UNCLE SAM AIDING THE UNEMPLOYED

The U. S. Department of Labor has recently extended its system of employment offices so that now there are branch offices in every important city in the United States. These offices have been located centrally in the territory which has been assigned to them in order that help may be directed quickly to any applicants. The first office to be opened by the Government was in New York City. This office has been in operation for a number of years and has proved quite successful. During the early part of the year offices were opened in zone and sub zones, Chicago being in charge of a zone with Detroit and Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, known as sub-zone offices. The State of Michigan has been divided into districts and assigned to these three stations, the Upper Peninsula being assigned to the office at Sault Ste. Marie and the Lower peninsula to Detroit, with the exception of a few counties in the south-western part of the state which are more easily reached from Chicago.

At the time these offices were opened the efforts of the Department were directed solely toward supplying the farmers with help. Applications for help came in from farmers in all sections of the country, and the help was promptly supplied. Because of the success with which this office has met, the Department has now ordered that service be extended so as to include all classes of help, both skilled and unskilled. All offices are now prepared to receive applications from employers for all classes of workmen. The proper blanks for use in making applications for help may be obtained from any post-master in the United States or from the Distribution Branch. Farmers or other employers needing help should communicate with the nearest office addressing: Distribution Branch, U. S. Immigration Service, at Detroit, Michigan; Chicago, Illinois; or Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan; stating their requirements in full. An applicant for work suiting these requirements is then selected and directed to the position offered.

Communication

Pinckney, March 31, 1915
Editor Dispatch:—

Please insert this notice in duty to my conscience and firmly believing that it is better for the country in which I live.

I do hereby withdraw and sever my connection with the Democratic Party of this township and further that I will not attend another democratic caucus in this township or advise the nomination of any democrat for office; but will exercise my constitutional right in selecting such men from the different parties as I think will be fair and honest with all tax-payers of the township and to the democratic party of the township of Putnam. I bid an everlasting good-by. (Signed)

Board of Review, Wales Leland.
Constables, Fred Dalton, G. O. Fish, Will Alexander and S. H. Carr.

Annual Exhibit of School

Friday afternoon, March 26th, occurred the annual exhibit of the Pinckney High School. An excellent program was rendered by pupils, representing each grade in the entire school, consisting of music, recitations and dialogues. Each pupil, without any exception, showed excellent training, results which had been accomplished by a very efficient corps of teachers.

The High School room, where the exercises were held, was prettily decorated with colored bunting. A large number of townspeople were in attendance and showed their appreciation of the fine program by round after round of applause.

At the close of the entertainment the people were invited to inspect the work which had been accomplished by the pupils of the various grades during the school year. Here again was shown the untiring efforts of both teachers and pupils to make the Pinckney School one of the best of its size in the state.

Two Years to Decide

On a line of stock and poultry remedies and at last I have it.

The National brand of remedies comprise everything desirable in the way of remedies for the common diseases which do not require the attention of a veterinary.

There are a thousand and one lines of veterinary remedies on the market, but the line I have selected has only those remedies which absolutely produce results, and each one is backed up with an iron clad guarantee or money refunded.

I used the same care and judgement in selecting this line, that I have used in every other line in my store, therefore you are assured of quality. Quality is my watchword and price my second consideration, so always look for quality in this store.

If I can't sell you an article that is right I DON'T care to sell you anything, that is why my business has been a success from the start and is increasing a little each year.

One more word about the National line. It has a hog cholera remedy that is a positive cure; next time you are down town let me tell YOU about it.

As Spring and Summer advance the people of this locality will need more supplies than during the past six months. During the past few weeks we have had many inquiries in regard to our plan of handling our sales for the coming season

Cash or Credit?

We have replied "Both Cash and Credit" and at this time wish to make the statement general. Our reasons for following this plan are:

- 1 Most business today, even the business of our government, is done on a credit basis.
- 2 We have been highly favored by the people of this vicinity for the past five years.
- 3 Our customers trust our honesty so we should have complete confidence in them.
- 4 We are privileged to buy our goods on time, therefore we can extend credit to our customers.

According to our plan which we will adopt April 1st, the amount of credit extended to each customer will be limited. We will allow six months time on credit accounts. Accounts must be settled by cash or bankable note when due. We will allow a special discount on cash sales amounting to $1. or more. Please bear in mind that we will continue to make our selection of merchandise from the best goods on the market and will sell them to you at the lowest price possible.

HERE PILATE SAID: "BEHOLD THE MAN"

WHERE SIMON TOOK THE CROSS

BLOODS AT THE RIVER JORDAN

EASTER in the Holy Land is the most impressive occasion of the year, for thither throng pilgrims from all parts of the Christian world, deeply reverent with the spirit of the season. In Jerusalem they follow in the footsteps of Jesus on his march to the cross, and the procession that leaves the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, bearing a huge cross, and makes its way along the Via Dolorosa, offering supplications at the stations of the cross, is a spectacle that never grows dim in the memory.

Here, in the setting of the most profound tragedy in the history of the world, is incarnated the eternal spirit that had its expression 2,000 years ago, defying time and death and sweetening the world with tenderness and love. Incense from fire and the incense of prayer rise along the way, and hearts are hymned to tears, while the stolid Moslem looks on with impassive face.

Next to a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, the bathing in the river Jordan is one of the precious experiences of the peasants from Russia, Greece, Bulgaria, Turkey and other countries. Thousands journey to this holy stream to bathe, that they may be washed clean of their sins. And in the joy of the cleansing, those who are compelled to remain at home are not forgotten. So every pilgrim fills a bottle with the sacred water to be taken back on the tedious journey.

These reverent people even go to the extent of taking home branches and shrubs growing along the banks of the river. But one of the most picturesque sights is the carrying away of sacred fire from the Church of the Holy Sepulcher.

The pilgrims light their candles at the shrine, and, jealously guarding the little flame from capricious winds and drafts, make the journey to Jaffa, board ship, and, throughout the sea voyage, often to the end of a rough journey over mountains by the most primitive means of transportation, unceasingly guard the treasure until they finally arrive among the expectant stay-at-homes with their blessings of fire and water.

Pilgrims recall one Holy Week when, in upon the peaceful spirit of adoration, came the menace of Christian massacre—so the first alarm told it—and in a few minutes the streets, swarming with picturesque crowds, were deserted, the shops and bazaars closed. But when the garrison of the city marched through the streets, headed by the band to allay the fears of the Christians, the Moslem population turned out—not to rise against the infidel, but just like the inhabitants of any western city—to see the parade go by.

Easter celebrations take on varied aspects all over the world, with curious customs and usages in the rural districts and spots remote from the great traveled highways. But it is in the foreign cities that one often sees the expression of the big, impressively picturesque note. This is especially so of the Latin countries. In Spain, for instance, one sees it, as well as in Italy and in France.

But in all countries, though it is the time of outpouring, it is largely judged from an individual standpoint. Easter in New York is different from Easter in Rome; and so the contrast may be carried along between many places. What is Easter to one man may not at all approach what another conceives to be the day—it may be too destitute of form and show, or too prodigal of it.

Fields of Lilies.

Loveliest, perhaps of all the sights of nature are the fields of Bermuda lilies when in bloom. The vast undulating field of lilies rises and falls like an ocean of pearly white, and a vague, sweet perfume permeates everywhere. Sailing and boating are naturally among the principal pastimes of Bermuda.

IN THE SEASON OF REBIRTH

Mankind Can See in Nature Awakening an Appeal to His Spiritual Feelings.

Between the penitential season of the religious year, which Ash Wednesday opens, and the weather of winter's decay and of spring's renewing, is a mysterious bond of similarity which enhances the meaning of the observance. In the order of nature it is a time of the sloughing off of the old and the quickening of the new; of the release of earth and streams from icy fetters and snow burial, and the deep, secret stirrings of new life. And these, if we will, are but the symbols of what may stir and quicken in us under the influence of this season of self-denials, both of the great things and of the small. It is the season which reaffirms the mystery which, like death, no man understands until he has passed its portals by experience; the mystery, namely, that it is only by giving up that we acquire the greatest gifts of life. We know that the principle holds in the little things, yet the fear of trying it in the great things is such that comparatively few ever bring themselves to the supreme point, and they, their selves forgotten.

EASTER.

Lo! Morning breaks! The shades of night melt as a scroll in burning light: First day, creation's morn, the dawn Of this when life anew is born, Begotten of the parting breath, The pang and agony of death: Brought forth, to human view displayed, In resurrected flesh arrayed. Arisen, to rise to highest height, Beyond the gaze of mortal sight. Great mystery divine! We bow In solemn reverence, for now Knowledge and reason fail to guide, But faith is ever on our side To whisper hope and lift our eyes From empty tomb to yonder skies.

spend the rest of their lives striving to tell their truth to others who will not believe until they, too, have passed through at the same gate of their own free will. Then follows the eternal paradox—that those who have given up their lives, with no thought of a reward, are given back in another form, all they have given up, and a great deal more besides, and they who supposed that they had destroyed all selfhood see as, through the eyes of another, their self living and transmitting its force and influence to the coming generations. It may be in the mighty legend of a great life, it may be in the obscure usefulness of a life of infinite consequences which the world never hears of.

The Easter Hymn

Interested.
"My dear, you ought to pass up trivial things and take an interest in deep subjects. Take history, for instance. Here is an interesting item. Gessler, the tyrant, put up a hat for the Swiss to salute."
The lady was a trifle interested.
"How was it trimmed?" she inquired.

Rice vs. Coal.

"It's cheaper to burn rice in a coole than coal under a boiler," said Thomas P. Reed, New York editor of the Mining Press, to members of the University of Washington chapter of Tau Beta Pi, last week. He was explaining why hand labor is used more than machinery in China.

Citizens should get an early start this year in making up their minds to use proper care in burning rubbish when doing their spring clean-up work. Each spring many fires result from the fact that rubbish piles are burned either too near to buildings, are left in charge of incompetent persons, are started on windy days or are left alone thought to be dead, when in fact they are just slumbering.

Five children were born to this union, four sons and one daughter, David and George dying in infancy and Annie at the age of ten years, only two sons Wheeler and Smith Martin surviving the deceased, also one brother, Albert M. Martin of Granville, N. Y.

Mr. Martin has been an invalid for seven years, caused by a paralytic stroke which developed into a complication of diseases, which caused his death March 22, 1915.

The funeral was held at his late home, Thursday, March 25, 1915, Rev. Ostrander, officiating.

Old Dutch Customs.

In the fishing districts and on the farms of Holland the old time Dutch customs are still to be found. The quaint costume of the women, with the ancient headdress and the full skirts remains the pride of the Holland hausvrou (housewife), and the men, with their wide, baggy trousers, are no less picturesque. The milkmaid with her two milk cans, polished like silver and swung from a specially built shoulder yoke, is a feature of the street scene in any village.

Some Victims of La Grippe Never Fully Recover the Health of the Lungs

La Grippe and Bronchial Coughs Often Result in Pneumonia and Weak Lungs Lead to Tuberculosis.

THERE'S the reason why you should not have a severe case of grippe and pneumonia. They're dangerous. FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR masters them quickly, and leaves the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs in a sound, healthy condition.

MRS. T. A. TOWNE, Watertown, S. D. says: "I had a severe case of grippe and pneumonia. After recovering somewhat, my lungs never cleared up, and I suffered severely from congestion. I bought a bottle of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR, and it cured me."

J. D. HINTERKIN, Winston, Ga., writes: "I had a terrible attack of pneumonia, both lungs involved. After recovering somewhat, my lungs never cleared up, and I suffered severely from congestion. I bought a bottle of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR, and it cured me."

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR has a record of successful healing that no other cough medicine can equal. It is absolutely free of opiates and is the favorite cough medicine of a majority of people. Use it for all coughs, colds, whooping cough, bronchitis and all other coughs. It will not disappoint, or harm the most delicate person.

For the Dancing Floor.
From year to year various substances are suggested, tried out, found satisfactory and then superseded by others to produce smooth dancing floors. Now corn meal is looked upon as the best polisher of the dancing floor. It is sprinkled over the floor, not too liberally, and rubbed in by the dancing feet.

Comfortable Reading.
If reading is a part of our daily work, it ought to be comfortably done for the sake of our health. If it is a part of our daily recreation, for the sake of our happiness as well as our health, it should be made as delightful and pleasant an occupation as possible.

Legal Holidays.
The general (presidential) election is a legal holiday in all the states except Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Maine, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Carolina, Utah, Vermont, Ohio, Kansas and West Virginia.

Popularity.
Popularity, in the lowest and most common sense, is not worth having. Do your duty to the best of your power, win the approbation of your own conscience, and popularity, in its best and highest sense, is sure to follow.—Sir John Parkington.

Shown by the Mv.
"A bright and sparkling eye," observes Darwin, "is characteristic of a pleased or amused state of mind, as is the retraction of the corners of the mouth and upper lip, with the wrinkles thus produced. Even the eyes of microcephalous idiots, who are so degraded that they never learn to speak, brighten slightly when they are pleased."

Keep Up Belief.
Believe in yourself, believe in humanity—believe in the success of your undertakings. Fear nothing and no one. Love your work. Work, hope, trust. Keep in touch with today. Teach yourself to be practical, up-to-date and sensible. You cannot fail.—Selected.

Electricity and Lightning.
Benjamin Franklin was the first to prove the identity of lightning with electricity. The idea of electricity dates from the time when the ancients wondered to see amber, when rubbed, pick up bits of straw, and the lodestone draw bits of iron.

Havana's Water Supply.
For more than three hundred years the water supply of the city of Havana was carried through an open ditch, built in 1592. The supply originated at the springs of the Almendares river, nine miles south of the city, and this source still provides an adequate flow, for the springs, which have since been fully developed, number 400 and are enclosed by a heavy wall of masonry which is constantly under military guard. An aqueduct has long since supplanted the ditch.

Cold Feet Cause Broken Sleep.
A common cause for restlessness at night is found in cold feet, and these should be especially guarded against with children who are prone to suffer in this way. Hot water bottles, carefully covered with felt so that there is no risk of burning the sensitive skin, should be resorted to when any tendency to cold feet exists, and in cases of chilly babies generally, cold is extremely bad for little children, and much broken sleep is due simply to it.

Good Medicine.
A faithful friend is the medicine of life, we are told in the book of Ecclesiastes.

LOST SUBMARINE HAS BEEN LOCATED

DIVER ESTABLISHES WORLD RECORD IN SEARCHING TRIP TO BOTTOM.

NO LONGER HOPE FOR CREW

Submerged Vessel of U. S. Hawaiian Division Lies Just Outside of the Harbor of Honolulu.

Honolulu—The submerged submarine F-4 has been located outside the harbor, it was announced Sunday night. Portions of the superstructure have been brought to the surface. All hope of finding any of her crew alive was abandoned Saturday.

The positive statement was made here by Naval Constructor Julius A. Furer that the four submarines of the Hawaiian division were examined as to their stability only a month ago. He said that all were found in good condition.

Earlier in the day there was bitter disappointment for the searchers when it was found by divers that what was supposed to have been the F-4, caught by grappling irons Saturday, was merely the anchor of a warship, supposed to be one lost by the Oregon.

Divers Agraz and Evans went down the two cables thought to have been attached to the submarine. Agraz, who went down the cable attached to the anchor, wore only a helmet. Diver Evans, who descended along the second cable, reported that he found nothing at the bottom.

Agraz, whose descent to a depth of 215 feet is said by naval authorities to be a world's record, spent 22 minutes on the downward journey and 9 1-2 minutes in the ascent. The experience apparently caused him no distress.

DEMAND TAKING OF TRENT

Mass Meeting in Rome Cheers Warlike Sentiments of Speakers.

Rome, via Paris—A large mass meeting was held here Sunday by Italians who favor the taking of Trent, Trieste and Dalmatia. Forces of troops were present to prevent disorders.

A resolution was unanimously passed requesting the government to obtain "by arms, the frontiers of Italy." After the meeting the crowd attempted to reach the Austrian embassy, but was charged by the troops and dispersed. Several arrests were made.

Among those in attendance were senators, deputies and aldermen, and the representatives of more than 6,000 clubs and associations. Several orators made addresses, among them Signor Barsellai, a native of Trieste, who has been deputy for Rome for 25 years.

He was greeted enthusiastically when he said the moment had arrived to take Trent, the key to the north and the door to the Adriatic.

OKUMA WINS WARM CAMPAIGN

Government Militarist Party Victors in Japanese Election.

Washington—Returns from Thursday's elections in Japan, cabled to the Japanese embassy here Sunday, show that the government party, which favors increase of military strength, will have a large majority in the new house of representatives.

In support of the government there will be 231 members out of a total of 381, in the new house.

The Seiyukai, or chief opposition party, elected 108 members and the nationalists and independents opposed to the cabinet elected 37.

The elections held Thursday followed an exciting campaign in the course of which the premier of the cabinet, Count Okuma, made a whirlwind tour of the country in a special train, while wives of a number of candidates made personal visits and appeals to the voters.

TELEGRAPHIC FLASHES

Paris—The Duke de Montmorency, a prominent figure in the court of Napoleon III, died Thursday night at the age of 78 years.

Sault Ste. Marie—Superintendent L. H. Davis, of the Michigan Northern Power company, announced Sunday that work on the regulating and compensation works above the rapids in St. Mary's river would be started at once.

Our Speech.

Our very vocabulary is degraded; the most far-reaching symbols of our language come seldom into use, or appear with diminished meaning. Follow, for instance, the course of the word "infinite" through the annals of contemporary literature. Our phraseology has become carnal; our vital terms are terms of physical life. Nowhere is the limitation of contemporary thought more apparent than in these instruments of speech. One must read again Wordsworth, Shelley, Carlyle, Ruskin, Arnold, Meredith, to meet great words now little employed, words that make you realize the utmost reach of life; in so doing, one pauses in dismay, realizing how full contemporary speech is of lesser terms, how few employ the greater words that tell the inner life of the soul.—From the Atlantic.

JACKSON MAN EATS A SQUARE MEAL

A. W. Hobbs Ends Stomach Suffering Quickly With Wonderful Remedy.

A. W. Hobbs of 1801 East Main Street, Jackson, Mich., after about fifteen years of suffering from derangements of the stomach and digestive tract, took Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. He got the surprise of his life—and swift relief.

Mr. Hobbs has told his own story in a letter, part of which is given here. "After taking three doses of your stomach remedy I am in perfect condition. I have not felt so well for fifteen years."

"I can eat anything now and it does not distress me. I hope those affected as I was will proceed to get your remedy at once."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.—Adv.

Wealth has its penalties. You never hear of a poor man spending money for dyspepsia tablets.

IMMENSE QUANTITY OF WHEAT TIED UP

There Will Still, However, Be a Heavy Deficit of the World's Normal Crop.

A grain expert who has been watching the grain markets and the world's grain fields for a number of years, says:—

"There is at the present time about two billion bushels of wheat, the production of the countries at war, tied up. This is about one-half the world's total production of wheat, which is four billion bushels. One writer argues that, granting that the warring nations produce a one-half crop in the coming year, a deficit of one billion bushels will still be shown. The three countries upon which the filling of this deficit of one billion bushels will rest are the United States, Canada, and Argentina. The combined output of these three countries is only 1,249,000,000, their exportable surplus would of course be much less, so it can easily be seen that the question is not one to be easily solved and it behooves all the above countries to increase their respective productions as much as they possibly can, for when the war is over and trade begins to re-establish itself and the nations undergo a process of rehabilitation, the demand for all breadstuffs will be enormous."

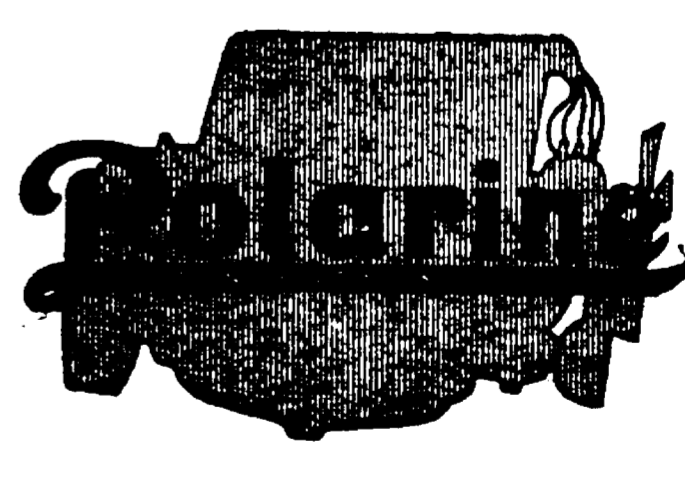

"During the three years following the declaration of peace the farmers of all neutral wheat-producing countries will have ample opportunity to market their wheat at good prices, and it may safely be assumed that the demand will be heavy. Canada has an unusual opportunity in that she has the natural environment for wheat production; she is under the protection of the British flag, and she will not be molested upon the water to any great extent; she can increase her acreage and greatly enhance her production. In other words, she can become a far greater wheat-producing country than she is at the present time."

If the summing-up as made by this expert be correct, is there not the very best reason for the continued effort that is being made by the Government of the Dominion of Canada to secure settlers on the productive vacant lands of the country? Not only are these lands capable of producing high class wheat in large quantities, but cattle, pigs, sheep and horses also do well. The climate is admirably suited.—Advertisement.

Purifying Gas With Electricity.
Electricity is being employed with success at a Detroit coke oven for the purpose of removing tar from artificial gas in the purifying process, says Popular Mechanics. The gas is passed through a highly ionized field, which is produced by a high-tension discharge of current ranging as high as 80,000 volts, with the result that the tar forms in large drops, which are then easily separated. There are no high-tension leads exposed, since the ionizer contains the transformer.

SYNOPSIS.

A curious crowd of neighbors invade the mysterious home of Judge Ostrander, county judge and eccentric recluse, following a yelled woman who proves to be the widow of a man tried before the judge and executed for murder years before. Her daughter is engaged to the judge's son, from whom he is estranged, but the murder is between the lovers. She plans to clear her husband's memory and asks the judge's aid. Deborah Scoville reads the newspaper clippings telling the story of the murder of Algonon Etheridge by John Scoville in Dark Hollow, twelve years before. The judge and Mrs. Scoville meet at Spencer's Folly and she shows him how, on the day of the murder, she saw the shadow of a man, while a stick and wearing a long peaked cap. The judge engages her and her daughter Reuther to live with him in his mysterious home. Deborah and her lawyer, Black, go to the police station and see the stick used to murder Etheridge. She discovers a broken knife-blade point embedded in it. Deborah and Reuther go to live with the judge. Deborah sees a portrait of Oliver, the judge's son, with a black band painted across the eyes. That night she finds in Oliver's room, a cap with a peak like the shadowed one, and a knife with a broken blade-point. Anonymous letters and a talk with Miss Weeks increase her suspicions and fears. She finds that Oliver was in the ravine on the murder night. Black warns her and shows her other anonymous letters hinting at Oliver's guilt. In the court room the judge is handed an anonymous note. The note is picked up and read aloud. A mob follows the judge to his home. Deborah tells him why suspicion has been aroused against Oliver. The judge shows Deborah a statement written by Oliver years ago telling how he saw her husband murder Spencer at Spencer's Folly on the night the house was burned. A vain attempt to silence the anonymous letter writer is made.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued.

"I didn't ask to see the ladies," protested Flannagan, turning with a slinking gait toward the door.

If they only had let him go! If the judge in his new self-confidence had not been so anxious to deepen the effect and make any future repetition of the situation impossible!

"You understand the lady," he interposed, with the quiet dignity which was so imposing on the bench. "She has no sympathy with your ideas and no faith in your conclusions. She believes absolutely in my son's innocence."

"Do you, ma'am?" The man had turned and was surveying her with the dogged impudence of his class. "I'd like to hear you say it, if you don't mind, ma'am. Perhaps, then, I'll believe it."

"I—" she began, trembling so, that she failed to reach her feet, although she made one spasmodic effort to do so. "I believe—Oh, I feel ill! It's been too much—I—" her head fell forward and she turned herself quite away from them all.

"You see, she ain't so eager, Judge, as you thought," laughed the bill-poster, with a clumsy bow he evidently meant to be sarcastic.

"Oh, what have I done!" moaned Deborah, starting up as though she would fling herself after the retreating figure, now half way down the hall.

She saw in the look of the judge as he forcibly stopped her, and heard in the lawyer's whisper as he bounded past them both to see the fellow out: "Useless; nothing will bridge him now;" and finding no support for her despairing spirit either on earth or, as she thought, in heaven, she collapsed where she sat and fell unnoticed to the floor, where she lay prone at the feet of the equally unconscious figure of the judge, fixed in another attack of his peculiar complaint.

And thus the lawyer found them when he returned from closing the gate behind Flannagan.

"I cannot say anything. I cannot do anything till I have had a few words with Mrs. Scoville. How soon do you think I can speak to her?"

"Not very soon. Her daughter says she is quite worn out. Would it not be better to give her a rest for tonight, Judge?"

The judge, now quite recovered, but strangely shrunk and wan, showed no surprise at this request, odd as it was, on the lips of this honest but somewhat crabbed lawyer, but answered out of the fulness of his own heart and from the depths of his preoccupation: "My necessity is greater than her."

The change I saw in her is inexplicable. One moment she was all fire and determination, satisfied of Oliver's innocence and eager to proclaim it. The next—but you were with us. You witnessed her hesitation—felt its force and what its effect was upon the damnable scamp who has our honor—the honor of the Ostrandere under his tongue. Something must have produced this change. What? Good friend, what?"

"I don't know any more than you do, Judge. But I think you are mistaken about the previous nature of her feelings. I noticed that she was not at peace with herself when she came into the room."

"What's that?" The tone was short, and for the first time irritable.

"The change, if there was a change, was not so sudden as you think. She looked troubled, and as I thought, irresolute when she came into the room."

"You don't know her; you don't know what passed between us. She was all right then, but—go to her, Black. She must have recovered by this time. Ask her to come here for a minute. I won't detain her. I will wait for her warning knock right here."

The judge had declared his necessity to be greater than hers, and after Mr. Black had subjected him to one of his most searching looks he decided that this was so, and quietly departed upon his errand. The judge left alone, sat, a brooding figure in his great chair, with no light in heart or mind to combat the shadows of approaching night settling heavier and heavier upon the room and upon himself with every slow passing and intolerable minute.

At last, when the final ray had departed and darkness reigned supreme, there came a low knock on the door. Then a troubled cry:

"Oh, Judge, are you here?"

"Don't come any nearer; it is not necessary." A pause, then the quick question ringing hollow from the darkness: "Why have your doubts returned? Why are you no longer the woman you were when not an hour ago and in this very spot you cried, 'I will be Oliver's advocate!'" Then, as no answer came—as minutes passed, and still no answer came, he spoke again and added: "I know that you are ill and exhausted—broken between duty and sympathy; but you must answer me, Mrs. Scoville. My affairs won't wait. I must know the truth and all the truth before this day is over."

"You shall." Her voice sounded hollow, too, and, oh, how weary! "You allowed the document you showed me to remain a little too long before my eyes. That last page—need I say it?"

"Say it."

"Shows—shows change, Judge Ostrander. Some words have been erased and new ones written in. They are not many, but—"

"I understand. I do not blame you, Deborah." The words came after a pause and very softly, almost as softly as her own, but which had sounded its low knell of doom through the darkness. "Too many stumbling-blocks in your way, Deborah, too much to combat. The most trusting heart must give way under such a strain. That page was tampered with. I tampered with it myself. I am not expert at forgery. I had better have left it, as he wrote it." Then after another silence, he added, with a certain vehemence: "We will struggle no longer, either you or I. The boy must come home. Prepare Reuther, or, if you think best, provide a place for her where she will be safe from the storm which bids fair to wreck us here. No, don't speak; just ask Mr. Black to return, will you?"

When Mr. Black re-entered the study, it was to find the room lighted and the judge bent over the table, writing.

"You are going to send for Oliver?" he queried.

The judge hesitated, then motioning Black to sit, said abruptly:

"What is Andrews' attitude in this matter?"

Andrews was Shelby's district attorney.

Black's answer was like the man.

"I saw him for one minute an hour ago. I think, at present, he is inclined to be both deaf and dumb, but if he's driven to action, he will act. And, Judge, the man Flannagan isn't going to stop where he is."

"Black, be merciful to my misery. What does this man know? Have you any idea?"

"No, Judge, I haven't. He's as tight as a drum—and as noisy. It is possible—just possible that he's as empty. A few days will tell."

"I cannot wait for a few days. I hardly feel as if I could wait a few hours. Oliver must come, even if—if the consequences are likely to be fatal. An Ostrander once accused cannot skulk. Oliver has been accused and—Send that!" he quickly cried, pulling forward the telegram he had written.

Mr. Black took up the telegram and read:

Come at once. Imperative. No delay and no excuse.

ARCHIBALD OSTRANDER.

"Mrs. Scoville will supply the address," continued the poor father. "You will see that it goes, and that its sending is kept secret. The answer, if any is sent, had better be directed to your office. What do you say, Black?"

"I am your friend, right straight through, Judge. Your friend."

"And my boy's adviser?"

"I'm a surly fellow, Judge. I have known you all these years, yet I've never expressed—never said what I even find it hard to say now, that—that my esteem is something more than esteem; that—that I'll do anything for you, Judge."

"I—we won't talk of that, Black. Tell Mrs. Scoville to keep me informed—and bring me any message that may come. The boy, even if he leaves the first thing in the morning, cannot get here before tomorrow night."

"Not possibly."

"He will telegraph. I shall hear from him. O God! the hours I must wait; my boy! my boy!"

It was nature's irrepressible cry. Black pressed his hand and went out with the telegram.

CHAPTER XV.

He Must Be Found.

Next morning an agitated confab took place at the gate, or rather between the two front gates. Mr. Black rang for admittance, and Mrs. Scoville answered the call.

"One moment, Mrs. Scoville. How can I tell the judge! Young Ostrander is gone—fled the city, and I can get no clue to his whereabouts. I have been burning the telegraph wires ever since the first dispatch, and this is the result. Where is Reuther?"

"At Miss Weeks. I had to command her to leave me alone with the judge. It's the first time I ever spoke unkindly to her. Have you the messages with you?"

He bundled them into her hand. "I will hand them in to him. We can do nothing less and nothing more. Then if he wants you, I will telephone."

"Mrs. Scoville—" she felt his hand laid softly on her shoulder—"there is some one else in this matter to consider besides Judge Ostrander."

"Reuther? Oh, don't I know it! She's not out of my mind a moment."

"Reuther is young, and has a gallant soul. I mean you, Mrs. Scoville, you. You are not to succumb to this trial. You have a future—a bright future—or should have. Do not endanger it by giving up all your strength now. It's precious, that strength, or would be."

"He must be found! Oliver must be found!" How the words rung in her ears. She had handed in the messages to the waiting father; she had uttered a word or two of explanation, and then, at his request, had left him. But his last cry followed her: "He must be found!"

Mr. Black looked serious.

"Fried or hope?" he asked.

"Desperation," she responded, with a guilty look about her. "Possibly, some hope is in it, too. Perhaps, he thinks that any charge of this nature must fall before Oliver's manly appearance. Whatever he thinks, there is but one thing to do: Find Oliver."

"Mrs. Scoville, the police have started upon that attempt. I got the tip this morning."

"We must forestall them. To satisfy the judge, Oliver must come of his own accord to face these charges."

"It's a brave stock. If Oliver gets his father's telegram he will come."

"But how are we to reach him? We are absolutely in the dark."

"If I could go to Detroit, I might strike some clue; but I cannot leave the judge. Mr. Black, he told me this morning when I carried in his breakfast that he should see no one and go nowhere till I brought him word that Oliver was in the house. The hermit life has begun again. What shall we do? Advise me in this emergency, for I feel as helpless as a child—as a lost child."

"You say you cannot go to Detroit. Shall I go? Court is adjourned. I know of nothing more important than Judge Ostrander's peace of mind—unless it is yours. I will go if you say so."

"Will it avail? Let me think. I knew him well, and yet not well enough to know where he would be most likely to go under impulse."

"There is some one who knows him better than you do."

"Reuther? Oh, she mustn't be told—"

"Yes, she must. She's our one adviser. Go for her—or send me."

"It won't be necessary. There's her ring at the gate. But, oh, Mr. Black, think again before you trouble this fragile child of mine with doubts and questions which make her mother tremble."

"She has sources of strength which you lack. She believes absolutely in Oliver's integrity. It will carry her through."

"Please let her in, Mr. Black. I will wait here while you tell her."

Mr. Black hurried from the room. When his form became visible on the walk without, Deborah watched him from where she stood far back in the room. A staff had been put in her hand, rough to the touch, but firm under pressure, and she needed such a staff. But she forgot gratitude and every lesser emotion in watching Reuther's expression. The young girl, running into her arms, burst out with the glad cry:

"Oliver is no longer in Detroit, but he's wanted here, and Mr. Black and I are going to find him. I think I know where to look. Get me ready, mother dear; we are going tonight."

"But," objected Deborah, "if you know where to look for him, why take the child? Why go yourself? Why not telegraph to these places?"

His answer was a look, quick, sharp and enigmatical enough to require explanation. He could not give it to her then, but later, when Reuther had left them, he said:

"Men who fly their engagements and secrete themselves, with or without a pretext, are not so easily reached. We shall have to surprise Oliver Ostrander, in order to place his father's message in his hands."

"You may be right. But Reuther? Can she stand the excitement—the physical strain?"

"You have the harder task of the two, Mrs. Scoville. Leave the little one to me. She shall not suffer."

Deborah's response was eloquent. It was only a look, but it made his harsh features glow and his hard eye soften.

But his thoughts, if not his hopes, received a check when, with every plan made and Reuther in trembling anticipation of the journey, he encountered the triumphant figure of Flannagan coming out of police headquarters.

His jaunty air, his complaisant nod, admitted of but one explanation. He had told his story to the chief authorities and been listened to. Proof that he had something of actual moment to tell them; something which the district attorney's office might feel bound to take up.

A night of stars, seen through swaying treetops whose leaves crisping to their fall, murmured gently of vanished hopes and approaching death.

Below, a long, low building with a lighted window here and there, surrounded by a heavy growth of trees which are but the earnest of the illimitable stretch of the Adirondack woods which painted darkness on the encircling horizon.

Within, Reuther seated in the glow of a hospitable fire of great logs, talking earnestly to Mr. Black. As they were placed, he could see her much better than she could see him, his back being to the blaze and she, in its direct glare.

He could, therefore, study her features without offense, and this he did steadily and with deep interest, all the while she was talking. He was looking for signs of physical weakness or fatigue; but he found none. The pallor of her features was a natural pallor, and in their expression, new forces were becoming apparent, which gave him encouragement, rather than anxiety, for the adventure whose most trying events lay still before them.

This is what she was saying:

"I cannot point to any one man of the many who have been about us ever since we started north. But that we have been watched and our route followed, I feel quite convinced. But, as you saw, no one besides ourselves left the cars at this station, and I am beginning to hope that we shall remain unmolested till we can take the trip to Tempest Lodge. How far is it, Mr. Black?"

Choice of Evils.

Miss Young—I warn you against marrying that man, dear. I'm sure he will lead a double life.

Miss Older—Well, if I don't marry him I'll have to lead a single one and that's worse.

There are times when a lie would look better in print than the facts.

MRS. WILLIAMS' LONG SICKNESS

Yields To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SADIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Obituary

Little Wanda Afton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mitchell was born Nov. 28th, 1913. She was truly a little sunbeam which brightened and cheered the home for the short period of 1 year, 3 months and 25 days. March 25, God in his kind providence removed the dear one to the little mansion prepared for her above. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of their many friends in the community in which they live.

Dear Wanda, thou hast left us
And our loss we deeply feel
But 'tis God that bereft us
He can all our sorrows heal.
We would wish thee back to cheer us
With thy loving ways again
We would have our darling near us
But to ask, would be in vain.
We shall think of thee as dwelling
Where the loved and true are blest
Where the songs of joy are swelling
In the home of endless rest.
Yet again we hope to meet thee
When the day of life is fled
And in heaven with joy to greet thee
Where no farewell tear is shed.

Card of Thanks

We are sincerely grateful to our friends and neighbors for their many deeds of kindness during our bereavement. We also thank the Pastor for his comforting words, the girls for their tender words of song, the donors of the beautiful flowers and the undertaker for his services. May you receive as kindly attentions in your hour of trial.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mitchell.

Don't Make The Mistake

Of thinking that you're saving money by not advertising that old furniture in the garret; those useless implements in the shed; that old buggy in the barn; that cow you want to sell if you had a buyer—all the things for which you have no use. As a matter of fact you are saving money for the want ad, but sacrificing the dollars that might be gained by making the sales, to say nothing of the satisfaction of trading useless stuff (to you) for actual money, and letting someone else take what you have to use. There's hardly anything that someone can't use—read the Want Ads today and see. Use them yourself at 1c per word.

Dray Line Sold

Jesse Richardson has sold his dray business to Paul Miller who took possession this morning. As village drayman Mr. Richardson has always been very accommodating. He has not as yet decided what business he will pursue, as far as we can learn at this writing. The dray business is not a new one to Mr. Miller. May success attend his business venture.

Temperance

The recent local elections in Minnesota show large gains for the "dry" side.

Out of 246 towns and cities in Vermont, only nineteen voted in favor of licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors at the elections just held.

The city of Bellefontaine, Ohio, went dry recently by a majority of 291, in the largest vote ever polled. Everything considered, this was one of the most sweeping victories secured by Ohio dries. Last fall in the statewide election Bellefontaine gave a majority against prohibition.

The United States court of appeals, fourth district, has handed down a decision in a West Virginia case, fully upholding the Webb interstate law. As a result the express companies will ship no more liquor into that state. Cincinnati liquor dealers estimate they will lose business to the extent of $1,000,000 a year in consequence.

Annual Township Meeting

Notice is hereby given to the qualified Electors of the township of Putnam, County of Livingston, State of Michigan, that the next ensuing Annual Township Meeting will be held at the town hall, Pinckney, Michigan, within said township, on

Plant Cucumbers

According to statements given out by the Bean Growers Association, the bean acreage this year will be the largest in the history of Michigan. Should there be a large crop, beans will be low this fall. Why not plant an acre or two of cucumbers? The main part of the work comes in August when work on the farm is slack, and money scarce. We pay every 15 days and give a guaranteed price and furnish seed free.
