Home-Coming News

At a general meeting of all committees for "Old Boys and Girls" entertainment last Monday evening, plans for reception of friends, decoration of the town, music to be furnished, etc., were discussed. A great deal of enthusiasm is being manifested, coupled with a determination to make these two days delightful and memorable ones.

Mr. Meyer resigned as chairman of the executive committee and M. J. Reason was appointed in his place.

A resolution was adopted making Leo Monks, a committee of one to secure music for the dance Thursday evening.

A motion to reduce the membership fee to twenty-five cents was also carried.

A Free Scholarship

Any young man or woman who is a bona fide patron of this paper may secure free instruction in Music or Elocution.

The Ithaca Conservatory of Music, with the desire to stimulate the study of these arts, offer two scholarships to applicants from the State of Michigan, valued at $100 each and good for the term of seventeen weeks beginning with the opening of the school year, September 17, 1914, in any of the following departments: Voice, Violin, Piano and Elocution.

These scholarships are awarded upon competition which is open to anyone desiring a musical or literary education.

Anyone wishing to enter the competition or desiring information should write to Mr. Geo. C. Williams, General Manager of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music, Ithaca, N. Y., before September 1, 1914.

We Should Worry

It is always the one who cannot write a four line local and spell every word correctly, who makes fun of the errors in the newspapers; it is usually the fellow who couldn't run a store two weeks without going into bankruptcy, who feels competent to give the merchant printers on how to conduct his business, and it is the folks who could not make a public address even if their lives depended upon it, who find fault with the minister's sermon. The reason is not hard to find. No man knows how much brains it takes to do these things until he tries it himself. Editing a newspaper is an easy task. If we publish original matter they say we don't give them selections. If we give them selections they say we are too lazy to write. If we don't go to church we are heathens; if we do we are hypocrites. If we remain at the office we ought to be out looking for news; if we go out we are not attending to business. If we wear old clothes they laugh at us; if we wear good clothes they say we have a pull. Now what are we to do? Just as likely as not some one will say we stole this from an obituary. And we did.

SYNOPSIS.

Daniel Slade, suddenly advances from a penniless miner to a millionaire. He is ambitious to become governor of the state. His simple, home-loving wife falls to rise to the new conditions. Slade meets Katherine, daughter of Senator Strickland, and sees in her all that Mary is not. He separates from his wife and takes rooms at his club. Editor Merritt, who has been attacking Slade, is won over to the latter's support because he cannot otherwise supply the money demanded for a European trip for Mrs. Merritt. Katherine agrees to marry Slade when he is free. Bob Hayes, in love with Katherine, has a stormy session with her over her affair with Slade. Mary, anxious to make it up with Slade, appears at Strickland's house during a political conference. Slade informs her that separation is final.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

Slade nervously assured himself that all the doors were tightly closed. He suppressed the twinge of shame for his stealthy action by assuring himself that it was not fear—simply business caution. To his cowardly wrenching of his wife's heart he gave no thought at all. It was a move in the game. He made it as dispassionately as one moves a chessman on the board. Mary was looking at him with a new light in her brown eyes as he turned to her again. She spoke again.

"It was all right until you made that lucky deal, Dan, with the money I helped you to make and you pulled me out from behind my stove and tried to make me a parlor ornament. I'd hate to think where you'd been today, if yer had. Five years ago you took all the work I loved to do out of my hands and now you're punishing me because I did work."

"No, I'm not," Slade remonstrated, moved in spite of himself by her simple, eloquent argument.

"Yes, yuh are, Dan, you're just as good as whipping me for layin' up the foundation of every dollar you've got and here I am at my age, sitting in idleness in a great big barn of a house with my job gone," she finished pathetically.

"Well, that's life," declared Slade unfeelingly.

"Then it's a pretty poor thing," and she shook her head sadly. "No, it ain't life. It shouldn't be. There's something wrong in a man's getting so far up he can't live with the wife he married because she cooked and worked instead of playing. It ain't just!"

"Oh, what's the use, Mary?" Slade sighed wearily, as though he, and not she, were the injured one.

"Dan," Mary lowered her voice and looked at him earnestly. "If I brought up a girl today and we were poor, would you advise me to say, 'Take piano lessons, learn languages, keep up to the times, never mind doing your share or being economical?'"

"I'm not going to argue," Slade replied loftily.

"Yuh can't, Dan," declared Mary with conviction. "There ain't no argument. It's one-sided. Suppose I'd changed and you'd stayed the same, what would all your friends say? 'Poor Slade, his wife's crazy—or bad—probably bad.' No, yer can't get me to see it!"

"Well, whether you see it or not, that's just where we stand. You'd better let me call Robert to take you home."

"Wait, Dan," she pleaded. "Will you see me again at home, if I go now?"

There was a tense pause. Slade did not reply.

"I see, I see." She dropped wearily into a chair and suddenly the tears started in her eyes.

"Please, Mary, remember where you are." Slade was a trifle less cold. "I'll let you know my plans. All you have to do is to abide by them. You say you'll do anything for me, that's all I ask you to do, abide by my plans. I wish you much happiness, the best of everything, a life beyond anything you ever had," and he was rapidly being carried away by his own magnanimity. "I shall always think of you with the greatest affection," he concluded, taking on a patronizing air and trying to make himself believe his own empty sentiments. His self-esteem had been severely torn in the last few moments of his wife's talk. He had almost caught a glimpse of himself as he really was, but he was regaining what he was pleased to consider control of himself.

"Well, yuh've conquered." Mary stabbed her eyes and nose and tried to muster up sufficient courage to meet the situation. "I give in. I'll abide by your plans. Whatever you want me to do," her voice broke into a sob, "tell Robert—I'll do it." The tears continued to fall in spite of her. Her heart was breaking. Her shoulders drooped pitifully, yet she felt a certain sad joy in acceding to his wishes. There was a kind of happiness in sacrificing herself to please him.

She began to pull her gloves, jerkily, clumsily, finding some relief in having something to do. She was struggling hard not to break down—not to cling wildly to him and beg him not to give her up.

She steeled herself finally. "Well, Dan, there's one thing you've got to be careful of—now that I won't be round to hold you back—now that I won't be with you any more," her voice quavered. "I'm the only one who tells you all the truth. Everyone else is afraid of you.

"Don't let them flatter you," she said, with more maternal than wifely solicitude. "They can. I found that out. Father! You're an awful fool with your money. You never had but one real friend. That's me. You'll find it out."

"I Will Have It," Stormed Slade.

"I'll look out," Slade promised, and there was a note of relief in his tone at her change of attitude.

"Do you want me to go away from our house right off?" Mary asked, as if the idea of actual leaving had just occurred to her.

"Oh!" Slade hesitated. The details did seem rather cold-blooded. "But it'll be better when it's all settled—"

"All right," Mary's voice was patient and colorless. "I'd like to feel I was goin' where you wanted me to go—wherever 'tis—and—doin' what yer wanted me to—"

"Thank you, Mary," and the surface politeness seemed strangely out of place from this man who was turning the wife of his youth adrift. "Of course it'll be arranged that you get the best of the divorce. I'll attend to that. You simply leave it to me—"

"A divorce," interrupted Mary. Her eyes widened with amazement, and she came up to him, her mouth open with surprise. "A divorce?"

"A divorce—why, yes—a separation—what's the difference?" Slade was stooping now to deceive the little woman, who was herself the soul of truth and honor.

"What?" the woman gasped.

"A separation is the same thing as a divorce," and he lied shamefully.

"Is it?"

"It will be done quietly," he went on.

"Why, Dan Slade!" She could not believe her ears. "Give up your name? Why, you might as well ask me to give up my eyes. I've got it now—you're looking for a younger. You can't have a divorce, Dan!" All her tears were dry now and a new fiber in her voice.

"I will have it," stormed Slade, enraged because her mood had changed at the word "divorce," just when he had been congratulating himself that the difficulty was all nicely adjusted. "That's all there is to it. I will have it."

"Anything else, Dan. Anything else—not a divorce. You mustn't ask me to take the name I've carried all these years and throw it away. I'm giving in, but leave my name. I'm givin' up everything else."

"You might as well stop!" he warned her threateningly. "You're going now, tonight, the first train East tomorrow. Go where you like, see what you like, do what you like, spend what you like. To what you have I'll add a million more, but I'm going to have this done in my own way."

"Oh, Dan!" she shrank from his wrath. "I'm going home."

"No, you're not, until this thing is settled. My mind's made up. I don't want to quarrel with you, and I should if you fought me."

"I won't let you. You can't do it." "I can't do it, eh?" The word can't was like a red rag to a bull. He stood over her with darkening face and shaking fist. "Don't you know better than to stand there and tell me that? Have I got to hear it from you? Haven't you seen what happened to man, woman and child, all of 'em, who ever told me that to my face? I'll do it! I'll do it now, by God!" and he strode angrily up and down the room.

The angrier her husband became, the calmer and more determined was Mary Slade.

"Dan," she began very gently, but firmly, "you're stubborn, but you ain't a bit more stubborn than I am when I'm right, and now I am."

"You can go ahead. Do all you like, but this time you won't conquer, because I'm going to fight you, father. I'm going to fight you, Dan."

Then with head proudly erect, she walked to the door, threw it open and cried, just a bit hysterically in spite of her effort to keep her voice steady: "Robert! You can take me home now, please!" She turned back just once to the man gazing moodily into the fire.

"I'm goin' to fight yer, Dan!"

CHAPTER IX.

Thirty years of one way of living becomes a habit—so much so that it is almost a human impossibility to adjust oneself to any other mode of life. Mary Slade, living year after year with Dan Slade, interested in his work, watching him rise and succeed, had come to think of the man as only another part of herself. With him out of her life she felt as if a part of her own body had vanished without which she was restless and ill at ease.

As she sat in the little old cottage where with Dan she started out on married life, she experienced a feeling of detachment as if either this were not the right place, but some sort of inferior substitute, or as though the real and vital part of herself were absent.

The room was just the same as it was the day she and Dan had walked out of it to take up their new life in the handsome mansion in town. Not a thing had been changed or disturbed. The same crooked hatrack, with her old knitted shawl dangling on one hook, hung behind the door. The same well-worn tidies were carefully pinned on the plush-upholstered chairs. The same cheap little ornaments that so delighted Mary's simple heart in the old days still cluttered the mantel.

EFFECT OF LONG ASSOCIATION

Marked Facial and Other Resemblances Noticed Among Those Who Have Been Together Years.

That persons who live together for a very long period not only acquire the same mannerisms, but grow a strong facial resemblance is an established fact. But it is little known that the same condition often exists among mistress and servant being associated together for a long period of years. There is usually a strong desire on the part of most servants to ape their mistresses, and this, added to the fact of constant nearness, often extends to facial resemblances.

There are in a small town in New York state two unusual instances of this kind. Two widows live there, each of whom has been attended by a woman servant for more than 40 years. In both cases the servants have become so like their mistresses that they are often mistaken for them, and their cases have attracted attention far and near. Their voices over the telephone are so alike that friends of the women have given up this method of communication.

The Recessional.

It may be recalled that Rudyard Kipling's poem, "The Recessional" ("Lest We Forget") was never copyrighted, but was a gift to Britain, the empire and the world. It was published in the London Times at the diamond jubilee and a check for $500 was sent in payment. This check he returned, saying he would accept nothing for his poem, which he dedicated to the nation, so that it is open for all the world to print and to use.

Put snap and vigor into your work.

The same near-crystal crowded the sideboard. The tablecloth remained laid from meal to meal after the time-saving custom of middle-class families.

Everything was the same but the atmosphere of contentment that once filled the room; everything the same but Mary's happiness in her husband's love. Outside the window the rose bush Dan had helped her to plant still nodded and blossomed in the sunshine that poured in a flood of golden joy through the windows of the shabby room and emphasized all the worn places in the comfortable old chair where evening after evening Dan Slade had sat reading his newspaper and dreaming of the great future he was confident the fates held in store for him.

In spite of herself Mary's thoughts were of her husband—the first bitter thoughts she had ever harbored against the man. She turned sick at heart at the thought of it. Dan and herself estranged, hopelessly at odds, fighting each other in the divorce court, fighting even over the possession of the little cottage that had shared in the first happy flush of their youthful love and happiness. This, the only place where she could find peace in her loneliness, Dan was trying to wrest from her. It was too near to town, too near to the scene of his new activities, he had sent word to her. She must vacate. She must go so far away that his charge of "desertion" would stand fire in a court of law.

Face to face with the fact that Dan was trying to drive her even from this shelter, trying to drive her out into a strange and alien world, of which she knew nothing and which knew nothing of her, Mary could scarcely believe that Dan was so changed—that even now he would be willing to snatch away from her the place which held the memory of happier days.

She had not seen her husband since the night in Senator Strickland's library, when the awful knowledge had been forced home to her that he not only wanted a permanent separation, but insisted on having an absolute divorce. Over and over again a thought came into the woman's mind. It was intuitive, instinctive. She tried to put it out of her thoughts. It was that ever-recurring feeling that another woman had entered Dan's mind and heart. Again and again she pushed it from her, but always and ever the obsession clung to her like a black shadow that haunted her during the day and persisted even in her dreams at night.

From the kitchen came the voice of her maid-of-all-work singing an old-fashioned tune.

It was one that in her young days Dan had loved to hear her sing—one whose sweet melody and melancholy sentiment he had loved in the days before his heart had become hard and his mind intense on the cold, hard problems of finances and political advancement. It was the song in which all lovers from the beginning to the end of time find a responsive note: "Nita, Juanita, be my own fair bride." (TO BE CONTINUED.)

HAD A SPIRIT OF KINSHIP

Chance Meeting About Decided New Yorker That All Women Really Are Sisters.

Caught downtown umbrellaless on a rainy afternoon, I waited in one of the Broadway hotels for two hours, then, deciding to risk my best bonnet in the slightly slackened shower, I started across to a Sixth avenue shop to purchase an umbrella. As I stood under the elevated getting what protection I could and waiting for a hold-up in the traffic, a young girl stepped up beside me. With her skirt slit to the knee, her hair forming "ear flops" down over her too pink cheeks, and blue, blue eyes peering through a fringe of flaxen yellow, above which was a bow three times as big as the hat it adorned, she was in every detail the latest cry of her type.

One glance and she seized me by the arm to draw me beneath her umbrella.

"Come in out of the rain, girle," she said.

Even if my mind had not been on my very extravagant hat, I should have met half way her spirit of friendliness. After thirty "girle" has a rare and soothing sound, anyway.

Chatting as to an old comrade, she sheltered me to my shop-door and, with a bright nod, passed on whence she had come—into the unknown.—New York Evening Post.

Why He Remembered.

"I don't believe any man remembers the first dollar he ever earned, though a great many claim that they do." "I do." "Now, what was there about it that fixed it so firmly in your memory?" "Because all I got was a nickel."—Houston Post.

PATENTS

WORK AT BELTSVILLE GOVERNMENT FARM

Horse Barn Erected in 1912.

In the summer of 1910 the department of agriculture purchased a farm of 475 acres at Beltsville, Maryland, which is about twelve miles from the city of Washington, to be used for experimental work in animal breeding and feeding, and related subjects. About 190 acres of this are devoted to dairy interests, and the remainder (of which about 95 acres are timber land) to other branches of animal husbandry.

On this farm many problems of economic importance to the public, and particularly to the agricultural public, are given much attention. The farm work is done largely by mares, some of which are purebred Percherons, and the other grades. These mares are bred to a Percheron stallion, and therefore not only earn their living by the farm work they do, but in addition produce foals. In the summer of 1913 the imported Percheron stallion Isolat 65098 (78859) was purchased by the department. He is a large, black stallion, compact and well muscled, standing 17 hands in height and weighing more than a ton.

During the fall of 1912, 20 weaning horse foals and 20 weaning mule foals were purchased for the purpose of determining the comparative costs of raising these under farm conditions from the time of weaning until they are old enough for work purposes. A careful record is being kept of all costs, including that of breaking, and full credit will be given to the animals for the amount of work done by them. It is expected that the test will be closed in 1916, when all of the animals will be old enough for work purposes.

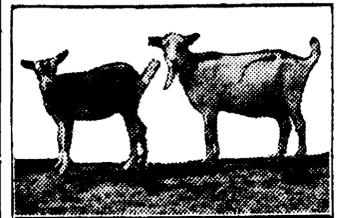

There is on the farm a flock of the Barbados woolless sheep. These sheep are very prolific, commonly having three and occasionally four lambs at birth. They will also conceive at any time of the year. Barbados ewes are being graded up by the use of purebred Southdown rams and selections are determined mainly by the prolificacy and frequency of lambing, with a view to producing good mutton conformation with ability to breed early for winter lambs. The Barbados have also been crossed with Merinos. The great difference in the fleeces and breeding habits of the Barbados and the Southdown and Merino yields very valuable material in the crossbreeds and their offspring for studying the manner of inheritance of wool and breeding characteristics.

Another industry attracting considerable attention is that of the production of Persian lamb skins, which are the product of the young of the Karakul or Arbi sheep which are native to Russian Turkestan. The industry in this country is in its infancy and there is great need of more information regarding it. The department in its work at the farm is crossing a Karakul ram on Cotswold, Leicester, Cheviot and Lincoln ewes, and has also made crosses on Barbados ewes. This work has not been carried far enough to determine just how valuable the skins from such crosses will be in this country.

In connection with the two experiments mentioned, about 100 head of ewes are kept. A roomy and conveniently arranged barn for housing sheep and goats has just been completed and will render it possible to test methods of winter feeding of "hot-house" lambs and breeding ewes. During summer months the sheep are carried upon a succession of forage crops with a view to determining the best plans of planting and grazing forage crops in eastern states.

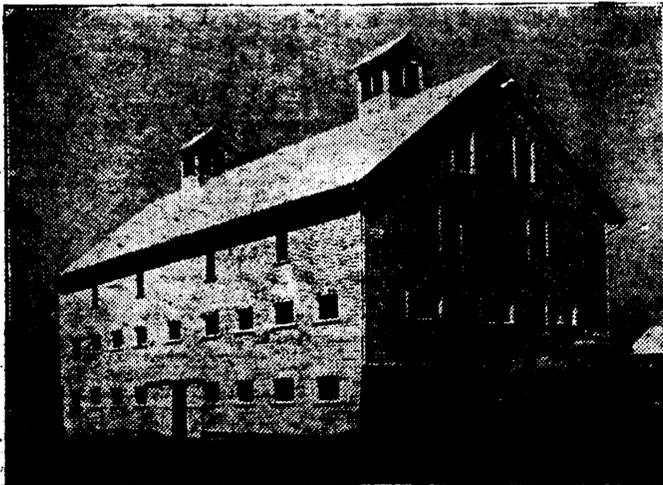

For the past few years there has been great interest in the milch goat, which has often been hailed as the poor man's cow. Today, however, goats in this country which are good milkers sell for as much as the average dairy cow. On the continent of Europe, particularly Switzerland, breeds of goats which are heavy milkers have been developed, but on account of the prevalence of animal diseases in continental Europe their importation is prohibited. In order to determine the value of the milch goat blood in crossing on our native stock, a flock of common does was obtained, and these were bred to Saanen and Toggenburg bucks. Milk records were kept of the native does, and such records will be kept of the half-bred does, in order to obtain a comparison.

Common Doe and Mer Kid, Sired by Toggenburg Buck.

A herd of hogs is maintained for the purpose of studying breeding and feeding problems. A modern, sanitary house has been built, and equipped for conducting this work. There are also a number of small portable houses with sufficient space for a sow and litter or two or three mature pigs.

At the farm house there is also a laboratory for the study of breeding questions. There are usually about 1,000 guinea pigs on hand, representing 30 families. The effects of inbreeding are being studied as the results from such investigations with guinea pigs throw light upon principles that operate in larger animals. Results that suggest the existence of laws of inheritance in these small animals can be tested out on larger animals. By using guinea pigs a great saving in time is effected. It is possible to secure three generations in a year, thus showing the effects of any special method of breeding in a fraction of the time needed with sheep or cattle and at much smaller expense.

STRAWBERRY AT ITS BEST

Sunshine Method of Preserving is Declared to Be Superior to Any Other Form.

Unlike many fruits, the strawberry changes its character completely when it is cooked. It neither gains nor loses; it simply becomes something else almost the moment heat touches it. Long cooking is, however, detrimental to the flavor. It destroys that peculiar flavor which is imparted to the berry by heat. This flavor, which in a way is just as delicious as that of the raw fruit, should be preserved. Strawberries, too, will not only lose all flavor with long cooking, but they will lose their shape as well. Three or five minutes of a boiling temperature will drive the heat into the berries thoroughly and yet preserve their shape and that flavor imparted to them by the heat.

To preserve the flavor of the raw strawberry, which is entirely different from that of the cooked fruit, the sunshine method of preserving must be followed. The origin of this delightful method is ascribed by some to Southern housekeepers, declaring it originated in Virginia, where it is a favorite process, and others tracing the first use of the method to Europe. The sun-cooked preserves are, however, difficult to prepare, and in many cases out of question, especially in city apartments, where sunshine is not a free gift.

Berries of the finest quality are placed on heated platters dredged with heated sugar and covered with heated sheets of glass. The platters are placed in strong sunshine to stand all day long. By evening the juice which surrounds the fruit is placed in an enameled pan on the fire and brought to the bubbling stage, then immediately poured over the fruit again. The fruit is then put into heated, sterilized jars or jelly glasses. Usually the sirup, if the familiar rule of "pound per pound" is followed, will, when cold, be sufficiently jellylike to permit the fruit to keep perfectly in jelly glasses, with only a paraffin covering. Care should be taken not to cook the juice too long nor beyond the boiling point, or it will be sirupy.

DON'T FORGET

A little minced ham added to the omelet makes a savory change. Small sweet peppers are excellent mixed with celery in a potato salad.

Vegetables which grow under the ground should be cooked with the lid on.

Breaded veal served with tomato sauce and spaghetti makes a delicious dish.

Clean nickel and silver pieces with ammonia applied with a fannel cloth. Black stockings should be rinsed in blue water to give them a good color.

Discolored gilt frames can be brightened if rubbed with a sponge dipped in turpentine.

Try adding a little chopped parsley to the mashed potatoes; it gives them a delicious flavor.

Aluminum Ware.

The attractive appearance, light weight and the durability of a good quality of aluminum have brought this ware into public favor. It is claimed, too, that food does not burn as easily in an aluminum utensil as in those of other ware. Aluminum, however, stains easily, thus its first good appearance is somewhat hard to keep up. Even water containing an alkali or iron will tarnish it. This comes off with whitening or any cleansing powder that is free from alkali. Strong lye cleansers must not be used upon it, and when it is necessary to scrape it the scraping should be done with a wooden spoon. A mild acid will also remove stains from it, such as tart apples or sour milk boiled in the dish. Aluminum's one great fault is that it will not stand excessive heat, especially the poorer grades.

English Pudding.

One-half cup chopped salt pork. Fill cup with boiling water, let stand a few minutes to dissolve, two-thirds cup molasses, finish filling cup with sour milk, one teaspoon each of soda, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg, one cup chopped raisins, 3/4 or 4 cups flour. Steam two hours. Sauce for Pudding—One cup sugar, two cups boiling water, one-half teaspoon each of salt and nutmeg. Thicken with two teaspoons flour. Remove from stove, add a tablespoon of good sharp vinegar and piece of butter.

Mistress Bigelow's Green Currant Pie. To make a delicious pie take the currants when half ripe and make a pie the same as a berry pie, using, however, twice as much sugar. Some families like it very sweet—two cups of sugar to one of the currants to the demand.

Apple Cream.

Stew four apples and pulp them through a sieve. Dissolve a half boxful of gelatin in a little water, add to the apples and cream and pour into molds. Serve with jam sauce.

Drink Coca-Cola

And feel your thirst slip away. You'll finish refreshed, cooled, satisfied.

Why Have Coroners?
What good is a coroner? This frequently recurring question is again justified by the news that a wound has been found in the skull of Ella Winter, the Baltimore girl whose body was found in Curtis bay a week ago last Thursday. The coroner's inquest had dismissed the case with a verdict of death by drowning. Whether the girl was murdered or not the circumstances of her death were such as to call for careful investigation. The coroner's notion of such an investigation seems to have been characteristic of his tribe. Was she found in the water? Yes. Very well, then she was drowned. At some time, perhaps, we shall become sensible enough to abolish an office which once served a useful purpose, but has become an anachronism.—New York Times.

Martial Reciprocity.

ITCHED AND BURNED

Silverwood, Mich.—"My baby was about six months old when he first began to break out with little pimples on his head and face. Then they would run water and keep getting worse until his head was a regular sore eruption and water would run and stream from it and his face also. His whole body was affected. They were little white pimples which itched and burned something terrible. His clothing seemed to irritate him and it was almost impossible for him to sleep at night. They also disfigured him as they were on his face.

"We tried medicine but without success. The trouble must have lasted three or four weeks when I thought I would try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I would bathe him with warm water, as warm as he could stand and Cuticura Soap, then apply the Cuticura Ointment. The very first time that I did this it seemed to relieve him as he slept well and inside of two weeks he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. L. White, Jan. 29, 1914. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

A Nervous Woman Finds Relief From Suffering.
Women who suffer from extreme nervousness, often endure much suffering before finding any relief. Mrs. Joseph Snyder, of Tiffin, O., had such an experience, regarding which she says:

"Six months I was bedfast with nervous prostration. I had sinking spells, a cold, clammy feeling, could not stand the slightest noise. At times I would almost fly to pieces; stomach very weak. My husband insisted on my taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I began to improve before I had finished the first bottle until I was entirely cured."

MRS. JOSEPH SNYDER,
263 Hudson St., Tiffin, Ohio.

Many remedies are recommended for diseases of the nervous system that fail to produce results because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. Dr. Miles' Nervine has proven its value in such cases so many times that it is unnecessary to make claims for it. You can prove its merits for yourself by getting a bottle of your druggist, who will return the price if you receive no benefit.

MEN TEACHERS ARE GIVEN BETTER PAY

STATE SUPT. KEELER GIVES OUT INTERESTING FIGURES ON STATE SCHOOLS.

MORE WOMEN ARE EMPLOYED

Statistics Show That 815,847 Children Attend Public Schools With Boys and Girls in Nearly Equal Numbers.

Lansing, Mich.—According to figures given out by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Fred L. Keeler, teachers in Michigan for the past year were paid wages amounting to $1,539,963.16, of which amount $8,433,351.07 was paid to women teachers and $2,106,612.09 to men teachers. Women teachers still outnumber the men teachers, despite the fact that there is an effort being put forth to supplant the women with men. During 1913 there were but 2,857 men teachers employed in the state, as compared to 16,643 women teachers. The average monthly wage paid the men was $83.37, while women teachers received only an average monthly wage of $58.51. This applied to city and district schools. In the graded schools the men teachers received average monthly wages of $113.81 and the women teachers $63.90.

In 1913 7,236 districts maintained schools, as compared to 7,276 in 1912, showing a small falling off, occasioned by several districts closing small schools to allow the children to attend larger schools.

Supt. Keeler has figured out that the total number of school children in the state is 815,847, of which number 412,081 are boys and 403,766 girls, nearly evenly divided. Of these children 107,303 are between the ages of 14 and 18. The average daily attendance for school children during the year was 486,01, at 8,718 school houses. The total valuation of school property in the state is given at $44,389,110. The bonded debt of school districts in Michigan on July 14, 1913 amounted to $7,343,171.33, with a total indebtedness of $9,153,185.42.

TROLLEY CRASH KILLS ONE

Overlapping Orders Causes Head-on Collision near Jackson.

Jackson, Mich.—Overlapping orders caused the head-on collision of a limited and a local car on the Detroit, Jackson & Chicago electric road just east of this city Wednesday shortly before noon. One man C. O. Burnham, of Kalamazoo was killed and 13 others seriously enough hurt so that they are in a local hospital.

The eastbound car, a local, had orders to meet the westbound limited at Michigan Center, while the limited had orders to meet the local at a switch in this city. Each car was speeding to make its meeting place on time when, coming over the top of a rise of ground, the motorman of the local sighted the limited. He put on his brakes and had slowed his car considerably when the impact came.

The cars were telescoped the length of the smoking compartment. Nearly all of those who were injured were on the limited, the passengers on the local suffering only from bruises and scratches from broken glass and splintered wood.

Peat is Good Fertilizer.

East Lansing, Mich.—A use for the thousands of acres of heretofore useless peat and bog lands in almost every county of Michigan has been found by C. S. Robinson, M. A. C. experiment station chemist, as a result of experiments and investigations conducted at the college by him during the past year.

Results have indicated that with proper and inexpensive preparation the peat can be used as a fertilizer to enrich wornout lands and to increase crops on other soils.

Moyer May Not Be Tried.

Calumet, Mich.—The cases against Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, and 34 other officers and members of the union, charged with conspiracy, in connection with the strike in the copper country, already postponed several times, may never come to trial. The trial was set for July 6, but at a conference of counsel for both sides at L'Anse Tuesday it was agreed to ask for another continuance, and reports from a reliable source are that the state is considering the advisability of dropping the case.

GREAT BRITAIN MOURNS DEATH OF STATESMAN

JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN.

London, July 3.—Joseph Chamberlain, the famous British statesman, died at his London residence at 10:31 p. m. Thursday after an illness of several years. He was 78 years old and for nearly half a century he was a conspicuous figure in British public life.

'PHONE MERGER AGREED ON

Residents of St. Joseph and Branch Counties Win Fight For One Company.

Lansing, Mich.—The Michigan State Telephone Co. and the Southern Michigan Telephone Co., an independent company operating in St. Joseph and Branch counties, Friday filed an application for a merger before the railroad commission. The two companies agree to trade business and lines, the Bell system practically eliminating all of its business in the two counties named, except over the independent lines. On the other hand, the independent company turns over its lines into contiguous territory to the Bell people.

The merger of these two companies has been brought about by the people of the district affected, through petitions and requests to the railroad commission. Last winter over 5,000 people in the district, mostly business people, petitioned that their service be reduced to one system; they did not care which one. In addition resolutions were passed by every town council in the two counties. The commission was at first afraid to order the elimination of either one of the companies for the reason that such procedure would be contrary to the federal government's ideas of competition in public utilities. Chairman Hemans made a visit to Washington to consult the department of justice and was informed that the government did not care, inasmuch as the two companies' business was all within the state.

UNIONVILLE MAN IS KILLED

Druggist Attempts to Throw Barrel of Alcohol from Burning Basement.

Unionville, Mich.—William M. Lowthian died early Saturday morning from burns received in the explosion of a barrel of alcohol Friday night. He was a druggist, and while he was filling a bottle with wood alcohol a spark from the cigar he held in his mouth dropped in to it, causing an explosion. The blazing alcohol was thrown about the room, where a small barrel of alcohol stood.

Lowthian picked this up to throw it outside, and it exploded in his arms. Ablase from head to foot, he ran half a block before he fell, and though all his clothing was burned off, he remained conscious nearly all night till death came.

The fire in the drug store was extinguished with slight damage.

HUERTA ELECTED TO PRESIDENCY

Dictator Receives Nearly All of the Few Votes Cast.

LIGHTEST POLL IN YEARS

Sunday Was Election Day in That Portion of Mexico Still Under Control of Followers of Huerta.

Mexico City.—Elections for president, vice-president, deputies and senators were held Sunday in that portion of the republic controlled by the Huerta government. In Mexico City, there was an almost complete abstention from voting and indifference was manifested everywhere. Gen. Huerta appeared to be the favorite candidate for the presidency, and Gen. Blanquet, the present war minister, for the vice-presidency. Huerta, it is reported, received a virtually unanimous vote of confidence. The returns indicate the reelection of all present members of the chamber of deputies and the senate.

The lightest vote in many years was cast both in the capital and nearby towns.

TWO DROWN AT BOYNE CITY

Canoe is Upset by Wave and Boys Go to Watery Grave.

Boyne City, Mich.—The first drowning accident which has occurred here in some time happened Sunday afternoon and resulted in the death of Bryan Nulph, aged 20, and Raymond Holley, aged 12. The accident occurred just a few feet from the tannery dock.

A third young man named Joseph Willis accompanied the two in a canoe, but he got out at the dock and the two other boys proceeded a short distance from the dock when a wave struck the frail craft sideways and rolled it over. Nulph never came to the surface, Holley came up but once. Apparently the boys had hold of each other, as they were found together about an hour later. Both were good swimmers and the excitement apparently paralyzed them as they made no attempt to save themselves.

Minister Asked to Resign.

Washington.—George Fred Williams, United States minister to Greece and Montenegro, was Saturday asked to resign as a result of his public statements regarding the situation in Albania. The demand was made in a cablegram signed by President Wilson.

Mr. Williams' own report of his statements were taken up at the cabinet meeting Friday and afterward the president decided their effect was such that it would be improper for him to longer represent the United States in the Balkans.

Saves Garage at Owosso.

Owosso, Mich.—Despite the fact that he was enveloped in flames Claude Smith, employed in a local garage, seized a rope and threw it around the tank of a large blow torch which had exploded and dragged out of doors, saving the big building Sunday afternoon. Smith was terribly burned about the arms and face.

ITEMS OF STATE INTEREST

Thirty-three fatal accidents occurred among the working men of Michigan, last month, according to figures compiled by the industrial accident board.

Samples of water from the various lakes and rivers of the state are being rushed to the state analyst at Lansing in an effort to determine the cause of the fish dying by the thousands. An effort was made to determine the cause by an examination of the fish, but was unsuccessful.

GOOD SUMMER SAUCES

EXCELLENT TO SERVE WITH COLD DISHES.

Recipes of French Chef That Should Be Useful—Tartar Sauce for Broiled Sardines is Something of a Novelty.

A good sauce adds zest to what otherwise might be insipid and unattractive in the way of food. The season is at hand when cold dishes are often the most appetizing and the most convenient to serve. Very often a cunningly prepared sauce will lift such a dish from the uninteresting monotony of a "leftover" to a tempting morsel with the stamp of a French chef. In the large hotels where the secrets of sauce-cooking are known, large profits accrue from the serving of dinner leftovers in a new incarnation of luncheon entrees. These recipes for appetizing sauces, from the notebook of a French chef, may prove helpful to the summer housewife.

Verve Sauce for Cold Fish.—Mix by beating thoroughly four tablespoonfuls of grated horseradish, a tablespoonful of finely ground bread crumbs, pinch of salt, pepper to taste and half a cupful of sour cream or milk. Add a teaspoonful of lemon juice and pour over two-inch cubes of the cold boiled halibut or cod.

Sauce for Cold Boiled Salmon.—Make a rich drawn butter, season with salt and paprika. Just before serving add a tablespoonful of Madeira wine in which a clove and a bit of ginger have been marinating for an hour or two. Garnish the cold fish with lemon and parsley and serve the sauce separately.

Sauce for Cold Lamb.—Melt a glassful of currant jelly. Add a glassful of port wine. Bring to scalding, but not boiling point. Serve in a small tureen with cold lamb or fowl.

Tartar Sauce for Broiled Sardines.—Mix one tablespoonful of tarragon, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, a pinch of salt and a tablespoonful of Worcestershire and heat over hot water. Brown half a cupful of butter and strain over the mixture.

Mint Sauce.—Break up the leaves of fresh mint until you have a cupful. Mix a third of a cup of vinegar and a fourth of a cup of sugar. Heat and pour over the mint. Let stand at least an hour before serving.

Chiffonade Dressing.

Mix together the following ingredients: One-half cupful of olive oil, two tablespoonfuls of cider vinegar, one tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar, one-half teaspoonful salt, one-quarter teaspoonful of paprika, one-eighth teaspoonful of black pepper, one tablespoonful each of finely cut onion, parsley, green, pepper, red pepper, and one hard-cooked egg, finely cut. Thoroughly mix and serve on lettuce or any green salad.

Russian Sliced Cake.

With one-fourth of a pound of sugar mix the yolks of five eggs, then gradually three ounces of flour, in a teaspoonful of anise seed, two ounces of chopped blanched almonds and last the whites of five eggs whisked quite-stiff. Bake in long, narrow cake tins (paper-lined and well buttered), and when done turn out, cool, slice and dry the slices in the oven, until quite crisp. They are then ready to serve.

Half a Yeast Cake.

"Pennies make dollars," says the wise saw. And although a yeast cake costs only a couple of cents and a half a yeast cake seems hardly worth saving, it is quite possible to save them. Often it is inconvenient to get a yeast cake at a moment's notice, so one kept on hand would prove convenient. This is the way to keep one, in whole or in part—simply immerse it in flour or salt until needed.

Poached Eggs With Cheese.

For five servings prepare five somewhat thick slices of toasted bread, round if convenient. Make a sauce of one level tablespoonful butter, two of flour, a little salt; stir these together and add gradually three-quarters cupful of strained tomato to which a pinch of soda has been added, and half a cup of rich milk. Dip the edges of the toast in the sauce, then pour the sauce over the slices. Place on each slice a nicely poached egg, sprinkle it with grated cheese and set in the oven to melt the cheese.

To Clean Laces.

Delicate laces which have become soiled may be cleaned beautifully by squeezing them through skim milk to which a little bluing has been added. They come out of their bath looking like new and are just the right stiffness when starched and dried, or dried, and ironed between cloths over a turkish towel pad.

Buttermilk for Rolls.

Buttermilk will insure much softer and lighter hot rolls than if plain milk is used.

FABLES IN SLANG

BY GEORGE ADE

The New Fable of the Galloping Pillgrim Who Tried to Sit Down by the Wayside.

A certain affluent Bachelor happened to be the only Grandson of a rugged Early Settler who wore a Coon-Skin Cap and drank Corn Juice out of a Jug. Away back in the Days when every Poor Man had Bacon in the Smoke House, this Pioneer had been soaked in a Trade and found himself loaded up with a Swamp Subdivision in the Edge of Town.

Fifty years later the City had spread two miles beyond the Swamp and Grandson was submerged beneath so much Unearned Increment that he began to speak with what sounded to him like an English Accent and his Shirts were ordered from Paris.

On the 1st of every Month the Agents would crawl into the Presence of the Grandson of the mighty Musk-rat Hunter and dump before him a Wagonload of Paper Money which had been snatched away from the struggling Shop-Keepers, who in turn, had wheeled it from the People who paid a Nickel apiece for Sunday Papers so as to look at the Pictures of the Decorations in the Supper Room at the Assembly Ball graced by the Presence of the aforesaid Bachelor whose Grandfather had lifted the original Catfish out of the Chicago River.

Then the Representative of the Old Family would take a Garden Rake and pattern all this hateful Currency into a neat mound, after which a milk-fed Secretary would iron it out and disinfect it and sprinkle it with Lilac Water and tie it into artistic Packets, using Old Gold Ribbon.

After that, it was Hard Lines for the Bachelor, because he had to sit by a Window at the Club and dope out some new Way of getting all that Coin back into Circulation.

As a result of these Herculean Efforts to vaporize his Income, he found himself at the age of 40 afflicted with

Had to Dope Out Some Way of Getting the Coin Back into Circulation.

Social Gastritis. He had gorged himself with the Pleasures of this World until the sight of a Menu Card gave him the Willies and the mere mention of Musical Comedy would cause him to break down and Cry like a Child.

He had crossed the Atlantic so often that he no longer wished to sit at the Captain's Table. He had rolled them high at Monte Carlo and watched the Durbar at Delhi and taken Tea on the Terrace at Shepheard's in Cairo and Hehshawed through Japan and ridden the surf in Honolulu, while his Name was a Household Word among the Barmalods of the Ice Palace in London, otherwise known as the Savoy.

Occasionally he would return to his provincial Home to raise the Rents on the Shop-Keepers and give out an Interview criticizing the New School of Politicians for trifling with Vested Interests and seeking to disturb Existing conditions.

Any time his Rake-Off was reduced from $10 a Minute to $9.99 he would let out a Howl like a Prairie Wolf and call upon Mortimer, his Man, for Sympathy.

After Twenty Years of getting up at Twilight to throw aside the Pyjamas and take a Tub and ease himself into the Costume, made famous by John Deau, the Routine of buying Golden Phosphorus and Special Caves Vintages of almost Ladies, preserved by seazoate of Soda and other Chemical Mysteries, began to lose its Sharp Zest.

In other Words, he was All In. He was Track-Sore and Blase and sore as a Crab and full of Ongway. He had played the whole String and found there was nothing to it and now he was ready to retire to a Monastery and wear a Gunny-Sack Smoking Jacket and live on Spinach.

The Vanities of the Night-World had got on his nerves at last. Instead of sitting 8 Feet away from an Imported Orchestra at 2 A. M. and taunting his poor old Allimentary System with Sea Food, he began to prefer to take a 10-Grain Sleeping Powder and fall back in the Alfalfa.

About Noon the next Day he would come up for Air, and in order to kill the rest of the Day he would have to hunt up a Game of Auction Bridge with three or four other gouty old Mavericks.

When the Carbons begin to burn low in the sputtering Arc Lights along the Boulevard of Pleasure and the Night Wind cuts like a Chisel and the Reveler finds his bright crimson Branigan slowly dissolving itself into a Helva Headache, there is but one thing for a Wise Ike to do and that is to Chop on the Festivites and beat it to a Rest Cure.

That is just what the well-fixed Bachelor decided to do.

He resolved to Marry and get away from the Bright Lights and lie down somewhere in a quilted Dressing Gown and a pair of Soft Slippers and devote the remainder of his Life to a grand clean-up of the Works of Arnold Bennett.

He selected a well-seasoned Senorita who was still young enough to show to your Men Friends but old enough to out out all the prevalent Mueghush about the Irish Drama and Norwegian Art and Buddhism and true Symbolism of Russian Dancing.

Best of all, she had a spotless Reputation, holding herself down to one Bronx at a Time and always going behind a Screen to do her Inhaling.

They were Married according to the new Ceremonies devised by the Ringling Brothers. As they rode away to their Future Home, the old Stager leaned back in the Limousine and said: "At last the Bird has Lit. I am going to put on the Simple Life for an Indefinite Run. I have played the Hoop-La Game to a Standstill, so it is me for a Haven of Rest."

As soon as they were safely in their own Apartments, the beautiful Bride began to do Flip Flops and screech for Joy.

"At last I have a License to cut loose!" she exclaimed. "For years I have hankered and honed to be Dead Game and back Excitement right off the Boards, but every time I pulled a Caper the stern-faced Mater would be at Elbow, saying: 'Nix on the Acrobatics or you'll lose your Number.' Now I'm a regular honest-to-goodness Married Woman and I don't recognize any Limit except the Sky-Line. I grabbed you because I knew you had been to all the Places that Keep Open and could frame up a new Jamboree every day in the Year. I'm going to plow an eight-foot Furrow across Europe and take my possessions at Beach Joints where some of our Girls go so close to your balls that you can almost reach out and Touch them. I'm going to Travel twelve months every Year and do all the Stunts known to the most imbecile Globe-Trotters."

A few Weeks after that, a Haggard Man with tattered Coat-Tails was seen going over the old familiar Jumps.

MORAL: Those who Marry to Escape something usually find Something Else.

Path of the Kakapo. Several birds make regular paths to and from their resorts. Those of the Antarctic penguins are noted by all explorers in their region. Very noticeable are those in the haunts of the kakapo, the large, rock-dwelling, burrow-nesting owl-like parrot of the mountains of New Zealand. They beat down regular paths along the spurs and ridges where they abound, so that a person might be excused for supposing they were meant for human feet. It is along these avenues that the birds go to and fro on their nocturnal rambles, and as they march they strip off and perhaps eat every protruding spear of grass or weed, keeping the path perfectly clean. When the path is buried in snow they still follow it on the surface and soon kick down a trail.

DAINTY LITTLE DRESS

PARTICULARLY DESIGNED FOR WOMEN OF SLENDER FIGURE.

Nothing Better in Summer Evening Frocks Has Been Offered Than This Typically French Fashion Described.

If you are slender and rather tall you can wear the dress of the sketch and know that it was designed for your particular type, but if you are well, if you are not, it will certainly never do. It was worn by a young woman to whom it was not at all suited at a recent private dance, but the dress itself was so altogether dainty and youthful that I am sending home a sketch in case any one wishes to copy it for a lovely summer evening frock, writes Lillian E. Young in a letter from Paris to the Washington Star.

These many ruffled skirts are extremely modish just now, and are most becoming to the type that suit, for, naturally, the design lends fullness to a slight figure and cuts the height as well.

In this instance dawn-pink chiffon was used throughout, though if something a little more substantial is preferred the skirt may be of taffeta, and the bodice of chiffon to match. The little bow knots set at the top of each flounce down the left side of the skirt were in azure-blue velvet ribbon, and lent a delightfully quaint touch to the costume. The sleeves were similarly trimmed.

Don't get the idea that such a skirt is hard to make. It isn't—but it will require some time and care to arrange the flounces evenly. They are simply straight strips of the material (doubled if of chiffon, but single in taffeta) about six to seven inches deep and evenly gathered at the top and attached to a plain foundation skirt underneath. This may be of strong net or of china silk or mousseline.

The bodice will need a net inner waist. The chiffon over-part was cut with short kimono sleeves finished with a frill of chiffon, and the open neck, too, had a finishing frill.

The girle was rather broad and topped by an upstanding ruffle of the skirt material. It tied at one side with a long, end and loop caught under a natural-looking rose.

The same dress would be delightful in taffeta and chiffon of that lovely cream shade that suggests it might have lain for years in some old attic chest, and the girle could be of turquoise blue velvet caught with a silver gauze rose, while the small bowknots in the skirt could be made of very narrow silver gauze ribbon. Again, flowered taffeta, in one of the small-wreath patterns, will make another charming variation.

You will probably be able to guess from designs such as this that fuller skirts are really on the way.

WAIST SHOULD BE NORMAL

Correct Corseting Always One of the Most Important Aids to Health and Beauty.

At the root of the ills to which feminine flesh is heir is incorrect corseting and tight lacing. These are by no means synonymous terms. One may be incorrectly yet loosely corseted. Today it is the exceptional woman who laces her corset so tightly that her figure assumes an unnatural contour. Ten years ago many women did this. Improvement is to some degree to the credit of corset manufacturers and the mandates of fashion. Women who have just regard for their health and beauty realize that the normal waist measurement is an important adjunct thereto. This is proved by the fact that all ready-made garments are two inches larger around the waist than they were two years ago, which means that most women who used to wear a 22 corset now wear a 24, and so on through the different sizes.

Leading physicians all admit that women require support for the abdomen. Support is entirely different from suppression. If the abdomen is suppressed, a lot of trouble is brought on, the first sign of which is constipation. The colon cannot function properly. More depends upon the colon than most people are aware of, even some physicians. The direct results of restricting the action of the colon are weakness, insomnia and dyspepsia; the indirect results are too numerous to mention and would be superfluous, because the prevailing styles in corsets conform in a great degree to nature's demands.

The wise physician raises his voice not against the use but the abuse of the corset. A corset which supports the abdomen will never be condemned by those who are conversant with the structure of the human body, masculine or feminine. More men wear abdominal belts than is dreamed of by the public. Some of the most advanced scientists state that women can wear corsets now which conform to the latest fashion without sacrificing their health.—Harriet Edwards Fayes, in Woman's World.

On Dainty Aprons. On dainty aprons it is well to sew beading instead of the regulation binding and strings. This beading should be about an inch in width, and wash aprons should be run through it. This makes aprons for stringing, and at the same time lends to the beauty of the apron. The ribbon can be slipped out when the apron is soiled, and can then be pressed out, freshened up and replaced when the apron has returned snow white from a visit to the tub.

Skirt Without a Seam. Charming and altogether practical are the gowns whose skirts are formed of but one piece. Clever is the dressmaker who insists on making the gown, especially the skirts, on her customers. Really this does not take nearly as long as it used to take to turn up one of the very full skirts, and we all manage to get through that some way. The skirt known as the wrapper usually has a silk or lace underskirt.

Picnic of Earrings. Earrings, particularly of the barbaric order, are becoming extraordinarily popular. For some months past they have been worn by the ultra fashionable, but it is only during this spring that they showed any sign of becoming general favorites. They are difficult things to wear, as they have a distressing knack of making most faces look extremely comical or worse.

Saving the Innocents. "Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined," wrote Pope, and as he was discussing "man" and not arboriculture, he undoubtedly had the babies and their welfare in mind. The season is near at hand in our larger cities, if not already here, when the health of our infant population should be a matter of philanthropic and public concern, as we know to a considerable extent it will be. The floating hospital will put to sea with its precious freight in quest of air that is purest and breezes that are most reviving. The milk stations will do their best with the resources at command, though the city should have a larger part in this beneficent work. We have been making progress along this line. We have arrived at a larger perception of both public and private responsibility for the conservation of infant life and health, but the field is such a comprehensive one that much more remains to be done.—Boston Transcript.

HIT THE SPOT. Postum Knocked Out Coffee Ails.

There's a good deal of satisfaction and comfort in hitting upon the right thing to rid one of the varied and constant ailments caused by coffee drinking.

"Ever since I can remember," writes an Ind. woman, "my father has been a lover of his coffee, but the continued use of it so affected his stomach that he could scarcely eat at times.

"Mother had coffee-headache and dizziness, and if I drank coffee for breakfast I would taste it all day and usually go to bed with a headache.

"One day father brought home a pkg. of Postum recommended by our grocer. Mother made it according to directions on the box and it just 'hit the spot.' It had a dark, seal-brown color, changing to golden brown when cream is added, and a snappy taste similar to mild, high-grade coffee, and we found that its continued use speedily put an end to all our coffee ills.

"That was at least ten years ago and Postum has, from that day to this, been a standing order of father's grocery bill.

"When I married, my husband was a great coffee drinker, although he admitted that it hurt him. When I mentioned Postum he said he did not like the taste of it. I told him I could make it taste all right. He smiled and said, try it. The result was a success, he won't have anything but Postum."

Guigay's Whitewash.

Attention of travelers through Uruguay is attracted to the fine white color of the farm buildings even during the wet season. The effect is obtained by a whitewash in which the juice of the common cactus plays the prominent part. The sliced leaves are macerated in water for twenty-four hours, and to this creamy liquid lime is added. The wash applied to any substance produces a beautiful pearly white appearance which lasts for years.

It Did.

In "Bohemian Days in Fleet Street" the following story of Charlie Williams, the war correspondent, appears: "Charlie Williams could have given Baron Munchausen a stone and a beating. He spoke with a rasping North of Ireland accent, and his campaign anecdotes gained greatly by the stolid, matter of fact manner in which they were narrated. I recall now one of his campaign reminiscences. It is a quaint experience of a correspondent under fire.

"I had got under cover of a big bowlder and had tethered my horse beside me. I was just munchin' a beskit, when a shell burst on the rock an' shot the nosebag right off my charger. He had shoved his ould head out of cover."

"And you?" asked Pearse. "I just went on munchin' my beskit." "But," suggested Dunning, "if the shell took away the nosebag it ought to have carried away the beast's head as well."

"It did," replied Williams, with the utmost sang froid."

Watch the Clock.

If the passion for efficiency accomplishes nothing more it will—indeed, it has already—unset one of the most sacred tenets that altruistic employers ever put into the constitution and by-laws for the observance of employees. That tenet is, Don't watch the clock. It was hoped, of course, that if employees could be made to forget the clock they might also forget to go home at the expiration of the time for which they were paid.

Efficiency now makes the revolutionary demand that you should never take your eyes from the clock. To be a topnotcher in efficiency you must go even further. You must get a stop watch with split second hands and make sure that each minutest division of time has assigned to it a precise and particular action, being or state. Watch the clock, my boy—watch the clock if you want to make a success in this world.—Ellis O. Jones in Lippincott's.
