Summer At Bay View

The seasonable Bay View announcements are on and will interest the thousands in search of an ideal vacation place. All winter Bay View has barely a dozen families, but in July and August its population swells to 5,000, and then the young people in their gay costumes, the teachers and delightful people from all over the land through this summer city, amid the groves on Traverse Bay. More than 10,000 go there annually. The magnet which draws the people is the Assembly and Summer University, which this year opens on July 5, continuing to August 14. These five weeks are crowded with recreative pleasures and advantages of the finest order. A feature of the Assembly is a series of four great public conferences on supreme issues which are discussed by distinguished leaders. The general daily programs are filled with famous people, among the names being W. J. Burns, the great detective, Mme. Schuman Heink and Helen Keller. The university's fame extends far and last season drew students from 14 states. This year a new school is added in Library Work, conducted by the State of Michigan. Those who desire to know more about this summer place will find it in the Bulletin, from which above facts are drawn. J. M. Hall Bay View, Mich. will send it.

A Simple But Pretty Wedding

Married at the home of the bride's parents in Putnam, Miss Jennie E. Blades to Harry L. Shankland of Jackson, June 25 at three p. m., Rev. Fatlock of Ann Arbor, officiating. The bride was gowned in white brocaded charmeuse and carried a bouquet of bridal roses.

The house was prettily decorated in ferns, pink roses and smilax. About 70 attended. Those from a distance were her brother Stephen Blades of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Forshe of Plymouth, Mrs. Parker of Jackson, Mrs. Eliza Fletcher of Chelsea and about thirty from Ann Arbor and Dixboro.

A three course lunch was served and the couple received many pretty and useful gifts.

The brides traveling suit was of white serge trimmed with white satin.

Mr. and Mrs. Shankland left on the 7:12 train for their home in Jackson.

They will be at home to their friends after August 1st.

Dr. Darling of Ann Arbor was in town Monday on business.

Mrs. Laura Case of Syracuse, N. Y., is visiting at the home of E. J. Briggs.

S. E. Swarthout, wife and daughter Sadie attended the graduating exercises of the Ferris Institute at Big Rapids last Thursday evening where their daughter Fannie was one of the graduates.

Rev. W. H. Ripon delivered a very able sermon to the Masons and Order of the Eastern Stars of this place last Sunday afternoon. All the selections by the choir were rendered most beautifully and were highly appreciated by all.

Dr. M. S. Vaughn To Be Prison Physician

Dr. M. S. Vaughn for the past year house physician at the Jackson city hospital, has been named as prison physician to succeed Dr. Geo. R. Pray, who resigned, the resignation to take effect July 1. Dr. Vaughn severed his connection with the city hospital, Saturday evening, and is now busy getting acquainted with the routine of work in the prison hospital department.

Dr. Vaughn comes to his new position with high recommendations. He is a graduate of the Detroit college of medicine. During his junior year there he gained wide experience in practical work, being connected with the office of the Detroit city physician as night physician. His senior year afforded him even more opportunity for the experience on the practical side of a physician's life. He was made house physician at one of the largest charity institutes in Detroit. Here he was chosen to conduct clinical classes which were largely attended. A little over a year ago Dr. Vaughn accepted the position as house physician at the Jackson City Hospital. His services there during the past year have been such as to gain for him a wide acquaintance in this city and to establish his reputation as a successful and painstaking physician. The fact that his college training has been supplemented by work in institutions where he has come in contact with almost every kind of disease and injury makes him an especially capable man for the position at Jackson prison.

Dr. Vaughn will enter upon his full duties at the prison July 5. He will confine his practice entirely within the prison walls, and will give his every attention to the needs of the inmates. His friends predict that the good work done by Dr. Pray will be taken up, carried on, and even improved upon by the new prison physician.

During his stay at the prison as its physician Dr. Pray instituted many very beneficial reforms. Due to his untiring efforts sickness has been kept down to the minimum and the work of the department, of which he has had charge has been reduced to a system little short of perfection. Dr. Pray is at present in Chicago and during his absence Dr. Vaughn has charge of his practice in this city as well as at the prison. Prior to July 5 Dr. Vaughn will spend a few days at his home and visiting friends in Detroit.—Jackson Citizen Press.

Dr. M. S. Vaughn is a Pinckney boy and has many friends here who wish him all kinds of success in his new field of labor.

Mrs. H. Harris and daughter Florence spent Tuesday in Howell.

Ashley Smook and Orla Hall of Handy were guests at the home of C. E. Dey last Friday.

Samuel Grimes

Samuel Grimes, son of James and Margaret Grimes, was born in Oswego, New York state, Nov. 11, 1828, and died in Shawnee, O., June 28, 1913, being at the time of his death, 84 years, 7 months and 11 days. He came to this village about the year of 1847 and for the past 65 years has been a resident of this place. On June 7, 1854, he was united in marriage to Frances Irene Noble, who passed away in this village September 13 of last year, just 9 months and 10 days before him. To this union were born four sons, Willis T. of New York, Chas. L. of Wayside, Nebr., Frank A. of Shawnee, Ohio and S. T. of Topeka, Kan.

Samuel Grimes was one of a family of 9 children, 4 brothers and 5 sisters, all of whom have passed away before him.

He was conscious up to the time of his death, suffering little or no pain and passing to the great beyond during a restful sleep a few minutes after three o'clock in the morning. His father was born in 1792 and his mother in 1793. In the early days before the war, he was a cabinet maker and he made the first wagon in Livingston County. During the rush to the gold fields at Cripple Creek, Col., he was among the first to go and as there were no railroads west of Chicago at that time, the journey from there was made on foot. He enlisted during the last year of the Civil War, but was never called into active service. "Uncle Sam" was well liked by all, and the children called him their best friend.

Funeral services were held at the late home here Tuesday morning at ten o'clock, Rev. Wm. H. Ripon, officiating.

Ray Lavey was the guest of Frances Harris over Sunday.

For the benefit of my patrons, I wish to announce that my barber shop will be closed on the Fourth. R. J. Carr.

T. W. Lanigon of Omaha, Neb., was the guest at the home of H. W. Harris the latter part of last week.

Auto License Unconstitutional

The auto owners of the state of Mississippi contributed to a fund and attacked the constitutionality of the auto license. The lower courts found the law unconstitutional and the case was appealed to the supreme court and the decision of the lower court has been sustained. The ruling of the court states:

Any clearly unnecessary expense imposed is unreasonable and its imposition is an arbitrary exercise of governmental power. The only regulations contained in this statute is that the motor car can be registered and numbered. The expense necessary to be incurred in registering and numbering a motor car is less than $1, but the amount that the statute desires to collect in order that it may be reimbursed therefor, varies from $5 to $25, according to the horse power of the engine by which the car is propelled.

It follows from these views that the statute is void under the due process clause of the state and federal constitution.

If the auto owners of the state of Michigan would go into court they no doubt would be given the same ruling.

Go to Monks Bros. for Fireworks.

Florence Tupper, Florence Byers and Mary Johnson were Howell callers Tuesday.

Married at St. Mary's church at Pinckney, Wednesday, June 25, Lewis Coyle of Ann Arbor and Miss Thressa Melvin of Pinckney, Rev. Fr. Coyle officiating.

Preparations are all completed for the glorious Fourth of July celebration to be held here tomorrow. With an automobile parade, blue rock shoot and speaking in the forenoon, sports of all kinds including a good ball game in the afternoon—Pinckney vs. Howell, and the dance in the evening will furnish a good variety of amusement for young and old. Plan to be here and enjoy the fun.

Putnam and Hamburg Farmer's Club

The Putnam and Hamburg Farmer's club met at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Coniway, Saturday June 28. Quite a large number were present. The club was called to order by the President and the program opened with a song followed by a reading by Viola Bergin; recitation by M. Schoenhals; reading by Marie Baker; after which the topic of the day was taken up, "How to Keep the Boys on the Farm". As neither of the leading speakers were present, the discussion was taken up by various members of the club and many good points were brought out. The prevailing sentiment of the club was that the boy should be given a piece of ground which he might work as he pleased and should receive helpful hints and advice from the parents, also that the proceeds of the piece of ground should be his or placed in the bank to his credit which would have a tendency to encourage him to save, rather than to squander. But if the boy had no inclination for the farm, he should be educated in some other branch of business. After the question had been thoroughly discussed the club adjourned to the cool, pleasant shade where all present enjoyed a very elaborate supper.

Florence Harris attended the Gama Eta Gama Fraternity banquet and the commencement exercises at the U. of M. last week.

The Pingree gun club will hold a blue rock shoot here July 4th, commencing at one o'clock. All lovers of this sport are invited to enter.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Zwinck of Iosco, Paul Miller, Albert Dinkel and Kitsey Allison of Pinckney spent Sunday at the home of Fred Burgess.

Married at St. Thomas' church, Ann Arbor, Monday June 30, 1913, Mary E. Kelly, formerly of this place, to Wm. H. Peck of Flint. Rev. Fr. Falon, officiating. They will be at home after July 10th at Flint, Mich.

FROCKS FOR SUMMER

CLEVER SHOPPER CAN FIND GOOD BARGAINS NOW.

Reception Dress of Crepe de Chine Combined With Chantilly Lace Makes Charming Costume—Smart Designs in Cotton.

The woman who has been slow about securing her summer outfit has a tempting array of bargains to choose from now, and the clever shopper may find in the tumbling prices compensation for loss of the choice novelties. The most exquisite of the season's laces, embroideries and other trimmings were picked up early in the season and the same is true of dress material, hats, robe patterns, but there are enough lovely things left to satisfy even a fastidious woman and many of these lovely things are being offered at prices far below those asked two months ago.

The coat and skirt street costumes, usually the earliest items of the spring wardrobe are conspicuous among the sale bargains. One may be still in need of fluffy summer frocks and willing to pay good prices for them; but save in exceptional cases, the woman who is willing to pay well for her trotting frocks was long ago supplied with

USES OF CREPE DE CHINE

Chief Reason for the Favor It Enjoys Is Because It Drapes so Admirably.

There is a strong liking for crepe de chine, and this material has made its outdoor appearance in Paris much earlier in the season than usual. Probably the chief reason for the favor it enjoys is that it drapes so admirably either in the cross-over drapery, which may simulate a panier in front and is then caught up in the center of the back toward the hem of the skirt, or in the looped-up skirt effect, which is so picturesque. Crepe is no longer confined to gowns; it is used to make up costumes also, and there are also frocks which adapt themselves to outside wear by simulating a cutaway coat or basque.

Gift for Bridesmaids.

One little bride, with more ingenuity than money, made photograph frames from material like her wedding dress, placed therein her portrait and that of her fiance, then had the whole thing mounted under glass with a small gilt rim of picture frame molding. Her maids were delighted with the gifts.

Identification Tag.

A very simple means of providing this useful article is to get a disk of metal a little smaller than a fifty-cent piece. Have a hole drilled through it for the purpose of attaching to a piece of ribbon or tape. A hardware dealer will, for a few cents, punch on the disk your name and address. Wear around the neck.

all such costumes needed for the season.

Attractive Afternoon Gowns.

If the street frocks left upon the importer's hands are to be sold now they must be sold by virtue of striking reductions in price, and values really remarkable may be found by the shopper who is willing to make the rounds. The same house showed attractive evening and afternoon wraps, reception and visiting gowns and lingerie gowns and blouses all marked at a figure far below the original price.

There was a stylish reception dress of crepe de chine combined with chantilly lace. The lace formed the overbodice with peplum at back and bottom of the skirt. There was also a charming little afternoon frock of green charmeuse trimmed with chiffon embroidered with jet beads.

Smart Designs in Cotton Materials.

At another shop there were bargains to be had in two good looking but more simple frocks of cotton materials. One was a crepe in a delicate shade of pink. It was trimmed with border bands of the material finely tucked. The skirt front was cut away at the bottom in pointed shape showing an underskirt of pale cream batiste and lace. The V at the neck was also filled in with batiste and lace. The sailor collar was hand embroidered. A narrow black and white patent leather belt completed this dainty costume. The other frock was of plain white sponge and basket weave. The jacket and lower part of the skirt were of the coarse basket weave material edged with heavily embroidered scallops. There were also scallop edged revers hand embroidered. The girdle was of a deep bluish purple silk.

NEW COATS FOR MIDSUMMER

Are Made Much on Same Styles as Earlier Spring Coats Were Fashioned After.

Wraps and coats for midsummer are made much on the same styles the earlier spring coats have been fashioned after. Many of them are trimmed with fancy collars and cuffs of printed silk and some are trimmed with velvet ribbon and a few have lace collars and cuffs. The most popular colors seem to be black, navy, taupe, gold, Saxe blue and sand. Brocade charmeuses, crepe de chine and other novelty brocades are all being made up into wraps suitable for warm weather use.

A few fancy linen coats in white, rose, tan and Saxe blue, in the new three-quarter length in cutaway effects will be worn this summer, and these are sometimes trimmed with cuny or ratine lace, or have embroidered collars and cuffs in Cubist or Balkin designs and colorings. However, the silks seem more popular probably because they are newer and prettier.

Coat Effects on Gowns.

Coat effects on gowns give a pleasing novelty in summer fashions. No matter how unconventional one may decide to be, few women have the courage to go about in town without some sort of outside wrap. Sometimes these coat tops are very marked and are exactly like the various bloused coat models, except that they are a part of the dress and can not be removed. Then again they are simply indicated by the manipulation of the draperies and trimmings.

SUMMER FOOTWEAR

One likes to have cool white foot wear to slip into after a day's sight seeing, and the easiest sort is the pump or slipper. Buttoned strap slip pers of white buckskin are pictured together with smart yet sensible walking oxfords or patent and a comfortable buttoned boot of patent leather with top of diagonal cloth.

Round Tables for Luncheon Parties. For small luncheon parties the round table is again becoming popular. This shape is now favored for the family dining table, too, and all the daintiest table linens that are being made would be bridle combinations in circular patterns.

PLANTS OF FRAGRANCE

Those Used for Volatile Oils Largely Scattered.

Sassafras Bark Also Quite Popular as Domestic "Spring Medicine"—Sweet Birch Found in Many of Eastern States.

(By F. RABAK.)

Possibly the number of wild aromatic plants which are used in the manufacture of volatile oils exceeds that of those which are at present cultivated. The extent of the production of the oils is much less, chiefly because of the more or less scattered condition of these plants, and therefore the difficulty of gathering them in large quantities. Usually these wild aromatic plants are distributed over wide areas confused largely with other volatile or nonvolatile species, thus causing the rapid collection of the plants to be seriously hindered.

A specific example of an important uncultivated plant which yields a volatile oil of considerable value is the sassafras tree. Sassafras oil was one of the first volatile oils distilled in America. The range of the tree is from Florida, where it was originally discovered to Virginia and Pennsylvania, and even as far north as New York and the New England states. It is quite abundant in the south-central states, especially Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas. The production of this oil attained commercial significance early in the last century, and it is distilled extensively at present in Kentucky, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, also to a less extent in Ohio, Indiana and New York.

Although the distillation of this very fragrant oil, which is obtained principally from the bark of the root of the tree, has assumed a strong commercial aspect, the tree has not been grown, strictly speaking, for oil purposes.

Sassafras bark is used for its tonic properties. It forms a popular domestic "spring medicine," and in the spring market women and men display their bundles of sassafras on their stands, or sell them along the streets of cities to be made into a tea, by

CULTURE OF THE BLUEBERRY

Much Land in United States Suited for Nothing Else—Berries Stand Shipment Well.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

Blueberries thrive in acid soils and there is a large amount of naturally acidic lands in the east United States that are fit for nothing else on which blueberries could be raised profitably.

There are two methods of propagating the blueberry plant. The first, which is suited to upland soils, is to set the plants in trenches or separate holes in well-rotted peat about a foot deep and mulch the surface well with leaves or clean sand.

Give plenty of room for the roots. The soil should afford good drainage is the ideal condition of the soil about the roots is one of continued moisture during the growing season.

The second method of field culture is to set the plants in a peat bog after it has been drained, tilled and deeply mulched with sand just as for cranberry culture, except that no provision need be made for rapid flooding of the newly people regarded as a useful remedy.

The distillation of the oil of sweet birch is a further example of a wild aromatic plant furnishing oil in sufficient quantity to supply the trade. Sweet birch occurs largely from the New England states and north-central states to Georgia, Florida and Alabama. The distillation of this oil dates back nearly as far as that of the oil of sassafras and has developed until the industry at present is of considerable significance. The oil produced from sweet birch is almost identical, for all practical uses, with that of the oil of wintergreen, although the plants are entirely unrelated.

The bark of the trunk and the small branches of the sweet birch are used for distillation, being previously cut into small pieces and allowed to macerate with water before introduction into the still. A yield of three-tenths to three-fifths of one per cent. of oil is obtained. Owing to the strict enforcement of the pure food and drug act a more active demand for the natural oils of sweet birch and wintergreen has resulted, and the price of these products thereby materially advanced. Birch bark will bring from one to three cents, per pound.

LOOSENS UP CRUSTED ROWS

Good Crop of Corn Secured by Use of Implement—Three Rows at Time Can Be Worked.

This is a tool that I rigged up to loosen the surface crust that had formed after listing corn. I tested out this implement last year and the year before on fields so crusted that the corn could not possibly have come through, writes C. F. Mowrer of Herington, Kan., in the Farmers' Mail and Breeze. After going over the crop with this tool I secured a good stand. It is made of an old style corn sled with a

Loosens Surface Crust.

2 by 6, about seven feet long, bolted across the back. Three logs are attached with chains and these heavily wrapped with barb wire. Taking three rows at a time one can go over a field in a hurry at a season when time means money. I also found by putting heavy log chains in place of the logs I could pack the mellow earth after listing the corn.

Care of the Colt.

It frequently happens during the hottest weather of the summer the colt's navel will become inflamed. Colts ranging from a few days to three or more months old are susceptible to the trouble. A variety of things may be the cause. Cleanliness of the quarters, however, is one of the best preventives. A mixture of one ounce of sulphate of zinc and a quart of water well mixed and sufficient applied to the affected part three times each day will usually bring relief.

Good Lawn Mixture.

Forty pounds of blue grass, three pounds of white clover and three pounds of solid red top make a good lawn mixture. The white clover and red top grow quickly and are gradually crowded out by the blue grass, which makes a much better lawn. Be sure that the lawn is finely raked and the soil is in the very finest condition of tilth before sowing any seed.

Brains Are Essential.

It takes just as much brains to run a farm or an orchard successfully as it does to run the average business.

Bloom of Gladiolus.

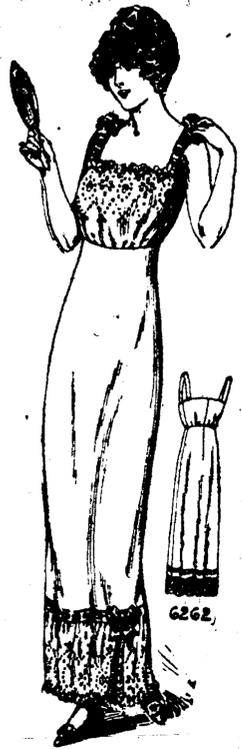

It is not generally known that if a spray of gladiolus is cut when the first flower appears, or rather opens, and placed in water, it will bloom just as well as if on the stalk.

Demand for Horses.

A good horse will always command a good price, no matter how popular the automobile becomes, and this applies to draft harness and saddle horses alike.

GOVERNOR SIGNS SUFFRAGE BILL

ILLINOIS FIRST STATE EAST OF MISSISSIPPI TO GIVE VOTES TO WOMEN.

MOVING PICTURES OF SIGNING ARE TAKEN.

Wife of Governor and Other Prominent Advocates of Equal Rights are Present when Measure Become a Law.

Gov. Dunne of Illinois signed the woman suffrage bill passed by the general assembly. Moving pictures of the signing were taken. The bill provides that Illinois women of legal age may vote for all statutory offices. Opponents of the measure declare it will be tested in the courts.

Mrs. Edward F. Dunne, wife of the governor, was present at the signing and sat in the picture as the first lady of the state. Mrs. Geo. Wilbur Trout, Mrs. Sherman M. Booth and Antoinette Funk, the suffragette crusaders who labored for a week to get the bill passed, appeared at the governor's office.

By his signature, Gov. Dunne made Illinois the first state east of the Mississippi to give women the right of the ballot.

Gettysburg Fears Famine.

The vanguard of the 250,000 strangers expected to take part in the celebration of the semi-centennial of the battle of Gettysburg, began arriving in Gettysburg. As this is a town of only 4,000 inhabitants the people are panic-stricken. All hotels are already bought out, and it is feared many visitors will have to sleep in the open. The legislature is taking steps to provide quarters for 10,000 veterans, but is making no provisions for the civilian visitors. Many townspeople have bought provisions for two weeks.

Turks Shoot Twenty Men.

In expiation of the assassination of Grand Visier Mahmud Shevket Pasha and his military aid, Ibrahim Bey, 20 men were put to death at Constantinople. The arrests of the men were made beginning the day after the slaying and their conviction by court martial followed, the court concluding the cases Saturday. The men were lined up and shot in rapid succession, the affair occupying but a few minutes.

Nine Men Are Drowned.

Nine men were drowned and five others had a narrow escape when a sudden Mississippi river squall hit the government survey boat Beaver, causing it to capsize four miles above New Madrid, Mo.

The boat sank near Hotchkiss light in Snake Bend, and as soon as a report of the accident was received, word was sent to Memphis and the government steamer Chaska hurried to the scene.

The party had been up the river on surveying work and it is supposed were about to return here when the squall struck them.

Lad Drowned in Creek.

E. Levere Benant, 16 years old, son of William Bennett, living three and one-half miles east of Hillsdale, was drowned in Beech creek. He had ridden his wheel through the hot sun with the thermometer standing above 90 and was seized with cramps when he jumped in. He took one plunge into the narrow creek which was about six feet deep and never came up.

Aviator Gardiner is Drowned.

Fred E. Gardiner, an aviator, was drowned when his aeroplane turned turtle and fell 100 feet into Keuka at Bath, N. Y. He tipped the machine a trifle too sharply as he was turning its course and it quickly flopped over, plunging into the water with him underneath it.

HORSES PURPOSELY BLINDED

Charge is Made Against Dealers in Chicago who Made the Animals Docile.

That a large number of horses in Chicago have been deliberately made blind to make them more easily managed, is the report of agents of Anti-Cruelty society, whose curiosity was aroused by the docility of young and apparently asked for horse dealers accused of the mutilations.

"These horses have been blinded by men who guarantee to purchasers that they will not shy and need no blinders," said Hugo Krauss, superintendent of the society. "A needle has been jabbed through each retina. The wound is scarcely noticeable, but a horse so treated will never see again. Peddlers in particular desire horses which are quiet, and the blinding of the animals has been put on a commercial basis."

In the South Water street market 60 horses were found that had been blinded, presumably by this method.

Confession Uncovers Big Graft

In the confession of Isadore Rader District Attorney Whitman believes he has found the clue to systematic robbery and graft to the amount of $5,000,000 a year.

It is announced at the office of the district attorney that as a result of the affidavits of the self-confessed "Fagin" fence and briber of police detectives, there would follow an investigation of the detective force of the police department which probably would take most of the summer to complete, and which would be followed by an expose of a graft ring that included merchants, jobbers, keepers of warehouses, auctioneers and employees of nearly every large firm in the city which handles merchandise in transportation.

Rothschild Denies Oil Rumor.

Lord Rothschild, discussing a report cabled from New York that Rothschild's London house had joined the Waters-Pierce Co. to fight against Standard Oil, said: "Bosh! Who invented that? It is a piece of the biggest nonsense I have yet heard. There is not a single vestige of truth in it."

Young Fealist. Children are naturally imitative and sometimes use adult catchwords and sayings with surprising results. This story, for instance, is told of a little girl who, to employ an old-fashioned colloquialism, felt her "nose put out of joint" by the advent of a new baby.

"You don't look very happy this morning, dear," a visitor remarked, sympathetically. "Is anything the matter?"

"No," she solemnly answered, "only I think there's too much competition in the world."

Homes Too Dismal.

"We want more player-pianos in the home. We want more billiard tables, more talking machines, more laughter and good cheer."

The speaker was Jerome S. McWade, the Duluth millionaire sociologist. He continued:

"I am an implacable foe to the dismal, stern, strict home too common among us here in the middle west."

Mr. McWade sighed and added: "The fact that there is no place like home makes wanderers of a good many young men."

COMPLICATION OF WOMAN'S ILLS

Yields to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Athens, Texas.—"I had a complication of diseases, some of them of long standing. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and some other things that you suggested. I must confess that I am much better in every way and have been relieved of some of the worst troubles. My neighbors say I look younger now than I did fifteen years ago."—Mrs. SARAH R. WHATLEY, Athens, Texas, R. F. D. No. 3, Box 92.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, many of them state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

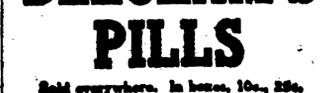

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., confidential, Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

KNOW HE WOULD COME BACK

Under the Circumstances Clerk Felt Justified in Extending Credit to Unknown Customer.

In a Washington club the other evening reference was made to foxiness, which recalled to Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon an incident that occurred in a general store in a rural western town.

One afternoon, the senator said, a stranger entered the store and asked the young man clerk for a pair of boots. While trying them on, the prospective customer said he had only three dollars with him, and asked, if he could be trusted for the balance of 50 cents until the next day. The young clerk willingly agreed.

After the boots had been wrapped and the customer had gone the proprietor of the store sternly took the clerk to task.

"What in the world did you do a thing like that for?" he peevishly exclaimed. "You don't know the man, and he will never come back with that 50 cents."

"Oh, yes, he will be back, all right," was the smiling assurance of the youthful clerk.

"You seem very certain of it!" cried the displeased boss. "What grounds have you for thinking so?"

"The boots that I wrapped up for him," responded the foxy clerk, "are both for the left foot."

Ouch! One of those dear lady friends of ours who take a particular interest in other people's affairs, got on a car and sat down beside a quiet looking man, whose face was badly pitted.

"Why, you poor man," she exclaimed. "How you must have suffered! How long ago did you have the smallpox?"

"Madam," was the seriously spoken reply, "what evidently drew your attention are not pits of smallpox. I had these put on by a beauty specialist to keep my face from skidding when I eat watermelon."

A Hot Finish. Friend—Did your novel have a happy ending?

Ritter—No, unhappy. Seven publishers turned it down, and I burned it up.

BANISHED Coffee Finally Had to Go.

The way some persons cling to coffee, even after they know it is doing them harm, is a puzzler. But it is an easy matter to give it up for good, when Postum is properly made and used instead. A girl writes:

"Mother had been suffering with nervous headaches for seven weary years, but kept on drinking coffee.

"One day I asked her why she did not give up coffee, as a cousin of mine had done who had taken to Postum. But Mother was such a slave to coffee she thought it would be terrible to give it up.

"Finally, one day, she made the change to Postum, and quickly her headaches disappeared. One morning while she was drinking Postum so freely and with such relish, I asked for a taste.

"That started me on Postum and I now drink it more freely than I did coffee, which never comes into our house now."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms. Regular Postum (must be boiled.) Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a large spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know—the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future. "There's a Reason" for Postum.

Find weather and good roads are here and so are the traveling grocers, and stove vendors will shortly follow. These are jolly, good hearted fellows who go around the country selling groceries at half price to keep the dear people from being swindled by the merchants, who pay taxes, help build up the country, and very probably have a large account against us who didn't have the ready cash when we needed clothes or groceries.—Northville Record.

An exchange briefly sums up a man's life as follows: "From birth a boy can own property; at seven he is answerable for crime; at 14 he if necessary, could choose his guardian; at 14 he is punishable for a misdemeanor; at 18 he is qualified for military service; at 21 he may declare himself independent of his father and is old enough to vote, work the roads and be sued for breach of promise; at 25 he is eligible to congress; at 30 to the United States senate; at 35 to the presidency; at 45 he is exempt from military service, jury duty and paying poll tax."

Individual drinking buckets for horses is the latest thing in the health line. It appears that the old fashioned watering troughs are breeding places for glander germs. Individual paddling pools for ducks will be the next thing.

Owing to the frosts in California the lemon crop this year is very limited and most of the lemons will have to be imported, which will nearly double the price. It will be considered a luxury for some one to hand you a lemon this year.

R. G. Sigler of South Lyon has closed a deal whereby after July 15 he will assume the dental practice of Dr. Carr of Lansing and will have one of the largest dental practices in the capitol city. The Doctor has many friends here who will be glad to learn of his advancement.

The agents of the railroad companies here have received official notice of an act passed by the last legislature prohibiting persons in an offensive state of intoxication from entering or remaining as passengers upon trains or interurban cars. The law also makes public drinking on trains an offence, and conductors are given authority to make arrests, turn the offenders over to the proper authorities at the next station, and to confiscate the liquor.

An exchange revives an old one when it says. "A farmer finds a one dollar bill and appropriates it, by right of discovery, to himself. He goes to town and pays it to a newspaper man on what he owed him; the newspaper man hands it over to a merchant to settle his account; the merchant pays his meat bill with it; and the butcher pays it back to the original finder to finish paying for a calf he had purchased. After which the farmer takes it to the bank and discovers it to be a counterfeit, and on the ensuing Sunday puts it into the missionary collection. Query: Are all these debts canceled with the spurious one dollar."

SOCIETY-MADNESS.

We are not content to leave much to Nature nowadays. If we were, perhaps we would get along better than we do and with fewer worries to make us grow old before our time, says the Charleston News and Courier. Philadelphia just at present is being held up before the eyes of the country as a horrible example. Some industrious statisticians, seeking light or perhaps seeking coin, has undertaken to ascertain the effects of social activity in that city upon those who take part in it. He has discovered that the season which is just now drawing to a close has very nearly sent some of the society leaders to their graves. He has unearthed the fact that of the women who have been in the main responsible for what is declared to be the most strenuous social season in the history of the city of Quakers several are now in a state of utter collapse as a direct result of the strain to which they have been subjected. This is interesting, but why get alarmed? Social leaders of this sort can very well be spared. If they are taken away from us they never will be missed. Why not let Nature have her way and inflict what punishment she deems fit on those who have not intelligence enough to take care of themselves?

Floating factories have become an important part of the development of the forest resources of India. In certain parts of that country the forests are only accessible through the water courses, and the great expense of erecting the plants for the utilization of the lumber resources makes such a course impracticable. Therefore, sawmills and other manufacturing establishments are built on floating platforms and moved up the streams as they are needed. After the lumber is prepared in a sawmill it can be packed in a way that makes transportation much more economical than any system of logging. Plants for the preparation of tannin extracts have also been established in this manner. The plants are built on flatboats, 200 feet long by 27 feet wide, capable of carrying a load of 470 tons.

The American traveler who finds himself in Dresden or Leipzig will do well in case of need to look out for policemen who wear badges bearing the crossed flags of the United States and England, says the Argonaut. Officers thus decorated can speak English, and even though it be not the most accurate kind it will suffice. And now Berlin is to follow the same praiseworthy example. A number of officers have been selected and sent to a language school from which they will emerge fully equipped to be guide, philosopher and friend to the wandering tourist innocent of all tongues save his own.

When the Sultan of Turkey comes into an American court on a suit, he must be exactly on the same footing as any other litigant, and has to put up a bond like any other, which was the information conveyed to his royal ears via his attorney, in a suit for the insurance on the life of a rich Armenian. The decision is a patriotic one, as any citizen in an American court is as good as any king, emperor, prince or sultan. As far as the bond was concerned, that was prudent as well as patriotic.

The experiment of women on the police force has worked well in California. Los Angeles has two who wear "plain clothes" and patrol the streets with the object of affording protection to girls. Each will exercise surveillance over the dance halls, skating rinks, moving picture shows and safes on her beat, and it is safe to predict that they will perceive in advance and adroitly avert a great deal of villainy.

The gyroscope, it is claimed, has made aviation safer. With it the aviator is debarred from doing his own gyrating at critical moments, and so far, it is expected to be a great gain to aerial experimental travel. But the safer sailing in the air becomes, the more it will lose its attraction.

HONOR MEMORY OF CHANDLER BY GIFT OF STATUE

CAREER OF STATESMAN

In Days of Civil War and For Fifteen Years Chandler Was Powerful Figure in Politics of Nation.

On Monday, June 30th, at 11 a. m. in the Hall of Fame in the national capitol at Washington, occurred the unveiling of the statue of Zachariah Chandler. In the presence of a company composed of many prominent citizens of Michigan and national officials the marble likeness of "Old Zach" was formally presented by the state to the nation.

The statue was unveiled by Chandler Hale, son of ex-Senator Hale and grandson of Chandler's. United States Senator William Alden Smith presided at the ceremonies. The invocation was pronounced by Rev. Henry Couden, blind chaplain of the house of representatives, formerly of Port Huron.

Arthur H. Vandenburg, publisher of the Grand Rapids Herald and Chairman of the Commission, presented the statue on behalf of the commission with a few well chosen words. It was accepted for the state and in turn presented to the nation by Lieutenant Governor John Q. Ross. The statue was accepted on behalf of the nation by Hon. Henry B. Brown, of Washington, Justice of the United States Supreme Court, retired. Judge Brown's home was formerly in Detroit and he was one of Chandler's intimates. His address was rich with reminiscence of the days of the reconstruction when Chandler was at the height of his career.

In the afternoon of the same day, there were special Chandler memorial service in the Senate. United States Senator Charles E. Townsend of Michigan took general charge of this program, by invitation of the Commission. At the same time there were memorial service in the House under the auspices of the Michigan delegation.

The Michigan Society at Washington attended the ceremonies in a body.

Stands Beside Lewis Cass

The statue of Chandler is Michigan's second contribution to the national Valhalla, and stands beside that of Lewis Cass, who was also a senator from the Wolverine state.

Cass was a Democrat and Chandler a Republican, but they were men of very much the same type, and it is regarded as fitting that they should be companions in the Hall of Fame, because Chandler came on the scene as Cass was leaving it, and, together, they made the name of Michigan noted in historical and political annals. Cass was a New Hampshire man, born in revolutionary times—1782. His father, in early life, was a blacksmith, who served with distinction under Washington in many famous battles, and who, after retiring to peaceful pursuits, was commissioned for service in the then new northwest. That is how Lewis Cass happened to be in Ohio in 1812, when the war broke out and how he happened to lead a march into Michigan by Ohio militiamen and United States regulars, and how he came to settle in Detroit after several years of legal and political campaigning in the Buckeye state.

Cass was Jeffersonian Democrat

He was educated in Exeter academy, and all his political influences in the early days were those of the Federalist party. Yet he was during all his manhood, a Jeffersonian Democrat, a representative of the people and an expounder and defender of slavery, as a general proposition, and a bitter foe of intemperance.

Cass was first elected United States senator from Michigan in 1845, and resigned on being nominated as the Democratic candidate for president of the United States in 1848. He was defeated by the Whig candidate, General Zachary Taylor. The coming of the Civil war found him a member of the Buchanan cabinet, from which he retired to plead the cause of the Union on the hustings.

Lewis Cass died in 1866, and Zachariah Chandler came to the front. Chandler takes his place in history as a politician rather than a statesman, and yet "Old Zach" had many of the characteristics which go to make up an American statesman.

Chandler Opposed to Cass

"Zach" Chandler's first political speech was in Detroit in 1843, when mounted on a dry goods box set up on a street corner he advocated the election of "Old Zach" Taylor to the presidency as against Lewis Cass. Zachariah Chandler was a New Englander, also, and was born at New Bedford, N. H., in 1813. He declined the offer of a Puritan father to give him a college education, and determined to be a merchant, struck out for the wilderness of the northwest, arriving at Detroit to begin his commercial life about the time Lewis Cass was at the beginning of his public career. Chandler's last speech was made in McCormick hall in Chicago, one night in November, 1879, before one of the largest political audiences ever gathered in that great city. He was never more virile, more direct, powerful and convincing in his public utterances than on that night, and his speech was at once a defense and a eulogy of the Republican party. Before morning he was dead, passing away peacefully and alone in his bed chamber, when the applause of his hearers had hardly died away.

Chandler, although of rough manner and speech, was a student of history and a man of deep conviction, he was one of the founders of the Republican party, when elected to the senate was a man of wealth and influence. Within one week after taking his seat he had turned over his vast interests to others, leaving himself free to act on public questions with an eye solely to the public good. His political adversaries derided his political ambitions, but he took front rank in Washington as a man of conviction and honor. The war clouds had already gathered and he took the oath of office with men who a few years later were seceders and battling to destroy the union.

One of the men who stood side by side with Zachariah Chandler to take the oath as senator was Jefferson Davis. More than 20 years later at a night session of the United States senate, when a bill granting amnesty to southern men who had been soldiers in the Mexican war was under discussion, Lucius Quintus Lamar, a senator from Mississippi, delivered a fervent eulogy upon Davis, and as the echoes of his eloquence were dying out of the chamber a note fluttered down from the gallery near the desk of "Old Zach" Chandler.

Was Bitter Against South.

It was written by William E. Chandler of New Hampshire, and the late Uriah Painter of Washington, and was to the effect that it was a pity there was no man in the senate fearless enough and able enough to reply to that speech. "Old Zach" read the note, looked up at the gallery and winked, pushed his habitual quid back into his cheek, arose and made a speech that is a classic. It held the senate literally spellbound, and no man essayed to make reply. Chandler recited the occasion of his standing with Davis and other southern men before the presiding officer and swearing to support a government that "they were then plotting to overthrow," recounted heart-rending war scenes that he, as a leader of war sentiment in congress, and as a member of the war investigating committee, witnessed on the fields of battle; referred to maimed and wounded thousands whose tortures "made humanity shudder," and then, pounding his desk in emphasis, he denounced Jefferson Davis as one whom "Every man, woman and child in the north believed to be a double-dyed traitor to his country."

Zachariah Chandler served three consecutive terms as United States senator and was defeated in the wave of 1875 that sent the Logans, the Camerons, the Carpenters and the other stalwarts into private life. He was appointed secretary of the interior in the cabinet of President Grant. In the political campaign of 1876 he was chairman of the Republican national committee, and in the crisis and suspense as to whether Rutherford B. Hayes of Ohio or Samuel J. Tilden of New York had been elected president he sent broadcast to the world the famous laconic message which he would never withdraw, alter or amend. "Hayes has 185 votes and is elected."

AMENDMENTS TO ERDMAN ACT PASS

SENATE RUSHES THE MATTER TO AVOID THREATENED STRIKE.

FAVORED ALIKE BY EMPLOYEES AND RAILROADS.

Provide for Enlargement of Board of Arbitration From Three Members to Six and Official Mediator Appointed by President.

With a view to averting the threatened strike of 90,000 railroad employees east of Chicago, the senate rushed through the passage of amendments to the Erdman mediation act sought by the railroads and railway employes, as affording suitable machinery for the settlement of their pending disagreements.

Action came only after determined fighting for unanimous consent to consider the measure by both the Democratic and Republican members of the interstate commerce committee, led by Senator Newlands.

The amendments enlarge the board of arbitration, provided under the Erdman act, from three to six. The railroads have declined to submit the present deputies to a board composed of only three members. It also provides for the appointment by the president of an official mediator, independent of all government bureaus, at a salary $7,500.

Boy Killed Flying Kite.

James Kossina of New York a boy of 11 years, is probably the youngest victim in the long list of fatal aviation accidents. He was carried to death while flying a kite. He was on the roof of a six-story tenement building in the east side when a gale from the East river caught his kite and pulled him to the edge of the roof. He did not think of letting go of his kite string until too late to save himself, and he fell six stories to the ground, being instantly killed.

Life Insurance On Increase.

The life insurance companies in the United States and Canada distributed a total of $628,350,000 during 1912, according to statistics prepared by the Insurance Press. The same authority shows that the life insurance written and revised in the United States by the regular companies alone was almost $3,233,000,000, an increase of about $355,500,000 over 1911.

"Temple in Sphinx" Found To Be Hoax

Diagrammatic View of the Discoveries Reported to Have Been Found in the Sphinx and Which It Now Appears Was a Great Hoax.

It is not often that the serious science of archaeology is enlivened by a hoax, but one of a daring kind has recently caused considerable annoyance to Egyptologists in general, and to one well-known scholar, Dr. E. Reissner, in particular.

Some weeks ago there was printed all over the world an account of some astonishing discoveries made in regard to the famous Sphinx at Gizeh. It stated that Dr. Reissner, who has for some years been working on behalf of the University of Harvard, had made some most astonishing discoveries in the interior of the great statue of the Sphinx, which for centuries has been the guardian of the royal necropolis at Gizeh.

Had it not been for the unjustifiable use of the name of Dr. Reissner, who is well known as an explorer and one of the great authorities on the prehistoric antiquities of Egypt, the account would have been treated with the ridicule it deserved.

According to the account published extensively in England and America Dr. Reissner had discovered a large temple over 100 feet long within the body of the Sphinx, and connected with this by a tunnel, a second small temple, some 60 feet long by 14 feet wide, in the head of the Sphinx. The larger temple was described as the tomb of Menes or Menes, the first of the Pharaohs, and a drawing was given of an ebony tablet inscribed in archaic characters which was said to have been found in the temple.

The announcement of this startling discovery caused immediate inquiry. The chief authorities at the Cairo museum, Prof. Sir Gaston Maspero and Captain Weigall, the inspector of antiquities for the Cairo district, both denied the slightest basis for the report. No attempt to explore the interior of the Sphinx had been made, nor would any such explorations be allowed, as the nature and character of the monument are already well known. Moreover Dr. Reissner has not been working in the Cairo province this season, having been, as for the last few years, in Nubia and the Sudan. The absence of Dr. Reissner from Cairo was no doubt the reason for the silence of his name in connection with the hoax.

The true story of the Sphinx, which is very simple, remains, therefore, unchanged. The great limestone block out of which the colossal figure is hewn forms the eastern termination of the limestone platform on which the pyramids are built. No doubt in the remote prehistoric times the projecting rock had become weathered into the rude outline of the human head and face. There are many similar wind worn rocks to be seen on the banks of the Nile, and there is usually a superstitious sanctity attributed to them by Arabs, no doubt inherited from the old Egyptians.

In early historic times, certainly before the age of the pyramid builders, some 4,000 years before our era, the figure was improved by human hands, the head and beard being carved, while in later ages the whole was painted red, which gives it the appearance of sandstone.

Portions of the serpent which adorned the forehead of the Sphinx and of the beard are to be seen in the British museum. The nature of the stone and painting are clearly to be seen.

The Sphinx of Gizeh figures little in Egyptian literature, the chief reference to it being in the time of Thothmes IV., of the eighteenth dynasty, B. C. 1450. It was this monarch who built or restored the small temple between the fore paws. In the large tablet at the end of the temple Thothmes tells an interesting story. The king had been hunting in the district and, being tired at noonday, lay down to rest beneath the shadow of the Sphinx.

During his siesta, the god Ra Heru Khuti (Harmachis), to whom the Sphinx was sacred, appeared to him in a dream and ordered him to clear away the sand which had then, as now, been wind driven to such an extent as to bury the temple.

This task Thothmes accomplished, but by the time of Ramesses II. the temple was again buried in the sand. In recent years it was cleared by H. Mariette but is now nearly buried by the desert dust again.

A strange romance of the east lies hidden behind the history of a collection of Persian lustre tiles that will be on exhibition in London next week. In the Maidan Mosque, at Kazan, there once stood a great Mihrab, or praying niche, that was made by the most cunning artists of the thirteenth century. Fifty years ago the tiles, which were made by a process of which the secret has long been lost, began to disappear. One by one they passed out of the mosque at irregular intervals. No one knew how they vanished or who took them, and when a guard was set to watch over the sacred treasure by night he was found in the morning strangled in front of the Mihrab.

Far away, in Teheran, an Englishman, who was interested in Persian pottery, received occasionally beautiful glazed tiles from a mysterious native who could not or would not tell him where they came from. He continued to buy these tiles for fifteen years; one day he discovered that some of them, when placed next to one another, had readable Kufic and Neshky inscriptions from the Koran.

He began a great game of jigsaw with the tiles, and ultimately built up, with but few tiles missing, the famous lost Mihrab. The collection, which belongs to Mr. John Richard Preece, the Englishman in question, contains some other extraordinary relics, including a part of the tomb of the Prophet Daniel, covered with crude carvings, and an Armenian altar piece of twelfth century workmanship, in which all the divine and human figures are splashed with blood.

One of the most valuable things in the exhibition is a carpet made for the Shah Abbas, who reigned from 1587 to 1628 A. D. This carpet is thirty-one feet long by twelve feet wide, and its pattern reproduces the features of an old-time Persian pleasure garden. It is said to be insured for £5,000.

Something Really Serious. He came into the president's office, the small black sinner, to answer to the charge of leaving his work without proper permission. He tearfully explained that he had been absent a whole afternoon because his mother was ill. The interrogator diagnosed her illness as baseball, but the defendant deposed that it was "heart trouble."

"Heart trouble, eh?" replied the president, pondering. "That sounds serious, sonnie. Now, where and when does she feel the pain worst?"

"At night, and in her big toe," was the snuffing reply.

THE BEST TREATMENT FOR ITCHING SCALPS, DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp, prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, the following special treatment is most effective, agreeable and economical. On retiring, comb the hair out straight all around, then begin at the side and make a parting, gently rubbing Cuticura Ointment into the parting with a bit of soft flannel held over the end of the finger. Anoint additional partings about half an inch apart until the whole scalp has been treated, the purpose being to get the Cuticura Ointment on the scalp skin rather than on the hair. It is well to place a light covering over the hair to protect the pillow from possible stain. The next morning, shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Shampoos alone may be used as often as agreeable, but once or twice a month is generally sufficient for this special treatment for women's hair.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.

D. D. AITKEN.

Hon. D. D. Aitken, of Flint, president of the Michigan State Fair, can tell His Honor that his learned opponent's testimony is irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial, and in the same breath tell you how to raise Blue Ribbon Holsteins.

He is the modern exemplification of the country gentleman. He is as much at home in blue overalls as he is at a diplomatic function in Washington. He figures prominently in both.

At the age of 18, while attempting to induce a pair of very colts to give up their life of ease and luxury for the sterner occupation of dragging around a green Studebaker stocked with fire wood, David landed plumb in the middle of a spell of sickness.

A man in a dark coat, with a small black satchel, announced to the elder Aitkens that their son had broken his leg in no less than five distinct and separate places. When David got so he could sit up and take something stronger than broth he took to prowling through the old law books in the Aitken library.

He became so interested in the Blackstone art that he entered the office of Judge William Newton when he had recovered from effects of his curbing incident. He decided, however, that sweeping out the office and opening the mail wasn't just the thing for any young man who wanted to pile up some of those milled edged things the unfeeling press always associates with the names of Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Rockefeller.

He heeded the alluring call of the east and accepted a situation (his previous connection had only been a job) with a New Jersey firm as book-keeper and later became a knight of the grip for the same concern.

He grappled with the law again in New York in 1876 and returned to Flint in 1878 and was given the right to hang out his shingle and say, "I object, your honor, on behalf of the defendant."

In a moment of weakness, in 1892, he consented to run for Congress on the G. O. P. ticket. When they counted up the votes Aitken had won by so far that it was some time before the doctor permitted his opponent to take anything stronger than egg-nogs.

When he got so he didn't have to worry about the coal supply the Hon. D. D. Aitken took up the raising of Holsteins. Just outside of Flint he maintains a modern farm which almost runs itself automatically. He merely presses a button to get some rich yellow cream, and another to get some excellent country butter for one of his city friends.

Last year the tempters came and asked him if he wouldn't consent to take the presidency of the Michigan State Fair. Before he could refuse the royal scepter was slipped into his hand. His long connection with the fair as a director makes him conversant with all the conditions and his popularity and leadership fit him admirably for the job.

He says the 1913 fair will be the biggest and best Michigan ever had, and his habit of making good on his assertions inspires confidence.

LOWLY HOG IS ECONOMICAL

Puts to Good Use All It Consumes, Eighty Per Cent. of Carcass Being Available.

The American hog is the most economical of animals. Of what a horse eats 52 per cent. goes to waste. Forty-four per cent. of the food consumed by cattle is similarly lost, and 82 per cent. of all that sheep take into their stomachs. Only 12 per cent. of what a pig eats is wasted. Fifty-two per cent. of the food eaten by a hog goes to make growth. A sheep utilizes only 25 per cent. of its sustenance for growing, which means, of course, the production of meat. These figures are obtained from recent experiments made by government experts, who find, as a result of their study, that the pig has what they call an "economic superiority" even over poultry. That is to say, it produces more meat in proportion to its weight, and the animal weighs more in proportion to the amount of food it consumes. Eighty-four per cent. of the carcass of a hog is utilized as meat; of the beef animal, 75 per cent. is edible, and of the sheep only 54 per cent. Thus it appears that a greater percentage of the pig is available for food than of any other domesticated creature.

Acid Phosphate in Henhouses.

The best practice is to use acid phosphate or floats freely in the henhouse. You can put the manure into order for drilling by thorough exposure to drying air and then pounding up and running through a coarse sieve. It is deficient in phosphoric acid, which the soil usually needs, and at least 50 pounds of a good grade of acid phosphate should be added to each 100 pounds of the dry manure. Four or five hundred pounds per acre may be the most profitable amount for your rye.
