JUST ARRIVED FROM GERMANY

Brayton Placeway and Wife Reached Here
Last Week

Tells of Conditions in Germany and Other Things
That Will Be of Interest to Our Readers

Brayton Placeway has returned to Michigan after an absence of about nine years which time has been spent in roaming through nearly every land in Europe. Brayton is the son of Mrs. Arvila Placeway of this village and is well known throughout this section. He was a member of Barnum and Bailey's circus which made a tour of Austria and Germany and of late has been Germany-English interpreter for a gas company in Gablonz, Austria. He was married last November to Fraulin Johanna Plischke of Austria. His wife has never been to America and cannot speak our language to any very great extent. Mr. Placeway, as her teacher, has taught her the words which she would most frequently hear in an ordinary conversation, thus enabling her in a way to follow a simple line of talk, containing any of the words with which she has been made familiar. Perhaps her first impression of this country was the independent spirit of the people.

So much of Mr. Placeway's conversation concerning the conditions in Germany is so very interesting that in the limited space we have to give our article it is rather difficult to make it a concentrated line of thought but rather an interesting item here and there which we think will be of deepest interest to our readers.

The Germans subsist mostly on black bread, beer and little cakes which are known as "kucken." Coffee, rolls or semeles are also important articles of diet. For 4 years Mr. Placeway has not known the taste of pie. Upon his arrival in New York, pie (good old American desert) was the first delicacy he devoured with keen delight. Mrs. Placeway did not know the existence of such a food until her first taste in New York.

Coffee, the poorest grade, is $1 per pound in Germany, while for the best they pay as high as $2 American money value. The coffee is made of barley, instead of the coffee berry as in America. The coffee comes in the form of a black stick, a portion of which is broken off and hot water added, making a black unappetizing drink, which Mr. Placeway says he has never been able to like. The German cakes are not the five egg variety of the American housewife but are more like our sweetened crackers. Sometimes they are made of Dutch cheese and at other times a grain like our caraway seed is added, while at Christmas time they make a sweetened bread containing currants which they call Kris-Kucken or Christmas cake. The very poorest class live on potatoes, bread, Dutch cheese and coffee. There are no lengthy six course dinners to puzzle the German frau. The whole dinner is portioned out

8th GRADE TUITION

All Boys and Girls of Michigan Should Have the Benefit of a High School Education

Fifty thousand boys and girls are attending the high schools of Michigan. One-third of these live in the rural districts. The law provides that when a pupil has completed the eighth grade in the rural schools his district must pay his tuition not to exceed $20 to some high school in Michigan selected by the pupil. Application for this tuition must be made by the parent or guardian on or before the fourth Monday in June. The Department of Public Instruction calls attention to these facts in order that parents may plan for their children for next year. Send your boys and girls to high school. Michigan has good high schools in every part of the state.

But first of all, keep your child in school now, regularly, so that he will get thoroughly the work of the elementary grades. Success later in life is based upon a thorough mastery of the common branches.

A Farewell Surprise

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hoyt were happily surprised Monday evening, February 22, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Hoyt, when about 75 guests took possession. An enjoyable evening was spent in games and social chat. Refreshments were served, after which Rev. A. T. Camburn presented Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt, as a small token of esteem in which they are held in this community, two beautiful cut glass dishes, a silver meat fork and a set of silver spoons from the young peoples class to remind them that they should never cease to be "spoony." Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt made neat little speeches of thanks and invited the friends to visit them either singly or collectively in their new home, even though they should live near the mill race they would like them to "drop in" at any time. The friends reluctantly departed wishing them success in their new home at Clinton.

Tuesday evening, the Masons gave Mr. Hoyt an informal farewell as an officer of that lodge. As usual a good time was enjoyed by all present. During the evening Mr. Hoyt was the recipient of a handsome rocker.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt left Pinckney Wednesday. Mrs. Hoyt and children going to her sister's home near Toledo until a suitable house can be obtained in Clinton. Mr. Hoyt will at once commence work with his brother, Hugh, in their mill at Clinton and will board until a house is ready for rent so their goods can be shipped from Pinckney.

May they make as many friends in their new home as they have left in their old. If so, they will surely never want for friendship as they leave hosts of people in Pinckney in whose hearts there is a vacancy which it will be difficult to fill.

James L. Roche left Saturday for Chicago to attend the Hesse Sale, taking with him Gains Crescens and Virginia Spinx who are catalogued to be sold at the sale.

Wall Paper Remnants

To make room for an unusually large and well assorted stock of wall paper for the Spring trade, I am going to close out all paper on hand at a ridiculously low price.

I have many attractive patterns in room lots, remnants I call them, which I will close out at 3c a roll, just stop a moment and think of it, 3c a roll, cheaper than you could buy building paper for your walls.

Perhaps you have a room which you wish to brighten up a bit, for little money, well, this is your opportunity to buy at your own price, think of papering an average sized room for 30c, can you beat it?

Just a word about my Spring stock. It embraces everything you may desire in the way of room decorations from just ordinary wall paper to the very richest of hangings and at prices to suit all pocket books.

Now for the advantage of buying at home.

You are always sure of having enough paper, if the room size is given correct, you never have any paper left on hand for I take back all paper left over on a job. The price on the border is always the same as side wall except in case of independent borders on high class paper or borders all cut out. I never charge an exorbitant price per yard to offset a low price on side wall or ceiling paper. My paper is always marked in plain figures and you pay for double rolls, not single rolls as in the case with mail order houses and WE DO NOT SUBSTITUTE, we give you what you select or consult you before making a change. Don't you think these advantages worth your time to come in and look over the line?

My stock is ready for your inspection and it is not too early to make selections.

RECORD VERDICT IS GIVEN

Millens Granted $66,666.66 in Michigan Portland Cement Company.

Ann Arbor—Homer and May Millen, of Washtenaw county, were granted a record verdict of $66,666.66 in stock in circuit court here Saturday by Judge E. D. Kinne, of Ann Arbor, against Nathan Potter, of Jackson, and the Michigan Portland Cement company after a long litigation. The case is sure to be appealed to the supreme court.

Judge Kinne, in his opinion, declared that he based his verdict in the belief that Millen's life savings were in the cement plant, that when financial storm clouds hung low he turned to Potter for help.

When Potter entered the cement company there was a reorganization, one of several others. Potter became manager of the plant and Millen sales manager. The capital stock was increased to $500,000, of which $100,000 was preferred, and a $100,000 bond issue. Through a series of involved transactions, said the judge, Potter eventually acquired the property for approximately $40,000. N. and N. S. Potter and Millen were to divide 200,000 shares of common stock between them, it was said.

Artists for May Festival.

Ann Arbor—Secretary Sink of the University School of Music, announces at least three new artists of world fame who will appear in the coming May Festival series of concerts, to be given in Hill Auditorium on May 23, 24, 25 and 26, heading the list with John McCormack, the great Irish tenor. The others to be heard here for the first time are Mme. Ober, the Metropolitan opera star, and Harold Bauer the master pianist.

REPRESENTS PRESIDENT AT EXPOSITION OPENING

FRANKLIN K. LANE.

San Francisco—All San Francisco was astir by 7 a. m. Saturday and with the greatest outpouring of people in the city's history, to say nothing of breaking all existing noise records, the Panama-Pacific International Exposition was opened.

Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior, was the official representative of President Wilson at the ceremonies incident to the exposition opening.

President Wilson himself pressed a button, transmitting an electric current which threw open the main door of Machinery Palace, set the machinery running, and started the "Fountain of Energy" in front of the "Tower of Jewels."

BOYS BEST CORN RAISERS

Results of Contest of M. A. C. Club Show Youngsters Get Larger Yield Than Elders.

East Lansing—A Flint youngster, R. A. Middleton, has been hailed by the M. A. C. Boys' and Girls' clubs department as the boy who can grow more corn to the acre than any other youth in Michigan. The "corn champion" was picked from among the 3,000 or 4,000 boys and girls who are members of the various state corn and potato growing clubs. His record is a yield of 219 3-4 bushels of cob corn to the acre.

While the Flint boy has won the honors for being able to grow the most corn on an acre plot, a Mosherville youth, Wendell Turner, has won the state title for being able to grow the best quality corn. His score is 85.

Other boys gave the two champions a close run for the prizes. Lester Swaminger, of Ypsilanti, took second place for high yield with a record of 176 bushels to the acre; Carl Lambra and Edward A. Smith, of Saline, tied for third honors with 160 bushels, and Kenneth Sloan, of Burt, won fifth place with 152 bushels.

In the quality contest Milton Turner, of Mosherville, won second position with a score of 81.5, and Thelma Knight, of Hanover, and Charles Morris, of Shepardsville, tied for third with 81.

Prize-winners for the complete project work, which included a general summing up of yield, quality, profit on investment and story of their efforts, were: First, Charles Morris; second, Harold Ray, Albion; third, Grant Winters, of Kewadin.

An interesting feature of the contests is the fact that among the 3,000 or so boys who competed the average yield of corn per acre was 99 bushels, while the average among the grown-up farmers of the state is about 33 bushels. The average yield of potatoes among the boys was 224 bushels, against a state average for grown-ups of about half that figure.

AMERICAN SHIP IS SUNK BY MINE

BOAT CARRYING COTTON TO GERMAN BLOWN UP IN NORTH SEA.

CAPTAIN AND CREW SAVED

Not Likely to Cause Complications As Laying of Mines Is Not Prohibited by International Law.

Berlin, 'via London—The American steamship Evelyn, with a cargo of cotton for Bremen, Germany, struck a mine off Borkum island, in the North sea, Sunday, and sank. Her captain and 27 of her crew were saved.

Borkum island is only about 40 miles from the mouth of the River Ems, which divides Holland from Germany. It is the most easterly of the West Frisian islands, which belong to Holland, and is directly north of the most easterly frontier of Holland. Apparently, the Evelyn was skirting the coast of Holland and intended to keep near the German coast on the way to Bremen in order to avoid possible mines.

No Protest Is Likely.

Washington—The United States government was officially advised Sunday night of the destruction of the first American vessel on the high seas since the outbreak of the European war.

American Consul Fee at Bremen cabled that the steamer Evelyn and her cargo of cotton bound for Bremen had been "blown up at Borkum," just off the coast of Germany, but that the crew had been saved. The cause—submarine or mine—was not given in the dispatch.

After a conference with President Wilson, Secretary Bryan cabled Ambassador Page at London and Ambassador Gerard at Berlin to make an exhaustive inquiry as to the facts.

It was practically conceded that if the cause of the accident was proved to be a mine, there probably would be no ground for diplomatic action by the United States, as the laying of mines is not prohibited by any international convention now in force.

FIRST BLOW OF CAMPAIGN

English Merchant Vessel Sunk By Submarine Without Warning.

London—Without warning, a German submarine Saturday sunk the British steamship Cambank of Cardiff, by torpedo, off Amlwch bay, Wales, just after the Cambank had taken on a pilot to enter the harbor of Liverpool. The third engineer and two firemen were killed and another member of the crew was drowned while trying to enter a lifeboat. The remainder of the crew escaped in boats.

This is the first time the Germans have sunk an enemy commercial vessel without giving the men aboard time even to leave the ship. It is taken as the initial stroke in the relentless war Germany declared to begin on Britain's trade beginning February 18.

While the Cambank was not an important vessel, her sinking is regarded as momentous in indicating the intention of the Germans to carry on the destruction without warning of non-combatant vessels.

General Hospital at Traverse City.

Traverse City—A committee of state senators and representatives arrived here Friday night and were tendered a reception and dinner by citizens and officials of state hospital for the insane.

Details of a bill to be presented to the legislature by Senator Walters and Representative Sours permitting the use of the equipment at the state institution for a general hospital were discussed.

The plan is favored by both committees and officers of the state institution and it will likely meet with no opposition.

MEAT CLOGS KIDNEYS THEN YOUR BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You—Drink Lots of Water.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

Dark Hollow

SYNOPSIS.

A curious crowd of neighbors invade the mysterious home of Judge Ostrander, county judge and eccentric recluse, following a veiled woman who proves to be the widow of a man tried before the judge and electrocuted for murder years before. Her daughter is engaged to the judge's son, from whom he is estranged, but the murder is between the lovers. She plans to clear her husband's memory and asks the judge's aid. Deborah Scoville reads the newspaper clippings telling the story of the murder of Etheridge by John Scoville in Dark Hollow, twelve years before. The judge and Mrs. Scoville meet at Spencer's Folly and she shows him how, on the day of the murder, she saw the shadow of a man, whittling a stick and wearing a long peaked cap. The judge engages her and her daughter Reuther to live with him in his mysterious home. Deborah and her lawyer, Black, go to the police station and see the stick used to murder Etheridge. She discovers a broken knife-blade point embedded in it. Deborah and Reuther go to live with the judge. Deborah sees a portrait of Oliver, the judge's son, with a black band painted across the eyes. That night she finds, in Oliver's room, a cap with a peak like the shadowed one, and a knife with a broken blade-point. Anonymous letters and a talk with Miss Weeks increase her suspicions and fears. She finds that Oliver was in the ravine on the murder night.

She had rather have died, nay, have had Reuther die, than to find herself forced to weigh and decide so momentous a question.

For, however she might feel about it, not a single illusion remained as to whose hand had made use of John Scoville's stick to strike down Algonon Etheridge. How could she have when she came to piece the whole story together, and weigh the facts she had accumulated against Oliver with those which had proved so fatal to her husband?

Deborah shuddered. Aye, the mystery had cleared, but only to enshroud her spirits anew and make her long with all her bursting heart and shuddering soul that death had been her portion before ever she had essayed to lift the veil held down so tightly by these two remorseful men.

But was her fault irremediable? The only unanswerable connection between this old crime and Oliver lay in the evidence she had herself collected. As she had every intention of suppressing this evidence, and as she had small dread of any one else digging out the facts to which she only possessed a clue, might she not hope that any suspicions raised by her inquiries would fall like a house of cards when she withdrew her hand from the toppling structure?

She would make her first effort and see. Mr. Black had heard her complaint; he should be the first to learn that the encouragement she had received was so small that she had decided to accept her present good luck without further query, and not hark back to a past which most people had buried.

"You began it, as women begin most things, without thought and a due weighing of consequences. And now you propose to drop it in the same freakish manner. Isn't that it?"

Deborah Scoville lifted her eyes in manifest distress and fixed them deprecatingly upon her interrogator.

Mr. Black smiled. The woman delighted him. The admiration which he had hitherto felt for her person and for the character which could so develop through misery and reproach as to make her in twelve short years the exponent of all that was most attractive and bewitching in woman seemed likely to extend to her mind.

"I am reconciled simply from necessity," was her gentle response. "Nothing is more precious to me than Reuther's happiness. I should but endanger it further by raising false hopes. That is why I have come to cry halt."

"Madam, I commend your decision. But why should you characterize your hopes as false, just when there seems to be some justification for them?"

Her eyes widened, and she regarded him with a simulation of surprise, which interested without imposing upon him.

"I do not understand you," said she. "Have you come upon some clue? Have you heard something which I have not?"

Mr. Black took two or three crushed and folded papers from a drawer beside him and, holding them, none too plainly in sight, remarked very quietly, but with legal firmness:

"Do not let us play about the bush any longer. You have announced your intention of making no further attempt to discover the man who in your eyes merited the doom accorded to John Scoville. Your only reason for this—if you are the woman I think you—lies in your fear of giving further opportunity to the misguided rancor of an irresponsible writer of anonymous epistles. Am I not right, madam?"

Beaten, beaten by a direct assault, because she possessed the weaknesses, as well as the pluck, of a woman. She could control the language of her lips, but not their quivering; she could meet his eye with steady assurance, but she could not keep the pallor from her cheeks or subdue the evidences of her heart's turmoil. Her pitiful glance acknowledged her defeat, which she already saw mirrored in his eyes.

Taking it for an answer, he said gently enough:

"That we may understand each other at once, I will mention the person who has been made the subject of these attacks. He—"

"Don't speak the name," she prayed, leaning forward and laying her gloved hand upon his sleeve. "It is not necessary. The whole thing is an outrage."

His admiration was quite evident. It did not prevent him, however, from saying quite abruptly:

"Men who indulge themselves in writing anonymous accusations seldom limit themselves to one effusion. I will stake my word that the judge has found more than one on his lawn."

She could not have responded if she would; her mouth was dry, her tongue half paralyzed. What was coming? The glint in the lawyer's eye forewarned her that something scarcely in consonance with her hopes and wishes might be expected.

"The judge has seen and read these barefaced insinuations against his son and has not turned this whole town topsy-turvy! A lion does not stop to meditate; he springs. And Archibald Ostrander has the nature of a lion. Mrs. Scoville, this is a very serious matter. I do not wonder that you are a trifle overwhelmed by the results of your ill-considered investigations."

"Does the town know? Has the thing become a scandal—a byword? Miss Weeks gave no proof of ever having heard one word of this dreadful business."

"That is good news. You relieve me. Perhaps it is not a general topic as yet." Then shortly and with lawyerlike directness:

"Look over these. Do they look at all familiar?"

She glanced down at the crumpled sheets and half-sheets he had spread out before her. They were similar in appearance to the one she had picked up on the judge's grounds, but the language was more forcible, as witness these:

When a man is trusted to defend another on trial for his life, he's supposed to know his business. How came John Scoville to hang without a thought being given to the man who hated A. Etheridge like poison? I could name a certain chap who more than once in the old days boasted that he'd like to kill the fellow. And it wasn't Scoville or any one of his low-down stamp either.

A high and mighty name shouldn't shield a man who sent a poor, unfriended wretch to his death in order to save his own bacon.

"Horrible!" murmured Deborah, drawing back in terror of her own emotion. "It's the work of some implacable enemy taking advantage of the situation I have created. Mr. Black, this man must be found and made to see that no one will believe, not even Scoville's widow—"

"There! you needn't go any further with that," admonished the lawyer. "Have you any idea who this person is?"

"Not the least in the world."

"I ask because of this," he explained, picking out another letter and smilingly holding it out toward her. She read it with flushed cheeks.

Listen to the lady. You can't listen to any one else. What she wants she can get. There's a witness you never saw or heard of.

A witness they had never heard of! What witness? Scarcely could she lift up her eyes from the paper. Yet there was a possibility, of course, that this statement was a lie.

"Stuf, isn't it?" muttered the lawyer. "Never mind, we'll soon have hold of the writer." His face had taken on a much more serious aspect, and she could no longer complain of his indifference or even of his eccentricity.

"You will give me another opportunity of talking with you on this matter," pursued he. "If you do not come here you may expect to see me at Judge Ostrander's. I do not quite like the position into which you have been thrown by these absurd insinuations. It may even lead to your losing the home which has been so fortunately opened for you. If this occurs you may count on my friendship, Mrs. Scoville. I may have failed you once, but I will not fail you twice."

Surprised, almost touched, she held out her hand, with a cordial "Thank you," in which emotion struggled with her desire to preserve an appearance of complete confidence in Judge Ostrander, and incidentally in his son. Then she turned to go.

The lawyer appeared to acquiesce in the movement of departure. But when he saw her about to vanish through the door some impulse of compunction, as real as it was surprising, led him to call her back and seat her once more in the chair she had so lately left.

"I cannot let you go," said he, "until you understand that these insinuations from a self-called witness would not be worth our attention if there were not a few facts to give color to his wild claims. Oliver Ostrander was in that ravine connecting with Dark Hollow, very near the time of the onslaught on Mr. Etheridge; and he certainly hated the man and wanted him out of the way. The whole town knows that, with one exception. You know that exception?"

"I think so," she acceded, taking a fresh grip upon her emotions.

"That this was anything more than a coincidence has never been questioned. He was not even summoned as a witness. With the judge's high reputation in mind I do not think a single person could have been found in those days to suggest any possible connection between this boy and a crime so obviously premeditated. But people's minds change with time and events, and Oliver Ostrander's name uttered in this connection today would not occasion the same shock to the community as it would have done then. You understand me, Mrs. Scoville?"

"You allude to the unexpected separation between himself and father, and not to any failure on his part to sustain the reputation of his family?"

"Oh, he has made a good position for himself, and earned universal consideration. But that doesn't weigh against the prejudices of people, roused by such eccentricities as have distinguished the conduct of these two men."

"Alas!" she murmured, frightened to the soul for the first time, both by his manner and his words.

"You know and I know," he went on with a grimness possibly suggested by his subject, "that no mere whim lies back of such a preposterous exclusion as that of Judge Ostrander behind his double fence. Sons do not cut loose from fathers or fathers from sons without good cause. You can see, then, that the peculiarities of their mutual history form but a poor foundation for any light refutation of this scandal, should it reach the public mind. Judge Ostrander knows this, and you know that he knows this; hence your distress. Have I not read your mind, madam?"

"No one can read my mind any more than they can read Judge Ostrander's," she avowed in a last desperate attempt to preserve her secret. "You may think you have done so, but what assurance can you have of the fact?"

"You are strong in their defense," said he, "and you will need to be if the matter ever comes up. The shadows from Dark Hollow reach far, and engulf all they fall upon."

CHAPTER XI.

Changes.

"Reuther, sit up here close by mother and let me talk to you for a little while."

"Yes, mother; oh, yes, mother." Deborah felt the beloved head pressed close to her shoulder and two soft arms fall about her neck.

"Are you very unhappy? Is my little one pining too much for the old days?"

A closer pressure of the head, a more vehement clasp of the encircling arms, but no words.

They were sitting in the dark, with just the light of the stars shining through the upper panes of the one unshaded window. Deborah, therefore, had little to fear from her daughter's eye, only from the sensitiveness of her touch and the quickness of her ear. Alas, in this delicately organized girl these were both attuned to the slightest discrimination, and before the mother could speak Reuther had started up, crying:

"Oh, how your heart beats! Something has happened, darling mother; something which—"

"Hush, Reuther; it is only this: When I came to Shelby it was with a hope that I might some day smooth the way to your happiness. But it was only a wild dream, Reuther; and the hour has come for me to tell you so. What joys are left us must come in other ways; love unblessed must be put aside resolutely and forever."

She felt the shudder pass through the slender form which had thrown itself again at her side; but when the young girl spoke it was with unexpected bravery and calm.

"I have long ago done that, mamma. I've had no hopes from the first. The look with which Oliver accepted my refusal to go on with the ceremony was one of gratitude, mother. I can never forget that. Relief struggled with grief. Would you have me cherish any further illusion after that?"

"Then you will not think me unkind or even untender if I say that every loving thought you give now to Oliver is hurtful both to yourself and to me. Don't indulge in them, my darling. Put your heart into work or into music, and your mother will bless you. Won't it help you to know this, Reuther? Your mother, who has had griefs, will bless you."

"Mother, mother!"

The next morning found Deborah pale—almost as pale as Reuther. Knowing its cause herself, she did not invite the judge's inquiries; and another day passed. With the following morning she felt strong enough to open the conversation which had now become necessary for her peace of mind.

She waited till the moment when, her work all done, she was about to leave his presence. Pausing till she caught his eye, which seemed a little loath, she thought, to look her way, she observed, with perhaps unnecessary distinctness:

"I hope everything is to your mind, Judge Ostrander. I should be very sorry not to make you as comfortable as is possible under the circumstances."

Roused a little suddenly, perhaps, from thoughts quite disconnected with those of material comfort, he nodded with the abstraction of one who recognizes that some sort of acknowledgment is expected from him; then, seeing her still waiting, added politely:

"I am very well looked after, if that is what you mean, Mrs. Scoville. Bella could not do any better—if he ever did as well."

"I am glad," she replied, thinking with what humor this would have struck her once. "I—I ask because, having nothing on my mind but house-keeping, I desire to remedy anything which is not in accordance with your exact wishes."

His attention was caught and by the very phrase she desired.

"Nothing on your mind but house-keeping?" he repeated. "I thought you had something else of a very particular nature with which to occupy yourself."

"I had; but I have been advised against pursuing it. The folly was too great."

"Who advised you?"

The words came short and sharp, just as they must have come in those old days when he confronted his antagonists at the bar.

"Mr. Black. He was my husband's counsel, you remember. He says that I should only have my trouble for my pains, and I have come to agree with him. Reuther must content herself with the happiness of living under this roof; and I, with hope of contributing to your comfort."

Foxy Pa.

"He is very popular with his wife of late." "And him such a flirt. How does he do it?" "She called him up the other day and said: 'Hello, darling,' and he recognized her voice and replied: 'You have evidently made a mistake; I am not your darling. I have the dearest, sweetest, most beautiful wife in the world, and she is the only woman I want to call me darling!'"—Houston Post.

THE EMBARGO ON WHEAT

The United States Wheat Production Admits of 100 Million Bushels for Export.

The talk in the press some little time back of placing an embargo on wheat, brought forcibly to the mind of the people of the United States a condition that may at some time in the near future face them. 100 million bushels of an export of wheat means a splendid revenue to the country as well as to the farmer, and if this were assured year after year, there would be reason for considerable congratulation. But last year's magnificent and abundant crop, which was estimated at 891 million bushels, cannot be expected every year. With a home consumption of 775 million bushels, and a production in many years of little more than this, the fact is apparent that at an early date the United States will have to import wheat. It will be then that the people of the United States will be looking to other markets for a supply. And it is then that the value of Western Canada lands will be viewed with considerable favor. The great area of wheat lands in Canada will then be called upon to provide the greatest portion of the old world's supply, and also, in the opinion of the writer, that of the United States as well. At present there are only about 12 million acres of these lands producing wheat. There are five times that many acres that can be brought under successful cultivation. Apart altogether from the value of these lands as wheat producers there is an increased value to them from the fact that the soil is especially adapted to the growing of many other kinds of grain as well as all manner of cultivated grasses, while the native grasses are a wonderful asset in themselves. The climate is especially favorable to the raising of live stock, such as horses, cattle, sheep and hogs. All these bring into the limelight the adaptability of the soil, the climate and all other necessary conditions, to the carrying on of dairy farming, in a most profitable way.

There is no question that high prices for all that the farmer can grow or raise will continue for some years, and this is the great opportune time to take advantage of what Western Canada offers. Lands may be had for a free grant. These are mostly located some little distance from railways at the present time, but sooner or later will be well served by rail ways that are projected into these districts. Land may also be secured by purchase at reasonable price, and on easy terms from holders of same. In many cases farms partly improved may be rented. A Winnipeg paper said recently: "Canada wants American immigrants. They make good Canadian citizens." And then speaking of the erroneous impression that has gained some publicity in a portion of the United States press, says: "It cannot be too forcibly impressed upon the American mind that in coming to Canada they place themselves under the freest democracy the world knows. No citizen of this country, whether native or naturalized, can be compelled to military service. The only compulsion is the compulsion of conscience and patriotic duty. That is the motive that has prompted thousands of Canadians to offer their lives. They are fighting as free men."—Advertisement.

To Develop Fishing Industry. To control the fishing industry as far as possible, the government of New South Wales has decided to buy a number of North sea trawlers. It is, moreover, proposed to build others of the same type at Sydney. A fleet of 50 vessels is the ultimate aim of the authorities. In this way it is hoped to lower the prices charged by private firms. It cannot be said, however, that the experience of other Australian states in the matter of government-owned enterprises has been a success. More than one, in fact, has been abandoned with heavy loss to their promoters.

A Quibble. "He escaped with a quibble. He got off with a quibble." William Travers Jerome, the noted New York lawyer, was discussing a notorious case. He continued, indignant, but as always, amusing: "He was like the chap, out walking with his girl, who turned to see when a savage dog approached: 'What, George!' cried the girl. 'You'd run and leave me unprotected in this way? And only yesterday you vowed you'd take death for me.' 'I know,' stammered George, 'but in this dog case?'—San Francisco Chronicle.

 A new Ford story. A man purchased a new car and the agent drove him around a few blocks and showed him how to run the car and left him.  There is a bill before the legislature for the division of the state into 30 districts over which 30 physicians shall have supervision at a salary of $3,500 each, with an expense account added that shall not exceed $1,000 for each district. It would hardly seem that such a bill will meet the approval of the legislature, and we are absolutely sure the taxpayers will think it unnecessary.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASE

It is Seldom Necessary to Close Schools for Any Length of Time

Scarcely a year passes that most school districts are not visited by some form of contagious disease. The health officer has power to close schools if he deems it necessary. The school board also may close school in order to prevent the spread of disease. This is as it should be. However, it often happens that the closing of school is not the best practice. To close school and permit the children to run the streets is no preventive of contagion; it is rather a certain means of spreading it. Except in case of general epidemic it is advisable to merely exclude from school the children affected, have the school building thoroughly disinfected and continue school work as usual. The closing of the schools of a whole city for weeks when it is not imperative means a loss which should be avoided.

MANY FARMS BEING NAMED

As the Result of the Dispatch Campaign Started Last Week

We are glad to say the farmers are falling in with the idea of naming their farms as suggested in the Dispatch last week and quite a large number have notified us by phone or otherwise of the name they have selected. There are some farms that have been named for some time and in this issue we publish the name and owner of each farm whether named during the past week or previously.
 G. D. Bland—Three Oaks Farm, Pinckney.
 Jas. Roche & Son—Riverside Farm, Pinckney.
 H. F. Kice—Brookside Farm, Pinckney.
 C. C. Lewis—Locust Lawn Farm, Chilson.
 George VanHaru—Lakeview Farm, Pinckney.
 E. C. Glenn—Glennbrook Stock Farm, Pinckney.
 Guy & Dede Hinchey—School of Lake Farm, Pinckney.
 John Chambers—Springbrook Farm, Pinckney.
 Frank Birnie—North Anderson Farm, Pinckney.
 Ann Hinchey—The Locust Grove Farm, Pinckney.
 Tom Clark—Riverview Farm, Pinckney.
 This publication will pre-empt the title or name for your sole use, but it is up to you to keep it. It is a splendid idea to have a sign put up so that passers-by will know what the name of your farm is. Then use the name at every opportunity so that everyone will become familiar with the name. It is one of the best ways in the world to advertise your place and in our estimation the value of the farm is enhanced by $50.00 as soon as the farm name is thoroughly established. You should have stationery printed so that you are advertising your farm every time you send a letter. If you are shipping produce be sure to bill everything in the name of your farm. How much more businesslike a bill looks made out in favor of Sunnyside Fruit Farm, John Doe, Propr., or Lakeview Dairy Farm, John Brown, Propr., than where the name alone is used.
 In selecting a name it is a good plan to use some characteristic of the surroundings, though not at all necessary. The names given above are nearly all suggestive of some special feature connected with the place.
 These names will be left standing for another week and we hope to add to the list at least two dozen more farms—the more the better.
 To induce the farmers to use printed stationery we are going to make a special offer, good for a short time only. To all who will name their farm in time for publication next week we will print 125 note heads (size of tablet writing paper) and 125 envelopes for $1.00. This offer may be accepted by those who have already selected names, but we will not agree to duplicate the order at the price.
 P. H. Swarthout spent Saturday in Howell.
 Helen Monks spent Sunday in Stockbridge.
 Geo. Hassenchal visited in Pontiac the past week.
 Elizabeth and Dorr Steptoe of Dexter spent Sunday at the home of Thos. Shehan.

A good thing to do under such circumstances is to take something like

My husband joins me in my praise of the Anti-Pain Pills and Nervine."

They were reminded of it towards noon by the arrival of over fifty relatives from Gregory, Pinckney and Detroit, loaded with baskets of goodies. It was a day long to be remembered especially by the children, judging from the amount of candy and oranges consumed. The company presented the happy couple with one dozen silver knives and forks and tea spoons and three table spoons.

Smooth Atlas Agents

Complaints have been made by farmers in Tyrone township, says the Fenton Independent, of smooth atlas agents who come to their homes asking if they are interested in having a new atlas of the county gotten out and they are to simply sign a slip. They said that when they sign the slip there is absolutely nothing else on it, no printing nor any resemblance of it.

Now after a few weeks of intermission another man appears who shows them the signed contract. Then another member of their party comes along and endeavors to force them to pay. The price asked for the book is $15 which is a pretty long price.

The majority of the complaints which we have heard of come from Tyrone township, but we understand that there are others from various portions of Livingston county.

Your money back if not satisfied, but it does give almost instant relief. Buy a bottle to-day.

The Army Canteen

Those military men and others who have been saying lugubrious things about the abolition of the liquor canteen from the United States army, and asking for its restoration, would do well to read the annual report of Surgeon-General Gorgas, just submitted to Secretary Garrison. "Soldiers of the United States army have enjoyed better health during the past year than ever before. The hospital rate for the year was the lowest on record. Typhoid fever virtually has been stamped out. There was less alcoholism than at any time in the army's history. In spite of the large number of men on duty in southern latitudes, the malarial fever rate was the lowest since 1892 when American troops were first permanently stationed in the tropics." And all this without the booze canteen! Better let well enough alone. M. E. S.

PROFIT in BASKET WILLOWS

Prepared by the U.S. Department of Agriculture

PEELING BASKET WILLOWS

THE TALL WILLOWS ARE THE AMERICAN GREEN; THE SHORTER ONES THE EUROPEAN WILLOW

BELGIAN BASKET MAKER IN A NEWLY ESTABLISHED AMERICAN GREEN PLANTATION

BASKET MAKER AT WORK

THE growing of basket willows could be profitably carried on much more extensively in the United States than is now the case. In recent years the department of agriculture has distributed many thousands of cuttings in different parts of the country, and although in many instances the experiments have been failures, there is no longer any doubt that willows can be grown everywhere except in arid and semiarid regions, at high altitudes, and in some portions of the South. Commercially, they are now grown only in a few areas, notably in New York, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Ohio. They may, however, prove a remunerative crop. Estimates published in Farmers' Bulletin No. 622, "Basket Willow Culture," indicate that an average annual net profit of from $84 to $89 an acre may be expected.

In selecting a site for a willow holt, the first consideration is moisture. Water should be within from two to six feet of the surface, and the supply constant and sufficient. It is better, however, to select a site which may be too dry, rather than one which may be too wet. Where the moisture conditions are favorable basket willows will grow on a wide range of soils, although they do best in a loose, sandy loam. Excessively acid or excessively alkaline soils should be avoided. It is desirable, too, that the wind have free access to the holt, since this minimizes the danger from insects. The neighborhood of large areas of weeds is also undesirable, for it is difficult at best to keep the holt clean. For this reason it is advisable that holts be established on land which has been previously cultivated. Many failures, it is said, are due to lack of proper preparation of the ground. If possible, a previous crop of corn or potatoes should be planted. Late in the fall the land should then be plowed and left to weather during the winter.

All basket willow holts are started from cuttings from shoots or branches. Since the plants last from twelve to fifteen years or longer, the best stock should be selected for this purpose. Of the many varieties, only the American green and the patent Lemley or Lemley should be selected. These require less cultivation than the purple willow, are easily peeled and bring good prices.

Where cuttings are purchased, the prices should range from one dollar per thousand for ten-inch cuttings to five dollars per thousand for two-year-old 14-inch cuttings. For less than one thousand the prices are frequently much higher. Many persons, however, have begun the cultivation of willows with a few hundred cuttings, and have gradually enlarged their holts as their supply and knowledge both increased. The better the physical conditions the less necessary it is to have large cuttings, but under any circumstances two-year-old planting stock makes a thrifter growth at first than cuttings from one-year-old shoots.

The best time to plant is very early in the spring, when the weather is cool, the soil moist and the cuttings show little if any growth. When set in their holes the cuttings should not protrude more than two inches above the surface of the ground. The holes should be barely large enough to receive the cuttings, never deeper than necessary. A sharpened iron rod is perhaps the best implement for making a hole. The point should be abrupt rather than long, since otherwise the space at the bottom would be too narrow for the cutting and an open air space would be created underneath the plant. Spacing, a matter of importance which depends largely upon the variety of willow planted, is discussed in some detail in Farmers' Bulletin 622, which will be sent free upon application. The bulletin also describes in detail the best methods of cultivating and harvesting the crop. The great trouble, it is said, is the difficulty of obtaining the necessary labor for peeling. At times it is almost impossible to secure labor at any price, although the actual difficulties of peeling are comparatively few. The harvesting itself should cost approximately five dollars a ton, green weight.

The demand is extensive and varied and a large quantity of imported willow is being used in this country, although manufacturers, it is believed, would prefer the American-grown if it could be obtained.

There are many uses for the basket willow, familiar in Europe, which have not developed in this country as yet. It would seem, therefore, as though the industry might prove a profitable one for farmers who are willing to familiarize themselves with it. It must be remembered, however, that a certain amount of exact knowledge is required for success, and that a poorly managed holt rarely yields a profit, no matter how favorable the conditions may seem.

TO RUN MOTORS BY GAS COKE

Inoffensive Fuel, According to Figures, Is Only One-Third Cost of Paraffin.

In view of the high and increasing cost of motor spirit special interest attaches to an experiment of the National Steam Car company, which has placed upon the streets of London a motor omnibus adapted to use ordinary gas coke as fuel, instead of paraffin, says the Times of that city. The omnibus is equipped with a new form of multitubular boiler, and it is claimed that the running costs of the gas coke are one-third the cost of paraffin. The vehicle carries enough coke for a 60-mile journey and the consumption per mile is four pounds of coke and one-half gallon of water.

The roar, flame and smell which are sometimes associated with steam motors are obviated in the coke motor. Prolonged tests were carried out by the chief commissioner of metropolitan police before the new type was accepted for service, and since it has been running careful observation has been kept.

The omnibus chassis is constructed without a chimney, but a chassis with chimney has been designed for commercial cars, which work under less stringent conditions than those of the omnibus service.

The Dewar trophy was awarded to the company by the Royal Automobile club, which regarded the National coke motor trial as the most meritorious performance of the year.

DRAW WEALTH FROM FARMS

Enormous Sum Annually Gathered in by Tillers of the Soil in the United States.

From Farms in 1914 the United States produced a yield worth $10,000,000,000. Could cotton have been marketed as usual the total would have been close to half a billion more. Ten billion dollars representing honest work! Ten billion dollars untainted money! And going mostly into the pockets of the workers themselves, with little reaching the purses of labor exploiters. The beautiful thing about this great item of our national wealth, next to its cleanliness, is the fact that it can be increased indefinitely by a more general adoption of scientific agriculture. In fifteen years it has been doubled; and still, on our new soil, we farm only a third as effectively as do many foreign peoples on soil centuries longer in use. The forest, cut unwisely, is gone. The mineral, once mined, is not renewable. But on his broad acres the tiller of the soil can take and take again; and though he has to fertilize, the more he does it the more he earns. So, come war, come pestilence, come anything but continent-wide drought, here is a broad base for our future welfare, upon which we can build expanding and securely. The man with the hoe is, indeed, the best hope of the future.

BREAD DRESSING FOR STEAK

Many Prefer Meat Prepared in a Casserole to That Broiled in the Regular Way.

If you wish to stuff a flank steak use bread dressing; use it with vegetables and a small quantity of liquid in a casserole. If you do not own one (and you should in these times of high prices) use any tightly covered dish. Be sure it is tight so the steam cannot escape.

Bread Stuffing.—Two cupfuls soft bread crumbs, one-half cupful butter melted in one-third cupful hot water or milk, one-quarter teaspoonful powdered sweet herbs or spiced poultry seasoning, one beaten egg. Mix the ingredients together thoroughly. The bread should be 24 hours old and taken from the center of the loaf. The seasoning is a matter of individual taste, so you can use the above quantities or suit your taste. The egg may be omitted if the flank is to be eaten hot, but will slice better when cold if egg is used. Cracker crumbs give a drier stuffing.

Spread your flank steak with above and roll tightly. Fry out some suet and then brown the flank so as to hold the juices. Put in casserole, add little water and when half done season with salt and pepper, chopped onions and plenty of fine minced vegetables or rice, whichever you may prefer. The flank is quite juicy, so you will need but little water. It lacks flavor, so the high spices and vegetables make up what the flank lacks. It is much better this way than broiled as regular steak.

Hot-Water Chocolate Cake.

Two tablespoonfuls butter, one cupful sugar, yolk of one egg, two tablespoonfuls cocoa dissolved in one-half cupful boiling water, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in one-half cupful boiling water, one teaspoonful of baking powder, sifted with one and one-half cupfuls of flour and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Mix in order given and bake in square tin about thirty minutes. Frost with white of egg beaten stiff. Boil one cupful sugar in little water till it hairs, then turn on egg and beat till stiff.

Brambles.

One cupful raisins, the juice and grated rind of one lemon, one egg, one cupful of sugar, small piece of butter, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful nutmeg, one-quarter teaspoonful of cloves, mix all together.

Make a rich crust, cut the size of a small saucer, fill with one tablespoonful of the filling, fold and bake as any turnover.

Rendering Leaf Lard.

A quick way to render leaf lard is to cut it in strips about the size that will fit into a meat grinder, using the largest opening, which will allow it to come through very fine. Put in kettle and place in a hot oven until the lard is extracted, strain through cheesecloth and put in crocks.

Golden Buck.

Prepare a nice Welsh rarebit, spread on slices of toast and place a poached egg on each slice. Garnish with water-cress.

Cheese Salad.

Rub the yolk of a hard-boiled egg smooth with a tablespoonful of olive oil and then add, one at a time, mixing thoroughly, a teaspoonful each of mustard, sugar, salt and a bit of cayenne. Add half a pound of grated cheese and a tablespoonful of vinegar in which a slice of onion has been standing for half an hour and serve on lettuce leaves.

SYRUP OF FIGS FOR A CHILD'S BOWELS

It is cruel to force nauseating, harsh physic into a sick child.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on — castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

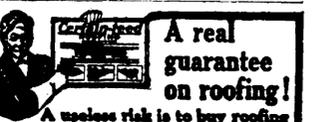

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Adv.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HER GRAY HAIR

She Made Up a Mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to Bring Back Color, Gloss, Thickness.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of the famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.—Adv.

CEDE COFFEE OR CHOCOLATE

deal Beverages to Be Served at Card Party or Other Informal Entertainment.

To serve between games at a card party, try iced coffee or chocolate. For the coffee, make enough of what is known as clear black after-dinner coffee to fill at least two wine or sherbet glasses for each guest. Sweeten this while it is hot and set aside to cool. Then pour it into a large bottle or pitcher and set in a pall or deep kettle, packing ice around it. When ready to serve pour into glasses three-quarters full and heap on top either sweetened and whipped cream, or a tablespoonful of ice cream.

Iced Chocolate.—Melt two squares of chocolate in a double boiler and add a cupful of granulated sugar and a cupful of water. Let this mixture cook from the fire, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and set away to chill in a pitcher. When ready to serve half fill a large mixing glass with chopped ice, add two tablespoonfuls of the chocolate syrup, fill up the glass with good sweet milk, cover with a shaker and shake thoroughly, strain into glasses and put whipped cream on top of each. Do not mix more than a large glass of this at a time. It will make three small glasses. This method is much better than boiling the chocolate and milk and then chilling, which usually forms a sediment.

WOVEN TABLE MATS POPULAR

For Use Under Hot Dishes Nothing More Satisfactory Has Ever Been Put on Market.

Nothing has ever been found more satisfactory to put under hot dishes than the old-fashioned woven table mats, and of late there has been quite a revival in their favor, especially as it does not require any great amount of ingenuity to learn how to manipulate the frames upon which they are woven.

These frames come in a box containing several sizes, so that a set for meat dishes and several sizes in vegetable dishes may be made.

After being woven on the frame crosswise, the points where the crossed threads pass each other are caught and knotted with either white or light-colored twist. In cutting the finished mat off from the frame, a fringed edge is formed and the mat not only launders well, but literally lasts forever. The writer has a set of these mats made quite ten years ago by a deft old lady. These have been in constant use, some of them washed each week and they have scarcely yet begun to show signs of wear.—Exchange.

Soup Meat, Horseradish Sauce.

Boil a piece of tender beef. The sauce: Melt some butter in a saucepan, stir in some flour and add some of the broth you boiled the meat in. Then add about one cupful of grated horseradish root, season with salt and sugar and at last a little milk. Have the sauce quite thick. Boiled potatoes and string beans are very nice with it.

Grape Juice Whip.

Whip the whites of eggs, one for each person, stiff, and add half a tablespoonful of sugar and two teaspoonfuls of grape juice to each white. Beat all until stiff. Into each sherbet glass put two or three tablespoonfuls of grape juice, and on this pile the egg white. Top each glass with a teaspoonful of whipped cream.

Coffee Mold.

Scald one pint of milk, dissolve two heaping tablespoonfuls cornstarch (I prefer flour) in a little cold milk or water, add two tablespoonfuls sugar, pinch of salt, one-half cupful strong fresh coffee. Stir this into the scalded milk and cook until it thickens. Turn into a mold and set it aside to cool. Serve with cream and sugar.

Wooden Ware.

Wooden ware which has any odor or the food which has been in it—and wood absorbs odors quickly—should be soaked in hot water in which soda is dissolved in the proportion of a tablespoonful of soda to four quarts of water.

Boiling an Egg Soft.

Put a fresh egg in a teacup, pour boiling water over it, cover with a saucer and let stand five minutes. This plan prevents the coagulation of the white and is very delicate.

Curious Tolerance.

It's a funny thing, though, that no one ever seems to be bored when money does talk, no matter how long it talks.

Winter Chills Bring Kidney Ills

A spell of cold, damp weather is always followed by a fine crop of kidney troubles and backache.

Colds and chills damage the kidneys. Other troubles common to winter weather are just as bad. Grip, tonsillitis, quinsy, pneumonia or any other infectious disease hurts the kidneys by overloading the blood with poisons. The kidneys get worn, weak and inflamed trying to work it off.

It isn't hard to strengthen weak kidneys though, if you act quickly. At the first sign of backache, dizzy spells, headaches, loss of weight, nervousness, depression and painful, irregular kidney action, start using Doan's Kidney Pills. Rest the kidneys by simple eating, avoidance of overwork and worry, and getting more rest and sleep. A milk diet is fine.

This sensible treatment should bring quick benefit and prevent serious kidney diseases like dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease.

Life Despaired of Specialist Said Operation Was Only Hope for Recovery

James Greenman, mail carrier, 142 E. Adam St., Ionia, Mich., says: "I suffered terribly from kidney disease and at one time my life was despaired of. In the fall of 1907 I was laid up for three months. I had terrible pains in my back and sides and was so nervous that the least thing irritated me. I felt languid nearly all the time and was also subject to headaches and dizzy spells. The kidney secretions became highly colored and at times were retained, then again I had a too frequent desire to pass them. I lost forty-five pounds in weight. The doctor said I had gravel. I was forced to take to my bed and a specialist who was called in consultation, said that the only thing for me was an operation. I wouldn't consent to this, however, and when I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills I started using them. After taking one box, I passed a large stone and then I felt better. The aches and pains left and I had more strength and energy. Doan's Kidney Pills certainly saved my life."

"Why, the way he deceives his wife is awful," said Hackett.

"I'm astonished," said the other "He's the last man I'd suspect of anything of the kind. What has he been doing?"

"Well, his wife's in Italy," said Hackett, "and he has to stay down at the office nearly every evening to copy with his own hand the nice, gossipy letter his stenographer has written for him during the day."

Troubles for Him.

The big cousin was talking to the small one. "Bury," she said, "are you anxious to be a man?"

"Sure I am," the six-year-old answered promptly.

"Why? When you're grown up you'll just have a peck of troubles."

"I won't," drawled Bury, confidently. "When I'm a man I won't have any troubles, 'cause I'm goin' to be a bachelor."

Self-Protection.

"I always take my wife with me when I buy a new hat."

"That's considerate."

"No it isn't. If I buy one by myself she blames me for the way I look in it. If she goes along, I blame her."

Unsuccessful.

"He'll never make a success in life." "I should say not! He says he is perfectly contented not to be wealthy."

When? Never!

Representative Henry of Texas, apropos of an international alliance that had turned out disadvantageously, said: "When will American girls learn that you can't judge a book by its title, nor a man by his?"

Way Back.

The Lady—You say the dog has a long pedigree? The Dealer—Yes, marm, 'e has. One of 'is ancestors chewed off th' corner of th' Magny Charty, an' another of 'em bit a hole in good King Halfred. Yes, marm.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Taking Precautions.

"Mother," said little Bob, who is devoted to his tender maternal comrade but strong in his individual tastes and fancies, "I like everything you cook except spinach."

"But, dear," smiled mother, "I never do cook spinach."

"I know it, mother," the little lad smiled back quaintly, "but I just said it so you never will."

Wanted Explaining.

Old Pompous had been addressing a meeting of the Puddleton Young Men's Weary Wednesday Evenings. He had bored them steadily for three long hours and was now at the climax of his twaddle.

"Be indolent! Shun indolence!" he exhorted his yawning audience. "Remember always that sloth is the parent of necessity!"

He paused impressively. Immediately a drawing voice came from the back of the hall.

"I say," it called, "I've heard it said as 'ow necessity is the mother of invention. If so be as it—and you're right, too—then sloth is invention's grandmother, and summat's wrong somewheer!"—Answers.

Matter of Economy.

"So you have given your wife your word that you will favor votes for women?"

"Yes," replied the man who dislikes argument.

"What are your reasons for doing so?"

"It's cheaper. If I say I'm not in favor of votes for women, it's liable to hurt my wife's feelings so that it will take as much as a diamond necklace to enable me to square myself."—Washington Star.

Between the Acts.

"That man who just came in has a strong face."

"Yes, and a breath to match." The counterfeiter makes money dishonestly, but there are others.

Right Food Works Wonders It is often the case that people drift into wrong habits of food, although they should know better. When one gets into trouble of this sort it's a fine thing to know how to get out of it. The "food route" is the common sense way back to health and comfort. Grape-Nuts FOOD is made of wheat and barley, so perfectly cooked that it is partially pre-digested and contains the vital tissue-making elements required for the daily rebuilding of body and brain. Grape-Nuts food is delicious and economical; and for breakfast regularly, helps mightily to put one in mental and physical condition for a good day's work. "There's a Reason" Grocers everywhere sell Grape-Nuts.

on one plate to each person. Mr. Placeway said this manner of eating was something difficult to become accustomed to, but you have to harden yourself to it or starve.

The Germans pursue intensive farming on small farms the largest of which are hardly more than three acres. A farmer with that amount of land is wealthy, according to their idea of this world's goods. The United States throws away, in her stock yards alone, enough food stuff to keep half the German nation. They are a very thrifty people, making use of every natural advantage which comes to hand. A wage earner receiving a salary of $6.00 per week, American money, or 24 marks in German valuation is some 'pumpkin' in the old country. A man with a $10,000 fortune in this country would be equal to an American millionaire in Germany or Austria, as the Austrian valuation is five times greater than ours, $1. American, being 5 Krone in Austria or equal to 4 Marks in Germany. They are a prosperous nation and yet are working on their farms and in their factories with no modern machinery to lessen the tediousness of their toil.

The Germans are a sturdy nation, intensely patriotic and will fight to the last man for the preservation of their country. They are well drilled, every man. In fact every boy has to serve a given time under army discipline after he has reached a certain age. Even the street cleaner on the streets of Berlin is an officer and if he tells a passer-by to pick up a loose piece of rubbish from the streets he must either do as he is told or suffer arrest. A man must serve 12 years in the army before he can become a member of the police force. In fact no position of any value can be obtained throughout the whole German empire unless time has first been spent in the standing army. Russia, it is true, has held Germany back by mere force of numbers but they are not a powerful nation. The people are an oppressed people who are fighting because they are forced to fight by the Czar, not because they are loyal, free-hearted to their ruler, as is the case with the Germans. The Russians are even willing to drop their guns at the approach of the German army and without resistance on their part to become Germany prisoners of war. Just at present the Germans are finding themselves lacking in food supplies. Every man, woman or child must first have a bread ticket from the police before they are allowed a loaf of the staff of life. A man and his wife are limited to 2 loaves of bread each, a week. Children under sixteen years of age can only have one loaf of bread each, a week from the officers.

While he lived in Berlin he and his wife were only situated about three blocks from the Kaiser's home. The cities of Germany are cities of stone and no buildings are more than three stories in height. The tall sky-scrapers of New York City did not appeal to Mrs. Placeway and wooden stores and dwelling houses were something which she knew not of. Mr. and Mrs. Placeway left Berlin on Feb. 2 and went by rail to Rotterdam and thence by train to Flushing on the boundary line between France and Belgium. From there they obtained passage on a ship to Folkestone, England. From Folkestone a 2 1/2 hour railroad journey brought them to London.

From London they made a 6 hour journey by rail to Liverpool and there obtained passage to New York City, which last journey took them 10 days to accomplish. The ship they made the voyage on was launched last November and this trip was her maiden effort. They sailed in darkness with the exception of lights at the mast-head. As soon as night fell, even the port-holes were covered with black paper. Every precaution had to be taken for fear of the ship being blown up by an enemy. The whole trip from Berlin to New York City cost Mr. and Mrs. Placeway about $700, the voyage alone costing them $126.00.

Mr. Placeway had trouble in obtaining his pass-ports to leave the war infested country. His American citizenship papers which he always held to as to gold finally gained him his freedom. Pass-ports are being stolen from the mails that men may leave the country and not be forced into the turmoil of battle. Had not Placeway proved himself unmis-takeably an American citizen, he would have been held indefinitely by the enemy as an English prisoner of war.

The reporters for the New York papers meet all the incoming boats from Europe, chancing to get fresh news from the war country and singled out Placeway at once because he was English speaking. He was offered $10.00 to answer their questions, but was too worn out after his strenuous voyage to be interviewed. From rumors which he has heard, he thinks the war will terminate late this summer. No one can tell the outcome, as the powers at war are too evenly matched.

Mr. Placeway has roamed from the Atlantic to the Pacific in America and toured nearly all of Europe but his loyalty for Michigan has led him home for good. He has not yet decided what occupation he will now pursue, but he does know that Michigan will be his future home for all time.

New Drug Law

The Harrison Anti-Narcotic Law which becomes effective March 1st, 1915, is an internal revenue law to regulate the traffic in Opium and Coco and preparations thereof and applies directly to all importers of such drugs and chemicals, all manufacturers, jobbers, institutions, retail druggists, physicians, dentists and veterinarians. The law in part is as follows: Persons purchasing any of the above substances for internal use can be done only through prescriptions, and the latter must be signed in full by the doctor prescribing, together with his registry number and address; the prescription must have on it the full name of the patient with residence and date, and a receipt must be obtained from the individual receiving the medicine.

We publish the above for the benefit of our readers so that they will not think it strange when the druggist who fills their prescription will demand the above rules as prescribed by law.

CURLETT'S SMOOTHING OIL FOR MAN OR BEAST

For the removal of strains, sprains, bruises, puffs, swellings and bunches, except bony ones, without blistering, and for healing sores, leaving no scars, and the hair that grows in is the natural color, and it is a hair grower, and for healing sores under the collar, on top of the neck and under the saddle while working the horse every day—except on swerver or hitcher on which the sores will get no larger while working if CURLETT'S SMOOTHING OIL is put on night and morning, but lay the horse idle a few days and they are healed. For removing bunches under the collar, on top of the neck and under the saddle while working the horse every day, does not make any difference whether they are on swerver or hitcher in these cases. Will cure a cocked ankle, and use your horse by rubbing around ankle every day, and will also cure knee sprung by rubbing on big muscles on back part of leg both above and below knee. Will remove a bunch "as hard as a stone" if you can move it—not bony. Cures sweeney in one or two weeks, and work the horse every day, and for the curing of speed cracks in two or three days, scratches three or four days to a week, grease heel from one to three months, according to the person who is taking care of the horse—care is one half the cure—and all the care is to apply CURLETT'S SMOOTHING OIL once a day and avoid using soap and water as much as possible, same as you would for speed cracks and scratches. You will be surprised how quick it will cure pimples and itchiness of the skin; piles, external rub on, and internal inject in at bedtime with a small syringe. Will remove bunions and the pain or burning of feet, if not encased in too tight or short a shoe, and painful and rheumatic swellings. One of the best remedies for chilblains. Use CURLETT'S SMOOTHING OIL anywhere you would use a liniment or ointment.

CURLETT'S HEAVE REMEDY

A Relief, Benefit, Help and Cure for Coughs, Colds, Distemper, Short or Thick Wind, Heaves and Bellus Heaves in the Early Stages and warranted to relieve in advanced stages, if not producing a cure. This is very strongly recommended for producing a fine, smooth skin and freeing the blood from gross humors. A horse is better able to work by each dose and will increase in flesh, muscle, life and vim. It costs $2.00 to $6.00 to cure a case of Heaves, and it may cost $8.00 to cure some old Heaver. You can cure a Heave in winter cheaper than in summer as the winter air acts as a bracing tonic and more easily when working as the horse gets fresh air and exercise.

CURLETT'S THRUSH REMEDY

Grows out and thickens any part of Hoof or Frog that you put it on, no good for corns. Cures Thrush one to three applications, grows out a new frog one to three applications, make the frog healthy, grows itself. Grows together and out Sand Crack, Quarter Crack, Cracked Heels, Thickens a Shell Hoof and grows out the Shell of a hoof like the hoof on a big heavy horse or flat foot horse; one application generally cures Nail Pricks, Pussey Foot, Corking above hoof and Ringworm or Ring-Around. Hoof Corking requires several applications same as hoof cracks and the thickening and growing out shell of hoof. CURLETT'S PINWORM REMEDY A Compound, Three Doses effectually removes these Troublesome Parasites from Man or Beast.
