GREAT VOTING CONTEST

Elegant Obermeyer & Sons Piano and Other Valuable Prizes to be Awarded to the Successful Candidates.

The Dispatch and Pinckney Merchants Give Prizes

Read the Announcement and Particulars on Fifth Page of This Issue, and Get in the Game.

The Dispatch this week inaugurates the greatest voting contest ever held in this section of the state and one which we believe will arouse a good deal of interest.

This contest will extend over a period of 90 days, and at the close of the contest some lady in Pinckney or vicinity will be the proud possessor of a handsome $400 piano.

On page five of this issue will be found a full explanation of the contest and the rules which will govern it, and a list of beautiful and useful auxiliary prizes which will be given by the progressive merchants of this place.

There are a great many prizes besides the piano, any one of which will be well worth winning, and every contestant who gets out and makes any kind of a hustle will be sure of winning a handsome prize if she does not win the piano.

This contest is put on under the auspices of the Publisher's Music Co. of Chicago, who will have charge of the arrangements. This company makes a business of conducting these popular voting contests and at present has a number of them under way in this and other states.

Some popular lady will have a beautiful piano as a result of this contest and a number of others will have beautiful prizes of various kinds.

Read the rules elsewhere in this issue, inspect the offerings of the merchants and learn how you may secure votes for yourself or friend.

Use the 25-vote coupon in this issue and cast it for some one, as it may be the starter of a winner. Fill out the nominating blank and send it or hand it in to The Dispatch office, as this may be the means of helping some deserving lady to win a handsome piano or some of the other valuable prizes enumerated in this list.

This contest is, without doubt, the biggest business getting enterprise that has ever been presented to the people of Pinckney and vicinity.

While the Dispatch enjoys a good business, nevertheless we are always reaching out after more and in our present method of helping others, we hope in return to help ourselves. We hope to increase our subscription list at a rapid rate and thereby benefit the advertiser.

Remember that a number of our leading merchants are interested in this contest and give 25-vote coupons with every dollar cash purchase. Also those who do not fully understand the rules and regulations of this contest can call on or write to this office and we will be pleased to go over the proposition with them.

Remember to have your friends trade with the merchants who are giving the coupons. They are reliable tradespeople, as follows:

- Monks Brothers.
- Mrs. A. M. Utley.
- Teepie Hardware Co.
- C. G. Meyer.
- W. W. Barnard.
- Dinkel & Dunbar.

We are the people for your photo supplies

You want to be sure that your plates and films are FRESH. What a disappointment to take a picture and then have it not "develop."

We do a big photo supply business; that's why OUR goods are fresh.

Making and keeping pictures of "the trip" and of the children will be a joy in after life.

We give you what you ASK for Important!

It is reported that a herd of hogs at Holly are affected with cholera. Two farmers there have lost 21 porkers. A quarantine has been established.

The above article was copied from last week's paper.

Now, Mr. Farmer, isn't it up to you to get busy? Feed Sal-Medico the GUARANTEED preventative of hog cholera and save yourself dollars.

Sal-Medico, while it is truly a preventative of hog cholera, also keeps your hogs free from worms and acts as a tonic and conditioner, making your pork finer and of better quality, thereby adding quite materially to their value in the fall.

Sal-Medico

COMES PACKED IN

HUERTA A PROTEGE OF GENERAL DIAZ

Former President of Mexican Republic Early Recognized Possibilities of Man Who Practically Succeeded Him in Power.

Has Seen Hard Service, and From the First Has Been Recognized as a Ruthless and Determined Man—Seemingly Knows No Quality of Mercy.

Once intended by old Porfirio to be a second Diaz in Mexico, now, like his former chief, a fugitive from the wrath of his compatriots, Victoriano Huerta sees himself at sixty forced to resign the presidency of his country. He will, it is believed, go to Europe, where, like other Latin American presidents, he will end his days with little enjoyment save that of reminiscence.

Huerta was born to wealth. Unlike Diaz, who is of plebeian origin, a mongrel, mostly Indian, Huerta comes of one of the most aristocratic families in Mexico.

He was born in Chihuahua, with which state the Huertas have long been identified. In 1854, or 1857, reports differ. At the age of seventeen the aristocrat was appointed by Diaz, then ruling Mexico with an iron hand, to the military school of Chapultepec.

Huerta served his four school years passably well. He was neither at the head nor the foot of his class. He was graduated with honors, being about the tenth in a class of nearly a hundred, and immediately went to join a regiment on the west coast as a second lieutenant of engineers.

When President Diaz began his reorganization of the Mexican army Huerta was promoted captain of engineers, and while holding this rank devised the plan for a Mexican general staff corps. He was an active member of the military map commission created to draft a staff map of Mexico on a large scale, and he had charge of all the topographical work of the commission, leading exploring and surveying parties over the wildest regions of the republic.

President Diaz soon after began to place confidence in Huerta. He believed he saw in the lieutenant colonel of engineers, to which rank the soldier had succeeded, traits which would make him a worthy successor in the executive chair. Huerta was placed in charge of a station in Matanzas, far removed from the capital. There plots could be easily hatched, and Diaz was loath to leave in charge any officer in whom he had not implicit trust.

Huerta was barely thirty-five when this incident occurred. One afternoon while he was riding with an escort of but three men through a mountain pass in the vicinity of his station, six or seven masked men stepped from the roadside and covered his little party. Naturally they threw up their hands.

The highwaymen proved to be members of the band of Flores Zegaza, the bandit who kept the community on the feather edge. It was his habit to descend on the towns along the coast and levy toll whenever hunger or caprice impelled him to do so. Huerta soon stood in front of Zegaza's hut, an adobe dwelling, much dilapidated, far up the mountain.

There Zegaza made the proposition which was not at all unusual in Mexico then, and which is, in fact, quite the vogue today. He proposed that Huerta should keep him informed as to the days when the military force would be marching in a direction opposite from the town.

On such days Zegaza would make it a point to call, with his followers, and collect from the natives such stores of money and clothes and food and wine and tobacco as had accumulated since the last visit.

Zegaza was not at all surprised to have Huerta accept his proposition to receive in return for the promised information a share of whatever loot fell to the bandits.

Ten days later Huerta sent word to Zegaza that he would be away from the station on the following Thursday. Promptly on Thursday the bandits rode into Matanzas, confident there would be no opposition except from the sporadic pogona of the overrightened storekeepers. As they turned into the main street, discharging their revolvers to frighten every one away, a squad of Huerta's soldiers closed in from their rear and another squad appeared in their front.

A number of Zegaza's men were killed in the street. The remainder, with the bandit chief himself, surrendered. A week later Zegaza was shot in the courtyard of the prison attached to the station.

Huerta is no drawing room soldier. He has seen much active service. In 1901 he took command of the infantry in the campaign against the Yaqui Indians. After this campaign he was again put in charge of the general staff's topographical work in Sonora. He participated in subsequent Yaqui campaigns and also in the campaign in Yucatan against the Maya Indians.

Huerta commanded all the detached government forces in the state of Guerrero at the beginning of the Madero revolution. When Madero succeeded to the presidency, General Huerta was sent back into Morelos with a force to put down the Zapata rebellion. As a result of ill feeling growing out of this campaign, Huerta was recalled. Subsequently he led the army sent against Orozco, and was in command at the battle of Bachimba. For this service he was promoted to major general.

In the second Felix Diaz revolution, which resulted in the overthrow of the Madero government, Huerta was immediately called to active command as the senior ranking general then in the capital. He escorted Madero from Chapultepec castle to the palace on the first of the ten days' fighting and was placed in entire command of the forces of the government. He directed the government troops during all the subsequent fighting, and the conduct of these operations led to severe criticism on the part of Madero's friends.

It was charged that he did not carry out the operations with any spirit and that he disobeyed the commands of President Madero. It is said that before Blanquet entered the city the generals had a conference at which the fate of the Maderos was sealed.

Huerta was the moving spirit in the consummation of the plot that resulted in the seizure of the person of President Madero, his brother, Gustave, and Vice President Jose Pino Suarez. The assassinations of the Maderos and Suarez followed, and in the meantime Huerta, with the military behind him, had been recognized as the provisional president.

Huerta at once sought recognition of the United States, for it is understood in Latin-American countries that none of their presidents can hold office long without being recognized by the American government. President Wilson, however, refused to treat Huerta as chief executive of Mexico.

In the meantime, General Carranza, the successor of Madero in the dream of a justly governed Mexico, was winning over the North. His military commander, General Villa, repeatedly defeated the federal forces. Practically all of the North came under the constitutionalist sway. In the South Zapata held out against Huerta.

Then the United States came down upon him, seizing the city of Vera Cruz as a result of an affront to the Stars and Stripes. Mediation at the instance of Argentina, Brazil and Chile followed with no satisfactory results.

HAVE FAITH IN CARBAJAL

Huerta's Successor a Civilian and a Man of Acknowledged Probity—His Honorable Career.

Mexico City.—Francisco Carbajal is forty-four years old, a native of the state of Campeche, and a lawyer. Almost ever since the start of his career he has occupied posts in the judiciary. In the Madero administration he was a senator, but relinquished his post to re-enter the supreme court, of which he was chief justice at the time General Huerta appointed him minister of foreign relations.

When General Porfirio Diaz determined in 1911 to treat with the Madero revolutionists, Senor Carbajal proceeded to Juarez as his commissioner. Senor Carbajal has a reputation for possessing considerable intellectual force and independence of character. His demeanor is quiet. He shuns the exuberance in verbiage and gesticulation to which Latin-Americans are prone. He is courteous, but a man of few words and little given to elaborate compliments.

Besides, he is neat and well groomed in appearance. His features indicate pure European descent, without any admixture of Indian blood.

Altogether he is a man who conveys an impression of reserve power. He is a good man of business.

His probity has never been questioned. He has been sagacious and successful in investments and, while not rich, is a man of independent means. He is a man of family.

GREAT RAILROAD STRIKE AVERTED

FEDERAL BOARD OF MEDIATORS WILL TAKE UP WAGE DISPUTE.

SHORTER HOURS ARE ASKED

Conference Had Been Suspended and Great Industrial Strife Seemed Assured When Leaders Accepted Board's Offer.

Chicago.—The committee of the general managers of the western railroads and brotherhood of railroad engineers and firemen spent the day Saturday in preparing to submit their wage dispute to the federal board of mediation, who came here from Washington and opened sessions Monday. Acceptance by the men's leaders late Friday of the federal offer of mediation after they had declined to consider it, alleging that the roads had not been bound in the past by arbitration courts' decisions, roused hopes that the wide differences between the engineers and firemen and their employers might be adjusted.

No compromise offers between the 55,000 engineers and firemen of the western roads and the operators have been made public.

Conferences between the union leaders and the managers were suspended Thursday after exchanges of letters indicated no wavering on either side.

The controversy dates back to October of last year, when the engineers and firemen began increasing their demands. The managers claim that now the requests for more pay, shorter hours and changed working conditions would cost the roads involved $33,000,000 a year or 50 per cent of the yearly wage now paid.

WILL INSPECT BIG ORCHARDS

Michigan Horticultural Society Will Meet at Pontiac in August.

Pontiac, Mich.—Plans have been completed for the mid-summer meeting here of the Michigan State Horticultural society, to be held August 5 and 6. The meetings will be held in connection with the Oakland County Horticultural society and all sessions will occur in the orchards of the members, where addresses will be given on methods, culture and other topics. Discussions by members will follow each address.

During the two days' session the delegates will inspect some of the most famous orchards in Michigan, including "Cranbrook," owned by G. C. Booth, who has spent more than a million dollars in landscape work on his estate; the Ward orchard, and those of Edwin S. George.

JUDGES MEET AT BAY CITY

Elect Officers and Decide to Meet Next Year on Chartered Boat.

Bay City, Mich.—The eighteenth annual convention of the Association of Probate Judges of Michigan closed its business session here at noon Thursday after electing new officers.

Vice-President, Judge K. P. Rockwell, of Pontiac, was elected president; Sec. Treas. Montgomery Webster, of Ionia, was made vice-president and Judge Neil E. Reid, of Macomb county, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Next year's meeting will be either on a chartered boat or in Cadillac, if they can't arrange for a boat.

Coroner's Jury Accuses Cashmors.

Battle Creek, Mich.—That Charles Cashmore shot and killed Mrs. Lillie Campbell was the verdict rendered at the coroner's inquest Wednesday despite his protestations of innocence. He is in jail. A dozen witnesses were ready to testify, but the jury had enough after three had given detailed descriptions of the shooting.

Mrs. Etta Till swore that Cashmore waited an hour for Mrs. Campbell and then shot her without any words, indicating that the murder was premeditated.

TELEGRAPHIC FLASHES

The Saginaw board of education has denied the petition of more than 100 wealthy families on the east side to shorten the school year.

Harold Moran, of Flint, 13, died Sunday at Hurley hospital of internal injuries sustained Saturday when he was knocked from bicycle and run over by an automobile driven by P. B. Alexander, a farmer.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S AGENT IN MEXICO

JOHN R. SILLIMAN.

Monterey.—President Wilson's views on the peaceful settlement of the Mexican situation are being presented to Carranza by John R. Silliman who stands in high esteem with the leaders of the constitutionalists. He was formerly consul at Saltillo.

JAP COLONY SEEMS SURE

Reports From Upper Peninsula Say That Orientals Have Been Scouting in That Region.

East Lansing, Mich.—Inquiry by Secretary A. M. Brown, of the state board of agriculture, into the proposed colonization of Alger county with Japanese farmers, has afforded further confirmation of the Japanese truck farming scheme. A number of Japs have been scouting through the upper peninsula, presumably in quest of a favorable location for the colony, for almost a year, according to the information which has come to Secretary Brown. The latest developments indicate that the settlers will locate near Chatham, one of the most fertile districts north of the straits.

"For the last year," said Mr. Brown, "W. F. Raven, the college's superintendent of extension work in the upper peninsula, has observed at different times a number of Japs who have been moving from place to place. One or two of them he had become sufficiently familiar with to pass the time of day. Another of these he has seen a few times in the vicinity of Chatham. Mr. Raven was suspicious at that time that they were looking up lands."

"Mr. Lytle, general superintendent of the South Shore railroad, says there is no doubt that the Japs will come. He has received notices from one of the officials of the Michigan Central to that effect."

Youth Drowns in Lake Orion.

Detroit.—C. J. Kincaid, 19 years old, 849 Junction avenue, was drowned in Lake Orion Sunday when he and Edward J. Donohue, 276 McMillan street, Detroit, attempted to change places in the canoe in which they were riding. The canoe turned over. William Horner, a Detroit, living near Twenty-fifth street and Shady lane, succeeded in rescuing young Donohue. Kincaid was a shipping clerk for the Standart Bros., hardware dealers.

Breaks World's Altitude Record.

Leipzig.—A new world's record for altitude for an aeroplane was established here Tuesday by Heinrich Oelerich, a German aviator, who rose in his biplane 7,500 meters or approximately 24,606 feet, nearly four and three-quarter miles.

The official world's record, 6,600 meters or approximately 21,654 feet, had been established only July 9 at Johannisthal by Otto Linnakogel, another German aviator.

MICHIGAN NEWS IN BRIEF

Fire, supposed to have been started by tramps, destroyed three barns on the farm of Warren Hinkley, dairyman, about two miles east of Flushing Friday. Three calves were burned to death. Loss about $4,500.

Mrs. Charles Frost, first woman to hold an office on the Escanaba board of education was elected Monday in a spirited contest in which hundreds of women took part. Mrs. Frost won over her nearest opponent by 15 votes.

"Mrs. Slade," Merritt began, and took a quick, apprehensive look in the direction of the kitchen. "Take a hint from me! You give it to him! Soak it to him! He's used you like a dog! I came here today to find out if you meant to fight him. I had an idea that you did. I'll help you do him up."

"You're talking against the man I lived with most of my life," and she fixed an angry eye on him. "You get right out of my house, sir."

"But—" protested Merritt, rising. "Go right along, sir! Go along!" and Mary raised her voice as her temper got the better of her.

Hayes, hearing the loud tones, appeared at the kitchen door munching a biscuit.

"How dare you!" he heard Mary exclaim. "You can't abuse my husband to me!"

Merritt looked once at Hayes and once at Mary. Then he went.

Hayes stood taking large bites out of the biscuit, looking at Mary with an amused smile.

"I'll say all I want about Slade," Mary sputtered. "But I won't let anyone else do it."

"I've noticed that," returned Hayes, dryly.

"And I can tend to my own affairs, too."

"I've noticed that, too," still dryly. "I'm kind of wound up," Mary confessed. "I'll just wash my face and cool off. Then we'll have dinner, Rob."

She had no sooner left the room than a knock came at the door. It appeared to be Mary Slade's day "at home."

"Oh, the dev—" muttered Rob as he started toward the door. "These d— curious neighbors!"

He opened the door abruptly. Instead of the gossiping neighbors he had expected he was confronted by Katherine Strickland.

CHAPTER X.

Katherine was just as much amazed at meeting Hayes as he was at finding her at the door.

"I didn't know you would be here," Katherine apologized, "otherwise I—"

Bob's expression silenced her. She had never seen such an expression in his eyes before. Katherine was radiantly beautiful today. She knew it. More than that, she had taken particular care to gown herself in an exquisite afternoon dress of dull blue, a gown that had been draped according to her own fastidious design. But in Bob's eyes there was no response to her beauty or her clothes or her poise. He didn't even attempt to disguise his disgust at her effrontery in invading Mrs. Slade's retreat.

"I want to see Mrs. Slade," Katherine finally announced.

"Upon my word!" his voice was low, but hoarse. "I never heard of such a thing as your coming to this house. What do you want here? Want to tell that little woman you're after her? What do you want here?"

"Will you kindly tell Mrs. Slade that I am here?" Katherine's eyes were hard and her mouth a thin strip of determination.

"First, I want to know what you're going to say to her," Hayes demanded.

"Whether I say it today or tomorrow doesn't matter," Katherine answered, quietly. "I'll say it. So you might as well let her know I'm here—and go."

"All right, but do you think you had better risk it? You look out! When she discovers—" Mary's entrance at this moment checked Hayes' warning. She looked questioning, first at Katherine, then at Hayes.

"I'll be back, auntie, in a very few minutes," Hayes remarked. "I've got to work on my car. This is Miss Strickland," and he shut the door.

"Oh—Miss Strickland," repeated Mary, very much pleased, but very much in awe of the senator's daughter.

"You called on me once before, but I had a headache. I've often wished since I hadn't had it. Won't you take off your things and sit down. It's very kind of you to call."

Katherine thanked her and sat down. She had not expected to find such a sweet little woman, in Mrs. Slade. The woman was so little, so fragile, so harmless and helpless in appearance. Even the old-fashioned cottage made its appeal to the girl's sensitive spirit; the shabby furniture gave her a vision of what Slade's earlier life with this woman must have been. Instead of her usual poise, she found herself quite a little at a loss to know what to do or say before the frank, sincere gaze of Slade's wife. The questions she had meant to blurt out soon after her arrival remained mutely on her lips. Instead she found herself answering the questions that Mary Slade was asking.

She found herself telling the woman of her own struggles against increasing poverty, talking of her own hopes and ambitions.

"Mrs. Slade, I don't say this is a social call," Katherine found herself as frank as the woman at the other side of the table.

"You—you know all about my trouble, Miss Strickland?"

"Yes, that's what I'd like to talk to you about, without offending you, if I might. You see, this trouble comes very near to us—"

"How does it come near to you, my dear?" Mary interrupted.

"Mrs. Slade," Katherine set herself bravely to what she knew would be a bitter task. "My father is virtually a beggar. You know how we live! People think we're rich. Well—we're poor! We're getting poorer every day. Every penny is tied up in—politics. My father was the first to see Mr. Slade's strength. He is now living on Mr. Slade's future."

Mary nodded.

"Mr. Slade is a very important man," Katherine went on, "but no matter how much people admire him he can easily be ruined by a scandal."

"I haven't any desire to ruin my husband," Mary protested, quickly.

"No, I'm sure you haven't," Katherine was more at ease as the conversation progressed. "But you being here and he being a few miles away, of course, there's no excuse to be offered, is there? It is a scandal. Politically and socially he's ruined unless he comes back here, or you—"

Katherine paused, for the simple reason that she didn't have the heart to finish.

"Or I go away," Mary completed the sentence. "Yes, and if I go away—I know what that means. No. I'm not going away. Miss Strickland, you tell your father and his friends, from me—"

"Oh, no—please," Katherine objected. "I came quite alone, unknown to him."

"Well, you might as well tell him or anyone else that wants to know—"

"Oh, no, I couldn't, Mrs. Slade. I couldn't carry any messages. I came here to find out—" Katherine checked herself. The situation was suddenly becoming embarrassing.

She Had Not Expected to Find Such a Sweet Little Woman.

"Well, now, you know," Mary answered, "there won't be any divorce."

"I see—yes—" and she took up her gloves, preparatory to going.

"I'm very sorry," Mary explained, "that others should suffer through this, but that's how it stands. For once in his life Dan Slade is not going to have his own way." She smiled.

"Now, let's talk of something else. I hear you draw pictures of your dresses—designs. Is that one of your own gowns?"

"Oh, yes," Katherine replied, amiably. "I often do little sketches for the fashion magazines, and I do busts. My friends think it's a find, when as a matter of fact, it's far more for clothes and things."

"I had no idea," Mary was all eyes pathy and understanding. "You're so young and need pretty things. That's one of the joys I've missed—dressing a daughter! You know," she began, suddenly, "I've heard a great deal of you, and you're not at all the young lady I supposed you were. You're just as simple and sweet and natural as you can be. And your affection for your father!"

Mary got up and, selecting the loveliest rose from the cluster in the vase, carefully wiped the stem and handed it to Katherine.

"Won't you stay for a bit of dinner? Better have just a bite."

"I must go," returned Katherine absently. Somehow or other she hadn't quite expected this sort of a visit.

"I hope I haven't said anything to trouble you," she hastened to add. "What I said about this ruining Mr. Slade is just an echo of what his friends say."

"My dear child, you haven't hurt my feelings. Perhaps you know something I don't know?" she asked, suddenly. "Do sit down again. Stay just a minute. I'd like to talk some more. You're out in the world and I'm quite alone. People aren't as frank with me as they might be. Suppose I'm your mother—just let me say it—and my husband wanted a divorce—his old enough to be your father—we'd all get together to find out why, wouldn't we?"

"I suppose we would," and Katherine took the chair Mrs. Slade had indicated.

"What I want to know is why people think Mr. Slade wants a divorce? Why, isn't a separation bad enough?"

"I don't know that I—" For the life of her she could think of no answer to this directly simple line of questioning.

"Well, there's only one reason I ever knew of," Mary continued, "when a man's so insistent. I guess you know the kind of reason I mean—a well—a younger reason."

"You mean—a woman?" Katherine's voice was cold and firm.

"Yes, I do. It doesn't seem to surprise you," Mary declared suddenly, noticing that Katherine had known at once just what she had in mind. "Miss Strickland, I think you know something more than you're telling me and you hate to say it. What would you do in my place?" she asked as Katherine's silence gave virtual assent.

"I?" Katherine asked vacantly. She thought a moment. Then quickly, earnestly: "I'll tell you what I'd do. I'd do what they all do. I'd save what's left of the affection I once had. It's no use standing over a man with the end of a chain in your hand; that doesn't get him back. I'd take his money, the luxury—I'd simply—well, I'd dissolve partnership and I'd go. I'd go to some place where life interested me and get what I could out of it. I'd live as I never had lived, and I'd make him pay."

"That's a new idea to me," Mary was listening intently. "I never thought of such a thing."

"And supposing, Mrs. Slade, that another woman did appear. I don't say there is one, but—"

"But is there?" Mary persisted.

"I didn't say so. But I do know this: If we do love anyone, and they really love us, they never get over it and we never get over it, either, for there's always something in our hearts that we can't—we can't forget. And take a man who's not young, like Mr. Slade, why, no other woman could be anything at all to him—I mean anything more than something to keep up his position."

"I see," replied Mary, thoughtfully. "Someone to sit in his box at the opera—someone to go about and do him credit. Miss Strickland," she paused a moment and looked at Katherine earnestly, "there is such a woman, and you know it. I believe, Miss Strickland, I believe the Lord sent you straight here to me."

"I only came to find out what you intend doing," Katherine answered, alarmed and not knowing exactly what Mrs. Slade meant. "I mustn't trouble you any longer."

"You're no trouble at all," said Mary, detaining her. "It's the doubt that troubles me. Miss Strickland, I know perfectly well you must have heard people talking. The words I want are in your mouth. Come, now, honestly tell me," she coaxed, "who is the hussy?"

"Mrs. Slade," exclaimed Katherine, haughtily, unconsciously drawing herself up.

"I ought not to have used that word, I know," Mary drew a long breath, "but I—you can't blame me. Why, do you know what it would mean? It would mean two Mrs. Slades here in this town or—or—anywhere he's

ALGERIANS NOT ALL ARABS

Two Kabyles, While They Are Followers of Islam, Have Different Characteristics.

I have spoken of Algeria as if it consisted entirely of Arabs; but this may give an entirely false idea of the population and characteristics of the country. For though they are all followers of Islam they do not belong to the same race. Roughly there are two great races in Algeria, the Arabs properly so-called, and the Kabyles.

The Kabyles are a curious race, so different from the Arabs as to suggest an entirely different origin. Some people even insist that they are largely of that Roman race which for so long was master of all North Africa. Their language is quite different from Arabic; though they are Moslems, their conception of Mohammedanism is so different from those of the Arabs that they may well be considered heretics, and their racial characteristics are even more different than their blood and their creed from those of the Arab population.

The Arab is lazy, the Kabyle is industrious. The Arab is a spendthrift, the Kabyle is thrifty. The Arab is more reactionary than the Kabyle. It is evident that the French will have a less difficult problem in assimilating the Kabyle than in assimilating the Arab.—T. P. O'Connor in T. P.'s Weekly.

Daily Good.

We are too apt to underrate the moral quality of a man's regular vocation, his daily task, his business to look somewhere apart from this for his opportunity for achieving character and doing good. But there is nothing else that is so determinative of a man's character, nothing else that so furnishes hands for his beneficence and feet to run his errands of good will.—John W. Chadwick.

No Danger.

City Cousin—But, Cousin Eben, you can't go to the party in those clothes. Your grandfather wore those at least forty years ago.

Country Cousin—That's all right. You don't suppose there'll be anybody at the party who saw him in them, do you?—Springfield Union.

The Voice of Experience.

"So you want to marry my daughter?" said Mr. Cumrox.

"Yes," replied the young man. "I am sure she loves me."

"That isn't the consideration that most affects your prospect of future happiness. What you want to do is to find out whether her mother likes you."

RASH SPREAD RAPIDLY

Granton, Wis.—"My sister had a very bad, deep, wet, running sore on the side of her face and it ran up to her ear. It commenced with a small blotch of pimples which turned into a kind of rash and spread rapidly. It itched and looked red and sore for some time and slightly swelled. A thin fluid dripped and ran from the sores which looked like water. Then the swelling would go down and it would keep on spreading. It bothered her during sleep and she would be restless. It was a kind of eczema.

"She treated for some time and it did not help her. It kept spreading larger and deeper. Having always used Cuticura Soap we told her to try it so she got some Cuticura Soap and Ointment and used them. It was two months when it was gone." (Signed) Miss Emma Retzlaff, Apr. 7, 1914.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Historical Sayings.

Teacher—What were Webster's last words?

Pupil—I don't remember, ma'am, but they all began with Z.

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Unionville, Mo.—"I suffered from a female trouble and I got so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without holding on to something. I had nervous spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would draw, and I could not speak, nor sleep to do any good, had no appetite, and everyone thought I would not live.

Some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had taken so much medicine and my doctor said he could do me no good so I told my husband he might get me a bottle and I would try it. By the time I had taken it I felt better. I continued its use, and now I am well and strong.

"I have always recommended your medicine ever since I was so wonderfully benefited by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."—Mrs. MARTHA SEAVEY, Box 1144, Unionville, Missouri.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

M. B. Brady is a winner for the third time. Every year the International Harvester Company offers a special $50.00 prize to the salesman who secures the largest amount of business during the month of June and for the past 3 seasons Mr. Brady has taken 1st money.—Republican.

The new post office law which went into effect July 1st, contains certain features that are interesting. If any railway clerk or other employee is injured while on duty, such shall receive full pay during the season of the disability. If any are killed the family is to receive 2,000 dollars which cannot be taken for debt. Each clerk is to have a vacation yearly for 15 days. Clerks and carriers are raised $100 a year, and the bill provides for a raise of 75 per cent of the employees from $1,100 to $1,200, which means that practically all the men in the automatic garages one year will receive a raise of $100.

Wasson to Homes A. Wasson, land in Unadilla for $2,000.

Will Gardner, Glenn Gardner, Grace Gardner, sister to Glenn, and Miss Millie Backus, started for a ride Monday morning with Will Gardner driving the car owned by Glenn Gardner of Stockbridge. The auto skidded and ran down a steep embankment near the Joe Monks farm about three miles out of Pinckney, and turned completely over. Outside of being badly frightened and shaken about, no one was hurt except the driver, who received serious injuries.

Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, is reiterating his belief in continued school activity of some kind in summer months for most children. "The schools should provide some kind of instruction for the children through what is now, in most cities, a long wasteful vacation," declares Dr. Claxton. He points out that school takes at most 900 hours a year out of 5,110 walking hours—assuming ten hours of sleep for children every night; the average child spends about 600 hours in school and the remaining 4,510 walking hours out of school. He suggests that summer work last not longer than four hours—from seven or eight o'clock to eleven or twelve o'clock in the forenoon.

Run Out of Town

The usual afternoon placidity of our village was rudely shattered on last Friday afternoon by the appearance of a cloud of dust moving rapidly towards the depot. At first thought, many went to their cyclone cellars, perceiving a re-visit of the storm of a few days ago; but Adrian Lavey at the school house discovered it to be R. C. Culhane trying to make the 4:39 train. Culhane, after coming to consciousness, when interviewed by our "war correspondent" claims he was literally "run out of town" by Will Dunning and says he broke all speed records ever "hung up" in Pinckney since the advent of the "Ford". He started his run from Murphy & Jackson's store at 4:39 and reached the depot at 4:38 sharp. The citizens were indignant at Dunning for speeding the departing guest in such a manner and threatened to have him "shot at sun-rise". Ask Will for details.

School Money

The first apportionment affected by the amendment to the Constitution relative to the apportionment of primary money was made in July, 1912. In that year 492 districts forfeited their share of the $5,515,000.00 primary money distributed to the various schools in the state. In 1913 this number had been decreased by 299, 193 districts forfeiting. In the coming apportionment to be made July 15, 1914, only 92 districts will be barred because of having a surplus balance of primary money at the close of the year. The total amount of primary money on hand in the district treasuries of the state at the close of the year 1913 was $928,361.00 as against the $2,700,000.00 on hand previous to the year this amendment went into effect. The most noticeable change caused by the more equal distribution of the public money has been in the improvement of certain school conditions. Many small districts have voted to close their schools and are paying tuition to a better school than they could maintain. In large districts where formerly there had been but one teacher employed now we find two and because of the better salaries paid, a better school under more competent teachers.

Just Two Weeks

Only two more weeks before the Old Boys and Girls Reunion. Several repites have come to our desk from old boys and girls who are coming back to the place of their birth on August 5th and 6th. The various committees are putting forth every effort to make this the best home-coming Pinckney has ever held, and extend a cordial invitation to every person big or little, old or young to come to our village for two days of genuine fun. There will be ball games, dancing and athletic sports of all kinds, as well as a merry-go-round and pink lemonade for all those who care to indulge. An early morning dip in the old swimming hole may appeal to some of the young fifty-year old boys. One car called for a partner who had a desire to spend a part of the big time with the fishing rod and line, so along with the natural resources the town offers and the outside attractions that have been arranged for, you will not regret the money you spend in paying a visit to the little home village.

Culhane-Sherman

On Wednesday morning, July 15th, Lucy T. Culhane, a well known young lady of our village, and Grant D. Sherman of Mayville, Mich., were united in marriage, Rev. Fr. Coyle, officiating. The brides brother, R. C. Culhane of Pittsburg, Pa., and her sister Josephine were in attendance. After the ceremony the "newlyweds" left for a short trip to Detroit and the lakes. They will be at home to their many friends after August 1st at Mayville.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Merrills of Hamburg spent Sunday here.

VALUABLE TO FARMER

Hawks and Owls Destroy Many Voracious Rodents.

Ferruginous Roughleg is One of Our Largest and Most Beneficial Birds, as it Feeds on Meadow Mice and Other Mammals.

According to biological authorities of the United States department of agriculture, certain hawks and owls are of value to the farmer in destroying voracious rodents. Notwithstanding the deep-rooted prejudice against these birds, it is the belief that the good they do overbalances the evil.

Hawks and owls may be divided arbitrarily into four classes:

1. Species wholly beneficial.
2. Those chiefly beneficial.
3. Those in which beneficial and harmful qualities about balance.
4. Harmful species.

It should be stated that several birds of prey belong to one or another class, according to locality. A hawk or owl may be locally injurious because at that place mice, squirrels, insects and other noxious animals are scarce, and consequently the bird is driven to feed on things of more or less value to man, while in other regions where its natural food abounds, it does absolutely no harm. A good example of this kind is the great horned owl.

To the wholly beneficial class, the squirrel hawk or ferruginous roughleg and the four kites—the white-tailed kite, Mississippi kite, swallow-tailed kite and everglade kite—belong.

The chiefly beneficial class contains a majority of our hawks and owls, and includes the following kinds: Marsh hawk, Harris hawk, red-tailed hawk, red-shouldered hawk, short-tailed hawk, Swainson hawk, broad-winged hawk, Mexican black hawk, Mexican goshawk, sparrow hawk, Audubon caracara, barn owl, long-eared owl, short-eared owl, great gray owl, barrel owl, western owl, Richardson owl, Acadian owl, screech owl, flammulated screech owl, snowy owl, hawk owl, burrowing owl, pygmy owl, ferruginous pygmy owl and elf owl.

The class in which the harmful and beneficial qualities balance includes the golden eagle, bald eagle, pigeon hawk, Richardson hawk, Aplomado falcon, prairie falcon and great horned owl.

The harmful class comprises the gyrfalcon, duck hawk, sharp-shinned hawk, Cooper hawk and goshawk.

The rough-legged hawk and the ferruginous roughleg, or squirrel hawk, as it is sometimes called on account of its fondness for ground squirrels, so destructive in the West, are among our largest and most beneficial hawks. The former breeds wholly north of the United States, migrating south in September and October and remaining until the following April. The latter breeds extensively through the great plains region. The winter range of the roughleg is determined more by the fall of snow than by the intensity of cold, the main body advancing and retreating as the barrier of snow melts or accumulates. Meadow mice and lemmings form the staple food of this bird.

The roughleg is one of man's most important allies against meadow mice.

feeding on little else during its six months' sojourn in the United States. It thus renders important service in checking the ravages of these small but formidable pests. The roughleg is somewhat crepuscular in habits, being on the alert during twilight and early dawn, when small mammals are most active. Other mice, rabbits and ground squirrels are eaten occasionally, and some of the older writers state that waterfowl are captured by this bird, but there is no known instance of its attacking birds. Stomachs of specimens shot in locations teeming with waterfowl contained nothing but the remains of meadow mice.

The ferruginous roughleg is as fully beneficial as its relative, though the character of its food differs somewhat. In many parts of the country inhabited by it, meadow mice, which play such an important part in the economy of the other bird, are scarce or wanting, but are replaced by nearly as destructive rodents, the ground squirrels. Upon these this large and handsome hawk wages continuous warfare, and great is the service it performs in keeping their numbers in check. Rabbits, prairie dogs, and occasionally pouched gophers are eaten.

The marsh hawk is one of the most valuable on account of its abundance, wide distribution and habits. It is more or less common throughout the United States, and may be easily recognized by its white rump, slender form and long, narrow wings, as it beats untiringly over the meadows, marshes and prairie lands in search of food. If it were not that occasionally it pounces upon small birds, game and poultry, its place in the first class would be insured, for it is an indefatigable mouser. Rodents, such as meadow mice, rabbits, arboreal squirrels and ground squirrels, are its favorite quarry. In parts of the West the last-named animals form its chief subsistence. Lizards, snakes, frogs and birds also are taken.

CATTLE LOSS FROM DISEASE

Estimated by Department of Agriculture to Be 19.8 Per Thousand Head During Last Year.

Losses of cattle from disease during the past year are estimated to be 19.8 per thousand head, which compares with 20.5 similarly estimated last year and 20.5, the 10-year average of such losses, according to the department of agriculture. Losses from exposure are estimated to be 10.9 per thousand, which compares with 14.1 similarly estimated last year and 16.5, the 10-year average of such losses. The total losses per thousand, from both disease and exposure, if applied to the estimated number and value of cattle on January 1, would indicate a loss of about 1,787,000, at $39.50 per head, a total of $69,511,000.

The condition as to healthfulness of cattle on April 1, 1914, was 96.5 per cent of normal, which compares with 96 similarly estimated a year ago and 94, the average for 10 years.

Losses of sheep from disease during the past year are estimated to be about 21.7 per thousand, which compares with 24.6 similarly estimated a year ago and 25.2, the 10-year average of such losses. Losses from exposure are estimated to be 21 per thousand, which compares with 25.1 similarly estimated a year ago and 32.8, the 10-year average. The year is thus seen to have been favorable. The total losses per thousand from both disease and exposure, if applied to the approximate numbers and values on January 1, would indicate a loss of about 2,124,000 head, at $4.04, a total of $8,581,000.

The condition as to healthfulness of sheep on April 1, 1914, was 96.6 per cent of normal, which compares with 96 similarly estimated a year ago, and 94.8, the 10-year average.

TUNICS OF ALL SORTS

GARMENT MAY BE AS VARIED AS WEARER DESIRES.

No One Particular Style Has Been Selected for Explicit Approval—Frocks That Seem in Fair Way to Be Popular.

The catch-word of the season is the tunic. Sometimes it is formed of circle after circle of founces or formed of shirtings and puffings, and other models show tunics which extend to from three to four inches of the skirt bottom. One very smart and novel model taken from the modes of the time of Louis XVI was made with a long tunic of black taffeta, finished at the bottom with deep scallops, and placed over a white lace skirt the underskirt being scarcely visible.

Black taffeta or taffeta of some somber tone, is considered extremely smart with the white lingerie materials, the somber note usually appearing in the shape of tunic trimming or one of the swathed girdles, which are so much in vogue.

Three frocks are recently seen are a fair type of the frocks that will be seen at summer resorts. One is of eyelet linen, with a gay touch of color in the way of Roman striped ribbon trimming beading, a frill of the embroidery which forms a fichu, and forming a girde ending in loops at the front. The skirt has set on founces of the eyelet embroidery.

Another frock is of flowered rose-colored and plain taffeta. The blouse closes with a single row of material buttons, and has a plaited or gandy collar trimmed with a frill of lace. The skirt is made with a long tunic and plaited underskirt.

Still another model is made of black taffeta. This model has the new tight-fitting corselet shaped bodice, with organdy vest and collar. There is a long tunic with a panel of plaits back and front.

A cape costume is also in vogue. Undoubtedly the modish cape costume of serge, of satin or of taffeta will be seen at every resort this summer. The cape costume of the small cut is of white serge, and has broad bands of the material which cross at the front and button to the skirt. The blouse and long plaited tunic are of white crepe de chine, while the underskirt is of cape material. There is a flat turn-down collar of white crepe de chine.

Linen has always been worn, in spite of the fact that women have ever grumblingly contended that it gets mussy and stringy after the first wearing, and women will wear it and will continue—unless the dream come true of the so-called "uncrushable linens."

EASY TO HAVE SHAPELY FEET

May Not Be Perfect, but It is One's Own Fault if They Are Deformed.

A perfect foot is very rare. I heard a fashionable shoemaker say that out of every ten women who came in to be fitted, not more than one has a shapely foot, and the greater proportion have more or less deformed ones. Their feet have been spoiled by carelessness and neglect, by ill-fitting or cramping shoes and by ungainly, ungraceful walking.

If you want to keep your feet as shapely as nature made them, and free from corns, calluses and similar disfigurements, observe the following rules:

1. Never forget that the feet are hard workers and have to bear the burden of the whole body. Sit down when tired. Do not rest one foot at the expense of the other.

2. Bathe the feet every night. Use soft warm water, and be liberal with soap. A little salt added to the bath water braces and tones the muscles and skin. A few drops of eau-de-co-logne in the rinsing water is soothing when tired.

3. Thoroughly dry the feet, dusting with a mixture of equal parts of boracic powder and the finest powdered starch.

4. Massage the feet for a few minutes every night. Begin at the toes and rub with firm, but gentle, pressure with an upward movement toward the leg. Put a little warm cocoa butter on your hands. This treatment helps to make the foot narrow and arched and ankle slender.

5. Change the stockings every day, and see that they are not overworn. 6. Never wear cheap shoe leather. It is the reverse of economical. See that your shoes are well made, and not only wide enough, but sufficiently long. Short shoes are a frequent source of corns and bunions. Also they cause the joints to contract and enlarge and otherwise distort the foot. Do not constantly wear the same shoes, however comfortable they may be.—Chicago Journal.

PLUMPNESS NOW IN ORDER

Day of the Slim and "Slouchy" Woman Has Disappeared for the Present.

The craze for slimmness is passing, and the thin, bony woman is disappearing before the plump, bonny type.

Women cheerfully own now to a waist of from 26 inches to 36 inches. In fact, the very slim, "slinker-slouch" woman is now considered to be ugly and deformed.

The craze for slimmness, a beauty specialist said, produced the irritable woman, the nervous woman, the neurotic woman, the poseuse.

"To be healthy," said the specialist, "a woman should, as everybody knows, have a full bust and an uncramped waist."

"If a woman adopts the kind of 'slinker-slouch' figure her chest contracts, and nothing is worse for the general health than a contracted chest."

"If you want to grow beautiful or to retain your beauty, do not indulge in sarcasm."

This is the advice given by another beauty doctor.

"Why should anyone be habitually sarcastic?" she asked. "The person who is always on the alert to 'take it out' of someone else has probably just as many faults as those on whom he or she looks with contempt."

"The sarcastic woman has the least chance of any woman to keep beautiful. Nothing draws out the wrinkles as much as a sneering countenance."

"A woman who really has suffered can retain her beauty even though she is somewhat lined, but the sarcastic woman can never hope to be beautiful. She becomes dyspeptic and miserable."

Richelieu Embroidery.

It is a revival of the old Roman embroidery, of which there are three classes—Venetian, Renaissance and Richelieu.

The form usually seen is the machine "cut work." In all forms of this work buttonholing outlines the pattern and the spaces between are cut away.

Chopped Carrots.

Do any of the sisters ever boil the carrots in salted water, then chop them fine and season with butter, pepper, salt and a little hot milk to make them moist? We are all very fond of this dish, while if the carrots were just boiled we would not touch them.—Boston Globe.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. K.
