Wm. Hooker

Wm. Hooker was born at Red Hill Surrey, England Feb. 16th, 1846. He was the son of Wm. and Jane Hooker. At the age of seven his mother died and two years later with his father and two sisters he sailed for Canada and settled at Simcoe, Ont., where he grew to manhood. At the age of 14 he learned the miller's trade which he followed through life. In 1881 he came to Ann Arbor where he worked three years. After a number of years in Pinckney and vicinity he purchased the Pettyville Mill 23 years ago which he ran until his death, Aug. 8th, 1916, at the age of 70 years, 5 months and 21 days.

July 21st, 1869 he was united in marriage to Sarah A. Richardson. To them was born two children, James H. Hooker and Mrs. Maud Sayles, who with his wife, two sisters and five grandchildren are left to mourn his loss.

Happily Surprised

Sunday, Aug. 15th happened to be Will Caskeys birthday, and about ninety of his friends and relatives gathered at his home in Anderson to remind him of it. After all had partaken of a sumptuous dinner, Mrs. Will Cooper of Detroit presented Will, with a handsome rocker.

State Fair Tickets at Reduced Prices

The Dispatch has received a number of tickets for the Michigan State Fair for sale. The price of admission at Detroit will be fifty cents. We are authorized to make the advance sale at thirty-five cents each, or three for one dollar. Tickets are good for any day of the fair, Sept. 4th to 12th.

Final Meeting of Book Committee.

You will remember that at the final meeting of school officers last February they elected from their number a committee. This committee was to make a study of the school books in use and to recommend new books if any were not needed.

The Committee has had several meetings and has spent a great deal of time in this work. Recommendations of the best texts have been secured from superintendents and commissioners about the state. The final meeting was held last Wednesday and the following recommendations were made:

Readers—Baldwin & Beeder, by American Book Co.

Language—Aldine, by Newson & Co. Grammar—Read & Kellogg, by Chas. Merrill Co.

Arithmetic—Miles' Progression, which is already in a large percentage of the schools. Other changes will be made when that needed for the best interests of the schools.

In view of the fact that exchange price is small no one will be distressed by the changes. Take your old books and exchange for the new by paying a small amount.

Everybody knows the desirability of having uniform texts in the schools and it is hoped that all parents will at the opening of school procure the above books for their children. For instance don't ask your teacher to have two or three classes in third grade reading because your children have different books from the rest.

The names of the books committee are: Jay Reed

In Memoriam

The grim messenger of death has again invaded the Chapter of the Eastern Star and has taken our beloved brother, William Hooker from our midst. Our Almighty Father has seen fit to bring sorrow and affliction upon us with promise of an eternal home where sorrow never enters. Our deepest sympathy is extended to all relatives and friends of our departed brother. We deeply mourn our loss, but he has passed to where, beyond the cares and trials of his life there is peace and rest.

Man of Big Affairs for Public Service

With a record of no failures, Frank B. Leland offers his varied and extensive business experience and equipment to his native state. Wayne county solid for him—the first candidate since Pingree to enjoy such a distinction.

The Governorship Question

(An editorial from the Charlotte Tribune of August 9th, the publication that so loyally backed Lieutenant Governor Dickinson for governor, now supporting Mr. Leland.)

With Lieutenant Governor L. D. Dickinson, Eaton County's former candidate for the gubernatorial race, out of the field for governor, the voters will be turning to one or another of the candidates for the place and Frank B. Leland of Detroit seems to meet with considerable favor in local circles and is also making strong gains throughout the state. Wayne county will give Mr. Leland almost solid support as at a recent meeting of various factions it appeared that all were united for him.

Mr. Leland was born on an Oakland County farm and today owns and operates the farm on which his boyhood was spent. He worked his way through the University of Michigan and has made good as a lawyer in Flint, and Detroit. He has been twice elected a regent of the University of Michigan, which office he has filled with credit and ability as is evidenced by the great support he is receiving from the University alumni.

Mr. Leland organized a savings bank of which he has been president for 15 years, and is a thoroughly capable business man who would make a governor strong enough to bring about improved methods in the state's system of taxation and expenditures, concerning which he has expressed himself in no uncertain terms.

Mr. Leland is a man of high ideals, unshaken courage and tireless industry and his election to the office of governor would mean the inauguration of many important public improvements, with a big reduction in expenses which would be a relief to the overburdened taxpayers of the state. Mr. Leland is not tied to any of the factions or interests and, as governor, would be in a better position to give the state better service than if he had alliances with the past and promises for the future. He has no elements of weakness to defend or explain.

Michigan needs an honest man for governor and one of ability, courage, broadmindedness and good common sense. Such a man is Frank B. Leland.

Frank B. Leland

(Detroit News Editorial Aug. 5, 1916)

Now that the Wayne county and Detroit republican organizations are pledged to Frank B. Leland's candidacy for governor, his chances of securing the nomination have been greatly improved. Detroit has not produced a governor since Pingree and Michigan admits that he was a good one. But Mr. Leland has more than a geographical claim to consideration. He combines the education and training of a lawyer with those of a business man, and is thus fitted not only to give Michigan that "business administration" which of late years has been so clamorously desired by certain groups, but also to give expert attention to legislation.

Mr. Leland has never been an office seeker. His election as regent to the University of Michigan in 1907 and again in 1913 gave him a place of honor rather than of political influence. It was a position in which executive capacity was needed, and this Mr. Leland showed he had. In another field of public service he has won popular esteem—the fight against tuberculosis. There he has shown fine qualities of organization and leadership.

Michigan republicans will do well to consider the qualifications of the Wayne county candidate, and to compare them with those of other aspirants for the nomination. It would be a mistake to choose him merely because Detroit may feel that this city is entitled to consideration. But if his record and his abilities, his broadmindedness and his freedom from factionalism appeal to the party, it should not let minor considerations influence it.

PROFITABLE HOG PRODUCTION IN EAST

HOGS IN RAPE AT MISSOURI AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

While the South and West are awaking rapidly to the merits of the hog, and these sections are increasing their output of pork and enlarging their bank accounts, few farmers in New England or the middle Atlantic states are raising hogs on a large scale. Many of the farmers in these sections hold that hog raising is not profitable, and on many farms the hogs that are raised are regarded as a side-line rather than as offering an important source of income. In these eastern states it is estimated on January 1, 1916, there were only 2,687,000 hogs, or about 4 per cent of the total of 68,000,000 reported for the entire country.

The principal reason why hogs are not raised more largely by eastern farmers, the animal husbandry experts of the department say, is that many farmers in this section have not yet realized the value of cheaply grown forage and pasture in swine production. The general conditions in the East offer opportunities for profitable pork production, but not where hogs are kept in pens 6 by 10 feet and fed on grain alone, with no green feed except occasional waste vegetables from the table.

There seems also to be an impression throughout the East that only those farmers who have rich, level land should raise hogs. As a matter of fact, the specialists say, hogs are most easily handled on farms that are somewhat rolling. For the production of grasses the upland farm is often about as good as the level one. There is generally a better water supply, and a hilly farm is likely to have more shade. This does not mean that the hill farmer has the better situation, but in a great many instances he has certain advantages which he does not appreciate.

Advantages Offered by East.

The eastern farmer is in the midst of top-notch markets for hogs. The prices paid for hogs on the New York, Jersey City, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh markets are on an average higher than the prices paid for hogs on any of the western markets. The East is peculiarly adapted to hog raising, in view of the fact that markets for fresh pork and cured meats may be found in local communities as well as in the larger cities and the various coast resorts.

Corn is being grown successfully in the East, and in some sections the average yield per acre is greater than that of the middle West. Clover, blue grass, in fact, many forage crops especially adapted for swine feeding, grow readily in nearly every section of the East. Rye, oats, barley and wheat also are grown, and these young, growing cereals make excellent early spring pasture for pigs. In the trucking sections there is wasted annually a vast quantity of unmarketable products that might be used to advantage and with profit in feeding hogs. The dairy districts offer a further advantage to the hog raiser by furnishing such by-products as skim milk and buttermilk, which are especially relished and profitably utilized by growing pigs.

While there are many advantages in favor of profitable pork production in the East, on many of the farms these advantages are overlooked and hogs are confined within a pen about 6 by 10 feet during the entire year.

Pasture and Forage Crops.

No farmer is prepared to raise hogs profitably unless he is well provided with pasture. The pasture should be so managed that it affords tender and palatable forage. Grasses are succulent and rich in muscle and bone forming materials, but the most important consideration in favor of pasture for swine in summer is its small cost. The earlier in the year green feed can be supplied the better. Swine of any age relish green feed, and its use always reduces the cost of producing gains in weight. In addition, it keeps the animals in good thrifty condition.

Forage Crops for the East.

For full and early spring pasture the cereals are unexcelled in this section of the country. Because young wheat, oats, rye and barley are such good grazing crops and are green when frost has killed clover, they are ideal crops to grow for pigs during the late fall and early spring. Any of these cereals do well planted singly or in combination with Canada peas and vetch. These crops can be planted in early spring in those sections where the winters are not too severe. The pigs should be turned in to pasture the cereal crops when the plants attain a height of about 6 to 8 inches and taken off when the plants reach such a height that the pigs begin to spit the chewed material from their mouths. This is because the percentage of crude fiber (the indigestible part of the plant) increases rapidly as the plants grow larger.

Grains for Hogs on Pasture.

Mature, dry-brood sows are sometimes maintained in apparently satisfactory condition on good pasture alone. Young, growing pigs, on the other hand, running on forage crops, without grain, scarcely maintain their weight. There is no time that grain can be so profitably fed to a hog as when he is young and running on pasture. Under such conditions it is possible to secure 15 pounds of gain for each bushel of grain fed. During the spring and summer and early fall months from one-half to three-fourths of a full feed of grain will be sufficient for hogs running on pasture. More forage will be eaten by the pigs than if a full ration of grain is fed.

RING FOR SELF-SUCKING COW

Animal With This Habit Is Usually Heavy Milker and It Pays to Try Some Remedy.

In most cases it pays to try some remedy, for a cow of this kind is usually a heavy milker. The cow suffers and tries to relieve herself, and the habit is formed. Ways of prevention are numberless.

A cure after the habit is formed is almost impossible. The most effective remedy is putting two rings in the cow's nose. Ring the cow in the usual way, and in this ring hang another, forming two links of a chain. Sometimes one ring will stop the habit, but in most cases two are needed.

If the cow is not a good milker, better sell her to the butcher.

Watch Closely for Lice.

If the young chicks are droopy examine them closely for lice, especially the large gray louse found on the head of the chicks. A drop of sweet oil will do good work.

BROOD SOW PROTEIN SUPPLY

Carbohydrates and Fat Also Essential—Animals Do Well in Good Clover Pasture.

The brood sow should have daily about .5 pounds protein, .31 pound carbohydrates and .08 pound fat. Now if the average feed of corn is used she will get about 1.43 pounds protein, 13.22 pounds carbohydrates and 0.99 pound fat. As a general feed, brood sows in a good clover pasture need little else, and even with no rings, will not likely find time to root.

Place for Hen Manure.

Any hen manure left? Good place for it on the cornfield. Stir it in close to the hills. If left out on top it may dry up in the sunshine and do nobody good.

Adds to Egg Yield.

No matter what the time of the year, warmth of feed adds to the yield of eggs and the laying on of shells.

Temperance Notes

LABOR CONDEMNS SALOON.

"The time has come in this country when even men who take an occasional drink and feel it their right and privilege to do so, if they please, are coming to agree that it is not right for a man to make it his business to cultivate the vices of a community, and to take from men money that belongs to their families, giving them in exchange liquid madness, brutality, insanity and damnation."

These words were spoken by Rev. William B. Millard in an address at a remarkable labor meeting held in Garrick theater, Chicago. "The labor union, like the church," continued Mr. Millard, "should regard the open saloon as its greatest enemy. The time has come, nay is so near, that the rosy radiance of the glorious dawn already greets our eyes, when the saloon will be abolished and the barkeeper outlawed, so that a man may no longer be waylaid on payday and sent home to his broken-hearted wife and terrified little ones a raging, loathsome, penniless beast."

Tremendous applause greeted these sentiments. The theater was packed to utmost capacity with representatives of union labor.

RED ROSES INSTEAD.

The place formerly occupied by one of Spokane's most notorious saloons is now a "brilliantly lighted, clean-smelling" market where "chops, cabbages and groceries replace the foaming brew" once sold there in great abundance. At the same counter where "red noses" were formerly in line, a fair maiden now dispenses "red roses," and at the site of the former "big bar," young men are now busy dealing out fresh meats of all kinds. Nobody but the former brewer and saloonkeeper complains that "business is ruined under prohibition." "Spokane is feeling right smart pert under prohibition, thank you!"

CUTS CITY'S EXPENSES.

Mayor Anderson of The Dalles, Oregon, furnishes this bit of testimony: "Since the first of the year, when the prohibition law went into effect, all lines of business have improved. This changed condition is particularly noticeable in groceries and meat markets, both cash business and collections showing a marked gain. The following figures are taken from our official records and show the effect of prohibition on the police court:

Arrests for Drunkenness.	Cost of Feeding City Prisoners.
Jan. and Feb., 1912, 42.....	$131.63
Jan. and Feb., 1913, 84.....	122.08
Jan. and Feb., 1914, 137.....	189.72
Jan. and Feb., 1915, 67.....	64.24
Jan. and Feb., 1916, 2.....	72

TESTIMONY FROM ILLINOIS.

According to the records of the police officials in Illinois dry cities have 75 per cent less crime to contend with than wet cities of the same size. Aurora, while under the saloon administration, had 1,005 arrests for drunkenness, while in dry Rockford, with the same population, there were only 719 arrests. Wet Joliet had 1,682 arrests for drunkenness while dry Decatur had 966. Both towns are of the same size. Still another instance was the 3,819 arrests in East St. Louis as against 454 in dry Galesburg. The reports show that the majority of these arrests was due to the introduction of liquor from the surrounding wet territory.

TEETOTALERS WIN.

In Germany a walking contest was conducted over a course of 62 miles. Eighty-one men entered the contest, of whom only 24 were abstainers, but the first four men who crossed the line were abstainers. Of the ten prize-winners, six were teetotalers and two had been abstaining for some time while in training. More than half of the non-abstainers fell out by the way, but only two of the 24 abstainers.

THEY WORK ANYWAY.

"It's the women," growled a portly saloonist. "They are behind all of this. They will find out. If they are going to run things, we are going to let them work." Whereupon, his quick-witted listener remarked, "The wives of drinking men always have had to work. If they have to choose between a sober husband and work, or a drunken man and work anyway, I think they will take the dry man."

LAW WELL ENFORCED.

Following various rumors that the prohibition law was being violated the chief of police of Centralia, Wash., offered $20 reward from his own purse for information leading to the conviction of a bootlegger. The chief declares there is not one in the city. To a man who said he could get whisky, the chief gave a dollar to buy a bottle. The dollar was later returned.

STOPS ORCHESTRA OVER BET

Director Called to Telephone to Listen to Wagner's "Tra La" Imitation of Music.

Ernest Hussar, director of the Hungarian orchestra at the McAlpin roof garden, was called from his platform to the telephone the other night. "I say," he heard, "you've got to decide a wager. Tra la, tra la, tra—my friend bets $100 that's from 'Faust.' I say it isn't. Tra la, tra la—"

"Really," broke in the musician. "I can't waste my time—"

"Just a minute. Tra la, pom pom, tra la. Get me?"

The musician had become interested. "Sounds something like 'Lorsque donc des Folles Amours.' But that goes lala tra, tra la lala—"

"That's it, exactly," came the voice from the other end of the wire. "I win the $100. Thanks so much."—New York Tribune.

The Wheat Yield Tells the Story of Western Canada's Rapid Progress

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The heavy crops in Western Canada have caused new records to be made in the handling of grains by railroads. For, while the movement of these heavy shipments has been wonderfully rapid, the resources of the different roads, despite enlarged equipments and increased facilities, have been strained as never before, and previous records have thus been broken in all directions.

The largest Canadian wheat shipments through New York ever known are reported for the period up to October 15th, upwards of four and a quarter million bushels being exported in less than six weeks, and this was but the overflow of shipments to Montreal, through which point shipments were much larger than to New York.

Yields as high as 60 bushels of wheat per acre are reported from all parts of the country, while yields of 45 bushels per acre are common. Thousands of American farmers have taken part in this wonderful production. Land prices are still low and free homestead lands are easily secured in good localities, convenient to churches, schools, markets, railways, etc.

Flowers and Shrubbies
Their Care and Cultivation

If You Want to Encourage Blooming in Your Hybrids and Tea Roses, Cut Back to a Well-Developed Bud.

NOTES ON BLOOMING THINGS

By ELIZABETH VAN BENTHUYSEN.

If you want to encourage blooming in your hybrid and tea roses, cut back to a well-developed bud at the juncture of leaf and stem when cutting off the rose.

It is not generally known that if a spray of gladiolus is cut when the first flower appears, or rather opens, and placed in water it will bloom just as well as if on the stalk.

Poppies are short-lived after being cut, and therefore are unsatisfactory for decoration. However, if every bloom is cut in the evening and thrown away, those flowers that open next morning will last two or three days if they are plunged in water up to their necks for an hour or two. After a thorough soaking they can be used in vases, and their beauty will charm for two or three days.

The sweet peas, like every flower that blows, demands a daily stripping of every bloom. Producing seeds is done at the expense of blooms. However, flowers should be cut with sharp shears, never torn from the plant.

Never cut the flowers of the wax plant unless you wish no further blooms. Its flowers are produced in exactly the same "eye" each time, and if this eye is removed no more flowers will develop.

Weak liquid manure is just the stimulant most flowers need when they bloom. Do not stint them in this respect.

Another aid to the profusion of flowers is plenty of water.

The dust mulch in time of drought is beneficial when water is scarce.

No matter what the calendar says, do not plant your tube roses out of doors too early in the spring.

Protect the toad. He is the gardener's friend.

Much sweet peas by sowing seeds of any of the low-growing annuals along the pea trenches and thereby extend their blooming season.

Do not try to grow flowers or vegetables too thickly on the ground. Thin out with a liberal hand, and give each sufficient space to develop naturally.

If the lawn shows bald spots, or looks shabby, scatter about guano before a shower.

PHLOX FOR GREENHOUSE.

Perennial phlox makes splendid pot plants for the greenhouse when treated after the manner of chrysanthemums. Make cuttings as soon as the shoots are about two inches long. Root them in small pots, moving them along into six-inch pots and when they are filled with roots feed with liquid manure.

For potting soil use good loam two parts and well-rotted manure one part. Grow the plants outside, with the pots plunged to the rim in earth.

Water liberally throughout the summer and only put them in the greenhouse to finish.

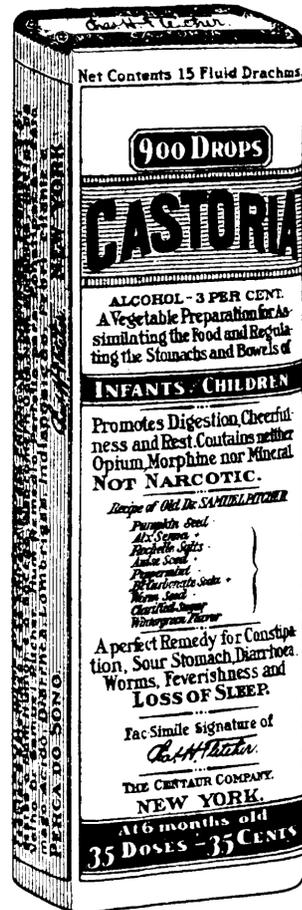

PLANTS THAT GROW IN SANDY SOIL

Good plants for sandy soil are verbenas, asters and phlox. These are all annuals and do particularly well in this soil.

Latrix, blazing star or gay feather is a capital plant for sandy soil, although it does well in any good soil. It is a hardy perennial with long spikes of purple and rosy purple flowers, blooming from July to September, and growing from three to four feet high.

Business Based on Service.

Modern business is built up largely on guarantees. People don't trade with folks they can't trust. That business is getting freer from traps and hooks is due largely to guarantees, some of which assure you of satisfaction or your money back. Others promise long continued service and free repairs, while others give a free trial till you make up your mind you want to buy. The idea is to help you get your full money's worth and to make you feel safe in buying an article on which you are not fully posted, but which you want if it suits you.—Farm and Fireside.

NEW YORK IN THE TROPICS?

Gulf Stream Some Day May Warm the Icy Waters of the North.

Some day the Gulf stream may smash back the icy water of the Labrador drift and make New York as warm as European and Asiatic cities of the same latitude. It may even come to pass, as Father Odenbach of Cleveland suggests, that these parts will be tropical. True, the Jesuit scientist swears us by saying that a great swerving of the Gulf stream is improbable, but even the slim possibility fills the imagination with exotic pictures. Orange groves in northern New Jersey, coffee plantations in place of Suffolk county cabbage patches, rubber forests in Connecticut, alligators devouring canal-bait captains in Newton creek and anacondas asleep in Westchester jungles—it would all be worth while living to see.

But the time is not yet. This month's heat is only natural. And in August, when a seeming simoon comes upon us, do not misjudge the Gulf stream. The hot air will be from the great wind stream that rises in the campaign textbooks and flows until a Monday evening in November, the New York Sun observes.

Jane Settled Him.

"Jane," said her mistress, "you really will have to put a stop to the visits of your follower."

"Yes, I must, ma'am," replied Jane. "But you have said that before," expostulated her mistress, "and there it's ended."

"I'm sure I've done my best, ma'am," said Jane; "it isn't easy. But I'll try and settle him on my next Thursday out."

Her next Thursday out came and went. Her follower also came and went (with Jane), and Jane eventually returned in a radiant mood.

"I've settled him this time, ma'am!" she exclaimed breathlessly.

Her mistress was delighted. But in the hour of victory one should be generous to the fallen foe, so she expressed hope that Jane had not been too hard on the young man.

"Hard on him?" cried Jane. "No, ma'am, that I wasn't. I've just married him, and I leave at the end of the month!"

High Pay.

A Buffalo man stopped a newsboy in New York, saying: "See here, son. I want to find the Blank National bank. I'll give you half a dollar if you direct me to it." With a grin, the boy replied, "All right, come along," and he led the man to a building half a block away. The man paid the promised fee, remarking, however: "That was half a dollar easily earned." "Sure!" responded the lad. "But you mustn't forget that bank directors is paid high in Noo Yawk."—Exchange.

Exceptions.

"Don't you like the silent watches of the night?"

"Yes, except a moonlight one, when the spoony couples spoil them with audible Luna-ticks."

American Date Trees.

A number of date-palm trees have been brought from Africa to California, where dates are now raised successfully.

"Rile" Rebuke.

The prince of Wales has endeared himself to the British soldiers fighting in the trenches.

There is a story about a regiment that the prince recently reviewed. A soldier in this regiment was noted equally for his bravery and his untidiness. The prince talked to him for a few minutes, and the man in his confusion could stammer nothing but "Your rife highness." "Yes, your rife highness." "No, your rife highness."

At the end of the interview the prince said, with a good-natured glance at the soldier's accoutrements disordered as usual:

"Very good, my man, very good; but, in future, please, not so much of the rife highness and a little more of the pipe clay."

Intelligent Comment.

Mr. Smith—What do you think of this? They say in some parts where our troops are it is a hundred and more in the shade.

Mrs. Smith—Dear me! Would you suppose it was so much hotter than in the sun?

The man who sits around and boasts of his bravery is usually the first to hike for the tall timber when danger threatens.

A homely girl is always pretty in the eyes of the man in love with her.

SIX MEN DROWN IN STATE WATERS

THREE LOSE THEIR LIVES AT THE UPPER END OF BELLE ISLE.

TWO OF THEM BROTHERS

Highland Park Lad Was Drowned in the North Channel at Pointe Aux Tremble.

Detroit—Four persons were drowned in the Detroit river Sunday, August 13. Three of the drownings happened at the temporary bathing beach at the upper end of Belle Isle established by the Park commissioner to relieve the island bath house during the recent hot spell. The fourth drowning occurred off the foot of Chene street.

The three men drowned at the head of Belle Isle are Charles Tafcha, aged 25 years, and his brother Edward, aged 23, and Chilney Lang, aged 16 years. The Tafcha brothers lived with their sister at 1955 Waterloo street, while Lang lived with his parents at 1470 Van Dyke avenue. The man drowned at the foot of Chene street was Charles Haffe, 35 years old, who lived on Fairview avenue.

The bodies of the Tafcha brothers and Lang were recovered by Harbor-master Julius Kling within a short time and efforts were made to revive them by the use of a lungmotor. The efforts was unavailing and the bodies were removed to their homes.

The three young men had gone to the island shortly after noon, and after making their way to the head of the island decided to go in for a swim. Owing to the comparatively cool weather few bathers were in the water. None of the three could swim well and apparently did not know that at the spot they went in the river bed deepens rather suddenly a short distance from shore. The three were at some distance from any other swimmers when cries for help were heard.

Several persons in rowboats attempted to reach the drowning men, but they went down close together for the last time before assistance reached them.

Haffe was rowing a boat at the foot of Chene street, and in some unexplained manner tumbled overboard, hitting his head on the side of the boat as he fell. Witnesses say his body came to the surface but once. It was recovered an hour after the drowning within a few feet of where he fell in the water.

Harry Stump, 19 years old, of Highland Park, was drowned in the North channel at Pointe Aux Tremble, near Algonac, one hour after he had arrived for a week-end visit at the cottage of his uncle, John Schaeffer. He had gone in swimming alone, and shortly afterwards was heard calling for help. The body was recovered 45 minutes later by Emory Crocker, but could not be revived.

Cullen Wilkinson, 22 years old, of Jackson, was drowned at Clark lake, this county, when a sail boat, in which he and three other young men were riding, tipped over during a heavy wind storm.

ISAAC LEWIS GIVEN PAROLE

Was Convicted for the Murder of Captain John Halzapfell.

Lansing—Gov. Ferris has paroled I. Lewis who murdered Captain John Halzapfell of the Jackson police force nine years ago. Lewis was a patrolman under Halzapfell, and becoming jealous over Halzapfell's promotion to the captaincy when he believed himself entitled to the place, he walked into the police station early one morning and opened fire on the captain while he was seated at his desk. Captain Halzapfell died almost instantly and Lewis was arrested for first degree murder. He was convicted and sentenced to Jackson prison for life. Since his imprisonment his friends have made numerous attempts to obtain his freedom on the theory that he was crazed by drink and temporarily insane. According to Secretary Austin there has been no opposition to Lewis's parole and hundreds of letters have been received urging the governor to extend executive clemency.

MICHIGAN NEWS ITEMS

A shotgun with which the nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis living two miles northwest of Leingsburg, this county, was playing, was accidentally discharged. A terrible wound was inflicted in the lad's throat and he died almost immediately. He did not know the gun was loaded.

RAILROADS TO RENEW FIGHT

Will Try and Get An Increase in Passenger Fare Rates.

Lansing.—Unless the interstate commerce commission intervenes in the same manner as in Illinois, it is generally conceded that the railroads will renew their fight for an increase in passenger fares at the next session of the legislature.

C. L. Glasgow of the Michigan railroad commission is amazed at the ruling of the interstate commission in the Illinois case. Despite the protests of the Illinois railroad commission and other state officials, the interstate commerce commission has declared that the present passenger rate of two cents per mile, fixed by the Illinois legislature, imposes an unlawful burden on interstate commerce, in instances where they are lower than the 2 1/2 basis. The interstate commission thereby disregarded the state law and boosted the passenger rate within the state of Illinois four-tenths of a cent a mile.

Commissioner Glasgow and other state officials who have seen the opinion in the Illinois case point out that if this decision is sustained by the courts, it will be a death blow to state-made fares lower than the fares prescribed for interstate business.

It is claimed that there is nothing to prevent the interstate commerce commission from invading Michigan and raising the passenger rates in defiance of the two cent law and the authorities of this state.

However, those in touch with the railroad situation from the viewpoint of the state are of the opinion that the railroads will make another attempt to get a new rate bill through the legislature before appealing to the interstate commerce commission. Unless the ruling of the interstate commerce commission is overturned in court before January 1, it is believed here that the Illinois decision will furnish the basis for the railroad attack on the present law.

STATE REALIZED $6,912,000

The Sale of State Lands Brings Huge
Sum Into the State Treasury.

Lansing—When Michigan was admitted a state provision was made that all money from the sale of state lands should be used for educational institutions, but later the legislature passed a law whereby the state could use this money providing it paid interest at the rate of six per cent. Auditor General Fuller says that since 1844 the state has realized $6,912,000 from the sale of lands, but has paid in interest the sum of $17,730,224. The University of Michigan has received in interest from this source $2,030,271.43, while the Michigan Agricultural College has benefited to the extent of $1,710,915.13. The primary school fund has received interest amounting to more than $13,000,000. Last year the interest amounted to $465,000.

DOCTORS MUST REPORT CASES

Are Subject to a Heavy Fine If They Do Not Obey the Law.

Lansing—Dr. John L. Burkart, secretary of the state board of health, has issued orders to every health officer in the state to place under arrest every physician in Michigan who fail to make immediate reports of suspected cases of infantile paralysis. "The doctors are negligent in reporting cases and the first intimation that this department has had of infantile paralysis in a majority of the cases is the notice that the patient is dead," said Dr. Burkart. "While we do not anticipate any serious trouble from infantile paralysis, we are determined to take no chances and inasmuch as the last legislature provided the machinery whereby physicians may be subjected to heavy fines for failure to report cases of contagious diseases, we intend to go the limit. Doctors must report cases or their arrest will follow."

GUARDSMEN GIVEN FLYING LESSONS

Aviator H. W. Blakley Begins
Giving Instructions.

FOUR GO UP ON FIRST DAY

William Bergin and Frank E. Root of Signal Corps First Two Pupils Taken Up in Machine.

Camp Ferris, Grayling.—For the first time in the history of aviation in Michigan, pupils were given instructions in flying under the auspices of the National Guard here. Aviator H. W. Blakley made four flights in one morning. William Bergin, master signal electrician of the signal corps and Frank E. Root, also of the signal corps, Ypsilanti, were the first two pupils taken up in the machine. Other passengers were Captain Britton and Malcolm Robertson.

Ban Put on Furloughs.

No more passes or furloughs will be granted soldiers at Camp Ferris except in cases of absolute necessity. Maj. D. W. Smith, adjutant general of the first brigade, announced at a meeting of regimental and battalion adjutants and company commanders at brigade headquarters.

No one will be permitted to go home except in case of serious illness or death, Major Smith said.

"These cases will be investigated before a leave of absence is granted," he added.

Major Phillips Ready to Serve.

Maj. M. J. Phillips, discharged from the United States service by reason of a war department ruling that inspectors of small arms practice are not included in the national defense act, has gone to his home in Owosso. "If you want me, call," he said to General Kirk. He will accept any place offered for border service at his rank.

Soldiers Rich for a Time.

Members of the Guard at Camp Ferris are still counting their money—what there is left of it. After 50 days without a pay day, when the ghost really walked it was an epochal event and one not soon to be forgotten.

Men who had been strangers to currency for weeks went about with $20 bills in their hands—for a short time, after the first day there wasn't so much of it left. The post exchange has a goodly part of it and its bills against the men were marked "paid." Places of entertainment at Grayling had some of it, but not as much as they would have had if orders had not been issued that no passes should be granted.

The guard lines were made as nearly airtight as possible and a double provost guard did duty. The orders were that men without passes were to be thrust into jail and reported to brigade headquarters. Before the provost went on duty 100 or more privates had made their way to Grayling and started a celebration.

While this was going on, other men were sitting under trees counting up the returns for six weeks of drills, armory and camp life. Others were writing letters to those left behind and inclosing as much as they could spare.

Chaplain Swan of the Thirty-third regiment, who had opened a money order office, was swamped. By evening, he had sold about $7,000 worth of these orders. The money was taken to Grayling under guard. Many of the soldiers opened savings accounts with the government. On these they receive four per cent interest after six months. Any debts, except those in civil life, may be deducted, however.

Follow Border Program.

Brigadier General Kirk has received a schedule from El Paso, governing the activities of Michigan troops on the border, which has been adopted by the Guardsmen here.

General Kirk has wired Colonel Covell for this, so that all units of the brigade might receive the same training.

The program is contained in general orders and provides for all activities until November 1. As the period for training the brigade is designated from August 28 to October 30, inclusive, the troops now here will have to be south before that time. Instructions will begin with the smaller units and proceed to that of larger ones in succession, culminating in field work for October. Company period is designated for August; battalion period, September 1-15, inclusive; regimental period, September 16-25.

Michigan Camp Most Sanitary.

El Paso, Tex.—The camp of the Thirty-first and Thirty-second Michigan regiments is declared by medical officers of the regular army to be one of the most sanitary on the border. The result is that there has been almost no sickness among the Michigan soldiers.

When Major Connors of the regular army made the rounds the other day he found the average serious sickness about two to the thousand.

"This is better than the average now being maintained on the border," he said. "The average in camp is five or six to the thousand. In cities about 10 per cent of the population is indisposed at all times and about 25 to 30 per 1,000 are suffering from serious disorders."

All this is attributed to the unceasing vigilance of the medical officers of the Michigan regiments.

Plans Entertainment for Men.

Chaplain Atkinson is planning an extensive course of entertainment for the men in the Thirty-first. He has been promised by officers that if the $150 a month allowed him is not sufficient to carry on the work more money will be furnished. Besides a moving-picture machine and a player piano will be secured. In addition to the picture local entertainers will be secured to assist in the programs. Religious services will also be held Sunday evenings after the picture machine is secured, and at these services appropriate films will be run.

Will Not Build Roads.

An order issued by General Bell relieves all Guardsmen of road building duties in the El Paso military district. Reports had been current that troops would be utilized in making the roads, and as a consequence there had been many quiet protests from the men. In making his order public General Bell stated he believed the men had sufficient military duties without resorting to road building.

Many Sanatoriums Planned.

Lansing.—The state board of health in its state-wide tuberculosis survey is succeeding in arousing the people of many communities to the necessity of taking community action to prevent the disease. This is indicated by reports received during the past few days from various parts of Michigan.

The counties of Wexford, Kalamazoo and Oshtemo are making plans to erect a tuberculosis sanatorium large enough to accommodate the patients of the three counties. One of these counties, Wexford, was the first one visited in the state board of health's survey a year ago, and the work done there is bearing fruit.

St. Clair county, visited about five months ago, is also taking steps for the erection of a sanatorium. At the present session of the board of supervisors a proposal is up for the erection of a $15,000 building at Beard's hill, not far from the city of Port Huron. Port Huron also has provided an open-air school since the state board of health survey was held there. Keweenaw county is another county that is building a sanatorium.

In Traverse City, where a survey was held last December, the organization of a full-time health department has been completed, and a few days ago the announcement was made that the department is now on a permanent basis. Traverse City is one of the smallest cities in the state that have a service of that kind, and its equipment is very complete.

The report comes from Houghton county, where a state board of health survey has just been completed, that as a result of the survey there have been such an unusually large number of applications for admission to the county sanatorium that it has become hard to accommodate all who apply.

Commission to Get Tax Data.

The personal property statements, made to the Detroit city assessors, in which the wealthier residents of the city told what they should be taxed as owning, should be turned over to the board of state tax commissioners for their review of Wayne county, according to an opinion rendered by Attorney General Fellows for Chairman Barnes of the state tax commission.

The assessment rolls of Wayne county, it seems, are partly based upon statements in writing, which were made to the city assessors by the larger holders of personal property. The state board was desirous of getting hold of these, but the city assessors, it is understood, took the view that they were confidential communications and should not be used by the state board.

Mr. Fellows bases his ruling on the broad clause in the general tax law, which says that the state board shall have access to everything on file with a county, township or municipal officer. These statements, he says, are confidential only to a certain extent, in that they can be used only for the purpose of arriving at taxable personal property.

Russians Continue Their Drive

Capture of Several Towns.

London—The Anglo-French forward movement on the 15-mile front from Thiepval to the Somme river, in which the French made a gain of more than a mile, and the British smashed their way closer to the Martinpuich ridge across the Bazentin le Petit plateau, was the outstanding feature of the war news on the western front. In Galicia, the Russians continue their drive toward Lemberg, capturing several towns and bringing the two southern gates of the Galician capital, Halicz and Brezeny, under range of their guns.

In the Isonzo sector, the Italians are continuing their drive and have taken several fortified positions from the Austrians. More than 2,000 prisoners were taken in the fighting. More than 15,000 prisoners have been taken by the Italians since their forward movement began. In the same period Vienna reports the capture of 6,000 Italians.

To the south, near Monfalcone, two nights have been carried, while east of Gorizia an advance is reported by the Rome war office.

The French advance was registered after a series of violent counter attacks against the positions conquered. The Germans were active in their efforts to win back the lost ground reaching a climax in a powerful assault, delivered from the direction of Cambes on the positions held by the French in the outskirts of Maurepas. This attack, like the others, failed. The Teutons were no more successful in attacks against the British southeast of Guillemont, while north of Pozieres, a contemplated blow was forestalled by a British aeroplane which reported the concentration of large forces behind the Mounaret farm, enabling the British artillery to take these battalions under a heavy fire and putting them to flight.

Call Is Made for National Guardsmen to the Border.

Washington—Practically the entire national guard of the United States will be encamped on the Mexican border within a short time, as a result of orders issued to military department commanders to send all troops in the state mobilization camps as soon as practicable.

Figures obtained from reliable sources indicate that when the present movement to the border is completed, there will be between 175,000 and 202,000 men, regulars and guardsmen, on the border and in Mexico.

There are now 48,000 regulars along the border and in Mexico. The national guard forces in the southwest, according to war department figures, aggregate 162,000 men. The number of national guardsmen who will go as a result of the new order is estimated at between 40,000 and 50,000.

Bath, N. Y.—Victor Carlstrom flew a 160 horsepower Curtiss biplane from Buffalo to Hammondsport, 110 miles, in an hour and four minutes. Because of a high wind he was 11 minutes in landing.

New York—Henri Regnault's famous painting, "Salome" has been presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art by George F. Baker, a banker. It was finished in 1870, shortly before the artist was killed during the siege of Paris. The painting brought $105,600 four years ago.

Jersey City—A drawing of a self-propelling torpedo, together with an envelope addressed to John D. The IDYL of TWIN FIRES

WALTER PRICHARD EATON

COPYRIGHT BY DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO.

SYNOPSIS.

I grow tired of my work as a college instructor and buy a New England farm on sight. I inspect my farm and go to board at Bert Temple's. Bert helps me to hire a carpenter and a farmer. Hard Cider, the carpenter, estimates the repairs and changes necessary on the house. Mike commences plowing. I start to prune the orchard tree. Hard cider builds book-cases around the twin fireplaces. Mrs. Temple hires Mrs. Pillig for me as a housekeeper, and announces the coming of a new boarder from New York, a half-sick young woman who needs the country air. I discover that Stella Goodwin will make a delightful companion and believe she ought not to return to the hot and dusty city for a long time. I squeeze her hand slyly. Together we dedicate "Twin Fires." I surprise her wading in the brook and enjoy a delightful thrill. Mrs. Pillig, my housekeeper, arrives with her son Peter and his dog Buster.

John Upton is touched by the wondrous spell of spring flowers and birds, the gurgle of the little stream, and of Stella Goodwin. He doesn't know whether or not he loves her. Doubts assail him mightily—the freedom of bachelorhood seems good to him, but so does the girl. How he takes a quiet walk with her and how he comes almost to a decision is told in this installment—in a manner specially recommended to sweethearts.

CHAPTER XI.

A Pagan Thrush.

All that next June day I worked in my garden, in a dream, my hands performing their tasks mechanically. I ran the wheel hoe between the rows of newly planted raspberries and blackberries, to mulch the soil, without consciousness of the future fruit which was supposed to delight me.

My mind was not on the task. Over and over I was asking the question, "Do I love her? What permanence is there in a spring passion, amid gardens and thrush songs, for a girl who caresses the sympathies by her naive delight in the novelty of country life? How much of my feeling for her is passion, and how much is sympathy, even pity?"

Over and over I turned these questions, while my hands worked mechanically. And over and over, too, I will be honest and admit, the selfish incrustations of bachelor habits imposed their opposition to the thought of union. I had bought the farm to be my own lord and master; here I was at work, to create masterpieces of literature, to plan gardens, to play golf, to smoke all over the house, to toll all night and sleep all day if I so desired, to wear soft shirts and never dress for dinner, to maintain my own habits, my own individuality, undisturbed. What had been so pleasant, so tinglingly pleasant, for a day, a week—the presence of the girl in the garden, in the house, the rustle of her skirt, the sound of her fingers on the keys—would it be always pleasant? What if one wished to escape from it, and there were no escape? Passions pass; life, work, ambitions, the need of solitude for creation, the individual soul, go on.

"All of which means," I thought, laying down my brush scythe and gazing at the brook, "that I am not sure of my own mind. And if I am not sure of my mind, do I really love her? And if I am not sure of that, I must wait."

That resolution, the first definite thing my mind had laid hold on, came to me as the sun was sinking toward the west. I went to the house, changed my clothes, and hastened up the road to meet her, curiously eager for a man in doubt.

She was coming out of the door as I crossed the bit of lawn, dressed not in the working clothes which she had worn on our gardening days, but all in white, with a lavender ribbon at her throat. She smiled at me brightly and ran down the steps.

"Go to New York—but see Twin Fires first," she laughed. "I'm all ready for the tour."

I had not quite expected so much lightness of heart from her, and I was a little piqued, perhaps, as I answered, "You don't seem very sorry that you are leaving it for the last time."

"She smiled into my face. 'All pleasant things have to end,' she said, 'so why be glum about it?'

"Do they have to end?" said I.

"In my experience, always," she nodded.

I was silent. My resolution, which I confess had wavered a little when she came through the doorway, was fixed again. Just the light banter in her tone had done it. We walked down the road, and went first around the house to take a look at the lawn and rose trellis. The young grass was already a frail green from the house to the roses, the flowers around the white sundial pedestal, while not yet in bloom, showed a mass of low foliage, the nasturtiums were already trying to cling, with the aid of strings, to the bird bath (which I had forgotten to fill), and the rose trellis, colored green by the painters before they departed, was even now hidden slightly at the base by the vines of the new roses.

"There," said I, pointing to it, "is the child of your brain, your aqueduct of roses, which you refuse to see in blossom."

"The child of my hands, too; don't forget that!" she laughed.

"Of our hands," I corrected.

"The ghost of Rome in roses," she said, half to herself. "It will be very lovely another year, when the vines have covered it."

"And it will be then, I trust," said I, "rather less like the rose of beauty on the brow of chaos. The lawn will look like a lawn by then, and possibly I shall have achieved a sundial plate."

"Possibly you will," said she, with a suspicious twinkle. "And possibly you'll have remembered to fill your bird bath."

She turned abruptly into the house and emerged with a pitcher of water, tiptoeing over the frail, new grass to the bath, which she filled to the brim, pouring the remainder upon the vines at the base.

"My last activity shall be for the birds," she smiled, as she came back with the pitcher. As if in gratitude, a bird came winging out of the orchard behind her, and dipped his breast and bill in the water.

"The Bed Clothes Aren't Tucked in Right."

"The darling!" I heard her exclaim, under her breath.

We took the pitcher inside, and I saw her glance at the flowers in the vases. "I ought to get you some fresh ones," she said.

"No," I answered. "Those shall stay a long while, in memory of the good fairy. Now I will show you my house. You have never seen my house above the first story."

"It isn't proper," she laughed. "I shouldn't be even here, in the south room."

"But you have been here many times."

Again she laughed. "Stupid! But Mrs. Pillig wasn't here then?"

"Oh!" said I, a light dawning on my masculine stupidity. "I begin to realize the paradoxes of propriety. And now I see at last why I shouldn't have asked you to pick the paint for the dining room—when I did."

Her eyes narrowed, and she looked into my face with sudden gravity. "I wonder if you do understand?" she answered. Slowly a half-wistful smile crept into the corners of her mouth, and she shook her head. "No, you don't; you don't at all."

Then her old laugh came bubbling up. "I suspect Mrs. Pillig is more of an authority on pies than propriety," she said in a cautious voice, "and, besides, I'm going away tomorrow, and besides, I don't care anyway. Lead on."

We went up the uncarpeted front stairs, into the square upper hall which was lighted by an east window over the front door. I showed her first the spare room on the northeast corner, which connected with the bath, and then the second front chamber opposite, which was not yet furnished even with a bed. Then we entered my chamber, where the western sun was streaming in. She stood in the door a second, looking about, and then advanced and surveyed the bed.

"The bedclothes aren't tucked in right," she said.

"I know it," I answered sadly. "I have to fix them myself every night. Mrs. Pillig is better on pies."

The girl leaned over and remade my monastic white cot, giving the pillow a final pat to smooth it. Then she inspected the shingles and old photographs on the walls, turning from an undergraduate picture of me, in a group, to scan my face, and shaking her head.

"What's the matter?" I asked. "Don't tell me I'm getting bald."

"No, not bald," she answered, "but your eyes don't see visions as they did then."

I looked at her, startled a little. "What makes you say that?" I asked.

"Forgive me," she replied quickly. "I meant nothing."

"You meant what you said," I answered, moving close to her, "and it is true. It is true of all men, and all women, in a way—of all save the chosen few who are the poets and seers. 'Shades of the prison house begin to close—you know that shadow, too, I guess. I have no picture of you when you were younger. No—you are still the poet; you see aqueducts of roses. So you think I'm prosy now?'

"I didn't say that," she answered, very low.

"One vision I've seen," I went on, "one vision, lately. It was—it was—"

I broke abruptly off, remembering suddenly my resolve.

"Come," said I, "and I'll show you Mrs. Pillig's quarters."

FLAWS IN JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Writer Somewhat Bitter in Criticism of Administration of Justice in the United States.

A jury must be selected. Ordinarily one would think that it would be no trouble to select 12 men to hear a case. But so exacting are the rules that in a capital case of importance it is a matter of the greatest difficulty to get a jury, asserts Melville Davisson Post in Saturday Evening Post. Hundreds of talesmen are examined. Sometimes this examination goes on for weeks. The whole panel may be interrogated without getting a single juror. It has cost as much as $30,000 in some cases to get a jury. The result of the minute technicality of the rules governing this feature of the game is that citizens competent for jury service are sifted down to the most unintelligent, and the administration of justice is thereby turned over to the most ignorant and most irresponsible persons in the whole community.

When such a jury is selected, the trial finally begins. Everything up to this time has been merely preliminary. At last the game is called to be played before a jury of the most unintelligent persons that the attorney for the defendant has been able to get on it, and before a referee whose sole concern is so to conduct the game that he will not violate any of the rules.

"He died for the sake of others," "How so?"

"Checked to death on a success he was something rather than spread germs in public."—Detroit Free Press.

She followed in silence, and peeped with me into the chambers of the eel, smiling a little as she saw Peter's clothes scattered on the floor and bed. Then, still in silence, and with the golden light of afternoon streaming across the slopes of my farm, we entered the pines by the woodshed, and followed the new path along by the potato field and the pasture wall, pausing here and there to gather the first wild rose buds, and turning down through the cloister at the south.

As we slipped into the corner of the tamarack swamp my heart was beating high, my pulses racing with the recollection of all the tense moments in that grove ahead, since first I met her there. I know not with what feelings she entered. It was plain now even to me that she was masking them in a mood of lightness. She danced ahead over the new plank walk, and laughed back at me over her shoulder as she disappeared into the pines. A second later I found her sitting on the stone I had placed by the pool.

She looked up out of the corners of her eyes. "I should think this would be a good place to wade," she said.

"So it might," said I. "Do you want to try it?"

"Do you want to run along to the turn by the road and wait?" Th eyes still mocked me.

"No," said I.

She shook her head sadly. "And I did so want to wade," she sighed.

"Really?" I asked.

"Really, yes. I won't have a chance again for—oh, never, maybe."

"Then of course I'll go ahead." I stepped over the brook, out of sight. A moment later I heard a soft splashing of the water, and a voice called, "I'm only six now. Oh, it's such fun—and so cold!"

I made no reply. In fancy I could see her white feet in the water, her face tipped up in the shadows, her eyes large with delight. How sweet she was, how desirable! I stood lost in a rosy reverie, when suddenly I felt her beside me, and turned to meet her smile.

"How you like the brook," I said.

"How I love it!" she exclaimed.

"Don't think me silly, but it really says secret things to me."

"Such secrets as the stream told to Rossetti?" I asked.

She looked away. "I said secret things," she answered.

We moved on, around the bend by the road where the little picture of far hills came into view, and back into the dusk of the thickest pines. At the second crossing of the brook, I took her hand to steady her over the slippery stones, and when we were across, the mood and memories of the place had their way with us, and our hands did not unclasp. We walked on so together to the spot where we first had met, and where first the thrush had sounded for us his elfin clarion. There we stopped and listened, but there was no sound save the whisper of the pines.

"The pines sound like soft midnight surf on the shore," she whispered.

"I want the thrush," I whispered back. "I want the thrush!"

"Yes," she said, raising her eyes to mine, "oh, yes!"

EYES TOO MUCH NEGLECTED

Residents of Cities, in the Aggregate, Are the Chief Offenders, for Various Reasons.

The farmer at work in his fields all day long has much better eyesight than the city resident. Farmers, as a rule, have no need of artificial aid to the eyes until old age comes upon them.

On the farm the eyes receive more rest than in the city, because they work at more natural angles. The farmer's work is not right up under his nose. In cases of most city people their work is over books or machines, and they have a habit of stooping over it.

This affects the eyes so that glasses are necessary for relief. Nine-tenths of the people who are suffering from headaches and who wonder what the trouble is can blame them on the treatment they give their eyes. Not enough city people wear glasses. Perhaps one in fifty wears glasses where the average should be about one in every ten.

Children are affected in this way. Most children lean over their desks and have their eyes close to their books. Teachers should prevent them from doing this. Where children are forced to wear glasses it is not necessary that they should have to wear them all the time. When the children are at play they ought, in most cases, to be allowed to go without their glasses.

Doing Something.

Rebecca—Have you taken any steps toward cleaning up your town?

Egbert—Well, we're trying to locate a soap factory to locate there.

MICHIGAN BREVITIES

Sheriff's Wife Drowned.

Hillsdale.—While spending the day with the Ladies' Aid society at Boot lake, which adjoins her husband's farm three miles south of the city, Mrs. Addie Keas, wife of Sheriff A. Keas, was drowned. She was fifty-six years old. Mrs. Keas went for a pleasure ride alone and it is believed accidentally fell overboard.

State Optometrists to Meet.

Battle Creek.—Two hundred optometrists will be in Battle Creek for the nineteenth annual convention of the Michigan Society of Optometrists, October 10, 11 and 12, according to announcement made here. An effort will be made to have a member of the national committee address the meeting.

Rain Saves Crop in Thumb.

Port Huron.—Reports from all points in the Thumb indicate that rain saved the bean and potato crops and that the yield will be above the average. Inspection of fields in Huron, Sanilac, Tuscola and St. Clair counties discloses the fact that there is little bean blight danger from that source unless extremely wet weather should follow the dry spell.

Miners Resume Work.

Saginaw.—Work was resumed in the Chapel and Fordney mine, which has been suspended the last three weeks, and all points under protest by the miners of the Michigan district were settled when the operators, meeting with the district mine board, agreed to the interpretation of the New York agreement. According to President John Crutchfield of the miners, all points were conceded.

Locked to Chair; Escapes.

Vassar.—Left handcuffed to a chair and apparently asleep, while the night watchman was telephoning information of his arrest to the sheriff at Caro, E. Johnson, who said his home is in Bay City, escaped here. Johnson was arrested following an accident in which the automobile he was driving went into the ditch. The machine was stolen from Herman Zwerk of Reese.

To Extend Waterworks.

Flint.—At a special election, when the question of bonding the city for $400,000 for an addition to the municipal waterworks filtration plant and extension to the water mains, was submitted the proposition carried by a majority of 180. The vote was 203 for and 113 against. The money from the sale of the bonds will be divided $228,500 for the addition to the plant and $172,000 for extension of the main.

Save Train From Wreck.

Holland.—Acting on a premonition that a terrific rainstorm might have washed away a bridge on the Pere Marquette railroad south of Holland, Herman Garvelink, a farmer, and his son rushed out to find the rails covered with debris and the water rushing over the bridge. With the assistance of neighbors the rails were removed and a north-bound passenger train was signaled with a lantern. The train finally got across the bridge safely.

Court Order Guards Boy.

Flint.—Following the presentation of a petition, in which he made charges of two sensational attempts at kidnapping his seven-year-old son, Elden, by Mr. and Mrs. William Uptegraff and their daughter, Leota, of Birmingham, Elmer Garner, former deputy sheriff of Genesee county, secured a temporary injunction in the circuit court restraining the Uptegraffs, or any agent, from stealing or enticing away the boy.

To Have Aero Mail Delivery.

West Branch.—West Branch is to have an aeroplane mail delivery during the Ogemaw county fair October 4, 5 and 6. Postmaster Burgess has received permission from Washington to deliver mail from the fair grounds to the post office on those days by aeroplane. It will be necessary for one of the regular postal clerks to handle the mail while in transit.

Quits Work by Taking Poison.

Grand Rapids.—"Good-by; I'm not going to work any more," said Samuel Potter, fifty years old, a boarder. Then he handed his landlady two insurance policies, calling for $215 and went upstairs, leaving his freshly packed dinner pail on the kitchen table. A few minutes later the landlady heard screams in Potter's room and went to investigate. He died a few minutes later. Coroner Hillier said death was probably caused by gas.

A MAN WITH A POLITICAL MESSAGE FOR THE PEOPLE

WILLIAM H. HILL

Candidate for the Republican Nomination for United States Senator August 29th.

William H. Hill, of Detroit, who has tossed his hat into the ring for the nomination for United States Senator from Michigan on the Republican ticket, has a political message for the people that it would be well to heed.

Mr. Hill's long experience in the administration of large business affairs has given him a new conception of the viewpoint and the duties of office.

A close study of government affairs has convinced him that there is but one course to pursue in a Federal office. That is, to base every act on the fact that running a government is a business proposition for business men of experience and judgment.

He believes that the government of the United States should be regarded as a great corporation in which the 100,000,000 people of this country are the stockholders; and that the Senate and the House of Representatives constitute the "Board of Directors" of this corporation.

He believes that the members of the "board" should represent all the people all the time and not a favored few, and that the people should always be able to tell where their "directors" stand.

He asked: "Have the people of Michigan, the past few years, been able to tell where their senators stood, or where to find them?"

Mr. Hill is well fitted for the office he seeks and to realize his conception of its duties. Years of arduous training in the business world, wide travel in this and foreign countries and close study of history and government have given him exceptional equipment for the task. Thirty-one years of his life have been spent in Detroit where he is a successful manufacturing druggist, conducting one of the largest concerns of its kind in the country.

A Good Platform to Stand On—to Act On.

Here are the all-inclusive and progressive principles on which William H. Hill is basing his campaign:

100% Americanism and national security.

Improvement of labor conditions.

Protection of women and children.

Conservation of national resources.

A stable foundation for honorable enterprise.

Rescuing commerce from uncertainty.

Establishing a non-partisan tariff commission whose work shall be conducted on scientific and efficient lines.

Mr. Hill urges you to come out at the primaries August 29th. It is only by exercising your privileges at the Primaries that you can secure a new deal. Put an X before the name of William H. Hill August 29th.
