A Trip Through Indiana

The township board left Pinckney last Thursday for Terre Haute, Indiana, to inspect the large bridge works at that place. They were accompanied by the township treasurer and the highway commissioner and returned late Saturday night. They report a fine trip through Indiana to the famous "Banks of the Wabash, Far Away" and were royally entertained at the expense of the bridge company. They met several township boards from different states, including Oklahoma, Kentucky, Missouri and also two from Clinton county, Michigan.

The country roads of Indiana are unexcelled. Throughout the whole trip the roads were either macadamized stone or gravel, such as now being built in Putnam.

An auto ride through Terre Haute was one of the features of the trip and the different points of interest were pointed out by the guide. Results of the great flood of the Spring of 1913 were still in evidence through the greater portion of Indiana, the water having left its high water mark at almost unbelievable points. A brewery, feeding 2500 head of cattle with the by-products was interesting to the farmers of the party, and a train load of miners returning from the coal mines near the city after their day's work in the coal mines was also interesting.

On the return trip the party stopped over night at Indianapolis and was greatly interested in the famous soldiers and sailors monument there. This is said to be the tallest monument of its kind in the world and while gazing at its height, our township treasurer turned green with envy.

An accident to the engine at Hillsdale delayed the arrival at Jackson and a large seven passenger auto brought the party to Pinckney about eleven o'clock Saturday night.

The bridge company does all its business by dealing directly with the different townships this way and do not employ any traveling salesman. They say the cost of selling is reduced greatly and gave satisfactory prices on bridges and culverts which will probably result in an order from Putnam township.

That North Lake Picnic

A large number from here attended the picnic at North Lake last Thursday. A bunch of disappointed Chelsea rooters left the field in disgust at the close of the ball game between Pinckney and Chelsea. With the score four to three in Chelsea's favor in the ninth inning, Pinckney to bat for the last time and two out, it looked like a cinch for the Chelsea boys, when the old reliable "Pat" Lavey, whose motto is, "No one's game until the last man is out", stepped to the plate and slapped the ball for a neat double, bringing in two men and the winning runs, five to four in our favor.

Tax Notice

I am now ready to collect all village taxes and anyone wishing to pay them can call at the mill and do so at any time.

E. E. Hoyt, Village Treasurer.

Close Schools

If the school electors of a district desire to close the schools and send the children to another district or districts, they may decide to do so at an annual or special meeting. In this way, the district organization is maintained and the primary money is not forfeited. Hereafter action of this kind could be taken only at the annual meeting but the recent legislature amended the act. All school electors, whether voters because they are taxpayers or the parents or guardians of children on the census list may vote on this question.

Educators insist that a satisfactory school cannot be maintained with less than ten pupils and urge districts which can conveniently send their children elsewhere to close their school with small enrollments. The board may pay their tuition and transportation, if necessary, out of any money on hand, except library money, and may vote a tax for such purpose.

Attorney-General Grant Fellows rules that if the electors vote to close their school after the board has hired a teacher for the next year, the district cannot be held to the contract.

Cars Jump Track

The Grand Trunk freight train going east last Thursday morning met with an accident just west of town when four box cars jumped the track, two turning turtle and the others remaining on the embankment. The track was also torn up for a short distance. Fortunately no one was injured and it was a lucky accident. The road master claims that the head box car had been recently overhauled and a new set of trucks placed on the car which were a trifle wide, thus causing the car to jump the track at times. Up to the time of the accident the car had righted itself to the tracks again. The ten o'clock passenger train was held up here until about five p. m., when the wreckage was cleared sufficiently for trains to pass.

Any girl will cheerfully give up a dollar to a fortune teller in exchange for the information that she is going to be married within a year.

According to the Otsego County Advance there was a man in that village who was so afraid of thunder that he crawled into a hollow log. Then the rain poured down and the log began to swell and the poor fellow was wedged in so tight he couldn't get out. All of his sins passed before him. Suddenly he remembered that he hadn't paid his subscription to the local paper and he felt so small that he was able to back right out.—Ex.

A New Shaver

Chas. Manska from Armada, Mich., arrived in Pinckney Tuesday morning fully armed with a razor. Now Mr. Manska is not the forerunner of a Wild West Show neither is he an escaped convict. For the benefit of the curious, we may add that all those who wish to meet the distinguished gentleman can do so by paying a visit to Carr's tonsorial emporium. Here they will find the former peaceful citizen of Armada, calmly throwing lather and wielding the above mentioned razor, all to the improvement of the general appearance of the male population of Pinckney.

The big notion sale starts at Dancer's today. If you are coming to Stockbridge it will pay you to drop in.

Those Chicago policewomen who squelch "mashers" with a look must have the type of gently beauty that would stop a clock.

Missing Man Found

Charles Conklin, the Marion township farmer, who left his home some three weeks ago, telling his wife that he was going over to their other farm to salt the sheep and from whom nothing has been heard from since, has been located at Fremont, Nebraska. Shortly after his disappearance Sheriff Wimbles sent out circulars all over the country containing a photograph of Conklin and offering a reward of $25 for his detention or any information leading to his apprehension. Last Thursday a telegram from the above place to Howell stated that he was in custody at Fremont. It is expected that he will be brought back to Howell.

EGGS FROM THE FARM

Should Be Gathered Often and Kept in Dry Place.

In Handling, Marketing and Shipping They Should Not Be Exposed to Draughts and Should Be Properly Protected.

(By N. E. CRAPMAN.)
The common causes of loss may be classed under several heads: Small eggs, dirty eggs, breakage, shrunken and rotten eggs, moldy and flavored eggs. Eggs must weigh two ounces or over to be classed as No. 1. Lighter eggs should be consumed on the farm, rather than be sold at a reduced price. Like eggs too small, eggs abnormally large or misshaped should be used at home, for such will be easily crushed in the case, and are always classed as "seconds."
About five eggs out of each hundred marketed are classed as "dirties." These are stained, smeared, muddy, or covered with filth. The odor of whatever soils the egg will soon penetrate the shell and flavor the contents. Market eggs should never be washed, as they take odors more rapidly and soon are stale. Eggs may be washed, however, for use at home. Eggs carried to market in bran are generally classed as "dirties." The bran adheres to the shell, and is difficult to remove.

It is estimated that eight per cent of the eggs are broken in moving from producer to consumer. Checked, dented or leaking eggs soon sour, and must be marketed at greatly reduced prices. If checked or broken on the way to market, they should be taken home for use in the family.

Eggs should be gathered often and kept in a cool, dry place until the first opportunity for marketing. Broody hens should be taken from the nests at once, and confined by themselves, unless needed for hatching purposes. After the hatching season is over, all roosters should be sold or confined, and not allowed to run with the laying flock during the summer. Hens will lay more eggs, and be in better health without the male birds. Infertile eggs are far superior for preserving, shipping and storing.

Sixty-five per cent of the contents of a fresh egg is water; and because of a porous shell this evaporates rapidly under most conditions, resulting in loss of weight and value. As soon as the newly-laid egg cools, an air-

DIGESTIVE CAPACITY OF COW

First Essential for Man to Consider in Buying Dairy Animal—Other Characteristics.

The difference between cows is almost wholly one of appetite and assimilative power, says the Missouri experiment station. Some cows have strong appetites, but when put on heavy feed lack the strength to assimilate and utilize it. Their production is limited by the amount of feed they can use. Some other cows apparently have sufficient capacity but lack the appetite and thus they are limited. It was suspected at the beginning of these investigations that some cows get more value from their feed than others. On the contrary, each cow's production related directly to the amount of food she ate and utilized.

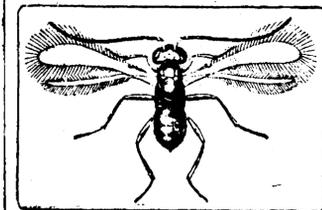

There is a suggestion in this for the man who is buying cows for dairy purposes. The first essential is digestive capacity. Just as important is the depth of chest, indicating vigor and rugged constitution. A bright eye is an index to the nerve power and a cell appears, which increases in size as the contents shrink from evaporation. Shrunken eggs may be detected by "candling," or by gently shaking when held to the ear. When the "gurgle" of the contents is distinct, the egg is questionable. The membrane of such eggs is often ruptured in handling and shipping, resulting in "frothy" eggs, of poor quality. In the summer, eggs should receive the same care and consideration as sweet milk and cream, and be marketed daily, if possible. They should not be exposed to draughts of warm air, and should be protected from the rays of the sun and moisture, in handling, marketing and shipping. Moisture is the main cause of rotten eggs. Nests on the ground or in wet straw, together with damp cellars and moist "fillers" in egg cases are mainly responsible for this condition. A fresh egg will absorb odors as rapidly as fresh milk. Mustiness or moldy growth in egg cases or fillers will taint the egg and lower its quality. Eggs should not be stored in musty cellars, or in rooms with fruit, vegetables or fish. The chickens should never be allowed to drink filthy water, be fed musty grain or strong-flavored vegetables, as onions and garlic, nor given access to decaying meat or substances that will favor the product and impair its quality.

DAMAGE BY ALFALFA WEEVIL

Larvae From Eggs Laid in Stems of Plants Work Much Injury by Feeding Upon the Buds.

Although in the middle west so alfalfa harming insect has yet caused widespread damage, Utah farmers have a serious pest to contend with known as the alfalfa weevil. It made its first appearance in 1907, coming from Europe. The adult weevil is a hard shelled beetle, about 3-16 inch long, brown in color with a darker stripe down the back. It lives over winter in sheltered places much the same as chinch bugs and in the early spring lays its eggs in the alfalfa stems. The larvae from these eggs do the damage by feeding upon the buds for a period of about six weeks if unmolested.

Control methods recommended by the Utah station include keeping the alfalfa growing rapidly in the spring by disking or spring tothing, removing the first crop as soon as serious injury occurs, followed with thorough spring tooth and brush dragging, and rotation of alfalfa every four or five years. As with chinch bugs it is advisable to keep out of the way places clean of sheltering grass and refuse and securing the co-operation of whole communities in fighting the pest.

Horses for Deep Plowing.

Deep plowing is essential to good farming to increase fertility and moisture for better crops. Heavy draft horses, says the Live Stock Journal, are the first essential for deep plowing and big loads. Deep and shallow plowing has had a long time controversy and the deep plowing has won the victory for better farming by the scientific experts at the agricultural colleges, and farmers who have good draft-horse teams plow deep, and the farmers with light screw teams must still skim along and put up with light crops until they can get the heavy draft teams that can pull a big 16-inch plow down to the beam that will produce big crops.

fine skin and good quality of bone indicate endurance. No one external characteristic tells more about the producing ability of a dairy cow than the size and shape of her udder and the veins which attach to it. The whole system should be large and elastic, without too much fleshiness. In the end a cow's producing ability can only be told by her records, but a fair guess can be made from some of these external appearances because of what they indicate.

Cutting Cowpeas.

Cowpeas may be cut with the mow, and after getting at least a full day's sun the vines are raked up and generally lie another day in the wind-row. They are then bunched up in small bunches and after another day or two put into larger bunches and stacked as long as weather permits when they are drawn to the barn.

Well-Bred Poultry.

Do not despise well-bred poultry. No territory has ever been noted for poultry products unless well-bred fowls were the rule.

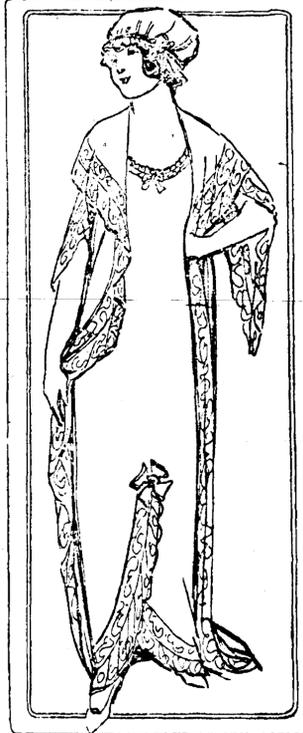

FOR THE IDLE HOURS

NEGLIGEE GARMENTS HAVE ELABORATE GARNISHMENT.

Lace in Profusion Is the Distinguishing Mark—Combinations of All Sorts Allowed in Apparel for Boudoir Wear.

Lace plays as great a part in negligee wear as it does in all other types of feminine dress. Usually the elaborate lace trimming is what strikes the eye first in modern peignoir or room sack, and details of foundation material, ribbons, little silk and chiffon flowers and other trimming fallals make themselves evident afterward.

Though crepe de chine and shadow lace, with suitable garnishment of rosebuds form the most aristocratic type of sacque or full length negligee, there are pleasing models of much less expensive character for the average woman's midsummer wear, such as is shown in the illustration. Dotted swiss is combined with lace or with very fine machine embroidery in hand effects. Dotted batiste and plaited net, flowered crepe with net frills and similar summer combinations that one sees in the season's wear and as these lovely little affairs are surprisingly little-priced no woman need go away for a week-end visit without a fresh and becoming garment in her suitcase for idle gossip.

Full length negligees are almost invariably draped, for drapery just now seems to be an obsession with femininity.

Even the humble kimono of ordinary cotton crepe is likely to be caught up at the knee under a rosette of ribbon to convey a suggestion of clinging drapery, and as for the expensive models of chiffon, crepe de chine and lace, clinging is surely the word for their exquisite lines of grace, produced by artful but seemingly artless drapery. Now French negligees of all-over lace are hung over white chiffon foundations having upper sections of flesh colored tulle so that the fashionable effect of semi-nude shoulders is achieved without any real immodesty whatever. French negligees also are of fine net embroidered with chenille flowers in pale mauve, rose or lilac. Ribbons have a larger place on negligee wear than has been the case in several seasons, though in most instances wide, soft bows are also made with this twisted-up ribbon. The sash is of course a feature of negligee wear, just as it is of all costumes, this season, and many little sacques of soft fabric have weighted girdles which knot at the front or at one side of the front and hang below the edge of the sacque to the knee.

MARY DEAN.

Bleach for Waists. When perspiration has left a yellow mark cover the blemish with peroxide of hydrogen, leave until dry, then cover with ammonia and wash. Ammonia water can be used to wash woolen waists on parts where perspiration has left marks. The ammonia will clean the material without injury to the fabric, and also destroy all odor. Often a mark in fine material may be removed in the following manner: In a saucer or pan place a lighted match and cover with sulphur. When it begins to burn cover with a funnel to hold in the fumes. Hold the dampened material over the end of the funnel, and in most cases it will bleach the spot. Work by an open window where there is a strong draft, in order to avoid inhaling any of the fumes.

MAY BE CURLED AT HOME

Not Necessary to Send Plumets to Professional Cleaners When They Become Bedraggled.

The present fashionable ostrich feather, although it is not so tightly curled as the old fashioned plume, looks even more bedraggled and forlorn when it is out of curl than the old one did. Yet fogs and mists or rains are as frequent as ever, and ostrich feathers are now worn at all times of the day and night, regardless of the weather. Plumetis feathers were put forward to fill the role of a feather which moisture would not change, but they do not take the place of the regulation ostrich feather.

There is only one thing to do if you wear ostrich feathers, and that is to learn how to curl them. It is as good as impossible to send a feather to the professional cleaner to be curled every time there is a summer shower.

When the moist hat with feather trimming is removed put it, if possible, near a fire. Heat often restores a good deal of the lost curl. When this is not possible let the feather dry thoroughly and then recur it with a nail file, the blunt edge of a knife or some other steel or silver blade which is not sharp.

Work with one or two of the fronds of the feather at a time. Catch them between the thumb and the blade near the stem of the feather and slowly and firmly draw the thumb and the blade along the fronds to the edge. If necessary go over some of the feathers twice.

It is surprising how rapidly this curling can be done; and if it is carefully done after a little practice the feather will look quite as well as if it had been curled by a professional.

FROM SCRAPS OF CRETONNE

Many Pretty and Serviceable Articles May Be Made in the Odd Moments of Leisure.

After hoarding up scraps of cretonne left from window draperies and furniture covers, a clever woman emptied her patch bag one day and from the oddly shaped pieces of cretonne made many pretty articles.

A large roll of rose-sprigged French cretonne furnished material enough to cover a hat box.

To successfully accomplish this, cut a band long enough to encircle the box and wide enough to cover the sides, with allowance made for turning in at the top and bottom.

With bookbinders' paste join the ends at one corner. Slash the edges so that they will turn neatly and paste in place. Cover the lid in the same manner, and to properly finish the box line with cretonne or plain material, pasting the sides, bottom and top smoothly to the pasteboard foundation. This makes a lovely box in which to keep your best hat and is one which need not be concealed from view.

AFTERNOON GOWN

Model of white cluny lace over chiffon, with draped skirt. Trimming of black maline and sash of same material.

Silk Stocking Hint.

You can prolong the wearing qualities of silk stockings to a much greater extent by sewing a piece of soft silk on the inside of both toe and heel. Japanese wash silk is good. Darn it in around the edge. Also sew a piece of the silk at the top where the garters fasten.

WILSON'S PLANS ARE MADE KNOWN

PRESIDENT CONFERS WITH THE SENATE COMMITTEE ON MEXICO AFFAIRS.

FUTURE MOVEMENTS WILL DEPEND ON LIND'S REPORT.

Will Try to Induce Huerta to Resign. Present Government Will Under No Conditions Be Recognized.

Two hours of conference between President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and the senate foreign relations committee brought about no change in the attitude of the administration toward Mexico.

The president took the senators into his confidence far enough to outline the following:

"That John Lind, his special envoy to Mexico City, does not bear any solution of the present situation, but goes to continue this government's effort to induce provisional President Huerta to redeem his promises for free and constitutional elections:

"That under no circumstances does the administration propose to recognize the Huerta government;

"That Mr. Lind has gone to Mexico City to be the 'eyes and ears' of the Washington administration on the ground and to explain the attitude of this government when he has fully familiarized himself with the situation;

"That by withdrawing Ambassador Wilson and sending Mr. Lind the president planned to have a man on the ground who was in sympathy with the administration here and was in no sense a factor in the situation in Mexico City."

These policies and suggestions of the president and Secretary Bryan came out in general discussion. It was made clear that the purpose of the conference was to establish more frank and intimate relations between the senate and the administration, in the development of the Mexican policy; and in the furtherance of this idea the president talked freely and answered many pointed questions. While the president disclosed no definite plan for the pacification of Mexico, the implication remained that on Lind's reports would depend to a large extent the future policy of this country.

Women Whip London Doctor.

Four militants seized Medinal Officer Pearson, of the home office staff, as he was leaving Holloway jail in London and horse-whipped him. The militants had chosen four of the biggest and strongest of their numbers and Dr. Pearson had no chance to escape the severe chastisement. As the quartet approached Dr. Pearson each drew a whip from her dress and commenced lashing at the face of the victim. When Dr. Pearson tried to get away he was seized by the arms and thrown to the pavement. Policemen and pedestrians interfered and Pearson was rescued.

While the women were wielding their whips they kept up a continual shout of: "You will kill our leaders!" and "We will give you a taste of your own medicine." The women mingled with the crowd and escaped arrest.

Men Burn Foss' Letter.

Six hundred striking workmen of the two Hyde Park manufacturing plants controlled by Gov. Foss burned his letter containing suggestions for a settlement and voted to send him the ashes by special messenger as their reply at a mass meeting.

Gov. Foss in his letter said he would treat with his men as individuals after they had returned to work and suggested August 11 as the date for return.

His attitude was bitterly attacked by speakers at the meeting and the strikers voted not to return until a satisfactory adjustment of their grievances had been reached.

For ten weeks the men have been out to enforce a demand for a 20 per cent increase in pay.

Village Free Delivery a Success.

Satisfactory reports having been received from the villages in which free mail delivery service was provided as an experiment, the postoffice department is planning to extend that branch of its work materially. Last year congress appropriated $100,000 to test the practicability of giving to towns too small to be eligible for city delivery service, the service of one or two carriers and one or two deliveries a day. Several small towns in each state were selected, the five in Michigan being Durand, Fremont, Heron, Reed City and Plainwell. From all parts of the country favorable reports have been received.

Misleading. Sergeant—Halt! you can't go there. Private Murphy—Why not, sir? Sergeant—Because it's the general's tent.

Private Murphy—Then, bedad, what are they doing with "private" above the door?

Misconstrued. An American motoring through a small Scotch town was pulled up for excessive speed.

Protecting Himself. "The doctor says you have an hour to live."

"Give me pen and paper," said the dying man. "To make your will?"

"No; I am going to give the doctor a note for 30 days. He will have to keep me alive that long, at least, so as he can collect it."

Getting Around Difficulty. "Where's my breakfast?" inquired the star boarder. "Well, sir," replied the landlady, "I got a nice bit of fish for you, but I'm sorry to say, sir, the cat—" "Confound the cat! Then let me have cold chicken." "I regret to say, sir, the cat—" "Well, then, some eggs." "There are no eggs in, sir. The cat—" "Hang it all then. Cook the cat and we'll have it all together."

Power to Be Developed. The wise and wholesome restraints of parental love, of family ties, of a good government, of public opinion, and even of social observances, are the best possible preparations for that self-restraint which is the rock on which all true liberty is built.

No slavery is so abject and humiliating as that which chains us in servile obedience to our own appetites and passions, and no power on earth can free us from such bonds except the power of self-restraint. This power, like all others, is developed by continual exercise, and he who resists or condemns all external restraints shuts himself out from this development.

In the Shade of the Telegraph Poles. As for the midsummer heat of the Kachil plain, Denys Bray says: "I have met tribesmen loud in their praise of the telegraph service along the Nushki trade route; it was not the speedy dispatch of messages that appealed to them, that they have found at times an unmitigated nuisance; it was the grateful shade shed by the telegraph poles all along the road."

Taking the Church to Men. The man who does not go to church may now find the church coming to him. Dr. C. S. Wood of Roselle, N. J., has conceived the novel plan of having the entire church service—music, sermon and all—recorded by a phonograph. He will have this record duplicated and devote himself to getting non-attendants to accept the duplicates as a gift. He hopes in this way to reach both those who cannot and those who will not go to church.

Rural school officers complain that excellent teachers are decidedly scarce. Perhaps the fact that the monthly average wage of rural teachers in Michigan is only $53.31 for men and $45.69 for women explains the reason.

The annual picnic of St. Mary's church, Pinckney, will be held at Jackson's grove, Wednesday, August 20. Good speakers have been secured. Athletic games and sports including a tug-of-war, Pinckney vs. Gregory. Dinner will be served from eleven until two. Base ball game, Pinckney vs. Chelsea in the afternoon. North Lake Band will furnish music for the day. Refreshments of all kinds will be served on the grounds. Everyone is invited to come and have a good time. Party in the evening.

The happiest man in the world is the common, every day chap who makes his own living, pays his own bills and has the respect of his neighbors. He saves a little money as he goes along, but doesn't try to get a corner on his local output and he is not a slave to ambition or society. He never expects to wear out his trousers in the senate and when he glides out of bed in the morning he never wastes any time trying to pick out the right tint of socks, suspenders and necktie that will blend with the general effect.

There isn't any question that building yourself a house is a dollar-and-cents proposition. It takes money, and to build it means to spend money you have saved or to save money you would otherwise spend. It is pretty certain to prove a good investment. It will save you rent and uncertainty. It is likely to increase in value as the town grows and earn more in increment than the money would at interest. The building will depreciate with time. But the lot should grow in value if this town does as well as the country at large which is nearly doubling its land values every decade.

I. H. C. ENSILAGE CUTTER

The Advantages of Silage

1. Silage keeps young stock thrifty and growing all winter.
2. It produces fat beef more cheaply than does dry feed.
3. It enables cows to produce milk and butter more economically.
4. Silage is more conveniently handled than dry fodder.
5. The silo prevents waste of corn-stalks, which contain about one third the food value of the entire crop.
6. The silo will make palatable food of stuff that would not otherwise be eaten.
7. It enables a large number of animals to be maintained on a given number of acres.
8. It is the most economical method of supplying food for the stock during the hot, dry periods in summer, when the pasture is short.

The International ensilage cutter is one of the best means of filling a silo that the farmer can use. Made in four sizes. Drop in and let us explain to you why the I. H. C. is the best cutter to buy.

SULZER REPLIES TO HIS ENEMIES

NEW YORK GOVERNOR IN STATEMENT DENIES GAMBLING IN WALL STREET.

SAYS HE DOESN'T KNOW BROKERS MENTIONED.

Admits Using Campaign Funds for Personal Use But Claims to Have Made Good All Such Transactions.

After a long conference with some of his close political advisors Governor Sulzer of New York, issued a short statement denying absolutely that he ever used campaign funds for speculative purposes.

He says he never heard of the stock brokerage firms of Fuller & Gray and Boyer & Griswold, alleged transactions with which figured largely in the testimony before the Frawley legislative committee, until these names were brought out before the committee.

The governor admits he did apply certain campaign contributions to his personal use, but adds that he made the amount good. He also admits having had transactions with the stock firm of Harris & Fuller, but insists that his account with this firm was not speculative and consisted of a loan on stock and collateral. He denies that he ever speculated in Wall street.

Telephone Deal Held Up.

All plans for a division of territory in Michigan between the Michigan State Telephone Co., or Bell interests, and the independents have been temporarily held up by a suit brought by United States Attorney General McReynolds against the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., it was announced at Grand Rapids by leading independents of the state, including Manager Thos. Bromley, Jr., of the United Home Co., of Ludington and Muskegon.

The independents and Bell interests have been planning for some time on a division of territory, the Bell to absorb the independents in those districts where it was stronger, and the independents to acquire the Bell properties at Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Ludington, and other points where they largely control. In this way, it is declared, service to the public could be improved, and competition would be eliminated.

Two Battle Creek Buildings Fall.

Without warning the rear of the Zelinsky building, a three-story brick structure facing Main street and extending to State, in Battle Creek, fell in, carrying the adjoining Schoder block with it.

How a fatal accident was avoided is little short of a miracle. Workmen were extending a cellar under the block owned by ex-Mayor Zelinsky and are believed to have gone too deep under a party wall separating the building from the Schoder block. This wall gave way and the whole State street frontage of the two buildings followed. The workmen in the cellar ran toward Main street when they heard the wall crack, and thus escaped death.

Women Gamble in Philadelphia.

Three hundred women gamblers, working in mills and spending their money in baseball pools, have been counted by Detective Charles Lee, head of the vice squad in Philadelphia. Harry Reed, of 4470 Germantown avenue, has been held in jail by Magistrate Coward, having been charged with operating a pool. Lee says 1,500 persons gambled on ball games in Reed's place each week, most of whom were women. The chances cost 25 cents each.

IN STRIKE DISTRICT

Judge Alfred J. Murphy, of Detroit, is in the upper peninsula as the personal representative of Governor Ferris.

NATIONAL RURAL BANKING

System Proposed by Sen. Fletcher As First Fruit of Investigation of European Methods.

The first fruit of the recent European investigation of rural credits by an American commission was noted in the senate when Senator Fletcher, of Florida, introduced a comprehensive bill to provide for the establishment, operation, management and control of a National Rural Banking system.

Senator Fletcher, who was chairman of the commission that made the European investigation, addressed the senate in explanation of the bill, which it is believed may have a material bearing on the pending currency legislation.

The Fletcher bill formulates a plan for a complete system of rural banks to be organized under a federal charter especially designed to meet the financial requirements of the farmer. The bill divorces farm credits from commercial and industrial credits. It recognizes the need, first, of a credit arrangement whereby the farmer can acquire lands and a home and sufficient capital for the permanent improvement of his farm.

Leaves Estate Equal to Morgan's

Although the provisions of the will of the late Anthony N. Brady, of New York, have given no indication of the size of his estate, unofficial estimates are published placing Mr. Brady's wealth on a par with that of the late J. P. Morgan.

A former financial adviser to Mr. Brady is quoted as placing his estate at $75,000,000 as a minimum estimate and as adding that it might prove to be in excess of $100,000,000. A recent report by a state transfer tax attorney made a semi-official estimate of Mr. Morgan's estate at the same aggregate figure, $100,000,000. Mr. Morgan filled a so much greater place in the public eye, however, than Mr. Brady or others of great wealth, that the reports of the Brady fortune being on a par with that of Mr. Morgan have occasioned surprise even in Wall street, where he was best known.

First Race Treaty is Signed.

The first of the international peace treaties embodying Secretary Bryan's plans has been signed. It was between the United States and Salvador, and soon will be sent to the senate for ratification. The terms of this convention are practically identical with the details of the international peace proposal submitted by Secretary Bryan to the nations of the world. Twenty-six countries, including most of the great powers, already have approved the plan in principle, and it is probable that the signing of other treaties will follow in rapid succession. All will be drafted on the same general lines.

Earthquake Destroys Peru Towns.

News reached Lima, Peru, that an earthquake destroyed the Peruvian towns of Caraveli and Quicacha. Thousands of the inhabitants were rendered homeless and extended relief measures will be necessary.

Caraveli is a city of 4,000 inhabitants in the state of Arequipa, 130 miles northwest of the port of Mollendo. Quicacha is a smaller town in the same state.

The whole district is subject to frequent earthquakes, and most of the houses and public edifices are built to resist shocks. The city of Arequipa itself has been laid in ruins on several occasions. The volcano of Misti is in the immediate vicinity.

William C. Road, of the University of Michigan, will prepare a comprehensive sewerage plan for Aljena.

HELPED OUT FROM THE BENCH

Young Lawyer at Least Had the Encouragement of the Judge Up to a Certain Point.

A young lawyer is the hero of this story. At least, he was young when the incident occurred. Now his name is so prominent in legal circles that it would be unkind to reveal it. He was defending a criminal and, in doing so, was making his first appearance in court.

"The unfortunate client for whom it is my privilege to appear," he said, his tongue and lips dry and thick: "the unfortunate client; your honor, whom I am defending—ahem! ahem!—I will repeat, your honor, the unfortunate man whom I here represent—I might say, this most miserable and unfortunate man—"

Just then the judge leaned forward and said, in a soft, encouraging manner: "You may proceed, sir. So far the court is with you."—Popular Magazine.

Fish Not Wanted.

"I hear you're going to marry Archie Blueblood, Diana. Is it true?" asked one young society woman of another. "Marry him! I should think not! What on earth could I do with the man? He can't ride, he can't play tennis, golf, nor, for that matter, can he even drive a motorcar!"

"Oh," said the friend, "but he can swim beautifully, you know!"

"Swim, indeed! Now, I ask you, would you like a husband you had to keep in an aquarium?"

Right and Left.

Pat, who was left-handed, was being sworn as a witness in the West side court of Denver, Colo.

"Hold up your right hand," said the judge.

Up went Pat's left hand.

"Hold up your right hand," commanded the judge, sternly.

"Sure, and I am, yer honor," declared Pat, "Me right hand's on me left-hand side."—Woman's Home Companion.

The Difference.

Bad and Worse.

The Way to Do It.

According to an authority on the subject this is the proper way to treat "him":

When you marry him, love him. After you marry him, study him. If he is honest, honor him. If he is generous, appreciate him. When he is sad, cheer him. When he is cross, amuse him. When he is talkative, listen to him. When he is quarrelsome, ignore him.

If he is slothful, spur him. If he is noble, praise him. If he is confidential, encourage him. If he is secretive, trust him. If he is jealous, cure him. If he cares naught for pleasure, coax him.

If he favors society, accompany him. If he does you a favor, thank him. When he deserves it, kiss him. Let him think how well you understand him, but never let him know that you "manage" him.

Fitting Recognition.

In view of the fact that the mining industry has contributed more than $40,000,000,000 to the wealth of the United States during the last quarter of a century, it is not surprising that it is planned to make an impressive display of this industry at the Panama-Pacific International exposition, to be held at San Francisco in 1915.

Her Weapon of Offense.

"So Miss Jones cut you yesterday?"

"Yes. She did it with her hatchet face."

Surmise.

"Ma, tell me one thing, will you?"

"Yes, pet, what is it?"

"Do the mermaids put their laundry in the ocean's wash?"

Man With Ideas.

"How shall we advertise our fire sale?"

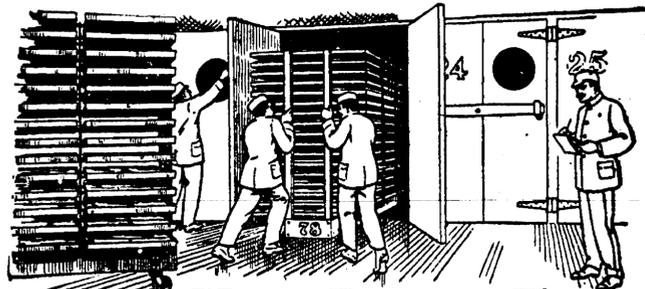

"Say the goods are still warm."

To Every One.

"What is a Marathon?"

"It's Greek to me."

NAPOLÉON ACHILLE MURAT, FLORIDA'S CITIZEN PRINCE

Old Portrait of Prince Achille Murat in Tallahassee Public Library

Photograph of Princess Murat in Tallahassee Public Library

TALLAHASSEE, the capital of Florida, was for some years the home of Prince Napoleon Achille Murat, son of Joachim Murat, whom Napoleon made king of Naples. The prince and his wife were buried in the Episcopal cemetery of the town, and visitors to Tallahassee may still see their graves and also the house in which the princess lived before her marriage, with her parents, Col. and Mrs. Byrd Willis. The plantation of Prince Achille is near by, a portrait of the prince and a photograph of the princess are in the public library, and many white haired men and women are still living who remember the interesting, strangely assorted but devoted couple.

Among these who remember the princess with peculiar affection is Fanny Taylor, a very old negro woman, the daughter of Patsy Lee, who was the personal maid of Katherine Willis in Virginia before she went to Florida and was still her maid after her marriage.

Patsy, with several other former slaves, was remembered in the will of the princess, and Patsy's daughter still lives in a cabin near Bellevue, which was the last home of the princess. The cabin is new, but is on the site of the former cottage, in which were recently burned many historic and beautiful pieces of Murat furniture, because, as Fanny expressed it, "there was no manking about to put out the fire." The cabin is as clean as a pin, in honor perhaps of the fact that in it are gifts from royalty.

Fanny showed a recent visitor with modest but evident pride two silver teaspoons, three forks and an old fashioned twisted gold brooch given to her mother by Princess Murat. From a wash cloth of finest birdseye linen hemmed with almost invisible stitches, and the last one ever used by the princess, Fanny unfolded two locks of gray hair, one of the mistress and one of the maid. The last and most cherished possession displayed was a small photograph of the princess taken during the latter years of her life.

Of both the prince and princess their former slave remembers many interesting incidents. One of these was the well known anecdote of how during an absence of the princess the prince dyed all the household linen, the lingerie of the princess and every dress that the servants did not hide from him a vivid pink. The dye used, tradition says, was pokeberry juice.

On another occasion he invited a Tallahassee friend to stay for dinner, urging the fact that he had killed a "turkey buzzard" and was having it cooked. A sawdust pudding was another of the odd culinary conceits remembered against him.

Nothing could have been more royally brilliant than the prince's first 20 years nor more democratically dull than the last 20 years of his life. He was six years old when Napoleon made Joachim Murat king of Naples; and as the heir to the throne little Achille was known as the prince royal of the Two Sicilies and with his younger brother, Lucien, spent a pampered childhood at the court which his father and mother established.

When Achille was fourteen years old his father and Napoleon became estranged, and at this most inopportune time the king of Naples also lost the loyalty of his Italian subjects. In an effort to regain his power by force he was captured and executed and his wife and sons were sent as prisoners to Austria.

It was after several years of wanderings over Europe that Prince Murat drifted to America at the age of twenty, and it was in Florida that he spent most of the remainder of his short life. When Colonel Murat, as he was called by most of his American friends, arrived in Tallahassee the belle of Florida was Katherine Willis Gray, a young widow who lived with her father, Col. Byrd Willis, who had sought and made his fortune in the new territory of Florida.

Mrs. Gray had married a Scotman at the age of fifteen and was left a widow at sixteen, and as her child also died she returned to live with her parents at Willis hall, near Fredericksburg, Va., and accompanied them when they moved to Florida. The Willis home in Tallahassee on South Monroe street, near the capitol, was a center of the social life of the state.

The beauty and charm of the young Virginia widow, who was then only twenty-two years old, immediately captivated the son of Caroline Bonaparte and his courtship seems to have been as ardent as might be expected from a temperamental Frenchman. However, the young woman was not only beautiful and wealthy, but her mother was Mary Lewis, a niece of George Washington, and not even the dazzling fact that Colonel Murat's mother was a sister of Napoleon could blind the eyes of the blue blood of Virginia to the knowledge that his father, Joachim Murat, was the son of an obscure innkeeper.

Beside which the prince was eccentric to a degree that was almost ill bred. He spoke a burlesque of the English language and was perhaps easily affected, but certainly often affected, by wine. He was, however, an intensely interesting companion, and was eagerly sought socially and valued as a sincere and unchanging friend.

The courtship of the greatest belle and the only prince in Tallahassee was watched with interest by the friends of the couple and with approval by the parents of the young woman; and when the devotion and undisguised admiration of the prince finally won there were hearty congratulations and good wishes for them from many parts of the United States as well as their adopted state.

Mrs. Gray and Colonel Murat were married July 30, 1826, and went to live at Lipona, his large plantation in Jefferson county, the name of which was transposed to Napoli, the city with which he had so many associations. It was one of the most beautiful estates in Florida and near the township in the same country which was given to Lafayette by the United States government on his visit in 1824.

The prince becoming restless on his Florida plantation, he and his American princess went abroad, and being forbidden to enter France and Italy they went to "Little Paris," as Brussels is called, where they spent two delightful years. The prince, who was a close personal friend of King Leopold, was made a colonel in the Belgian army and had command of a regiment of lancers. Both he and the princess were immensely popular, too popular, in fact, for the fine Bonaparte face of Prince Achille was so much like that of his uncle, the great Napoleon, that he was often stopped on the street and embraced by old soldiers, who fell on their knees before him.

The Powers saw and trembled for fear that he might be able to enlist soldiers enough to restore his family to their former throne, and his regiment was disbanded. Prince Achille made a memorable address to his men, speaking to them in seven different languages, one after another, and then returned with his wife to his American freedom.

During a year's stay in London the beauty and the charming personality of the princess made a great impression among English nobility, and they were of real financial assistance to members of the exiled Bonaparte family, especially Louis Napoleon, the cousin of Prince Achille. The following year Prince Louis Napoleon came to America expecting to visit his "Cousin Kate" and "Cousin Achille" at their southern home, but he was recalled from New York by the illness of his mother.

The prince, with his active mind, became at one time very much interested in the study of law, to which he devoted his entire time and quickly mastered it. He was admitted to the bar in New Orleans and formed a partnership with Mr. Gardner, and for several years made his home in the congenial French city, where he divided his time between his beautiful town house and a large sugar plantation which he bought on the Mississippi river. Not understanding the culture of cane, he lost a great deal of money, but learned at the same time a great deal about the people and their life, which he recalls in his books on America.

Returning to the ever cherished neighborhood of Tallahassee the prince and princess spent a number of years at Econohattie, another of their plantations, and it was then that the fighting blood of the Bonapartes was aroused by the continuous outrages of the Indians, and the prince in command of a regiment fought with Americans for American rights.

The prince was a brave and daring soldier, quick, firm and resourceful, but his wife proved herself a mate worthy of a Bonaparte by following him through every peril of the campaign, nursing him through an almost fatal case of fever and remaining with him until the bloody little war was over.

At lovely Econohattie, with its giant live oak trees hung with long gray moss and the whole world about it fragrant with flowers, Prince Achille Murat died April 15, 1847, and it was at Econohattie that his widow spent the summers during the twenty years she survived him. She died August 6, 1867.

Bellevue, just two miles from Tallahassee, is more closely associated with the princess after the death of Prince Murat. She bought the place and with her favorite slaves settled there to spend the remainder of her life. It is a pretty white cottage of four immense high pitched rooms, set on a beautiful hill overlooking Tallahassee to the east. An overland lined walk leads from the road to the doorway, and all about the house are enormous magnolia trees, covered most of the year with big white blossoms, red berried holly trees and grapefruit trees which at all seasons are beautiful with either fragrant waxy blossoms or pale yellow fruit.

The entertainments given by the princess at Bellevue were noted all over the south for their lavish hospitality, and were enhanced perhaps in interest by the service of solid gold and the imperial livery of the Bonapartes. The privilege of using the red and gold livery was bestowed with $40,000 on his "Cousin Kate" by Louis Napoleon after he had become emperor.

In the cottage were also a marble bust of Caroline Bonaparte, many exquisite pieces of French furniture and other handsome gifts presented to her by Napoleon when, with the other members of the Bonaparte family, she went to Paris for his coronation. On many occasions she was selected by him for especial honors and welcomed as a princess of France.

On one occasion she was invited to a court function at the Tuileries and was told that she would know her position at table by the rank of the person with whom she went in to dinner. As one after the other of the dignitaries present passed out before her to dinner her heart sank at the sight of the few nonentities left. Her unaffected surprise and delight greatly pleased the emperor when he himself came quickly in, offered her his arm and seated her beside him at the table.

The emperor was never tired of listening to the animated stories of his American cousin and he and Eugenie begged her to make her home in France, but Mme. Murat could not forget the friends left in Florida and that many plantations and slaves needed her personal attention, so she returned to America and to Bellevue.

When the close of the war left Mme. Murat penniless, although possessed of thousands of acres of fertile farm lands, and she and her several hundred slaves faced starvation, the emperor came to her assistance and gave her a large yearly income, on which she not only lived in great comfort but with which she did a vast deal of charity, helping many stricken families and friends in Florida and Virginia.

Mme. Murat made another visit to Paris in 1866, where she spent a year in an effort to regain her failing health. She became seriously ill on her return and after a long illness at Bellevue she went to Econohattie where she died.

Winning Back Health.
One week of the fresh food, open air, freedom from hustle and bustle, and natural living will fill out the hollows in a tired face, brighten the luster of work-weary eyes, send a tingle through the veins and start a song in the heart. Long rambles through woods and fields, restful hours in the hammock under the trees, congenial companions on the vine-screened veranda, tennis, croquet, swimming, driving, all of these combine to send the girl who seeks recreation on the farm back to her work with a rejuvenated body and a clean, calm, steadied mind.

ITCHING TERRIBLE ON LIMB

R. F. D. No. 3, Clarkfield, Minn.—"My trouble was of long standing. It started with some small red and yellow spots about the size of a pin head on my leg and every morning there was a dry scale on top covering the affected part and when those scales were falling off the itching was more than I could stand at times. The first year I did not mind it so much as it was only itching very badly at times, but the second year it advanced all around my leg and the itching was terrible. I had to be very careful to have my clothing around the affected part very loose. At night time I often happened to scratch the sore in my sleep. Then I had to stand up, get out of bed and walk the floor till the spell was over.

"I bought lots of salves and tried many different kinds of medicine but without any success. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a fifty-cent box of Cuticura Ointment and when I had used them I was nearly over the itching. But I kept on with the Cuticura Soap for six weeks and the cure was complete." (Signed) S. O. Gordon, Nov. 20, 1912.

New Industry.
"Now that so many automobiles are passing your house," said the visitor, "I should think you would keep your chickens shut up."
"What!" said the farmer; "and cut off my greatest income?"

Parks—No; she hasn't run out of money yet.

His Views.
Wife—There is finish in that architect's work on our new home.
Hubbard—Sure there is, but it's my finish.

Not Desirable Gain.
"Did Faker succeed in raising anything on those dubious securities?"
"I heard he succeeded in raising Cain."

Differentiating.
"Don't you adore drop ceilings?"
"Not the kind where the plaster comes down."

It is better to tell your doctor and your lawyer the truth, even if you occasionally forget to inform your wife.

NOT A TASK TO BE ENVIED

Serving on English Juries Some Centuries Ago Had Many and Varied Disadvantages.

Not always enviable was the lot of the old time jurymen. For there was always the prospect of trouble if the verdict did not gratify the higher powers. Thus the failure of a jury to convict Sir Nicholas Throckmorton made Queen Mary "ill for three days," and she came out of her sick chamber to fine the disobliging jury (meanwhile confined in prison) the sum of $10,000 a head. Elizabeth followed the same plan, and the practice of fining English juries did not cease until 1670, when a fine inflicted by the notorious Jeffreys was rescinded on appeal.

In some old time "courts of quarter sessions" the injunction to lay their heads together had to be carried out by jurymen in literal fashion. When they began to consider the verdict they were supposed to dive beneath the level of the jury box and remain in that cramped position until a decision was reached.

Meanwhile, the court usher stood near the box armed with a long wand of willow. If any jurymen ventured to emerge above the surface before the twelve minds were agreed, down came the wand on the head of the offender.

No Rest This Side the Grave.
Ascum—Do you remember the night I had to take you home from the club in a cab and—Nagget—Yes, indeed.
Ascum—I don't suppose you have heard the last of it yet?
Nagget—No, my wife's still living.
—Stray Stories.

Sociable Shave.
Hubbubs—Don't you miss a barber out in the country?
Subbubs—Oh, no; I talk to myself all the time I am shaving.—Philadelphia Record.

This year by a vote of 7 to 6 it was decided to build a $75,000 high school building. This tax will have to be spread and collected in one year. The taxpayers had voted down a bonding proposition several times but the action taken at the annual meeting will hold.

An exchange remarks that it has recently executed a job of printing for a farmer who had given his farm home a name, and had stationery printed to fit it. Why is this not a good idea? The farmer is as much on the map as is his city brother; and is anxious to know if his mail reaches its destination or not—and to have it returned if it does not. The printed piece of stationery will accomplish this, and prove as satisfactory to him and add as much to his prestige as to that of the city dealer.
