All students who plan to enter high school this year should classify as early as possible. Students may classify Saturday, Sept. 2nd from 1:30 till 3:00; or Monday forenoon, Sept. 4th.

This promises to be a banner year for the school. The board of education has added new courses and improved the equipment of the school to meet the demands of all higher institutions. A large number of foreign students are expected to take advantage of these improvements.

All roads lead to the Howell Fair, Aug. 29-30-31, Sept. 1, 1916.

On account of no fat amount of advertising this week we are obliged to print a page supplement.

$5.00 Free at

Howell Fair

During the Fair, I will give out at my booth, catalogues, circulars and pamphlets of different lines of goods sold by me. Each one will be numbered, starting with No. 1. A committee of 3 prominent men will be asked to meet and select some numbers unknown to myself or any of my employees, and place same in an envelope, which number will be advertised by the committee in the County papers the week following the fair. The party holding the circular, pamphlet or catalogue with this number printed on it will receive the $5.00. The only requirement asked of the person holding the lucky number will be to call at the store and place in writing two of the leading features of the machine or article described in the circular on which is printed the winning number.

Large Crowd Attends Catholic Picnic

One of the largest crowds ever recorded was in attendance last Thursday at the annual Catholic picnic held at Jackson's grove. As near as can be estimated about 1200 people were at the grounds in the afternoon, dinner being served to 1000. After dinner a fine program was given consisting of A Vocal Solo, Miss Gertrude Odien Lecture, Frank B. Devienne Vocal Solo, Miss Florence Kice Vocal Solo, Hugh G. Aldrich Short Talk, Lucius Wilson Vocal Duet, Miss Florence Kice and Mrs. Fred Swarthout.

The ball game between Pinckney and Fowlerville was close and interesting throughout, but on account of getting a late start the game had to be called on account of darkness at the end of the eighth inning, the score being 6 to 0. Louis Weurth pitched for the local team and H. McKune of Chelsea caught Guy Kuhn of Gregory started to pitch for Fowlerville but was taken out at the end of the second inning and replaced by Glover. Farrell was the Fowlerville catcher. Pinckney will make an attempt to revenge themselves on the Stockbridge team, who have defeated Pinckney twice this summer, at the Howell Fair, Aug. 30.

The dance given at the opera house by Monks & Ledwidge was well attended, 115 numbers being out. Whitmore's orchestra of Ypsilanti furnished music and a fine time was reported by all.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church postponed their meeting this week till next week Tuesday, at Mrs. E. W. Kennedy's.

The Cong'l. S. S. will hold their annual picnic at Portage Lake, Tuesday, Aug. 29. Everyone cordially invited to come, bring your lunch and enjoy a good time.

DEATHS FROM HEAT AND PARALYSIS

HEAT CAUSED ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHTEEN DEATHS IN THE STATE IN JULY.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS NINE

The Long Continued Hot Weather Caused a Largely Increased Death Rate.

Lansing—Infantile paralysis shows up distinctly in the July report of the vital statistics bureau. In that month there were nine deaths of the disease in the state, greatly above the average.

From all diseases, there were 3,717 deaths and 7,288 births in the state during July. This corresponds to an annual death rate of 14.2 per 1,000 and a birth rate of 27.8.

Next to the infantile paralysis, the chief feature of the report is the number of deaths from the heat. The torrid weather in July was responsible for the deaths of 118 persons, and of this number 65 were in Detroit.

Other leading causes of deaths follow: Tuberculosis of the lungs, 175; other tuberculosis, 35; typhoid fever, 328; diphtheria, 45; scarlet fever, 8; measles, 23; whooping cough, 14; pneumonia, 106; enteritis under two years of age, 267; meningitis, 23; cancer, 230; and violence 473. There were two deaths from lockjaw and one from pelagra.

There were 722 deaths of infants under one year; 197 between one and four, and 1,075 deaths of persons, 65 and over.

Luce county has the highest birth rate during the month and has the highest mortality rate. Its birth rate was 57.2.

Ann Arbor has the highest birth rate of the cities. Detroit's birth rate was 41 per 1,000 population.

GENESEE COUNTY HAS PLAGUE

Thirteen Cows Die of Hemorrhagic Septicemia Discovered in North Part of State.

Flint—Reports are being received here from veterinarians in the north part of Genesee county of hemorrhagic septicemia discovered in herds at Clio, Montrose, Frankenmuth and Birch Run. Eight head of cows died on the farm of Olin Smith near Montrose where the disease broke out in a herd of 60 animals. Three more have died on a farm near Clio and single cases are reported at Frankenmuth and Birch Run in Saginaw county. Hemorrhagic septicemia is a plague not prevalent in Michigan, but usually is found in the west and southwest. The germ infests pastures. State authorities urge a change of pasture and use of sanitary precaution to prevent its spreading.

SHERIFF'S WIFE FOUND SANE

Was Sent to the Psychopathic Ward at the University Hospital at Ann Arbor Under Observation.

Muskegon—Mrs. Sarah J. Collins, wife of Sheriff Collins, who is accused of having released two prisoners from the Muskegon county jail and who was placed under observation at the psychopathic ward at the University hospital, upon a finding of two local physicians that her mental condition was doubtful, is sane, according to a report received by Probate Judge E. D. Prescott from Albert M. Barrett, director of the ward and state pathologist. Dr. Barrett, in his report says: "We find patient is suffering from a nervous trouble characterized by very sick headaches of such severity that they incapacitate the patient for about 24 hours in each attack. She also has a refractive error. There is no evidence of any form of mental disease."

MICHIGAN ALLOTTED $9,552

Secretary Houston of the Department of Agriculture Makes the Allotment to States.

Washington—Tentative allotment of a million dollars for construction and maintenance of roads and trails in national forests was announced by Secretary Houston of the department of agriculture. This would be expended during the present fiscal year out of the $10,000,000 appropriated by the federal aid road act. Under the terms of the act the states are required to contribute to the extent of at least 50 per cent of the estimated cost of construction. Michigan has been handsomely allotted $9,552.

THE RAILROAD SITUATION

President's Answer to Telegram That He is a Firm Believer in the Principle of Arbitration.

Washington—President Wilson's conference with ranking officials of the employes threatening a nation-wide strike, are believed by all parties to the controversy to have brought the situation to a point where decisive developments may be expected within a few days.

While the negotiations took no actual step forward, the president replied indirectly to the contention of the railroads that the principle of arbitration would be endangered by his plan for putting the eight-hour basis day into effect practicability and passes upon other points at issue.

In a telegram made public at the White House, the president declared he held firmly to arbitration as a principle and that his plan strengthened rather than weakens it. He said also that some means must be found to prevent the existing situation from ever arising again.

Meantime, the road officials, who have tentatively refused to accept Mr. Wilson's proposal, contained conferences among themselves. The labor leaders, who already have approved the proposal, marked time, awaiting a definite decision from the employers.

The President's telegram defending his plan was in reply to an appeal from George Pope, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, urging that the principle of arbitration be preserved in the strike negotiations.

The President's telegram follows: "Allow me to acknowledge receipt of your telegram of August 18 and to say in answer that I hold to the principle of arbitration with as clear a conviction and as firm a purpose as any one, but that unfortunately there is no means now in existence by which arbitration can be secured. The existing means have been tried and failed."

"This situation must never be allowed to rise again, but it has arisen. Some means must be found to prevent its recurrence, but no means can be found off-hand or in a hurry or in season to meet the present national emergency."

"What I am proposing does not weaken or discredit the principle of arbitration. It strengthens it, rather. It proposes that nothing be conceded except the eight-hour day to which the whole economic movement of the time seems to point and the immediate creation of an agency to determine all the arbitrable elements in this case in the light, not of predictions or forecasts, but of established and ascertained facts."

"This is the first stage of the direct road to the discovery of the best permanent basis for arbitration whether other means than those now available are supplied."

MORE WOMEN REPORTED INSANE THAN MEN

Kalamazoo State Hospital Reports for Half of Year Shows 54 Women to Only 5 Men.

Kalamazoo—More women in Michigan became insane during the early part of the summer than did men, according to statistics of the Kalamazoo State hospital. Although the report which has just been issued by the institution only covers admissions to the Kalamazoo hospital, it is taken as indicating general conditions in the state. There were 54 women admitted to the asylum during the first half of the year and only five men. There are now 1,142 men in the asylum and 1,048 women.

BURNED TO DEATH IN HAY MOW

While Wife Saves Stock—Barn Struck By Lightning.

Belleville—Mrs. Louis Wagonback led the horses and stock from a burning barn while her husband burned to death in the hay mow above. She knew that he was up there, where he had gone but a few minutes before to close a window when the electric storm broke. She called to him repeatedly as she led out the stock but did not realize that he had been stunned by the bolt of lightning which set the barn on fire until the upper part of the structure was a roaring furnace of ignited hay. Neighbors recovered the body from which the limbs had been burned. The barn and contents were entirely destroyed.

The Highland Park health department, under the direction of Dr. J. C. Martin, is taking elaborate steps to prevent the spread of infantile paralysis.

STUDENTS TO ASK CHANGE IN ORDER

Many Are Anxious to Stay With the Troops in the Border Camps.

ONE WORD CAUSES TROUBLE

War Department Ruled That College Men "Shall" Be Mustered Out, Not That They "May" Quit the Army.

El Paso, Tex.—There are some men in Company I of Ann Arbor, who are facing dismissal from the service against their will. The recent ruling of the war department was that all university men who were members of the guard "shall be mustered out." It didn't say "may." It said "shall."

There are a number of men in the camp who don't want any such disposition made of their cases. They want to stay on the border so badly that Capt. A. C. Wilson, their commander, has decided to wire Washington for a different interpretation of the ruling.

It is asserted that the colleges and universities were the moving spirits behind this ruling and that the colleges want the money they will get in tuition funds. That may be the reason the order was worded "shall" instead of "may." If that is the case, it is declared, the colleges will probably have as much influence in keeping the word there as they had in putting it there.

Expect Border Duty.

Michigan Guardsmen are now confident that they will be doing actual guard duty on the Mexican border within a short time. This belief is founded upon reports which have gained circulation regarding plans of the army chiefs.

These reports tend to further convince the men that they are scheduled for a long stay in Texas.

The present plan is that a portion of the Thirty-second shall be assigned to cover 90 miles of border, just the locality having not been announced. It is also possible that some of the Thirty-first companies may be detailed for the same work.

If this work is carried on in conjunction with the military problems which have been outlined, Camp Cotton, so far as Michigan troops are concerned, will be practically deserted after the middle of September.

Induce Men to Stay in Camp.

Unusual inducements were arranged by the officers of the Michigan troops here to keep the enlisted men from leaving camp on the night following pay day when about $60,000 was distributed among the Michigan soldiers by Uncle Sam.

In the Thirty-second regimental dinner was held for the first time in the history of the United States army, according to those who are best informed. For a distance of three city blocks, the length of the Thirty-second parade ground, tables and electric lights were strung to accommodate 1,300 men. Company mess was dispensed with for the evening and the tables were laden with good things to eat. Music was furnished by the regimental band, speakers of prominence both in and out of the regiment dealt with pertinent subjects and vaudeville entertainments were furnished by individual members of the different companies.

In the Thirty-first the new moving-picture machine was used for the first time, the pictures being interspersed with amusement features. While it was not compulsory on the men that they remain at home but few men left the camp.

Admits Taking Checks.

Harold Labuff, who has been in the guardhouse under the charge of rifling the letters of his comrades and extracting checks therefrom, confessed to Col. Walter Barlow that he had taken and cashed more than 20 checks. He appears to take no interest in his trial, and as an evidence of his good faith, each night slips his hands from the handcuffs which have been pinned about his wrists. He is constantly under the eye of four guards, however, making his chances of escape very slim. Payment has been stopped on these checks. In the meantime the saloonkeepers and banks who have cashed the forged checks will be the losers.

Gets Taste of Real Army Life.

Lieut. John C. Chapman, Company C, was a happy officer when he pulled into camp after a 12 days' detail in Dona Anna county, New Mexico. Chapman applied recently for transfer to the regular service. He got his wish and was sent to a rifle range out in the desert to teach soldiers how to shoot. It was a rough 12 days, out in the hot sun, with none of the luxurious shower baths of Camp Cotton, and no mess like he had been used to in the Michigan outfit.

"There was nothing but sand and jack rabbits there," he said. "And I don't want that experience again."

He has been transferred to the Twenty-third infantry, regulars, and will be on duty in Camp Cotton not far from his Michigan friends.

Sergeant Loses His Stripes.

Camp Ferris.—Robert Schultz, Detroit, is no longer a sergeant in Ambulance Company No. 1. Stripped of his stripes, he is now an ordinary private and his pay has dropped from $36 to $16 a month.

Schultz didn't realize the seriousness of soldiering. He went to Grayling with the permission of Captain Baskerville to attend church. His pass was good until noon as there was inspection in the afternoon. After the services he motored to Higgins Lake and showed up one day late.

Impatient at New Delay.

News that the movement of troops to the Mexican border has been indefinitely postponed caused a feeling of unrest and impatience among the Guardsmen and it was expected that there would be an increase in the number absent without leave.

Major Wells announced that he had received instructions from the war department, asking that all troop movements be suspended until further instructions. No reason for the order was given by the war department, although the belief is that the National Guardsmen are being held at the mobilization centers, pending the settlement of the differences between the railroads and their employees.

A number of new cases of men being absent without leave have been reported almost daily. In most cases the men have returned within ten days and have escaped prosecution as deserters but the large number of cases has caused the officers much concern and trouble.

Company commanders have taken charge of disciplining those absent without leave. According to Maj. Guy M. Wilson, court officer in the Thirty-third, the punishment meted out by the commanders proves more effective than that imposed by a summary court-martial. The company commanders have been forcing the offenders to drill in heavy marching order, do extra fatigue work and forego certain privilege permitted other Guardsmen.

Many Seek Release.

More than 200 members of the Michigan brigade stationed here have applied for discharges on the grounds that they are needed by their families. Most of these discharges have been granted. The rejections are very few.

With more than 10 per cent asking discharges, more applications are coming in daily, while each day General Kirk receives letters asking that husbands and fathers be sent home. Some of these are in the pitiful scrawls of lonely childhood.

The applications do not include the Michigan men now on the border.

Must Return to Grayling.

A ruling received here by Major Wells affects the Thirty-first and Thirty-second regiments. This is to the effect that all Michigan soldiers discharged on the border must come back to Grayling for their discharges. They will be returned to Camp Ferris at government expense and after being discharged by the man who mustered them into the service, will be given travel pay at the rate of 3 1/2 cents a mile back to their company station. Thus, if the discharged man was from Detroit he would ride about 2,000 miles with his fare paid by the government and then be given $7.50, or $3.50 more than his car fare back to Detroit.

This ruling clears up the impression that the soldier would receive travel pay from the border to his company station. It also makes quite a difference to the soldier, as travel pay from El Paso to Detroit would have left him an excess of approximately $25, or $10 more than a month's pay if he were a private.

State Needs Typists.

Lansing.—Stenographers are in great demand at Michigan's state capitol.

The custom at the capitol has been to apply to Governor Ferris when a stenographer was needed. He usually kept a list of his own students who wanted work. But even the governor's list has failed. A short time ago he wanted one for his own office and offered the job to three or four, but they passed it up.

Under the state law stenographers in the state employ have to be started at $800. They may eventually be increased to $1,000, but that is the absolute limit. Industrial plants are perfectly willing to take all the stenographers the market can supply and pay them more than $800 to start with.

Seen and Heard in Michigan

State Commerce Board Planned.

Kalamazoo.—To conserve the national resources of the state, to give nation-wide publicity to the natural advantages of Michigan, to protect the commercial, industrial and agricultural interests of the state, and to act as a clearing house for all of the interests of Michigan people and organizations is the object of the proposed Michigan Chamber of Commerce, as outlined here at a meeting of many chamber of commerce representatives of Michigan. The plan will soon be submitted to every chamber of commerce in Michigan for approval and at a meeting to be held in the near future definite action will be taken.

Tug Goes to Bottom.

Bay City.—The tug Andrew A. McLean, owned by William H. Sharp of Bay City, was engulfed by heavy seas on Saginaw bay and went to the bottom in 60 feet of water, six miles off Tawas. The crew of six men was rescued by the Tawas Point coast guard and taken to Tawas. The McLean was built in Bay City in 1890, was 50 feet long, 15 feet wide and 7 feet deep.

White to Head Department.

Ann Arbor.—Professor Lee White, who is conducting the courses in journalism during the summer session of the University of Michigan, has accepted appointment as acting head of the school of journalism at the University of Washington, to succeed Prof. Frank G. Kane, resigned. Both Professors White and Kane are former Detroit newspaper men.

Sort Mail While Fire Rages.

Lapeer.—While a $60,000 fire was sweeping the Henderson department store, the Michigan stores, the Hefebower drug store and was threatening the post office two doors to the west of the Henderson store. Postmaster Loughane moved the furniture and mail into the street and had his clerks sort mail for outgoing trains on the sidewalk.

Rattlesnake's Bite Kills Woman.

Kalamazoo.—Mrs. William Osborne, the mother of five children, is dead at her home in Alamo township as the result of being bitten by a rattlesnake. Mrs. Osborne went into her garden to pick some cucumbers and when she reached down after one the snake struck at her wrist. Medical aid was quickly summoned, but she died in a few hours.

Raps 'Phone Service.

Muskegon.—Protesting the service of the Independent and Bell telephone lines on long-distance messages between this city and Detroit and especially the latter, which they charge with holding up calls in Wayne county, the Muskegon branch of the Continental Motors company's officials has appealed to the state railway commission to investigate.

Chaufeur Robbed of $117.

Coldwater.—William Burns, chauffeur at the Wanakin livery, was held up by two men and robbed of $117. He had taken a couple to the Narrows resort, three miles from the city, and while returning alone was asked by a man for a ride. He stopped the car and a second stranger stepped up and the two tied him. After they left he managed to release himself.

Will Make Armored Cars.

Detroit.—A new industry for Michigan, one that smacks of "preparedness," is the Armored Motorcar company, with headquarters in Detroit, with a capital stock of $100,000, of which $10,000 is paid in cash. The object of the new company is the "manufacture and sale of armored motorcars and devices accessory to them."

Two Killed by Train.

Chelsea.—Coleman Smalley, a farmer, thirty years old, and Jacob Heschwerdt, a farmhand, twenty-three years old, were instantly killed when east-bound Michigan Central train No. 4 struck the buggy in which they were crossing the track four miles west of Chelsea.

Car Kills Birmingham Man.

Birmingham.—Mark Leech, seventy-five years old, of Pierce street, Birmingham, was instantly killed by a south-bound D. U. R. car on the Flint division about four miles northeast of Birmingham. He was crossing the track and did not see the car.

Bather Is Drowned.

Dowagiac.—William Nothdruff, twenty-four years old, a resident of Keele, near here, was drowned while bathing in Sister lake. Death was caused by gas on the stomach, the result of entering the water too soon after a meal.

The IDYL of TWIN FIRES

WALTER PRICHARD EATON

SYNOPSIS.

I grew tired of my work as a college instructor and buy a New England farm on sight. I inspect my farm and go to board at Bert Temple's. Bert helps me to hire a carpenter and a farmer. Hard Cider, the carpenter, estimates the repairs and changes necessary on the house. Mike commences plowing. I start to prune the orchard trees. Hard Cider builds book-cases around the twin fireplaces. Mrs. Temple hires Mrs. Pillig for me as a housekeeper. And announces the coming of a new boarder from New York, a half-sick young woman who needs the country air. I discover that Stella Goodwin will make a delightful companion and believe she ought not to return to the hot and dusty city for a long time. I sequester her hand slyly. Together we dedicate "Twin Fires." I surprise her wading in the brook and enjoy a delightful thrill. Mrs. Pillig, my housekeeper, arrives with her son Peter and his dog Buster. I wonder if I love her. We take a quiet walk by the brook.

Here's a question for young folks who are keeping company: If a fellow—who is susceptible to the influences of moonlight, soft music, the smell of lilacs, the sly squeeze of a girl's hand in the dark, the perfume of her hair, the curve of her throat—should up and kiss her, even against his own better judgment as a bachelor, is it a sure sign that he is in love and ready for the parson, the ring and the license? You'll enjoy the little scene by the pool which is described in this installment.

John and Stella have been up to see the pool for the last time before she leaves. They are walking hand in hand through the woods. They halt to wait for the thrush to sing.

And then, as we waited, our eyes meeting, suddenly he sang, far off across the tamaracks, one perfect call, and silence again. Her face was a glimmering radiance in the dusk. Her hand was warm in mine. Slowly my face sank toward hers, and our lips met—met for an instant when we were not masters of ourselves, when the bird song and the whispering pines wrought their pagan spell upon us.

Another instant, and she stood away from me, one hand over her mouth, one hand on her panting breast, and fright

Her Eyes Looked Frankly into Mine. In her eyes. Then, as suddenly, she laughed. It was hardly a nervous laugh. It welled up with the familiar gurgle from her throat.

"John Upton," she said, "you are a bad man. That wasn't what the thrush said at all."

"I misunderstood," said I, recovering more slowly, and astounded by her mood.

"I'll not reproach you, since I, a philologist, misunderstood for a second myself," she responded. "Hark!"

There was a sudden sound of steps and cracking twigs in the grove behind us, and Buster emerged up the path, hot on our scent. He made a dab with his tongue at my hand, and then fell upon Miss Goodwin. She sank to her knees and began to cuss him, very quickly, so that I could not see her face.

"Stella," said I, "Buster has made a friend of you. That's always a great compliment from a dog."

She kept her face buried in his neck an instant longer, and then her eyes lifted to mine. "Yes—John," she said. "And now I must go home to pack my trunk."

"Let me drive you to the station in the morning," said I, as we emerged from the grove, in this sudden strange, calm intimacy, when no word had been spoken, and I, at least, was quite in the dark as to her feelings.

She shook her head. "No, I go too early for you. You—you mustn't try to see me."

For just a second her voice wavered. She stopped for a last look at Twin Fires. "Nice house, nice garden, nice brook," she said, and added, with a little smile, "nice rose trellis." Then we walked up the road, and at Bert's door she put out her hand.

"Good-by," she said.

"Good-by," I answered.

Her eyes looked frankly into mine. There was nothing there but smiling friendship. The fingers did not tremble in my grasp.

"I shall write," said I, controlling my voice with difficulty, "and send you pictures of the garden."

"Yes, do."

She was gone. I walked slowly back to my dwelling. I had kept my resolution. Yet how strangely I had kept it! What did it mean? Had I been strong? No. Had she made me keep it? Who could say? All had been so sudden—the kiss, her springing away, her abrupt, astonishing laughter. But she had not reproached me, she had not been righteously angry, nor, still less, absurd. She had thought it, perhaps, but the mood of the place and hour, and understood. That was fine, generous! Few women, I thought, would be capable of it. Stella! How pleasant it had been to say the name! The memory of her kiss came over me like a wave, and my supper stood neglected, and all that evening I sat staring idly at my manuscripts and stroking Buster's head.

Yes, I had kept my resolution—and felt like a fool, a happy, hopeless fool!

CHAPTER XII.

I Go to New York.

I shall not here recount the events on the farm during the weeks which followed Miss Stella's departure. They did not particularly interest me. My whole psychological make-up had been violently shaken, the centers of attention had been shifted, and I was constantly struggling for a readjustment which did not come. The post office appealed to me more than the peas, and I labored harder over my photographs of the sundial beds than over the beds themselves. I sent for a ray after and a wide-angle lens, spending hours in experiment and covering a plank in front of the south door with printing frames.

I had written to her the day after she had departed, but no reply came for a week, and then only a brief little note, telling me it was hot in town and conveying her regards to the roses. I, too, waited a week—though it was hard—and then answered, sending some photographs, one of them a snapshot of a bird on the edge of the bath, one of them of Buster sitting on his hind legs. Again she answered briefly, merrily, conveying her especial regards to Buster, but ending with a plaintive little postscript about the heat.

A few days later a box came addressed to Buster in my care. I opened it in Buster's presence, indeed literally beneath his nose. On top was a small package, tied with blue ribbon, and labeled "For Buster." It proved to be a dog biscuit, which the recipient at once took to the hearth and began upon. Beneath this was a note, which I opened with eager fingers. It began:

Darling Buster: Your waggish epistle received and contents noted. The limits of the canine intelligence are probably responsible for your mistake in assigning the term glumness to what you observe in Master John, when it is really lack of occupation. You see, dear Buster, he has got Twin Fires so far under way that he doesn't work at it all the time, so he ought to be at his writing of stories, made up of big dictionary words which I am despising or inventing for him down here in a very hot, dirty, dusty, smelly town. Tell him that's all the trouble. He has a reaction from his first farming enthusiasm, and doesn't realize that the thing to do is to go to work on the new line, his line. For it is his line, you know, Buster.

Underneath this you'll find something to give him, with my best wishes for sunshine on the dear garden. I'd kiss you, Buster, only dogs are terribly germy.

P. S.—That is a nice pool, isn't it? I sat on the floor with the letter in my lap, smiling happily over it. Then I took the last package out of the box. It was heavy, evidently metal. Removing the papers, I held in my hand an old bronze sundial plate, a round one to fit my column, and upon it, freshly engraved, the ancient motto: HORAS NON NUMERO NISI SERENAS.

My first thought was of its cost. She couldn't afford it, the silly, generous girl! She'd bought it, doubtless, at one of those expensive New York antique shops, and then taken it to an engraver, for further expense. I ought not to accept it. Yet how could I refuse? I couldn't. I hugged it to my heart, and fairly ran to the dial post, Buster at my heels. Yes, I had no longer any doubts. I wanted her. I should always want her. Twin Fires was incomplete, I was incomplete, life was incomplete, without her.

At six I stopped work, amazed to find the plot of a story in my head. Heaven knows how it got there, but there it was, almost as full-statured as Minerva when she sprang from the head of Jove, though considerably less glacial. I even had the opening sentence all ready framed—to me always the most difficult point of story or essay, except the closing sentence. Nor did this tale appear to be one I had incubated in the past, and which now popped up above the "threshold" from my subconsciousness. It was a brand-new plot, a perfect stranger to me. The phenomenon interested me almost as much as the plot. The tale grew even clearer as I took my bath, and haunted me during supper, so that I was peremptory in my replies to poor Mrs. Pillig and refused to aid Peter that evening with his geography.

"Tomorrow," said I, vaguely, going into my study and locking the door.

I worked all that evening, got up at midnight to forage for a glass of milk and a fresh supply of oil for my lamp, and returned to my desk to work till four, when the sun astonished me. The story was done. Instead of going to bed, I went down in the cool of the young morning, when only the birds were astir, and took my bath in Stella's

HOW TO AID INJURED PERSONS

Rules That Are Worth Admitting to the Scrap Book or Keeping Always in the Memory.

The patient should be made as comfortable as possible in a safe place. He should be insured plenty of fresh air.

Do not try to do too much; keep cool.

Do not let the injured person know it, if his condition is serious.

Hot coffee or hot tea, or even hot water, is a better stimulant than whisky. In summer a glass of cold water may be best. Remember there is some shock with even the slightest injury.

If the patient vomits, turn him to one side; keep the head low.

Supply external heat if the patient is cold and clammy.

Clothing should be cut away. Do not tear or pull it off.

Do not touch an open wound with the fingers or with anything not surgically clean.

Never wash away blood clots; bind them up. Open and bleeding wounds should be covered with a piece of sterile gauze or freshly laundered linen.

When a physician's services are apparently needed, promptness in getting one there is the most important first-aid measure.—Dr. J. J. Murphy, Minnesota.

Its Emotions.

"I should think it would have that sinking feeling."

pool. Then I went to the dew-drenched pea vines and began to pick peas.

Here Mike found me, with nearly half a bushel gathered, when he appeared early to pick for market.

"It's the early bird gets the peas," said I.

"It is surely," he laughed. "You might say you had a telephone call to get up—only these ain't telephones."

"Mike!" I cried, "a pun before breakfast!"

"Shure, I've had me breakfast," said he.

Which reminded me that I hadn't. I went in the house to get it, reading over and correcting my manuscript as I ate. After breakfast I put on respectable clothes, tucked the manuscript in my pocket, and mounted the seat of my farm wagon, beside Mike. Behind us were almost two bushels of peas and several bunches of tall, juicy, red rhubarb stalks from the old hills we found on the place. Mike had greatly enriched the soil, and grown the plants in barrels.

"Well, I'm a real farmer now," said I.

"Ye are, shurely," Mike replied. "Them's good peas, if they was planted late."

We drove past the golf links and the summer hotel, to the market, where I was already known. I found, and greeted by name as I entered.

"I'll buy anything you'll sell me," said the proprietor, "and be glad to get it. Funny thing about this town, the way folks won't take the trouble to sell what they raise. Most of the big summer estates have their own gardens, of course, but there's nearly a hundred families that don't, and four boarding houses, and the hotels. Why, the hotels send to New York for vegetables—if you can beat that! Guess all the farmers with any gumption have gone to the cities."

"Well," said I, "I'm not farming for my health, which has always been good. I've got more than a bushel of peas out there."

"Peas!" cried the market man. "Why, I have more demands for peas than I can fill. The folks who could sell me peas won't plant 'em 'cause it's too much trouble or expense to provide the brush. I'll give you eight cents a quart for peas today."

"This is too easy," I whispered to Mike, as we went out to get the baskets.

I sold my rhubarb, also, and came away with a little book in which there was entered to my credit $4.16 for peas and $1.66 for rhubarb. I put the book proudly in my pocket, for it represented my first earnings from the farm, and, mounting the farm wagon again, told Mike to drive me to the hotel.

As we pulled up before the veranda, the line of old ladies in rockers focused their eyes upon us.

"Shure," whispered Mike, "they look like they was hung out to dry!"

I went up the steps and into the office, where the hotel proprietor suavely greeted me, asked after my health, and inquired how my "estate" was getting on.

"You mean my farm," said I.

With some new money in his pockets and prospects bright, it looks like our young friend is about ready to go get Stella. Doesn't it strike you about that way?

TELL OF HUMAN SACRIFICE

Significance of Pair of Thongs, in New York Museum, Will Be Apparent to All.

The curator of anthropology at the American Museum of Natural History, New York, values among recent acquisitions in the Pawnee Indian collection a pair of thongs which are, so far as known, the only existing relics of the Pawnees' tribal rite of making a human sacrifice to the Morning Star, god of war. Curiously enough, the Pawnee god of war star is believed to have been the planet Mars.

When life grew dull it devolved upon the Pawnee priests to relieve the tedium of the topees by dreaming that old Morning Star demanded a sacrifice. Then the bloods went on the warpath until they captured a maiden of a hostile tribe. After due ceremony she was bound by thongs to a scaffold, her feet pointing right at old Morning Star himself. When the brave bucks, who rather prided themselves on their sharpshooting, had stuck her so full of arrows that she looked like a hedgehog, and when her heart had been cut out the party was over.

Most Lasting Wood. Practically all of the lock gates of the Bridgewater canal are made of greenheart. For the last 50 years all the dock gates in the Mersey harbor at Liverpool have been made of this wood, and when it has been found necessary to remove any of these gates to widen or deepen the channel the wood has been found to be as good as when it was first used. In the Canada dock wood put down in 1846 was again used in the construction of new gates after 36 years' use.

NOW THE WAR HITS CARPETS

Causes Leap in Prices of Woolen Ones, Is Report of a Trade Journal.

Despite the heavy demand for carpets and rugs, the steady rise in cost of raw materials and wages is causing a widespread check on the production in the United States, says a recent issue of the American Carpet and Upholstery Journal.

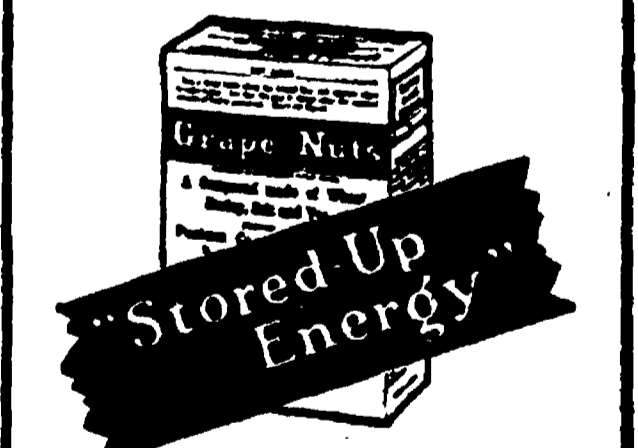

In various directions there are symptoms of a slowing down in the manufacturing end of the floor covering industry, though reports from salesmen on the road indicate the retail trade is much more active. The trouble lies in the fact that many mills already have stopped their machinery for the season. This is adding impetus to the jobbing trade and during the next few months at least, many buyers who never looked beyond the manufacturer for their goods will be forced into the secondary market.

Sold up mill conditions, anticipation of advances in price of goods available in July, the European war, the forthcoming presidential campaign, trade and crop conditions combined, are creating a series of cross-currents of extraordinary magnitude and manufacturers are moving with caution. Though increases in prices made by manufacturers have been borne satisfactorily by the public, the anticipation that carpet wools will soar further this summer has no tendency to cause factories to overreach themselves.

Flowers and Shrubbery

Their Care and Cultivation.

Keep Weeds Out of the Lawn.

KEEPING WEEDS OUT OF LAWN

If one gets a good set of grass in the beginning and keeps the ground fertilized by a coating of stable manure or commercial fertilizer every spring there will be little trouble with weeds if the lawn is kept properly mowed.

Some claim that there are weeds that cannot be clipped with the lawn mower. We have found this complaint true where the revolving mower was used, for it will bend and not cut wiry stems, as of crab grass and some other troublesome plants.

The only way of getting these is by clipping off with a mower that has a sickle similar to a hay mower. The guards of these machines raise up the stems and the sickle cuts them off without mashing down or pulling.

There is no need of using the hook so much if one is careful when getting a mower, to get one that cuts ahead of the wheels, and as wide as the extreme distance apart of the outside of the wheels.

This will not leave the strip along the borders that is mashed down by the wheels.

Moles do a great deal of damage, but may be run out by frequent rolling, or may be trapped.

These may be destroyed by pouring into the ant hills a tablespoonful of carbon bisulphid, stopping the hole so the fumes are confined.

ARTISTIC ARRANGEMENT OF FLOWERS IN HOME

By E. VAN BENTHUYSEN.

Dark corners of a room need lighting up, and light-colored, brilliant flowers never look so well as when standing out against a half light. Yellow is an exquisite bit of color for such a corner.

Let all the flowers and foliage for home decoration be fresh, and however simple their form, they are lovely, not only as graceful objects but as suggestive of something more beautiful still.

Avoid fantastic colored or shaped vases. The simple beauty of the flowers is lost in such a holder. Clear glass and the soft greens of Bohemian make are most useful receptacles. Let the lines of the vase or bowls be simple and flowing and however cheap the substance of which the vase is made we shall not err.

Strive to produce the effect of the flower when growing, and the error of cutting off the lovely gray-green stalks of daffodils and cramming them into a flat dish, or putting a handful of violets in a tube specimen glass will be impossible.

There are many little contrivances nowadays that help wonderfully in the attractive arrangement of flowers. The little Japanese frogs with holes in their backs that sit flat in the bottom of a bowl and hold out primly and gracefully a few precious stalks of bloom are to be had for a few cents and are well worth all they cost.

With such an arrangement three or four daffodils with their golden glow can bring a bit of sunshine into a dreary room and add a beauty that an armful of exquisite roses crammed into an ugly vase could never give.

Color harmony in flower arrangement should be well thought out, not only with regard to the relative position of one flower with another, but also with the room in which the vase is to have place.

Colors that blend out of doors, because of the gradations in shade caused by atmospheric effects and the relieving sprays of green, would produce discord when massed in a room, but inharmonious effects can be avoided by observing a few general rules.

Now that flowers can be secured the year round, the problem having been solved by the gardeners, after years of probing, some sort of bloom should have daily place in the house. The intimate association with such loveliness gladdens the heart and quickens the senses and inspires all that is best within us.

Washing and Automobiling.

A speaker before the convention of the National Educational association in New York asserted that if the men had to do the washing for a week there would be more washing machines than automobiles bought. This would also be quite as true if the women who do the washing had anything to say on the subject.—Washington Herald.

BACK TO VICTORIA

UGLINESS OF PAST BECOMES BEAUTY OF PRESENT.

Art of Paris Is Making Even Worstest Roses Fit for Gowns of Silver Lace—Parrot Passes as Novelty.

A young girl, dressed in a frilled muslin with a blue sash, walking along Bellevue avenue at Newport one day last summer, created a sensation by carrying a small bird of brilliant plumage in a fragile gilt cage swung by a ring from her little finger.

The city by the sea, in which simplicity is exploited with the same kind of artificiality as it was by Marie Antoinette at the Petit Trianon, came very near being actually simple for lack of incentive to be otherwise.

Therefore, when Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, with the artistic aid of Mrs. Conde Nast and Frank Crowninshield, held a fashion show at her house in the name of a war charity, she was thrice blest both by the residents of Newport and the outsiders. And then a young girl, of undoubted charm and prestige, sauntered along the avenue to the Casino and the Hilltop Inn, dangling a bird in a cage from her finger, she was greeted as one who had saved a season from that innocuous desuetude which Newport loathes.

The idea was greeted with ripples of applause for its audacious novelty. Yet, it was a revival from Victorian days.

The girl with her bird did not have her novelty to herself very long. All winter, we have been beseeched to buy exquisite Chinese bird cages with brilliantly plumaged birds seated in them, to be hung in any room of the house, whether a cottage or a palace.

Tiny birds that glistened like beetles then came into fashion instead of the canary, which resembled a newborn chicken.

The milliners seized upon this symbol of Victorianism, the gaudy parrot, and painted and embellished it on such a quality of hats that the price quickly sank to 98 cents.

The parrot has passed as a novelty and a fashionable pastime in millinery.

but another bit of Victorianism is creeping over the land.

It is the worsted rose. France, looking at the past for her clothes inspiration, instead of the present and future, has lifted another bit of fancy work out of early Victorianism and flung it into the current of the most daring modern fashions. We already have tulle and satin gowns caught up with bulbous roses, made of soft, fine wool, in enchanting colors.

Serge suits are caught at the waistline and neck with small roses in green, scarlet, yellow and black. Informal linen suits, in the natural tone of the linen thread, have black and green worsted roses somewhere on the surface where they catch the eye and do the most good.

For some months, France has been wearing hats trimmed with large, worsted roses and Alpine flowers done in green and white wool.

On whatever material she wishes to put these colored worsted threads, she can do so. Even organdie serves as a suitable background.

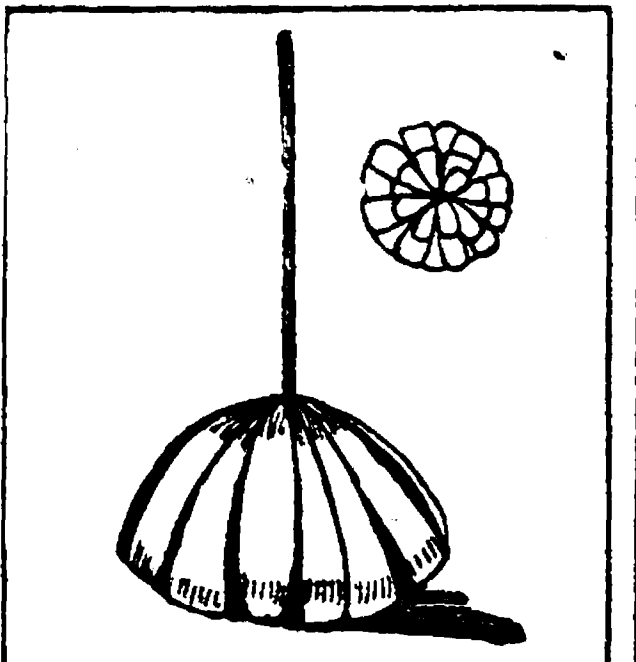

The fashions that concern us most at the present moment, are the crevel rose and the sampler cross stitching. No matter how far a woman is from Paris, she can use both these methods of trimming with a lavish hand.

SHOULD NOT SHOW WAISTLINE

Woman's Figure Never Looks Well When Divided by Opposing Colors.

Here and there, throughout the decades since the separate blouse was invented, there have been individual women who have firmly held to the conviction that a woman's figure never looks well when sharply divided at the waistline by two opposing colors and fabrics; and these women have insistently kept on their coats in and out of the house. The coat might have been of a lighter material than the skirt in winter weather or when it was intended for the house, but it served the purpose of making a strong line of the same color from shoulder to heel.

Ribbon Modes.

Both wide and narrow ribbons are generally used on gowns and hats, and narrow ribbons are used for roaches, trills and rosettes. Soft silks are used for quiltings, both vertical quiltings, or in a series, one inside the other. Whole hats are made of moire ribbon with a fancy edge. Smart girdles are made of three or more shades in pastel colorings. A favorite combination is rose, old blue and violet. Ribbons with a metal thread forming the edges and lines running through the middle make them stiff enough to stand out crisply when shirred to form a ruching or plaiting for a frill. A ribbon in hunter's green with spots of cerise and violet in geometric precision inside the border are suitable for a sports dress. A satin ribbon in dull green and brocaded pattern in black and white is also in this class.

Skirts of White Satin.

White satin skirts severely tailored are offered for sports wear, both in company with coats to match and alone, and while rather an absurdity so far as practical service goes are undeniably charming in connection with simple blouses of crepe Georgette or chiffon and bright lined coats or sweaters.

WHY CHILDREN RUN AWAY

Not Mere Naughtiness That Starts Kiddies on the Road to Adventure Land.

When little Willie runs away to ride the brake beams, to become a hunter of the wild Apache, or mayhap a Jesse James; when curly-headed Mary toddles far from home with her dollie, the mother usually attributes their truancy to "mere naughtiness" or bad companions, or maybe original sin.

But the children's motive, according to investigators, is the same as that which makes their parents visit Europe or their uncle John start off on a hunting trip. The causes ascribed for these various actions are usually quite different from the real cause, which is the primitive racial instinct to wander—an instinct so deep-seated that it is found in lower animals as well as in man.

We all have it, presumably, but some of us are more enmeshed by conventionalities and the habits of civilized society that we never really respond to the luring call of the wild or the blind impulses to start off somewhere—no matter where. Others are so attuned to this instinct that only lock and key can keep them in one place.

If all tombstones told the truth his satanic majesty would have a fire sale and go out of business.

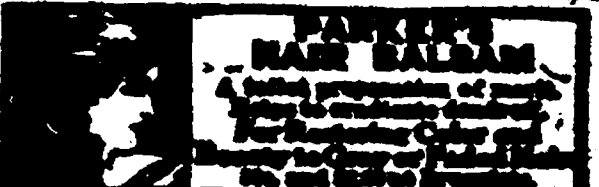

One woman can call another "dearie" and make it sound like a swear word.

WHY WOMEN WRITE LETTERS

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are well often ask "Are the letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genuine?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the full and written consent of the woman who wrote it.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once-burdened with pain and suffering.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

FEED AVAILABLE FOR CATTLE IS WASTED

THRESHING SCENE IN NORTHWEST.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A vast quantity of feed available for cattle is now either wasted absolutely or put to some less profitable use, says a recent report which the department has just published as Part IV of a comprehensive survey of the entire meat situation in the United States. Failure to utilize the full value of this material has increased unnecessarily the cost of producing meat, has diminished the profits from cattle feeding, and has discouraged many farmers from engaging in an industry essential to their permanent prosperity.

According to the report already mentioned, the loss in grain, straw, and corn stover amounts to more than $100,000,000 annually. Both of these products are disposed of most economically when fed to cattle in connection with some form of concentrated feed. Straw is especially valuable in carrying the breeding herd through the winter, in wintering stockers, and as a supplementary roughage for fattening cattle. Stover, too, is an excellent feed for wintering cattle, especially mature breeding cows. Nevertheless, in many sections of the country where these products are abundant, little attempt is made to take advantage of their value for these purposes.

Of an annual straw crop of approximately 120,000,000 tons, it is estimated that only two-thirds is put to its best use—live-stock production. Of the remainder, a little more than one-half is sold or turned under and the rest, 15 per cent of the total crop, is burned. Burning is practically an absolute waste, and although plowing under does contribute something to soil fertility, the benefit to the land is less than that which would be derived from the use of the straw to produce manure. "Of all systems of obtaining permanent soil fertility," says the report, "none is so practical or as easily available as that of feeding live stock."

The average value of all kinds of straw is placed at about $5 a ton. In many sections, of course, no such price can be realized for it, and as a matter of fact only about 8 per cent of the crop actually is sold. The figure mentioned, however, may be taken as representing the value to the farmer of straw if he will use it properly in his farming operations as feed or bedding. In order to illustrate how this may be done the report gives three sample rations for wintering a breeding herd of beef cattle on straw combined with silage, shock corn, and cottonseed or linseed meal. Anyone of these rations, it is said, will prove economical. They are as follows:

Rations for Wintering Breeding Cows.
Ration 1:
Straw	10
Silage	20
Cottonseed meal or linseed meal	1 1/2
Ration 2:
Straw	20
Cottonseed cake or oil cake	2
Ration 3:
Straw	10
Shock corn	10
Cottonseed meal	1

In this connection it is pointed out

WORMS WORRY SMALL CHICKS

When Several Establish Themselves in Throat and Approach Maturity, They Cause Suffocation.

Gapes is caused by the presence of gape worms in the throat of the young chick. Probably the actual injury caused by the presence of the worm is very slight, but the chick's throat is so small that when several worms have established themselves and approach maturity they so far fill the throat of the chick as to cause suffocation.

In all probability these worms often exist in the throats of larger chickens, but because they do not noticeably deprive their hosts of air they reach maturity or are dislodged, and their presence is never detected.

Sunshine for Chicks.

Remember, while little chickens thrive in the sunshine, they must have shade also. If there is no natural shelter from the sun's rays, place boards or small posts to provide a cool and airy retreat.

also that feeding straw in the winter will insure under certain circumstances the full utilization of summer grass. In a number of western states it frequently happens that grass goes to waste because feeders are unwilling to pay the high prices asked for steers in the spring.

The production of corn stover is about twice that of grain straw, amounting to approximately 245,000,000 tons a year. A larger percentage (81.5) of this is fed than of the straw, but the waste is nevertheless astonishing. For this, poor methods of feeding are largely responsible. By far the most economical method of handling corn is by ensiling, but as a matter of fact only 8.1 per cent of the acreage was put in the silo in 1914, the year in which these investigations were made. About 11 per cent was cut for greenfeed and 81 per cent allowed to mature for grain. It is in the last portion of the acreage that the greatest waste occurs. Stripping the leaves from the stalks which are subsequently burned, removing the stalk above the top ear only, leaving the stalks to stand in the field until the loss of leaves and leaching have removed much of their fertilizing value, are all unthrifty methods. Furthermore, almost 4 per cent of the stover is burned, as though, instead of being a potential source of revenue, it was merely a nuisance to be gotten rid of as a percentage of stover that is thus thrown away is as high as 7 or 8 per cent and the total loss to the country from the practice is estimated at nearly $15,000,000 a year.

To obtain satisfactory results from the feeding of farm roughages, such as straw and stover, they must be combined with some form of concentrated feed. At the present time large quantities of such feed, in the form of cottonseed meal and cake, corn, molasses, peanuts, and beans are exported for the use of European feeders. If the straw and stover that are now wasted were employed to feed more cattle, these concentrates could be consumed at home. The result would be a tremendous saving not only in the cost of producing beef but in the cost of enriching the soil as well. In 1914, for example, about 1,000,000 tons of cottonseed meal—half the total production—were applied directly to the soil as fertilizer. If this had been fed to cattle instead, three-quarters of the fertilizing value would have been returned to the soil as manure. The loss of the other fourth would have been far more than counterbalanced by the profit on the meat produced economically by the meal and the necessary roughages.

The efficient use of these and other feeds discussed in the report is of the utmost importance to the American farmer. It is pointed out, because the day when close calculation in feeding was not necessary is, in all probability, past. Hereafter it is likely that success will depend upon ability to put to the best use all available products. A greater knowledge of what these products are and of the ways in which they can be fed will result in the elimination of enormous waste.

GOOD STORAGE IS NECESSITY

Place for Perishable Foods Often Lacking and Speculators Are Given Advantages.

Farmers lose much every year because their facilities for storing perishable foods are poor. Every farm home should have a cellar, storehouse and refrigerator so the surplus foods may be saved till such a time as they may be consumed. The fact that producers have inadequate facilities for saving perishable products gives speculators advantages.

Rooster Kills Snake.

J. S. Sullivan, a Delaware county farmer, known for his veracity, vouches for the truth of a story concerning the defeat of a six-foot black snake by a game rooster in his hen-house a few mornings ago. According to Sullivan, the snake crawled into the chicken shed and before it could be interfered with, grabbed one of a family of thirteen chicks mothered by a hen. The hen flew at the snake in an effort to rescue the unfortunate member of her brood, but retired when the gallant game cock, feathers ruffled and comb erect, rushed in and attacked the reptile boldly with his spurs. The battle raged for fifteen minutes, according to Sullivan, and at the end the black snake lay dead with two neat spur punctures through his brain. Then the little game rooster strutted around the slain lot cockily and since has refused to have anything to do with other members of the Sullivan flock.

USE PAPER CUPS FOR SODA

Up-to-Date Drink Fountains Are Now Adopting Most Sanitary Device.

Glass soda service—the kind our grandfathers and the grandfathers of the present generation of germans knew—is doomed. The new paraffined paper cups for sodas and sunlows that now are being adopted by up-to-date fountains all over the United States, are to be had in all of the regulation sizes.

They are made of pure white paper and no glue of any kind holds them together. They are paraffined on the outside only, so that they can be used as successfully for hot drinks as they can for cold. Special metal holders are made for them, giving them a solid background, which prevents the spoon from being pushed through the paper.

The metal dispensing tube holds 150 of the cups, which are placed in the tube point upward. When needed, a metal holder is placed on the cups, top downward. By turning the cupholder to the right the metal tongue is made to clasp the creased paper, and cup and holder can then be removed together from the machine.—Illustrated World.

THE OFFICE, THE PARTY, AND THE MAN

WILLIAM H. HILL
Candidate for the Republican Nomination for United States Senator August 29th.

William H. Hill is a Republican and it is as a thorough-going, uncompromising Republican that he offers himself at the Primaries, August 29 for the Republican nomination for United States Senator.

But there are certain characteristics of Mr. Hill's Republicanism that he wishes thoroughly understood. He is neither a radical, nor a conservative; least of all is he a reactionary.

By radicalism Mr. Hill understands action not based on good judgment and common sense; by conservatism, a lack of action that amounts to timidity; failure to grasp new conditions; by reactionism, no action at all—stagnation.

Mr. Hill is progressive in his practice and application of Republican theory and doctrine.

By that he means that he recognizes new facts, new conditions, when they arise and believes that theory and principles of government should be adapted to fit these new facts and conditions.

There should always be progress. One cannot stand still. One should advance with the times—molding and adapting principles to the new problems that arise, but never altering the fundamentals. It is this sort of Republicanism that Mr. Hill practices and will practice.

That he has the courage of his convictions was proved in 1912 when, believing that the conditions of that hour demanded it, he followed Colonel Roosevelt. He ran for Congressman-at-large and polled the largest vote, next to Roosevelt, running ahead of his ticket 20,000, and exceeding the vote of the Republican nominee for governor by 5,000.

Mr. Hill remains unshaken in his belief in the soundness of the progressive Republican theories. Those who believe in progressivism as a necessary element in all political theory and who supported Mr. Hill so generously in 1912 may rest assured that the same ideals of government for which he stood at that time will actuate his conduct if he is nominated for United States Senator and elected on the Republican ticket.

Support him as you did four years ago and it will mean that the advocates of progress and humanity will have a friend in court. The Primaries are August 29th. Get out and place an X before the name of Wm. H. Hill.

This Overland is the world's most powerful low-priced car.

It has a 31 1/2 horsepower en bloc motor that is a perfect marvel for speed, power and endurance.

By increasing the bore of the motor from 3 1/8 to 3 3/8 we are able to offer a power plant which at 1950 R. P. M. develops full 31 1/2 horsepower.

Tests under every condition in all parts of the country demonstrate that it easily develops better than fifty miles per hour on the road.

Speed of course varies under different conditions, but in practically every instance it has been getting fifty miles an hour and with ease.

We have scores of telegrams showing that twenty to twenty-five miles per gallon of gasoline is not unusual.

The performance of this car is almost beyond belief.

Take any other low-priced car on the market. Pit it against this new Overland. Compare them for sheer speed, for abundance of power, for riding comfort and economy, and you'll find this car will back anything else clean off the boards.

That's a strong statement, but a fact nevertheless.

Try it yourself and see. Here are more important facts.

It has four-inch tires which are more than generous for a car of this size.

Not only has it a large and roomy body, but it has an attractive, up-to-date streamline body.

It has the latest and most improved system of ignition.

It has the cantilever springs—the easiest riding springs in the world.

What's more, it's complete. Not a thing to buy. You get the finest Auto-Lite electric starting and lighting system, magnetic speedometer, one-man top, demountable rims and practically every accessory found on the highest priced cars.

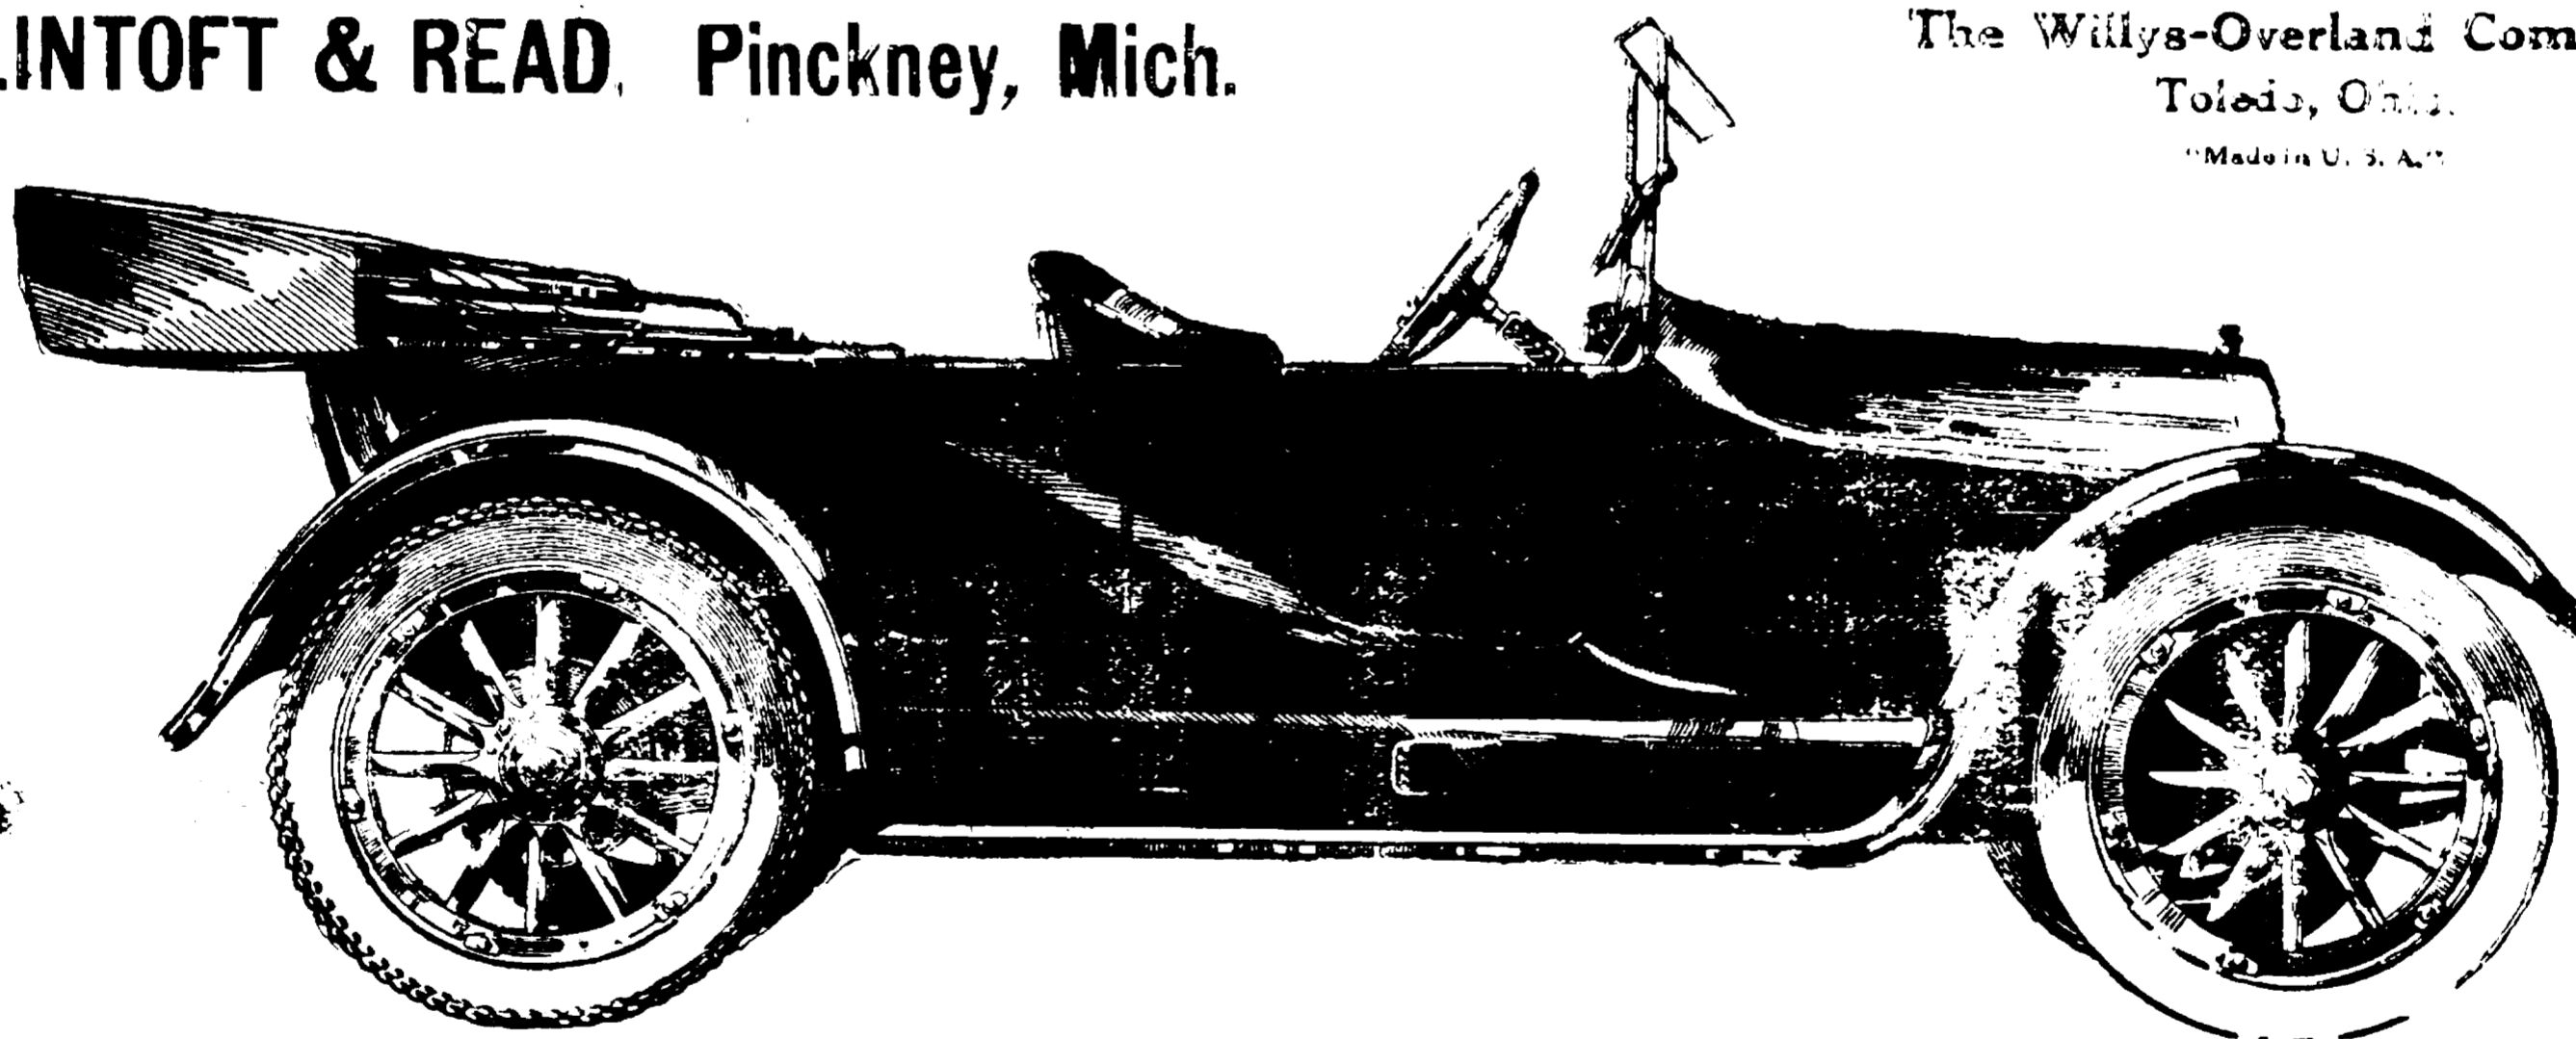

It only goes to prove how big production can cut cost and save you money.

Far Better.
In a neat English village lived a tobaccoist named Farr. Now, this tobaccoist had a rival. Both wanted the trade of the town. Farr, being a wit, devised a sign and hung it outside his shop:

"Best Tobacco by Farr."
The townsfolk, relishing a pun, flocked to his shop, and his trade increased at the expense of his rival's business.

Now, his rival brooded and meditated, consulted many books of ancient lore, a Roget's Thesaurus and a rhyming dictionary. One day his face was seen to wreath itself into smiles. Gossip hovered expectant about his shop. The anticipations of the townsfolk were not disappointed, for that very day he hung out a sign which read:

"Far Better Tobacco Than the Best by Farr."—New York Post.

Tom May Works for the Drys

Tom May of Detroit, noted in many states as the leading cartoonist of Michigan, has been added to the staff of the Michigan Dry Campaign committee. Although his services were sought by the liquor dealers, Mr. May declined their overtures and at financial sacrifice, accepted a proposal made to him by the dry workers.

The cartoon is one of the greatest campaign features of the day; every modern newspaper uses it in some form. It carries an appeal to the average reader which often strikes home more quickly and deeper than columns of argument. Newspaper publishers are glad to use cartoons when they decline to accept special pleas put in other forms.

There is no doubt that the Tom May cartoons which will begin running soon after May 1st, will become one of the striking features of the campaign.
