THANKSGIVING DAY

Sat For Nov. 25th, by the Governor.

The people of the United States are grateful to the Infinite Father for their capacity and disposition to appreciate the bounties of nature. Through this appreciation, man cheerfully applies his labor to the earth in order that her bounties may serve as a means for realizing the essential joys of life. Abundant harvests are simply a necessary means to an end. The measuring unit of life is not to be found in bushels of grain, or potatoes, or fruits, or coal, or copper, or silver, or gold, or houses, or lands, but in the laughter of children around the hearthstone, in the love and loyalty of the home. "Home is the nation's safety." In the year nineteen hundred fifteen, we are grateful for the benediction that rests upon the American home. In the great Commonwealth of Michigan we are, in common with all the other states, the recipients of the richest blessings. It is eminently fitting that we set apart November twenty-fifth as a special day for Thanksgiving—a day on which we may pray for "Peace on earth, good will to men."

Therefore, I, Woodbridge N. Ferris, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-fifth of November, as a day for all the people of this Commonwealth to celebrate in thanksgiving and prayer.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State this sixth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, and of the Commonwealth the seventy-ninth.

WOODBRIDGE N. FERRIS Governor.

Close Game at Dexter

The Pinckney H. S. football team were defeated in a very close and interesting game at Dexter last Friday afternoon, when they played the local high school team of that place. Pinckney's usual hard luck was in good working order. During the first half of the game Pinckney hammered their way up to Dexter's goal and pushed the ball over but failed to kick goal making the score 6 to 0 in favor of Pinckney. In the second half, Dexter managed to get a man through the line with an open field before him, Pinckney having failed to place a safety man in the rear for such emergencies as this. Dexter made a touchdown and kicked goal, making the score 7 to 6 in favor of Dexter. Dexter will return in the near future here, when the boys will show what ought to happen at Dexter. Pinckney plays Stockbridge next day.

Thanksgiving Dance

The H. S. Sophomores will have a dance at the opera house, Thanksgiving night, shortly after the Eastern Glee club entertainment. May's orchestra of Ann Arbor will furnish music. Arrangements will be made for refreshments.

On Thurs. of last week occurred the marriage of Miss Florence Reason and Mr. Fred Arzt of Detroit, Rev. J. V. Coyle officiating. The bride was attended by Mrs. John Rane, sister of the bride and Mr. Rane acted as best man. The bride and bridesmaid were attired in handsome blue fur trimmed suits and wore corsage bouquets of lilacs of the valley and sweet peas. Immediately after the ceremony they left for a short trip to Chicago and other cities. They will be at home to their many friends after Dec. 15 at 285 Pallister st., Detroit.

The bride is a popular young lady of Pinckney and the congratulations and best wishes of her many friends follow her to her new home.

Hanes-Wilkinson

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hanes of Anderson, Tuesday, Nov. 16th at high noon, when Miss Eliza Hanes was united in marriage to Mr. Roy Wilkinson of that place, Rev. A. T. Camburn officiating. Among the presents were some very beautiful flowers from the bride's grandmother in California. The bride and groom will visit friends and relatives in Ann Arbor, Alma and Greenville, and will be at home to their friends after December 1st at Anderson.

Entwisle-Cook

Robert W. Entwisle and Miss Midge Cook both of this place, were married at Milan, November 6th, 1915, by Rev. Wm. S. Smith. Both are highly respected young people of this place and the Dispatch joins their many friends in wishing them a long and happy married life.

Careless Driving

Ohas. Eisele living north of town while driving on Pearl st. near the St. Mary's church, Monday evening, was run into by an auto driven by Guy Kuha from Gregory at a high rate of speed. The new buggy which Mr. Eisele was driving was badly damaged, no one was seriously injured. It seems that Mr. Eisele was clear out of the road and the fault was entirely on the side of the auto driver.

You'll save considerable on your winter coats, if you'll buy of W. J. Danvers at Stockbridge.

The HOME BEAUTIFUL

Flowers and Shrubbery

Their Care and Cultivation

The New Orchid of Guatemala.

ORCHIDS CURIOUS PLANTS

By E. VAN BENTHUYSEN.

Orchids are curious plants, even the simplest orchids of the endogenous type, which belong to the same group as lilies, palms and grasses but differing in their showy, highly-colored flowers of diverse shapes. Possibly there is no flower admired more and understood less.

The known species of orchids number 6,000, which are included in 400 genera. The diligent search that has been made for these plants in every country in the world for cultivation purposes and on account of their great beauty is undoubtedly responsible for the great number of known varieties.

Some of the orchids are terrestrial—that is, they grow with their roots in the ground—but the greater number are epiphytes—"air plants"—growing on trees and shrubs but receiving no nourishment from them.

It is a strange fact that orchids while supposed to grow in tropical climates only are grown—beautiful specimens of them—in the neighborhood of snow. Rational methods of cultivation have developed leading to the separation of orchids in three kinds of greenhouses, according to temperatures maintained in them—hot houses, temperate houses and cold houses.

There are some artificially produced hybrids, wonderful creations in shape, which differ greatly from both parents. On account of the difficulty of their production these beautiful-plants command fabulous prices. Thousands of dollars have been paid for beautiful specimens. Once created, however, these hybrids may be propagated indefinitely by dividing the root-stock as it grows; this permanently enriches the collection of conservatories.

A new orchid, the Marie-Odile, the nun orchid, is a dainty white blossom and is extremely rare. It is here pictured.

By CELESTE BENTON.

Begin now to plan the arrangement of the home grounds for next season. Make all the planting subservient to the home picture as a whole. All the planting should be done with a view to enhancing and making it homelike. If trees, shrubbery and flower beds are placed in front of the house they detract from the picture.

If your ground is so situated that you can have a pond lily bed, or a rock garden try it. It has been done successfully where the ground had water on it. Instead of draining the good out it was preserved into a thing of beauty.

The main part of the ground, planting should be lawn. Trees and large shrubbery should be set to the rear and sides in masses, and flowering plants, such as the smaller annuals and perennials, should be set in borders at the outer edge of the lawn or along the base of the house.

Some shrubs and vines may be placed in angles around the house or porch to simplify and soften the architectural lines and make the dwelling harmonious with its natural surroundings.

Where all do not place a flowered fountain right in the center of the lawn to destroy its unity, or usefulness as a pleasure ground for walking or playing.

Let the lawn be free, open, and sweeping in extent, a place where wholesome flooding sunlight pours the whole day long, and where a million dewdrops glitter with iridescence under the morning sun.

PREPARATORY WORK FOR WINTER

What about the winter window garden?

Now is the time for much work that cannot be delayed.

Many old plants should be now discarded and new ones started.

Do not let the geraniums get leggy. Pinch into shape.

Pinch out all buds from plants intended for the window garden.

Clean, scour, sun and put in place the pots for winter. Have every vessel clean.

Use charcoal in your drainage.

Dead coals from wood ashes are as good as any.

Repeat all plants needing it, cutting back severely. Don't try to keep everything.

For winter blooming get dormant bulbous-rooted begonias; also, which winter a set of seed.

STYLE NOW IMPORTANT

SEASON'S MODES MAY BE SAID TO DEMAND NEW FIGURE.

Point to Remember is That the New Corset Must Be Worn With Intelligence—Mincing Step is No Longer in Order.

It does not take exceptional insight to see that the clothes of this winter demand a new figure. The curved body that wore the graceful folds of clinging drapery that formed our frocks a couple of years ago does not wear to advantage the short-skirted, tight-waisted, flaring frock of today. No, with the acquirement of our new supply of frocks we must acquire a new figure.

Now the new corset is, of course, essential to the good fit of the new frock. But the new corset is not everything. It helps to mold the figure, it gives the right proportion to the hips, it emphasizes the slimmness of the waist. But the new corset must be worn with intelligence. The debutante-slouch figure must be discarded, with all its attributes. And to wear the new corset properly the figure must first be straightened out a bit.

The new frocks do not demand the old sort of uprightness that came into fashion just about the time that the Gibson girl arrived. But they do demand well-held shoulders, a rather straight back and such carriage that an easy, swinging gait is possible. For a mincing step with our wide skirts would be decidedly out of place, according to our modern notions. This shows how far we have really advanced, in our sartorial progress, from the days of 1860, when full, swinging skirts were properly accompanied by short, mincing steps. No; we don't like to mince. When hobble skirts demand a shortened gait we, haltingly and after many accidents, fall into it. But as soon as wide skirts return, our stride lengthens.

We like to minimize the effects of the world-war on fashions. We see a few gilt buttons, a little braiding and many hats modeled on different military caps, but on the whole we say that the war has had little direct result on fashions. Yet perhaps it is the war that has actually brought this new figure into being. Full, short skirts were created in the minds of the Paris dressmakers before war was declared—but not before the feeling for war began; and it is said that one

CHECKED SUIT OF VELOUR

A stunning creation is this walking suit of checked velour which Bernard of Paris has designed for fall wear. The coat of the model is three-quarter length with the bottom of it falling into a flare. Its deep roll collar is luxuriantly trimmed with beaver and deep cuffs of the same fur are used with good effect on the sleeves. The coat fastens with two large buttons. The skirt is of medium width and reaches to the shoe tops.

ered skirt and little brassiere reaching from waistline to armpit, are of soft silk in white or flesh pink tone. Two puffings of the net footing are set into the brassiere all the way around and six ruffles of the net footing trim the skirt, each ruffle its own width above the next. Bodice and skirt are united under a cording and ribbons hold the brassiere over the shoulders.

PROPER TABLE LINEN HEM

Much Depends Upon the Way in Which This Most Important Work is Done.

Lay the hems as for the ordinary hemming stitch and baste to position. Fold the hem back onto the right side of the napkin so as to form a crease that is just even with the first turn of the hem. So, the first turn of the hem and the crease in the napkin together with the overhand stitch.

In making the overhand stitch one may work either from right to left or from left to right. To fasten the thread at the beginning of the work, leave an end about one-half inch long and take the first stitches over the end of the thread. The needle is brought through the work from the back and is pointed directly toward the worker. Do not pull the thread too tight in working. The hem should open out flat and there should be no ridge on the wrong side.

At the end of the hem the thread is secured by taking two or three stitches back over the work just completed.

When correctly made the overhand stitch should be straight on the right side and should slant slightly to the left on the wrong side.—Beryl Dixon, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Children's dresses are finished with cavalier slashes.

Some of the new tailored suits have full circular skirts.

Fashion loves for this winter even more than she did last.

Some of the new sleeves show very full puffs above the elbow.

There will be a great deal of chafin and crepe material used.

New skirts are in soft plaids, faint stripes and plain colors.

Young girls' frocks frequently have a bottle fashioned waist.

It is hoped that the trend will return to favor for evening wear.

GORGEOUS Petticoats

Very pretty petticoats are made of white muslin, with two lace borders and a little trimming of ribbon to girdle. They are very pretty and one really believes she can't get which look at her or any other.

Smart Little Cape of Seal Edged With White Fur, and Hat and Muff to Match. Notice the Lace Mitts.

of the strong reasons influencing their fashion this autumn in Paris is that so many Parisiennes have to work. Their automobiles have been volunteered or requisitioned for work at the front.

So, perhaps, if the war had not been, short, full skirts would have had no more vogue than the famous but short-lived lampshade tunic that Poiré introduced a few years ago.

The full, short skirt is here, however, and with it other style details that demand upright shoulders and straightened back. Don't rest too much confidence in the new corsets; give them a chance by standing up. (Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

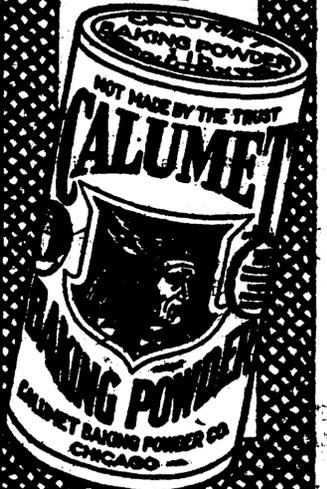

DAINTY DANCE FROCK SLIP

Suggestion for Negligee Garment That Will Be Satisfactory for Wear at All Times.

Between-season time is the ideal period for making up negligees, fanciful petticoats and dancing slips for the coming winter. Styles in these garments are not arbitrary and volatile, and nothing is gained by leaving their making until the last minute, when more important dressmaking will be under consideration. From last year's evening frock a charming dance petticoat may be evolved for this winter, and as for negligees, where is the woman who has not some cherished idea of a particular negligee which she intends building "when she gets around to it"? Here is a pretty idea for a dancing slip which may be worn under the winter dance frock of lace or silk.

DESIGNS FOR UNINSULATED ICEHOUSES

Pole Icehouse—Uninsulated—Fig. 1.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Several typical designs of farm icehouses which dairymen may find economical have been prepared by the dairy division of the United States department of agriculture.

Pole Icehouse—Uninsulated.

Floors—To consist of 12 inches of coarse gravel tamped into place as shown in drawing.

Walls—Set up posts about three feet centers, as indicated on drawing, extending three feet in the ground, and capped by a plate made up of two pieces of 2x4.

Doors—A door may be provided by cutting out the boards between two posts in the end of the house and closing the same by placing short boards across the opening on the inside and packing sawdust against them to hold them in place.

Drainage—Drainage to be provided for by sloping the floor toward the center of the house so that the water will tend to run to the center.

is led outside to a suitable point, where there is a sufficient fall to carry away the water. If advisable, a three-inch porous drain tile may be provided as shown for the uninsulated frame house. This drain should be properly trapped, however, to prevent the entrance of warm air.

Framed Icehouse—Uninsulated. Floor—To consist of 12 inches of coarse gravel tamped into place as shown in drawing.

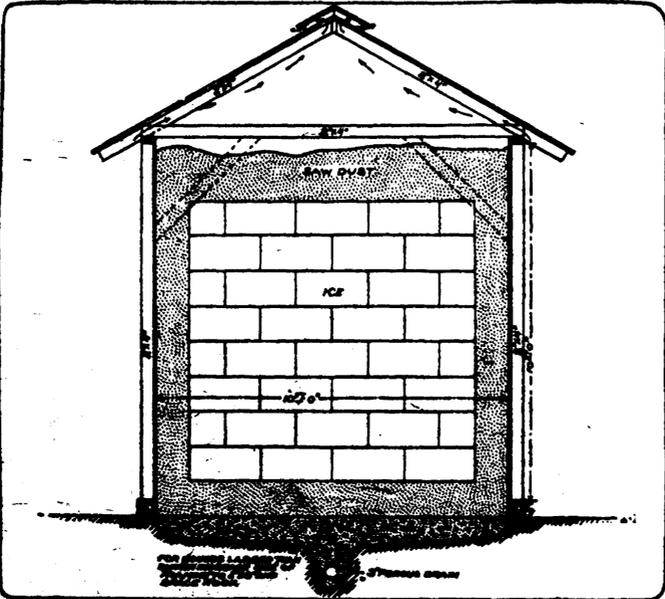

Walls—On a 2x10-inch mud sill place 6x6-inch sills. Set up 2x4-inch studs spaced about 2 feet centers, and on the inside of these nail 1-inch boards. The studding to be capped by a 2x4-inch plate as indicated.

Ceiling—No ceiling is provided. Roof—The same type of roof may be employed as in the insulated framed house.

Doors—A door may be provided as suggested for the pole icehouse.

Drainage—To be provided for by sloping the floor toward the center of the house so that the water will tend to run to the center.

Keep Only Laying Hens. Don't carry a lot of old hens over winter that only produce 80 eggs each per year. Have only egg hens

FILL DITCHES AND GULLIES

Stones Are About Best Material for Filling Depressions—Water is Permitted to Drain Through.

(By R. L. THROCKMORTON, Kansas Experiment Station.)

The little ditches and gullies that form on rolling farms grow rapidly if neglected, and deep channels with steep sides result. By stopping the flow of the water in these small streamlets with such material as straw, brush and stones, they can be made gradually to fill themselves.

The best way to stop up small ditches and gullies them all up in a heap of dirt or stones. Stones are about the best material for this purpose, because they will not be washed out at the first heavy rain.

ter drain through, and a water hole is not formed.

When a ditch is very shallow, only a few inches deep, a board held in place with stakes is often sufficient to stop further erosion. Straw is also very good for these shallow ditches. It is very effective in catching the soil, but is sometimes washed out by a hard rain.

To Prevent Roup. We have no cure for roup, but here is a recipe for prevention: Clean quarters. This means freedom from insect pests, clean feed, new earth if the feet in it, regular cleaning, wet newspapers daily.

The business of selling haberdashery seems to be based on the theory that a man can wear any kind of a hat.

WHY "ANURIC" IS AN INSURANCE AGAINST SUDDEN DEATH!

Sufferers from Backache, Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble

Before an Insurance Company will take a risk on your life the examining physician will test the urine and report whether you are a good risk. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or the twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism and gout.

Experience has taught Dr. Pierce that "Anuric" is the most powerful agent in dissolving uric acid, as hot water melts sugar, besides being absolutely harmless and is endowed with other properties, for it preserves the kidneys in a healthy condition by thoroughly cleansing them.

Useful. "John, dear," said his wife, "there was a poor man here today asking for old clothes and I gave him that shabby old overcoat of yours that was hanging in the attic. You didn't want it, did you?"

Unnecessary. "Women of today don't seem to be so afraid of mice as their sisters of 20 years ago." "They don't need to be. The way the styles are now a woman don't have to climb on a chair to show her stockings."

Down deep in his heart every consumer believes the gas company furnishes air and charges for radium.

An Outsider. "I suppose you'll be in the gay social whirl this winter?" "Who? Me?" replied Mr. Cumrox. "Not a chance. The further my wife gets into society the more she realizes that I don't belong."

John Farley of Hamburg sold his big crop of beans recently to Thos. Read of Pinckney. Mr. Read gave Mr. Farley a check for a little over fourteen hundred dollars. This was certainly some price for a man's crop of beans.

This is the time of the year when fall buying is at its height. There is a tendency on the part of some people to think they can buy to better advantage without seeing the goods, so send their money out of town. You may be able to save a little on some things but it is an unsafe habit to get into and the community, including yourself, will be the loser in the end. It is not only the business people who suffer because some Chicago corporations is getting the money they ought to get. The village and surrounding country will prosper, (other things being equal) proportionately as the inhabitants stand together, work together and spend their money at home —Er.

Babies in Pillows.

Babies are carried on, or rather in, long pillows by the peasant women in Hungary. A babe is laid on the pillow, the end is lapped over and is usually long enough to come up to the infant's chin. A string is then tied around the pillow, holding it close about the youngster, thus making a snug and comfortable little bed.

WARRANT ISSUED FOR TREASURER

FURTHER SENSATIONS PROMISED IN GRAND RAPIDS MUNICIPAL ROW.

HAWKINS ACCUSED OF THEFT

Comptroller is Also Accused of Wrong Doing and in Statement Declares Other People Are Avoiding Grand Jury.

Grand Rapids—As a climax to the investigation of the municipal scandal here, Prosecutor Barnard late Friday issued a warrant for City Treasurer James S. Hawkins, charging him with embezzling $243.45 of city funds, and began quo warranto proceedings against City Comptroller George Tilma, charging misfeasance and malfeasance in office on four counts.

Hawkins is charged with embezzlement in connection with the Albert Dunham case which was aired last summer. Mrs. Henry Myers, of Indianapolis, the warrant says, lapsed her taxes on a piece of property. The city paid the taxes. Then someone wrote to Mrs. Myers and she answered with a check for $243.45 as payment of the taxes which had already been paid. Someone kept this money and the warrant declares Hawkins is the person.

The case was also mentioned in the general impeachment charges, instituted by the council against Hawkins several weeks ago.

Hawkins Friday night denied that he had any connection with the transaction.

In the charges against Tilma, the fourth count is the most startling. It charges "That James S. Hawkins, George P. Tilma and divers other persons unknown, did unlawfully and wickedly conspire, combine, confederate and agree together to embezzle and unlawfully appropriate to the use of said George P. Tilma and others and to loan to them, the moneys and funds of the city to the amount of $1,000 and upwards."

In accordance with this alleged conspiracy it is charged that $104.16 was unlawfully loaned to Tilma himself and that at two different times $125 was loaned to City Attorney Raymond M. Ferguson.

Tilma when asked for a statement said: "Certain persons are trying to avoid a grand jury and prevent me from getting more evidence. I have other important leads which may bring new developments, and anything they may do will not prevent me from doing my duty as I have done in the past."

"As for the $105.16 which I drew in advance from the supplementary fund, I can only say that it was my regular pay day. The amount was due me as pay for my work as city comptroller."

The summons to appear in court and plead was issued by Judge Willis B. Perkins.

GLEANERS AT PORT HURON

State Organization Will Hold Annual Meeting in December.

Port Huron—Port Huron is issuing an invitation to the farmers of the state to take over the city on December 1 and 2, when the Michigan Gleaner federation holds its annual convention.

The program of meetings, just being issued to members, contains a general and comprehensive set of discussions of agricultural matters and conditions met in this state as well as a summary of local arrangements for the entertainment and comfort of the visitors. About 3,000 gleaners are expected.

Henry Ford has been invited to be one of the speakers at the December 1 afternoon session. A representative of the United States agricultural department will discuss bean and potato blight.

Among the topics for discussion at the several meetings are the following: Flies and other insects concerned in the dissemination of disease; the business end of farming; round table talks on co-operation, warehouses and elevators; credits, and other subjects. A baby contest has also been arranged.

ITEMS OF STATE INTEREST

After being out six hours a jury in the circuit court at Adrian awarded Cornelius Hanson, of Grand Rapids, $777 in his suit against the city of Chicago. The suit was for $2,000, which Hanson claimed was due him on a stolen suit.

CHAPLAIN IN STRONG TALK

Jackson Prison Officer Tell Sunday School Convention That Prosecutors Are Often Persecutors.

Battle Creek—Chaplain G. A. Jackson, of Jackson prison, gave the principal address Friday at the closing session of the Michigan State Sunday School association.

He said that where the average age of convicts at Jackson 10 years ago was between 28 and 27 years, it is now between 19 and 20 years. Present political methods were blamed.

"Until faults in politics are remedied, the age average will continue to decrease," he said.

"We do not have prosecuting attorneys," he said. "They are persecuting attorneys. They must produce convictions to hold office. If they don't, the politicians and the people turn them down at the next election."

"Our present police and prosecuting systems dog a man until they land him behind the bars. Hundreds of innocent men are sent to prison on circumstantial evidence just to protect the prosecuting attorney."

The feature of Friday was a parade in which more than 5,000 marched. Nineteen counties were represented: Hillsdale, Lenawee, Kalamazoo, Kent, Gratiot, Calhoun, Allegan, Huron, Shiawassee, Barry, Van Buren, Macomb, Jackson, Branch, Bay, Saginaw, Ottawa and Wayne.

CHURCHILL QUITS CABINET

Declines to Accept Responsibility Without Share in Guidance.

London—It is officially announced that Winston Spencer Churchill, chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, has resigned from the cabinet and will join the army in France.

Mr. Churchill, in his letter of resignation, explains that he agrees in the formation of a small war council, and appreciates the intention which Premier Asquith expressed to include him among its members. He foresaw the difficulties that the premier would have to face in its composition, he states, and he makes no complaint because the scheme was changed, but with that change his work in the government naturally ceased.

He says he could not accept a position of general responsibility for a war policy without any effective share in its guidance and control, and did not feel able in times like these to remain in well-paid inactivity.

Two Held for Middlester's Death.

Flint—Hiram Stratton and Elmer Wilcox were bound over to the circuit court on a charge of manslaughter. It is alleged the men caused the death of Emery T. Middlester, former state representative from Genesee county and prominent local option worker on the night of August 24. Middlester was trying to detain them for sheriff's officers after their automobile had a skid of a milk wagon and fell or was pushed from the running board of the machine, dying the next day with a fractured skull.

TWO GOVERNMENTS VARY IN REPORTS

AUSTRIA'S OFFICIAL STATEMENT CLAIMS ANCONA TRIED TO ESCAPE.

ITALY SAYS U-BOAT GERMAN

Rome Announcement Claims That Vessel Halted on Command and Was Torpedoed While Lowering Boats.

Berlin—(By Wireless to Sayville, N. Y.)—The Austro-Hungarian admiralty Sunday officially announced that the Italian steamer Ancona attempted to escape at full speed after a warning shot had been fired across her bow, and that the vessel only stopped after being shelled several times by an Austrian submarine, says the Overseas News agency.

The submarine commander, it is asserted further, allowed the Ancona's passengers and crew 45 minutes to abandon ship, after which the vessel was torpedoed, sinking three quarters of an hour later. The report that the submarine fired on the lifeboats is denied.

The Italian government on Saturday issued a statement in which it is claimed that the Ancona made no attempt to escape and was torpedoed while boats were being lowered. He also charges that the submarine was German.

Of ten Americans who were on board the Ancona when she was sunk by a submarine off the Tunisian coast, only one was saved, according to a statement issued Sunday by the Italian emigration office. The statement also says that out of 507 passengers and crew of the Ancona, only 299 were saved.

CAPTAIN STREETER IN TOILS

Chicago Police Finally Capture Famous Belligerent.

Chicago—After an exchange of 50 shots the police Sunday invaded and captured Captain George Wellington Streeter's "District of Lake Michigan," a plot of filled-in land on the shore of Lake Michigan, where until Sunday Streeter had successfully defied the officers who sought to arrest him on a charge of violating the Sunday closing order.

Mrs. John Holst, wife of one of Streeter's tenants, was slightly wounded, Streeter, his wife and 15 others were placed under arrest and 192 cases of beer, six rifles, four revolvers and a quantity of ammunition were confiscated.

The land claimed by Streeter by squatter's rights adjoins the fashionable lake shore residence district.

Fire Here to Be Pardoned.

Jackson—The board of pardons has recommended executive clemency in the case of Charles Smith, a hater from Eaton Rapids, on account of services rendered to the state in the performance of which he received injury. Smith is the convict who was stabbed recently by a fellow inmate, William Sutton, a Lansing arsonist, because he extinguished a fire in a prison shop which Sutton had started. The latter is to be tried at the present term of court on a charge of attempted murder.

Followed instructions. The ship doctor of an English liner notified the death watch steward, an Irishman, that a man had died in stateroom 45. The usual instructions to bury the body were given. Some hours later the doctor peeked into the room and found that the body was still there. He called the Irishman's attention to the matter and the latter replied: "I thought you said room 45. I went to that room and noticed was of him in a bunk. 'Are ye dead?' says I. 'No,' says he, 'but I'm pretty near dead.' So I buried him."

A GRATEFUL ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Mr. F. C. Case of Welcome Lake, Pa., writes: "I suffered with Backache and Kidney Trouble. My head ached, my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I felt heavy and sleepy after meals, was always nervous and tired, had a bitter taste in my mouth, was dizzy, had floating specks before my eyes, was always thirsty, had a dragging sensation across my loins, difficulty in collecting my thoughts and was troubled with shortness of breath. Dodds Kidney Pills have cured me of these complaints. You are at liberty to publish this letter for the benefit of any sufferer who doubts the merit of Dodds Kidney Pills."

Defining a Mugwump. The definitions given by children of certain words which elude the lexicographer are sometimes amusing.

One little fellow, for instance, came to his mother with a complaint the other day and said: "Maw, Johnny is such a mugwump that I won't sleep with him no more."

"Why, Charley," said his mother, "whatever do you mean? A mugwump? What is that?"

"Why don't you know? But then you women don't ought to be expected to know nothin' o' politics. But father knows, an' he says a 'mugwump is a chap what don't take either side, an' that's Johnny all over. He sleeps in the middle an' where do I come in?"

According to Orders. Timetables are distinctly "subject to alteration" nowadays, and frequently at very short notice.

On a certain Irish railway a suburban train was taken off, and another altered suddenly. So the station master told the porter—whose name was Pat, of course—to give notice of the change to the passengers as they passed the barrier.

Shortly afterward he heard a terrible din outside his office. Going to ascertain the cause, he found Pat ringing a huge bell violently, and shouting:

"This is to inform ye all that on and after tomorrow the ten o'clock train will start at nine-thirty, and there will be no last train."—Answers.

CHANGE

Quit Coffee and Get Well. A woman's coffee experience is interesting. "For two weeks at a time I have taken no food but skim milk, for solid food would ferment and cause such distress that I could hardly breathe at times, also excruciating pain and heart palpitation and all the time I was so nervous and restless."

"From childhood up I had been a coffee and tea drinker and for the past 20 years I had been trying different physicians but could get only temporary relief. Then I read an article telling how some one had been helped by leaving off coffee and drinking Postum and it seemed so pleasant just to read about good health I decided to try Postum."

"I made the change from coffee to Postum and there is such a difference in me that I don't feel like the same person. We all found Postum delicious and like it better than coffee. My health now is wonderfully good."

"As soon as I made the shift to Postum I got better and now my troubles are gone. I am healthy, my food assimilates, the pressure in the chest, all palpitations are all gone, my bowels are regular, have no more stomach troubles and my headaches are gone. Remember I did not use medicine at all—just left off coffee and used Postum steadily."—Name given by Postum, No. 100, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 1c and 2c per package.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 2c and 3c per package.

Both kinds are equally delicious and just what the doctor prescribes. "Thank you, Dr. Postum."—Mrs. J. C. Case.

SYNOPSIS.

Confederate Sergeant Wyatt is sent as a spy to his native county on the Green River. He meets a mountaineer named Lem Taylor. At a house beyond Hot Springs they meet Major Harwood. Wyatt is sent to bed. He becomes suspicious, and finds that Taylor has murdered Harwood and escaped. Wyatt changes to U. S. uniform, and to a detachment of Federal cavalry identifies himself as Lieutenant Raymond, Third U. S. cavalry. Captain Fox finds Harwood's body. The detachment is ambushed. Wyatt escapes to the Green River country and goes to Harwood's home, where he finds Noreen Harwood. He introduces himself as Lieutenant Raymond. Parson Nichols comes to the house and tells Noreen of her father's death. Wyatt forces Parson Nichols to confess that he has been sent in advance of Anse Cowan, who proposes to marry Noreen at once, and so quiet title to the land in dispute between the Cowans and Noreen's dead father. Anse Cowan and his gang arrive and find the preacher bound in a closet. Wyatt and Noreen have concealed themselves in the attic. The Cowan gang ransacks the house, but fails to find the hidden couple. Wyatt tells Noreen who he is. They return to the second floor and await the next move of the gang, forcing the preacher to silence. Unable to escape while the gang is on the first floor and around the house, Wyatt proposes to marry Noreen and protect her from Cowan. She accepts and Wyatt forces the preacher to marry them. Cowan's gang is driven off by Federal troops, one of whose officers is the real Lieutenant Raymond. Wyatt is trapped, though Noreen attempts to desert him. Wyatt is taken to Lewisburg as a spy.

CHAPTER XV.

I Choose Death.

I knew the town well, and few changes had occurred since last I walked those streets hand in hand with my father. It had not grown any larger, and thus far the war had wrought little damage. The most of life in the sleepy old town centered about the Frost hotel, a three-story wooden structure, where the officers of the garrison lodged, and the courthouse, a dignified edifice of red brick, a block beyond, where in other days my father presided on the bench, now completely surrounded by a military camp. There were more Federal soldiers here than I had expected to see, but a remark exchanged between two of my guard informed me that most of these had arrived during the night—a regiment of Ohio troops, and a battery of light artillery, destined to assist in a contemplated attack on Covington.

The head of our little column halted in front of the hotel, but Whitlock shouted a command to the sergeant, and we rode on past, the guard closing up tightly. I kept my face straight ahead, determined to make no sign, but, nevertheless, I had a glimpse of Noreen, standing at her horse's head, and, for an instant, I felt certain her eyes were resting on me. Then Raymond spoke to her, touching her sleeve familiarly with his hand to attract attention, and she smiled up into his face, as if in answer to some witty remark. This was the last glimpse I had as we clattered on down the street.

At the courthouse steps the sergeant turned me over to the officer of the day, and I was marched into the basement. The old jail had evidently been burned, for I could see the roof had fallen in, and the stone walls were blackened with smoke, but the lower story of the courthouse was habitable enough, the windows barred, the walls strong and thick. The place in which they thrust me had at one time protected the county records, was perhaps nine feet square, with one narrow window high up in the wall, and an iron door. The floor and walls were of stone, and the ceiling beyond reach. A soldier threw in a box, to be opened as a nest, together with a couple of blankets.

"There, Johnny," he said carelessly, "I guess you'll stay here till you're wanted. There'll be some grub along with this."

From that changed behind him, I heard the sharp click of a heavy door, then regular steps passing back and forth across the stone floor, proof that a watching had been posted. There seemed little hope of one as I sat down on the box and stared disconsolately about. The window afforded a glimpse of the street, but no hope of escape. The officer on whom I had once relied returned the search of General Brier's army were of life, as a safeguard against fire, with a sheet of lead at their back, concealing the wall behind. My heart gave a sudden leap. As a boy I had played about this building, invading every nook and corner. I could even recall when these shelves were first installed, and I had not almost where I was sitting then, and watched the workmen bring them into their present position. I was not long in finding the door which led on the ridge, and we were living only a block down the street. Those shelves rested against the big chimney, and there was an opening leading into it, across which they had nailed a tin protector before they fastened the iron to the wall.

If I could once get in behind that iron plate the way out would not be such a hard or difficult one to travel. The chimney was large; I recalled standing upright in the fireplace on the floor above, and looking up to where I could perceive the light of the sky. It was constructed of irregular bits of stone, which would afford lodgment for the feet, and grip for the hands in climbing—no easy job, of course, but not impossible for one reckless enough to make the attempt.

But how could I hope to pry loose that protecting sheet of iron? Where could I discover a tool to give me the necessary leverage to dislodge those bolts? Could one of those supports be unscrewed or twisted off? If so, it might prove strong enough, for the purpose. I stepped hastily across, and tested two of them with my hands, but found both these firm and immovable. I dare not exercise much force in fear the noise might be overheard, and besides it was time the jailer brought me in some food. So I went back to my seat on the box, and waited, my eyes on the iron, and my mind eagerly working on some plan which seemed feasible. I had a half dozen keys in my pocket, and a broken cartridge shell in my belt—nothing else available. The searchers had stripped me clean. A careful survey of the floor revealed only a twisted nail, but there was something caught in the iron bars of the window; from where I sat it looked like the half of a broken horse shoe. I got up to see, but quickly sat down again—there was someone at the door.

It opened, and a soldier stood aside while two men entered. One was Fox, the other a heavy-set, gray mustached officer, in the uniform of a colonel of infantry. The captain greeted me gravely, and extended his hand.

"I would far rather meet you as I did before," he said, "but war gives us no choice."

"I took my chances and have no complaint," I answered heartily, for I liked the man. "I presume there is no doubt as to my fate?"

"I fear not, but the matter is not in my hands, for which I am grateful. This is Colonel Pickney, in command."

I bowed, and our eyes met. The face confronting me was strong and resolute, its expression that of regret.

"A very young man, Captain Fox," he said to his companion, "which fact adds to the unpleasantness of such duty. Your name is Wyatt?"

"Yes, sir."

"You claim connection with the Confederate service—an officer?"

"A sergeant of artillery, sir."

He cleared his throat impressively. "You have the appearance of an intelligent man, Sergeant Wyatt, and must realize the seriousness of your position. I am sure I need not dwell upon the fate which befalls a spy when captured by the enemy. In your case there seems to be no defense possible—you wear Federal uniform; were within our lines, and papers have been found on you of a most incriminating character. It is my understanding you make no denial."

"None, whatever, sir; it would be useless."

"There is always a way in which mercy can be extended," he went on earnestly. "Doubtless you possess information which would be of the utmost value to us. I shall gladly use my influence on your behalf—if the circumstances warrant."

I glanced aside at Fox, and caught the look of appeal in his face; then back into the expectant eyes of the colonel.

"You have authority to make me this proposition?" I asked quietly.

"I am in command of this camp, and judge you my influence with General Bennett."

"I stood motionless a moment, endeavoring to straighten the matter out in my mind. When I spoke it was as briefly as possible.

"I can only thank you, Colonel Pickney, and respectfully decline. I will not answer your questions, sir."

"Fox" gripped my arm, and as I glanced at him, I was surprised to see a mist of tears in his eyes.

"Wyatt," he whispered, making no pretense at concealment, "do not be heavy in your decision. I understand your you to any act of dishonor, but surely some compromise is possible. I not only ask you to consider the situation from your own standpoint, but also from ours. I accompanied Colonel Pickney in the hope I might have some influence." He hesitated an instant, as though doubtful of his words. "Perhaps I should say, my boy, that another urged me to come."

"Another?"

"Yes—a lady."

My head swam, my heart beating like a trippammer.

"Do you mean, Captain Fox, that she actually asked you to urge me to save myself by such an act?"

"No, Wyatt; not that. She requested me to accompany Colonel Pickney, and do all I could on your behalf."

I drew a long breath of relief, my mind clearing, my resolve strengthened. She did care then! God knew I was glad; and she had not urged me to an act of dishonor. And I knew, I understood—she wished me to realize that she was not indifferent to my fate, that her interest was not dead; and she had sent the message to me by the only man she could trust to rightly deliver it. My heart lightened, and my lips smiled.

"I thank you for your message, Captain Fox," I said sincerely, clasping his hand. "Tell her how glad it made me. But it cannot change my decision; I will answer no questions."

"This is your final reply, sergeant?" the colonel's voice had hardened; his eyes had lost their friendliness. "Good day, sir."

The door opened to the rap of his knuckles, and the two men passed out, neither one glancing back at me. The sentry asked a question, and I heard Pickney answer:

"Yes, set the food within, but let no one communicate with the prisoner except on my written order. I will have another sentry posted above."

A soldier entered, bearing a camp ration and a pannikin of water, and placed these on the box. He said nothing, and the colonel stood beside the door watching until I was left alone. I put the food on the floor untouched and sat down on the box. I wanted to live; I was young, ambitious, and I loved that girl. I realized this truth clearly, and it became the one ceaseless incentive to effort. Her face arose before me, and I felt that her message was meant for my encouragement. She wanted me to live; wished me to know that she was not indifferent; trusted me to accomplish all that a man could. And I must act now, if at all.

I ate the food, not from any sense of hunger, but because I needed it to keep up my strength. I was alone, unwatched; there was no place where an eye could peer in on my movements. I dragged the box over to the window, stood on it, and managed to dislodge the bit of iron entangled in the grating. It proved to be part of a discarded horseshoe, hung there carelessly by some carrier and contained three thin-headed nails. With difficulty I loosened one of these and fitted the sharp edge into a screwhead of a shelf bracket. The nail afforded little purchase, and I tried three of the screws before finding one loose enough to turn. By this time my fingers were numb and bleeding, yet the final success set my heart throbbing with exultation.

So I Went Back to My Seat on the Box.

The removal of the screw, which by chance was the lower one, enabled me to insert the remnant of horseshoe beneath the bracket, then, slowly, fearful of creating alarm, the improvised lever wrenched the bracket free, until I was enabled to get firm grip on it with my hands. With feet braced, and every muscle strained, I worked that bit of iron back and forth, tearing it free, until I knew that another wrench would separate it entirely from its fastenings. Then I forced it back into place again, moved down the loosened screw, and debris littering the floor, and cast it into a dark corner. The bracket seemed as solid as ever. Now I must wait for night.

CHAPTER XVI.

Under Death Sentence.

It was dreary waiting, for every unusual sound reaching me brought with it a throb of fear. That my fate was already practically settled I knew, but how long the delay might be remained a problem. Fox, I felt convinced, would use whatever influence he possessed to delay action, and there was a faint hope in my mind also that Noreen might even make a plea to higher authorities in my behalf. I dare not believe she would, but the vague dream of such a thing recurred again and again to my mind.

To learn all I could I dragged the box to a position below the window, and standing on it, managed to gain a narrow glimpse without, the vista revealing a flap of dirty tent cloth and part of an army wagon backed up against the building, leaving barely enough space for the guard to pace back and forth the length of his beat. I could see his blue-clad legs, with the white stripes, cross and recross in front of me. I tested the strength of the iron grating with my hands, but the bars were firmly imbedded and immovable.

The sun must have been well down in the west when Fox returned. I had been expecting him, trusting to his friendly interest, and with a fleeting hope that Noreen might commission him to bring me some further message. Yet the moment I looked into his face, shadowed by the fading light, I realized that he brought no encouraging news. My heart sank, but I kept a smile on my lips.

"I expected to be out of here before now," I said meaningly; "yet I judge from your expression there is no reprieve."

"And no hope of one, Wyatt," he answered regretfully. "The evidence against you is too strong. The delay in convening a court has been caused by the scarcity of officers in camp. Our forage trains are just beginning to return, but it is now so late that Colonel Pickney has decided to hold you prisoner until morning. I waited until the order was issued before coming here. The court-martial is set for eight o'clock."

"I am thankful for even that delay. There is, I presume no doubt as to the result?"

"None, so far as I can learn. You are a soldier, Wyatt, and may as well face the truth. I have urged mercy on Colonel Pickney, until he finally ordered me to drop the subject. He is a strict disciplinarian, a bit of a martinet, indeed, and inclined to take the advice of a regular army officer in such matters, rather than rely on volunteers. Has Raymond any special reason to dislike you?"

"Only that I impersonated him in this masquerade."

"Bah! that was mere chance, the selection of his name from the army list. The fellow is naturally vindictive enough, but surely could not harbor personal dislike over so small a matter." He paused hesitatingly, as though doubtful of the propriety of pressing an inquiry. "I trust you will pardon me, Wyatt, but I have wondered if there was not some trouble existing between you relative to the friendship of Miss Harwood."

"That would appear impossible," I replied, somewhat surprised, "for my being with her was entirely accidental."

"Yes, so she insists; but I know Raymond is deeply interested in the girl. Someone told me he actually proposed to her at West Point, and sought this detail in hope of meeting her again. The occurrence which aroused my suspicion that he felt a personal grudge against you was this—I know he promised her to use his influence to have you sent to Charleston for trial, but instead he urged Colonel Pickney to exercise his own authority. I chanced to be in the next room, and overheard. I have not seen the young lady since."

My mind worked rapidly. That Raymond was treacherous was probably true. Noreen had treated him with marked coldness. There could be no great degree of intimacy between them, or she would have chosen him in this emergency rather than Captain Fox. But she had revealed to neither officer the fact of our marriage; it was not so much as suspected.

Kitchener's Good Humor.

Lord Kitchener is so much regarded as a man without a smile, writes a correspondent, that an anecdote illustrating his human quality may be to the point. One of my officers has a rich father who wrote directly to "K. of K." offering to settle $250 apiece on each of his two sons if the war minister would give them commissions. "Settle the money on your daughters instead," came the reply; "if your sons are any good I shall be glad to take them for nothing." Instead of settling the money on his sons, Kitchener took them for nothing.

The Secret of Success

Genuine Merit Required to Win the People's Confidence

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfil the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper.—Adv.

Wasps a Pest in England.

The wasp pest has been so bad in some parts of England this season that fruit-growers in a large way have had to wage a ceaseless war against them. The bee expert of a well-known firm of jam manufacturers has broken all records by destroying no fewer than 307 nests. This means that, including the wasps, grubs and eggs, he has killed more than four and a half million wasps. One nest, a record for size, was over four feet in circumference.
