Dispatch Contest Closes Friday, October 23

Only a Few Days in Which to Work for the beautiful piano
—Last Struggle for Capital
Prize Now at Its Height.—
Many other valuable prizes

There is now but a few more days in which the candidates engaged in the popular voting contest have to work for the several prizes offered. The voting comes to an end Friday, October 23 at three o'clock, and immediately thereafter the count will be commenced to see who shall be declared the winner of the splendid Obermeyer piano and the other beautiful and useful articles offered to those who are making an effort to land the premiums. It is not believed by those who have given the matter careful thought that any particular person has the grand prize cinched at the present time, but there are several in the race who have a good chance to land it if they will only hustle.

If you have not yet seen the fine piano offered in this contest go to Nellie Gardner's Millinery store and take a look. Many of our citizens have examined the instrument as to its quality and appearance and there is yet the first one to say that it is not a fine one. It is of a plain rich mahogany, and a prettier piano was never unloaded at Pinckney. Musicians of this section have tested it as to its quality of tone and volume and every one of them says it is fine as silk.

There are several young ladies who appear to have the best of the contest but none of them has a sure cinch on being the ultimate owner of the first prize. If one of these contestants who is way down the list should take it in to her head that she was going to win the big premium, she could do so. She would have to do some work to make it, but that was what was expected when the contest opened. Several bunches of seven new subscribers or renewals in groups of seven would put the lowest candidate in the race up among the leaders.

For those who wish to vote without any competitor seeing them, we desire to state that cash with your subscription, telling where the paper is to be sent and to whom the votes shall be given, can be placed in an envelope and deposited in the bank. The judges will open these envelopes at the Dispatch office and count the votes.

Miss Madeline Bowman was in the lead at the last count. Several others are well to the front and are putting forth every effort on the home stretch to win the coveted prize. Either of these ladies can land the prize if they will take the time to get out and solicit new subscriptions and renewals.

Be sure and have your friends trade with the following merchants who give a 25 vote coupon with each dollar cash purchase. Have them ask for these coupons and save them for you.

What Editors Know

Many people think editors don't know much. The trouble is, they know a lot of stuff that they dare not tell. They know who drinks and they know the ladies who deviate from the straight and narrow path of rectitude and the boys who smoke in alleys and dark places and the girls who are out auto riding till the roosters crow for daylight. They know the fellow who can't get trusted for a tobacco sack full of salt. They could guess why some fellows are as they are and they can closely guess what they do to make themselves so. They know enough to make one of the red-hottest, rip snorting, high geared, tripleaction chainlighting editions you ever read but they also know it is best for the community and themselves to let the law take care of humanity's development and publish only such news as will do to read in the house. Editors generally pursue this policy and thereby live longer and get more enjoyment out of life.

A gentleman is a man, a man who is clean inside and out side who neither looks up to the rich nor down to the poor; who can win without bragging; who is considerate to women, and children and old people; who is too brave to lie, too generous to cheat, and too sensible to loaf who takes his share of the world's good and lets other people have theirs.—Ex.

Pinckney people are finding it very satisfactory to do their garment trading at Dancer's in Stockbridge. Large assortments are offered and at prices that are noticeably less than those of cities. Train connections are also the very best.

Our fellow townsman and erstwhile barber, Roger Carr, is the proud possessor and sole owner of a Ford touring car recently purchased of Dr. H. F. Sigler. Patrons of the barber shop will now receive shaves at the rate of 10 miles per. Unsuspecting customers of the Carr tonsorial parlors will be forced to swallow large quantities of toilet water while our barber dreams he is feeding cylinder oil. We can stand all sorts of such abuse however, if the price of a shave and a haircut remains as of old and we are not war taxed to help buy gasoline.

OLD LADY NUMBER 31

By LOUISE FORSSLUND
 AUTHOR OF "THE STORY OF SARAH," "THE SHIP OF DREAMS," ETC. COPYRIGHT BY THE CENTURY CO.

SYNOPSIS.

Captain Abraham Rose and Angelina, his wife, have lost their little home through Abe's untimely purchase of Tenny Gold mining stock. Their household goods sold, the $100 auction money, all they have left, will place Abe in the Old Man's home, or Any in the Old Lady's home. Both are self-sacrificing but Abe decides: "My dear, this is the first time I've had a chance to take the dust of it." The old couple bid good-by to the little house. Terror of what folks will say sends them along by paths to the gate of the Old Ladies' home. Miss Abigail, matron of the Old Ladies' home, hears of the ill fortune of the old couple. She tells the other old ladies, and Blossy, who has paid a double fee for the only double bed-chamber, voices the unanimous verdict that Abe must be taken in with his wife. Abe awakens next morning to find that he is "Old Lady No. 31." The old ladies give him such a warm welcome that he is made to feel at home at once. "Brother Abe" expands under the warm reception of the sisters, and a reign of peace begins in the Old Ladies' home. Abe is the center of the community. The semi-annual visit of Blossy's aged lover, Capt. Samuel Darby, is due. Abe advises her to marry him. For the first time the captain fails to appear. Blossy consults Abe so often regarding Darby, his old captain in the life-saving service, that gossip begins to buzz. At the feast in celebration of the anniversary of the Roses' arrival at the home, Abe lauds Blossy in his speech, and Angie is sent from the room.

CHAPTER IX.

A Winter Butterfly.

"Cap'n Rose," began Aunt Nancy. Brother Abe pricked up his ears at the formal address. "Cap'n Rose," she repeated, deliberately dwelling on the title. "I never believe in callin' a man tew account in front of his wife. It gives him somebody handy ter blame things on tew jest like ole Adam. Naow, look a-here! What I want is ter ask yew jest one question: Whar, whar on 'arth kin we look fer a decent behavin' ole man ef not in a Old Ladies' hum? Would yew—" she exhorted earnestly, pointing her crooked forefinger at him. "Would yew—"

Abraham caught his breath. Beads of sweat had appeared on his brow. He broke in huskily:

"Wait a minute, Aunt Nancy. Jest tell me what I've been an' done."

The ladies glanced at one another, contemptuous, incredulous smiles on their faces, while Aunt Nancy almost wept at his deceitfulness.

"Cap'n Rose," she vowed mournfully, "I've lived in this house fer many, many years, an' all the while I been here I never heard tell o' a breath o' scandal ag'in' the place until yew come an' commenced ter kick up yer heels."

Lazy Daisy, who had long been an inmate, also nodded her unwieldy head in confirmation, while a low murmur of assent arose from the others. Abraham could only pass his hand over his brow, uneasily shuffle his maligned heels over the floor and await further developments; for he did not have the slightest conception as to "what they were driving at."

"Cap'n Rose," the matriarch proceeded, as in the earnestness of her indignation she arose, trembling, in her seat and stood with her palsied and shaking hands on the board, "Cap'n Rose, yer conduct with this here Miss Betsey Ann Blossom has been something reedulous! It's been disgraceful!"

Aunt Nancy sat down, inconspicuously disreputable in appearance, her pink bow having slipped down over her right ear during the harangue. Over the culprit's countenance light had dawned, but, shame to tell! it was a light not wholly remorseful. Then silent laughter shook the old man's shoulders, and then—could it be?—there crept about his lips and eyes a smile of superbly masculine conceit. The sisters were fighting over him. Wouldn't mother be amused when he should tell her what all this fuss was about.

"Now, kindly, short-sighted Miss Abigail determined that it was time for the matron's voice to be heard.

"Of course, Brother Abe, we understand perfectly that yew never stopped ter take inter consideration how susceptible some folks is made."

There being plain evidence from Abe's blank expression that he did not understand the meaning of the word, Baby Lee hastened to explain.

"Susceptible is the same as flighty-headed. Blossy allers was a fool over anything that wore breeches."

Abe pushed his chair back from the table and crossed his legs comfortably. For him all the chill had gone out of the air. Suppose that there was something in this? An old, old devil of vanity came back to the aged husband's heart. He recalled that he had been somewhat of a beau before he learned the joy of loving Angie. More than one Long Island lassie had thrown herself at his head. Of course Blossy would "get over" this; and Angie knew that his heart was hers as much as it had been the day he par-chased his wedding-beaver; but Abe could not refrain from a chuckle of complacent amusement as he stroked his beard.

His very evident hardness of heart so horrified the old ladies that they all began to attack him at once.

"Seems ter me I'd have the decency ter show some shame!" grimly avowed Sarah Jane.

Abe could not help it. He sputtered. Even Miss Abigail's, "Yew were a stranger an' we took yew in" did not sober him.

"Ef any one o' my husbands had acted the way you've acted, Abe Rose," began Mrs. Homan.

"Poor leetle Angy," broke in the gentle Miss Ellie pityingly. "She must 'a' lost six pounds."

Abraham's mobile face clouded over. "Angy?" he faltered. "Yew don't mean that Angy—" Silence again fell on the group, while every glance was fastened on Abraham. "See here," he flashed his faded blue eye, "Angy's got more sense than that!"

No one answered, but there was a significant shrugging of shoulders and lifting of eyebrows. Abraham was dressed and concerned enough now. Rising from his place he besought the sisters:

"Yew don't think Angy's feelin's have been hurt—dew yew, gals?"

Their faces softened, their figures relaxed, the tide of feeling changed in Abraham's favor. Miss Ellie spoke very softly:

"Yew know that even 'the Lord thy God is a jealous God.'"

Abraham grasped the back of his chair for support, his figure growing limp with astonishment. "Mother, jealous of me?" he whispered to himself, the memory of all the years and all the great happenings of all the years coming back to him. "Mother jealous of me?" He remembered how he had once been tormented by jealousy in the long, the ever-so-long ago, and of a sudden he hastened into the hall and went half-running up the stairs. He took hold of the latch of his bedroom door. It did not open. The door was locked.

"Angy!" he called, a fear of he knew not what gripping at his heart. "Angy!" he repeated as she did not answer.

The little old wife had locked herself in out of very shame of the rare tears which had been brought to the surface by the sisters' cruel treatment of Abraham. When she heard his call she hastened to the blue wash-basin and began hurriedly to dab her eyes. He would be alarmed if he saw the traces of her weeping. Whatever had happened to him, for his sake she must face it valiantly. He called again. Again she did not answer, knowing that her voice would be full of the tell-tale tears. Abe waited. He heard the tramp of feet passing out of the dining room into the hall. He heard Blossy emerge from her room at the end of the passage and go tripping down the stairs. The time to Angy, guiltily bathing her face, was short; the time to her anxious husband unaccountably long. The sound of wheels driving up to the front door came to Abe's ears. Still Angy made him no response.

"Angy!" he raised his voice in piteous pleading. What mattered if the sisters gathered in the lower hall heard him? What mattered if the chance guest who had just arrived heard him also? He had his peace to make with his wife and he would make it. "Angy!"

She flung the door open hastily. The signs of the tears had not been obliterated, and her face was drawn and old. Straightway she put her hand on his arm and searched his face inquiringly.

"What did the gals say ter yew?" she whispered. "Abe, yew made a mistake when yew picked out Bl—"

"Poor leetle mother!" he interrupted. "Poor leetle mother!" a world of remorseful pity in his tone. "So yew been jealous of yer ole man?"

Angelina, astonished and indignant, withdrew her hand sharply, demanding to know if he had lost his senses; but the blinded old gentleman slipped his arm around her and, bending, brushed his lips against her cheek. "Thar, thar," he murmured soothingly, "I didn't mean no harm. I can't help it ef all the gals git stuck on me!"

Before Angy could make any reply, Blossy called to the couple softly but insistently from the foot of the stairs; and Angy, wrenching herself free, hastened down the steps, for once in her life glad to get away from Abe. He lost no time in following. No matter where Angy went, he would follow until all was well between her and him again.

But what was this? At the landing, Angy halted and so did Abe, for in the center of the sisters stood Blossy with her Sunday bonnet perched on her silver-gold hair and her white India shawl over her shoulders, and beside Blossy stood Capt. Samuel Darby with a countenance exceedingly radiant, his hand clasped fast in that of the aged beauty.

"Oh, hurry, Sister Angy and Brother Abe!" called Blossy. "We were waiting for you, and I've got some news for all my friends." She waited smilingly for them to join the others; then with a gesture which included every member of the household, she proceeded: "The pink tea, I want you all to know, had a double significance, and first, of course, it was to celebrate the anniversary of Brother Abe's sojourn with us; but next it was my farewell to the Home." Here Blossy gurgled and gave the man at her right so coy a glance that Samuel's face flamed red and he hung his head lower to one side than usual, like a little boy that had been caught stealing apples. "I left the tea a trifle early—you must forgive me, Brother Abe, but I heard the train-whistle." Abe stood beside Angelina, rooted in astonishment, while Blossy continued to address him directly. "You gave Samuel so many good recommendations, dear brother, that when the time approached for his June visit, I felt that I simply could not let him miss it as he did in December. Last year, on the day you entered, he was here through no desire of mine. Today he is here at my request. My friends," again she included the entire home in her glance, "we'll come back a little later to say good-by. Now, we're on the way to the minister's."

The pair, Samuel tongue-tied and bewildered by the joy of his finally won success, moved toward the door. On the threshold of the home Blossy turned and waved farewell to the companions of her widowhood, while Samuel bowed in a dazed fashion, his face still red as it was blissful. Then quickly the two passed out upon the porch. No one moved to see them off. Abe looked everywhere yet nowhere at all. Not a word was spoken even when the carriage was heard rolling down the drive; but the sound of the wheels seemed to arouse Angy from her stupor of amazement; and presently Abraham became conscious of a touch—a touch sympathetic, tender and true—a touch all-understanding—the touch of Angy's hand within his own.

CHAPTER X.

The Turn of the Tide.

From time immemorial the history of the popular hero has ever been the same. To king and patriot, to the favorite girl at school and the small boy who is leader of the "gang," to politician, to preacher, to actor and author, comes first worship then eclipse. The great Napoleon did not escape this common fate; and the public idol who was kissed only yesterday for his gallant deeds is scorned today for having permitted the kissing. Oh, caprice of the human heart! Oh, cry of the race for the unaccustomed!

From that first anniversary of his entrance into the home, Abraham felt his popularity decrease—in fact more than decrease. He saw the weather-vane go square about, and where he had known for three hundred and sixty-five days the gentle, balmy feel of the southwest zephyr, he found himself standing of a sudden in a cold, bleak northeast wind. The change bewildered the old man, and reacted on his disposition. As he had blossomed in the sunshine, so now he began to droop in the shade. Feeling that he was suspected and criticized, he began to grow suspicious and fault-finding himself. His old notion that he had no right to take a woman's place in the institution came back to his brain, and he would brood over it for hours at a time, sitting out on the porch with his pipe and Angy.

The old wife grieved to think that father was growing old and beginning to show his years. She made him some tansy tea, but neither her persuasions nor those of the whole household could induce him to take it. He had never liked "doctoring" anyway, although he had submitted to it more or less during the past year in unconscious subservience to his desire to increase his popularity; but now he fancied that where once he had been served as a king by all these female attendants, he was simply being "pestered" as a punishment for his past behavior with Blossy. Ah, with its surprising ending that had been a humiliating affair; and he felt too that he would be long in forgiving Mrs. Darby for not having confided to him her actual intentions. Now he was afraid to be decently courteous to one of the sisters for fear that they might accuse him of light dalliance again; and he scarcely ever addressed the new member who came to take Blossy's little room, for he had been out to the quick by her look of astonishment when she was told that he belonged there.

In his mental ferment the old man began to nag at Angy. Sad though it is to confess of a hero honestly loved, Abraham had nagged a little all his married life when things went wrong. And Angelina, fretted and nervous, herself worried almost sick over father's condition, was guilty once in a while out of the depths of her anxiety of nagging back again. So do we hurt those whom we love best as we would and could hurt no other.

Disaster of a Century Ago.

Several lives were lost and much property destroyed by an explosion of gunpowder which occurred at Woolwich 100 years ago. Woolwich is the most ancient military and naval arsenal in England. In its dockyard men-of-war were built as long ago as the beginning of the sixteenth century. The royal arsenal contains a factory for the making of shells and cartridges and a mammoth foundry for casting armor and ordnance, in addition to vast magazines of great guns, powder and other warlike stores. The Royal Military academy, where officers are trained for the British army, also is a part of the institution. During the centuries of its existence the arsenal has been the scene of many disastrous fires and fatal explosions. One of the most recent of the explosions occurred in 1908 and resulted in the death or serious injury of more than thirty persons.

Wild Cat in Scotland.

A wild cat has been caught in Ardnamurchan Deer forest, Argyllshire, Scotland, by a gamekeeper. The animal is very large, measuring 45 inches in length. It has a short, bushy tail, and is dark in color with brown stripes. It stands high on its legs and has a very tigerish appearance.

Not the Same.

"The late Cy Warman, novelist and author of the immortal 'Sweet Marie,'" said a Chicago editor, "always insisted that poetry ought to follow the same rules as prose. He wouldn't stand for poetical inversions—the adjective after the noun, the object before the verb, and so forth. 'But what difference do these inversions make, Cy?' asked a reporter once. 'All the difference in the world,' Cy Warner answered. 'Did you never hear of the minister's wife whose son eloped from college? The old lady wasn't much displeased, though—after all, she said, her new daughter-in-law was, she understood, a model young girl. 'A model young girl' thundered the old minister. 'Non-sense, wife! She's a young girl model!'"

Voices in the Air.

Passengers on a steamer to Portland were surprised when about fifty miles from the Maine port to hear voices and music coming apparently from the air. When they got into the harbor they found that on a boat tied up at the wharf there was a wireless apparatus, to which was attached a wireless telephone attachment on which the operator had been experimenting.

LEMBERG BEDECKED WITH RUSSIAN FLAGS AS COSSACKS ENTER CITY

By FRANCIS McCULLAGH, International News Service. Petrograd.—I had the good fortune to ride with a Cossack detachment throughout the Manchurian war and one of my old Cossack friends who was brought back to Petrograd, wounded, from Lemberg, has given me some account of the engagements which took place near the Galician capital. The Cossacks were often three days in the saddle and were the first Russians to enter Lemberg.

"Our turn came," said my Cossack friend, "when the Austrians began to give way to our infantry. Then we were let loose on the enemy's broken rear and soon converted the retreat into a rout. We heard them cry out in terror, 'Die Kozaken! Die Kozaken!'"

Swept Like Straw.
"The Hungarian cavalry tried to stop us, but we swept them aside like straw. They had red breeches and beautiful jackets, like those worn by our Cossack women. They also had fine horses and were good riders, but did not know in the least how to use their spears. When we, the Don Cossacks, stuck men with our spears we throw into the blow not only our own weight, but the whole weight of our horses.

"The Austrians fled in panic, throwing away their rifles, abandoning their cannons and machine guns and transport wagons full of hay and provisions. The same morning the Cossacks rode into the conquered town. All the shops were closed and more than half the inhabitants had fled. Those who remained cheered the Russian vanguard.

Welcomed by People.
"Triumphal arches made from the boughs of trees were erected across the streets. Russian flags floated from the windows and many of the townspeople greeted us in good Russian. Nobody fired on us. We were received as friends and brothers and everybody was very kind.

"Before noon General Ruzsky rode down the principal street, preceded by a military band and a standard bearer carrying the Russian flag. We, Don Cossacks, had our trumpeters with us when we entered, and it was as if we entered Kiev or Holy Moscow itself. The church bells rang and the Pravostavny popes came out of their churches in vestments and blessed us as we passed. Little girls dressed in white strewed flowers in the path of General Ruzsky, who rode, surrounded by his officers, and the wise men of the town met him in their robes of office and made him an address of welcome."

Campaign Is Bloody.
We have heard little of the prolonged and terrible struggle in Poland and Galicia. Nevertheless that campaign has been as bloody as that on the Meuse, and the Austrian, though beaten, has struggled gallantly.

The Russians greet the Austrians in a friendly way when prisoners arrive. It is not easy to arrive at a correct estimate of the number of Austrian prisoners now interned in various parts of Russia. The Bourse Gazette, one of the leading evening newspapers of Petrograd, sets the figure at 300,000. Among them is the former Austrian commandant of Lemberg. The prisoners include an extraordinary number of Slavs.

Prisoners a Puzzle.
"What shall we do with our Austrian prisoners?" is the cry of the moment. The best Austrian troops, those from the Tyrol, have no quarrel with the Slavs and know nothing about them, while the troops from eastern Austria are half Slav themselves, or else are easy-going and not serious. This want of seriousness constitutes a great moral defect in the Austro-Hungarian army. It explains the readiness of the Austrians to retreat or surrender.

The following communication has been received from the staff of Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian forces in the field:
Fortress Is Bombarded.
"The enemy has approached Ossowetz from the north and has begun the bombardment of the fortress.

"In Galicia we have occupied Debica, on the railway 65 miles east of Cracow, and between Bressow and Tarnow.

"At Coloufok we defeated a detachment of the enemy and captured his artillery and many prisoners. Continuing the pursuit, we entered Hungary."

Meets Big Obstacles.
The Russian army in East Prussia under General Rennenkampf has been meeting terrible obstacles for the last three weeks. One of the greatest of these is the fortified camp in the so-called Mazurian lake district of German Poland. There are innumerable small lakes and the marshy ground between them is covered with forests. Checked by Big German Force.
The area is occupied by a German army of from 200,000 to 300,000 men, which menaces toward the north any movement in the direction of Koenigsberg and toward the south all Russian attempts to reach Thorn and Graudenz.

For this reason General Rennenkampf's army, after its first unchecked advance, could not proceed and it even had to retire for safety until a large force could be brought up to stop the activities from the Mazurian lake camp, by which the progress of the Russians in East Prussia was checked.

Changed Times in Russia.
The case of Bourteseff, the Russian revolutionist, is a sign of the changed times in Russia and his return indicates the state of mind of many men like him. He told me that he had returned not to make peace with the internal reactionary opposition, because he could not forget the hundreds of thousands of people who are imprisoned or exiled, but to give an impulse to the national effort in the direction of a new era in the country's foreign policy.

Until now the Russian government had supported Prussian militarism and had especially oppressed Russia Poland. Instead of protecting the Poles, who are the most civilized of the Slavs, it had persecuted them.

Bourteseff and others hope to arouse such support and enthusiasm among the Poles that the government cannot withdraw later in its promise to form a united, self-governing Poland.

AUSTRIANS IN PANIC AT FALL OF LEMBERG

By CAMILLO CIANFARRA. Rome.—Returning after a two months' stop with the Austrian general staff, Arnaldo Fraccaroli, the Corrier de la Sera's correspondent, thus described Lemberg's fall:

"Up to August 16 Lemberg lived in happy ignorance of the events on the Galician frontier. The Austrians still believed the Russian army sadly disorganized and led by drunken, epileptic generals.

"The censor had taken all precaution against the truth leaking out. One thing only was overlooked, and that is what happened one afternoon while the population promenaded in the parks and thoroughfares. Lemberg was suddenly invaded by thousands of refugees arriving from every direction by foot, rail and on horseback. They related the wildest stories of the Cossacks' doings.

"The flood of refugees continued eight days, bringing along waves of despair, fear and misery until the population had swelled from 240,000 to 350,000.

First Great Panic.
"Simultaneously the wounded began arriving. Schools, churches, offices and theaters were transformed into hospitals. On August 26 the city was housing 40,000 wounded.

"On the same day the Cossacks appeared three miles from the city, causing the first great panic. The railroad depots were besieged and a general exodus began. Now the truth was fully known, and news from the front increased the panic.

"Simultaneously the city was being treated to the weirdest spectacles. Pickets passed hourly, escorting to be hanged or shot groups of men, women, children and priests whom the Austrians considered friendly to the Russians.

"Between the 26th and 28th of August the Russian artillery succeeded in taking a position without being detected. Suddenly the Russian guns opened a tempest of fire on the Eleventh army corps, which had come within range, and with the help of the Russian infantry and machine guns was annihilated.

"The Third corps, dispatched to replace them, met with the same fate. Then the Twelfth was rushed out to be shot, sustaining enormous losses. "Of 4,000 men forming the Twenty-seventh Trieste regiment only 500 survived. Of the Seventeenth Lubian regiment only 300 survived; not an officer was left.

Many Die in Panic.
"On the morning of August 31 a train of one hundred cars was made ready by the authorities to send out the first refugees, but as soon as the depot gates were opened the panic-stricken crowd rushed to the train. Wild scenes followed. Children were crushed, women were trodden down. The train left with people strapped to every support.

"On the afternoon of August 31 a 25-hour armistice was arranged, and 60,000 Austrian and Russian dead were buried. Nearly double that number of wounded were removed.

"On the morning of September 3 a general alarm was sounded. It was the end. Every Austrian soldier fled without taking his arms or ammunition."

Annual Crop of Oats.
The world's annual crop of oats, including the total of the 17 countries which are the chief producers, is 3,426,000,000 bushels a year. The United States raised 1,223,000,000 bushels, which places her in a position to export large quantities without feeling the loss. A very large part of the corn crop is raised in the United States. Of the total annual crop of 2,776,000,000 bushels raised by nine countries the United States raises 2,373,000,000 bushels. It is surprising to find that Hungary produced upward of 200,000,000 bushels and Italy 100,000,000 bushels. The world's crop of barley grown in 17 countries was last year 1,225,000,000 bushels, of which only 173,000,000 was raised in America.

Postcard Hint.
Save your picture postcards and when preparing them to send to hospitals and orphan asylums paste two together, back to back, thus concealing the address and message, and also giving the sick babies two pictures to look at instead of one.

Laughing draws the corners of the mouth up; crying pulls them down

The Human Automobile

The human body, like an automobile, changes fuel (food) into power. When the fuel is too rich, or the mixers and valves are out of order, waste products clog the machinery and reduce the power. The kidneys, like exhaust valves, should carry off the waste (uric acid), but weak kidneys can't. Uric acid in excess causes headache, weak eyes, rheumatic pains, gravel, dropsy and fatal Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills help the kidneys fight off uric acid. It is the best-recommended special kidney remedy.

A Michigan Case

"Every Picture Tells a Story." Mrs. Selma Lundberg, 4380 Grand Blvd., Menominee, Mich., says: "My back aches constantly and I can't sit or stoop. I wouldn't walk more than a few feet, my eyes were sunken in and my whole body was bloated. Doctors said my only hope was an operation. My condition was critical when I used Doan's Kidney Pills, but they cured me. I give them the credit of saving my life."

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Whenever a town girl gets too proud to marry a man with 100 acres of land and 20 red pigs, just because he wears blue jeans and can't tell the tango from a sloe gin rickey, you can set it down as a fact that she will either die an old maid or marry a $6 a week clerk with a head full of ozone and only one change of hole-proofs. A Pinckney correspondent to the Howell Tidings says that village is one of the most healthful in the state as nearly everyone lives to more than three score years and ten. Well, we have always heard that the simple, quiet life was conducive to longevity, and at Pinckney the accent can be placed on the "quiet."—South Lyon Herald. The uncalled for comment on our little village by our brother editor, Pierce of South Lyon, reminds us of that old adage that "People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones."

A new kind of farm activity has come into being. It bids fair to push the big times of threshing meetings into discard. It is the picnic of filling the silo. The silo outter and its attendants takes several men and already we see how our neighborly farmers will in a few years be trading work in silo filling, while the farm wives will each conspire to build dinners that will last pleasantly in the memories of the silo men. Such filling is going to fit into that spell time of the farmer that comes after harvest and afore corn shuckin.

When the Democrats of Livingston county nominated Ruth Johnson Lemen, daughter of E. K. Johnson, druggist, of Howell, as their candidate for county school commissioner, they certainly knew what they were doing. Mrs. Lemen has had nine years of experience in teaching, first as principal of the rural normal schools of Wisconsin and then as a teacher in the grades of the Howell public schools. She perfectly understands every phase of teaching and would make a most excellent commissioner. Mrs. Lemen is a graduate of the Howell public schools and also of the Normal at Ypsilanti. She has always proven herself to be a very faithful working woman and she would surely fill the position with best interests at heart for the patrons of the rural schools.

Buy it by the Barrel!

The Reason Is Obvious---

COLUMBUS FLOUR

Best for Bread, Biscuits, Cakes and Pies

Columbus Flour is a staple food. And it pays to buy it by the barrel. There is no other food that will yield as much nourishment per pound at so little cost as flour. You can put in your Winter stock and know that you are supplied with wholesome food in which there is no waste from shrinkage or spoiling—in fact flour improves with age.

Individuality in home baking is what every housewife is striving for. With a barrel of Columbus Flour in your home you can have your bread, cake, cookies, pies, etc., just as you like them best.

If you feel that the steady advance in other food stuffs causes you to buy less or coarser food in order that you may keep within the limit of your appropriation, you'll find that a barrel of Columbus Flour will enable you to live just as well as you are accustomed to and still not increase your expenditure. Use more Flour and less meats, etc.

Perhaps it has never occurred to you to buy flour by the barrel, but you put in your Winter supply of coal—why not do the same with Columbus Flour?

It is not simply a matter of price, but the fact that you are buying the very best food possible to fortify the health and strength of your family against the cold of winter.

Flour is all food. There is no special preparation needed to store it for the Winter. It keeps as well in a barrel in your home as it does in the mill. And the last pound in the barrel is as good as the first.

724 E. N. Ave., Olney, Ill.—"When my trouble first began I noticed little pimples coming on my face. They itched and burned so badly that I had to scratch them and that only made them worse. About a week later my face was so badly covered with pimples and blackheads that I was ashamed. My complexion was ruined. The pimples would sometimes bleed and fester.

"I bought a box of complexion cream and used it but without effect. One day I heard of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I decided to give them a trial. So I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment, washed my face with the Soap and applied the Ointment and in two weeks I was completely well." (Signed) Chas. E. McGinn, May 5, 1914.

Horse Wanders With Dead.

After Jesse Williams, a well-known Blackwood man, had ended his life with a revolver in the market wagon he had driven to Philadelphia, his horse wandered over a field and into the yard of R. C. Morgan, where the body was found by Morgan's son, George, at five o'clock. A pistol lay beside it.

Because of a suspicion of foul play, Prosecutor Kraft, Coroner Schroeder and County Detective Doran hurried to the scene and quickly solved the mystery by finding a note written by Williams to his wife, bidding her good-by and telling her where certain papers could be found. He had worried over money matters.—Philadelphia Record.

LIGHT BOOZE. Do You Drink It?

A minister's wife had quite a tussle with coffee and her experience is interesting. She says:

"During the two years of my training as a nurse, while on night duty, I became addicted to coffee drinking. Between midnight and four in the morning, when the patients were asleep, there was little to do except make the rounds, and it was quite natural that I should want a hot cup of coffee about that time. I could keep awake better.

"After three of four years of coffee drinking, I became a nervous wreck and thought that I simply could not live without my coffee. All this time I was subject to frequent bilious attacks, sometimes so severe as to keep me in bed for several days.

"After being married, Husband begged me to leave off coffee for he feared that it had already hurt me almost beyond repair, so I resolved to make an effort to release myself from the hurtful habit.

"I began taking Postum, and for a few days felt the languid, tired feeling from the lack of the coffee drug, but I liked the taste of Postum, and that answered for the breakfast beverage all right.

"Finally I began to feel clearer-headed and had steadier nerves. After a year's use of Postum I now feel like a new woman—have not had any bilious attacks since I left off coffee."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages. Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 25c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

Football and a Clergyman.

The more recreation we have the less vice there will be in the country, and I regard the football match on a Saturday afternoon as one of the best possible devices to keep men in the purity of the open air. I believe that the increase of sport is the biggest factor in the increase of temperance, and go so far as to say if you take the Church of England away from London you remove the greatest sporting influence. Some people object to the professional footballer, but I see no reason why a man of that class who gives entertainment to the public should not be paid for his services just in the same way as a musician or a parson. If we want the best we always have to pay for it.—Rev. A. J. Waldron, in T. P.'s Weekly, London.

Helping the Lawyer.

When a certain North Carolina jurist made his first appearance at the bar as a young lawyer he was given charge by the state solicitor of the prosecution of a man who was accused of some misdemeanor. Although there was practically no evidence against the man, the youthful attorney did his best, but was astonished when the jury brought in a verdict of "guilty." After the trial one of the jurors tapped the young lawyer on the shoulder. "We didn't think the man was guilty," he explained, "but at the same time didn't like to discourage a young lawyer by acquitting him."

Dolls Have Character.

The dolls from France and Germany are large-headed, round-faced, vacant-eyed creatures that have made "doll-like prettiness" the synonym for complete insipidity. The American dolls are in many cases not pretty at all. They are what dealers call "character dolls." They have expression. They remind one of the little girl in the story who told an overcritical grown-up that she might not be p-r-e-t-t-y, but she could s-p-e-l-l. Few of them are beautiful, but all of them are interesting. And they are very American indeed. With the failure of French and German dollies to travel overseas these very American persons must take their places.

Olden Punctuations.

In the early days of their craft, compositors had no need to worry about quotation marks. Punctuation was then of the simplest, consisting only of an oblique line and a full stop. The first book to introduce the colon and notes of interrogation and exclamation appears to have been a "Lactantius," printed at a monastery near Rome in 1465. Title pages were also unknown in those early days. The books started straight off with "Here beginneth" an author's or publisher's name being prefixed. This causes much difficulty in attributing early work to the proper sources.

Ocean Is Holland's Defense.

Holland's safety in time of war lies in her ability to flood great tracts of land. William of Orange flooded the country in 1574, and by so doing drove out the Spanish invaders. The same policy was adopted on the occasion of the French invasion of 1875. The movement of a lever at Amsterdam is sufficient to open every dyke and dam in Holland simultaneously, it is said, to put under water within the space of a few hours the whole country from Naarden on the Zuyder Zee, by Utrecht, to Geertruidenberg, at the mouth of the Meuse.

Possible Good in Accident.

A young man who, having run up a lot of bills which were considerably beyond his means to pay, was much pestered by collectors. He, however, had the disposition of a true Micawber and did not allow himself to be put out by their attentions. One day a collector came to his house, and in mounting the lay-front steps slipped and broke his arm. The young spendthrift, who was looking out of the window at the time, remarked calmly: "Well, I hope that will be a lesson to them to keep away from me for a while."

PRESIDENT OF FRANCE VISITS BATTLE FRONT

Allies Encouraged By Ruler Who is Permitted to Join Gen. Joffre

GREAT BATTLE ON AISNE IS STILL WITHOUT RESULT

French Claim That Enveloping Movement Continues and That Crown Prince Is Forced to Retreat.

London—The twenty-second day of fighting along the Aisne seems to have found little advantage for either side, although both claim to be satisfied with results.

The allies resumed the movement to envelope von Kluck, stormed the German trenches north of Soissons and accelerated the retreat of Crown Prince Frederick William.

Reserved, cautious and generalized, the government reports contain nevertheless, a new note of satisfaction. The thrust to destroy von Kluck's supply lines and roll his army back on von Buelow's is again under headway north and east of Arras, where the fighting, tremendously violent is indecisive. There are reports that flying columns have circled toward the Belgian frontier.

Fury Slackens in East.

Probably the most important success of the twenty-second day of the battle was gained near Soissons by breaking the west end of the Germans' long fortified and almost impregnable position reaching from the Aisne to the Sulpe. Hitherto, the German have frustrated all such attacks.

Eastward to the Argonne ridge the combatants, both behind unbreakable fortifications, did not risk frontal attacks. Battle fury slackened. There, allies and Germans await the decision at the west.

But in the forts of the Argonne, misfortune runs at the heel of the German crown prince. His efforts to cooperate with the Bavarians and von Heeringen in assaulting the barrier fortresses were defeated, he was energetically pursued as he fled northward. His repulse necessarily weakens the whole German line.

Guerrilla warfare continues in Lorraine and the Vosges, where Germans and French, holding strong positions, thrust at each other in day and night raids, neither side able to progress, despite small but most sanguinary engagements. Thus fighting, which would compel attention at another time, is lost sight of in the vast and dramatic combat at the west.

President Visits Front.

The president of France and the cabinet council have been permitted to visit General Joffre's headquarters because the situation, for the first time, is favorable to the presence of the government near the battle front.

The Germans continue their persistent attack on the outer defenses of Antwerp, according to London dispatches.

Apparently they are engaged in a desperate attempt to capture the port and they are in a desperate hurry to do it. They are pounding away with Austrian mortars at the forts of Waelhem and Wavre-St. Catherine and are flinging their infantry forward in frantic efforts to break through. So far they have accomplished little and have suffered terrific losses.

As far as can be learned, the only men they have available are marines and the landwehr, although it is reported that fresh troops of the line are being brought in.

Reports of the number killed vary considerably but the figure many times repeated is 8,000.

Heretofore, fortresses have not stood long before the big German siege guns which have been brought up. But Antwerp is in a different category, as, in addition to being stronger than any fortress yet attacked, there is a considerable space in which the field army can operate against the besieging forces.

The Germans have also been active in two widely separated parts of Belgium. They visited Tournai Saturday and announced that they were an advance guard of 1,000 men proceeding to Lille; while Sunday night and Monday morning fighting was going as far to the east near Lanaken, northwest of Maestricht. One report said Lanaken was on fire, but another declared it was a nearby village that was burning. A number of fugitives have arrived at Maestricht, as well as some Belgian soldiers, who had been interned.

HAD NO TIME FOR THE WAR

Good Reason Why Mr. Stackrider Knew Nothing About the Conflict in Europe.

"One of my hens laid an egg this morning with a big 'W' on it as plain as could be!" stated Farmer Gapp.

"Well, that don't hurt it for marketin', does it?" returned neighbor Stackrider.

"No, but that 'W' is a sign of war, and what I don't understand is how the hen knew."

"Knew what—the alphabet?"
"No, about the war."
"What war?"
"Good gracious, Ezry! Haven't you heard about the terrible war in Europe?"
"No, I've been entertaining my wife's deaf uncle, and nobody in our neighborhood has heard anything lately but me hollerin' to him about things that are none of his blame business!" —Kansas City Star.

Good Reason Why Mr. Stackrider Knew Nothing About the Conflict in Europe.

One of my hens laid an egg this morning with a big 'W' on it as plain as could be! stated Farmer Gapp.

Well, that don't hurt it for marketin', does it? returned neighbor Stackrider.

No, but that 'W' is a sign of war, and what I don't understand is how the hen knew.

Knew what—the alphabet?

No, about the war.

What war?

Good gracious, Ezry! Haven't you heard about the terrible war in Europe?

No, I've been entertaining my wife's deaf uncle, and nobody in our neighborhood has heard anything lately but me hollerin' to him about things that are none of his blame business!

If You Knew What We Do

If you could see the care taken in tanning the leather for Rouge Rex Shoes in our own tannery, and then could follow the leather through the factory and see the solid leather counters, heels and in-soles, and the kind of leather we put in the soles, also test the thread with which we stitch these shoes, you would say

"HERE IS AN HONEST SHOE"

You do not have this opportunity, but call on your dealer and examine the finished shoe. Ask to see No. 498. Examine the leather, tough, pliable, serviceable. Note the heavy stitching, the waterproof soles, the double thickness on the toe, and if you want a really good shoe you will not hesitate to buy No. 498. Look for the trade-mark on the sole.

The left figure will show the number of living brothers.

Taxpayers this year will pay $2,460,292.67 less in state taxes than they did in 1913, when the taxes reached $858,952.11. This year taxes to be paid by the several counties, will amount to $6,129,228. However, the tax this year will be $676,919.96 higher than in 1912. The decrease this year is due, of course, to some extent, to the fact that there was no session of the legislature. With large appropriation measures, the state tax is always higher the year of a session of the legislature. Auditor-General Fuller is notifying the counties of the amount of tax they will have to raise.
