The Glorious Fourth Good Crowd, Fine Time Day a Success in Pinckney

The booming of cannon and other sundry small instruments of racket announced at midnight that Independence day was with us again and with it someone patriotic enough to herald its coming with noise and the odor of burning powder.

Fourth of July morning dawned bright and clear and by ten o'clock when the parade started, the streets of Pinckney were thronged with people from miles around all fussed up in gala attire. Old Sol did his best and it proved to be one of the hottest days so far this year. The crowd however was genial natured, even though sweltering, and good fellowship reigned everywhere supreme.

The business men were not idle the day before as the beautiful appearance of their places of business manifested. The interior of the stores were artistically decorated with hundreds of yards of red, white and blue, while streamers of the same material with large and small flags floated on the breeze from the exterior of the buildings. A number of small evergreen trees turned Main street into a veritable forest glade and made a pretty sylvan setting for the gaily decked booths where ice cream, lemonade, etc., were dispensed to the thirsty crowd throughout the day.

The automobile parade was formed in line at the High School Building with North Lake Band at the head, the East Mariou Band bringing up the rear. Only a few of the machines were decorated but they all deserve special mention. The judges, Mrs. Lucy Reason, Erastus Kennedy and W. E. Murphy found it difficult to choose the prize winners, but they finally decided that Percy Swarthout should receive first prize, Dr. H. F. Sigler second and J. J. Teeple third. The prize for the worst looking machine was awarded to E. E. Hoyt and R. W. Caverly as theirs was the only one in the parade. Mr. Arthur Vedder took the cake all right for the worst dressed person on foot. The parade was a unique feature of the program of the day and was much enjoyed by all spectators.

Following the parade, the crowd adjourned to the public square and there received a rare treat in the addresses delivered by Louis E. Howlett of Howell, Fr. M. J. Commerford of Flint, Chas. Smoyer of Akron, Ohio and Hiram Smith, Prosecuting Attorney of Roscommon Co., Mich., with G. W. Teeple as acting toastmaster.

The program for the afternoon began at one o'clock and was carried out as follows:

100 yard dash—1st Harold Swarthout, 2nd Claude Kennedy.
Fat man's race—1st Will Allen, 2nd Irvin Kennedy.

Sack race—1st Marvin Bruff, 2nd Herman Eisle.

Relay contest—1st Narron Martin, 2nd Walter Gallup.

Frank Gay after working about two hours on the greased pole, which was nicely coated with automobile grease, finally won the prize offered for that feat.

The horse race was won by Fowlerville parties.

As parties from Gregory were not present at the time the tug of war was pulled off, teams were picked from the crowd, with six men on a side and was one of the best events of the sports program.

Not Sawed Off Yet

The only disappointment of the day proved to be the ball game between Pinckney and Howell high school nines which was broken up in its most interesting period by rain. Only four full innings were played and this does not constitute a game under the rules.

As each team had won and lost a game this was to be the decisive contest and between eight hundred and a thousand spectators deserted the delicately sprinkled streets down town and braved the heat and dust to see their favorite teams saw off the tie.

The Howell rooters, carefully selected for sand and lung power were there in force and, remembering their previous defeat here, took no chances and left their jinx at home.

Ward Swarthout was on the mound for Pinckney and Guy Kuhn performed for Howell. Swarthout was at his best for four innings, holding his opponents scoreless while Pinckney garnered four runs. In the first half of the fifth he weakened and Howell started to even up matters.

Right here is where the whole force of Howell rooters started proceedings, the man who put the howl in Howell leading off and making so much noise that his team scored three times before the long delayed but welcome rain relieved the situation. As Howell had three runs counted, two men on bases, good batters coming up and the well organized rooters producing a brand of fortissimo clatter that defied the thunder, it was a sorry bunch of Howell sports that left the grounds only when the rain dampened their ardor, and drove them to shelter.

These two teams would make a first class drawing card for the ball game at the coming annual St. Mary's picnic.

Devotees of shooting enjoyed immensely the blue rock contest held at the ball grounds. The meet was held by outside clubs.

A large number remained for the band concert and dance in the evening. The dance was attended by nearly a hundred couples, and thus was closed enjoyably, the first Pinckney Fourth of July celebration since 1891.

Card of Thanks

I sincerely thank the many friends who sent me post cards on my anniversary. They have helped to pass many lonely hours up on the Hill.

Sparks

For over two hours Frank Gay bravely strove to climb the greased pole. Curry combs and sand paper fastened to his pants did not prove to be of any assistance in his endeavors to reach the five spot at the top. A step ladder and a long stick brought the prize within his reach, and then Frank, exhausted by his strenuous efforts recuperated at the Tonic stand.

A peanut vender lost considerable patronage by going too close to the speaker's stand selling his wares while the oratory was being worked off by Fr. Commerford. They jockeyed awhile for position in the limelight, then his Reverence finally secured the pole and easily distanced his discouraged competitor.

The city street sprinkler attracted considerable attention. Some explanation was necessary to enlighten people to the object of its patrolling the streets. It consisted of a large box on wheels filled with water to which a gas pipe was connected and through this the water percolated out of the tank and what did not evaporate on its downward course lightly pattered to the ground without making the street muddy.

There is no discount on L. E. Howlett as a Fourth of July spect-binder, but even his funniest stories failed to interest a couple in the audience who were basily engaged holding each others' hands and exchanging rapturous glances.

Dr. Morley Vaughn was in town all day, ready with his saw and othersurgical instruments to assist the local doctors in the Red Cross department. Ed. Quinn, who was injured in the horse race was the only one to require his services and Ed. was patched up in the most approved manner.

Irvin Kennedy won second prize in the fat man's race and would have taken first money easily, but riding at the head of the parade in the morning on Dr. Hefferman's untrained steed put him out of condition for a foot race. The horse had a special aversion to the decorations on John Teeple's auto and Irvin showed great horsemanship, riding without a saddle and keeping the horse under control.

Hit By Lightning

During the heavy electric storm last Saturday afternoon lightning struck the home of H. H. Swarthout on the roof above the dining room. The bolt of lightning entered the room knocking off a small amount of plaster and went out via the telephone. Luckily no one was in the room at the time, Mrs. Swarthout having just stepped out to the woodshed and upon returning discovered the room full of smoke, although nothing caught fire and but slight damage was done.

Building Character and Muscle in Summer Camp

More than once I have heard a tired boy exclaim: "Gee whiz! I didn't think that it was that much work to sharpen an ax."

Few city boys know the names of the common trees at sight, much less are they able to distinguish between pine, spruce and hemlock boards. Unless they see the fruit on the trees

BOYS IN CAMP

WHEN a boy has spent a season at a good summer camp it leaves an impression on his mind that time will not eradicate. At the close of the season he has had the fun that he wanted to have, he has taken his part in the games and contests, he has climbed mountains and sailed on lakes and streams, he has cruised with the fellows and shared their pleasures and hardships, and he has returned home filled with the memories of gorgeous feasts, of midnight pranks, of adventures on sea and on land, of encounters with friend and with foe, and of moments when the success or failure of a battle depended solely on his strength, his skill and his valor.

The influence left on a child's character by a summer thus spent cannot but be important. In the first place the child is away from his parents, away from those to whom he is accustomed to go for sympathy and advice. He is placed on his own resources in a manner quite new and strange.

A camp is not at all like a boarding school, where there are regular duties and a fixed routine for each activity of the day. The summer camp means fun, freedom, frolic and a chance to do nothing if one wishes. The boarding school means order, discipline, restraint and hard work at all times. Therefore, when a boy finds himself at a camp for the first time in his life he is often at a loss to know what to do, because he is often left to his own choice.

He has many new problems which must be thought out alone. He has come to camp to have a barrel of fun, and he means to have it. His first impulse is to make friends with everybody, and especially with the counselors. It is quite right that he should do this. And it is the especial duty of the counselors to have a watchful eye out for the new boys, to see that they do not get homesick or tire of the camp because of inactivity.

Ten weeks of camp life cannot but have its effect on the character of lads who are just beginning to feel the first impulses to do things that they have read about in books. There are no boys so bad that there is not some good in them, and there are no boys in camp so good that there is no bad in them, and some of it is pretty sure to crop out before summer is over. In many boys this badness has been lurking for years. It has not shown itself because of lack of opportunity. The boys' camp is one of the places where the inherent badness in a lad has an opportunity to unbottle itself without serious injury to the boy.

But camp life is of such a nature that these unbottlings are not of frequent occurrence. Before a bad habit has been fixed on the boy he is brought to a halt and having been shown that he has been doing wrong he learns a valuable lesson.

The average summer camp is not a Sunday school. It is not intended for such. On the other hand the directors of these camps are for the most part Christian gentlemen, having high ideals. A proper respect for the Sabbath day is required not only for the good of the boys, but also out of respect for the feelings of the people who live in the neighborhood. Where possible the children are invited to go to church, after which they take walks, go in bathing, read, tell stories, etc. Usually a song service of a more or less religious nature is held in the evening. Often one of the directors delivers an address in the main hall of the camp.

Some of the influences that are brought forcibly to bear upon the youths are those which put a premium on honor, truth, patience, generosity, forgiveness, usefulness, politeness, sturdiness, pluck and the like. A camper who is lacking in any of these qualities is soon made to feel the need of them, greatly to his benefit. It does a boy a world of good to mix with a lot of other boys of his own age, observing, as he usually will, their good traits and bad traits.

The educational advantages of camp life are only less important than are the moral advantages. For the most part the school books are closed, but nature is wide open. Book knowledge is of great value, but practical knowledge is often of more value.

In camp boys often get their first practical knowledge of money values. Here first they manage their own allowances and learn what it is to go broke till the next allowance is distributed. They often compete with the native boys of the village in their efforts to earn small sums of money to tide them over or to enable them to buy coveted treasures. This is a very good experience for any boy.

I have noticed that during the second year at camp a boy takes better care of his things than he does during the first year. This may be due to the fact that near the end of the first season his clothes, especially his trousers, were in bad condition, due to carelessness, and as no new ones were forthcoming, the lad became more or less self-conscious about his appearance, greatly to the delight of his companions. Sometimes a boy's shoes go wrong, and the parent, knowing where the fault is, makes him get on the best he can till he reaches home.

At camp children learn from necessity to mend, sew on buttons, sharpen tools, and best of all they learn how important it is to keep their tools sharp by practice in turning the gridstones.

they do not know the difference between a pear and an apple tree. In most camps boys learn to make these distinctions.

In camp boys and girls learn to wash dishes, to be economical with food and to like food that they would not previously eat at home. I have known camp life to change a boy's appetite completely, so that on going home he was glad to eat such wholesome foods as boiled rice and Indian meal mush, which he would not touch before.

Camping life will not make a child expert at any particular trade or occupation, but it serves to show him how much skill is required in doing much of the work usually performed by the laboring classes. Whenever a boy tries to perform any manual labor his respect for it increases. He has a try at rowing, swimming, sailing, fishing, running an engine, repairing a boat and sometimes in building small boats. He learns the use of tools common to country people, who are more independent of plumbers, carpenters, masons, etc., than city people are.

Perhaps one of the most important lessons for a child to learn is respect for labor. When a boy has hoed a few hills of corn he instinctively remarks that he would hate to keep that up all day. If he follows the hay cart for an hour he realizes that "raking after" is not all sport. When he takes a shovel and attempts to assist in digging a trench or drain he suddenly realizes why those laborers whom he has seen in the city at the same kind of work seemed to take their time about it. After five minutes of that work he learns just where his backbone is located.

There are many other educational advantages which are incidental to camp life, such as practice in singing, speech making, editorial work on the camp paper, literary entertainments, etc. The camp paper though, seldom more than a simple manuscript, is often a very ingenious production, in which the editor, together with the camp artist, succeeds in bringing home to the lads some wonderful bits of news as well as some 'healthful truths.'

The social advantages of camp life are many and varied. The close relation in which boys live at camp invariably results in the formation of permanent friendships.

SUNDAY NIGHT SUPPER

HOUSEKEEPER TELLS HOW SHE HAS SOLVED A PROBLEM.

Quite Possible to Have Good Things to Eat and Yet Reduce Work to a Minimum—How She Does It.

Sister and I always get the Sunday night's supper so that mother can have a rest from the household cares, writes a correspondent of the Boston Herald. We have concocted some rather good things to eat, and I am going to tell you about them, because the Sunday night's supper is always a bothersome meal. One of the things we have often is cheese sandwiches, hot.

They are made of brown bread which has been cut very thin and spread with a paste which has been made by rubbing six tablespoonfuls of freshly grated cheese with two tablespoonfuls of butter. This is then sprinkled with salt and paprika and the two sides of the sandwich firmly pressed together and the whole fried in hot butter. Just as soon as it is light brown in color it is taken from the fire. Sister has a cheese and nut sandwich which nearly everybody likes, and she serves this, too, for afternoon teas sometimes.

Chicken and nut sandwiches are good, too. Any chicken which is left over is chopped very fine and almonds and English walnuts are chopped fine and added to the chicken in about the proportion of a cupful of chicken to a quarter of a cupful of nuts. This is then softened with cream, so that it will spread easily on bread. It is then seasoned with salt and paprika. You can use either white or brown bread, whichever you like best.

We have a pretty way of serving eggs, too, by making a hollow in a slice of buttered toast. Into this put an egg sprinkled with grated cheese; pour a little cream over it and set in the oven to bake or just long enough for the egg to set.

The other day at an afternoon tea we had the most delicious chocolate sandwiches. Powdered chocolate is mixed with sugar, either boiling water or milk, and a little vanilla, and stirred over the fire until it is perfectly smooth and thick. Then it is taken off the stove to cool, and before it is quite cool it is spread between either thicknesses of bread or crackers. Really, you ought to try it sometimes; it is delicious.

Doing Several Things Together.

It was said of Caesar that he could dictate to five secretaries at one time. Whether true or not, at least Caesar had the first ideas of efficiency, because by grouping tasks and doing similar processes together we do save time. When peeling vegetables one can speed up if several peelings or pickings of fruit are done one after the other. By carefully planning the menus in advance it is surprising how many tasks can be grouped together with saving of time and effort and one handling of utensils. Try it and you will be surprised how efficient you will become and how much labor you save yourself.

Fruit Tarts.

Any kind of bottled or canned fruit, one pound of flour, one-half pound tinned marrow, sugar, water. Fill dish with fruit, add sugar in proportion; put the flour into a basin and rub in the marrow with a teaspoonful of powdered white sugar (a little baking powder may be added if liked). Wet up with enough water to make a stiff paste, roll out and cover the tart in the usual way; bake in a gentle oven. With some fruits, like gooseberries, currants, etc., there is too much juice and a little should be left out or it will boil over and spoil the appearance of the tart. A half hour to bake tart. Make one medium tart.

Mint Salad.

Break off the tender tops of spear-mint. To one pint add one tablespoonful of minced chives. Dissolve brown sugar in vinegar and pour over. Mustard or cressies may be used in place of the mint or very young onions instead of chives.

Baked Bean Soup.

To cold baked beans add as much tomato sauce, pinch of salt, pepper and half an onion. Cover with water and stew for half an hour. Sift and serve.

Spilled Water.

Water spilled upon the bed, when some one is ill, may be quickly dried in this manner: Fill a hot water bottle with boiling water and place it between the mattress and the bed clothing.

To Roast a Joint.

When about to roast a joint, cover it with a rind saved from a piece of ham or bacon and cook with it on. This will save the trouble of constant basting and will prevent the joint from burning or drying.

Really First Sunday School.

It is often stated that Robert Raikes was the founder of the first Sunday school at Gloucester, England, in 1780. The fact is that the first Sunday school was established by Ludwig Hoecker in 1740 at Ephrata, Lancaster county, Pennsylvania. This was forty years before the work of Mr. Raikes. Mr. Hoecker's school was for the religious instruction of the children of the neighborhood. Among other methods employed he wrote Bible verses upon cards, which the children committed to memory. Later he had the cards printed. Mr. Hoecker died in 1792, after a long and useful career.—Christian Herald.

Unchaperoned.

The poet invited the young lady to lunch in the bachelor apartment. Holding wild horses back was tame compared to holding that young lady back on the morning of the event. At last, at ten o'clock, she was allowed to go. As five winters' and summers had been the extent of her sojourn in the world, a chaperon was considered unnecessary. The poet determined that his little friend should have just what she wanted for lunch, and permitted her to order everything. Was it any wonder that the luncheon consisted of dill pickles, boiled tongue, potato salad, cheese, hard-boiled eggs, raisin cake, bananas, cream puffs, ice cream, and a few more incidentals? When mother heard and after she had emptied the castor oil bottle, she declared that never again would a child of hers lunch with a poet without a chaperon.

CUBS' FOOD

They Thrive on Grape-Nuts.

Healthy babies don't cry and the well-nourished baby that is fed on Grape-Nuts is never a crying baby. Many babies who cannot take any other food relish the perfect food, Grape-Nuts, and get well.

"My baby was given up by three doctors who said that the condensed milk on which I had fed her had ruined the child's stomach. One of the doctors told me that the only thing to do would be to try Grape-Nuts, so I got some and prepared it as follows: I soaked 1½ tablespoonfuls in one pint of cold water for half an hour, then I strained off the liquid and mixed 12 teaspoonfuls of this strained Grape-Nuts juice with six teaspoonfuls of rich milk, put in a pinch of salt and a little sugar, warmed it and gave it to baby every two hours.

"In this simple, easy way I saved baby's life and have built her up to a strong, healthy child, rosy and laughing. The food must certainly be perfect to have such a wonderful effect as this. I can truthfully say I think it is the best food in the world to raise delicate babies on and is also a delicious healthful food for grown-ups as we have discovered in our family." Grape-Nuts is equally valuable to the strong, healthy man or woman. It stands for the true theory of health. "There's a reason" and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Well-Ville," in pgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are regular, true, and full of human interest.

 In his later years Frederick William, king of Prussia, was sorely afflicted with gout. The twinges of pain aggravated his naturally irascible temper. During the attacks he was accustomed to divert his mind by painting. His models were always soldiers.

One day he kept a tall grenadier posing for a long time. At length the picture was finished. The king turned to the man, and in a terrible voice asked: "What do you think of that?"
 "The cheeks are redder than mine," was the hesitating reply.
 "I'll soon fix that!" thundered the old king.
 So he seized his brush, and painted both cheeks of the terrified grenadier a brilliant red.

Telling It.
 "I know by the way our best and dumbest neighbor was using the high language that she was happy." "Why was she happy, do you suppose?" "Because she had a secret on hand."

Family Tree. Defined.
 While the family tree of the elephant runs mostly to trunk, that of the chorus girl does nothing of the sort.

FLOWER PLACE CARDS

PRETTY SUGGESTIONS FOR TEA OR GARDEN PARTY.

Entail Little Trouble or Expense and Give Just That Distinctive Feature So Appealing to the Modern Hostess.

During the flowery summer months the hostess delights to plan luncheons, dinners and teas for her visiting guests. The garden offers material for decorations or a fitting background for a tea or garden party.

The decorative value of the basket has been recognized for many ages, and you cannot select a more artistic centerpiece than a basket, woven of Japanese willow or plaited rushes, filled with roses, lilacs, daisies, carnations, gladiolus, nasturtiums, sweet peas, phlox or larkspur. The brown of the willow harmonizes so beautifully with the blossoms, and if a bow of ribbon is tied to the handle of the basket the centerpiece is perfect.

One of the attractive features of a luncheon or dinner is the place cards, and these can be made at home with very little trouble or expense entailed.

At an artist's supplies shop purchase a large sheet of water-color paper of a not too coarse grain, a box of water-color paints, a camel's-hair brush and a piece of carbon paper. Charming designs for basket place cards are given here, and when you have selected the one which appeals to you most follow these directions:

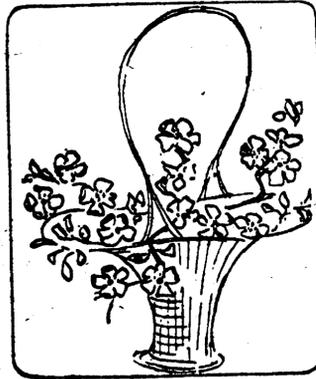

Between the drawing and the water-color paper place the carbon paper and carefully follow each outline of the design with a sharply pointed pencil. The drawing will be reproduced on the water-color paper, ready for tinting.

The rectangular basket filled with clusters of hydrangeas is effective if tinted yellow, green or brown. Color the flowers pink or pale lavender and the foliage a soft green.

Especially pretty is the hat-shaped basket filled with wild roses. This is improved by cutting out the design after it has been tinted and pasting a strip of cardboard to the back, which acts as a support.

Paint the basket brown, green or yellow, the roses pale pink, with yellow centers, and the foliage green.

Never purchase place cards when you have these attractive designs at your disposal! You will be agreeably surprised to find how easily and quickly they are made and how very artistic are when completed.

To Fold Skirts for Traveling.
 Fasten the waistband and pin the middle of the back to the center of the front. Then lay the skirt out flat on a table, and with two pieces of tissue paper as foundations, roll the skirt over and over toward the front, first from the right side of the skirt, then from the left, so forming two rolls that lie parallel to each other. If the garment has to be folded crosswise to admit of its being packed in a suitcase or trunk, place a wad of tissue paper or newspaper underneath the crease. Skirts so packed take very little room and show no traces of traveling in small compass.

SUMMER HAT MADE AT HOME

Crowless Design of Net Probably is the Best for Amateur Milliner to Attempt.

It is amazing how many amateur milliners have sprung up, since the new kind of hat came into being. There are women, many of them, who do not mind paying a good price for a winter hat or a winter suit, but they draw the line at a fancy price for a summer hat or a summer gown.

They know the possibilities of the sun for bleaching out any color and they know how the open air life they lead takes all the character out of a frock. So they prefer to divide the money into many parts and make it buy many things, and therefore the chance of making hats at home has a strong appeal.

It all looks very easy, and the woman who has skill and a clever idea of line and color may be able to accomplish much, but a word of warning should be said to those who are not sure of themselves in the field of millinery. A home-made hat is often worse than a home-made gown, and the best of the latter is often spoiled by the former. The crownless hat of net is the best to attempt, as it is made startlingly like a neck ruff and held to the head with a band of ribbon.

There are women, you know, who boast that they have worn their tulle neck ruffs instead of hats, with a rose at the back and the looped up hair in the middle—for the hat is crownless—and their public admired and said: "How very becoming."

SUMMER DRESS.

Summer dress of white embroidery with skirt of white chiffon, designed by Dantolles, Paris.

MUST HAVE LINEN CARDCASE

Fashion's Decree Makes It Imperative to Include This Among Necessary Accessories.

The daintily embroidered cardcase of linen belongs among the necessary accessories, and the woman who does not already possess one should immediately begin to embroider the linen.

The needlework shops sell a variety of designs stamped on coarse or fine linen, according to the work you desire to place on it.

The thin lingerie frock demands a cardcase of handkerchief linen, embroidered with a very fine design; those done in eyelet embroidery are the most effective. If you do the tiny flowers and foliage in solid work, pad the petals first with darning cotton and cover this with fine mercerized cotton. Scallop the edges, using the buttonhole stitch, and whipstitch the sides together.

With the one-piece frock or tailored costume should be carried a cardcase of heavy linen. The design is not so fine on these and can be done with white or colors.

For instance, if you choose a cardcase of natural-colored linen, the design can be effectively done in white, brown or dark blue. There are a few designs to be worked with the Bulgarian colors, and these are extremely effective when done in the brilliant hues on a background of tan linen.

"This towel," said the attendant in the germ-proof barber shop, "has been subject to an extreme heat and is thoroughly sterilized."

"Good thing," commended the patron.

"This soap has been debacterIALIZED, and the comb and brush are thoroughly antiseptized."

"Great scheme," said the patron.

"The chair in which you sit is given a daily bath in bichloride of mercury, while its cushions are baked in an oven heated at 187 degrees, which is guaranteed to shivel up any bacilli that comes along."

"My word!" said the patron.

"The razor and lather brush are boiled before being used. Even the—"

"Well, look here," said the patron, who had been sitting wrapped up in the towel during all this, "why don't you go on and shave me?"

"But I am not the barber."

"You're not? Where is he?"

"They are boiling him, sir."

Exception.

One evening the guests were all seated around the table earnestly talking on an important topic. Little Frank came running in shouting: "Papa, papa!"

"Hush, Frank, little children should be seen and not heard."

Frank subsided into silence and pensively sucked his finger. Later his father said: "Well, son, what did you want to say before?"

"Just that the bathtub was overflowing."

Matching Her Style.

"That giddy young matron across the street has bought herself an electric machine."

"Of course, it is a runabout."

Contrariwise.

"So you had trouble with your workers in the ice fields?"

"Yes, they were perfect hotbeds of discontent."

Did you ever stop to think that it is much safer to buy an article that is largely advertised than one which is not? The firm which spends a large amount of money to establish a reputation for a certain thing cannot afford to make it otherwise than satisfactory. It must please the user, or else it will not be bought the second time. The same is true of a merchant who spends money for advertising to induce you to come to his store. He must treat you satisfactorily in order to make his advertising a profitable investment. You will make few mistakes in buying goods which are largely advertised, or from the firm that advertises.

PINCKNEY, MICHIGAN

INEFFICIENCY.

When analyzed, inefficiency amounts to one of two things, either it is ignorance or dishonesty. If one is ignorant of how to do a thing, there is some excuse for him, but when dishonesty is to blame for it, it is a time for retribution. Still, some people look upon inefficiency with indifference and some, strange to say, with approval. Efficiency of a man speaks his character. A community is deprived if it is made up of ignorant and dishonest men, or, what is the same, inefficient men. That is largely the trouble of many communities. They seem to tolerate the inefficient man; to sympathize with him, as if his misfortune was not his own fault. A man who can do $3 worth of work in a day is placed no higher in public esteem than the man who earns only $2 doing the same class of work. But the former is a truer man. He puts a high estimate on duty. He strives to make himself worth what he gets. If he doesn't, he is a fraud. Fidelity to one's trust is the mark of a real man. The fellow who "soldiers" on his job is an untrue man. There are many men of this kind—they do as little as they can. They will be happy if they don't do $5 worth for their $5. There are men who have no scruples about cheating an employer who happens to have more money than they have.

A recent British writer says that an indispensable requirement for success in public life in America is "unimpeachable rectitude in private life." Limiting the application of this to high official places, it is true. The scrutiny to which a candidate for national or important state office is subjected puts the man with a "past" out of the running. There is no double standard as between women and that fraction of men whom we choose to rule over us.

This scrutiny and the rectitude it commands are excellent. But there is a sort of mildewed, unwholesome perversion of the scrutiny that is most distinctly not excellent. The effect to "get something on" an official is usually reserved for such time as he has shown a purpose to give real public service. Then every keyhole has a nasty politician's eye glued to it. Every transom is peeped through. Every closet is opened for disclosing a hoped-for skeleton. The former places of residence of the man who is trying to serve are raked for something discreditable.

Dr. Bell says that transoceanic flying is bound to come. It looks improbable now, but nothing can be pronounced impossible in the face of what has been accomplished. In fact, the favorite occupation of the science of today is tramping on impossibilities. But every triumph has its tragedy, and the toll of human life which will pay for this achievement will furnish the latter element.

A Washington chauffeur has been sent to jail for three years for taking a joy ride in his employer's automobile without permission. Courts and public are realizing that drastic measures are necessary to break up the joy-riding practice and the stealing of motor cars for this purpose. The jail sentence is a good experiment along this line. It might be extended to take in all speeders on the public highways.

An Italian kidnaper in New York has just had his sentence of 25 to 50 years in prison upheld by the courts. Kidnapings have stopped since this severe sentence was imposed. More crimes might be checked in the same way if an unwise and dangerous mentality did not so often intervene to lessen the deterrent effect of punishment and turn criminals loose upon the community.

A Danish inventor has evolved an automatic substitute for a soldier which will spring out of the earth, where it is buried, and shoot at the enemy. If the nations generally adopt this weird invention and wage war with automatic armies, the great battles of the future will be fought by the all-pervading modern device of pressing the button and letting the automaton do the rest.

The dimple in the chin of the boy baby looks cute now, but it is going to make trouble for him when he becomes old enough to use a razor.

BULGARS CLAIM GREAT VICTORY

DEFEAT OF SERBIAN ARMY AND CAPTURE OF FOUR THOUSAND REPORTED.

TWENTY-SEVEN GUNS AND ONE TRAIN TAKEN.

Greek Army Wins Great Victory Over Former Allies According to Reports Received at New York.

The Bulgarian embassy at London received a message confirming the surrender of the Serbian Timok division at a point north of Veles. The Bulgarians captured 4,000 men, six machine guns, 27 quick-action field-guns and a complete commissariat train containing a large quantity of supplies.

The Bulgarian success in the vicinity of Veles is more marked because of the campaign they are carrying on against the Greeks near the same point. It is now believed here that the movement of the Bulgars against the Serbs along the Bulgarian frontier has proved highly successful and the Serbs are reported to have suffered heavy losses at many points.

Two Serbian regiments which had crossed the river into Bulgarian territory surrendered at Egri Palanka, which several others were put to rout.

Greeks Rout Bulgarian Army. A graphic story of the battle between the Bulgarians and Greeks at Kilkieh, 20 miles north of Saloniki, was received by a Greek daily newspaper, of New York, direct from Saloniki. It says:

"The battle between the Bulgarians and Greeks at Kilkieh ended at 10 o'clock the morning of July 4 in the complete defeat of the Bulgarians after a severe bombardment of the town by the Greeks, who carried the place at the point of the bayonet. The town was then occupied by a part of the Hellenic troops, while their comrades continued the pursuit of the Bulgarians, who had fled in disorder, leaving many of their field and machine guns in the hands of the Greek victors. More than 60 cannons were captured.

"Kilkieh was almost destroyed by fire before the Bulgarians fled."

Special Counsel Is Named. The Western Fuel and Digs-Camuelletti cases, delay in prosecuting which resulted in the sensational resignation of United States Attorney McNab, will be tried by three special assistants to the attorney-general.

This word was received at San Francisco by Benjamin McKinley, acting United States attorney, from Attorney-General McReynolds. Matthews I. Sullivan, Thomas J. Roche, and Thomas E. Hayden were the special assistants named by the attorney-general.

"Mr. Sullivan," the telegram stated, "is to occupy the position of leading counsel."

Arctic Expedition From Boston. The Arctic steamer Diana sailed from Boston the first Arctic expedition to set forth from that port in years.

Donald B. McMillan, heads the expedition. The vessel took on 10,000 gallons of oil, which will be used in operating the wireless and also for cooking purposes.

The wireless station of the expedition will be established at Flagler Fjord and it is expected that some wonderful results will be attained because the station will be north of the magnetic point of the pole.

English Statesman Is Dead. The Rt. Hon. Alfred Lyttleton, member of the house of commons for St. Georges, Hanover square, is dead. He was born in 1857, the eighth son of the fourth Lord Lyttleton and Mary Glynne, daughter of Sir Stephen Glynne.

Alfred Lyttleton was famous as an athlete before he achieved political success. He helped to win many cricket matches in the '90s. His devotion to the game was the indirect cause of his death; for in spite of his 56 years, he played in the charity match of June 25, scoring 90 runs.

To Make Long Canoe Trip. John H. Sullivan, Jr., left New York in an open canoe with intention of reaching San Francisco in this craft via the Panama Canal. His starting point was the Hudson River Yacht club, at the foot of Ninety-first street and the North river. The club fired a salute when he left.

KING LEADS HIS ARMY

Constantine of Greece is personally directing the campaign against his former allies, the Bulgarians.

DISCOVERY ANNOUNCED

May Be Possible to Positively Foretell Weather For Entire Year in Advance.

Discoveries of world-wide interest as to the relation of the sun's heat to the earth—discoveries which may revolutionize the agriculture of the world, as well as sits peoples—were described by Professor Edwin B. Frost, director of the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis.

His article is based on observations made during his recent tour abroad, and sums up a close study of the work of scientists since the late Professor S. P. Langley, of Smithsonian institution.

Experts declare that the theory of Professor Frost when perfected, will make it possible to forecast weather conditions, a season in advance. It will be possible, they say, to announce for instance, in winter weather whether the summer season is to be "wet" or "dry." The effect of this information can be grasped readily by the farmers.

Destructive Storm in Ohio. Several persons were injured and considerable property damage was caused by a terrific wind and rain storm, which broke over this city, of Marietta, O.

A rainfall of .63 of an inch within 10 minutes was recorded. Many houses were unroofed and trees were uprooted in all parts of the city.

A great volume of water was poured into the Muskingum river, sweeping out a pontoon bridge over which half a hundred persons had just passed, fleeing from the storm.

Alexandra to Return to Society.

Queen Alexandra, who has been living quietly at Sandringham and Marlborough ever since the death of King Edward, but who is as bright and youthful looking as a sever, has decided to take her rightful place in London society and will be giving a series of entertainments and especially a number of dances for her two grandchildren, Princess Mary and the prince of Wales, who have never attended any such functions under their parental roof.

Can't Borrow Army Engineers.

The interstate commerce commission will have to get along in its great task of making a physical valuation of railroads without the assistance of the army engineers unless congress can be induced to pass special legislation. The commission has asked for 12 army engineers to organize the investigation. The attorney-general has ruled that there is no warrant of law for such diversion of the engineers from their legal duties.

Eggs Thrown at Jurors.

Eggs and other missiles were used in a small riot following a verdict of a jury in Mayor Alger's court, at Mason City, Ia., which gave Mrs. A. Wickersham 6 cents damages in a suit for $20 brought against a neighbor whose fowls, she said, destroyed her garden. The trouble was started by friends of the plaintiff, who were said to be angry at the small verdict.

Frank Cowan, a brakeman on a Lake Shore engine at Jonesville was killed by being run over by an extra freight train on the Lansing branch. His head was severed from his body.

OHIO BALLOON WINS GREAT AIR RACE

ALL FOUR CONTENDERS LAND IN TOWNS IN MICHIGAN.

WINNER TRAVELS SIX HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILES.

Huge Bags Starting at Kansas City Encounter Storms in Great Lakes Region and Trips Are Curtailed.

Under official figures on the landing places of the four balloons in the national elimination race made by aero club officials at Kansas City, the first place in the race to the Great year bag of Akron, Ohio, which landed at West Branch, Mich., an estimated distance of 652 miles from Kansas City.

While John Watts, pilot of the Kansas City II telegraphed that he had flown 730 miles in the Kansas City II, which descended at Goodrich, Mich., aero club officials figure his distance at 630 miles, giving him second place in the race.

Third place is accorded Capt. Honeywell in the Kansas City Post balloon, which landed at Rockwood, Mich., and last place to the Million Population club of St. Louis, which came down at Manchester, Mich., a distance estimated at 625 miles.

All the balloon encountered storms in the vicinity of the Great Lakes and their trips were curtailed because of the elements.

Lone Bank Robber Captured.

A lone robber who entered the First State bank of Milwaukee, a suburb of Portland, Oregon, and with a revolver induced Cashier A. L. Bolstead to permit him to scoop up all the gold within reach of the latter's wallet, was captured in the woods some miles distant.

After fleeing from the bank, with citizens in pursuit, the robber on gaining the woods hid himself by standing submerged to the neck in an encased spring. He remained there for two hours, until the chill of the water drove him from his hiding place into the hands of a sheriff's posse.

The robber's loot, about $400 in gold, was found in his pockets, with the exception of $40 he dropped in his flight.

Queen Fighting Daring Dress.

Queen Mary, of England, is persisting in her campaign against freak dress or anything approaching a daring form of attire for women. Her latest act was to notify the president of the Bedford college for women that her majesty would not attend the opening if any woman member of the reception committee, or who was to appear on the platform, was allowed to wear a dress cut more than an inch below the neck, or a skirt with a slit in it.

Three members of the reception committee retired as a result of the queen's warning, but among those who appeared in the approved fashion was the Duchess of Marlborough.

Large Sum for University.

Gov. Dunne, of Illinois, has affixed his signature to a bill appropriating $4,500,000 for the University of Illinois, the high water mark in the liberality of state legislature.

The bill is especially attractive to the university officials since it leaves to the judgment of the board of trustees, within certain broad lines, the use of the funds in the development of the institution, removing the tendencies heretofore shown to interfere with the administration.

Strike Riots in South Africa.

The strike which involved practically all the gold mines on the Rand ended at Johannesburg, South Africa. During its brief existence anarchy reigned in the city; there was much bloodshed and the casualties are estimated at more than 100. The authorities were finally compelled to declare martial law and during several hours the troops raked the streets with rifle fire.

Gun Boat Jumps Ship.

Private advice reaching Arizona, report that the commander of the two federal gunboats was mas harbor captured the insurgent cause. The boats were said to have turned their guns on the federal positions in Guaymas, declaring all of Ojeda's troops prisoners of the constitutionalists. General Ojeda was reported to have been boarding the boats at the time.

PRESIDENT TALKS AT GETTYSBURG

His Address Is Chief Feature of National Day at the Celebration.

IS HEARD BY GREAT THROU

Mr. Wilson Dwells on Present Duty of the People in Finishing the Nation Now Beloved by All.

Gettysburg, Pa., July 4.—Many thousands of veterans from north and south and of other visitors faced President Wilson today as he delivered the address which was the main feature of National day in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg.

The president's address follows: Friends and Fellow Citizens: I need not tell you what the battle of Gettysburg meant. These gallant men in blue and gray sit all about us here. Many of them met here upon this ground in grim and deadly struggle. Upon these famous fields and hillsides their comrades died about them. In their presence it were an impertinence to discourse upon how the battle went, how it ended, what it signified! But 50 years have gone by since then and I crave the privilege of speaking to you for a few minutes of what those 50 years have meant.

What have they meant? They have meant peace and union and vigor; and the maturity and might of a great nation. How wholesome and healing the peace has been! We have found one another again as brothers and comrades in arms, enemies no longer, generous friends rather, our battles long past, the quarrel forgotten—except that we shall not forget the splendid valor, the many devotion of the men then arrayed against one another, now grasping hands and smiling into each other's eyes. How complete the union has become and how dear to all of us, how unquestioned, how benign and majestic, as state after state has been added to this great family of free men! How handsome the vigor, the maturity, the might of the great nation we love with undivided hearts; how full of large and confident promise that a life will be wrought out that will crown its strength with gracious justice and a happy welfare that will touch all alike with deep contentment! We are debtors to those 50 crowded years; they have made us heirs to a mighty heritage.

Nation Not Finished. But do we deem the nation complete and finished? These venerable men crowding here to this famous spot have set us a great example of devotion and utter sacrifice. They were willing to die that the people might live. But their task is done. Their day is turned into evening. They look to us to perfect what they established. Their work is handed on to us, to be done in another way but not in another spirit. Our day is not over; it is upon us in full tide.

Have affairs paused? Does the nation stand still? Is it what the 50 years have wrought since those days of battle finished, rounded out, and completed? Here is a great people, great with every force that has ever beaten in the lifeblood of mankind. And it is secure. There is no one within its borders, there is no power among the nations of the earth, to make it afraid. But has it yet squared itself with its own great standards set up at its birth, when it made that first noble, naive appeal to the moral judgment of mankind to take notice that a government had now at last been established which was to serve men, not masters? It is secure in everything except the satisfaction that its life is right, adjusted to the strictest of the standards of righteousness and humanity. The days of sacrifice and cleansing are not closed. We have harder things to do than were done in the heroic days of war, because harder to see clearly, requiring more vision, more calm balance of judgment, a more candid searching of the very springs of right.

Tribute to Their Valor. Look around you upon the field of Gettysburg! Picture the array, the fierce heats and agony of battle, column buried against column, battery following to battery! Valor? Yes! Greater no man shall see in war; and self-sacrifice, and loss to the uttermost; the high recklessness of exalted devotion which does not count the cost. We are made by these tragic, epic things to know what it costs to stand for a nation—the blood and sacrifice of thousands of unknown men. Great stature is in the view of our nation by knowing no limit to their manly willingness to serve. In armies thus manhood from the ranks of free men you will see, as it were, a nation embattled, the leaders and the led, and may know, if you will, how little except in form its action differs in days of peace from its action in days of war.

May we break camp now and be at ease? Are the forces that fight for the Nation dispersed, disbanded, gone to their homes forgetful of the common cause? Are our forces disorganized, without constituted leaders and the might of men consciously united because we contend, not with armies, but with principalities and powers and wickedness in high places. Are we content to lie still? Does our union mean sympathy, our peace contentment, our vigor right action, our maturity self-comprehension and a clear confidence in choosing what we shall do? War fitted us for action, and action never ceases.

Our Laws the Orders of the Day.

I have been chosen the leader of the Nation. I cannot justify the choice by any qualities of my own, but so it has come about, and here I stand. Whom do I command? The ghostly hosts who fought upon these battlefields long ago and are gone? These gallant gentlemen stricken in years whose fighting days are over, their glory won? What are the orders for them, who rallies them? I have in my mind another host, whom these set free of civil strife in order that they might work out in days of peace and settled order the life of a great nation. That host is the people themselves, the great and the small, without class or difference of kind or race or origin; and undivided in interest, if we have but the vision to guide and direct them and order their lives aright in what we do. Our constitutions are their articles of enlistment. The orders of the day are the laws upon our statute books. What we strive for is their freedom, their right to lift themselves from day to day and behold the things they have hoped for, and so make way for still better days for those whom they love who are to come after them. The recruits are the little children crowding in. The quartermaster's stores are in the mines and forests and fields, in the shops and factories. Every day something must be done to push the campaign forward; and it must be done by plan and with an eye to some great destiny.

How shall we hold such thoughts in our hearts and not be moved? I would not have you live even today wholly in the past, but would wish to stand with you in the light that streams upon us now out of that great day gone by. Here is the nation God has builded by our hands. What shall we do with it? Who stands ready to act again and always in the spirit of this day of reunion and hope and patriotic fervor? The day of our country's life has broadened into morning. Do not put uniforms by. Put the harness of the present on. Lift your eyes to the great tracts of life yet to be conquered in the interest of righteous peace, of that prosperity which lies in a people's hearts and outlasts all wars and errors of men. Come, let us be comrades and soldiers yet to serve our fellow men in quiet counsel, where the blare of trumpets is neither heard nor heeded and where the things are done which make blessed the nations of the world in peace and righteousness and love.

Where Rain is a Curiosity.

For 2,000 miles of coast, as more Americans than are at present informed will doubtless discover as soon as the Panama canal develops more neighborliness between the north Atlantic and the south Pacific, one need not carry an umbrella except to keep off the sun.

In Peru, on the sea side of the Andes, they build out of mud what seem to be magnificent palaces and clapboard effects are popular also, though wood is worth its weight in gold. Stucco, a paint brush and a lively fancy serve for this stagey decoration, but there is not even a pretense of cultivating laws, though that might be indulged, too, with the help of a pot of green paint. Rain enough would not fall in a generation to wash the green off the front yard or the patio.

That stretch of coast is one of the most remarkable of all nature's demonstrations of waterless desolation. It is an elongated Sahara. From Coquimbo, one-third of the length of Chile below the Peruvian border, to Guayaquil, in Ecuador, vegetation is unknown. An agreeable effect is to relieve the equatorial heat along the coast and the slope of the Andes of humidity.

Had Her Plans Laid Out.

One day, shortly after George M. Cohan began a recent engagement in Chicago, and before the attaches of the theater that bears his name there had become used to seeing him at close range, the famous author-actor encountered an old colored woman industriously scrubbing the marble floor of the foyer, chanting the while a doleful dirge-like air.

"Am'tie," commented the comedian, "that's a mournful tune you're singing."

"Yes, sir," she answered, "I knows it's mournful, but by singin' dat chune an' makin' me own business, I specks to get to heaben."

HUMAN INTEREST SIDE OF REUNION AT GETTYSBURG

The observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg was replete with interesting incidents and prolific of tales both humorous and pathetic. The gathering from all parts of the country of the survivors of the blue and the gray on the battlefield of the greatest contest of the Civil war was sure to abound in touching scenes and incidents. The limits of newspaper space will only permit of telling a few of the best of them.

One of the oldest veterans in the big camp is Captain W. H. Fleig of Houston, Texas, who was ninety years of age on his last birthday, February 23. During the war he served with distinction in the marine department of the confederate navy. Captain Fleig is one of the best preserved men in camp and is more active than many of the other veterans a score of years less advanced.

A grandson of Francis Scott Key, composer of "The Star-Spangled Banner," is here. He is John Francis Key, aged eighty-two, of Pikeville, Md., and he is a veteran of the Second Maryland Infantry of the confederate army.

Wearing a suit of gray, Key came into town, weak and almost drooping. He has been in failing health, but declared he was "going to see Gettysburg on this occasion or die."

"I hid in a barn when I discovered that Confederates had arrived in town, but I left it when it was peppered by infantry fire and concealed myself at the mouth of an alley," said Lansberry. "While I remained in the alley two of my comrades attempted to dart across the street to another alley with a hope of escaping from town. They got to the middle of the street when guns of Confederates stationed at street intersections cracked and they fell in a heap. I was soon found and disarmed."

Harry K. Thaw has come to the financial rescue of Gen. Daniel E. Sickles from his cell in Matteawan. He sent a letter to Chairman Schoonmaker, having charge of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg, in which $1,000 in cash was inclosed. In the letter Thaw wrote that he felt the deepest sympathy for General Sickles because of the misfortunes that had come to him in his old age. This sympathy the writer declared, was heightened by the fact that Thaw had two uncles in the Union army and a near relative in the southern army.

One of the most interesting places in camp was the lost and found bureau, located under the benches in the big tent. Everything found on the grounds was brought there and thousands applied every day for missing articles.

There were at least 100 crutches piled up in the bureau, dozen or so applicants having called for them. Those who come to redeem their lost crutches seldom can recognize them and most of them go away with somebody else's.

There was one wooden leg also lying unclaimed. It was brought in by a Boy Scout, who had found it under a tree.

Several sets of false teeth were found.

One bearded veteran of an Illinois regiment told of an incident that happened 50 years ago.

"As we rode through Gettysburg that last time," he said, "I remember a little girl stopped my horse and said she wanted to give me a bouquet. I got down and she pinned a ribbon—a little purple ribbon to my coat. 'Wear that in the next battle you go into,' she said.

"We're not going to have any more battles around here," I told her.

"Yes, you are," she insisted. "Those hills back there are full of rebels."

"I wore that purple ribbon through the battle. I never saw the girl afterward, but I've kept that ribbon, and it's back at home in Illinois today."

A striking contrast is seen in the menu provided for the soldiers fifty years ago and what they enjoyed this year:

1863—Breakfast—Hardtack, bacon, beans and coffee.

Dinner—Bacon, beans, hardtack and coffee.

Supper—Beans, hardtack, bacon and coffee.

1913—Breakfast—Puffed rice, fried eggs, fried bacon, cream potatoes, fresh bread, hard bread, butter and coffee.

Dinner—Fricassee chicken, peas, corn, ice cream, cake, cigars, fresh bread, hard bread, butter, coffee, iced tea.

Supper—Salmon salad, macaroni and cheese, fresh bread, butter and coffee.

A romance developed in camp when John Goodwin of New York, a veteran, and Margaret Murphy of Chicago were united in marriage by Squire Harnish. Forty-six years ago the two were engaged, but they subsequently married others. They became widower and widow, the old flame was rekindled and they agreed to come to Gettysburg on the fiftieth anniversary of the battle and marry. The happy pair will go on a wedding tour from here and will reside in New York.

Gen. "Tom" Stewart of Pennsylvania is telling an amusing story of a "runaway vet" he came across in the big camp. The veteran is eighty-five years old, and his son at home announced that under no circumstances should his aged parent go to Gettysburg. The desire to be here and meet his former comrades was so strong in the heart of the old gentleman that he climbed out of a window of his home and ran away, turning up here in good shape. He is now happy and well cared for.

One of the big events was the "charge" of the survivors of Pickett's division on the "bloody angle," held by the remnants of the Philadelphia brigade.

Under the hot sun the men in gray marched across the field that had not seen anything more warlike than a blacksnake in 50 years, up to the walls that form the angle. The "enemy" in blue was waiting with weapons ready, and when they met across the wall they shook hands. Afterward they looked over the ground for the site of a $250,000 monument they hope to have congress erect there.

One of the unadvertised reunions of the celebration occurred in the confederate section of the camp. A rifle and drum corps of men in blue tramped up and down the streets of the confederate part of the city of tents.

They stopped before the tents, played such a fanfare as only drums and fifes can make, summoned forth the occupants and shook hands, threw their arms about the gray shoulders and in a dozen other ways showed their feelings of friendship.

They kept it up for hours and visited practically every "reb" tent. Their reception was as warm as their greeting.

Chief Clerk George G. Thorne of the state department at Harrisburg told of the call made by a Union veteran early on the morning of the fiftieth anniversary of the start of the battle, who related that his conscience troubled him because of the fact that on that fateful morning many years ago he had succumbed to temptation and stolen a quantity of onions from the Thorne garden, which was located near the historic Seminary ridge. He told Thorne that he desired, at this late day to pay for the onions and thus relieve his conscience.

Needless to say, his offer of money was refused, but the Thornes would like to learn the identity of the soldiers who upset eight beehives in the dead of night and appropriated all the honey they contained.

When the house of representatives recently undertook to name a committee of its members to represent it at the reunion of the blue and gray at Gettysburg it was found that not a veteran of the Civil war sat on the Republican side of that body. The only Union veterans in the house, three in number, are all Democrats, and six veterans of the Confederate army also sit on that side. In the senate, however, there are six Confederate veterans on the Democratic side and six Union veterans on the Republican side. As indicating the passage of time, it is a remarkable fact that there are today in congress more veterans of the Spanish-American war than of the Civil war. Nineteen members of the senate are veterans of the war with Spain. One member of the house, who has not seen war service at all, served five years in the signal corps of the army as a private, and Delegate Quezon of the Philippines was a staff officer under Aguinaldo during the Philippine rebellion.

James H. Lansberry of St. Louis, Mo., who enlisted in the Third Indiana cavalry from Madison, Ind., recited to his comrades the details of his capture in the town of Gettysburg by Confederates 50 years ago. Following the skirmish just outside of town which marked the opening of what was to be a world-famed engagement, he had been detailed to assist in carrying a wounded officer to the old seminary in Gettysburg. While in town frantic women flocked about him and begged that he tell of the battle. He remained to tell the story, with the result that he had to spend several days in following the Confederate army as a prisoner. After tramping 50 miles over rough country without shoes he succeeded in escaping and finally made his way back to Gettysburg, where he remained till August in assisting in the care of the wounded, which were housed in the seminary, churches, barns and public buildings.

Its Suggestions. "There is one kind of weather in which a professional crook hates to get busy."

"What kind is that?" "Muggy weather."

Their Place. "Where are your master's spats?" "You'll gin'rally find 'em where the missus is, sir."

ECZEMA BURNED AND ITCHED

203 Walnut St., Hillsboro, Ill.—"My child had a breaking out on the lower limbs which developed into eczema. The eczema began with pimples which contained yellow corruption and from the child's clothing they were greatly irritated. They seemed to burn, which made the child scratch them, resulting in a mass of open places. They made her so cross and fretful that it was impossible to keep her quiet. They caused her to lose much sleep and she was constantly tormented by severe itching and burning.

"I tried several well-known remedies, but got no relief until I got a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, which did so much good that I got a large quantity that cured her in ten days after she had been affected for two months." (Signed) Mrs. Edith Schwartz, Feb. 28, 1913.
