The Pennsylvania railroad has decided not to seek the renewal of licenses for the sale of liquor now held in Broad Street station, Philterminal of the railroad. Up until May of last year, three restaurants of the railroad sold booze. On May 1, 1914, the liquor branch of the restaurant in Pittsburg was abolished, now the others must go. ory here.

Since the city of Fort Smith, Ark., became dry in August last, the criminal business has been declining until the policemen are scouring the suburbs in order to find enough to do to hold their jobs. The city jail is empty, and the night jailor has been discharged. Half of the police force has been discharged since the city went dry, and other expenses have been reduced.

On January 1, 1916, all advertisements of liquor will be eliminated from the billboards of the United States and Canada. The board of directors of the Poster Advertising Association, which controls the boards in 4,000 towns has so decided. No liquor contracts will be accepted after May existence must terminate by Dec. 13, 1915.

Beautiful Shrubs That Protect Bulbs.

WHEN TO PLANT BULBS

By MRS. JOHN FIELD. Hardy bulbs should be planted as early in the fall as possible.

Dealers will not begin sending out bulbs much before the latter part of September. Early orders get the best bulbs.

The best soil for bulbs for the house is a rich loam mixed with sand. If too heavy, add turfy matter to lighten it.

Always choose a well-drained locality for your bulb-seed; if not naturally so, put at least six inches of broken creekery, pieces of brick, old shoes, old bones, and the like in the bottom of the bed.

Never take bulbs out of the package the florist sends them in until you are ready to plant them.

September is a good time to root cuttings taken from soft wood plants, but the "bloomers" for the house should have been slipped and rooted last May or June. Cuttings taken as. late as September of the new halfripened wood of many annuals and perennials will make nice house plants and some of these should bear flowers if well cared for.

THE HOUSE PLANTS

By H. B. DORNER.

In the potting of house plants you can mix the proper soil yourself if you know the needs of the different plants. Take some old blue grass sod and pile it up until it rots, and you will have the ideal form of decayed vegetable matter for the principal constituent of all kinds of soil for potted plants. There are three kinds of potting soil, as follows:

For geraniums and the ordinary varieties of blooming plants.-Three parts loam from the rotted sod, one part well rotted manure and one part sand if the soil is heavy.

For ferns, begonias and such foliage plants.—Two parts loam, one part leaf mold or peat, and one-half part sand if soil is heavy.

For palms or roses.—Two parts clay loam and one part well rotted manure, and sand to suit the texture condition.

Use the finger test to learn if the plants need water; when the soil crumbles easily until dry it needs water: when it cakes readily there is too much water; so do not give the plants a little each day, but only water when needed. Never use a nozzle on the end of a hose in watering as it causes the stream to pack the soil and injure

To prevent your window plants from blooming only on the street side, turn them occasionally and you will have the blooms in the room as well. Do not give foliage plants as much light; as for flowering plants; keep the ferns in a shady corner; a north window is a

DECREES CHANGE IN PARTING OF THE HAIR.

Calls for Considerable Skill in Arrangement-Open Psyche Knot Is General-Tresses Must Be Neat in the Back.

A fashion that has been shelved is the parting of the hair in front or at the side, although there is a definite line of carrying the hair from left to right, or right to left. That is the difference between the coiffure of 1880 and today. Sleek as the hair is, it goes across the head sideways, especially in the back, where it is drawn up into a French twist that has all been pinned flat and straightened out, so that there will be no bulge in the smooth line of the head.

There is no fashion against the outlining of this flat French twist by a long ornamental comb, but that is only possible in the evening, and many fashionable women prefer to do without it,

There is great skill in the way the hair is brushed across the head and twisted into flatness and it is this style of coiffure which is the most difficult for a woman to arrange herself. It is better done when the hair is slightly marcelled, to give it body. This is not possible if a woman has heavy long hair, which so many Americans possess. If she waves it, she also thickens it and is compelled to work out something original with the

the evening she can catch this knot down with two small ornamental pins, preferably of jet, and in the daytime the small turban will fit neatly over the knot.

The one law that must not be broken in the coiffure of the day is the straight, clean line upward from the nape of the neck to the lower edge of the crown. Short hairs are apt to, make this line broken and uneven, and as the barrette is not fashionable, the twisting sideways of the hair must begin first there, and the loose hairs are held into place by invisible pins, or two small pins of shell in the color of the hair.

A woman will find that by lapping one side of the hair well over on the other, and pinning it down, she will have less trouble with all uneven or ribbon hanger. Bags made of ribbon are covered with gold net.

A special ribbon has been originated in honor of the Panama-Pacific exposition. It is a wonderful piece of weaving, with the design of a beautiful bouquet formed of flowers adopted by different states of the Union possessing a state flower. The design required over five thousand jacquard cards, which means the number of times the twenty-six shuttles travel across each wrap, the required number for this design. It will be an interesting and educational study to see all the state flowers at once and to learn which is which. The design of the flowers is perfect.

writing table, and it will in a great measure help to keep the table tidy. It is quite easy to make.

A piece of stiff cardboard, measuring 7 inches in length and 31/4 inches in width, will be required. This card is covered on both sides with pale gray silk, the material being stretched tightly across and sewn together at the edges, which are afterwards finished off with a fine silk cord. To the lower edge three dress hooks are sewn on and they are covered with narrow ribbon twisted round and round them.

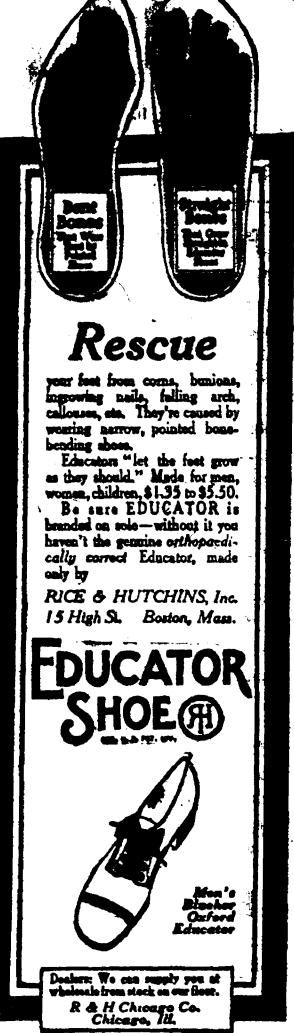

For suspending this little article from a nail in the wall, a loop of ribbon with a smart rosette bow at the top is sewn on at the back. In front there are two small loops of ribbon with bows above them, into which paper-knife, pens, pencils, etc., may be slipped and held in position in the manner shown. The hooks underneath will be found very useful in many ways, and possibly the key of the clock, a small pair of scissors and a watch may be hung upon them.

"THE SHEEP-KILLING DOG"

A Simple and Economical Inciosure for a Farm Flock.

In other words, despite the rise in the value of the farm flock, fewer farmers cared to maintain one.

The explanation for this, say specialists in the department of agriculture, is the prevalence of the sheepkilling dog. Exclusive of 12 western states where sheep are maintained on ranges and not on farms, it is estimated that more than 100,000 sheep are killed annually by dogs in the United States. It is impossible, however, to obtain accurate figures, for in only a small proportion of states and counties are complete records available. Moreover, the number of sheep killed by no means measures the harm done to the industry in this way. Persons who have seen a flock of sheep chased by dogs until they drop dead of exhaustion are not likely to be encouraged to risk their money in the business of sheep raising.

In a new publication of the United States department of agriculture, Farmers' Bulletin 652, "The Sheep-Killing Dog," some suggestions are

This tax, it is said, should vary 1910 was worth 25 per cent more than in accordance with the number of the total value of the sheep in 1900. dogs kept by each individual—one male being taxed only $1.50, each additional male $3.00, and each additional female $5.00. The tax must be paid each year and a license tag obtained when the money is paid. If any dog is found unattended without this tag he should be killed, and any dog found unattended on a farm where sheep are maintained may be killed whether he has or has not a license tag. Under any circumstances a dog caught killing or chasing sheep should be killed. A reward of $15.00 is proposed for the identification of dogs known to be sheep killers, and such animals should be killed at once.

With the money obtained from the dog tax the county should reimburse sheep owners for their lost stock, and when possible recover this money from the owners of the guilty dogs. it is, however, extremely rare for dogs to be caught in the act of killing sheep, and it is always difficult to identify positively the offenders. For this reason the law existing in several states which permits flock masters to recover damages from the owners of guilty dogs is of comparatively ittle service.

A law based on the principles already outlined would, it is believed, greatly reduce the numbers of stray and vicious dogs, while not injuring to any appreciable extent the interests of the true dog lover. If losses from dogs could be effectually prevented there seems to be no reason why the number of sheep kept on American farms could not be vastly increased. It has been estimated that in the 36 farm states this increase could be 150 per cent without displacing other live stock, and some authorities have even placed it as high as 500 per cent. An increase of 150 per cent would mean in money $155,267,000.

In Great Britain the value of sheep on high-priced farm lands is thoroughly realized, and in Great Britain and Ireland there is one sheep or lamb to every 2.5 acres of the total land area. In the farm states of the United States there is only one sheep or lamb to each $1.8 acres of land in farms. The British farmer raises his sheep chiefly on forage-crop pastures and this undoubtedly is the best way when intensive farming is possible.

PAY OF RAILROAD MEN IS ADVANCED

AWARD BY ARBITRATION NOT SATISFACTORY TO THE EMPLOYES.

IS BINDING FOR ONE YEAR

Sixty-four Thousand Men Affected By Findings of Board Acting Under the Newlands Law.

Chicago—An arbitration award advancing to some extent the rates of pay of 64,000 locomotive engineers, firemen and hostlers employed on the 140,000 miles of line of 98 western railroads in the great area of the United States and Canada bounded on the east by the Illinois Central and the Great Lakes, was signed here Friday.

A dissenting opinion was filed on behalf of the brotherhood of enginemen, in which the arbitration was branded as a failure and the Newlands law, under which it was arranged, an inadequate device for the settlement of industrial disputes. The award, effective May 10 and binding for one year only, was frankly declared as merely postponing for a twelve-month the actual settlement of the differences involved.

The railroad members of the board issued a formal statement criticising features of the regulations governing the arbitration and remarking that certain concessions, regarded as intrinsically unjust, were made for the sake of preserving peace with the employes.

Judge Peter C. Pritchard, of Richmond. Va., chairman of the board stated that while in his opinion the men in certain branches of the service were entitled to greater advances than were made, he had to make concessions in order that an award might be made, and he found much of a hopeful nature in the award.

Charles Nagel, of St. Louis, former secretary of commerce and labor, who, with Judge Pritchard, represented the board of mediation and conciliation on the arbitration board, was the only member who issued no statement. He is known to have been deeply offended by the recent attack made on him as an arbitrator by officers of the brotherhoods, who pointed out that he was a trustee of the estate of the late Adolphus Busch, and that railroad securities form a part of the assets of the estate. The brotherhoods were represented on the board by F. A. Burgess, of Louisville, Ky., assistant grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Timothy Shea, of Peoria, Ill., vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. The railroad members were W. L. Park, of Chicago, vice president of the Illinois Central and H. E. Bryan, of Chicago, vice president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy.

WORMS ATTACK FRUIT TREES

Great Damage Is Feared by Growers In Western Michigan.

Benton Harbor. — Climbing cutworms by the millions have attacked the orchards of the Michigan fruit belt in this section and threaten to do thousands of dollars' damage. The peril is so great that fruit growers have appealed to the M. A. C. for advice and help.

North of here, in orchards around Hartford and Bangor, the pest has already wrought great damage, and prominent fruit men predict that, unless the ravages of the worms are quickly checked, the entire crop in that section will be destroyed.

Appropriations of 1915 Session. Lansing-Of the $20,884,457.13 asked in appropriations in the 1915 legislatere, there was allowed $16,758,985.15 for the biennial period.

The 1913 legislature allowed in appropriations $14,718,748.89. The increase this year, $2,040,236.26, is about 14 per cent.

Part of the increase is accounted for by the doubling of the mill tax for the Michigan Agricultural college. The amounts for better roads were the greatly increased. A $600,000 deficit in the highway department also had to be made up.

PROCLAMATION

Governor Sets Aside Tuesday, May Eighteenth, As Occasion for Fostering Good Will.

Lansing—Governor Ferris issued the following proclamation on Friday: Peace on earth, good will to men, is fundamental and imperative in every civilization that calls itself Christian. War is a confession of weakness, at best a necessary evil. It is not yet a thing of the past because brute instincts that should be regulated and directed are allowed to run riot. War is a destroyer; peace is a builder. There has never been a war in which selfishness was not the direct or indirect cause. If therefore follows that armament does not prevent war; standing armies and great navies do not prevent war. Preparation suggests war. Teach men the arts of peace, train men in the arts of peace, and war will disappear from the face of the earth. Temper, unregulated, is the vice of vices. It takes more courage to meet the requirements of peace than war. Few men are great enough to be always kind, always just, always patient. Most men find it easy to be ugly, hateful and devilish.

This year of all years in the history of the world commands us to be men, to be great in the arts of peace, to know the sacredness of life. War means the destruction of fatherhood and motherhood; the destruction of home; the perpetuation of poverty; hell on earth.

We now spend $290,000,000 a year on "preparedness for war." Isn't this the time to spend one per cent. of this amount on the preparedness for peace? Therefore, I, Woodbridge N. Ferris ask that the people of Michigan set apart Tuesday, May eighteenth, as Peace day. Let the Grand Army of the Republic, the Spanish-American War Veterans, the Woman's Relief Corps, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Sunday Schools, the Churches, the Fraternal organizations and the people generally, hold such exercises as will stir the emotions of love and good will towards all men.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State, this thirtieth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, and of the Commonwealth the seventyninth.

> WOODBRIDGE N. FERRIS. Governor.

MARKET QUOTATIONS AN INDIANA MAN TELLS OF WESTERN CANADA

He Is Perfectly Satisfied, and Tells of His Neighbors Who Have Done Well.

Walter Harris, formerly lived near Julietta in Warren township, Indiana. He now lives at Hussar, Alberta. In writing to his home paper in Indiana, he says that the failure is the man who always blames the country. He fails to see his own mistakes, has missed his calling and is not fitted for farming. The two seasons just past have been entirely different. In 1913 plenty of rain came in June and a good crop followed, but the fall was dry and but liftle snow in the winter followed by a very dry summer, and a short crop. Only those that had farmed their land properly were able to meet expenses.

For example, last year the Crowfoot Farming Company, south of here, threshed from 1,250 acres 38,-000 bushels of wheat. One-half section made 26 bushels, the poorest of all. This year on 1,350 acres they threshed nearly 26,000 bushels. Last year's crop sold at 75 cents from their own elevator. What they have sold of this year's crop brought $1.00 at threshing time. Eight thousand bushels unsold would bring now around $1.25. The manager and part owner was raised in Ohio and farmed in Washington several years. He and his wife spent last winter in Ohio. She told me a few days ago that the climate here was much better than

A man by the name of George Clark threshed 75 bushels of oats, 45 bushels of barley and 35 bushels of wheat to the acre. He had 15,000 bushels of old oats as well as wheat and barley in his granaries that have almost doubled in price. He came from Washington, where he sold a large body of land around $200 that he bought around $3.00 per acre. He then refers to a failure. A large company in the eastern states, owning a large farm near Hussar pays its manager $3,000 a year. The farm has not been a success. Probably the manager's fault. Mr. Harris says conditions are not as good as could be wished for, but on the ending of the war good crops, with war prices, will certainly change conditions, and it seems to me that the one who owns land that will raise 100 bushels of oats, 75 bushels of barley or 40 bushels of wheat is the one who "laughs last."

The above yields may seem exaggerations to many, and are far above the average, but you should remember that the man who fails is counted in to make the average, and there are instances on record here that would far exceed the above figures.

Nor is grain the only profitable thing that can be raised here. There are many fine horse ranches, some of them stocked with cayuses and bred to thoroughbreds, and others imported from the old countries. They run on the range nearly all the year. The owners put up wild hay to feed them if the snow should get too deep for them to get the dead grass. There are several hundred in sight of here most of the time. There are several cattle ranches north of here that have from 500 to 7,000 head of cattle. One man I know sold $45,000 worth of fat cattle this fall. He winters his cattie on farms where they have lots of straw and water, paying 75 cents a month per head, or if there is enough straw to winter 400 or 500 head they buy the straw and water and have a man to look after the cattle.--Advertisement.

It had an overwhelming effect upon me. I had been very near death. Suicide must have ended the struggle in which I was engaged, had not this knowledge of actual and unpunished crime come to ease my conscience. John Scoville was worthy of death, and, being so, should receive the full reward of his deed. I need hesitate no longer.

That night I slept. But there came a night when I did not. After the penalty had been paid and to most men's eyes that episode was over, I turned the first page of that volume of slow retribution which is the doom of the cret. And this fence was built. man who sins from impulse, and has the recoil of his own nature to face relentlessly to the end of his days. Scoville was in his grave. I was alive. Scoville had shot a man for his money. I had struck a man down in my wrath. Scoville's widow and little child must face a cold and unsympathetic world, with small means and disgrace rising, like a wall, between them and social sympathy, if not between them and the actual means of living.

to see them so, and feel the gnawing | give my whole mind to my one remainof that deathless worm whose rav- ing duty. I lived only while on the ages lay waste the breast, while hand bench. and brain fulfill their routine of work, as though all were well and the foundations of life unshaken.

I suffered as only cowards suffer. I held on to honor: I held on to home; I held on to Oliver, but with misery for my companion and a self-contempt which nothing could abate. Each time I mounted the bench I felt a tug at my arm as of a visible, restraining presence. Each time I returned to my home and met the clear eye of Oliver beaming upon me with its ever-growing promise of future comradeship, I experienced a rebellion against my own happiness which opened my eyes to my own nature and its inevitable demand. I must give up Oliver, or yield my honors, make a full confession and accept whatever consequences it might bring. I am a proud man, and the latter alternative was beyond me. I could forego pleasure, travel, social intercourse, and even the companionship of the one being in whom all my hopes centered, but I could not, of my own volition, pass from the judge's bench to the felon's cell. There I struck the immovable the impassable.

I decided in one awful night of renunciation that I would send Oliver out of my life.

The next day I told him abruptly . . . hurting him to spare myself . . that I had decided after long and mature thought to yield to his desire for journalism, and that I would start him in his career and maintain him in it for three years if he would subscribe to the following conditions:

They were the hardest a loving father ever imposed upon a dutiful and loving son.

First, he was to leave home immediately . . . within a few hours, in Second, he was to regard all relations between us as finished; we were to be strangers henceforth in every particular save that of the money obligation already mentioned.

Third, he was never to acknowledge this compact, or to cast any slur upon the father whose reasons for this apparently unnatural conduct were quite disconnected with any fault of his or any desire to punish or reprove.

Fourth, he was to pray for his father every night of his life before he slept.

Was this last a confession? Had I meant it to be such? If so, it missed its point. It awed but did not frighten him.

I had to contend with his companetions, as well as with grief and dismay, it was an hour of struckle on his part and of implacable resolution on mine. Nothing but such hardness on my part would have served me.

Had I faltered once he would have won me over, and the tale of my sleepless nights been repeated. I did not falter, and when the midnight stroke rang through the house that night a glimpse of the face on the pillow it separated by its peal a sin-beclouded but kumaz zost front il future arid with solitude and bereft of the one possession to relain which my sie had separation between us were that of the grave I had merited and so weakly shunned.

But I was not yet satisfied. How could I insure for myself the extreme punishment which my peace demanded, without bringing down upon me the full consequences I refused to

You have seen how I ultimately answered this question. A convict's bed! a convict's isolation!

But after some weeks of this, fresh fears arose. An accident was possible. For all Bela's precautions, someone might gain access to this room. This would mean the discovery of my se-

This should have been enough. But guilt has terrors unknown to innocence. One day I caught a small boy peering through an infinitesimal crack in the fence, and, remembering the window grilled with iron with which Bela had replaced the cheerful casement in my den of punishment, I realized how easily an opening might be made between the boards for the conrenience of a curious eye anxious to penetrate the mystery of my seclusion. Oliver's future faced him untouched. And so it came about that the inner No shadow lay across his path to hin- | fence was put up. This settled my poder his happiness or to mar his sition in the town. No more visits. All social life was over. It was meet. The results were unequal. I began | I was satisfied at last. I could now

March 5, 1898.

There is a dream which comes to me often—a vision which I often see. It is that of two broken and irregular walls standing apart against a background of roseate sky. Between these walls the figures of a woman and child, turning about to go. The bridge I never see, not the face of the man who died for my sin; but this I see always—the gaunt ruins of Spencer's Folly and the figure of a woman leading away a little child.

That woman lives. I know now who she is. Her testimony was uttered before me in court and was not one to rouse my apprehensions. My crime was unwitnessed by her, and for years she has been a stranger to this town. But I have a superstitious horror of seeing her again, while believing that the day will come when I shall do so. When this occurs—when I look up and find her in my path, I shall know that my sin has found me out and that the end is near.

O shade of Algernon Etheridge, unforgetting and unforgiving! The woman has appeared! She stood in this room today. Verily, years are nothing with God.

Added later.

I thought I knew what awaited me if my hour ever came. But who can understand the ways of Providence or where the finger of retributive justice will point. It is Oliver's name and not mine which has become the sport of calumny. Oliver's! Could the irony of life go further! Oliver's!

There is nothing against him, and such folly must soon die out: but to see doubt in Mrs. Scoville's eyes is horrible in itself and to eliminate it I may have to show her Oliver's account of that long-forgotten night of crime in Spencer's Folly. It is naively written and reveals a clean, if reticent, nature; but that its effect may be unquestionable I will insert a few lines to cover any possible misinterpretation of his manner and conduct. There is an open space, and our handwritings were always strangely alike. Only our e's differed, and I will be careful with the e's.

Her confidence must be restored at all hazards.

My last foolish attempt has undone me. Nothing remains now but that sacrifice of self which should have been made twelve years ago.

CHAPTER XIX.

Bunset.

"I do not wish to seem selfish. Oliver, but sit a little nearer the window, where I can see you whenever I open my eyes. Twelve years is a long time to make up, and I have such a little while in which to do it."

Oliver moved. The moisture sprang to his eyes as he did so, He had cought and the changes made in a week were very apparent. Always erect, his isther had towered above them then And now for fate's final and most fatal even in his self-abasement, but he touch! Had he been able at this moment to look beyond the fences which his fear had reared, he would have seen at either gate a silent figure guarding the walk, and recalled, perhaps, the horror of other days when at the contemplation of such a prospect, his spirit recoiled upon itself in unimaginable horror and revolt. And yet, who knows! Life's passions fade when the heart is at peace. And Archibald Ostrander's heart was at peace. Why, his next words will show.

"Oliver"-his voice was low but very distinct, "never have a secret; never hide within your bosom a thought you fear the world to know. If you've done wrong-if you have disobeyed the law either of God or manseek not to hide what can never be hidden so long as God reigns or men make laws. I have suffered, as few men have suffered and kept their reason intact. Now that my wickedness is known, the whole page of my life defaced, content has come again. am no longer a deceiver, my very worst is known."

"Oliver?"—This some minutes later. "Are we alone?"

- "Quite alone, father. Mrs. Scoville is busy and Reuther-Reuther is in the room above. I can hear her light step overhead."

The judge was silent. He was gazing wistfully at the wall where hung the portrait of his young wife. He was no longer in his room, but in the cheery front parlor. This Deborah had insisted upon. There was, therefore, nothing to distract him from the contemplation I have mentioned.

What took you into the ravine that evening, Oliver, and why, having picked up the stick. did you fling it from you and fly back to the highway? For the reason I ascribed to Scoville? Tell me, that no cloud may remain between us. Let me know your heart as well as you now know mine."

The reply brought the blood back into his fading cheek.

"Father, I have already explained all this to Mr. Andrews, and now I will explain it to you. I never liked Mr. Etheridge as well as you did, and I brooded incessantly in those days over the influence which he seemed to exert over you in regard to my future career. But I never dreamed of doing him a harm, and never supposed that I could so much as attempt any argument with him on my own behalf till that very night of infernal complications and coincidences. The cause of this change was as follows: I had gone up-stairs, you remember, leaving you alone with him as I knew you desired. How I came to be in the room above I don't remember, but I was there and leaning out of the window directly over the porch when you and Mr. Etheridge came out and stood in some final debate on the steps below. He was talking and you were listening, and never shall I forget the effect his words and tones had upon me. had supposed him devoted to you. and here he was addressing you tartly and in an ungracious manner which bespoke a man very different from the one I had been taught to look upon as superior. The awe of years yielded before this display, and finding him just human like the rest of us, the courage which I had always lacked in approaching him took instant possession of me, and I determined with a boy's unreasoning impulse to subject him to a personal appeal not to add his influence to the distaste you at present felt for the career upon which I had set my heart. Nothing could have been more foolish and nothing more natural, perhaps, than the act which followed. I ran down into the ravine with the wild intention, so strangely duplicated in yourself a few minutes later, of meeting and pleading my cause with him at the bridge, but unlike you, I took the middle of the | then with the light on his face and the ravine for my road and not the se- last tear he was ever to shed glittercluded path at the side. It was this which determined our fate, father, for here I saw the stick and, catching it up without further thought than of the facility it offered for whittling, started with it down the ravine. Scoville was not in sight. The moment was the one when he had quit looking for Reuther and wandered away up the ravine. I have thought since that perhaps the glimpse he had got of his little one peering from the scene of his crime may have stirred even his guilty conscience and sent him off on his purposeless ramble; but, .. wever this was. I did not see him or anybody else as I took my way leisurely down towards the bridge, whittling at the stick and thinking of what I should plated it, began to assume quite a different aspect as the moment for it approached. By the time I had come abreast of the hollow, I was tired of the whole business, and hearing his whistle and knowing by it that he was very near, I plunged up the slope to avoid him, and hurried straight away into town. That is my story, father. If I heard your steps approaching as plunged across the path into which I had thrown the stick in my anger at having broken the point of my knifeblade upon it, I thought nothing of them then. Afterwards I believed them to be Scoville's, which may account to you for my silence about this whole matter both before and during the trial. I was afraid of the witness stand and of what might be elicited from me if I once got into the hands of the lawyers. My abominable reticence in regard to his former crime would be brought up against me, and I was too young, too shy and uninformed to face such an ordeal of my own volition. Unhappily, I was not forced into it, and— But we will not talk of that,

"Son,"—a long silence had intervened—"there is one thing more. When -how-did you first learn my real reason for sending you from home? I saw that my position was understood by you when our eyes first met in this room. But twelve years had passed since you left this house in ignorance of all but my unnatural attitude towards you. When, Oliver, when?"

"That I cannot answer, father; it was just a conviction which dawned gradually upon me. Now, it seems as if I had known it always; but that isn't so. A boy doesn't reason; and it took reasoning for me to-to ac-

There is nothing to part you from Reuther now Alike unhappy in your parentage, you can start on equal terms, and love will do the rest. Say that you will marry her, Oliver, and let me see her smile before I die."

"Marry her? Oh, father, will such an angel marry me?"

"No, but such a woman might." Oliver came near, and stooped over his father's bed. "Father, if love and attention to my profession can make a success of the life you prize, they shall have their opportunity." The father smiled. If it fell to others to remember him as he appeared in his mysterious prime, to Oliver it was given to recall him as he looked ing in his fading eye.

"God is good," came from the bed; then the solemnity of death settled over the room. The soft footfails overhead ceased. The long hush had brought the two women to the door where they stood sobbing. Oliver was on his knees beside the bed, his head buried in his arms. On the face so near him there rested a ray from the westering sun; but the glitter was gone from the eye and the unrest from the heart. No more weary vigils in a room dedi cated to remose and self-punishment. No more weary circling of the house in the dark lane whose fences barred out the hurrying figure within from every eye but that of heaven. Peace say to Mr. Etheridge when I met him, I for him; and for Reuther and Oliver.

HERE'S SOMETHING ELSE WE JUST THOUGHT UP

American travelers in Switzerland rave about the wonders of the Alpine Switzerland, and sit by the hour relating the marvelous scenery of that enchanting land. But the native Swiss plod on in their daily tasks much as we do here in Pinckney, and they never stop to think of the beauties of lake or mountain or vale. You see they're used to it—they take it for granted.

We face that same condition in our store. For example—it needs an outsider to realize how low our prices are—we, in this store have taken it for granted. If you've been buying in the city, we want you to come in and look over our stocks of Printzess Coats for Women, our Fitform Suits and Overcoats for Men—you'll find they're lower than you've been accustomed to pay—and you can't buy better clothes than these anywhere.

It won't cost you anything to run over to Stockbridge because our cashier has orders to refund your fare to and from Pinckney if your purchase amounts to 15.00.
