clock whistle had sounded. The peach meringue pie which was to be the crowning touch of the feast had been brought from the pantry and set upon a side table; the roast chicken was done to a turn; the tomato bisque was ready to pour into the tureen, and every housewife knows tomato bisque will curdle if allowed to stand.

"I wish Amos would come," the little woman fluttered. "That cream o' tomato won't be fit to eat."

Glancing uneasily out of the window she started at sight of a curiously familiar, yet unfamiliar figure coming slowly up the street. Sure that bowed, bent old man could not be Amos! He had never looked like that, even when his rheumatism was at its worst. But the next instant she had flung open the door and was running down the garden walk.

"Oh, what is it—what ails you, Amos?" she cried, putting her arms about him to help him up the steps.

"Don't be scared, Lucy—I ain't sick," the man said, with a brave attempt at a reassuring smile.

But once under the shelter of his own roof, safe from prying or pitying neighborly eyes, Amos Rood broke down altogether. Sinking into a chair he dropped his head upon the little table, so gayly decked in honor of the day with tea-roses and heliotrope from the garden beds, and Mrs. Rood's cherished "wedding" china, and his big, shrunken frame shook with a man's painful, tearless sobs.

Found the Solitude He Craved.

His wife silently unclasped his clenched fingers from a letter which bore the seal of a great corporation, and as she swiftly scanned the few curt lines it contained she wailed aloud:

"O Amos, it must be a mistake! The company wouldn't take your pension from you just because you are able to earn a little something extra, now and then!"

"It's the new manager, Lucy," Amos Rood responded dully. "He's trying to cut expenses, and he says it's no part of the company's policy to pension able-bodied men."

"Able-bodied!" the little woman echoed, with a hysterical laugh. "I guess I know what you suffer, Amos, even on your best days. But don't you worry, dear—well, get along. We're to write that new manager a letter that will make him ashamed of himself."

"It wouldn't do a bit of good, Lucy," Amos said, shaking his head. "He says there's no proof I can earn a good living if I'm a mind to—but I'm afraid I can't. I'm pretty good at figures, and when the merchants here get their accounts, settled up, they're apt to send for me to straighten them out, but it's hard work, and if I should keep it up day in and day out, I might as well be foolish to snap up those chances to add a little to our income. And yet," he added with a sigh, "that pension wasn't a very big one for two people to live on."

"I should say it wasn't!" agreed Mrs. Rood vehemently. "I call it pretty dots!" she went on fiercely. "Here's you all broken down, and all those years your salary was so small that though I've been as saving as I know how, we've just managed to pay for this place the world over hundred dollars in the bank."

"We'd never have done that much if it hadn't been for you, Lucy," her husband said gratefully. "You're a master hand at contriving. But it ain't the company's fault that I got all crippled up with rheumatism, so's I couldn't do my work."

"I'd like to know if it ain't, Amos Rood!" she flared. "I'd like to know if you've kept all those years in a damp, underground office and not allowed half the help you'd ought to have had?"

"Well, well, Lucy," the man said pacifically. "The company was good to me that time I had typhoid, ten years ago. Didn't I get three months' leave of absence with full pay and passes for us both so we could take a nice trip?"

"Three months' leave in twenty-five years!" moaned Mrs. Rood. "And now that new manager's going to take away your pension. Oh, I know you think I'm awful, Amos, but I just hate that grasping, greedy old company that works its men to death just the way it does its poor horses, so's to save a little more money!"

"It hurts me to hear you talk like that, Lucy," Amos Rood protested loyally. "The company does the best it can—it has troubles of its own."

"Well, I won't say another word if you don't want I should, Amos," the little woman promised, brushing the angry tears from her eyes. "I ain't afraid but we'll get along some way. It just made me mad to think how little the company seemed to appreciate how honest and faithful you've been. Now you come and wash up and eat your birthday dinner before it's all spoiled."

But though Amos Rood valiantly attempted to do justice to the little feast, it was evident to the anxious wife who watched him that the dainty viands that she had prepared with such care were as dust and ashes to his palate. He looked stunned and bewildered by the unexpected blow which had been dealt him, and as he pushed back his chair from the table, he said slowly:

"I'd calculated to finish up that job of Brown's this afternoon, but when I got that letter I sent 'em word not to expect me—I didn't feel equal to tacklin' figures today. But I'll paint them storm-doors you wanted done, Lucy. It'll be quiet out there in the barn, and I—I want to think things over."

Mrs. Rood looked after him wistfully. "I guess maybe he would be better by himself," she thought humbly. "I wouldn't wonder if my everlasting gabble bothered him some when he's got things he wants to think over. Well, I'll fly around and straighten up so it'll look pleasant to him when he comes in, an' maybe if I was to fix that chicken into a scallop he'd relish it for supper. He didn't eat scarcely a mite o' dinner."

But although Amos Rood had found the solitude he craved, there was something terrifying to him in the emptiness of the great barn, and as he resolutely set himself to the task of painting the "storm doors" he had mentioned, he began to wish vaguely that old Dolly were still alive to stamp her iron-shod feet and to nicker to him socially from her stall.

Then, with a sudden pang, he realized that he was glad that the old horse who had been his and Lucy's friend and companion for so many years, had died last month, for how could he have brought himself to sell her when their little home was broken up? The brush dropped from his nerveless hand as he muttered, yes, it would come to that!

Lucy said that they would manage some way, but Lucy, with all her cheery common sense and thrift, had a woman's ignorance of the grim fact that two and two always make four, and never by any chance five or six.

Perhaps, by selling their little place and living on the proceeds they might manage to keep together for a few years more, but the end was inevitable. Sooner or later Lucy would be obliged to go to the well-to-do sister who had never attempted to conceal her conviction that the pretty, energetic girl might have done better than to marry Amos Rood.

As for him, there would be nothing left but the shelter of the county poor house.

Something seemed to snap in the man's brain. Why shouldn't he quietly get out of it all, while there was still something to keep Lucy from entering dependence on a woman like prosperous, self-satisfied Jane Thorn? She would mourn for him he knew, but death is easier to bear than some other things.

Suddenly he paused, arrested in his grim preparations for the deed on which he was resolved.

"Amos! Amos!" his wife was calling.

Ten, yes, five moments more and he would have been forever deaf to that tender voice, and Lucy would have come and found him—he shuddered with a sick repulsion. He had been selfish—cowardly—mad! But Lucy's light feet were running along the garden paths and she was calling again: "Amos! Oh, Amos, do please hurry!"

The man stumbled blindly to the door. The next instant he was standing in the warm sunlight he had never thought to feel again, with Lucy's arms about his neck; her happy tears upon his cheek.

"Oh, Amos," she was bubbling joyously, "the general superintendent himself is in the house! It's perfectly lovely to hear him swear. He says the new manager has exceeded his authority altogether, and that the company does know how to appreciate faithful service, such as yours has been! And only think, instead of taking away your pension, he intends to increase it! Why, Amos, we'll be rich!"

"I should say it wasn't!" agreed Mrs. Rood vehemently. "I call it pretty dots!" she went on fiercely. "Here's you all broken down, and all those years your salary was so small that though I've been as saving as I know how, we've just managed to pay for this place the world over hundred dollars in the bank."

"We'd never have done that much if it hadn't been for you, Lucy," her

A Chewing Gum Romance

When first he met her she was fair,
And chewing Chewing Gum.

A rosebud nestled in her hair;
He breathed his love unto her there:
But she—she smiled a smile so rare
While chewing Chewing Gum.

She listened while he urged his suit,
Still chewing Chewing Gum.
He vowed her charms had made him mute;
And tuned his passion on a lute; Then she declared the tune was "cute"—
Still chewing Chewing Gum.

She strode in state down the aisle,
Still chewing Chewing Gum.
He met her with a happy smile,
And they were wedded there the while
She wept in pretty boudoir style—
Still chewing Chewing Gum.

Today I saw her down the way,
Still chewing Chewing Gum.
Three children, joyous, blithe and gay,
Were shouting in their romping play—
And they were hers, I know, for they Were chewing Chewing Gum.

WHAT COULD SHE MEAN.

Miss Homeleigh—Well, after all, she is only skin deep.

Miss Gabbeigh—Yes? Isn't it a pity you are so thin-skinned?

Her Aspirations.
Mrs. Gooph—Ducky, why don't you do something great and noble and get your name in the Hall of Fame?

Mr. Gooph—But a man must be dead ten years to have his name placed there, even if he is qualified.

Mrs. Gooph—I know, but wouldn't it be grand to take my second husband around there and show him your name? It would be such a good example for him.

Where He Sold Them.
Mr. Raisem—Yes, we get good prices for our cabbages, but we have to haul them so far there is no money in it.

Mr. Quizit—But I thought you were within a square of the market.

Mr. Raisem—The market? Oh, yes. But the tobacco factory is two miles away.

A Good System.
Mr. Meddergrass—Hi! Slocum sent ten dollars to a fellow in New York to tell him how to win at roulette.

Mr. Foddershack—What did the fellow say?

Mr. Meddergrass—Said to "run the game yourself."

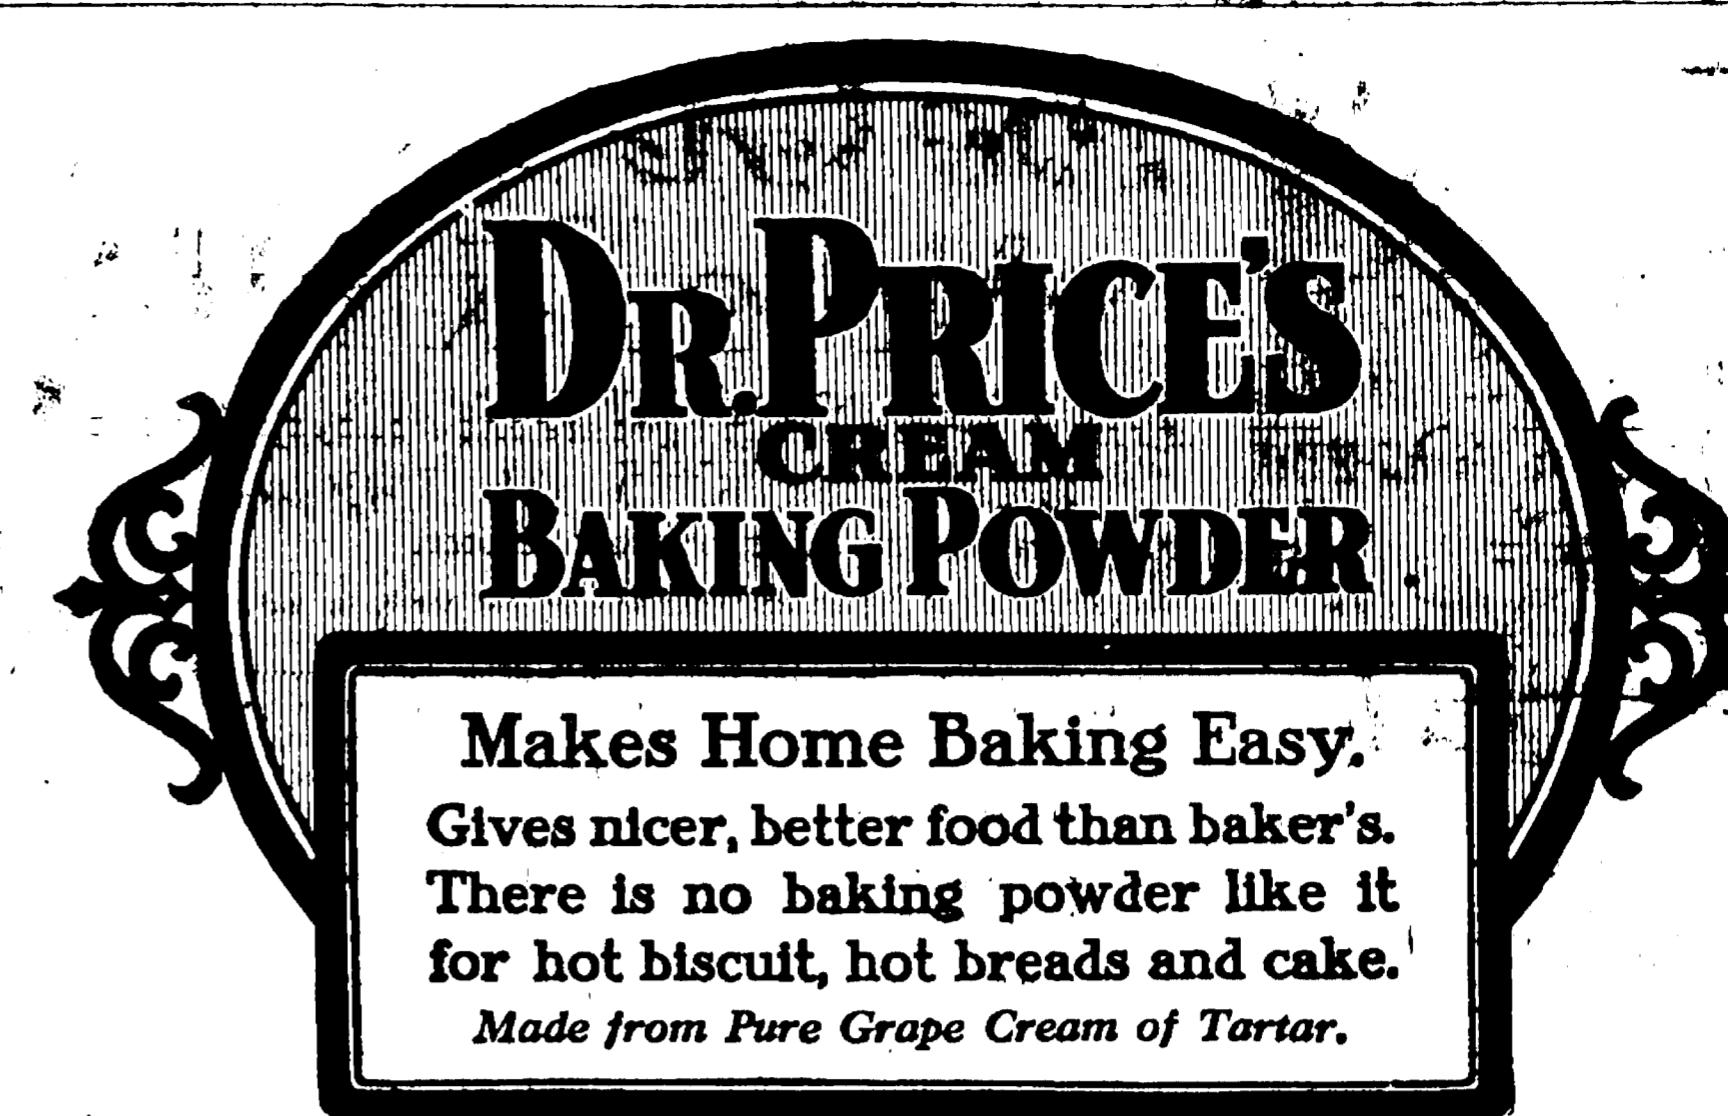

How Could She?
"How can you expect me to stick to the key," asked the prima donna, "when I haven't the right pitch?"

Next day they sent her a bottle of nutmeg and a comic opera contract.

He Preased His Suit.
Mr. Askit—Are you studying law, Miss Gabbeigh?

Miss Gabbeigh—Well, I attended court last night.

He Preased His Suit.

ECZEMA DISFIGURED BABY.

"Our little boy Gilbert was troubled with eczema when but a few weeks old. His little face was covered with sores even to back of his ears. The poor little fellow suffered very much. The sores began as pimples, his little face was disfigured very much. We hardly knew what he looked like. The face looked like raw meat. We tied little bags of cloth over his hands to prevent him from scratching. He was very restless at night, his little face itched.

"We consulted two doctors at Chicago, where we resided at that time. After trying all the medicine of the two doctors without any result, we read of the Cuticura Remedies, and at once bought Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Following the directions carefully and promptly we saw the result, and after four weeks, the dear child's face was as fine and clean as any little baby's face. Every one who saw Gilbert after using the Cuticura Remedies was surprised. He has a head of hair which is a pride for any boy of his age, three years. We can only recommend the Cuticura Remedies to everybody." (Signed) Mrs. H. Albrecht, Box 883, West Point, Neb., Oct. 26, 1910. ## HOODWINKED BULL IS SAFE

Leather Device Can Be Put Over Eyes of Ugly Animal, Giving Good Ventilation and Light.

The following description of a hood for a bull that has become breschy is written by a contributor to Hoard's Dairyman:

I got a flank of leather for about $1.25, took a good Eve-ring halter that fit you can vary the size), cut the front, 13 inches at top by 8 inches at bottom and 12 inches long; two side pieces 8 inches wide at top by 6 inches bottom, 12 inches long; cut front of side pieces square, back on a miter. Put inside of leather together, black side down of front and up of side, rivet about three-fourths of an inch from edge with copper bell rivets and burs long enough to rivet well, and 1½ inches apart center to center (as he will try it severely).

The hood will stand open like a box at corners over his eyes, giving good ventilation and some light. Rivet back of side pieces to side strap of halter between the rings, make a loop around back of upper ring and rivet; rivet a strap to lower corner of side piece; rivet bottom of front to side piece; rivet bottom of front to side piece of halter.

The drawing shows how it is used. Those who have tried it recommend it.

and Fireside. I am using one of these devices and find it a pleasure to milk now, when I was always in fear before.

The Kerry Cow.

The Kerry cow is a light-framed cow of varying size, but generally smaller than the Ayrshire. She is black in hair. The Dexter, although derived from the same stock, is quite different, being thick and blocky, and in color may be either black or red. Both of these cattle are particularly good dairy cows, doing well in moderate feeding and giving surprisingly large quantities of milk, very rich.

Many Kerries give quite as rich milk as is produced by the Jersey. The Kerry does not fatten kindly until she has reached full age, but the Dexter may be fattened younger.

Does Silage Affect the Flavor?

Have you noticed anything different in the flavor of the milk since you began feeding silage? If there is any change at all the flavor will be a little more pleasant, says O. E. Reed, head of the dairy department at the Kansas State Agricultural college. But if the silage is allowed to ferment too long and then fed, the milk will have a taint much like that noticed when weeds are eaten in the summer.

Ground Grain Is Best.

If a farmer who is really trying to learn how to conduct his business most economically will make a common-sense test during a season of, say, six months, feeding a portion of his cows ground grain, and the same number whole grain, noting the difference in milk flow, he will then come pretty near knowing the truth.

Profits From a Creamery.

The total profits from a creamery will depend largely upon the amount of cream which can be bought. If the creamery can be run at its capacity, it will be much more profitable than if half the amount of cream desired is needed.

Warmth Is Necessary.

Warmth is as necessary in a dairy in the winter as cold is in the summer.

P. H. S. Loses in the Ninth

Pinckney lost a close game to Stockbridge last Saturday by a score of 5 to 3. The game was a pitchers battle between Swarthout and Moffat and up to the ninth, the former had the better of his opponent. Pinckney scored her first run in the first inning when H. Swarthout walked, stole second and third and scored on Moran's sacrifice fly. Pinckney got her other two runs in the fifth when Moffat passed VanHorn, Tupper and H. Swarthout and Marshall fumbled Moran's grounder, VanHorn and Tupper scoring. Stockbridge had got men on occasionally, had tried the hit and run a couple of times, but in both cases the batter had failed to connect and the runner had been caught flat footed. In the last half of the ninth with the score standing 3 to 0 in favor of Pinckney, the unexpected happened. McArthur fled out to Hendee, Moffat walked, Marshall hit to Clark who got Moffat at second. Swarthout got two strikes on Hayner when that individual surprised everybody including himself by singling to right. Boyce got a scratch hit past first, Marshall scoring. Hynes was safe on a Pinckney misplay, Hay and Boise scoring. Beatham singled to right, Dancer got a scratch hit through short, Beatham and Hynes scoring. Dancer was called out for cutting second. In Pinckney's half W. Swarthout grounded out pitcher to first, Lavy fouled out to the catcher, VanHorn singled cleanly to left and Tupper fanned.

H. Swarthout on the job

PARLOR OUT OF DATE

NEARLY EVERYBODY NOW HAS A LIVING ROOM.

How This Apartment Should Be Decorated and Furnished — Down Stairs Front Room or Dutch Hall the Best Choice.

Today almost everyone has a living room, and any house is incomplete without one. Some people are loth to let go of the old-fashioned and hopelessly out-of-date parlor, with its set of plush furniture, its what-not and its lace curtains.

Still, every one would like to be up to date, if possible; and in this article it will be the endeavor to show how a parlor can be turned into a living room and how a living room should be furnished.

The room to choose for the purpose would, of course, depend on the convenience of the family; but in the average house the downstairs front room or the Dutch hall would be the best choice. Should this be impractical, either the front or back room on the second floor could be made to answer.

Except in the case of the Dutch hall, where the woodwork is stained to blend well with the surroundings, or when, in individual cases, it is considered best to leave it the way it is, it is usually advisable to change the color of the woodwork to white or cream. Even in the hall this has been worked out most successfully by painting all the wood white with the exception of the staircase, where the tread of the stairs and the handrail are of mahogany.

As to the wallpaper, it is best to

NOVEL SILK BATHING SUIT

It is a Blue and White Check and the Material is Non-Absorbent and Very Dressy.

to bear in mind that tan paper improves any furniture.

Other colors suitable for the living room are old blue, old rose and a medium green. Brown might be included in the list, but it is rather a somber color unless the room is very sunny. Red is to be avoided. It is very rarely successful, and unless one is very partial to it, it is better not to attempt it when there is such a wide choice of other beautiful colors. If one should feel impelled to buy a figured paper, choose an inconspicuous one, as the shocks one receives on first beholding a room papered with a pattern selected from a stony little sample shown at the paperhanger's are many and varied. These figured papers, chosen from samples, are often a terrible disappointment, it is really better not to indulge. At the very lowest, the cost of having a good-sized room papered, not counting the ceiling, would be $3 or $4.

Evening Gown.

A charming evening gown by Agnes is a combination of black and white chiffon. This is arranged over a foundation of white lace, which forms a panel in front. The bodice is cut in a low V both back and front.

This is filled in with lace to a becoming height. The waist line of this gown has resumed its normal position. A brilliant touch of ruby velvet is knotted over a rhinestone buckle on the girdle.

When a postiche is bought instead of made from combings, pay more and get real hair. Cheaper grades soon fade and never fail to show with the most careful hairdressing.

TAN SHOES ALL THE VOGUE

Edit of Fashion That Designates This Pretty Color Will Be Welcomed — Buckles or Ribbons.

Tan shoes are again in fashion. That light putty color which was so much in fashion in France last winter and which one feared would become fashionable here is fortunately missing. All the Russian tans are used in pumps, in Oxfords, and in two-eyelet ties. Buckles still take precedence over ribbons, except in the Oxfords and on pumps.

True, a wide number of women prefer the more or less huge buckle on their pumps, but you will notice that the well-dressed woman who is smartly turned out in every detail will wear the plain pump, with its flat bow of corded ribbon, such as the men wear, no matter what its heel.

Buckles rightly belong to slippers, but there is no breach of good taste in choosing one of kid, of gunmetal, or of japanned metal on a pump of dull kid. If one wears patent-leather slippers, with Spanish heels, then the buckle may be of silver, of gilt, or of cut steel, but it is to be hoped that American women will go back to their original method and keep this brilliant footgear of the streets in the morning hours.

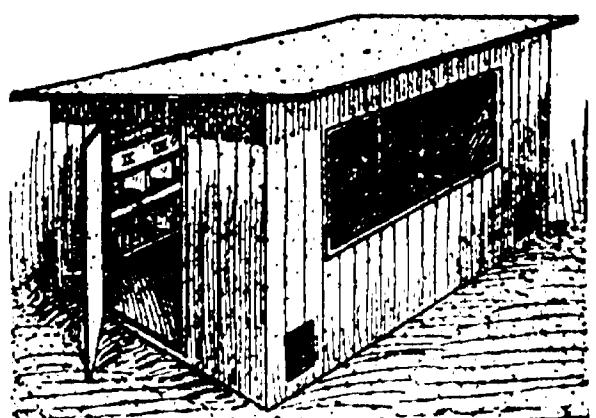

Tiny white pearl oblong buttons trim a side ruff of plaited net.

POULTRY

SUMMER HOUSE FOR POULTRY

Coop Shown in the Illustration Will Provide Comfortable Place for Hens in Hot Weather.

Good poultry quarters are needed, and for warm weather the house in the accompanying picture will answer the purpose exceedingly well. It is built eight feet wide, 12 feet long, seven feet high in front and 4½ feet at the rear. It should have a light framework, consisting of 2x4's, for the sills and caps, and siding of inch stuff, preferably matched, nailed on perpendicular as indicated, writes Fred O. Sibley in the Farm and Home.

Summer House for Hens.

The front, which is to face toward the south, has a good-sized window, and at each corner are two openings, 12x16 inches, for the hens to pass. In the end opposite the door there is a wooden shutter about two feet square for air and ventilation, and this, as well as the window, should have strong, fine mesh wire nailed on the outside.

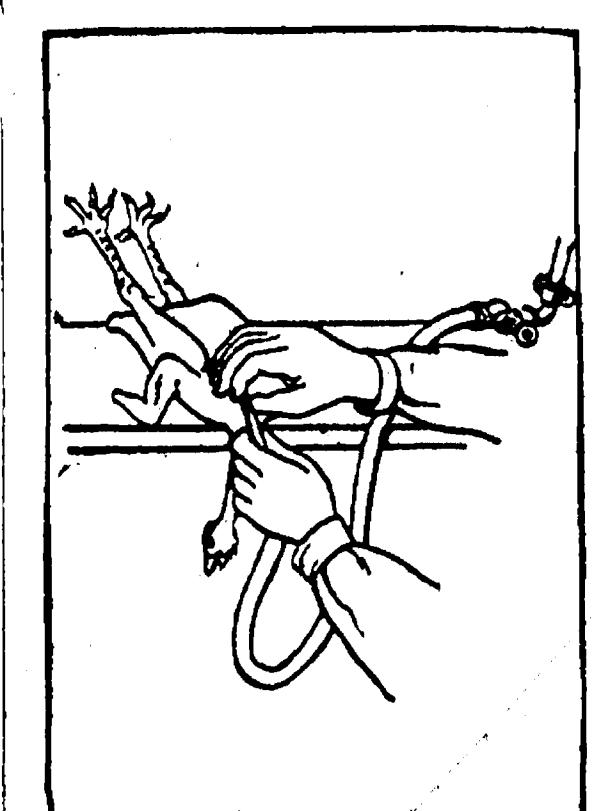

The roosts are located in the rear, up under the roof, with a platform below to catch the droppings, 3½ feet wide, extending the whole length of the house. Beneath this is another platform, three feet wide, for the nests. For hens on the range such a house is just the thing, and needs no floor if the location is well drained and dry. It will shelter from 50 to 60 fowls comfortably. The interior ought to be kept well whitewashed, and if the house is set in the shade of a large tree it will be all the more pleasant for the hens to go into on a hot day.

The cost of building this kind of summer "cottage" will be from $12 to $15. It pays to use good lumber, and two or three good coats of paint should be applied.

PREPARE FOWLS FOR MARKET

Apparatus Invented by Indiana Men for Injecting Water into Body After Killing.

Experts have discovered that fowls and animals are better fit for food if about 8 per cent. of their weight in water be injected into their bodies just after they are killed. This must be done before the animal heat has left the body, and the water, which must be at a temperature of between 50 and 70 degrees Fahrenheit, is kept there for an hour or more. Two Indiana men have invented an attachment for a water spigot, or which may have its own pipe leading into it. The attachment consists of a length of hose with a sharp, hollow metal point on the free end. This point can be thrust through the breast of the chicken or whatever fowl or animal it may be, and the requisite amount of water injected into it in this fashion.

System in the Feeding.
Fowls should have empty crops in the morning and the crop should never be quite full until it is time to go to roost. For the first feed grain scattered in the litter in the morning is preferred, the sooner the better. This induces them to exercise. In the middle of the day a warm, moistened mash should be given, about what they will eat. And at night before they go to roost a liberal feed of grain should be scattered in the fowl. Fowls should be kept busy.

Oyster Shells for Fowls.
The feeding of oyster shells is claimed to supply the birds with grit, but experiments show that under circumstances in any other manner oyster shells may be utilized by the hens to supply shells for the eggs. It is not necessary to feed shells, however, when the fowls are supplied with varied food, as the food of poultry contains lime sufficient for all purposes.

BROODER FOR LITTLE CHICKS

Illustration and Directions Given for Constructing Comfortable Place for Youngsters.

This fireless brooder will accommodate 25 to 50 chicks, according to the weather. If the hover is removed it makes an excellent brood coop for hen and chicks. Make the bottom of brooder 2 feet 8 inches by 1 foot 10 inches of boards, nailed on 2 by 2-inch scantlings. For the upper part use 2 by 2-inch posts for the uprights, those in front 17 inches long, and the rear 11 inches. Make the coop 2 feet 10 inches long, 2 feet wide, 18 inches high in front and 12 inches at the back, writes Arthur S. Wenger of Dayton, Va., in the Missouri Valley Farmer. This will allow the coop to set down over the floor, the posts resting upon the floor boards. Make two openings in front, one 8 by 8 inches, the other 12 by 20. For the smaller opening make a sliding door, and cover the other with fine mesh wire netting. Make a frame and cover with muslin to slide over this netting during cold or stormy weather. For the roof take two pieces of ½-inch board 2 inches wide and 3 feet long, and three pieces of the same dimension 2 feet 2 inches long. Notch the long pieces at end and center to 1 inch wide, so the crosspieces can be nailed in—to make a flat frame. Cover this frame with three-ply roofing stretched tight and nailed around edge and through center. Hinge the cover to back of coop and put a small hook in front to hold it shut.

For the hover have a box 18 inches square and 8 inches high with a hole 4 inches square in one side for chicks to go in and out. Put in a bottom but no top. Make a wooden frame to fit rather loosely in this box and tack muslin on one side of frame with a pleat in each corner so it will sag about 2 inches. Put a nail in each corner of box 4 inches from bottom frame to rest upon. Have about 1 inch of fine hay chaff in bottom of box. Put in chicks and cover top of muslin with burlap sacks or any soft material. In warm weather they will need very little cover.

BEDBUGS IN CHICKEN HOUSE

Roots and Nests Should Be Removed From Building and Whitewash Spray Thoroughly Applied.

Many poultry houses are infested with bed bugs and it is not an easy matter to dislodge them.

Some people say that turning the sheep into the poultry houses will induce the bugs to attack the sheep where they will be lost in the wool, put this is a poor remedy.

Remove all the roosts and nests from the house and spray with boiling hot whitewash to which has been added a pint of turpentine to a gallful.

Another good remedy is to burn the interior of the house with taroline mixture which can be bought at any drug store. Another effective remedy is half a pint each of turpentine, ammonia and kerosene to which add about four ounces of gum camphor. If more is needed double the quantity. Apply with a brush.

The nests should be burned out over a blazing fire and the roosts should also be held over the fire and all should be thoroughly whitewashed and painted before putting them back.

Insect Powder for Fowls.

Here is a receipt for an insect powder and it can be made a great deal cheaper than it can be bought.

Take one pint of crude carbolic acid and three pints of gasoline. Mix in an earthen crock or granite ware dish. Sprinkle in plaster of Paris and thoroughly stir so that every particle of it will be wet. Use enough plaster of Paris to absorb all the liquid. Spread out on a paper for extra gasoline to evaporate, then run through a sieve and the powder is ready for use.

POULTRY NOTES

Don't raise scrub chickens.

Don't use too heavy a cock bird with your females.

Poultry constitutes a very good minor source of farm profit.

Early turkeys are what pay and these can only be had from early laid eggs.

Condiments that stimulate egg production are very much like anything that stimulates a human being.

Some tell the sex of the guinea fowl by its wattles. Those of the male are double the size of the female.

A chicken's stomach is not made of iron, and the same diet day after day harms them as much as it does a human.

Running the incubator is like most other things, we get results largely in proportion to the work we do ourselves.

Ventilation in the chicken house is a very important consideration, and the health of the fowls, in a great measure, depends on it.

The breast of the Indian game is very much like that of the pheasant or the prairie chicken. The best of the meat lies on the breast.

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Doctors Could Not Help Mrs. Templeton—Regained Health through Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boarders with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."—Mrs. SUSIE TEMPLETON, Hooper, Nebraska.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the deceased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed there is a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

POULTRY

POULTRY ON AVERAGE FARM

Makes No Great Demands on Strength and Any Person of Intelligence May Make Success.

In this country poultry includes chickens, turkeys, geese, ducks, guinea fowls, pigeons and occasionally peacock, pheasants, quail and swans—chickens, of course, being the most important. Something like a quarter of a billion chickens and other poultry are consumed in the United States every year. The consumption of eggs is about eighteen dozen per capita. The last census gave the value of chickens raised on American farms in 1899 as $136,891,877—or eggs at $144,286,158. Today the American people consume about half a billion dollars' worth of poultry and eggs per annum. Exports are increasing and one may enter on the raising of poultry and eggs with little fear of not realizing good prices on all produce.

Probably 90 per cent. of the farms in the United States raise poultry as a side line; feeding is more economical where general farming is pursued. Still there are manifest advantages in specializing—greater attention, knowledge and skill achieve better results.

Poultry raising makes no great demands on strength, and any person of intelligence may hope to make a success of it. But some have made the mistake of supposing that the business can be taken up on a considerable scale without any experience. Hens lay all the way from none to 250 eggs a year, and it takes some experience to tell with what kind of hen and under what conditions, the upper limit can be reached.

Probably the best course for the intending poultry raiser would be to work for a year or more on one of the large chicken ranches in order to learn the important points of breeds, feeding, fattening, housing, brooding, incubating, etc. The raising of broilers, roasters and capons for the market may be a paying occupation on an egg farm, if one secures the right kind of stock and gives the work the proper attention and management. No kind of poultry is more profitable than turkeys.

FOUNTAIN BUILT FOR DUCKS

Little Ones Must Be Kept Dry Until Their Feathers Have Formed—Useful One Described.

Since ducklings siphon water around considerably when they drink, and since they should be kept dry until after their feathers have formed, the drinking fountain illustrated herewith will be found particularly useful, says the American Agriculturist. A square of quarter-inch mesh galvanized wire cloth, say 18 inches to the side, is tacked to a wooden frame and placed over a bed of gravel so the water may easily drain away. If the soil is not gravelly, a hole should be dug about two feet deep and filled with small stones. The drinking fountain of any convenient shape should be anchored in the center of the wire screen. For little ducks the weight of a fountain holding one gallon or more will be more than sufficient to prevent toppling over.

POULTRY NOTES

It is better not to keep ducks and chicks together.

The young chicks should be isolated over carefully for lice.

The farmer above everyone is the party to succeed with poultry.

Have charcoal, sand and water always on hand, and feed small grain.

Clean and disinfect the brooders at least once a week, and better every day.

Potato peelings fed raw in not too large quantities are good for the laying hens.

Now that the chicks are hatched the main point is to see that they are kept growing.

Collect eggs every day shortly before noon, or preferably twice daily, at noon and at dusk.

A chick, like a baby, will get good or bad habits according to the way it is started in this world.

To keep chicks growing and thriving they must be fed well and often, and their crops kept clean.

Separate the chicks as soon as sex can be distinguished, because one will retard the growth of the other.

Move the outside brooders every week. If possible sow the yards at least once a year to rye, barley or oats.

Whitewashing the interior of the poultry house will not rid it of fleas unless a little carbolic acid is added to the wash.

Paint Everybody

And for everything under the sun.
Every home has need of paint.
Each one of

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINTS

is specially suited to some home use—either outside or inside.
It's knowing the right kind of paint, and putting it on the right place that makes painting a success. Tell us what you want to paint, and we'll tell you the right kind to use.
