Obituary

Saturday, November 8th, the friends of Joseph Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kennedy Sr., were sorry to learn of his death. "Joe" as he was familiarly known among his most intimate friends has been seriously ill, with no hope of recovery, for some weeks at his father's home in this village. Everything possible has been done by loving relatives and kind friends to relieve his suffering, but all to no avail. Although in active life the greater part of his years, he has been a patient sufferer and was resigned to die. "Jos" was well liked among his home people and has and will be greatly missed in his large circle of friends. The sympathy of the community is extended to his surviving relatives who will greatly miss his sunny character.

Joseph Kennedy was born in Detroit, Mich., March 6, 1890 and at the time of his death was 23 years, 8 months and 2 days of age. The funeral was held from St. Mary's church Monday morning, Rev. Fr. Coyle saying the mass. He leaves a wife and baby, father and mother, four brothers and four sisters, besides a host of friends to mourn his loss.

A Farmer's Dream

We want to tell our readers the story of a farmer's dream.

This farmer dreamed that he raised 1,000 bushels of wheat one year and nothing more. He sold the wheat to 1,000 different people at $1.00 a bushel. The purchasers did not pay for the wheat when they got it, in fact the sum being only a small one, many of them forgot it and others simply neglected payment till a more convenient season. The man who sold the wheat having no other income, was soon in need of money. He had plenty coming but to get it he must see a thousand different men. He hated to speak about so small an amount for fear his neighbors would think him hard up. The result was he actually came to want with $1,000 due him and all the debtors were "good."

Awakened he was relieved to find that it was only a dream but he at once made a vow and as soon as breakfast was over, hitched up Old Dobbin and drove to town. Right straight to the printing office he went and paid the dollar that he knew was past due, with the remark, "Hereafter I pay in advance."

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our sincere thanks to all those who so kindly assisted us during the sickness and death of our beloved husband, son and brother, and also for the beautiful floral offerings.

A Pre-Nuptial Event

Wednesday evening November 5th, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Teeple was hospitably opened to about fifty guests for a kitchen shower in honor of Miss Norma Vaughn, soon to become the bride of Mr. George Roy Merrill of Webster.

A "Shirt Waist Romance", guessing contest occupied a portion of the evening and caused much merriment among the assembled company. Miss Blanche Martin was the fortunate winner of the first prize which proved to be a huge iron spoon. To Miss Jessie Green was awarded the booby prize, a tiny spoon tied with blue ribbon.

After the contest a dainty buffet luncheon was served, the dining room being tastefully decorated for the occasion with pink and white hearts and candles. The enjoyable event closed after the bride-to-be had been presented with her gifts which consisted of everything imaginable for an up-to-date kitchen. Miss Vaughn thanked the donors of so many useful presents in a very graceful manner, and after congratulations were offered, the guests departed all having enjoyed an exceedingly fine time.

An Up-to-date Question

The South Lyon Herald is agitating the question of water works for fire protection in that village and here is hoping the Herald gets it going. A few years since Fowlerville installed a system and its strongest opposers at that time are now among its strongest supporters. It has saved its cost at different fires many times and we don't know if there is a single citizen that would be willing to be without the system.—Fowlerville Review. If we are at all a judge of the results usually obtained from newspaper agitation, the South Lyon Herald is surely doing its part in trying to obtain a water-works system for that village. We are right here to say that we hope they get it, and we might also add that a water-works system in Pinckney is sorely needed for fire protection. If a fire were to start in the business portion of this town it would be "Good Night" to Pinckney as we do not even possess a trained "bucket brigade".

Although the train which bore Dr. Wm. A. Following the lecture a musical was given by members of the Austin family concert troupe. Only a part of their regular performance was given owing to the lateness of the hour, but from what they gave we judge their regular program to be a very entertaining one indeed.

The DAUGHTER of DAVID KERR

By Harry King Tootle

Illustrations by RAY WALTERS

COPYRIGHT BY A.C. McCLURG & CO., 1918

SYNOPSIS.

Gloria Kerr, a motherless girl, who has spent most of her life in school, arrives at her father's home in Belmont. David Kerr is the political boss of the town, and is anxious to prevent his daughter's learning of his real character. Kendall, representing the Chicago packers, is negotiating with Judge Gilbert, Kerr's chief adviser, for a valuable franchise. They fear the opposition of Joe Wright, editor of the reform paper. Kerr asks the assistance of Judge Gilbert in introducing Gloria to Belmont society, and promises to help him put through the packers' franchise and let him have all the graft. Gloria meets Joe Wright at the Gilberts. It appears they are on intimate terms, having met previously in a touring party in Europe. The Gilberts invite Gloria to stay with them pending the refurbishing of the Kerr home. Wright begins his fight against the proposed franchise in the columns of his paper, the Belmont News. Kerr, through his henchmen, exerts every influence to hamper Wright in the publication of his paper. Gloria realizes she is not being received by the best society and is unhappy. She takes up settlement work. Kerr and his henchmen decide to buy Kerr's paper and ask the editor to meet them at Gilbert's office.

CHAPTER XII.—Continued.

The boss' further opinion concerning settlement work was not voiced because, while Kerr was talking, Judge Gilbert had telephoned Williams to usher Mrs. Hayes and Miss Kerr into the library.

Followed by the other men, Gilbert advanced to meet them, and after the usual greetings had been exchanged, offered them chairs.

"You must pardon us," began Mrs. Hayes. "We did not expect to find you so busy. To tell the truth, we didn't expect to find two persons here whom we have already visited." She looked at Kerr and her husband.

"I'm the Cheerful Giver," said Kerr with a humorous grimace which pretended to show that the donation was not so cheerfully parted with.

"I'm not so cheerful, but I was a giver," added Dr. Hayes.

"I told Judge Gilbert to lock the safe, that I knew you would be after money," Kerr continued.

"Highway robbers, I call them," was Dr. Hayes' testimony this time.

"A bad reputation they've given us, Judge Gilbert," laughed Gloria, "and we don't deserve it, indeed we don't."

Kerr walked into the private office and Gilbert, catching his eye, followed him. The boss said something; Gilbert looked at the women and then nodded his head in assent. Dr. Hayes, also catching the boss' eye, strolled away from the group casually as the judge rejoined it. A word with him was all that Kerr required. The master of Locust Lawn was setting the stage with an eye that overlooked no detail. There was too much at stake for him to neglect to interpolate anything effective which chance might throw in his way.

As the two men walked back into the library, Mrs. Hayes was saying:

"Dr. Hayes and I have had quite an argument, and here are the lawyers, Gloria, who can settle the question for us. Can a woman steal from her husband, Mr. Kendall?"

Kendall knitted his brows in perplexity. "Really, Mrs. Hayes, that is a question I shall have to take under advisement."

"But a man can steal from his wife," Gloria put in. There was a general laugh at this which she did not relish. "I'm talking seriously. If it weren't so, we mightn't be here begging money."

"So you are after money," said Judge Gilbert lightly. "Then you must tell me why I should contribute to keep men from stealing from their wives, you who have no one to steal from you."

Gloria was not to be diverted from what she had to say. These men to whom she was talking represented to her what was best in Belmont, what was best in manhood. She wished them to see the truth as she saw it.

"It isn't that kind of stealing," she went on; "it's worse than that. Till I went with Mrs. Hayes to visit the mission I had no idea of the degradation and misery in a town even like Belmont. When I say men steal from their wives I mean they take money they should spend on their families and spend it for whisky and gambling."

"I think it's a shame that such men as you, Judge Gilbert, and you, Dr. Hayes, and you, Father, of all persons, permit such things to happen here in Belmont. I wish I were a man!"

"You can't keep people from spending their money," said Kerr, as he looked at his watch.

Dr. Hayes caught the slight nod the boss gave, and said something to his wife. Then, interrupting the discussion, he said to Gloria:

"I'm already on the list of cheerful givers, Miss Kerr, and I'm going to ask if you'll let me carry off Mrs. Hayes for half an hour or so."

"But I'm only assisting her," she replied in surprise.

"You can tell Judge Gilbert about it even better than she can. I know how it is when married ladies come to my office and when unmarried ladies come."

"Yes," laughed his wife, "he keeps me poor, contributing to things that are none of our business just because pretty girls come in and he can't refuse them. Dr. Hayes says we won't be long, Gloria. You don't mind, do you?"

"Of course not. Where shall I meet you?"

"We'll come back here."

Gloria turned from saying goodby to Mrs. Hayes to find only her father in the room with her. Kendall and Judge Gilbert had withdrawn to the latter's private office.

"Where's Joe Wright been keepin' himself?" asked Kerr suddenly.

The girl did not betray the slightest interest in the question. She took her time about answering, and when she spoke it was in the most nonchalant manner.

"Mr. Wright? Oh, he's in Belmont."

"You don't go with him like you used to. He ain't been to Locust Lawn once."

"He says he's busy when I see him. I meet him occasionally."

"I thought you and him was good friends."

"Oh, we are."

Although she answered his questions in an off-hand manner, her father was not deceived. From what he had been told and also from what he had observed, he felt that his daughter had a genuine regard for the owner of the Belmont News. Of its depth he could not decide.

"He ain't been near you for a long time."

"I'm not bothering about him. I'm not bothering particularly about anyone."

The girl was glad that at this moment Judge Gilbert came from his private office. Her father was questioning her about matters she preferred to keep to herself.

"If Miss Gloria can spare you, Mr. Kerr," said the judge, "Mr. Kendall would like to see you in my office. I've come back to be persuaded that I ought to join the cheerful givers."

"I'll tell Kendall, Gloria, that he's got to join the lodge," were Kerr's parting words as he went into the inner office.

Remembering that Miss Kerr had not been given the chance to explain her visit fully, Judge Gilbert took a chair beside her and said:

"Now, I'm at your service, prepared to believe the most terrible things about our fair Belmont."

"When you talk like that, Judge Gilbert, I'm afraid you're laughing at me."

Of late Gloria's seriousness had far outweighed her old mood of joyousness, and she now insisted on being taken seriously.

"You've lectured me so long for being shocked at what I've found that I'm afraid to say any more."

Judge Gilbert was seeking in his mind for some plausible reason to advance which would be sufficient to remove Gloria from the work she had undertaken, when Williams entered.

"I beg your pardon, sir," said the secretary, "but Mr. Wright is here."

"Mr. Wright," exclaimed Gloria. She almost rose from her seat, but feeling the eyes of the lawyer upon her, sank back again and tried to appear quite at her ease.

"Tell him I'll see him in a minute."

"Yes, sir."

Williams went out, and left Gloria feeling as if she were on the stand, a witness in her own defense. She was provoked because she knew the attorney had heard her exclamation. Something within her made her wish to rush away. But this wish in an instant gave place to one more ardent. She would see him, speak to him, learn the truth from his own lips if he were man enough to speak, and then go away forever. Deep down in her heart, however, she heard a whisper out of the leaves of their "birthday book," words he had whispered:

Spring in the hills, Beloved,
On the side of a meadowed slope;
And Love in our hearts, Beloved,
Love and Spring and Hope.

CHAPTER XIII.

Wright had no means of knowing what it was Judge Gilbert had to propose to him, but he felt certain that it had some connection with his newspaper and with the campaign now ending in a lurid blaze of political pyrotechnics. Gloria Kerr was the last person he would have thought of meeting in Gilbert's office. He had promised himself that after the election, no matter whether it went his way or not, he would see her and make his excuses for not having had the time to be with her as he had wished. He would also begin to look about for a purchaser for the News. He hoped he would have no difficulty in getting Gloria to leave Belmont. Then for the new life with her where they could be ever together, one in heart and hope and happiness.

When Williams told Wright that Judge Gilbert was ready to see him, he opened the door and saw the lawyer advancing to meet him with extended hand. The adviser of Belmont corporations knew the value of a handshake and a cordial greeting. It made a visit to his office take on the air of a social affair.

"I'm so glad you came," he said to the editor, shaking hands heartily.

"I came as soon as I could," Wright was not going to be outdone, and therefore used his most genial tone, although the shaking hands on his side was a perfunctory performance. He knew Judge Gilbert's real attitude, and undue cordiality under the circumstances savored too much of the Greeks bearing gifts.

"Miss Kerr and I have just been speaking of you."

"What!" exclaimed Wright. Looking past the judge, for the first time he saw Gloria. At mention of her name the girl rose from her chair. She really thought she merely wanted to speak to him, once more look into his eyes, and then take her departure.

At sight of her, Wright stepped forward and said, "How do you do, Miss Kerr? It's a great pleasure to see you. I certainly did not expect to find you here."

They shook hands in rather a constrained manner, Gilbert watching them closely the while.

"Naturally not," she replied. "I came to see Judge Gilbert on a matter of business and am just leaving." Despite herself she could not help adding, "My friends find me most of the time at Locust Lawn."

Something in her manner brought the lawyer at once into the conversation with a turning of the subject.

"I couldn't tell you very well over the phone what I wanted," he explained to Wright. "It'll be a little while before I can talk to you. I need a few minutes more to ascertain fully the wishes of my clients."

The conversation was so business-like that Gloria forced herself to say: "I must be going. Please don't let me keep you from your work."

But at this Gilbert held up his hand appealingly and begged: "Please don't go. I want you to do me a favor. Wait for Mrs. Hayes. Until I've finished this conference, won't you be so good as to act as hostess here and entertain Mr. Wright?"

"Really, Judge Gilbert, I—"

"I'm sure Mr. Wright wishes it." He interrupted her because he did not know what she might say, and he knew his remark would bring from the newspaper man a request that she remain.

"I wouldn't have Miss Wright make a martyr of herself," Wright said with

"Yes," She Said.

quiet dignity, "but if she would be so kind—"

"Didn't I tell you," the judge said to the girl, "Not a word. You must take my place until I return. If you'll pardon me, I'll be with you again in just a few minutes."

There was no time for them to protest. He slipped into the office where Kendall and Kerr were closeted, and closed the door quietly after him.

The situation was not without its embarrassment. Taking into consideration everything which had happened in the last month, there was little wonder that each felt constrained. In addition to that, Gloria felt as if she had just been figuratively thrown at his head. To a high-spirited girl this in itself was mortifying. They sat without a word until the silence became painful. Wright was desperate. Here was the one woman in all the world, and he was afraid to open his mouth. At last he mustered sufficient courage to remark:

"Beautiful spring weather we're having."

This remark served only to punctuate the silence. It seemed to him, from the length of time before she replied, that Gloria was mentally inspecting the records of the weather bureau for the last twenty years.

"Yes," she said, a word that did not appear so ponderous as to require all that time to bring it forth.

This did not prove conducive to further conversation. He felt that the weather had not been exhausted by her voluble reply, however, and used it again.

"They tell me it's liable to be bad for another month."

Again Gloria seemed to make a mental survey of all the weather records of the last twenty years. Wright had almost forgotten what he had said when she at last gave the conversation football a dainty kick by saying:

"Yes."

This time he was ready for her. His embarrassment was wearing off and he began again promptly:

"Don't the rains make the road pretty bad out your way?"

"My friends manage to get out to see me."

This was a chill rejoinder, and Wright felt he had lost several points in their game of indirection.

"Locust Lawn is quite a distance out," he ventured.

"Not far enough to discourage my friends."

This goaded him to an apology. He regretted that she was not making it easy for him, but he forgave her because he knew she did not understand.

"Because I've been so busy, please don't think that I'm discouraged."

"Why should I think of it at all?" she replied with spirit.

Her remark hurt him, both her words and her manner of speech. It tore away his reserve and made him burst forth in protest.

"That's not like you, Gloria. We've been such good friends."

"We have been good friends," she admitted promptly. "Is there any reason, Joe, why we should not be now?"

His heart beat high within him at her words. They were so direct, so honest, so like the one woman of his dreams. It grieved him that he could not be as direct with her; but that was impossible, for over them was the sinister shadow of David Kerr, her father, the boss of Belmont.

"There's no reason why we shouldn't be good friends, Gloria. What put that idea into your head?"

"My circle of friends in Belmont seems to have grown smaller and smaller."

"Please don't put me on the outside."

"You seem to have put yourself there."

The conversation lagged. There was so much to think about. Gloria was seeking to reconcile his explanations with her own observations. Looking at him closely she saw that he did not have that fresh, robust look which a month ago had made him seem fit for a gladiatorial contest. As he sat in the big office chair he seemed to relax with fatigue. His face was thinner, and there were little lines of worry about his eyes. Between his brows and on either side his mouth were to be seen creases which the girl thought proclaimed to the world his strength of character. A month ago she had not noticed them. She had felt he was such a man, but the wrinkles, confirming her belief, could almost be called a source of joy to her. They had made away with some of the youthfulness, but in his face she now saw something which more than compensated. It had greater strength now, strength such as was written on her father's countenance.

"You look tired." Her low, sympathetic tones and her solicitous look did what nothing else could do. They melted his stern purpose to bear it all in silence for yet a few days into a desire to take her as much as he dared into his confidence. With a woman's quick perception she would understand that he was unhappy. Her sympathy and her confidence in him would nerve him to fight the good fight as nothing else could and his heart was stirred by the possibility.

"Yes," he admitted, "I'm tired and sick at heart."

"Why don't you take a vacation? Go to Europe."

"I can't pick up and run away like that; but I'd do it anyway if it would bring back the dear old days."

"The days I knew?" the girl made bold to ask.

"The days you made so—delightful." "Can they be gone forever?"

"You mean—" Wright did not dare to put his hope in words.

Carried farther than she had intended, Gloria beat a retreat by saying:

"Who knows? We may meet in Paris again some day."

BRONCHITIS AND COLDS

ORANGES AND LEMONS

THEIR USEFULNESS AND VALUE IN THE HOUSEHOLD.

As Foundations for Dishes, and as Flavoring, They Are Essentially Desirable in the Household Menu.

Enormous numbers of oranges are being imported into our markets now; and they are of the greatest value to us, for their wholesome acids are greatly needed by persons who eat as much meat as we do.

This month we find many blood oranges and these are of extra fine flavor. They are produced by grafting orange slips into pomegranate stocks and this fruit is greatly prized by epicures; unfortunately these grafts do not bear so profusely as the true orange tree.

Orange marmalade is the favorite preserve of orange lovers; the Scotch recipe for this dainty has been given in this column before, but the following recipes will be found to be superlatively good.

English grated orange marmalade: Grate the yellow rind off the orange, but do not grate in any of the bitter white lining. Press the orange pulp through a sieve and add a pint of water to every four pounds of fruit. Mix a pound of sugar in for every pound of fruit and boil thirty minutes.

Small oranges crystallized: Remove the skin and white lining from small oranges and take care not to break the sections apart or to puncture the skin for all the juice may stay in.

Thread a sterilized needle with white linen thread and run through the center of each orange so it may be suspended.

Make a heavy frosting with powdered sugar and the white of eggs and dip the oranges into it by the thread so every part is covered.

Now hang the frosted oranges on a stick so they do not touch one another and suspend in a hot oven to dry. When the frosting is firm they are done. These little comfits are very pretty in boxes of homemade sweet meat.

Two recipes have been received for using lemons from a reader of this section who is so fortunate as to own a lemon grove in California. One is for preserved lemon peel. Peel the yellow rind from the lemons with as little white fiber as possible. Make a thick sirup of sugar and water and simmer the peel in it. In a half hour the rind will be tender and may be put in small glasses and covered with the sirup and then sealed with paraffin. The other recipe will be useful when lemons are at their lowest price; it is for preserving lemon juice.

Roll the lemons and squeeze all the juice from them; strain it through very fine muslin so no pulp goes through. Have perfectly clean bottles waiting, with new corks. Pour the juice in until within half an inch from the top. Now pour on a thin layer of paraffin; when this hardens cork tightly and keep in a cool place.

This correspondent says that the juice will keep perfectly fresh until used.

Malted Milk.
If one uses a great deal of malted milk, it is a wise plan to buy the largest, or hospital size jar, not only because of the economy in price, but because of the varied uses to which the jars may be put when emptied. For keeping cereals, cornmeal or other dry groceries nothing better could be devised.

Vegetable Salad.
Lay lettuce leaves on your dish, then cold potatoes sliced fine, onions chopped fine. You can use at different times beets, carrots, turnips or any other vegetable sliced, with hard-boiled eggs and salad dressing. We do not like lettuce, but we have salads just the same.—Boston Globe.

Pumpkin Pie.
Stew pumpkin, cut into small pieces, in half pint of water, and, when soft, mash with a potato masher very fine; let the water dry away, watching closely to prevent burning or scorching. For each pie take one well beaten egg, half cup sugar, two tablespoonfuls pumpkin, half pint rich milk (a little cream will improve it), a little salt, stir well together, and season with cinnamon or nutmeg; bake with a good under crust in a hot oven. Some steam the pumpkin instead of stewing it.

Pickle Secret.
At last has been disclosed the secret of a housewife famous for her well-flavored, crisp pickles. She has herself divulged the secret of their crispness, which proves to be nothing more than the addition of fresh grated horseradish to the contents of the pickle jar.

To Soak Ham.
When soaking salty ham, add a tablespoon of molasses to the water. It improves the taste and makes the ham fry a nice brown.

MISSSES' COAT.

In the latest style this coat can be made of cloth, silk or velvet and trimmed with satin or with fur. It closes quite up to the throat where there is a small collar. The sleeves are regulation and plain, and there is a pepum, which has a panel cut in the back. Fur may replace the collar if preferred.

The coat pattern (6414) is cut in sizes 14, 16 and 18 years. Medium size requires 2 1/2 yards of 54 inch material, with 1 yard of 24 inch velvet to trim.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department," of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

Cecil Rhodes a Good Feeder.
Cecil Rhodes' latest biographer says that Rhodes was a valiant trencherman—"one might almost call him a gross feeder"—and liked getting the joint in front of him and cutting off great hunks of meat. Though "no drunkard," he also liked his champagne in a tumbler, tossed off the glass absent-mindedly and would have five or six liqueur glasses of his favorite Russian kummel after meals. At eleven in the morning he usually, "like Bismarck," had a flagon of champagne and stout, or light, Pilsener beer, then Pilsener or hock for lunch, and, with the exception of a gin and soda sometimes at sundown, nothing until dinner. After dinner he often sat at the dining room table talking and smoking innumerable cigarettes until bedtime.

ERUPTION ON CHILD'S BODY

R. F. D. No. 2, Jackson, Mo.—"Our daughter who is ten months old was suffering from an eruption all over the body. In the beginning they were small red spots and afterwards turned to bloody sores. We tried all sorts of ointments but they did not procure any relief for our child. She cried almost day and night and we scarcely could touch her, because she was covered with sores from head to foot.

"We had heard about the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and made a trial with them, and after using the remedies, that is to say, the Soap and the Ointment, only a few days passed and our child could sleep well and after one week she was totally well."

AN IOWA CASE

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Mrs. J. Hunt 108 South Sixth St., Fairfield, Ia., says: "My back was so lame and sore I couldn't do my housework. I was restless and the pains were awful. I had to go to bed and I couldn't turn over without help. My limbs were terribly swollen and I thought I was going to die. When I had almost given up, I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. They permanently cured me and today I am in the best of health."

Requests for endorsement and approval of National Tuberculosis Day, December 7th, have been sent to President Wilson, to almost every governor, to hundreds of mayors, to the leading church dignitaries and to other prominent men. Last year Ex-President Taft, Col. Roosevelt, Cardinal Farley, about a dozen governors, and a large number of mayors and others endorsed this movement.

"Plant your trees in the fall," is advice which the forestry department at M. A. C. is giving out today. According to the college foresters the sapling can be obtained at lower prices in the autumn than during the spring and in addition will get the benefit of an early growth immediately warm weather returns. The college, which raises treelings for sale to citizens of Michigan, is disposing of the "baby trees" at low prices in an effort to interest growers in putting new trees into the ground in the fall. The reduction in cost, they assert, is more than enough to compensate for the loss to saplings caused by the frost, which sometimes forces the young trees out of the ground.

WELL, WELL, WELL,
Who Said Purity Flour?

Why it was the talk of the town last Saturday evening when people saw what nice bread their neighbors made out of it. Ten of as fine loaves of bread were on exhibition at the Ladies Fair as any anybody ever saw. In fact the loaves were all so nice that it was hard to tell any difference in them. You can obtain just as good flour as any of them had, at any grocer. If they won't get it for you or don't have it, let us know and we will see that you get it some way.

We now have Buckwheat Flour on sale; it is PURE Buckwheat flour too. Those who wish to have Buckwheat ground will be asked to leave it here for a few days as we are not going to have a special day for grinding this year, but will grind Buckwheat nights.

We Have Noticed It

We have noticed recently a number of squibs in our exchanges regarding mistakes. These items lead us to believe that other duffers besides editors are not infallible, but the editor's mistakes stand out more conspicuously than most other people's because every issue of his paper is an open letter to the public.

Everybody makes mistakes. The only ones who never make them are slumbering in the cemeteries—and it is not unlikely that some are there because the doctors also make mistakes. A man often makes a mistake by marrying when he should have taken a post-graduate course in how to support himself. A fine woman often is in error when she wantonly throws herself away on some fool who can sing coon songs like Caruso, but couldn't make a noise like a loaf of bread to save his life. A boy makes a mistake when he thinks he knows more than the entire staff of teachers, including the principal of schools.

The world is plumb full of mistakes and mistake makers. If the newspaper man should take the pains to record them all he'd make the mistake of his life and die on the bed of the press with his shirt sleeves rolled up and his boots on.—Ex.

Is $10 to $20 Saved on Fuel Bills Worth While to You?

If it is, we want you to come and see us, and we will show you a base burner that will not only save you dollars in fuel bills, but will also give you continuous heat day and night---upstairs and down---all winter long.

There are many reasons why the FAVORITE BASE BURNER is the best and most economical heating stove in existence. In its wonderful system of warm-air flues you will find one reason why it maintains an even temperature throughout the entire house on the coldest days of winter, regardless of whistling winds and driving blizzards outside.

In its "paper-tight" construction---for the Favorite is accurately and tightly fitted by special patented machinery---is found the explanation why it will hold fire unattended for five successive days and nights without going out, always pouring forth an unvarying amount of pure, warm air from a steady fire. Flowers and delicate plants thrive in the fresh, healthful atmosphere supplied by a FAVORITE BASE BURNER; it is the best method of heating for fragile women and children.

If you want your family to be warm, healthy and happy during the cold months you cannot afford to buy any heating stove but a Favorite. It will keep Florida atmosphere in your house all winter long. It will give your wife a cozy and comfortable home in which to live. It will furnish your children with warm bedrooms in which to undress and go to bed.

Buying a Favorite Base Burner is like putting money in the bank, because it saves its own cost in a few years use, and brings such luxury and happiness into the home.

NO PROHIBITION FIGHT IN STATE

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE ABANDONS PLANS FOR DRY ELECTION.

WILL WORK FOR FRIENDLY LEGISLATURE.

Hope to Ratify The Amendment to National Constitution Providing for Prohibition Now Before Congress.

Detroit—Michigan is not going to have an opportunity to vote as a whole on the question of state-wide constitutional prohibition in 1914, as has been repeatedly announced since the initiative and referendum clause was added to the Michigan state constitution, if the anti-saloon league has its way about it.

Acting under instructions from National Superintendent Purley A. Baker, of the Anti-Saloon league, the board of trustees of the Michigan State Anti-Saloon league at its meeting in the local Y. M. C. A., passed a resolution shelving the statewide initiative and referendum fight for prohibition and announcing that it intends to go "gunning" for a "dry" legislature next fall that will enable Michigan to ratify the proposal for national prohibition when it is submitted to the states. Rep. Richard Pearson Hobson, of Alabama, now has a bill before congress providing that a prohibition amendment shall be added to the federal constitution when 36 state legislatures shall have ratified it.

John E. Carr, of Adrian, displaced J. E. Hammond, of Lansing, as a member of the headquarters committee of the league.

Crop Reports for State.

Lansing, Mich.—The monthly crop report issued by Secretary of State Martindale shows a total of 12,121,491 bushels of wheat raised in Michigan this year. Other crops were as follows: Corn, 53,513,088; oats, 44,384,119; barley, 2,045,360; rye, 5,133,182; buckwheat, 853,060; potatoes, 82,848,040; beans, 4,932,821; peas, 1,194,445; clover seed, 234,898; apples, 19,356,039; peaches, 2,438,315; pears, 760,578; plums, 335,462; cherries, 953,616; strawberries, 406,460; raspberries and blackberries, 516,541.

Seven hundred and fifty-seven thousand five hundred and eleven tons of sugar beets were raised and 2,183,817 tons of hay and forage. The report says it is difficult to get estimates on the amount of grapes raised, but it is estimated at 78,000,000 pounds, of which more than half were produced in Van Buren county.

Governor Appoints Delegates.

Lansing, Mich.—Governor Ferris has appointed the following delegates from Michigan to represent the state at the tenth annual convention of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, in Washington, Dec. 3, 4, 5; James J. Lynn and Capt. Frank H. Danger, Port Huron; Capt. W. C. Brown, St. Clair; F. W. Fletcher, W. P. Harris, Ralph E. Gilchrist, F. A. Kimball, F. L. Richardson and Robert B. Rayburn, Alpena; Capt. Murray McIntosh, William B. Thompson, Geo. E. Greening, John J. Barium, John Pridgeon, Jr., and Strathearn Hendrie, Detroit; W. T. Murphy, Newberry; H. Von Schon, Detroit; C. W. Williams, H. T. Cook, W. W. Holmes, C. J. Monroe and G. N. Hale, South Haven; William H. Hull, St. Joseph.

To Raise Fur Bearing Animals.

Newberry, Mich.—L. D. Carrier, a Detroit man, is engaging in an industry unique to upper Michigan. He proposes to raise fur-bearing animals for their pelts. Mr. Carrier has purchased an eighty-acre tract a few miles from Laketon, Luce county, and has fenced the land with finely woven and substantial wire. He will stock the area with beaver, fox, muskrat and skunk. The tract contains a good sized lake and is regarded as ideal for the purpose.

Secretary of Interior for Islands.

Washington.—Winfred T. Denison, an assistant attorney-general in the department of justice, has been selected for secretary of the interior of the Philippine islands.

His nomination is expected to go to the senate soon. Mr. Denison is 40 years old, was graduated from Harvard, and was prominent in the government's prosecution of the sugar frauds.

Cornelius Holkema, of Muskegon, ex-alderman and pioneer of the county, is dead at the age of 82.

Michigan Equal Suffrage Association Meets at Jackson and Elects Officers.

Jackson, Mich.—Mrs. O. H. Clark, of Kalamazoo, was elected president of the Michigan Equal Suffrage association, defeating Mrs. Jennie Law Hardy, Tecumseh, 72 to 17, at the convention here.

Mrs. Huntley Russell, Grand Rapids, was elected first vice president, and Mrs. Jennie Law Hardy, Tecumseh, second vice president.

Mrs. Wm. Blake of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Edna Blair of Hillsdale and Mrs. F. H. Holt of Detroit, auditors; member board of the national organization, Mrs. Clara B. Arthur of Detroit.

Mrs. Clara B. Arthur declined to allow the convention to make her honorary president, wishing to retire from active service. Later she was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers from the Detroit club, as the only surviving charter member of the organization.

Invitations were received from Detroit and Grand Rapids for the next convention and were referred to the incoming board. Convention indorsed the Woman's Taxpayers' league of Michigan.

Mrs. R. H. Perrin, Lansing, was elected third vice-president; Dr. R. Grace Hendricks, Jackson, recording secretary.

Church Safe Robbed.

Detroit—The safe of the Central Methodist Episcopal church here was blown open by yeggmen and robbed of more than $200. The money was mostly cash, which had been taken up in the Sunday collections. Being the first Sunday of the month the collection was heavier than usual, most of the contributions being paid in monthly installments.

STATE BRIEFS.

The state banking commission has approved the incorporation articles of the state bank of Clarkston.

Rev. B. H. Einink, pastor of the First Christian Reformed church, of Muskegon, has received a call from the Sixteenth Street church of that denomination, at Holland.

The report of the Grand Rapids welfare commission says that low wages do not form a direct cause of vice, but that indirectly low wages and poverty have a great influence.

The state accident board has ruled that an agreement between injured employes and their employers cannot be terminated except by approval of the board. It also denied the employer the right to change the rate of compensation unless the board gives approval.

The Michigan Central railroad has announced that it intends to construct new car shops and build a new freight depot at Bay City and that ground will be broken in a few weeks. The work will cost more than $500,000. The road has just spent about three-quarters of a million for new round houses and yards at this point.

President W. S. Linton, Saginaw board of trade, has appointed a committee of 15 to promote a campaign for pure water. The common council committee has started a movement to obtain a filtration plant, and both business and municipal bodies promise to unite so the Saginaw public shall not depend on corner pumps for drinking water.

FELKER HONORS N. Y. REQUISITION

NEW HAMPSHIRE'S GOVERNOR DECIDES AGAINST HARRY THAW.

CASE IS NOW IN THE FEDERAL COURTS.

It May be Several Years Before Noted Inmate of Matteawan, Who Escaped, Can Be Returned to Institution.

Concord, N. H.—Governor Felker honored the requisition of the state of New York for the extradition of Harry K. Thaw. The case is no w transferred automatically to the federal courts where a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of Thaw is pending.

The governor based his decision on the indictment returned against Thaw in New York county, which charged him with conspiracy to escape from the insane asylum at Matteawan, N. Y., to which he was committed after his second trial for the killing of Stanford White. Thaw made his sensational flight on August 17, and a few days later was arrested near Coaticook, Canada.

Thaw will make no comment on the decision but his mother has issued a statement expressing her disappointment.

It may be several years before the matter is finally carried through the United States Supreme court.

Committee Favors Wilson Plans.

Washington—An entirely new lineup in the senate banking committee with a majority behind the administration appeared when, by a vote of seven to five, the committee reconsidered its action reducing the number of regional banks to four.

Senators Reed and O'Gorman, the democrats who had been voting against the administration proposals, cast their votes with the other democrats. Senator Hitchcock, democrat, held out, but Senator Crawford, republican, joined the administration forces and the question was reopened.

The administration won another point when the committee voted to retain on the federal reserve board as ex-officio member the secretary of the treasury.

Examinations in Michigan Cities.

Washington.—The last examination before appointments are made for the Philippine service is announced by the United States civil service commission, Dec. 30-31, in various cities throughout the United States. In Michigan the examinations will be held in Ann Arbor, Detroit, Grand Rapids, Lansing, Manistee, Marquette, Saginaw, Sault Ste. Marie and Traverse City. From the eligible list thus secured, appointments will be made during the coming spring for service in the Philippine Islands beginning with the opening of the next school year. Positions open through these examinations are those in the teaching of home economics, manual training, high school science, mathematics, English, history and also supervisors of school districts.

Allimony Puzzles Tax Experts.

Washington—How to tax alimony is the most puzzling question to be dealt with under the new income tax law. Authorities cannot decide whether it is to be deducted from the income of the allmonee or the allmoner. The first question seems to be, should alimony be considered a legitimate part of a man's expense or just a luxury the divorce habit has led him into?

Treasurer officials refused to make any official statement on the matter as yet. It was suggested that such alimony experts as De Wolf Hopper and Nat Goodwin might offer a solution.

Four Killed by Train.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Four persons were killed and six injured when a carryall with twenty persons was struck by a Lackawanna train at Jamesville, six miles south of here. The occupants evidently did not see the train, and the vehicle was squarely on the tracks.

Arrangements were made at a meeting of more than 300 Pere Marquette strikers in Saginaw to continue the strike against the railroad and for the purchase of fuel for the use of strikers during the winter. A vote was taken as to whether the strike should continue, and more than 90 per cent voted to stay out.

WORKS ALL DAY And Studies at Night on Grape-Nuts Food.

Some of the world's great men have worked during the day and studied evenings to fit themselves for greater things. But it requires a good constitution generally to do this.

A Ga. man was able to keep it up with ease after he had learned the sustaining power of Grape-Nuts, although he had failed in health before he changed his food supply. He says: "Three years ago I had a severe attack of stomach trouble which left me unable to eat anything but bread and water.

"The nervous strain at my office from 6 A. M. to 6 P. M. and improper foods caused my health to fall rapidly. Cereal and so-called 'Foods' were tried without benefit until I saw Grape-Nuts mentioned in the paper.

"In hopeless desperation I tried this food and at once gained strength, flesh and appetite. I am now able to work all day at the office and study at night, without the nervous exhaustion that was usual before I tried Grape-Nuts.

"It leaves me strengthened, refreshed, satisfied; nerves quieted and toned up, body and brain waste restored. I would have been a living skeleton, or more likely a dead one by this time, if it had not been for Grape-Nuts."

HER FAD--AND HIS

By CLYDE PARSONS.

If every man, old or young, has a fad—and we know he has; if every woman, old or young, has a fad—and we know she has—why blame Miss Nora Lee for having one, too? It wasn't a great big fad, and one to keep the police busy and the babies on the block awake o' nights, but a reasonable fad, and was not seriously objected to even by people with a grouch.

Miss Nora was not a moving picture fiend; she did not go to ball games more than twice in a season; she did not attend the races at all. Her fad was—cats—dogs, rabbits? Not at all! She lavished her affections on a goat, and he wasn't anything of a beauty at that. In fact, he was a scrub goat. He was built on the lines of a saw-buck. He was homely from the tip of his nose to the tip of his tail. He remained gaunt despite the food set before him. He evinced no gratitude for her love and care, and he wasn't a bit proud when he was led along the street with yards of blue ribbon streaming in the breeze and a silver bell around his neck.

Miss Nora and goat were bound to attract attention when they walked out. Adults stared, small boys indulged in levity, and dogs seemed to have a longing to try conclusions with "Billy."

However, a fad wouldn't be much of a fad unless it attracted attention, and while Miss Nora tried to look calm and unconscious, there is no doubt that she felt glows of pride as she caught such remarks as:

"Did you ever?"
"Can you beat it!"
"Why don't she love a hippo!"
"Hasn't she a father or a mother?"
"A hobble skirt and a pet goat—thunder!"

Miss Nora's father was dead, and her mother's objections to her fad carried no weight.

"Does Billie bite any one?" the daughter would ask.
"Of course not."

"Does he bark and disturb us?"
"No."

"Does he cost any more to keep than a dog?"
"I guess not."

"He isn't handsome, but isn't he better looking than a bull dog?"
"Y-e-s."

"Then what's the matter with my keeping a goat?"
"It's so unusual."

"Wasn't the split skirt unusual two years ago?"

Living half a mile away was Mr. Burt Wiltshire. He had a fad. Instead of leading a goat about the streets, he led a pig. It was a black pig with a red ribbon for a collar. It had been trained so it could be led like a dog. That pig was also an innovation as well as a fad. The police had tried to suppress it, but the courts had held that it had the same rights as a dog and was not half as dangerous.

Like the goat, the pig attracted much attention when out for an airing, and like Miss Nora the young man at the other end of the lead received such expressions from the public as:

"Is he an escaped idiot?"
"Does he belong to a side-show?"
"Can the pig tell fortunes with cards?"

It might have been figured out by a mathematician that there was just one chance in ten thousand that the girl and her goat and the young man and his pig would ever meet on the street in a head-on collision. That one chance came to them. It was so willed by the Destiny that shapes our ends. At nine o'clock one morning Miss Nora and her goat were taking a promenade for their health and other reasons. There was an abandon about them that was charming. That is, they occupied most of the sidewalk, and their motto was, the public be hanged.

At the same hour Mr. Burt Wiltshire and his educated black pig set out for their stroll. They had heretofore taken one particular direction. This morning they took a new route. Destiny would have it so.

"Get on to the goat!"
"Where'd he get the pig!"
"That's the latest thing at Newport!"

"Oh, Lord, what things we do see in a town!"
As the public exclaimed the human and animal objects gradually approached each other.

They finally met. There was no record in sacred or profane history to go by—no society rule laid down in the blue or red book. Therefore the jim dandy goat and the educated pig jumped against each other.

"Sir!" demanded the girl.
"Miss!" replied the man.
"You have got a nasty pig there!"
"And you have a villain of a goat!"
"Don't you dare let your pig—!"
"And your goat—!"

It was too late. No work on natural history—no written or heart throbs in the yellow journals, has told us that when a pig and a goat meet there must be a deadly conflict, but a record has been made with this story. The goat was the attacker but the pig stood to his guns. The goat used his horns and hoofs; the pig used his snout and teeth.

"Call your pig off!"
"Call your goat off!"
"Your pig began the fuss!"
"Your goat began it!"
"You are no gentleman!"
"You are a nice young lady!"

A crowd gathered. That crowd made remarks. It made remarks to the girl and to the young man. It gave advice to the goat and to the pig. It advised the goat to pin the pig to the fence with his horns and hold him there until life was extinct. It advised the pig to remember Bunker Hill and go in and make a whirlwind finish of it.

Not until the police came did each owner gather up the remains of his animal and quit the scene of the combat. Their glances expressed nothing but supreme indignation as they turned away. It was so plain that they wished each other destruction in some awful form that a chauffeur who had stopped to witness the affair while the meter went right on recording, felt called upon to express himself:

"Gee! but 'sposen he should fall in love with that girl some day! How she would turn him down!"

And it happened. It was bound to happen. Destiny wouldn't have missed such a golden opportunity for all the old second hand hats in Boston. A fad is acquired as easily as a cold in the head. Some run about the same length of time—some a little longer, but they are bound to be abandoned for something else.

Miss Nora Lee got home from the scene of that tragedy disgusted with her goat and herself. It wasn't the same goat with which she so blithely set out an hour before, and she wasn't the same girl. She found herself hoping that the goat would jump the fence and take himself off to be seen by her no more. Then she would buy a parrot or a tame crow, or a squirrel with a wheel in his cage. She might even turn to a French bulldog or an alligator from Florida.

And Mr. Burt Wiltshire reached home to telephone to the nearest butcher:

"Say, now, do you want to buy a pig?"
"Yep. Got one for sale?"
"I have."

"How much?"
"If you take him away at once you can have him for two dollars."

"All right—he's mine."
Mr. Wiltshire also determined to drop his pig-fad for another. It might be for a donkey or a camel—he would think it over.

And one day two weeks later the girl without the goat and the young man without a pig met face to face on the street. Each wavered. Each halted. Each blushed and was confused.

"—I want to beg your pardon!" he finally managed to say.
"And I want to beg yours," was the reply.

"It was all my pig's fault."
"I believe my goat began the row."
"It was so sudden that—that—"
"The same with me."
"I have sold the pig."

"And my goat has got away, and I don't want him back."
And then and there came a new fad for each one. It was interest in a human being of the opposite sex. (Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Songs of Today.
Where is the present-day "popular song" that may be compared with "Annie Laurie," or "My Old Kentucky Home," or "Sally in Our Alley?" Nay, where is the present-day popular song that has more than an off chance of being remembered or sung a single year hence, let alone remaining a favorite for a generation? Nowhere. In songs, as in so many other matters, the one desire just at present is to get the applause—and dollars—of the moment. If a "bearcat" dance or a sloppily sentimental ballad attracts attention to itself and income to its inventor, nothing more is asked or expected. So of "cubist art," which is merely lunacy on canvas; so of tenderloin plays. The one thing required is not that they shall be true, or beautiful, or thoughtful, or enduring; but that they shall make money. It is strange that an age like the present, which has so many superb achievements to its credit, and which is more deeply imbued with the sense of human brotherhood than any preceding time in history, should have come to this sorry pass in matters of art and recreation.

LITTLE THINGS COUNT

English Farmer Profits by Keeping Detailed Records.

Ram Is Kept Separate Until Ewes Are Gathered for Inspection, Thereby Avoiding All Over-Exertion in Running Around.

(By E. H. JAYNES.)
Nothing is more discouraging than a lot of lambs of various ages, uneven in size, running with a flock of ewes that would, had they been given the opportunity, have lambed at the same period. For the past month or two the ram should have been in a lot by himself and eating all the nice juicy grass he desired.

The value of such a grass plot can hardly be over-estimated. It gives the ram a tender bit of picking, causing him to take sufficient exercise to keep him in the best of trim.

Supplement this with an abundance of fresh water, a little salt and a trifle of oats, and we have a combination guaranteed to give results in the line of a big, strong, vigorous sire.

A practice that is common with English breeders and which our farmers must eventually follow is the hard coupling of ram and ewes.

The American farmer turns his ram with the ewes and trusts to luck to bring him a good crop. He does not know whether the ram is safely settling the ewes or not.

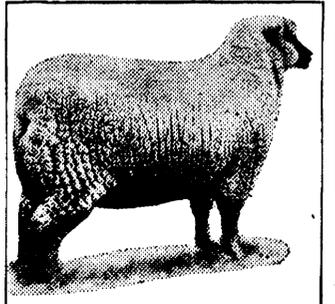

Too often the ram abuses himself, to the detriment of the latter part of the crop. Then, too, the exertion from running around, as a ram in a bunch of ewes usually does, undermines his vigor.

Compare this with your English farmer. The ram is kept to himself all the time except when he is led out to the ewes. He gets his allowance of grain and his bite of grass, no matter how hard pressed the farmer is for feed, for he knows too well that a handful of grain given to the ram is as good as one given to each of the ewes.

When evening comes, the farmer leads his ram out to where the ewes are gathered for the inspection of the ram. The lead is loosened from his halter and he quietly proceeds to inspect the flock. One is found in heat, she is served and the shepherd quietly removes her while the ram continues his inspection.

When all has been served the ram is removed and a record is made of the ewes bred, the date and anything else that may be needful.

The pure bred owner takes the ear tag number of his ewe and her date of breeding is put down on his flock record. The grade sheep owner marks his ewes in some conspicuous manner.

For instance, the first week he uses red paint placed on the hip, the second week on the back, the third on the shoulder, etc. Different colors of paints being used, if possible to know by the mark on her back just when she will lamb.

When lambing time approaches there is no question about when a ewe should lamb. He has the records. A glance and he has the whole story before him. A sharp contrast to the

AUTUMN CARE OF THE COLTS

Young Animals Should Be Given Some Grain and Hay Just Before Pastures Begin to Dry Up.

Young colts should not be left out in the pasture until they begin to get low in flesh. It is much more profitable to begin feeding them a little grain and hay along before pastures begin to dry up to have them in readiness to go on dry feed later without any serious trouble.

This is too often neglected; and when young colts are brought in thin in flesh, and they cannot be taken through the winter in the condition that they could have been, this neglect is inexcusable.

In weaning the colt from the mare, it should have the very best of care, as the change of conditions is liable to cause some trouble. While on the good summer pasture the mare gave milk that was easily digested and in taking colts from milk to dry food, it is necessary that they should receive the very best of attention. They should be properly fed in order to prevent any bowel troubles. This rule will hold good in taking young calves through this period and in fact will apply to all kinds of live stock, but more especially to the young of the farm which are expected to turn in a profit for the farmer the next year.

former who has to "tell by guess" about when a ewe is to lamb, and who consequently loses a high per cent. of his crop.

Is it too much trouble to do this? Is it too much trouble to get your corn planted or to harvest your oats when ripe?

Your lambing season is your harvest. It awaits you, but the time of harvesting (giving birth to lambs) is uncertain, unless you know by your records when to expect it.

Brother farmer, it is these little things that count. They mark the difference between the progressive farmer and the shiftless or indifferent, between the business farmer and the work horse kind, between the money maker and the loser, between success and failure. We are all of us either one or the other.

HOW ONION SMUT IS SPREAD

Disease Is Conveyed From Field to Field on Farm Implements—One Remedy Used by Growers.

During the last five years this disease has spread rapidly, the smut probably being conveyed from field to field upon farm implements and with manure containing smutted onion refuse, as discarded onions are usually deposited upon manure piles. In some sections the losses resulting from this fungus have been so great that the growers, in some cases, no longer find the crop profitable.

The severity of the disease in different localities is variable. It appears at first in isolated spots here and there in a field, and from these spreads in all directions until the whole piece becomes affected, and the cultivation of onions upon it has to be discontinued. Short rotations do not materially diminish the amount of smut; in a particular field badly smutted the order of planting had been clover for two years, corn one year. A five-year rotation will not, from the experience of growers, eliminate the disease.

It appears reasonably certain that the disease is not generally spread by the seed. It may, however, occasionally be introduced with seed from an infected locality. It is also certain that the smut is spread with plows, weeders, harrows, rakes and hoes, by spores clinging with infected earth to the implements.

When soil is known to be affected one pound of 40 per cent. formaldehyde to 25-33 gallons of water should be applied with a drip attachment on a seed drill at the rate of 500 to 700 gallons of solution per acre. This has been used with success by several large growers. In one instance the treated part of a field yielded over 500 bushels per acre, while the untreated plot yielded only about 100 bushels of inferior onions to the acre.

Small Fruit Matters.

During the fall and winter is a good time to begin preparation for the setting of the strawberry bed next spring, or those bush fruits that should be found in every garden. Late fall plowing is advantageous. It tends to the destruction of insect life. Fall plowed land is, as a rule, in a workable condition in the spring ahead of unplowed land.

The action of the elements will make the soil more friable. Because of these two points gained, the moisture, contents and conserving power of the soil will be increased.

Rot of Tomatoes.

This disease often attacks plants that are not sprayed. It is first noticeable as small, black or brown spots on the leaves or stems of the plants, occurring first on the lower and older leaves; but with favorable weather it spreads rapidly until the plant is defoliated, and the spots on the stems have coalesced into irregular, blackish patches. If a piece of bark with these spots be examined under a high power microscope, innumerable small, crescent-shaped bodies may be seen. These are the fruiting spores of the fungus. Spray with Bordeaux mixture.

The annual meeting of the Cong'l. church will occur Saturday November 15th, beginning at two o'clock.

Owing to the impassible condition of the roads, the mail carriers took a forced vacation Monday, so our correspondence failed to reach us in time for publication in this week's issue.

A social will be held at the home of Fred Hemmingway, Friday November 21, under the auspices of the "Este Fideles" class of the M. E. Sunday School. Program and full particulars will be published later.

Trick May Earn Monument.

Pioneer residents have inaugurated a movement to have a tablet placed in the new state capitol of Minnesota in memory of Joseph Rolette, who, in the early days saved the prestige of St. Paul. By act of legislature the capital of Minnesota was removed from St. Paul to the rival town of St. Peter, but the bill never was signed by the governor, for, during the last ten days of the session the bill was in custody of a committee of which "Joe" Rolette was a member, and he disappeared with the bill in his pocket. His disappearance with the bill rendered the act of the legislature void.

Don't Forget the Waiter.

"Well, our vacation is over. We leave for home today."
 "I see the waiter has decorated our table with rosemary."
 "Rosemary, eh? Ah, yes; that's for remembrance."

TELLS PRESENCE OF POISON

Pharmacologist of Southern University Reports Invention of Valuable Appliance.

By means of an appliance devised by Prof. W. W. Abel, head of the department of pharmacology of the Johns Hopkins university, it has been made possible, it is declared, to determine whether persons thought to be suffering from the effects of poisons are really under the influence of drugs, and to be able to discover almost immediately the poison they have taken.

The contrivance consists of a series of coils and tubes which are submerged in saline solution and its action is said to be the same as that of the kidney.

In making the test for poison it is necessary to have the blood stream flow through the tubes. This is done by connecting the tubes with the jugular vein and the carotid artery.

The blood passes through the tubes, which are then immersed in a pan containing a warm solution. By means of a porous substance connecting the glass tubes the foreign and poisonous substances in the blood filter through into the saline solution.

The solution being of the same temperature and consistency as the lymph in the blood, the natural ingredients which make up the blood are not taken up by the solution of salt.

After allowing the blood to flow through the tubes for a given time a specimen of the saline solution is taken, and then it is but a simple matter of chemical analysis to find what poison or foreign substance is present in the system of the patient.

The Veil of the Future.

In the Chicago schools a boy refused to sew, thinking it below the dignity of a man of ten years.

"Why," said the teacher, "George Washington did his own sewing in the wars, and do you think you are better than George Washington?"

"I don't know," replied the boy seriously. "Only time can tell that."—Ladies' Home Journal.

You Have Neighbors Who Use Home-made Acetylene For Lighting and Cooking

For the asking you can have the name and the address of the nearest one. Then you can, if you wish, make an evening call and get the facts first hand.

All told we have sold no less than six thousand Pilot Acetylene Plants to the people in your state.

These people are our friends. Anyone of them will be proud to show you just how these Pilot plants work—how they automatically mix the gas producing stone, Union Carbide, with plain water. How they make just enough Acetylene to keep the lights and the range going—no more, no less.

They will show you also how the Pilot starts making this gas when the lights are turned on—and stops when the lights are turned off. How this gas is piped to handsome light fixtures in every room in the house—as well as to big, round safety lights in all barns and out-buildings.

The women folks in these homes will be glad to show you just what a boon the Acetylene range is—how it furnishes heat on tap that can be regulated with a little valve—how it goes away with handling wood, coal and ashes and makes the kitchen work easy.

You cannot judge the Pilot Acetylene Light Plant by what you have seen and heard of other Acetylene plants. You must see a Pilot plant and talk to the people it works for. Then you will have a clearer understanding as to why over two hundred thousand country families now find home made Acetylene indispensable.

The Pilot makes Acetylene the right way—makes it so well that it provides country homes with even a better light and fuel than the gas which twenty million city people are enjoying.

After you have inspected a Pilot plant we will leave it to you to say whether it doesn't make the whitest, the most brilliant, and most beautiful light you have ever seen.

We will leave it to you also to say whether or not stationary Acetylene fixtures are not much safer than oil lamps, which can be tipped over.

As a matter of fact—only two accidents have been charged to the misuse and abuse of Pilot Acetylene, while ten thousand accidents have been charged to oil illuminants in a single year.

That is why the Oxweld Company, makers of Pilot Light machines, has grown to be the largest concern of its kind in the world.

Complete Pilot Light Plants may be purchased from dealers in Oxweld Acetylene Company products. These dealers are permanently located in some three thousand different towns.

In this district the undersigned distributors of Pilot Plants will be glad to mail you the Oxweld Company's free advertising books, telling the whole Acetylene story—with full details about the installation of the Pilot, its cost, economics, etc. Just address a postal to—

WHY NOT WEDLOCK'S BOND?

Social Service Expert Laments the Fact That So Many of the People Remain Unmarried.

Why are 89 out of every 100 men without wives? A social service expert puts the question. It is calculated to provoke debate at this season. It seems there are 17,000,000 unmarried persons in the United States, a greater number than the entire population of some nations; more than twice that of the Dominion of Canada. Eight millions of the unmarried are men, about 9,000,000 women "over fifteen years of age." Seven and one-quarter million of the bachelors are between twenty and forty-four years of age. If all these women and all these men could be brought together by some kind of matrimonial agency there would be only a small number of women left outside of the bounds of wedlock.

The unattached are warned that married persons of both sexes have the greater life expectancy, according to insurance statistics and other mortality records. It is too much to expect that alarm over this will provoke a matrimonial stampede. Like most statistics, these should not be swallowed whole. Is it not probable that many persons are single because they are sickly? One difficulty about joining all these maids, bachelors, widows and widowers, of course, is that the excess, respectively, is not in the same place. The woman suffrage debate reminds us that in some states the men outnumber the women, while in some the women are in equal or even greater numbers. The women obtain the vote easier where they are in the minority.—Providence Journal.

Herb Farming.

The growing of medicinal herbs is a very considerable industry in England. Throughout the counties of Surrey, Suffolk, Hertfordshire, and Norfolk there are many large herb farms. Among the herbs chiefly grown are rue, wormwood, comfrey, horehound, peppermint, rosemary, and lavender. The English oils of lavender and peppermint are particularly famous, bringing from two to five times as much as the same oils produced in other countries. Of late years the street sale of little bunches of fresh lavender, particularly in London, has consumed a considerable part of the annual supply. But the increasing demand has led to larger production, and it is reported that this year there will be an ample crop and the distillers' hearts will be made glad.—New York Evening Post.

For relief from rheumatic pains try Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. Do not suffer needlessly. [Advertisement.]

Whole Family Benefited By Wonderful Remedy

There are many little things to annoy us, under present conditions of life. The hurry, hard work, noise and strain all tell on us and tend to provoke nervousness and irritability. We are frequently so worn out we can neither eat, sleep nor work with any comfort. We are out of line with ourselves and others as well.

A good thing to do under such circumstances is to take something like to relieve the strain on the nerves. Mrs. J. B. Hartsfield, 82 Plum St., Atlanta Ga., writes:

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

"I have on several occasions been vastly relieved by the use of your medicines, especially the Anti-Pain Pills, which I keep constantly on hand for the use of myself, husband and two sons. Nothing in the world equals them as a headache remedy. Often I am enabled by the use of one or two of the Pills to continue my housework when otherwise I would be in bed. My husband joins me in my praise of the Anti-Pain Pills and Nervine."

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

are relied upon to relieve pain, nervousness and irritability in thousands of households. Of proven merit after twenty years' use, you can have no reason for being longer without them.

At all Druggists, 25 doses 25 cents.
