To Prevent Tuberculosis

In order to keep from getting tuberculosis, the first and most important rule is to keep as strong and healthy as possible. When the tubercle bacilli gets into the body or lungs of a healthy person they do not multiply but are soon killed, while in the lungs of a weak or sickly person they increase in numbers and produce tuberculosis. Of great assistance in keeping well and strong are quantities of fresh, pure air both in the daytime and at night, in the home, in the school-room, and in the work-room, together with proper food, cleanliness, and temperance.

One can get fresh, pure air by keeping the living rooms during the daytime well ventilated, and by keeping the windows of the bedrooms wide open all night. Dust may be largely avoided by cleaning with damp cloths and brooms (never use a dry broom or duster.)

Children should be taught not to put anything in their mouths except food. Putting pencils, coins, or playthings in the mouth, or eating candy or chewing gum which other children have had in their mouths are dirty, dangerous habits, and should be avoided.

Over indulgence in whiskey or other forms of alcohol predisposes one to tuberculosis, and the use of intoxicants of any kind in tuberculosis is distinctly injurious. Alcohol weakens the body so that it cannot resist the disease germs. Every person should take a warm bath with soap at least once a week, and if possible should have a cold bath every morning.

Read, Then Feed

One night last winter a group of musical artists sent out by the Coit Lyceum Bureau shivered and shook, both cold and hungry as there was no hotel in town open for their accomodation. To-day conditions are somewhat reversed. Pinckney, for the present at least, is well equipped with eating and sleeping conveniences. George Morross of Detroit opened the hotel Tuesday, recently vacated by A. E. Steadman, and proposes to run an up-to-date place. Chas. Morse of Jackson, formerly proprietor of the hotel, will return to Pinckney and occupy the Wilson. Mill also has a new hotel. Besides this we have Smith's restaurant and several private boarding houses. Pinckney always gets there on the home run and can usually show up pretty strong for a town of her size.

A Complete Surprise

Monday, September 8th, relatives numbering about twenty-five met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Grieve to celebrate Mr. Grieve's 75th anniversary. A bountiful dinner was served at noon after which E. L. Topping, in a few well chosen remarks, presented Mr. Grieve with a purse of gold and bills from those present, also from relatives unable to be present. His son Fred, thinking of the days soon to come, gave him a fine overcoat. A large package of post cards from old friends and neighbors was also received, which in these days makes one glad to be thus reminded. The afternoon was pleasantly spent with visiting, music, taking pictures, and last but not least, a watermelon feast on the lawn.

To Mr. Grieve it was a surprise from start to finish. For some reason he did not make a speech after all this had happened, but some one has rightly said, "Actions speak louder than words." To all who remembered him with a card of good wishes he wishes to thank them as they are greatly appreciated.

It Certainly Was Embarrassing to David Kerr, boss of Belmont, when his charming, motherless daughter Gloria unexpectedly returned from school and a European trip, which, combined, had kept her away from home for many years and deprived her of all knowledge of the occupation of her father, whom she supposed to be a real estate operator, high in society. But that was but the beginning of embarrassments. Kerr was a typical boss of the most brutal type, far removed from "society," determined to use his power to make a place for Gloria. Gloria's bitterawakening to the truth, her falling in love with a young editor who opposes her father, and many other incidents make up a drama of absorbing interest and power. You will enjoy every instalment of our next serial in which the above is told.

GREAT FIRE IN HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

MORE THAN THIRTY BLOCKS IN HEALTH RESORT SWEEP BY FLAMES.

LOSS IS ESTIMATED AT OVER FOUR MILLION.

Many Public Buildings Destroyed As Block After Block of Famous "City of Vapors" Goes Up in Smoke.

Hot Springs, Ark. More than 30 blocks on the eastern edge of the business district of Hot Springs had been swept clean by a fire which at 9 o'clock threatened to eat its way toward Central avenue, the main business thoroughfare. A high wind was blowing and the Hot Springs and Little Rock fire departments, the latter hurried to this city aboard special trains, had made but little headway in checking the flames. At 9 o'clock, Sidney Dillon, commissioner of public utilities, estimated that at least $4,000,000 of property had been destroyed.

Among the buildings destroyed were the city's light, water and power plants, the county court house, the Park, Jefferson, Princess and Moody hotels, the city high school, Iron Mountain railroad station and shops, Ozark sanitarium, People's laundry, Crystal theater and Bijou rink, besides a hundred or more smaller business buildings and many residences, including some of the best in the city.

Michigan Pythians Elect Officers.

Kalamazoo. The annual meeting of Michigan Pythians closed at Kalamazoo with a parade and big-street demonstration. In the competitive drills in the afternoon Eaton Rapids took first prize, Albion second, and Marshall third. Nine teams took part in the contest.

The Pythian Sisters elected the following officers: Mrs. Anna Jennie, Eaton Rapids, grand chief; Mrs. Rose Gates, Morenci, grand junior; Mrs. Ira M. Ryan, Caro, grand manager; Mrs. Jennie Doyle, Pontiac, mistress of records and correspondence; Mrs. Etta Jordan, Detroit, mistress of finances; Mrs. Amelia Rix, Sault Ste. Marie, grand protector; Mrs. Emma Loveland, Kalamazoo, grand outer guard; Mrs. Mary Lockhead, Flint, supreme representative.

Next year's meeting will be held in Saginaw.

Darrow Fails to End Strike.

Calumet, Mich.—Attorney Clarence S. Darrow, famous for the legal battles he has waged in the interests of labor, signally failed in an effort to convince the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, through its chief counsel, A. F. Rees, of Houghton, that the copper strike should be settled by arbitration.

Although neither Mr. Darrow nor Mr. Rees would divulge the result of the conference it is generally conceded that it proved of no avail. Mr. Darrow, who reached Calumet with President Charles Noyes of the Western Federation of Miners Friday morning, sought the conference with Mr. Rees on the suggestion of Governor Ferris, the governor believing that the mine operators should be given another chance to end the struggle without further waste of lives and resources.

Convention of Humane Association.

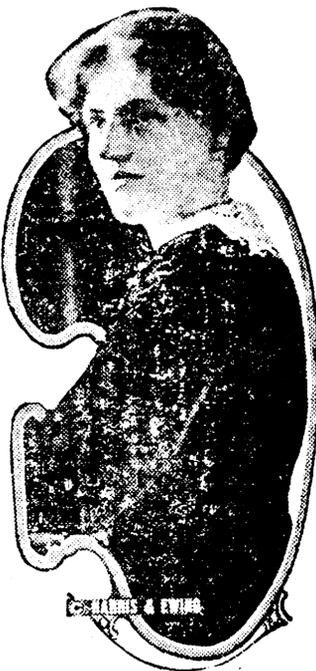

Hillsdale—J. C. Richardson, of Jackson, was elected president of the Michigan State Humane association at the eighth annual convention in this city. Other officers chosen were: Secretary, Mrs. E. B. Shannon, Bay City, and treasurer, Mrs. Carrie A. Barre, Hillsdale. The 1914 convention will be held in Muskegon.

President J. W. Hauck, of Hillsdale college, said there would be fewer crimes if humane principles were instilled in the youth. Others who spoke were: Edward Frensdorf, of Hudson; Carl S. Kleinstuck, of Kalamazoo, and Jefferson Butler, of Detroit.

Rev. John I. Wheeler, who recently resigned as pastor of the Church of Christ at Dowagiac, to enter the evangelistic field, has changed his mind and left for Milwaukee to become a field representative for the Socialists there.

CITIZENS CHEER HARRY THAW

Coaticook Crowd With Band Give Demonstration and Slayer Gives Brief Talk.

Coaticook, Que.—While the town band played "God Save the King" great throngs surged about Harry K. Thaw's quarters in the immigration detention station here Saturday night, and in two languages shouted their admiration for the millionaire slayer of Stanford White.

Plans for a celebration of Thaw's eleventh hour escape from the clutches of William Travers Jerome had been under way all day. When the band came marching briskly up with the music so dear to the hearts of the French Canadians resounding on the clear night air, the pent-up enthusiasm of Thaw's well wishers broke loose. They cheered him again and again and finally the crowd became so enthusiastic that the prisoner appeared at his window and delivered a brief speech of thanks.

"I am glad that you are glad that British fair play has finally won my fight," he said. "Jerome is at last unveiled to the people of Canada in his true light. He now knows that he has been beaten and he may as well go home."

To Test Blue Sky Law.

Lansing, Mich.—Attorney Hal H. Smith, of Detroit, in behalf of Burton, Howe & Carrigan, of Grand Rapids, filed a bill in the Ingham circuit court here to test the validity of the blue sky law. A similar bill was filed by him in United States court in Detroit a few weeks ago. The bill is filed in circuit court here to specifically test the question of whether the blue sky law is not the delegating of greater police powers to a state board than the constitution warrants. This is a point which Smith says can be better raised in a state court than a federal court.

Prize Hogs Have Cholera.

Columbus, Ohio.—Prize stock, the estimated value of which is half a million dollars, was quarantined at the Ohio State fair here by the state board of health, when it was discovered that a cholera epidemic had broken out in the hog exhibit.

Several high priced hogs died from the disease before the epidemic was discovered. A meeting of the health board was called immediately and action taken.

Thirteen hundred hogs, constituting the "swine aristocracy" of Ohio, are affected by the quarantine.

Drew Caminetti Found Guilty.

San Francisco.—Farley Draw Caminetti, son of the commissioners general of immigration, was found guilty Friday on one count of the indictment charging him with violation of the Mann white slave act.

The jury was out three hours and took eight ballots. From the first, the vote stood 10 to 2 for conviction and finally the two recalcitrants agreed to compromise by finding a verdict of guilty on one of the four counts charged.

The thirtieth annual reunion, of the Michigan battalion regiment, Merrill Horse, will be held in Battle Creek, September 24. Battle Creek is the permanent headquarters of the battalion.

INCREASES EGG YIELD

Salt in Proper Quantities of Material Benefit to Hens.

Food Prepared for Human Taste With Mineral Is Not Injurious or Repellent to Poultry—Result a New York Station.

It is a tradition that salt is craved by, and is beneficial, to all domestic and many wild animals, with the exception of poultry, and that to these it is poison. That in large quantities this is true is an undoubted fact, as has often been tested.

Some years ago the writer was quite horrified upon going to the barnyard one afternoon to find a dozen or more fine hens lying about dead. In looking for the cause of this sudden mortality one of the cow's messes was found to be uneaten, and a close examination showed that the attendant, either through ignorance or carelessness, had dumped upon it a pint of salt—too much to be relished even by bossy—and after the cattle had been turned into the pasture, the chickens, that had free range, discovered the bucket of bran, and ate from it freely, and so rapid was the action of the salt that some hens died but a few feet away. An examination of the crops confirmed the supposition that it was the heavily salted bran that had proved fatal, says a writer in the Farm Progress.

That food salted to the human taste is not, however, injurious or repellent to poultry of nearly all kinds is proved by the avidity with which the latter eat and thrive upon the table scraps, which include, besides bread and meat, all kinds of vegetables and bits of pastry. Close observers contend that chickens, especially, seem to need small quantities of salt in their food, and when given a chance, will prefer this to unseasoned grain.

What the exact effects of the slightly salted ration might be on the general health and productiveness of hens was made the subject of experiment two or three years ago at the New York experiment station.

The feeding trial was made upon a dozen mature hens, especially to ascertain the approximate limit of the feeding. For one lot of hens salt was mixed in the food in increasing quantities, day after day, until it was fed at somewhat more than six-hundredths of an ounce per fowl, or about one-half pint per day for 100 hens. More than this produced diarrhoea in some which disappeared when the excess of salt was withdrawn.

The test was made at the unproductive time of the year, but an unexpected and gratifying result was that double the number of eggs were laid by the hens fed on rather over-salted food than by any other dozen fowls fed on unseasoned grain and other rations.

DIP FOR SCABIES IN CATTLE

Secretary of Agriculture Amends Order by Permitting a Stronger Solution of Tobacco.

The secretary of agriculture has amended Order 143, effective August 15, 1913, relating to dips for scabies in cattle by permitting the use of the tobacco dip prepared from tobacco and suitable tobacco products, provided it contains not less than seven hundredths of one per cent of nicotine. Heretofore, the requirements have been that the tobacco dip should contain not less than five hundredths of one per cent of nicotine and two per cent flowers of sulphur. The tobacco dip of the new strength need not contain the sulphur. The regulation remains unchanged regarding the dip and sulphur dip, which may be used as directed in the order.

Selecting Male Hog.

In selecting a male hog, good bone is a very desirable thing to look for. A heavy boned hog weighs better than a light boned one, and its costs no more to raise him. Breeding weight in the form of bone is cheaper than feeding corn to him on fat. A good boned hog is also less liable to "go down" when finished.

Profitable Turkey Hens.

Turkey hens are profitable until five years of age, but it is a good plan to change the gobblers every year. It requires twenty-eight days to hatch a turkey egg, and seven eggs is considered a setting. The nests should be on the ground.

Building Up Farm.

One of the surest and best ways to build up a run-out farm is to keep a good herd of cows and to put every pound of manure back on the land.

Troubles for Pigs.

If you permit the beds of your little pigs to become wet, damp and unchanged, your pigs will soon be troubled with sore tails and scours.

SPRAYS TO DESTROY WEEDS

Application of Destroyer Should Be Made on Hot Days—Exercise Care in Handling Poisons.

(By JULIUS ERDMAN, Colorado Agricultural College.)

It is a rather tedious process, and hard on tools to remove weeds or grass from walks by hoeing or cutting them out between the stones, but there are a number of chemicals or sprays which can be used with good success.

1. Salt. Take one pound of salt to one gallon of water, boil and apply while still hot, or dry salt may be used and then watered in; but this will color the walk more or less and is not quite so effective.

2. Crude carbolic acid, one-half ounce of the liquid to one gallon of water will also destroy ants.

3. Sulphuric acid, four-fifths ounce of the acid to one gallon of water. Best applied with a wooden pail.

4. Take one pound of powdered arsenic to three gallons of cold water, boil and stir well. Then add seven gallons of cold water with two pounds of sal soda.

5. Lime and sulphur, ten gallons of water, twenty pounds of quicklime and two pounds of flour of sulphur are boiled in an iron vessel. After settling, the clear part is dipped off and used when needed.

There are also a number of commercial weed killers in the market which can be bought at seed stores. Applications of weed destroyers should best be made on a hot day, or right after a rain, with a watering pot (sprinkler), and one good application is usually sufficient for the season. As the most of them contain poison, either arsenic or acids, great care should be exercised in handling them.

Feeding is Important.

If the chicken that you intend to exhibit could have as much time in the coops before the show as they do during it they would pose much better for the judge and would be in just as good condition providing of course if they were fed right.

Cause of Failure.

The unsuccessful poultry raiser does not think about the time that should be consumed in feeding and cleaning the houses and he also fails to notice that his methods of housing are wrong.

To Study Forestry.

The University of Washington has secured the use of two sections of land on the Snoqualmie national forest in connection with its forestry courses.

Producing of Mutton.

The time has come, when every farmer who is in the sheep business should preserve a part of his corn crop in the silo. It means much in the efficient production of mutton.

Increased Forest Sales.

In an increase in timber sales this year and in a decrease in receipts from timber trespass as compared with last year, national forest officers see a growing use of the forests and respect for the federal forest policy.

Trapping Snails.

Snails causing damage in gardens may be trapped by placing pieces of poisoned turnip, cabbage or potatoes about covered with board so as not to kill the fowls.

No Fear of Adulteration.

The man who lives largely from his garden has no fear of adulterated products. He gets the very best and can proudly invite a king to his table.

In training a colt do not try to teach it more than one thing at a time. It is better to teach one thing thoroughly than to never forget it.

Two small neighbors of mine were playing close to our boundary line. Robert was telling Walter, who is a little over three and has the face of a seraph, that his mamma will not allow him to play with Roland, George, and several others, because they swear. Wedding Solemnity.

There is no talk, no levity, and much crying at a Chinese marriage ceremony, and the solemnity of a funeral prevails. After the exchange of presents the bride is dressed with much care. A feast is spread upon a table, to which the bride is led by five of her intimate female friends. They are seated at the table, but no one eats. Absolute silence prevails. Suddenly the bride's mother begins crying, the maids follow, and the bride joins in the dismal chorus. Then all the bridesmaids leave the table and the disconsolate mother takes a seat beside the chair of state where the bride sits. The bridegroom now enters with four of his best men. The men pick up the throne on which the bride sits, and preceded by the bridegroom, form in procession and walk around the room or into an adjoining parlor, signifying that he is carrying her away from her home.

MUSIC'S MEAT AND BREAD

The truth is that the public taste is not as degraded as theatrical managers and others who cater to the general public would have us believe. There is a desire for the better things which is far greater than the ability of the producer to give them. In the theater the immodest "revue" and the suggestive play find existence not so much by reason of the demand of the public as because of the limitations, mental and moral, of the purveyor. In light music ragtime has its place just as fudge is regarded as an edible without entering into the category of substantial food. But the public has the taste for the meat and bread of music which it will gratify according to the supply.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

When a man is nearly frozen from a ten mile drive on a cold winter day, he will hardly stop to read a plank advertisement. But at home in his arm chair with his legs crossed before a cheerful fire, he reads his local paper, and has plenty of time, picks out the live business men of the town from the advertisements in the paper and makes up his mind where he will trade on his next trip to town.

Do not underestimate the value of leisure moments. The use you make of them determines what you are going to be. The difference between one who is a failure and one who is a success, is emphasized not so much in the working hours of their time, as in the leisure hours. In the business office the most indolent must measure up to a certain standard or get out. But when the time of recreation comes one forges ahead, while the other spends his time in such a way as to lessen his future efficiency and cripple his powers. It makes all the difference in the world with your future how you use your leisure moments.—Ex.

A Nervous Woman Finds Relief From Suffering.

Women who suffer from extreme nervousness, often endure much suffering before finding any relief. Mrs. Joseph Snyder, of Tiffin, O., had such an experience, regarding which she says:

"Six months I was bedfast with nervous prostration. I had sinking spells, a cold, clammy feeling, could not stand the slightest noise. At times I would almost fly to pieces; stomach very weak. My husband insisted on my taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I began to improve before I had finished the first bottle until I was entirely cured."

MRS. JOSEPH SNYDER, 282 Hudson St., Tiffin, Ohio.

Many remedies are recommended for diseases of the nervous system that fail to produce results because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. Dr. Miles' Nervine has proven its value in such cases so many times that it is unnecessary to make claims for it. You can prove its merits for yourself by getting a bottle of your druggist, who will return the price if you receive no benefit.

CHAPTER I.

The surprise which Gloria knew her unexpected arrival would occasion was even greater than she could imagine. Several things had happened in Belmont recently to disturb David Kerr, and he was in no frame of mind for further complications.

The stock-yards company was beginning to hint at certain favors it wished extended, and with an election coming on, Kerr was in no mood for such concessions. Worse still, the Belmont News had just changed ownership, and the new editor was not displaying that subservient fealty which had characterized all Belmont papers in the past. Already the News was snapping at his heels and asking questions which were extremely pointed. To have Gloria descend upon him at such a time was too much for even David Kerr. His mastery of the situation caused him to have no great fear for the stock-yard demands and the newspaper outcry, vexing problems though they were, but Gloria—Gloria in Belmont—was quite another proposition.

"Father, this is Gloria," explained David Kerr's daughter when she had established telephone connection with Locust Lawn.

"Gloria!" he exclaimed. "Where are you?"

"Here, in Belmont, at the station. I just came."

"How did it happen? I wasn't looking for you."

"Aren't you glad to see me?" "Glad to see you? Of course I am, but it's a surprise. When did you come? How do you happen to be here? Why didn't you let me know?"

"I wanted to surprise you," she laughed. "Annabel Hitchcock's aunt died, so we couldn't go to California. I had nothing else to do, so I came home. Wasn't that right?"

"Exactly, exactly. But it's a bad time to come to Belmont."

"I don't care, I'm so glad to be home. How do I get out to Locust Lawn?"

"You can't well wait there for me to come in for you. Take a carriage and tell the driver you want to go to the end of the Townsend Park car line. Wait for me in the drug store. I'll get there almost as soon as you do."

"Hurry, father, because I'm so anxious to see you. It's been an age since I saw you, and you know I don't know a thing about Belmont. I'm just dying to meet everybody, and then I'll ask some of the girls out to visit me."

"We'll talk that over after-awhile," was his noncommittal response. "Wait for me at the drug store. Good-by."

The carriage drive through Belmont and Townsend Park, a suburb, was of educational value. It gave her an increasing respect for Belmont. Although there was no remarkable residence district, there were occasional homes which denoted refinement as well as comfortable circumstances. This was not in keeping with what David Kerr's daughter had been taught about her father's town. The number of automobiles also surprised her. By the time she reached the place appointed for her meeting with her father there was not so much of condescension in her attitude toward Belmont.

This changing viewpoint did not mean a diminution of enthusiasm. More than anything else it spurred her curiosity. She realized that the real Belmont was an advance over what she had been led to expect, just how much only a dip into the social whirl could reveal. The pleasurable part of it all was that Gloria was still queen by right of inheritance. If the kingdom was more extensive than she had thought, the court life would also be more brilliant.

Gloria had not long to wait for her father. An old-fashioned carriage covered with mud and drawn by fat bay horses drew up before the drug store. Out of the vehicle a somewhat pensive individual pulled himself—a smooth-shaven man who appeared to be something over fifty, with heavy jaws and piercing eyes which looked clear through you from under beetling eyebrows. With a cry the girl flung herself upon him and smothered him with kisses.

"You old dear!" she exclaimed. "You haven't changed a bit. I'm so glad to be at home with you. Isn't it just dandy to be back in Belmont!"

The man smiled. Even if he had not changed, as she had sworn, he recognized that she had changed. In the two years since he had seen her, out of the chrysalis had come the butterfly, and this radiant girl was his daughter. For one brief instant he unlocked the neglected chamber of his heart which was the prison of the past, and thought of Gloria's mother. Then the present with its obligations and its stern realities recalled him to the life that was from the days that once had been.

"Welcome home, daughter," he said, making a peck in the general direction of her mouth do duty for an answering kiss. With David Kerr kissing had long ago become an obsolete custom. Then, too, no one had ever accused him of being unduly demonstrative.

Seeing the negro driver bowing and scraping, Gloria left her father to speak to him. She might have forgotten Locust Lawn, but she had not forgotten Locust Lawn's chief factotum. Old Tom, who had been in Kerr's employ for a generation, had been her constant companion when she had outgrown the continuous vigilance of her nurse.

"How d'you do, Tom," she said, extending her hand. "I don't believe you remember me. Now, do you?"

"Bless yo' heart, Miss Glory," grinned the old negro. "I'd sho'ly know you anywheres. An' it does me a pow'ful sight o' good to see you. Why, chile, when you went away you wuz jes' a little gal. An' now look at you; you's a reg'lar grown-up woman. Ah reckins you'll want to git mahried soon. Hey?"

Gloria laughed; that same fresh, infectious laugh of hers which had warned many a wary suitor that he had not found the combination to her heart and had brought him to that plane of friendship on which he was always welcome. As well try to describe Patti's singing, in the days when her charm was greatest, as try to describe Gloria's laugh. There be those persons so presumptuous that on hearing it would aver she had never loved. Whether David Kerr was one of those his countenance did not betray. As he waited for her answer to the question put her by the old negro, a privileged servitor, his face was as impassive as ever it was on the night of an election.

"Why, Tom," she explained when she had ceased to laugh at the foolishness of the question, "I love everybody, of course, but nobody in the wide, wide world like that. I'm never going to marry any one; do you think so?"

"Miss Glory, you neveh do know what de Lord'll pervide. Look at me. Ah done say dat, too, when I wuz young lak you; but Ah's had fo' wives already, an' mah time ain't come to die yet."

"All right, Tom. I don't know what the Lord will provide, but I'm not going out of my way to help Providence."

The words of this colloquy were neither more nor less than David Kerr had anticipated. It was from the spirit rather than from the wording of her reply that the father sought to ascertain the answer. It had been his one hope that somewhere on her travels she would meet a man worthy the love of a woman such as she, that she would marry him and never return to Belmont. Almost unconsciously, with that end vaguely in view, he had been diminishing his activities. He had money enough for Gloria's future, already she had her own money, and his age made even more necessary Belmont when Gloria married. When she came to visit him, he would take her to some charming rural spot in the east she loved so well. Other men of his type had retired, why not he? One had even raised a horse which had won the greatest classic of the English turf. But for him, he had mused, there would be no such pursuits to bring him into the public eye. That he wished to avoid for Gloria's sake. And now all his plans seemed to be coming to naught—Gloria had come home, free of heart and anxious to mingle in Belmont society.

The drive to Locust Lawn was uneventful. Gloria watched for landmarks along the way, and commented on the changes twelve years had made. Locust Lawn seemed closer to town than in the old days. Most of her remarks about places they passed were addressed to Tom, because together, when she was a child, they had been over the road many times. David Kerr, never much of a conversationalist, was content to listen, hoping some chance speech might aid in clearing up the situation. Everything, Gloria said, however, seemed only a confirmation of her determination to enter at once into Belmont's gayeties.

"Dar's de first sight o' Locust Lawn, Miss Glory."

They had just reached the top of a hill and Tom pointed with his whip to a house on the next eminence. Looking up, Gloria saw, not the estate of her imagination, but a square red brick house looking rather desolate through the bare branches of many trees. Locust Lawn at the end of winter was no enchanted fairy bower; but she was far too clever a girl, and far too good at heart, to betray any disappointment. To her the place was home, and she was anxious to recognize it as such.

The interior of the house was no more inviting. As soon as possible Gloria wandered from room to room, her inspection making her give silent thanks that she had not asked any of her friends to join her in her descent on Belmont. The wall paper with big yellow flowers, the carpets with big red flowers, the rocking chairs with the crocheted tidies, and the marble-topped table in the parlor with the inevitable plush album upon it, were no less distressing than the wax flowers under the glass case, the steel engraving of the Scotch Covenanters worshipping in a mountain glen, and the tin bathtub. She even gave thanks that she had not brought a maid.

"Mistah K," said a negro mammy, putting her head in the door of the living room after Kerr and his daughter had finished going over the house. "Tom wants to know ef you is goin' to town dis mawnin'."

"No, Lily, I ain't going to town today. Tell Tom to send Yellow Sam with the spring wagon for Gloria's trunks."

"Dey's ben telephoinin' you from town. Dey say it's pow'ful imp'otant business. Miss Glory, she done willin' to stay wif me. Jes' lak she use' to. Ain't you, honey?"

To this Gloria gave laughing assent, but her father shook his head.

"I'm not going to town today. And tell the telephone operator not to connect any one with Locust Lawn all day. I ain't going to be disturbed. D'you understand?"

Aunt Lily, who probably was given that name by some ante-bellum joker because of her ebullient, nodded her acknowledgment of the order and withdrew.

The reasons David Kerr had for not wishing to get into communication with any one in Belmont were several, but the most potent was his desire to be uninterrupted while engaged in studying his daughter and evolving some plan whereby she could be taken from Belmont before her slightest suspicion had been aroused.

One episode in their tour of the house had given him much comfort. Gloria had paused in the old-fashioned parlor and gazed long at his life-sized portrait, done in oils, over the marble mantel. Then she had looked about the room, and not finding what she sought, had asked:

"Where is one of my mother?"

"There is none," he confessed, and added quickly, "but I'm going to have one painted for you. That was given me recently by the First Ward club."

"What's the First Ward club?"

"A political organization."

"Politics! Do you know anything about politics?"

David Kerr almost smiled.

"I don't know whether the president is a Democrat or a Republican," she added.

"Don't bother about it."

"Oh, I'm not going to. I don't want to be a suffragette and march in a parade and be put in jail on bread and water. Ladsen never read about it."

Her absolute ignorance of politics, nothing remarkable in a girl of her years and training, was no small grain of comfort to her father.

It was not until after luncheon that Gloria checked the most nearest her heart. Her father, like a wise general, permitted her to open the subject. She had never been a fan of a certain strength than was necessary for the disfigurement of the face. He suggested that her batteries should be brought her own side into action.

For some time they sat in silence in the living room, gazing into the open wood fire. More than once Kerr thought his daughter was about to speak, but each time she seemed to think better of it or else lose her courage. He knew that something weighed on her mind.

"I know I'm going to like Belmont very much," she ventured at last. "And I want Belmont to like me. My coming home is different from that of other girls I know. At Annabel's or Jane Leigh's or any of the girls' homes we haven't been in the house ten minutes before the telephone begins to ring. In half an hour there are enough engagements to last a week. In Belmont I don't know any one yet."

This was not said in any tone of complaint. She could not dream of such a thing, because her father's position was such that her lack of friends was only a temporary embarrassment. She knew that well enough.

"If I had known that I was coming home I would have brought some of the girls with me." She did not allow him to know that the house had not come up to her expectations. "I'm glad I didn't because I don't know any one here yet, and although we'd all be received at once I couldn't make it as pleasant for them as I can after I have had an intimate knowledge of things. After you once introduce me I think I can begin to plan for the girls. I'm under obligations to every single girl I know. I don't mean single—unmarried. But I might as well, because married girls don't go visiting around the country."

"I thought you entertained in the east."

"I did, but girls like to get to a new place. They're not looking for anybody, but the wider your territory the more certain it is that lightning will strike you."

"You've had a pretty wide territory," was her father's dry rejoinder.

"But I always ran for cover when I saw a storm coming."

"I thought you'd come home engaged to a duke or a count at the least. Didn't you see any men you liked?"

"We're Going to the Theater Tonight."

"I liked them all, father, but I haven't seen a foreigner I'd marry. They're nice enough to talk to and dance with and to bring an ice at a ball, but no more than that. But nothing worries me; I'm going to stay here and keep house for you."

"It ain't much of a house, Gloria. You see, I ain't ever had any women folk around here, and the place 'bout runs itself, 'cept what the niggers do. You won't like it, I'm afraid."

"I'll like it well enough. You don't know how I've envied other girls their homes."

"I tell you what you do. Go on to California now—I'll go with you, if you say so, and stay till you get settled with some of your friends. Then I'll come back and have the house fixed up so's when you come again it'll be just what you want."

Kerr felt that if he could get her away he could see to it that she did not return, even at the cost of his leaving Belmont a year or two sooner than he had planned. To this suggestion Gloria did not accede.

"What! go away and miss all the fun of fixing up the house!" she exclaimed. "No, sir, daddy. I'm going to stay right here and make pies in the morning, have teas in the afternoons and go to the theaters at night. And you're going with me." Kerr made a deprecating gesture, but she quickly overruled him. "Don't say a word. You're going, and tonight's the night we start. We're going to the theater tonight."

Then Gloria told of a girl she had seen on the train who had come to Belmont to a theater party. She explained to her father that no occasion would give her a better opportunity to see the Belmont of which she was to be a part than that offered that evening. In all likelihood she would meet a number of persons between the acts. From her point of view she suggested so many good reasons that her father was afraid to interpose any objection at the time.

GOOD USE FOR CRABAPPLE

Made Into Preserves to Serve With Cold Meat in Winter. There is Nothing Nicer.

One peck of crabapples will make about six quarts. I use the regular glass fruit jars and my fruit is kept in a cellar, where there is a furnace, and never spoils. Fifty crabapples and five measuring cups of sugar, 1 1/2 cups hot water, will just fill a quart jar and also a pint. I find it convenient to know about the number, as it saves time for me. First wash and pick over fruit. Do not peel, but cut out blow end and stem, also any bad spots, put on sugar and water to slowly dissolve. When it is hot put in the desired quantity of fruit and cook till a silver fork will pierce easily, which will take about 20 to 30 minutes. Fill your jars while mixture is boiling hot, and cover tightly. I pick out any that may be bruised or specked and put them into spiced vinegar. For one quart take 1 1/2 cups of sugar, one-half cup vinegar, one-half cup water, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-quarter teaspoon cloves. Dissolve sugar in vinegar, put in the spice and water when hot. Put in fruit and cook till it can be pierced by a fork. Can when hot. Nice to eat with cold meat.—Exchange.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

When you can not have an egg beater try using three forks instead of one.

A coat of clear varnish is a good thing to give straw matting before it is laid.

When cooking beef in a fireless cooker do not put salt on until the beef is done.

If fruits are canned as soon as they are picked there will be less loss by fermenting.

Let the white woodwork have plenty of sunshine. Too much shade makes it yellow.

To save both time and the cream in whipping it, whip cream in a pitcher instead of a bowl. There is no chance of a spattering.

When a cloth dress becomes spotted sponge it with equal parts of hot water and turpentine. Iron the parts when dry over a damp cloth.

Pieces of old kid gloves are excellent for mending the back seam of children's shoes. Sew the patch neatly on the inside of the worn place.

To clean lacquered articles, brush with hot water and mild soap, wiping and drying before the fire and finishing with a soft cloth. Do not use alkali or soda. It will remove the lacquer.

Bed Linen Economy.

It pays to turn sheets at the first sign of wear in the middle. It also pays to make sheets at home and to get a rather light-weight muslin, choosing exactly the same weight for pillow cases. The unworn parts of sheets may then be made into pillow cases. The making of sheets and pillow cases is a trifling matter, and the saving on a single sheet is at least 20 cents, to say nothing of the fact that the quality of the muslin you buy is better than the average material used for ready-made bed linen. If you have linen sheets and pillow cases the saving is more marked. Aside from the comfort of sheets three yards long they were better as they are not torn or strained in the constant effort to pull them up.

Towels Cleaned.

Dingy towels may frequently be restored to normal whiteness by putting in a kettle of cold water, adding white soap shavings and lemon juice and letting come slowly to a boil. Rinse in tepid water, then blue water and hang in the sun.

Ochre in Starch.

To keep the color of ecru lace when washing it, add a little yellow ochre oil paint to the starch. Mix a small amount of the ochre with boiling water and add it to the starch, or to the last rinsing water if starch is not used.

To Renovate Leather.

For renovating mildew on leather, I find the following is very good: Use a piece of flannel with a little vaseline and rub the mildewed parts.

Restoring Gilt Braid.

Gilt braid easily becomes tarnished. When this happens brush the braid free from dust and rub a little powdered alum well into it. Leave it for a few hours, then brush off, and you'll find the braid as bright as new.

Foaming Sauce.

Beat one-half cup butter to a cream, add one cup sugar, granulated, and stir till white and foaming. Just before serving pour on one cup boiling water and stir a moment.

AMERICANS SHOOT MEXICAN OFFICER

LIEUT. ACOSTA FIRES RIFLE AT U. S. INSPECTOR AND IS KILLED.

WAS CROSSING BRIDGE LOOKING FOR TROUBLE.

Member of Gen. Salazar's Command at El Paso Loses His Life As Result of Determination to "Kill a Gringo."

El Paso, Tex.—Lieutenant F. Acosta, an officer in General Salazar's federal command at Juarez, crossed the Stanton street international bridge Saturday afternoon and was killed by United States Customs Inspector T. F. Jonah and Immigration Inspector Thomas N. Heifron, after he had opened fire on them with a rifle.

He was shot through the mouth and arm, and his horse, from which he had dismounted, was shot through the side. The American officers were uninjured. Before crossing the bridge the Mexican had remarked that he was "going to kill a gringo."

Heifron was standing at the American end of the bridge when Acosta first opened fire at him. He fired back, using a pistol. Jonah then began firing. The Mexican officer was within 30 feet of the Americans before he was killed.

Opium at San Francisco.

San Francisco—Opium worth more than $250,000, local valuation, has been seized by customs officers at this port in the last three years. Under federal statutes, masters of ships on which contraband is found are liable to fines and the penalties levied against the skipper of trans-Pacific craft under this law in the three-year period total $65,071. As yet Uncle Sam has failed to collect a dollar.

One trans-Pacific company, the Toyo-Kisen-Kaisha, a Japanese line, pays a bonus to any employe on its liners who discovers opium or other contraband and reports it to the master. The contraband is promptly thrown overboard.

Mrs. Pankhurst Is Coming.

London—Mrs. Pankhurst has decided to undertake a lecturing tour of the United States for the purpose of continuing the recent development of the militant campaign. She will pay special attention to the connection of the militant cause with the fight against white slavery and the spread of certain social diseases.

Mrs. Pankhurst intends to speak in New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and other cities. Miss Jean Wickham, one of the W. S. P. U. organizers, sails on September 11 for the purpose of arranging meetings with the co-operation of American sympathizers of Mrs. Pankhurst.

Mrs. Young Wins in Chicago.

Chicago—Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools, whose recent resignation, tendered because of the opposition of a few male members of the board of education, was rejected when a public demonstration was made in her behalf, is to be absolute "boss" of the city's educational system. That is the way Mayor Carter H. Harrison put it, following a conference with Mrs. Young.

She will continue to be superintendent of the schools as in name—should, in short, be boss of the works," asserted the mayor.

Big Money is Cut Up.

St. Louis—Two million and a half dollars in currency was partly destroyed here at the United States sub-treasury by order of the treasury department at Washington.

Holes big enough to put a finger through were punched into the notes and they were then divided lengthwise by an electric cutter. The notes were gold and silver certificates of the $5,000 and $10,000 denomination put up in packets of $500,000. About $1,500,000 of the $5,000 notes and $1,000,000 of the $10,000 were sacrificed.

Books Bear Out Mulhall.

Washington—D. L. Frawley, employed by the senate lobby committee to audit the books of the National Association of Manufacturers, testified to the committee that between 1903 and 1913 the association paid $245,000 to "March W. Mulhall for legislative and campaign work." The audit confirmed in many particulars Mulhall's testimony to the committee. The association spent more than $2,000,000 in those ten years, for all of its various activities, Frawley reported.

CHILDREN'S DRESS.

A pretty design, which may be as plain or as dressy as one desires is shown in this illustration. The contrasting yoke and the smart little tabs holding the sash may be omitted if one wishes an extremely plain little dress. Figured crepe is used here, but the design is suitable for any favored material.

WATERY BLISTERS ON FACE

Smithville, Ind.—"Six months ago our baby girl, one year old, had a few red pimples come on her face which gradually spread causing her face to become very irritated and a fiery red color. The pimples on the child's face were at first small watery blisters, just a small blotch on the skin. She kept scratching at this until in a few days her whole cheeks were fiery red color and instead of the little blisters the skin was cracked and scaly looking and seemed to itch and burn very much.

"We used a number of remedies which seemed to give relief for a short time then leave her face worse than ever. Finally we got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I washed the child's face with very warm water and Cuticura Soap then applied the Cuticura Ointment very lightly. After doing this about three times a day the itching and burning seemed entirely gone in two days' time. Inside of two weeks' time her face seemed well. That was eight months ago and there has been no return of the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. A. K. Wooden, Nov. 4, 1912.

Too Much Like Slaughter.

It is the habit of the blackcock to strut and fight with his rivals in an open arena, while the gray hens sit round as queens of the tournament. The Russian sportsman builds a rough hut of boughs right on the spot, which does not seem to scare the birds. Then he sleeps there and waits till the tournament begins in the morning, when he may blaze away at any of the cocks except the old one, whose death causes the spot to be deserted. Mr. Gladstone, who apparently had been wholly absorbed in his morning's correspondence, suddenly closed the discussion by informing the party that they were all wrong. Old Lady—Does your horse ever shy at motors?
Cabby—Lor' bless yez, no, lady; 'e didn't even shy when railway trains fust come in.—Punch.

In a department store recently one of the old-fashioned kind approached the clerk and inquired:
"How much are you asking for rubber boots today?"
Then, when he was told the price, he looked wise and queried:
"And how much are you gettin'?"

Strength

Does not come from exercise alone, but also from the food one eats.

For real strength there is no better food than

Grape-Nuts

A breakfast dish of Grape-Nuts and cream is the regular morning custom of a mighty host who know the value of right food.

Being partially predigested, Grape-Nuts is quickly converted into strength for body and brain—the power to "do things."

Already the migration of birds to their southern haunts during the cold term at the north, has set in, and as a consequence but few robins, blue birds, bob-o-links and other species of the feathered tribe, are to be seen about the woods and fields. The blackbirds will soon gather in flocks and take their departure also. It was notable that more robins were seen in this section this year than last, the scarcity last year being attributed to the wholesale slaughter in the rice fields of the south. At Atlanta, Ga., the market was glutted with them, the birds bringing only a cent apiece.

WILL ACTUALLY CARRY PEOPLE

Korn's Giant Biplane at the State Fair.

LATEST FRENCH MODEL.

Demonstrates Practicability of Air Machine—Aviator Has Startled the People of Two Continents With Daring Exhibitions—Will Give Daily Flights.

Korn, the aviator who has thrilled the people of two continents with his daring work up in the clouds, has been secured to give daily exhibitions at the Michigan State Fair, Sept. 15 to 20.

Korn and his giant Benoist tractor biplane have gone the other bird men better in carrying a passenger aloft in each flight. It is Korn's idea to show State Fair visitors that the biplane as a vehicle of travel is a practical one.

For years people have contended that the air craft would never be perfected to the extent that any but the pilot could be carried and he only with extreme danger. This year, however, Korn has startled the scientific world with the announcement that with his powerful machine he can take a companion on every flight. This does not mean when the air conditions are perfect, but he asserts it can be done under any sort of reasonable climatic circumstances.

Mr. Korn asserts that the people are tired of seeing bird men glide around a few feet from the ground, barely skimming over the housetops. What they want is a practical demonstration of air machines. At first they interested them as wonderful scientific toys, frail and fragile. Now you have to do something more to hold their gaze.

The wonderful Benoist biplane is the latest craft turned out by French experts and is so strong that it is as near independent of weather conditions as any device which travels the air could possibly be.

Although Mr. Korn has participated in all the leading air contests in the United States and Europe, still he has never been hurt—that is, seriously. He is carefulness itself when preparing for a flight, refusing to go until every little delicate adjustment is perfect and his motor hitting in a manner which he knows will see him safely through his exhibition.

General Manager Dickinson assured Korn because he was confident that he would do what he said he would actually carry passengers, as well as startle the crowds with his daring feats in the air.

Fair's Ambition

By FRED POSTAL.

Ex-president of the Michigan State Fair.

A PERFECT working board of directors, headed by President D. D. Aitken, is striving to give Michigan its greatest State Fair this year. It might be well to enumerate some of the ambitious objects the present Michigan State Fair administration is attempting to accomplish.

A few of these worthy objects are as follows:

Make the Michigan State Fair the greatest educational power for good in the Wolverine State.

Make it the people's convention, where all classes can come, enjoy and instruct themselves, paying only a nominal entrance fee for maintenance and upkeep of the grounds and buildings.

Help the farmer and city man to solve some of the practical living problems which face him in his daily routine of life.

Make it not only the biggest but the best exposition in the world.

Make it the greatest advertisement that the Wolverine State has by showing the outside visitors its wonderful industrial and agricultural resources.

SURE OF "POP" GEERS.

Veteran Reinsman Will Appear in State Fair Races.

Of course no Michigan State Fair horse race would be quite complete without the genial face of old "Pop" Geers, America's foremost reinsman, and the race committee is glad to announce that this light harness institution will compete for the rich grand circuit meeting purses this year Sept. 15 to 20.

Every year brings the prediction that "youth will be served" and a younger man will snatch the crown the old gentleman has worn so long, but at the close of the season his name invariably tops the money winners.

Ed ("Pop") Geers has inaugurated a system of training which is distinctly his own, and his record bears out the belief that it is a mighty good one. The old master has the uncanny art of selecting green horses which invariably turn out to be stars. He literally seems to smell a future big line campaigner.

Old "Pop's" latest sensation, Barney Gibbs, will be seen at the Fair this year, and when the big fall classic is over it is a safe prediction that the name of Geers will be among those drivers prominently present.
