Information Wanted Regarding Rev. Jas. Herbert

We are requested to publish the following letter:

Gentlemen:

We are anxious to learn the present address of Rev. James Herbert, a Roman Catholic priest who was ordained at Monroe, Michigan, September 29th, 1873, and was subsequently stationed at Pinckney. He seems to have left the diocese in 1876. He is now entitled to a comparatively small inheritance and this explains why we are trying to trace him.

If you will publish this letter no doubt it may come to the notice of some of his former parishioners or friends who will be able to tell us where he went, if not his present address. Particulars should be sent to the undersigned at once.

Yours truly,
John J. Dwyer, Attorney at Law,
55 Wall St., New York, N. Y.

Lewis Spring & Axel Co. Moves to Chelsea

The Lewis Spring & Axel Co. have sold their buildings and equipment not used in the manufacture of the Hollier Eight, to the Briscoe Motor Co., Inc. of Jackson, and will concentrate their entire efforts and resources in the development of the plant at Chelsea.

They do not intend to be dependent upon anyone else for parts, but to build the car complete, as they have done heretofore. This will mean the rapid building up of a parts business in Chelsea where they can make the units that heretofore have been made in Jackson. This includes motors, transmissions, springs, axels, steering gears, forgings, and in fact the many items which they have been making for years.

The manufacture and delivery of the Hollier Eight will go on with no interruption. The Axel Co. will be organized.

After careful consideration Supt. Doyle has named Miss Madeline Roche to represent the grammar room in the county spelling contest, January 13th. Miss Lauretta Clinton was named as alternate.

A Happy New Year to You and Yours

Yes, we have had a very good business year and we want to thank you for the part you have played in making it a success.

It is with satisfaction that we look over our records and find this the best year of our business experience in Pinckney.

There are three component parts to successful business, quality, price and service.

Quality—It is our constant aim to give you the best that the market affords and are always on the alert for something better.

Price—You will find our prices as low as any other place where quality is the key word. However we do not sacrifice quality for price.

Service—You are the best judge of our service, and it is apparent that our service satisfies otherwise we would not be successful.

We need your support at all times and will do our best during 1916 to warrant it, by combining all three of the above principles, if we fail any time, tell us.

We wish you a very Happy and Prosperous New Year.

INDIA'S NEW YEAR DAYS

THEY CELEBRATE THE OCCASION FREQUENTLY BY KNOCKING OFF WORK AND HOLDING FUNERALS. SOME BURY THEIR DEAD, SOME BURN THEM AND SOME FEED THE CORPSES TO BUZZARDS.

INDIA beats the world for the number and variety of its New Year days and this is so because of the large number of races and religions.

When a traveler who expects to spend some time in the country goes to the bank with his letter of credit, usually a card is handed him on which is printed the various holidays. This is for his convenience, so that he will not let himself get out of funds and go to the bank in a hurry, only to find it closed on account of some holiday. The holiday may be Christian, Mohammedan or that of any one of the numerous Hindu sects.

When the usual card was given me in Bombay, says a writer, I noted the number of these holidays which were ascribed to New Year. They did not exactly bear out the humorous description of every day in the year as a New Year day, but there seemed hardly a month of the Christian calendar which did not have at least one New Year designated, and in some months there were more.

Kaleidoscopic Bombay observes all these New Year days because the stream of Asiatic life which circulates through it includes all the civilization and all the races and religions of the Orient, with some additions from the Occident. The spirit is one of catholicity.

All the races and all the religious sects observe the New Year of the Christian calendar, because British India is reflected in this day; and also observe the New Year of the different races and religions among themselves, at least to the extent of knocking off work.

Whether in Bombay or Benares, the monkey temple has its throng of Hindu worshippers, and the Mohammedans often are not unwilling to share in the observance to the extent of foregoing their business activities. The Hindus on their part are apt to think it a shame to work on a Mohammedan New Year day when the Moslem population may be thronging the Jumma Masjid mosque. So it goes all round the circle of New Year holidays.

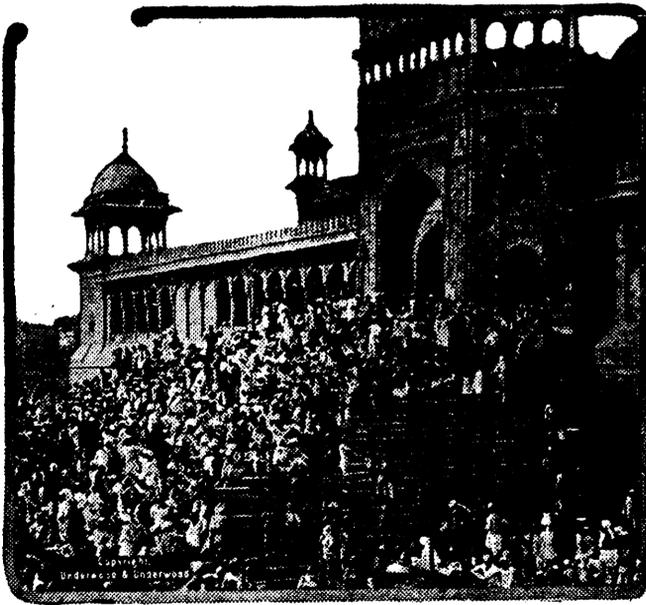

There is a simple arithmetical method of calculating the time from the Hegira in the terms of the Christian era, but the easier way is to accept without question the fact that such and such a day is the New Year of the Mohammedan era. Similarly, the New Year of the Buddhists and the Bonobuddhas and the Jains and the Sikhs may be accepted without bothering about the calendar.

The British New Year in Bombay, or Calcutta, or Delhi is much the same as in England.

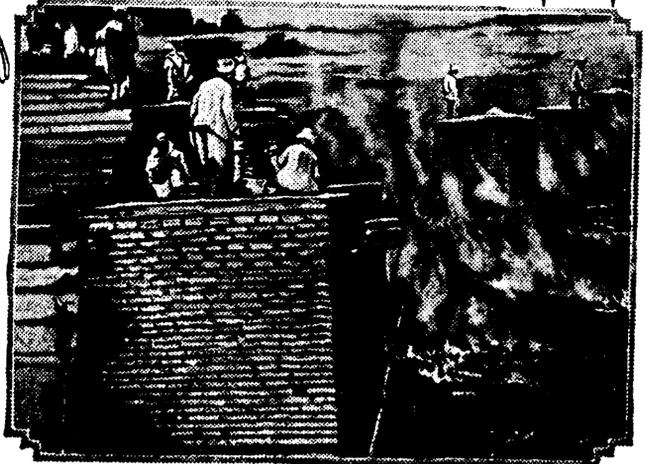

While the Christian New Year is based and stated on account of British authority, it has less standing than the New Year of the Parsees, because it is a single day's observance, while the Parsees take two days. The year I happened to be in Bombay was the Parsee Yandemardi, 1276, and the New Year days came on September 13 and 14.

On this day I was afforded the opportunity of witnessing the Parsee religious observances, or Saramastrian services. It was in the Allisoon Bagan, on the Charol road. Their churches or temples of worship are free from industrial pollution without sign of it. They are more like an ordinary hall.

On this temple the women were gathered at one end of the room and the men at the other end. In the space between the two ends of the hall same was very clear. A venerable bearded priest stood beside the lamp. His discourse was earnest and solemn. Both man and woman hearers were very attentive.

NEW YEAR TEMPLE WORSHIP

BURNING THE DEAD IN INDIA

The ceremonies of worship are quite simple, but the mysteries of the faith may be less so. The Parsees who have been educated in England and many of those whose English education has been obtained in Bombay resent the designation of fire worshippers.

One of them gave me a monograph, written by a Parsee barrister in London, which explained the creed of the followers of Zoroaster as one of good thoughts, good words and good deeds, with the sacred flame as a symbol of the effulgence of the deity. It is not denied, however, that contact with Hindus and Mohammedans has caused corruptions to creep into the creed. The Hindus and Moslems regard the Parsees as fire worshippers.

It was on a New Year day that I drove out to Malabar hill, where are located the Towers of Silence, or the Parsee cemetery. Every traveler takes this drive. It is past the other cemeteries, Christian and Mohammedan burial grounds and the Hindu burning ghat. The cemetery of the Christians is no longer used, but on almost any day there will be Mohammedan funerals and Hindu cremations.

On this day there were two Mohammedan funerals and three parties of Hindu mourners, with their respective burdens at the burning ghat.

Malabar hill is the choice spot overlooking the Arabian sea. Within the cemetery grounds are flagstone steps, shaded walks and arbors and bowers. A luxuriant vegetation covers the rocks, and there is everything that goes to make a beautiful garden of flowers.

The towers of Silence, of which there are five, are hardly towers at all. They are about 175 feet in circumference and perhaps 25 feet high. The material is whitewashed stone and cement or mortar. A near approach to the towers is not allowed to strangers to the Parsee creed, nor is entrance permitted to the fire temple, where the sacred fire is kept alive and seven kinds of incense are burned.

A model of the towers is shown in the registry room and an attendant explains them to visitors. The attendant explained to me the circular rows in which the bodies were placed—one for the children, one for the women and one for the men. When the bodies have been stripped of their fleshly covering by the vultures, which takes perhaps half an hour, the bones remain for a while, and are then dropped into a well in the center, which is provided with drains and water fountains. Charcoal is the chief fuel.

On this New Year day there was a Parsee funeral, which could be observed only at a respectful distance. There were the four professional body mourners in their white robes walking two abreast, each pair holding a handkerchief. The Parsee accounts say that the body is received by two bearded attendants at the entrance to the towers, and that by them the shroud is removed and then vultures do the rest. This is probably what happened that day.

All I could note on this occasion was a sudden movement of the vultures in the palm trees. There seemed to be hundreds of them. They paused for a minute on the outer edge of one of the towers and then disappeared within. In a few minutes they reappeared.

The Parsee method of disposing of the dead is, perhaps, as the Parsees say, more sanitary than the Christian burial in the earth, or even than the Hindu cremation. It meets the tenet of their faith that fire, water and earth are too sacred to be polluted. But the western mind cannot become accustomed to it.

In conclusion, it may be said that there are other New Year observances in India besides the New Year of the Christians, Mohammedans, Hindus and Parsees. There is a Chinese colony in Bentinck street, Calcutta, and the Chinese there observe the New Year as they do in the United States, or in any other section of the world in which they are found.

AUSTRIAN YOUTHS IN WAR

The Austrian newspapers are devoting considerable space at present to the part played by schoolboys in the present war. They are affectionately termed the "war boys" and in the operations in eastern Galicia they were of great assistance to the troops.

In some of the artillery battalions, especially those which centered around Caserovits and Weinberg, schoolboys in large numbers braved the shells and carried water and ammunition for the troops.

After a battle they would go over the field and gather pieces of shrapnel and the shells of cartridges to be made over again into ammunition. Occasionally a boy thus sacrificed his life, but this did not deter the order of companions.

Many of the boys followed infantry regiments and fought along with the soldiers in the trenches. Boys who remained at home took place of their fathers and brothers at the front.

The story is told of a few old youngsters who all along the longest hotel in Caserovits looked personally after their own and their comrades. Other boys carried goods among the soldiers and earned a good living for themselves.

Some became guides, and many carried half of the army's baggage who just happened to be at the front.

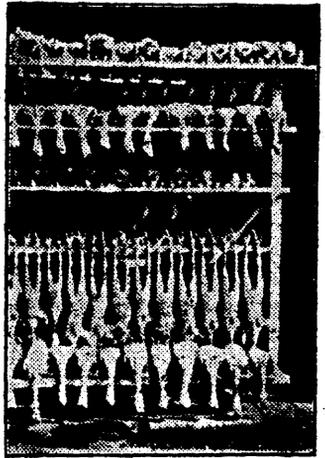

It is said that when the war is over this war is written up in the daily papers.

TO PACK POULTRY

Specialists Urge Unusual Care in Preparing Fowls.

Methods Recommended Which Are Essential to Perfect Product at Any Time, Especially When Weather is Unfavorable.

Poultry packers are urged by the specialists of the United States department of agriculture to give unusual attention to preparing and packing their birds for shipment, particularly if the mild weather, which has been widely prevalent this autumn, continues. The poultry specialists say that the weather conditions in many sections have been very similar to those which prevailed in the autumn of 1913 and which, as poultry shippers will remember, proved disastrous to all packers who did not dress, chill and pack properly.

The specialists, therefore, recommend the particular observance of the following methods of handling dressed poultry, which are essential to a perfect product at any time and are of vital importance whenever weather conditions are unfavorable:

Methods of Handling Dressed Poultry.

1. Keep the holding batteries for your incoming stock clean, well aired, and free from vermin, and see that the chickens have plenty of fresh water and plenty to eat.

2. Don't kill a chicken when the crop is full of feed. Give the chicken only water for 24 hours before it is killed. Food in the crop or in the intestines of a dressed chicken causes loss of flavor and hastens decay, which more than offsets any gain from extra weight.

3. Good bleeding is absolutely essential to a good appearance on the market and retards decay. Circular 61, bureau of chemistry, department of agriculture, explains the best methods of bleeding and loosening the feathers or muscles for dry picking.

4. Hang the chicken by both feet while picking. Hanging by one leg spoils the shape of the bird. Picking on the leg gets the skin dirty and hastens decay.

5. Dry pick if possible. Scalding is particularly undesirable because it hastens decay.

6. Chill every dressed bird until the body temperature is below 35 degrees F. Never pack or ship an imperfectly chilled bird. More decay is due to imperfect chilling than to any other single factor in dressing. Dry chill, if possible. Chickens cooled in water lose flavor, decay sooner, will not cold-store as satisfactorily as dry-chilled, and are in every way more undesirable on the market. Refrigerator cars will carry well-chilled goods in good condition, but they cannot chill warm

WHAT POULTRY HOUSE NEEDS

Plenty of Fresh Air

goods to a sufficiently low temperature.

7. Pack in boxes or small bins whenever possible. A large barrel makes an undesirable package, because where poultry is packed in large masses the weight of the upper layers crushes the birds at the bottom.

8. Line all packages with parchment paper and cover the top of the poultry before the lid is put on.

9. Wrap every head in suitable paper so that blood from one bird will not mar the appearance of another.

10. Use only good refrigerator cars and see that they are in good order. Ice and salt the car 24 hours before loading. The car, at the end of 24 hours should show a temperature below 40 degrees F. at a point four feet above the floor and between the doors.

General Suggestions.

Never handle chickens roughly, either before or after killing. Rough handling causes bruises, broken bones, scarred skins, and soft places in the flesh. Undue haste on the part of the killers and pickers results in lowered keeping quality and poor appearance of the product.

Piecework, which leads to quantity rather than quality, makes for lower prices on the market. Those who pay by the piece should remember that they sell by the quality of the piece.

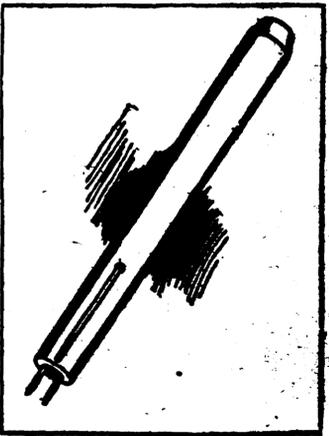

These directions will apply with equal force to turkeys intended for the market.

TO DRIVE STAPLES STRAIGHT

Handy Tool of New Design for Wire Fence Construction—Device Used for Other Purposes.

In the erection of wire fence it is generally necessary to drive a large number of staples and for the security of the fence it is desirable that the staples should be driven straight and accurately. Owing to the irregularities of the wooden posts and the strain of the fence wire, which is under a heavy tension when being erected, it is not always an easy matter to put the staples just where they are wanted to be of the most service.

The tool shown in the accompanying cut is designed to accomplish this. With its aid a great many more staples may be driven in a given time and they are driven in a much superior manner. Besides being a convenience to fence erectors there are other mechanics who will find use for this tool, such as electricians, box makers, cooperers and the like.

Weeds as Foragers.

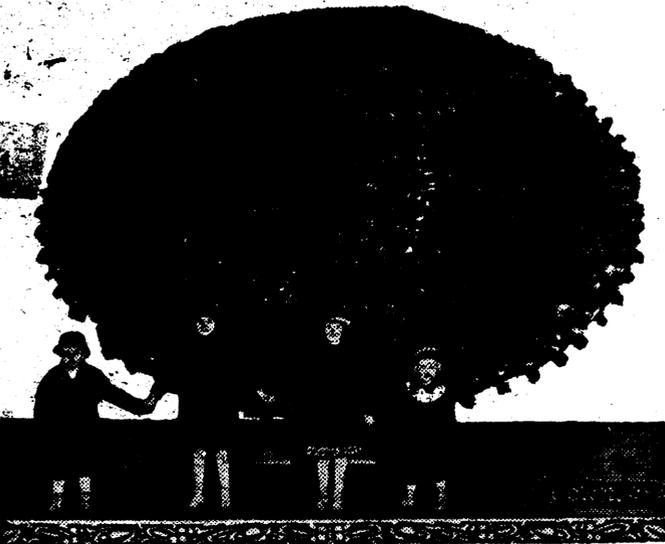

Weeds are much better foragers than are most cultivated crops. It is just as reasonable to expect a hen to thrive with a bunch of weeds as to expect corn to compete with weeds.

Don't Expect Too Much.

Even with the best and care, the best of the best is not expected.

HOME BEAUTIFUL

Flowers and Shrubs
Their Care and Cultivation

The Largest Chrysanthemum in the World.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM

No flower can boast of a more aristocratic ancestry than the chrysanthemum. There is reason for its haughty demeanor and often insolent expression. For the golden flaring yellow beauty is able to trace its lineage back to the royal gardens of some forgotten mikado, who admired its forefathers many centuries ago.

The origin of the flower as the pet of royalty is lost in the early twilight of eastern history; it was probably cultivated in the early days of Confucius, and has certainly been treasured in the Orient from time immemorial. The emblem and crest of the mikado of Japan are the leaf and flower of the chrysanthemum.

The first appearance of the flower in Europe was probably in 1764, when specimens found their way to the botanical gardens in old Chelsea, England. These were only small yellow things and did not arouse much enthusiasm. Not very much was done with the chrysanthemum in England until about 1835.

Method of chrysanthemum culture given by a leading horticulturist is as follows: To produce the best results, the young shoots should be planted in three-inch pots early in the spring, and in six weeks transferred to five-inch pots. As soon as the plants have attained a height of nine or ten inches they should be "pinched back," that is, an inch or so of the center of the plant should be pinched off. This causes the plants to become "bushy," as it checks the tendency of an upward, spindly growth. If fine plants are desired this pinching back process should be repeated every two weeks until August. The plants will by that time have attained a height of about two feet. By October they will have increased another foot in height and will have from fifteen to twenty pots.

SOME NOTES IN SEASON

Better spend a little money for garden tools and keep a box or two handy where you can keep odds and ends of bolts, nuts, staples, string, etc. It helps that save money and a little town.

Want good neighbors be one of the best ways to

EXTRA LINEN SUPPLY

MATTER THAT IS THE DESIRE OF EVERY HOUSEWIFE.

Monograms Should Be Embroidered on Every Piece—Fancy Work That Can Be Done in Moments of Leisure.

No housekeeper can ever have enough attractive linen for her table and her bedrooms. She may have enough for actual service, but it is wise to keep just a little ahead of the actual need in extra towels for guest-room and bathroom. It is also advisable to keep just a little ahead in the supply of linen for the table.

Every set of napkins and each tablecloth should have the housewife's surname initial or her monogram embroidered upon it. There is a question as to the proper place to put the initial or monogram, but the majority prefer the letter on tablecloths to be in the corner, where they will come just off the rounded edge of the table.

Napkins should have the initials in the corner or in the middle on one side, where they will be on top when the napkins are folded. Tea napkins are the only ones on which a wreath can appropriately be placed. It is quite permissible to place an initial within the wreath or other decorative motif. Tea napkins can also be finished with hemstitched or scalloped edges.

Some women may argue that they haven't time to put fancy work on household linen. This is a poor argument, for almost every woman has a few moments during the day when she sits down to chat with a neighbor or when she is waiting for the homecoming of her husband to his evening meal. It is during these odd moments that a great deal can be accomplished, especially in the way of fancy work. Pick-up work is good for the nerves.

One-Dish Meal.

One round steak, one large carrot, one small onion, one head of celery, two large potatoes.

Wash, peel and cut up vegetables. Cut meat into two-inch pieces and fry in a little fat quickly just enough to brown sides.

Put vegetables and meat in pot; cover, season and let simmer until meat is tender. Thicken with flour and empty into pudding dish. Put egg cup in center and cover with pie crust, bake. When brown, set where it will keep warm, or if made in morning set away and warm on back of stove before using.

To Beat an Egg Quickly.

Break the egg into an ordinary glass tumbler. Place a piece of clean tissue paper on the top. Hold it firmly down all around to keep out the air. Place the other hand on the top of the paper and shake the tumbler vigorously two or three times. The egg is then ready to use without any further effort, and is as well-beaten as if whipped for ten minutes.

Oatmeal Muffins.

Put two cupfuls of uncooked oatmeal in bowl, pour over one and one-half cupfuls sour milk, cover and let stand over night. In the morning add one-third cupful sugar, one-fourth cupful melted butter, one egg, well beaten, one teaspoonful salt and one cupful flour. Beat thoroughly, place in buttered hot iron gem pans; bake in a hot oven 20 minutes.

Anna Potatoes.

Wash and pare medium-sized potatoes, cut lengthwise in one-quarter-inch slices, fasten with skewers (toothpicks), parboil ten minutes, place in dripping pan and bake about twenty minutes in a hot oven, basting often with butter or some other fat.

To Serve Potatoes.

Potatoes should always be served in an uncovered dish. If it is necessary for them to stand for a few minutes before being served, cover them with a cloth, not a lid, in order that the steam as it condenses may be absorbed by the cloth and not returned to the potatoes to make them soggy.

To Fasten Strainer.

When the strainer in which you are straining is more convenient than

When Puffing.

When puffing, add half cupful of molasses, quarter cupful melted butter, half cupful warm water, two cupfuls flour sifted with one teaspoonful each of cream, ginger and half teaspoonful salt. Bake in individual tins.

To Keep Butter Firm.

Butter will remain firm, even in a hot oven, if the cloth wrung out in the butter dish is placed over the top and the butter dish and the butter there is a draft.

the Best

This store does not make very big heads. It makes very big profits. It makes very big names. It makes very big money.

To Our Slow Paying Customers

Bad debts cause all our trouble—loss not only of profit, but also of all the money we have spent for goods. All of us have a number of accounts and notes that our customers reprove. Whatever it's name it is dead loss and therefore dangerous business. The reason business is weak on collections is because it is a difficult and unpleasant task. What happens the collecting is put off. Result of both money and customers.

January 1st., 1916 will end our trying to do business only on a cash basis and begin collections. Respy. yours

YASAKA MARU SINKS JAPANESE LINER

$12,500,000 IN GOLD LOST AS NEW PASSENGER BOAT GOES DOWN.

NO WARNING WAS GIVEN

Great Liner Was On Its Way From London to Japan With 120 Passengers and Crew of 160 Aboard.

Tokio—Great excitement prevailed here Tuesday following the receipt of news that the new Japanese liner Yasaka Maru, bound from London for Japan, had been sunk in the Mediterranean.

There was an uproar from the people as the news spread throughout the city.

The Yasaka Maru is said to have carried 25,000,000 yen (about $12,500,000) in Japanese gold. The insurance on the vessel amounts to 5,000,000 yen. The Nippon Yusen Kaisha, owners of the Yasaka Maru, are discussing the feasibility of abandoning the Suez canal route for future sailings of their vessels in favor of a route around the Cape of Good Hope.

Advices received by the Nippon Yusen Kaisha state that the Yasaka Maru was torpedoed without warning and that she sank in 49 minutes. This occurred in the afternoon of Tuesday, and it was midnight when the passengers and crew were rescued by the French gunboat.

The new Japanese liner Yasaka Maru, which was sunk in the eastern Mediterranean Tuesday by a submarine, while the steamer was on her way from London to Japan with 120 passengers and a crew of 160 aboard, was sent to the bottom without warning, according to a report received from Port Said from the agents of the owners.

All of those on board the ship, including one American passenger, W. J. Leigh, were saved. The nationality of the submarine is not mentioned by the agents and previous reports referred to the sinking of the ship as done by either an Austrian or a German submarine.

The Yasaka Maru was sunk Tuesday afternoon. A French gunboat picked up the passengers and crew at midnight and landed them at Port Said Wednesday morning. The company provided hotel accommodations for them and is arranging to forward them to their destinations. On the passenger list were 51 men, 54 women and 15 children, most of whom were British subjects. The agents in their report say further:

"The passengers express great admiration for the skill of the captain and the officers and for the discipline of the crew. Perfect order was maintained during the embarkation, which was carried out with the greatest promptitude."

W. J. Leigh is an American citizen born in China. His father was a Californian.

Mr. Leigh has spent most of his life in China, but recently has lived in England. He was returning to China on the Yasaka Maru to take a position with a business house. His family lives in London. Mrs. Leigh has received a cable message saying her husband is safe.

AMERICANS LEAVE JUAREZ

Patrol Doubled on Border and Traffic Stopped—Soldiers Want Pay.

El Paso, Tex.—All Americans were ordered out of Juarez at 8:30 Tuesday evening. They were ordered to remain on the American side by General J. J. Pershing, commanding the Eighth brigade at Fort Bliss, at the same time. Tramway traffic was discontinued. A mob was reported to have surrounded the government financial agency at Juarez demanding money.

Later in the evening an Official of the de facto government at Juarez telephoned that the situation was under control. He said there had been trouble with the soldiers over wages payment, but that this matter had been settled satisfactorily.

Mrs. Thomas Edwards, wife of the American consul at Juarez, was the first American to cross into the United States following the order, given out at military headquarters. Edwards left for the east several days ago.

The United States border patrol immediately was increased and traffic over the international bridges halted. No Americans were permitted to cross, the order of General Pershing being rigidly enforced.

There are few on the border who believe that General Villa intends to abandon his war against the Carranza government and seek refuge in the United States.

SEVEN DEATHS IN NEW YORK STORM

THUNDER AND LIGHTNING MIX WITH SNOW AND RAIN AND GALE.

CONTINUES THROUGH DAY

Great Property Damage Is Suffered in And About Metropolis by Reason of Ninety-Mile Gale of Wind.

New York—One of the weirdest storms the east has seen in many years—rain, hail and snow accompanied by thunder and lightning and a gale that reached a maximum velocity of 90 miles an hour—descended from the northwest early Sunday as the aftermath of a Christmas fog.

It indirectly caused seven deaths in this city carried down telegraph wires, damaged shipping, crippled railroad traffic and other considerable property damage.

The phenomenon of thunder and lightning in the midst of a driving snow awakened New Yorkers at the height of the storm about 7 o'clock Sunday morning. A gale from the south accompanied by rain had been blowing during the night, but the temperature dropped during the early morning hours, changing the rain to hail and then to snow. The local weather bureau reported a total precipitation of 5.2 inches, of which 2.8 was snow.

The wind shifted to the northwest and increased in violence, reaching its 90-mile intensity at 9 o'clock and soon after carrying off the storm clouds.

The gale continued, however, throughout the day, blowing in hundreds of plate glass windows, hurling signs and copings to the streets, and demolishing several partly built structures.

The storm had its center in Massachusetts, the weather bureau reported, and the telegraph companies said their service in New England had been badly crippled, although communication had not been entirely lost with the principal cities. Several of the land lines of the cable companies between New York and Nova Scotia were put out of business.

Army of 4,000,000.

Adoption of the measure puts in the field the greatest British army in history, its number estimated at about 4,000,000. With these millions the government hopes to strike for decisive victories in every theatre of war and end the conflict within another year.

SYNOPSIS

Confederate Sergeant Wyatt is sent as a spy to his native county on the Green Briar. He meets a mountaineer named Sam Taylor. At a house beyond Hot Springs they meet Major Harwood. Taylor murders Harwood and escapes. Wyatt changes to U. S. uniform, escapes to the Green Briar country and goes to Harwood's home, where he finds Noreen Harwood. He introduces himself as Lieutenant Raymond. Noreen attempts to detain him. Wyatt forces her to confess that he has been sent in advance of Anse Cowan, who proposes to marry Noreen at once, and so quiet title to the land in dispute between the Cowans and Noreen's dead father. Anse Cowan and his gang arrive. Wyatt tells Noreen who he is. They force the preacher to silence. Unable to escape while the gang is on the first floor and around the house, Wyatt proposes to marry Noreen and protect her from Cowan. She accepts and Wyatt forces the preacher to marry them. Cowan's gang is driven off by Federal troops, one of whose officers is the real Lieutenant Raymond. Wyatt is trapped, though Noreen attempts to detain him. Wyatt is taken to Lewisburg for trial as a spy. The camp commander and Captain Fox visit Wyatt in his cell in the courthouse basement. He receives a message in return for information, and uses his boyhood knowledge of the building to escape to the attic and thence to the sheriff's office by means of a disused, old-fashioned chimney. He washes off the soot and changes clothes in the deserted washroom, and reconnoiters. He surprises Raymond and the camp commander, holds them up, and with the assistance of Noreen, gets out of the courthouse. Noreen decides to accompany him in his flight. They obtain horses and escape from Lewisburg.

CHAPTER XXII

The Fight in the Cabin.

Benton's cabin had been burned six months ago. Noreen told me, and the old man was believed to be dead. Few others ever used this cut-off, or had occasion to pass this way, and the weeds had quickly taken possession. I was obliged to feel for the worn trail, as it wound here and there along the slope of the hill, and then finally down a shallow depression toward the river.

The horses stepped cautiously, and stood closely together in the narrow path, and the only noise was the occasional stumble of a hoof. Thus we came down to the shore. My memory of the spot was hazy and uncertain.

"Have you ever crossed here?" I asked doubtfully. "I scarcely remember where the ford lies."

"Yes," she replied, leaning forward, "with my father a year ago."

"We'll ride together, but keep your feet free in the stirrups."

"I am not in the least frightened. Don't worry about me," and she held out her hand. "You'll not find me a bad soldier."

"I am certain of that—not if you are still the same girl I played with." Her hand was in mine, and was not out sleep. If I could only rest for an hour—"

"You shall—all day long. We will find a place in which to hide down there in the valley."

The road led winding down between rocky banks into a narrow valley, hemmed in by great hills, and watered by a small stream. As we paused to let the thirsty animals drink, the increasing daylight gave me glimpse of a bridge path skirting the edge of the stream along the west bank. The path turned sharply to the right, and as we mounted to the slightly higher ground we could see the cabin perched on a little knoll, against the black hill behind.

Surely nothing about the shanty, or its immediate surroundings, indicated present occupancy. Yet when I finally advanced it was with caution, and a strange sense of expectation. Noreen followed closely behind, treading almost in my footsteps, as noiseless as a fawn, her skirts held close about her limbs. At the edge of the woods she stood motionless as I went crouching forward. The cabin was not deserted, in spite of its desolate outward appearance. Opposite me was an open fireplace, an iron kettle sitting in the ashes, while a short-barreled rifle stood upright in a corner. On one of the stools lay a broad-brimmed hat, and a pair of ragged corduroy trousers hung on a wooden peg beside the unbarred door. I motioned to her to join me. In spite of the lines of weariness in her face the light of the dawn revealed a beauty that caused my heart to throb. Her eyes silently questioned me, and I explained quickly what discovery I had made.

"But the man may return," she said doubtfully.

"Of course, although I imagine he has disappeared for the day. If he is hiding out he may not dare to remain here in daylight. Anyway you can rest safely, for I am not in need hair and a scraggy beard. I stepped forward and flung up my arm.

"Drop it!" I said shortly. "Lift that gun and you're dead!"

At first I thought him crazy enough to take the chance of my fire; then the big fingers relaxed, and the rifle fell clattering to the floor. To my surprise, the fellow laughed.

"Well, I'll be damned!" he chortled. "you here?"

He threw back his head, and I recognized him—Jem Taylor, old Ned Cowan. I drew a quick breath, my teeth clenched, my arm steady. This encounter was going to prove no boy's play.

"Put down yer popgun, boy, an' take it easy—the blame thing mout go off. I reckon as how we all hav'n't got nuthin' ter fight fer, hav' we? How ther Sam Hill did yer ever git yer?"

"Now wait," I broke in coldly. "You stand just where you are. I am not sure whether you know me or not; but I know you, Ned Cowan—I know what you did at Hot Springs, and how you took me along so as to make others believe I was guilty—"

"Shucks, lad; 'twas no more than a fair fight."

"It was cold-blooded murder, Cowan!" I exclaimed indignantly, "the culmination of a feud."

"Huh who told yer that?"

I stepped aside, but still held him under the muzzle of my revolver. The change in posture brought the man face to face with Noreen; I saw him lean forward and gaze at her; then recoil, as though he viewed a ghost. She never moved, never spoke.

"Good Lord!" he muttered. "Is that Harwood's girl? Why, Anse's out huntin' after her now—"

He stopped, cursing fiercely to himself. His eyes shifted their gaze from the face of the girl to mine. They were narrow cat eyes, cruel and cunning.

"I reckon I ain't seen ol' Harwood's gal afore in maybe five year," he said slowly, "but she has sure growed up fine. Anse took after marryin' her furst jist ter spite Harwood, but since he seed her a while back he's sorter took a notion he wants her hisself. I reckon I don't blame him. The's why he wouldn't wait, but set out ter-night. No, I don't reckon, young feller, it's no particular risk. Yer a sojer an' don't jist understand how we fight out, yer in the mountings. We jist strike quick, an' then git away. Tain't so much of a trick Anse is a-playing at over at Lewisburg. Sure ther's five hundred Yanks ther; an' if ther was five thousand it wouldn't make no great difference the way the guard is set. The whol' blame caboodle is camped in the courthouse yard, an' the only picket is at the main ford of the Green Briar. Yer never saw nobody, did yer, gittin' out yer?"

"No," I admitted, realizing his intimate knowledge. "The camp is poorly protected."

"I reckon it is, and Anse knows that just as well as you do. An' he knows the gal yer had a room at ther hotel. Ther is where he went, simin' fer ter raid the shebang jist before daylight." He laughed again mirthlessly. "By God, but Anse will be some mad when he finds out what has happened. I reckon he'll 'bout cut yer heart out."

"He will have to get me first."

"Oh, don't yer ever worry none 'bout that, young feller. Anse will sure git yer; he knows every bridle path 'cross these mountings, an' I wouldn't give a continental damn fer no chance you've got fer ter git away. He's a tiger cat on a trail, Anse is—an' besides the blame fool wants the gal. He ain't no Cowan if he lets you beat him outer her."

He glanced quickly across my shoulder toward the door. Perhaps she moved; perhaps it was all imagination, but I thought I heard a noise, and wheeled partly around, my eyes for an instant deserting old Cowan's face. It was his one chance, and he took it. I sensed the spring, even as Noreen's cry of warning broke the silence, but not in time to escape the grip of the old man's iron fingers. His body crashed against me with such force that I staggered and fell; one hand was a vice on my throat, the other gripped the stock of my revolver, and my fingers flew.

As we struck the floor, I felt a sharp pain in my foot. It went numb, bearing as both hands were clutching fiercely at my throat. As we struck the floor, I felt a sharp pain in my foot. again, hear, feel. That was Noreen's face I looked into—ay, and the girl was actually dragging the fellow off me! I took another breath, a long one, moving so that the inert body rolled over on its side; then I rose up, supporting myself on one arm, and stared about, sobbing in the first effort to gain control.

"Noreen!" the name choked in my throat.

"Yes; it's all right now—Cowan is dead."

"Dead! You—you killed him?" "No; it must have been your shot. I had no chance; you—you two fought like madmen—then—he just let go of you, and fell back. I was afraid to come—I thought at first he had killed you."

"My shot! why the revolver just went off," I muttered, scarcely comprehending. "See! the bullet burned me across the chest, and there is blood there. And you say it struck him? Lord! I never knew. Help me to sit up, Noreen."

With the aid of her arms I found support against the table. The blue coat I wore showed clearly the mark of the bullet, and blood discolored the burned cloth. I ran my hand within, touching the flesh.

"A mere scratch," I said lightly, "requiring a little water. Don't cry, Noreen; there is no harm done; I'll be all right in a minute. Are you sure Cowan is dead?"

"Yes; he—he hasn't moved since; but—he—didn't kill him."

"Of course no, and I'm glad I did. This is part of my trade, and I'll not lose any sleep over it. Ah! I can get up alone, and the first thing I am going to do is to bar that door."

CHAPTER XXII

We Understand Each Other.

Noreen had drawn away from the body of the dead man, and stood against the farther log wall, with face hidden in her hands. Cowan lay at full length, one arm thrown across his eyes. I bent over him, touching his flesh with my fingers. The ball had penetrated his abdomen, and how the fellow ever fought so fiercely after receiving his death wound I can never understand. I think that in his mad ferocity he was scarcely aware that he was hurt. I turned him partly over, and drew out from the inside pocket of his blouse a handful of papers concealed there. One was a buff packet, which had been roughly torn open—the one taken from Major Harwood the night of his murder.

The packet contained several official papers, but the principal paper was a carefully prepared list of irregulars operating throughout the mountain country, with names of the better-known leaders, the estimated strength of each separate gang, the region in which they hid, and the side they espoused, if any. This had evidently been carefully prepared by some staff officer, undoubtedly Major Harwood himself, as the letter referred to him as having been detailed to such duty, and was full and complete. I found therein this mention of the Cowans: "Father and two sons; probably control fifty or more men, with headquarters near Union in Green Briar mountains; raid indiscriminately; have attacked our forage trains; refuse to co-operate, and continue to terrorize a large section; raided Lewisburg before it was occupied by troops, killing several, and looting the shops. Is considered the most dangerous gang operating in Green Briar and Monroe counties; reports of atrocities received almost daily, many too hideous to repeat."

I glanced up at Noreen, and her eyes met mine inquiringly.

"Is this your father's handwriting?" I asked, holding the paper toward him.

"Yes; what is it—important?"

"Not very complimentary to Cowan here. A report to General Halleck, at Washington, of conditions in western Virginia. I wonder how the old villain ever learned that such a paper was being forwarded?"

"It is not likely he did," she answered thoughtfully. "It may have been mere accident which put the document in his hands. See, here is a letter that father wrote," and she stopped and picked it up from the floor, uttering an exclamation of surprise. "Why, it—it is addressed to Ned Cowan at Union! What could he possibly have written this man about?"

"Let me see," and I took it from her hands. "We may find here an explanation of the whole affair."

Haiti, a Rich Island.

The republic of Haiti occupies about one-third of the island of St. Domingo. It is one of the richest islands in the Caribbean world. That part which comprises the republic of Haiti is a land of mountains and valleys, a little larger than the state of Massachusetts. It presents an astounding variety of climate and vegetation, varying all the way from tropical jungle near the coast to high mountain slopes covered with snow and

FROM ONE YEAR'S HE PAID FOR HIS LAND IN WESTERN CANADA

Remarkable as are the reports of the yields of wheat in Western Canada, the marketing of which is now under way, they are none the more interesting than are those that are vouchered for as to the value of this grain crop to the farmers of that country.

Some months ago the Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, Canada, wrote to those in the United States who were owners of land in Western Canada that was not producing, advising that it be put under crop. The high prices of grain and their probable continuance for some years should be taken advantage of. Cattle and all the produce of the farm commanded good figures, and the opportunity to feed the world was great, while the profits were simply alarming. The Department suggested that money could be made out of these idle lands, lands that could produce anywhere from 25 to 65 bushels of wheat per acre. A number took advantage of the suggestion. One of these was an Illinois farmer. He owned a large quantity of land near Culross, Manitoba. He decided to put one thousand acres of it under wheat. His own story, written to Mr. C. J. Broughton, Canadian Government Agent at Chicago, is interesting.

"I had 1,000 acres in wheat near Culross, Manitoba. I threshed 34,000 bushels, being an average of 34 bushels to the acre. Last Spring I sold my foreman, Mr. F. L. Hill, 240 acres of land for $9,000, or $37.50 per acre. He had saved up about $1,000, which he could buy seed with, and have the land harrowed, drilled and harvested, and put in stock or sheep.

"As a first payment I was to have all the crop raised. When he threshed he had 2,300 bushels of wheat, which is worth in all $1.00 per bushel, thereby paying for all the land that was in wheat and more, too, there being only 200 acres in crop. If the 240 acres had all been in wheat he could have paid for it all and had money left."

That is a story that will need no corroboration in this year when, no matter which way you turn, you learn of farmers who had even higher yields than these.

G. E. Davidson of Manitou, Manitoba, had 36 acres of breaking and 14 acres older land. He got 2,186 bushels of wheat, over 43 bushels per acre.

Walter Tukner of Darlingford, Manitoba, had 2,514 bushels of a 60 acre field, or over 58 1/2 bushels per acre. Forty acres was breaking and 20 acres summer fallow.

Wm. Sharp, formerly Member of Parliament for Lisgar, Manitoba, had 80 acres of wheat on his farm near Manitou, Manitoba, that went 53 bushels per acre.

One of the most remarkable yields in this old settled portion of Manitoba was that of P. Scharf of Manitoba, who, threshed from 15 acres the phenomenal yield of 73 bushels per acre.

These reports are but from one district, and when it is known that from almost any district in a grain belt of 30,000 square miles, yields, while not as large generally as these noted, but in many cases as good, is it any wonder that Canada is holding its head high in the air in its conquering career as the high wheat yielder of the continent? When it is pointed out that there are millions of acres of the same quality of land that has produced these yields, yet unbroken, and may be had for fifty cents an acre, or less, or in some cases may be purchased at from $25 to $30 from railway companies and land companies, it is not an opportunity to take part in the enormous production should be a matter of much higher interest.

Trying to tell me what you told me, I asked you if he could be your daughter?"

"I acted as grouch, so I applied Mr. Curran to get him right out of the temper, but I had to be to him."

"What did you tell me?" "I acted as grouch, so I applied Mr. Curran to get him right out of the temper, but I had to be to him."

Score with a fork and brown in the oven.

Tomato Rice.
Wash two ounces of rice thoroughly and cook it in half a pint of milk until quite soft and flavor with salt and pepper. Take one pound of stewed and sieved tomato and beat together. Stir in one ounce of butter and cook until quite moist, but not wet. Serve very hot and, if liked, strew grated cheese over.

Tomato Rice and Eggs.
Serve the tomato pie in a fireproof dish with poached eggs on the top.

Stuffed Tomatoes.
Prepare the tomato pie as before. Take the necessary number of large dry tomatoes, dip into boiling water, skin, cut the tops off and remove some of the pulp (the tops and pulp can be used for the puree). Fill the tomato cases with rice. Scatter with fine browned crumbs, seasoned with celery salt and cayenne. Put a little piece of butter on each and bake on a greased tin in a moderate oven for about twenty minutes. Serve hot.

Vegetable Curry (Hot or Cold).
Weigh five ounces of margarine. Chop very fine four medium sized onions. Melt the margarine and cook the onions in it until they are a deep gold brown, a process which takes time. Meanwhile put on a grater in the oven a tablespoonful of curry powder and leave it for ten minutes and then mix it smooth with a little milk or cream. Add to the onion mixture and cook gently for two hours at least, stirring now and then.

Cut into neat squares one small vegetable marrow, a small peeled cucumber, one raw apple, two tomatoes (peeled) and some French beans with the strings removed, all of which have been previously cooked. Place in the curry mixture and cook gently for thirty minutes. Serve very hot with well boiled rice or ice it.

Almost any leftover vegetables may be used in the curry, such as peas, cauliflower, broad beans, etc.

AROUND THE DAIRY.

A chill brought on by the under coming in contact with frosty ground is apt to ruin your best cow.

Ice cold water checks the milk flow and so affects the cow that it is apt to be detrimental to her unborn calf.

An economical use of roughage about the farm is greatly in favor of winter dairying.

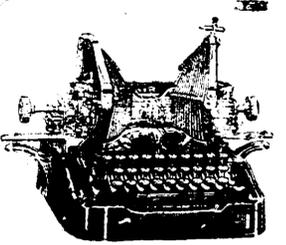

Sweep up every particle of sludge in the chute and alleyway and give it to the cows at every feeding.

The cow that is to do her best in the winter must be well fed, well sheltered and well cared for.
