SECOND COUNT THE PINCKNEY SCHOOL

Saturday, September 12th

$10. in Gold to the Candidate Making the Largest Gains in Votes Since the First Count.

The time for the second count is fast approaching and with it interest in the result is growing more keen with friendly rivalry among the contestants for first place. The remaining days will witness an active campaign for more votes. New subscriptions are coming in and the merchants are having wide and active demand for the merchant coupons.

There will be another special prize of $10. in gold given to the contestant who makes the greatest gain in votes from now till the next count, Saturday, September 12. This gives all the contestants an equal chance to win this special prize offered no matter where they stand now.

If you are not a subscriber for the Dispatch now is the time to start or if you owe now is the time to pay. You have no doubt a friend among the contestants who would be delighted to have your votes.

Ten dollars in gold is worth considerable effort and the energy put forth to secure this lands the winner that much nearer success at the finish when the piano will be awarded. There is nothing worth while obtained in this world without energetic and thoughtful effort and to become victor in this contest and to receive the reward that goes with it is worth while. If your efforts heretofore have been spasmodic, from now on make it continuous and determined. Enlist the men as well as the women folks in your behalf. They will enjoy the Dispatch and will be glad to help you along to victory. Speak to your friends and neighbors and see how quick they will respond. One of the beauties of this contest is that few are disappointed—there are several prizes. It is time when you ask your friends to show their friendship in a substantial way by assisting you.

The count on September 12th will be decisive as to the $10. but its importance must not be overlooked for your standing on that occasion is a sort of barometer to your following of friends and, if you win, it will be the result of the efforts of yourself and friends.

The Dispatch has the laudable ambition to improve right along and go regularly to every home in Pinckney and vicinity to stand for and promote those things which will be for the good of the community and yield as great an influence as possible, for the upbuilding of the town we are justly proud of.

Girls of Yesterday

Nine little girls of long ago were invited to a picnic last Tuesday afternoon at the home of a girlhood friend, Laura Darrow Sigler. Each stiffly starched, primly curled up and brought her basket of goodies and under the shade trees on the lawn, an out-of-doors buffet luncheon was spread. Real small girls suffer from real stomach-aches when too many dainties are partaken of but little girls of long ago are perfectly free from the pangs of indigestion, so the picnic dinner was immensely enjoyed.

The afternoon, until dusk sent the members of the party homeward bound, was spent in recalling reminiscences of girlhood days, in which naughty boys who afterwards became the most sedate of husbands, pulled their curls and were always very much in the foreground, when any mischief was to be perpetrated. Little girls of long ago were never mischievous, oh, no.

Georgia Reeves VanWinkle, Edna Reeves Maxwell, Margaret Cook Darrow, Lizzie Darrow Curlett, Hattie Haze Decker, Jennie Haze Segee, Luella O. Haze, Lovisa M. Coe and Leal Haze Sigler were the little girls invited to the party. Two privileged guests, Norma Curlett and Elsie Cook Tyler were also there, but still girls such as they had to sit still and listen for "Little girls must be seen and not heard."

Such informal gatherings do much to chase gloom away. In recalling the pranks of other days, the cares of today are forgotten. Friendships such as these are links of gold in the chain of life, for friend is a word of royal tone, friend is a poem all alone.

WAR NEWS

Owing to the recent wars in Europe, it becomes necessary to advance the price on many drugs as the majority of crude drugs and chemicals are obtained from abroad. It is not my intention to advance the price only when necessary and then only sufficient to cover the wholesale advance.

In event of the war continuing any length of time, many drugs will be eliminated entirely from the market owing to the exhaustion of supplies from the jobbers and drug depots, and their inability to replenish stocks as commerce has been discontinued with all countries at war.

The operation of a small store is usually done at a minimum of expense, and large stocks of drugs are not carried, making it necessary to go up and down with the market. I endeavor to maintain a uniform price on all articles at all times regardless of the market, often times selling at a very small margin of profit.

I assure my friends and patrons that prices on all advanced drugs will drop back as soon as the European countries will permit it.

The following is a list of the more important drugs used in this vicinity and the advance in retail price, also the advance from the former wholesale price.

PARIS PREPARES FOR SIEGE WHEN GERMANS COME

Reports of Continued Success of Kaiser Alarms French Capitol

ALLIES CLAIM THEY WILL STOP ADVANCE OF ENEMY

First Naval Battle of War is Victory for British Over Germans Who Lost Four Ships in North Sea.

London—The war office at Paris admitted Sunday night in an official bulletin received here that the German right wing is pushing the left wing of the allied armies backward in the north of France and that the allies are being forced to fall back in the direction of Paris.

It is understood that the fighting in progress at that time was along the Somme river, near Amiens. If this be true, it means that the vanguard of the German advance was within 70 miles of the French capital.

Newspaper dispatches received Sunday help to confirm the fears of the Paris officials that a siege of Paris is imminent. The Times correspondent, in a dispatch said, "The first great German effort has succeeded," and that "England must face the fact that her expeditionary force requires immediate and immense reinforcements."

He adds that the "investment of Paris cannot be banished from the field of possibilities."

It was admitted in Paris, according to reports received here, that the French officials are gravely considering sending all women and children from the capital. These reports are considered here to give strong color to the belief that the Paris officials expect a siege. The order of Saturday for homes within action of the city's forts to be evacuated and destroyed by September 3, shows, it is pointed out, how soon a siege is expected by the authorities, in the allies' defense to the north continues to give way.

W. T. Massey, special correspondent of the Telegraph, wires that when the next great battle is fought the Germans will have one of the hardest tasks of the campaign. Assuming that the Germans continue to prosecute the offensive in the same region as battles of the past week, there is good reason for stating that the line now held by allies is infinitely stronger than any along which they have faced the foe so far; not only are the positions more favorable, but numbers will be less to their disadvantage.

Whatever happens, this fact can be stated with a certainty—the allies are awaiting attack with confidence, said the dispatches. The German hosts had a taste of their quality and unless the enemy alter their form of attack their losses will be enormous and the morale of the force will be further shaken, the correspondent wires.

Reports from various sources indicated that the fighting all along the lines of the allies and Germans was continued, with more intensity.

The battle line of the allies now runs through Laberley, Lecateau and Cambrai. The Germans report that their forces have reached St. Quentin and are advancing from there toward the fortified positions of Lafer. The German report denies that the city has been taken by the Germans.

Allies Claim to Be Confident.

The French, Paris dispatches say, have received reinforcements on this northern line and are holding both flanks and have begun, with the English co-operating in the center, an offensive movement in an effort to drive the Germans back to the positions occupied before the disastrous engagements of the past week. The reports indicate that the allies are now in a position in which they are confident of success.

According to a dispatch from Paris, a German aviator passed over that city in an aeroplane and dropped bombs which did only trifling damage. One contained a warning to the Parisians that the Germans were on the outskirts of the city and that the best thing to do was to surrender.

Lord Kitchener, British secretary of war, issued a long statement, covering the situation up to Sunday morning, in which he says the English forces have retired to their second lines of defense and that the French, on their right and left, have succeeded in stopping the German advance.

The statement says the Germans have not attacked the English army since Thursday, when the four-day battle in the department of Nord ended.

As to the situation in the Vosges region, the French official report says that along the line from the Somme river to the Vosges mountain range the defense is holding well. The report continues:

"The fighting here has been notable for the great number of casualties. Two German regiments of 3,000 each were so depleted after three days that they were combined in a single organization of less than the German regimental strength."

Germans Lose Four Ships.

London—At last the fleet has been heard from. Two German cruisers sunk and another fading into the mist, wrapped in flames and in a sinking condition; two German destroyers sunk and others damaged, but to what extent is not known; but every vessel of the squadron afloat returning in good order is the message.

Only the strategist expected the British squadron on guard to take the offensive; the amateurs long ago decided that the squadron would simply wait, content to keep the Germans bottled and prepared to attack them when they attempted a sortie; but, apparently, the British got word that the time was favorable and delivered a blow, with the light cruisers and battle cruisers supporting the destroyers, which were attended by submarines, and every one that went into this engagement came out under its own steam.

Rear Admiral Beatty in Command.

Rear Admiral Beatty, who conducted this brilliant and timely operation, is regarded as one of the ablest officers in the British navy and is one of its youngest admirals, having reached that rank a year ago. He was a great personal favorite of the late King Edward and a popular member of the Anglo-American society, having married a daughter of the late Marshall Field, of Chicago. Rear Admirals Moore and Christian, who are his immediate subordinates, both were recently promoted, and Commodore Goodenough has already had a distinguished career.

Official Account of Fight.

Following is the text issued Friday night by the official press bureau: "Early this morning a concerted operation of some consequence was attempted against the Germans in Heligoland Bight."

"A strong force of destroyers, supported by light cruisers and battle cruisers, and working in conjunction with the submarines, intercepted and attacked the German destroyers and cruisers guarding the approaches to the German coast. Two German destroyers were sunk and many damaged."

Defenses of Paris Good.

Washington—The fortifications of Paris and their ability to resist a siege are receiving the close attention of military observers, now that Paris is the announced objective point of the German forces and the French ministry of war has adopted urgent means of strengthening the city's defenses to the utmost.

While the city's detailed defenses are surrounded with strict secrecy by French military authorities, yet their general character and formidable strength are well known to military experts, who recognize them as among the strongest fortifications in the world.

These fortifications consist of three distinct circles sweeping around the city: First, the solid wall of masonry 18 feet high extending for 22 miles around the old sections of Paris; second, the system of 17 detached forts arranged at intervals, two miles beyond the wall, and making a circuit of the city 34 miles long; and third, an outer girdle of forts, 75 miles long on the heights commanding the valley of the Seine.

Fortified Area 400 Miles.

Each of these circles of masonry and steel is a complete defense in itself, the forts being linked together with redoubts, bastion and glacis which permit a cross-fire against approach from any direction. The magnitude of the system is shown by its area, which exceeds 400 square miles.

Germany Attacks Belgian Congo.

Paris—A dispatch to the Havas agency from Libreville, in the French Congo, says that the Belgian Congo has been attacked by German troops. The Belgian administration, in accord with Great Britain, has taken defensive measures and has informed the French government of its action.

The Belgian Congo lies in the center of Africa. It is separated from Kamerun, the German colony of western equatorial Africa, by the French Congo.

The colony possesses a force of native troops, amounting to 13,000 men. The officers, 132, and the 283 non-commissioned officers are Europeans, for the most part Belgians.

RUSSIANS CLAIM KOENIGSBERG IS NOW INVESTED

Troops of Czar Advance in Great Numbers on Prussians

ARMY OF SEVEN MILLION MEN IS MOBILIZED

Kaiser Directs Telegram to His Ministry Pleading for All Assistance for East Prussians in Path of Russians.

Washington—The French embassy here received Sunday the following cable from its foreign office in Paris: "The Russian army has taken Allenstein and invested Koenigsberg. A general battle is being waged in Galicia along an immense front between the Vistula river and Lemberg."

St. Petersburg—The general staff of the Czar's army continues to issue statements claiming successes in Austria and Prussia.

The occupation of Tilsit was confirmed in official announcement, which also stated that Russian forces had defeated the Austrians at Tomaszow, in Russian Poland.

The authorities announce the capture of an immense amount of the spoils of war from the Germans at Tilsit. The garrison and the inhabitants fled before the approach of the Russians. Regular postal communication has been established between towns in East Prussia occupied by the Russians, including Insterburg. Postal packets are reaching these cities bearing Russian stamps.

The Russian army which is moving southwest in Galicia, says the general staff, has beaten the Austrians at Monasterysko and crossed the Dniester without difficulty.

Lemberg is the most important military station of the Austrians in Galicia and controls the railroad lines in the eastern part of the province, five lines running in different directions from there. The surrounding district is rugged and will undoubtedly prove difficult, but the Russians will not suffer the trouble there that they have met in eastern Prussia, where they are advancing against the Germans along a line 150 miles long.

The war office states that it has no definite information as to the number of Germans opposing the Russian advance, but aeroplane scouts have learned that there are from five to seven corps, 280,000 to 290,000 men scattered through East Prussia. This indicates that Germany has massed almost its entire army against the allies in the western theatre of war.

7,000,000 Men Mobilized.

It is understood that 7,000,000 men have been mobilized by the general staff and that 5,000,000 of these are engaged in the campaign against Germany. They have driven a wedge between the German forces, forcing them in many instances to abandon strong positions without a conflict to escape being cut off.

So confident are the Russians that their troops will enter Berlin within a short time that a fund is already being raised to reward the first soldier that goes into the German capital. The contributions range from 500 rubles to two rubles, rich and poor doing their share. One hundred thousand dollars has already been raised. Scores of German prisoners who have been taken to Vilna are refusing to eat food that has been cooked because of stories circulated in their army that the Russians poisoned all prisoners.

Kaiser Pleads for Prussians.

London—A Berlin dispatch sent by the Wolff bureau, and reaching here by way of Rotterdam, says that Emperor William has directed the following telegram to his ministry:

"Main Headquarters, Aug. 27.—The trials to which my royal province of East Prussia is subjected by the invasion of Russians fills me with the greatest compassion, but I know the courage of my East Prussians too well not to know that they are ever ready to offer themselves on the altar of the fatherland and will readily give their blood and wealth for the sake of their country and manfully bear the hardships of war."

"Confidence in the irresistible might of our heroic army and unshakable belief in the help of a living God, together with the consciousness that we are fighting for a worthy cause, should give us faith in an early delivery of Germany from its enemies."

"I wish that everything possible shall be done by the German people for those East Prussians who are obliged to leave their homes. With this end in view, I charge my ministry and the various state authorities to assist in the work of relief. Take thorough measures for this purpose and report to me what has been done." (Signed) "WILLIAM REX."

Austria Wars on Belgium.

Vienna, via London—Austria Friday declared war on Belgium. The Belgian ambassador was handed his passports at the foreign office, all diplomatic relations were broken off and the way cleared for Austrian troops to join the Germans in the operations on Belgian soil, if necessary.

Until this action Belgium was the only one of the allied powers at war only with Germany. France, England and Russia had heretofore made declarations against both Austria and Germany.

The Austrian declaration of war was accompanied by the explanation that Austria was going to war because the Belgians were giving assistance to England and France.

The American minister in Belgium will look after the interests of Austria.

Italy Concentrating Forces.

Rome—Large forces of Italian troops are being concentrated along the Adige river, north of Verona, less than 100 miles from Trent, the Tyrolean town of Austria, where Austro-Hungarian forces are reported to be massing. Though government officials declare that nothing can alter Italy's determination to remain neutral, the situation is very grave.

It is admitted that Austria's action in massing troops at Trent is uncalculated in view of the fact that both Switzerland and Italy have declared their neutrality, but the Italians profess to believe that Austria will not bring another foe upon herself.

Picturesque Town is Destroyed.

Washington—A wireless dispatch from Berlin to the German embassy here says:

"Citizens of the Belgian town of Louvain made a perditional attack on German troops while fighting. Louvain was punished by the destruction of the city."

It is presumed the city was bombed and set afire.

The city of Louvain reported destroyed by the Germans was one of the most picturesque in all Belgium. It was a great city of 43,000 inhabitants and rich in famous buildings erected in the 15th and 16th centuries when Louvain was the capital of Brabant. It was 15 miles east by north of Brussels. Its old ramparts had been leveled and turned into a promenade several miles in length.

H. G. Wells on America.
I came to America balancing between hope and skepticism. The European world is full of the criticism of America; and, for the matter of that, America, too, is full of it; hostility and depreciation prevail—overmuch; for, in spite of rawness and vehemence and a scum of blatant, oh! quite asinine folly, the United States of America remains the greatest country in the world and the living hope of mankind. It is the supreme break with the old tradition; it is the freshest and most valiant beginning that has ever been made in human life.—From "The Passionate Friends."

ECZEMA SPREAD OVER HANDS

101 S. Boots St., Marion, Ind.—"First the eczema started on my fingers, then spread all over my hands. It broke out in tiny blisters, then would get dry and crack and swell so I could not have my hands in warm water they hurt me so badly. I could not do my work. The itching and burning were terrible. The more I scratched my hands the worse it made them. They were so bad I could not help scratching them and would walk the floor they annoyed me so. I could not sleep, lost many nights of rest on account of the eczema. My hands were not fit to be seen and I kept them wrapped up and wore mittens that I made out of old linen."

"I was about one year using remedies, then I saw an advertisement in the paper saying that Cuticura Soap and Ointment were good. I wrote at once for a sample. Then I bought one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment. Before the second box of Cuticura Ointment was gone my hands were well and have remained well ever since." (Signed) Mrs. G. W. Sharp, Mar. 21, 1914.

No Wonder.

"Ghosts? Why of course there are ghosts," said Simeon Ford at a hotel men's banquet in New York "Churchyards are full of ghosts."

"And no wonder churchyards are full of them. After he's been kicked and cuffed and abused all his life, where is the man whose ghost, especially on these balmy summer evenings, doesn't enjoy a quiet sit down in the moonlight in order to read his epitaph?"

Befitting Punishment.

Edith—The wretch! So he actually proposed to both of us! Oh, I wish we could think of some way to punish him!

Madge—We can; you marry him, dear.

OLD LADY NUMBER ONE LOUISE FORSLUND

AUTHOR OF "THE STORY OF SARAH," "THE SHIP OF DREAMS," ETC. SYNOPSIS.

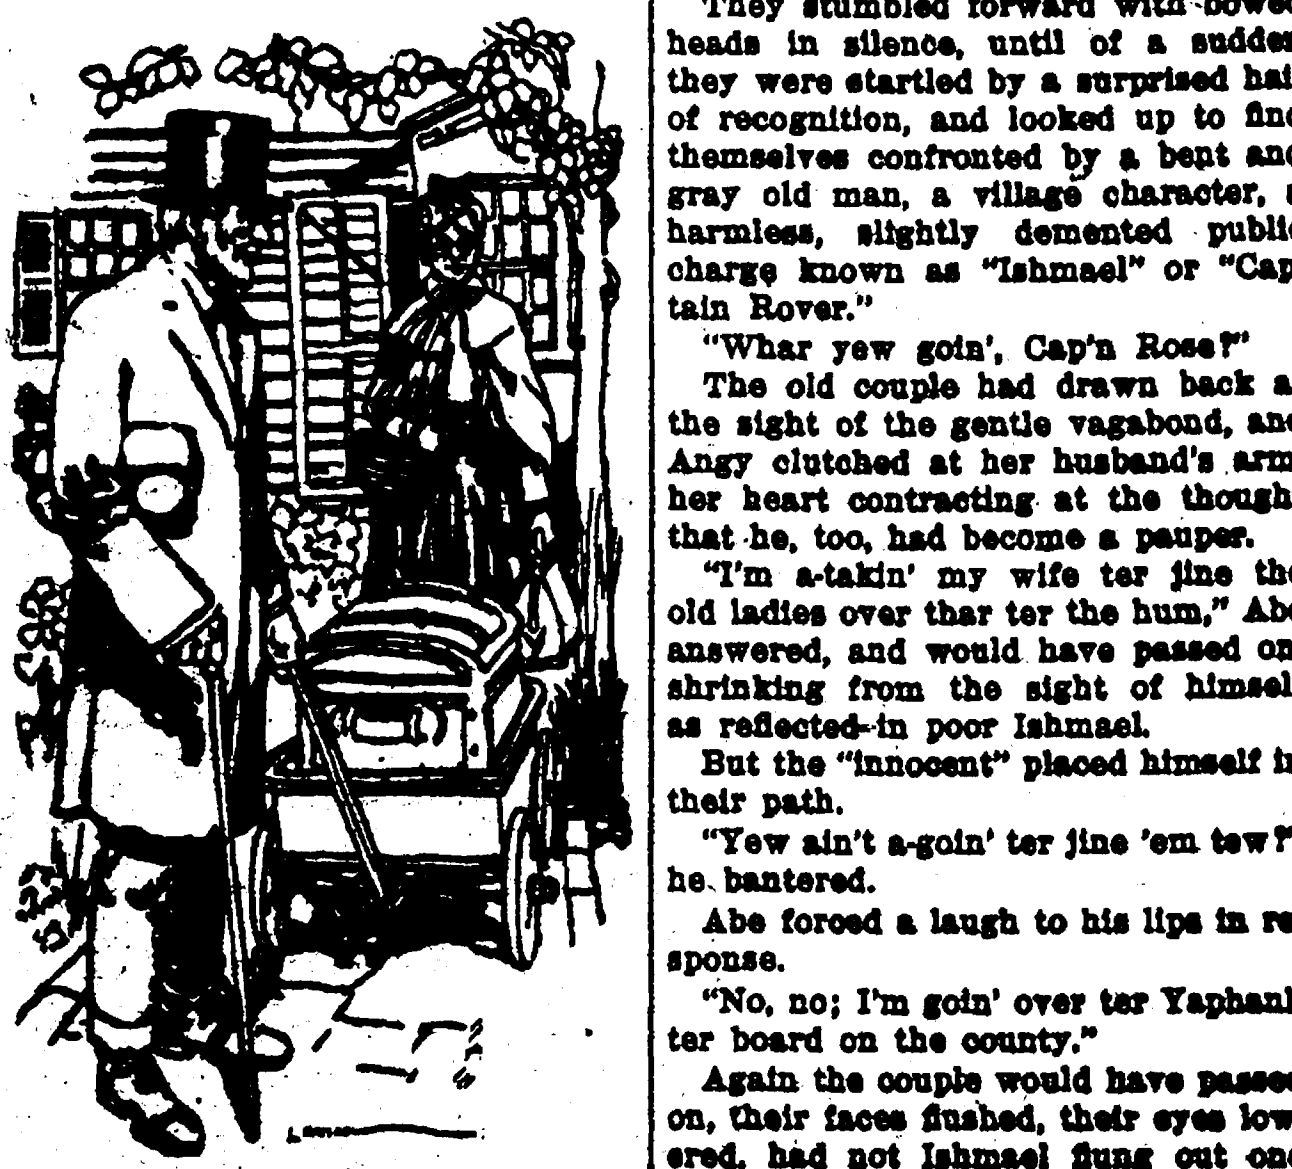

Captain Abraham Rose and Angelina, his wife, have lost their little home through Abe's unlucky purchase of "Yap-han" Gold mining stock.

Under the pink rose a soft pink flush bloomed on either of the old lady's cheeks. Her eyes flashed with unconquerable pride, and her square, firm chin she held very high; for now, indeed, she was filled with terror of what "folks would say" to this home leaving, and it was a bright June afternoon.

As the couple came to the edge of the woodland, they turned with one accord and looked back for the last glimpse of the home. Blazing gold-red against the kitchen window flamed the afternoon sunlight.

"Look a' that!" Angy cried eagerly, as one who beholds a promise in the skies. "Jest see, father, we couldn't 'a' made out that winder this fur at all of the sun hadn't struck it jest so. I declar' it seems almost as if we could see the rocker, tew. It's tew bad, Abe, that we had ter let yer old rocker go. D' yew remember—?"

"Yew're mine!" Angy's heart cried out to the shrub and to every growing thing in the garden. "Yew're mine. I planted you, tended you, loved you into growing. Yew're all the children I ever had, and I'm leaving you."

In Terror of What Folks Would Say to This Home-Leaving.

the old wife did not pluck a single flower, for she could never bear to see a blossom wither in her hand, while all she said aloud was: "I'm glad 'twas Mrs. Holmes that bought in the house. They say she's a great hand ter dig in 'the garden."

Angy's voice faltered. Abe did not answer. Something had caused a swimming before his eyes which he did not wish his wife to see; so he let fall the handle of the express wagon and, bending his slow back, pushed a sprig of "old-man." Though he could not have expressed his sentiments in words, the garden brought poignant recollections of the hopes and promises which had thrown their rose color about the young days of his marriage.

As they came to the gate of the Old Ladies' home Angy seized hold of her husband's arm, and looking up into his face pleaded earnestly: "Father, let's take the hundred dollars for a family tombston an' go ter the poorhouse together!"

husband's arm, and looking up into his face pleaded earnestly: "Father, let's take the hundred dollars for a family tombston an' go ter the poorhouse together!"

He shook her off almost roughly and lifted the latch of the gate. "Folks 'd say we was crazy, mother."

There was no one in sight as he dragged in the express cart and laid down the handle. Before him was a long, clean-swept path ending apparently in a mass of shrubbery; to the left was a field of sweet corn reaching to the hedge; to the right a strong and sturdy growth of pole lima beans; and just within the entrance, beneath the sweeping plumes of a weeping willow tree, was a shabby but inviting green bench.

He looked at the sun and thoughtfully made reckon of the time. There were still two hours before he could take the train which— "Let's go set down a spell afore—" he faltered—"afore we say good-by."

She made no answer. She told herself over and over that she must— simply must—stop that "all-ot-tremble" feeling which was going on inside of her. She stepped from the gate to the bench blindly, with Abe's hand on her arm, though, still blindly, with exaggerated care she placed her outstretched foot on the grass beside her.

He laid down his arms, took off his high hat and wiped his brow. He looked at her anxiously. Still she could not lift her blurred eyes, nor could she check her trembling. Seeing how she shook, he passed his arm around her shoulder. He murmured something—what, neither he nor she knew—but the love of his youth spoke in the murmur, and again fell the silence.

Angy's eyes cleared. She struggled to speak, aghast at the thought that life itself might be done before ever they could have one hour together again; but no words came. So much— so much to say! She reached out her hand to where his rested upon his knee. Their fingers gripped, and each felt a sense of dreary cheer to know that the touch was speaking what the tongue could not utter.

Time passed swiftly. The silent hour sped on. The young blades of corn gossiped gently along the field. Above, the branches of the willow swished and swayed to the rhythm of the soft south wind.

"How still, how still it is!" whispered the breeze. "Rest, rest, rest!" was the lullaby swish of the willow.

The old wife nestled closer to Abraham until her head touched his shoulder. He laid his cheek against her hair and the carefully preserved old bonnet. Involuntarily she raised her hand, trained by the years of pinching economy, to lift the fragile rose into a safer position. He smiled at her action; then his arm closed about her spasmodically and he swallowed a lump in his throat.

The afternoon was waning. Gradually over the turmoil of their hearts stole the garden's June-time spirit of drowsy repose.

They leaned even closer to each other. The gray of the old man's hair mingled with the gray beneath Angelina's little bonnet. Slowly his eyes closed. Then even as Angy wondered who would watch over the slumbers of his worn old age in the poorhouse, she, too, fell asleep.

CHAPTER III.

The Candidate. The butcher's boy brought the tidings of the auction sale in at the kitchen door of the Old Ladies' home even while Angy and Abe were lingering over their posies, and the inmates of the home were waiting to receive the old wife with the greater sympathy and the deeper spirit of welcome from the fact that two of the twenty-nine members had known her from girlhood, away back in the boarding-school days.

"Yop," said the boy, with one eye upon the stout matron, who was critically examining the meat that he had brought. "Yop, the auction's over, an' Cap'n Rose, he— Don't that cut suit you, Miss Abigail? You won't find a better, nicer, tenderer and more juicier piece of shoulder this side of New York. Take it back, did you say? All right, ma'am, all right!"

He used to tell the "fallers" that he spent one-half his time carrying oysters back and forth from the Old Ladies' home. But now, in spite of his meanness of manner, he did not intend to take this out back. So with Machiavellian skill he hastened on with his gossip.

"Yop, an' they only riz one hundred dollars an' two cents—one hundred dollars an' a postage-stamp. I guess it's all up with the cap'n an' the Old Ladies. I don't see 'em hangin' out no 'Welcome' sign on the strength of that."

"Yew're a horrid, heartless little boy!" burst forth Miss Abigail, and Legislator's Wife Evidently Familiar With Effect of Hubby's Interview With Lobbyist.

"The lobby—the lobby for this, and the lobby for that—has vanished from Washington," said Senator Smith at a picnic at cool Snow Hill, "and with the lobby has vanished the legislator of Blanc's type."

"Blanc—one of those frock-coat, sombrero and white lawn necktie legislators—came home on a June evening and said: "The lobbyist of that infamous P. D. Q. ring approached me at the luncheon hour today and—"

"Oh, good!" cried Mrs. Blanc, clapping her hands. "Then I can have that trip to Europe after all, can't I, dear?"

Woman at Law. A Brockton woman was arrested and thought she would save a legal fee by conducting her own case in court, but she was fined $75. Then, with a friend, she called on a regular lawyer.

"Ah," said the regular lawyer, giving a guess at what his visitors wanted. "She appealed and wants me to defend her in the superior court."

"But she didn't appeal. She paid the fine."

"Then where do I fit in the case?" asked the attorney. "We want you to bring suit against Judge Reed and make him give us back the $75," earnestly stated the visitor.

The lawyer did not take the case.—Boston Post.

Advance Notice. At the club the other night a member of the seventh regiment found himself the center of a group who were discussing the likelihood of an invasion of Mexico by the National Guard.

Cheerful remarks about the penetrative powers of Mauser bullets peppered about him. Everybody had kindly suggestions to make—such, for instance, as that a medal neatly adjusted over each bullet-hole would make him look as good as new. The victim took it very well.

"I'd like to contribute just one remark to this discussion," he said. "If I'm reported shot in the back, remember that I may have turned around to encourage my men."—New York Call.

From Far-Off Alaska. Mrs. Mary B. Hart of Alaska was the sole representative of women clubs in that territory at the recent convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs at Chicago. She wore a necklace of gold nuggets which she had dug out and washed herself. She represented the territory at the St. Louis world's fair.

Getting Informer in Wrong. Mother—Gerald, a little bird has jus told me that you have been a very naughty little boy this afternoon. Gerald—Don't you believe him, mummy. I'll bet he's the one that steals our raspberries.

The Kind They Have. "My dear, what sort of firing do they do in these war balloons?" "I guess they have parachutes."

SISTER'S TRICK But It All Came Out Right. How a sister played a trick that brought rosy health to a coffee fiend is an interesting tale: "I was a coffee fiend—a trembling, nervous, physical wreck, yet clinging to the poison that stole away my strength. I mocked at Postum and would have none of it."

"One day my sister substituted a cup of piping hot Postum for my morning cup of coffee but did not tell me what it was. I noticed the richness of it and remarked that the 'coffee' tasted fine but my sister did not tell me I was drinking Postum for fear I might not take any more."

"She kept the secret and kept giving me Postum instead of coffee until I grew stronger, more tireless, got a better color in my sallow cheeks and a clearness to my eyes, then she told me of the health-giving, nerve-strengthening life-saver she had given me in place of my morning coffee. "From that time I became a disciple of Postum and no words can do justice in telling the good this cereal drink did me. I will not try to tell it, for only after having used it can one be convinced of its merits."

"You're a Horrid, Heartless Little Boy!"

sleeve, sniffed and thumped her cane on the floor. "You young folks," she affirmed, herself having seen ninety-nine winters, while Abigail had known but a paltry sixty-five, "yew allers go an' cut yer pity on the skew-gee. I don't see nothin' to bawl an' beller about. I say that any man what can't take kere o' himself, not ter mention his wife, should orter go ter the poorhouse."

But the matriarch's voice quavered even more than usual, and as she finished she hastily bent down and felt in her deep skirt pocket for her snuff-box.

HAVE LIVED WITHOUT BRAINS

Cases on Record Seem to Sustain Contentment That They Are Not Indispensable.

French surgeons are striving to prove that the brain is not indispensable, and serves only to fill up the skull. Three recent cases tending to show this are reported by Dr. Etienne Destot, surgeon to the tribunal of the Seine, as having come under his personal observation.

A twelve-year-old boy in care of Dr. Daniel Mollere of Lyons was stated to have lost a bowl of brains from falling over a stair rail and fracturing his skull on a gas lamp, yet, after ten days of unconsciousness, he completely recovered his senses and all faculties.

Doctor Destot has himself dressed for several months the wound of a man who had the frontal bone and left frontal lobe of the brain torn away while mounting a large cornice stone. The patient was unconscious for 15 days, but regained his senses, and showed no impairment of faculties.

The third case is that of an Arab in care of Doctor Brush of Algiers. The patient had come to the hospital with a wound on the left eyelid and a depression of the skull due to a severe hammer blow, but for two months he showed no sign of brain trouble, when he became suddenly unconscious and died.

Post-mortem examination brought the astonishing discovery that he had been living with no brains left.

Bee's Favorite Color. The late Sir John Lubbock, one of the most noted authorities on bees, proved by long observation and repeated experiments that blue is the favorite color of the bee, and that next after blue come, in order of preference, white, yellow, red, green and orange. Sir John determined the fact that a bee visits about 35 flowers per minute, and that it always keeps to the same species of flower during each visit to the fields.

Fountain Pens Old

If fountain pens have not attained perfection in the present day it is not because their youth warrants their indiscretions, for, according to a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette (London), this form of combined ink reservoir and pen has been in use for over 300 years. E. S. Bates in his "Touring in 1600" shows, he says, that travelers wrote with them at that time. In the following century they appear to have been in common use, a dictionary published in 1754 defining "fountain pen" as "a pen made of silver, brass, etc., contrived to contain a considerable quantity of ink and let it flow out by degrees. To use the pen the cover must be taken off and the pen a little shaken to make the ink run more freely." British patents were obtained for fountain pens in 1809, one being granted to Joseph Eschsch of Bock fame and another to F. H. Foelsch for a stylographic as well as a fountain pen.

Building an Auto Every Ten Minutes at the State Fair

BUILDING one automobile is quite a task, and building one in ten minutes presents difficulties that would be insurmountable for every person except Henry Ford. Just to show the people that it can be done, he has contracted for one whole side of the Automobile building at the State Fair grounds. This he will transform into an assembling plant, and during the two weeks of the Fair, Sept. 7-18, he will put out a finished automobile every ten minutes during certain portions of the day. The State Fair factory will maintain a production of twenty-five cars daily during the exhibition. The illustration shows the traveling crane and the tracks on which these cars run which make possible the remarkable production.

Water Is Good Medicine

Many people who have weak kidneys fail to appreciate how much water can do for them—but while it is good to drink water freely, it must be pure water. In many sections, the lime or alkaline water starts kidney trouble of itself.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a most reliable remedy for weak kidneys. When backache or urinary disorders distress you, take Doan's and be sure to assist the kidneys by drinking plenty of pure water. Prompt treatment will lessen the danger of gravel, gout, rheumatism.

Doan's Kidney Pills are successfully used all over the civilized world and publicly recommended by thousands.

A Michigan Case.

James Greenman, mail-carrier, 142 E. Adams St., Ionia, Mich., says: "For three months I was laid up with kidney trouble and terrible pains in my back. The kidney secretions were highly colored and I lost twenty pounds in weight. A specialist said my only hope was an operation. Finally I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and after I had used one box, I passed a large gravel stone. The pains and aches then left me and I was soon well. Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life."

VARIOUS FINE JELLIES

SOME OLD FAVORITES AND SOME THAT ARE NEW.

Several Combinations Possible That Make a Delicious Addition to the Winter Menu—Red Pepper Jelly That Will Keep Long.

Cherry juice mixed with an equal proportion of gooseberry or currant juice makes a delicious jelly, using cupful for cupful of sugar and the mixed juice. For currant and strawberry jelly allow one pint of currants to two of strawberries. Heat both fruits together and proceed as directed. Currants and raspberries combined in equal proportions make a fine flavored jelly. An excellent peach jelly may be made by using equal quantities of peaches and apples. When making plum jelly cut the plums in halves, cook until tender, then strain. The fruit must not be over-ripe.

Crab Apple Jelly.—Wash the apples, cut out the blossom ends and stems only, cover in the kettle with water, just cover well, boil until all in pieces, strain over night, measure the juice and sugar evenly, boil the juice 20 minutes, put the sugar in the oven to heat, then add the heated sugar and boil not more than eight minutes. Fine and never fails. Wash a rose geranium leaf, place it in the bottom of the glass, pour in the jelly and seal. It will impart a delicious and unusual flavor.

Take equal parts of apples, cranberries and evaporated apricots. Soak the apricots overnight, then cook all together slowly with just enough water to cover. Strain and make jelly as usual, one pound of sugar for every pint of juice. This makes a beautiful jelly, which cannot be distinguished from crab apple.

Sour Apple Jelly.—Do not peel, but wash thoroughly and cut into quarters or halves with the seeds and cores left in. Cover with water and let come to a boil. Strain the best part of the juice for jelly. Add a little lemon juice and peeling, or a rose-geranium leaf. Excellent jelly is made of equal parts of plums and apples.

Rhubarb Jelly.—Cut one large bunch of rhubarb into fine pieces without peeling, add a large chopped apple with peel and seeds included. Cover with hot water and cook until done. Mash fine and strain through a jelly bag. To every cupful of juice add one cupful of hot granulated sugar. Boil the juice until it begins to jell, or about twenty-five minutes.

Quince Jelly.—Boil the parings in water to cover them until soft, then drain, but don't squeeze. Add equal parts of sugar, and boil until ready to put into glasses, which will be in about half an hour.

Red Pepper Jelly.—Remove the seeds. Cook the peppers until tender. Drain, and to each pint of liquid add a pint of sugar. Cook like other jelly. Will keep splendidly.

Mint Jelly.—To make mint jelly, add a handful of fresh mint leaves and eight cupfuls of granulated sugar to eight cupfuls of apple juice, and boil until the juice jellies, which will be in about fifteen minutes. Remove the mint stalks before sealing.

Chocolate Rings.

One-half cupful of butter, one cupful of sugar, one egg, two squares of Baker's chocolate melted and mixed with the above after creaming the butter and sugar together and adding the egg; one and three-fourth cupfuls of flour mixed and sifted with baking powder, two teaspoonfuls; chill, toss one-half mixture on a floured board, roll one-eighth inch thick. Shape with a doughnut cutter, brush over with the white of an egg and sprinkle with sugar. Place on buttered sheet, bake eight minutes in a slow oven.

Watermelon Cocktail.

Serve in glasses as a first course at luncheon or dinner. Cut cubes of watermelons from the center of a ripe melon, well chilled. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and ground ginger root. Cinnamon may be used in place of ginger if desired. At a card party we served the following luncheon, only ladies were present: Creamed oysters in patty cases and potato croquettes, Waldorf salad, Parker House rolls. Maple mousse, gold and angel cake. Coffee. Almonds, olives, bonbons.

Mayonnaise of Lobster.

Place a bed of lettuce in an entree dish and on it the meat of the lobster. Cover with mayonnaise sauce. Then arrange a border of sliced tomato, hard boiled egg and shred lettuce round, and decorate the center of the mayonnaise with sieved yolk of egg.

Scallops Broth.

Wash and cut in small pieces one half pint scallops, add one-half pint each of milk and water, a dot of butter and salt to taste. Simmer 20 minutes, strain and serve.

Fame, Not Money.
"I want to use a man for $20,000 for breach of promise," said the chorus girl.
"All right," said the lawyer.
"I want to assure you that it is not the money I'm after."
"I understand. Mainly the notoriety."
Perhaps Too Realistic.
A well-known theatrical manager was watching his stage manager drill some "supers" who were to represent an army.
"Not a bit like it!" he exclaimed.
"Why don't you try to look like real soldiers?"
The stage manager approached him.
"They are real soldiers!" he whispered.

Snakes Take to War, Too.
Hearing a crashing in the bush near his camp at Collegeville, Pa., Richard A. Smith saw a monster blacksnake and a rattler in each other's death coils. As the rattler began to weaken in the tussle, its mate, equally large, went to the rescue. Smith cudgeled the warring serpents whereat they transformed themselves into a "triple entente" and went at him. A farmer's timely assistance saved Smith from ignoble flight. The blacksnake was six feet long and the rattlers average four feet.

The following marriage license copied from the Detroit Free Press of August 27, 1914, will be of interest to our many readers in this vicinity, as Mrs. Crane was at one time a resident of this village: "Robert Lemen, 64, Detroit; Emma Crane, 63, Hartland."

Jas. Smith, highway commissioner of Putnam township requests us to call the attention of persons using the highways as a dumping ground for rubbish. He informs us that culverts have been filled with tin cans, etc., which soon fill up the tile and otherwise cause serious damages. Rubbish certainly does not add to the looks of the highway and those who have rubbish are respectfully asked not to dump the same by the roadside.

A Necktie For Fish Bait.
Cigarette papers trailed in the manner of a "spinner" seen a queer bait for mackerel, but ~~was~~ used cigarette papers with ~~some~~ in Dover Bay. You can, in fact, catch mackerel with anything bright when they are on the sea. Perhaps the best bait for them is a strip of skin cut from one of their captured brethren.

A piece of tin or lead foil is effective, and I once knew a man who came back from mackerel fishing without a vividly colored necktie that he rather fancied. It had made an excellent lure for the fish. Is it that the mackerel is conscious of his own brilliant coloring and therefore will take any bait with a gleam about it?—London Standard.

Simplicity in Higher Life.
The higher we rise the simpler we become. There is a childhood into which we have to grow, just as there is a childhood which we must leave behind; a childlikeness which is the highest gain of humanity and a childlikeness from which but few of those who are counted the wisest among men have freed themselves in their imagined progress toward the reality of things.—George MacDonald.
