Home Rule Is For The Saloon

When you go to vote Nov. 7th, you will not find the word "Home Rule" on your ballot, because "Home Rule" is a campaign slogan and not the name of the thing you are asked by the liquor interests to vote for.

When you read the liquor interests' amendment to the constitution of Michigan, it would seem to be giving some new power to cities, villages and townships; it would seem to be a very gracious permit for them to regulate their own liquor affairs.

What that proposed amendment actually would do is to take away from those same cities, villages and townships the power they now have of acting together as a county unit and regulating their own liquor business over a wide enough territory to make such regulation worth while.

The Home Rule amendment really divides and scatters the people of every county into so many separate voting units as to make county regulation of the local liquor traffic an impossible thing.

And that is the purpose of the whole proposition—to divide and scatter the public sentiment of Michigan, and not only to divide and scatter the public sentiment of Michigan, and not only to divide and scatter it but also write it into the constitution of the state that the people shall never be able, without a constitutional amendment, to reunite all county forces as they are now able to do.

The big state question in this campaign is whether the liquor interests are going to be permitted to rewrite the constitution of the state of Michigan?

The New Widow's Pension Law

Statement by Congressman Patrick H. Kelley

To the Editor:

Through your courtesy I would like to call attention of widows of Civil War soldiers to the new pension law which has just taken effect the so-called Ashbrook Law.

This law will benefit the following classes of widows of Civil War soldiers:

1. Any widow heretofore entitled to $12 will be given an increase to $20 if she married the soldier prior to his military service.

2. Any widow heretofore entitled to $12 will be given an increase to $20 if she is 70 years old or over.

3. Any widow who was the widow of a soldier and latter remarried and has again been widowed either by divorce on her application without fault, or by death, can now secure a pension.

4. Any widow of Civil War soldier who married such soldier prior to June 27, 1905, can now secure a pension. The limitation formerly was June 27, 1890 but has now been changed to June 27, 1905.

Any widow who thinks she will be benefitted by any of the provisions of the law, if she will write me at Lansing and state the facts of her case I will inform her as to her rights under the law, furnish her the necessary blanks and look after the matter for her at the bureau of pensions. This being a part of my official duties no charge will be made for such service, and I will be very glad to render it.

Bishops and Cats.

Canon Liddon, like Archbishop Whately, was a lover of cats. His biographer relates that a little niece who lived with him at Anson Corner once dined with her uncle at Fulham palace. In the drawing room after dinner Bishop Jackson told the child that her uncle was splendid company. "What times you must have with him in the evenings?" he added. "What does he talk about?" "Cats," she replied. "Oh, yes," said the bishop, "we all know of Canon Liddon's affection for cats, but he can't talk every night and all night about cats. What does he talk about when he is not talking about cats?" "Bishops," replied the little niece.—London Mirror.

"He's coming down with the grip," was the doctor's reply.

"If he does I'll send him back to bed. I warned him not to lug any more baggage today."—Exchange.

CABBAGES AND A KING

By ELIZABETH VAN BENTHUYSEN.

When the Walrus, in the time-honored verse, called attention to the fact that the time had come to speak of cabbages and kings, the beast did not have any idea that the time would come when there would be any actual relationship between the two. Now kings have come to know the value of the cabbage while the value of the king has taken somewhat of a slump in the opposite direction.

This story deals with an Oil King and a cabbage crop. Midas, with his fund of gold; Croesus, long mentioned as a marvel of money, and the other owners of large kingly chests were but ordinary pikers compared to John D. Rockefeller. He has in one vault in the basement of the produce exchange in New York more hidden wealth than all of the old kings put together.

Yet he has a lively interest in raising cabbages.

His interest in this direction is valuable to all of the persons in the country who have garden plots because it is a lesson in the economy of space, and a tip from the richest man in the world as to the value of using every spare spot for raising something from the soil.

What he sees in New York is equally possible on the most remote hillside in America, and it is for this reason that I am showing you a picture of the Oil King's cabbage patch and telling you how the man with the greatest store of wealth wisely refuses to let a chance to raise even a tiny crop be wasted.

When I say cabbages, I do not mean that the patch is confined to this one thing. It is only one of many. All of the garden products that can be used in a tiny space are utilized, and around the edges, to work in a little art along with utility, there are flowers.

The Rockefeller cabbage patch is located in the yard of the world-famous Rockefeller institute at Sixty-sixth street and the East river, New York city. It is in this remarkable institution that the wise men of science try germs on monkeys and dogs so that they can learn how to save the lives of babies and grownups. Many of the greatest discoveries of science have been made in the big building.

But when the master of the millions came along he saw something beside the germs and the mysterious researches of science in the vicinity. It occurred to him that the germs had nothing to do with the yard about the place, and that no amount of bacilli could interfere with putting the open ground to some use.

So he ordered that the women and children in the congested, poor neighborhood be given a chance to raise vegetables on the unused yard. The order brought about a transformation. Now on any day one may see the woman with the hoe at work on the garden that fringes the skirts of great learning. She is not bowed by the weight of centuries like Edward Marcham's famous "Man With the Hoe." She is happy in the chance to make a better table for her little ones at the expense of a man whose millions do not prevent him from seeing little things clearly.

I wonder if my readers are using their available space for garden purposes with as much wisdom as the very poor of New York are doing in the cabbage patch of the Oil King?

A "DOG" FOR THE GARDEN

By LIMA R. ROSE.

When a theatrical manager has a new play, long before he brings it to the chief city where it is to be produced, he "tries it on the dog." That means that he takes the production to some small place and lets the actors see what effect the play has upon real people. If it works in the little place, the manager brings it to the big city. Maybe he finds some defects that the little town made evident and they are corrected.

The same idea is a fine one for lovers of the garden. Make a trial garden. Pick out some little spot which has intensified soil and the best conditions. If you intend going in for any particular culture, try a little of it in the trial patch. Maybe the trial will show just how to make corrections which will avoid a heartache in the larger planting. A little time spent in testing the possibilities of a flower or a plant before making any extensive investment is always good. The climatic and soil conditions are not the same in any two sections.

The greatest expert on big cannon in the United States was recently asked if he could not tell by figures and theory everything about big guns. "No," he said, "I want it to come out of the gun."

That theory is a fine one to use in matters of the garden. An ounce of real experience is worth a ton of theory—and, besides, it increases the joy of having actual knowledge of the wonderful things that sun, air and soil will do with seeds and plants.

ROSES FOR NORTHERN LATITUDES

For hardiness, sturdy growth, freedom of bloom, color and beauty of flower and foliage free from disease, Radiance is a glorious extra hardy hybrid tea.

If you can have but one white rose, select Frau Karl Druschki. With its large, full, pure-white flower, it is a thing of beauty.

Another hybrid perpetual which is a good one to select is Mrs. John Laing. It is a beautiful soft pink rose, well formed and a persistent bloomer.

For a good red rose Captain Haywood, a hybrid perpetual is a good choice.

Then there are many old favorites, such as General Jacqueminot, Mme. Plantier, Harrison, George IV, black rose and the York and Lancaster roses.

Most rose plants stand the cold weather fairly well. It is the melting snows and cold rains with freezing weather overnight in the spring that is most trying to the life of the rose.

No Mood to Exaggerate.

"I had the privilege yesterday of hearing a veracious fisherman tell about his experiences on a recent trip." "What makes you think he told the truth?"

"He preferred his remarks by expressing a desire to kick himself."

SELF-FEEDING PLAN

Value Demonstrated in Recent Experiments at Beltsville.

PLAN IS VERY PRACTICABLE

Grade Berkshires, Uniform in Size, Averaging 93 Pounds Were Used—Ample Room for Exercise Was Given Animals.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The value of the self-feeder method of fattening pigs was demonstrated in an experiment recently carried out at the experimental farm of the bureau of animal industry at Beltsville, Md. The object was to determine the value of this system as compared with the ordinary method of hand feeding.

The pigs used in the experiment were grade Berkshires farrowed in the fall of 1915. They averaged 93 pounds per head when the experiment started.

The hand-fed lot were fed three times daily, the amount being governed by the appetites. The ration given the hand-fed hogs was composed of 5 parts cornmeal, 4 parts middlings and 1 part tankage. The cornmeal and supplements were mixed dry. Just before feeding, the amount to be fed was weighed and then mixed into a thick slop, enough water being used to make the slop pour out of the bucket without sticking. The feeding was done at 7 and 11:30 o'clock in the forenoon and 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The self-fed lot had free access at all times to cornmeal, middlings and tankage in separate compartments of a self-feeder. Close watch was kept on the feeder, and a supply of each feed maintained.

Both lots of pigs were kept in dry lots a quarter of an acre in size. The pigs were given ample room for exercise and sufficient shelter. The pigs in both lots had access to a mineral mixture composed of:

Charcoal, bushel 1
Hardwood ashes, bushel 1
Salt, pounds 8
Air-slaker lime, pounds 8
Sulphur, pounds 4
Pulverized copperas, pounds 2

*Ration: 5 parts corn meal, 4 parts middlings, 1 part tankage.

*Ration: Cornmeal, middlings, tankage. The cost per ton of feed used in the experiments was as follows: Cornmeal, $27; middlings, $30; tankage, $50.

All the pigs in the self-feeder lot maintained keen appetites during the 70 days of feeding. The hand-fed pigs averaged 94 pounds per head and the self-fed pigs 92 pounds per head at the beginning of the test. At the end of 70 days the hand-fed pigs averaged 167.5 pounds and the self-fed pigs 205 pounds, 37.5 pounds more than the hand-fed pigs. The self-fed pigs consumed a greater quantity of feed per head during the test than the hand-fed pigs, but it took only 495 pounds of feed to produce 100 pounds at a cost of $5.67, while the hand-fed pigs produced 100 pounds of gain at a cost of $6.24.

The self-fed pigs made a better showing, surpassing the hand-fed lot in both rate and economy of gains. The results of the experiment clearly show that for quick fattening the self-feeder is very practicable.

KEEP FARM TOOLS IN ORDER

Holder for Disks and Colters for Use When They Are Being Sharpened Is Handy Device.

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing a holder for disks and colters while they are being sharpened, invented by J. J. Hinds and M. R. Wright of Wall Lake, Ia., says:

"This holder has a frame supported by, and movable vertically relative to, the stationary frame, the movable frame having a bearing at one end, in which a vertical shaft is journaled, this shaft having a thread meshing in a threaded orifice in a member secured to the stationary frame. The shaft has flanges disposed so that the movable frame may be raised or lowered relatively to the stationary frame of a crank secured to the shaft. Journaled in bearings in the movable frame is a longitudinally extending shaft, to the outer end of which is secured a disk or colter to be ground, the longitudinal

GOOD AS RAT EXTERMINATOR

Exhaust Gases From Motor Proved Efficient by Illinois Farmer—Every Rodent Killed.

The exhaust gases of a gasoline engine are said to be fatal to rats. The chickenhouse of an Illinois farmer was infested with them. He attached a hose to the exhaust pipe of his motor car, inserted the other end under the floor and set the engine running. Twenty rats tried to escape, but were killed by dogs and when he took up the floor he found 140 rats dead or stupefied, not one escaping.

Cut Out Surplus Runners.

Hoe out the surplus strawberry runners just as if they were weeds—which they are. Crowded plants mean a poor crop next June.

Old, Sour Swill Barrel.

Do away with the old, sour swill barrel. It's a disgrace to your farm.

PLOW WHEAT GROUND EARLY

Buries Hessian Fly and Gives Soil Time to Become Moist and Compact Underneath.

Early plowing of wheat is beneficial in more ways than one. Not only does it bury the Hessian fly, but it also gives time for the plowed soil to become moist and compact underneath. Such a condition of the soil is difficult to secure if plowing is put off until September. Keeping down the weeds also conserves soil moisture and plant foods. From five to seven hundred tons of water are necessary to produce a ton of dry weeds and moist of this may be saved for the wheat crop.

Plant food is made available more rapidly when early plowing is practiced, due to the better air circulation. If the weeds are kept down, this food is stored up and ready to give the wheat a quick, vigorous start when seeding time comes. If, on the other hand, the weeds are allowed to grow, they will draw heavily on this plant food and while they will eventually die and decay, restoring it to the soil, the wheat will not do well, for if the wheat crop waits until the weeds decay, the danger from winterkilling will be greatly increased. This difference in growth may make the difference between winterkilling and good spring condition.

Examine Colt's Teeth.

If the colt shows colic symptoms or is not doing well, examine his teeth. A sharp tooth, cutting tongue or cheek will prevent grinding the food and cause trouble. Sometimes a tooth needs extracting.

Spraying Paid.

A Missouri county agent reports an orchard-spraying demonstration that resulted in profits of $1,800 in 1915, when profits of from $500 to $800 a year had usually been received without spraying.

Thin Apples and Plums.

Do not let the apple and plum trees bear too heavily. The fruit should have been thinned to from four to six inches apart.

FORTUNATE CITY IS BOISE

Natural Supply of Hot Water Used to Furnish Heat for Houses and Public Buildings.

Boise, the capital of Idaho, is the only city in the world to use natural hot water to supply heat to houses, public buildings and business blocks, the Youth's Companion observes. Water at a temperature of 171 degrees Fahrenheit comes from wells in the low foothills of the Boise mountains just outside of the city, and for 25 years it has all been used for heating purposes.

There are two wells, each 18 inches in diameter and 400 feet deep. The natural flow is 800,000 gallons a day. Centrifugal pumps have increased the supply to 1,250,000 gallons every day. The water is pumped into a tank or reservoir, thence distributed to the users in the city. One hundred and thirty-nine buildings use it for all purposes, including heat, and 100 other buildings use it for bathing, washing and cooking purposes.

Engineers have tried to increase the flow of water, and they think that if they could tap the main subterranean stream they would get enough hot water to supply all the needs of the city. The heat is so intense that men can work only 18 feet below the surface, and then only in ten-minute shifts.

These hot springs were well known by the Indians and they made the spot where Boise now stands a sort of winter resort for the Snake and Bannock tribes.

Spanking Causes Fire.

A West Avon, Conn., dispatch says: Spanking has not gone out of style as a popular method of meting out justice in this country town at least. A youngster here got one recently. It wouldn't do to tell his name, for he is a really fine little fellow. His wrathful parent while performing the time-honored act discovered to her amazement and horror that smoke was curling up "from the seat of his pants." The conflagration was put out without the aid of the fire department, but matches are a strictly forbidden article, and there was a lecture on safety first thrown in for good measure. If that youngster carries any more matches he'll tuck them safely in his breast pocket, and he's learned that "giving you a good warming up" may be meant literally as well as figuratively.

They Misinform the Measles.

In Japan the nursery is still protected from the inroads of measles and other infections by means of an inscription over the nursery door saying with exquisite urbanity "this child is not at home." In the Wellcome Historical Medical museum, says the London Lancet, a most fascinating exhibition is on view, illustrative of "Japanese charms, amulets, votive offerings and objects of medical interest," among which these nursery notices occupy an important place. Akin to these notices are the charms embodied as toys. A yellow tiger with a wagging head is now said to be a toy, but anciently it was a form of exorcism against pain and numbness of the limbs.

Naturally.

"I don't believe in these antiseptic kisses."
"Why not?"
"Won't they kill the germs of affection?"

Canada's 1915 crop yield is valued at $800,000,000, with wheat heading the list at more than $312,000,000.

WIFE TOO ILL TO WORK IN BED MOST OF TIME

Her Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Indianapolis, Indiana. — "My health was so poor and my constitution so run down that I could not work. I was thin, pale and weak, weighed but 109 pounds and was in bed most of the time. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and five months later I weighed 133 pounds. I do all the housework and washing for eleven and I can truthfully say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a godsend to me for I would have been in my grave today but for it. I would tell all women suffering as I was to try your valuable remedy." — Mrs. Wm. Green, 332 S. Addison Street, Indianapolis, Indiana.

There is hardly a neighborhood in this country, wherein some woman has not found health by using this good old-fashioned root and herb remedy. If there is anything about which you would like special advice, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

The Particulars.
"I have heard something about a colored man in this vicinity who is said to be turning white on one side," stated the inquisitively inclined young man from Kansas City. "Do you know where I can find him?"
"Yas sah," replied Brother Fagg, who had heard nothing about the matter before, but wished to be accommodating. "Dat's me."

"But I see nothing unusual about your appearance. Which side of you is turning white?"
"De inside, sah." — Kansas City Star.

When They Work.
There are some glass blowers in this country who can work only when the glass has foam on it.

Isn't a lost boy a waif from home?

Is Work Too Hard?

Many kinds of work wear out the kidneys, and kidney trouble makes any kind of work hard. It brings morning lameness, backache, headache, nervousness, rheumatism and urinary troubles. If your work is confining, strains the back, or exposes you to extreme heat or cold or damp, it's well to keep the kidneys active. Doan's Kidney Pills are reliable and safe. Thousands recommend them.

A Michigan Case
S. O. Morgan, 131 E. Washington St., Coldwater, Mich., says: "I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are a good medicine for I have used them with benefit. My kidneys were disordered and I had weakness and pain across the small of my back. I could hardly do any lifting or stooping and my kidneys were aching. Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of the backache, regulated the action of my kidneys and benefited me in every way."

Evening Frocks Have Novelty

Silhouette Is Made a Feature of the Latest Edict of Fashion Leaders.

"VAMPIRE" EFFECT IS SEEN

Changes in Costumes Which Are to Be Considered "The Thing" Have Been Many and Varied—Ruffles a Serious Part of the New Styles.

Whatever we may do about house and street frocks, it looks as though the new silhouette for the evening will struggle itself into first place. It is neither medieval nor first empire, but it has enough of both in it to be entirely lovely.

Anything that makes the figure bulge at any part of its length is wrong. Probably, this is a good summary of the truth to be remembered by the woman who goes shopping.

The large majority of the evening gowns would make one believe that the popularity of Theda Bara in the moving pictures had revived the vampire in social life. It has been quite some time since fashion allowed women to have clinging clothes that swirled around the ankles, outlined the hips, neglected to cover the upper part of the body and were followed by obedient trains that crawled in a serpentine manner to give emphasis to the vampire effect. And in addition to this silhouette, there are sequins and glittering scales of red, yellow, blue and black that are used to cover gowns, intricate, swirling designs of metal thread, hems heavily weighted by gorgeous jewel work and girdles made of sinuous, glittering metals that have no substance and body, but only color and price. There are waving, floating draperies that reach to the fingertips instead of sleeves. There are gorgeous jewels worn with these gowns, gems that are seductive and mysterious and full of warm tones.

For two years we have exposed ourselves below the knees, and this season we expose ourselves above the waist and cover the legs. It is never a question of modesty with fashion; it is a question of which part of the body shall be uncovered, and there was a brief period during last winter when the scarcity of material above and below the waistline arrived at such a proportion that one was shocked into wondering what would be eliminated further.

BERNARD'S BORGIA GOWN.

He calls it Lucrece. It is of metal cloth in green and gold, brocaded with gold flowers. There is a train of gold lace which hangs from the waist.

There were gowns worn by young girls in public which reminded one of the remark made by a witty French woman, who said that if her skirts were made by Callot and her bodies by Poiret, her costume would consist of a girdle.

Last Season's Fashions Dead.

If a woman is able to struggle through the next few months without buying new clothes and still remain sufficiently in fashion, she will have to place all her ruffles on her street clothes. There are few evening gowns on this continent that will be able to do first-class duty this winter, unless one is skillful at alteration.

This argument may seem to prove untrue according to the shop windows and the gowns that hang in glass cases in dressmaking places. There are skirts that are bunched at the waist and there are others that have two trills standing out from waist to hem, but these are not in leonine era, and not direct from Caesar.

Now, against all these incoming fashions, how does a short, ruffled tulle gown, beached on the hips, appear? If you can notice the Rising Satin the hips and add a train of velvet or satin pendant from the waistline at the back, you may be able to bring this frivolous frock into the stately silhouette; but as the season progresses, gowns will grow longer and narrower. All the straws show that the wind blows in this direction.

French Street Suit.

As long ago as last July, those who watch straws, rather than shop windows, insisted upon the fact that even street suits should maintain a straight silhouette. Every woman in France, smart and otherwise, had removed all manner of stiffening from her skirts as early as July and allowed the fullness to fall into the figure as softly as muslin, and yet the American dressmakers and tailors insisted upon flaring the tailor-made skirts out from the waistline and hips and putting into them an unnecessary amount of fullness.

Manufacturers continued to make stiffened petticoats, and those who were interested in crinolines advanced them weekly as an aid to the new styles. Now, who wants a petticoat or a bit of crinoline? The latter is tabooed and the former is discarded or ignored.

The manufacturers in France have seen to it that the new fabrics carry out the new silhouette. They are not able to flare. They are too soft. They are woven so that they will reveal, rather than conceal, the lines of the figure. The skirts are not narrow, but they are not unusually full, and they hang limp from the waist.

The women of France also lengthened their skirts on the first of July and this is a sure forerunner of what we will do by Thanksgiving. There is not any strong evidence so far that women have ripped out the hems of their skirts, but in a few weeks the skirt that we wore last winter will look absurdly short and there will be an uncomfortable feeling that will demand the addition of a band of velvet or fur, if the hem is not wide enough to be used to lengthen it.

The season has been seething for three weeks, and the experts are able now to divide all the new French gowns into classes.

Smart Frocks of Net.

Extremely pretty net frocks, embroidered and lace-trimmed, are among the new models, as they always are, for the net frock is a useful and safe "filler" for any wardrobe and can be worn the year round for some purposes. A high-necked model with a deep crepe of the net covering the bodice from a shallow shirred and corded yoke to the top of a wide girde of gorgeous brocade ribbon is new, but though the high-necked bodice and blouse are still insistent and will probably be very modish throughout the autumn, high-necked arrangements never succeed to any great extent. American women, though still ready to adopt freakish fashions, do insist upon comfort more than they did in earlier years, and a mode thoroughly uncomfortable is not likely to make any wide appeal.

Satin Everywhere.

Satin is used extensively this autumn and from all indications it will continue one of the smartest of winter fabrics.

Cardui Wins Suit.

After a trial in the United States District Court of Chicago, before Judge Carpenter and a federal jury, the jury found the American Medical Association guilty of libeling Cardui, the woman's tonic, which they had denounced as a "nostrum."

This is a vindication of the medicine and a proof that it has merit, which was recognized by a jury after a trial of three months, one of the longest civil cases on record.

Many doctors and chemists testified on both sides and the evidence totaled nearly four million words.

Chas. F. Judson
For Probate Judge

Should the county be searched a better man for Judge of Probate could not be found. Both by nature and by training he is peculiarly fitted for the position. In dealing with widows and orphans, a man with a big sympathetic heart and of high honor and integrity is necessary. For some years prominent druggist and business man of Brighton—County Treasurer four years—Supervisor of his township nine years—Administrator of many estates—Always looked up to and trusted by the people of his village and of the County for his knowledge and judgement—of broad intelligence—has operated a farm in connection with his other business as a rule.

Willis L. Lyons

Nominee for re-election as Prosecuting Attorney

The man who fills this office is apt to offend many although he may only do what is absolutely his duty, and this is one reason why the people usually stand by a man who tries to do his duty.

We may have had more brilliant lawyers in this office than Willis Lyons, but one who have had any better success with the work, tried harder to do their duty or saved the people of Livingston County any more money.

The Board of Supervisors, Court and the work of the office have tied Mr. Lyons up some, but he will soon be able to get out more and see the voters of the County. He wished the Republican to say that he would appreciate any good word that his friends may say for him—Livingston Republican.

Your Support

Solicit your support for the following reasons:

1. He seeks the office—did a petition for it and waits. It has not been offered to withdraw and has never told a man that he did not wish the office.

2. This office has always been given as an encouragement to the younger lawyers of the county, all held it for two terms no more. Don Van Winkle is 29 years old; has been engaged in the practice of law for three years. He made the run against the Republican Candidate's second term two years ago at which time the Republican candidate stated that his second term would be his last one.

The Republican Candidate has held county office for sixteen years: County Clerk for twelve years and Prosecuting Attorney, for four years. In that time he has been paid about $24,000 for his services. He has had his share.

3. The Republican candidate in touring the county four years ago sought the office for two terms and no more that he might get started in the law business. He has had that start and in fairness should not some one else have the benefit of the office?

4. Don Van Winkle promises a careful and economical conduct of the office. Not a dollar of public money will be wasted. All will be served alike. It will be the people's office.

JOHN A. HAGMAN

Republican Candidate for County Clerk

If my record for the past two years has met with your approval, your support for re-election for a second term will be appreciated.

Candidate For State Representative

Asks the honor of serving the people of Livingston County a second term in the Michigan Legislature.

Your assistance in helping me be re-elected will be fully appreciated.

HUGH G. ALDRICH

County School Commissioner
Candidate for re-election Nov. 7th

Mr. Aldrich was born in Marion, Livingston County. Attended the Haiger school, graduated from Howell High School, from the State Normal College and has had one year of study in the University of Michigan.

He has had experience teaching in rural and high schools in this state and Illinois. As you know, he has had three years experience as Commissioner of Schools in Livingston County.

His liberal preparation and his experience in our schools make him a good man for the position.

There are one-hundred-thirty-two school districts in the county, so there are as many problems as schools. No two probably have the same conditions.

It is not possible in such a position to please all, but if you have been fairly well satisfied with the work of Mr. Aldrich, give him your support and vote Nov. 7th. Your support will be much appreciated.

Count Up Your Sins.

Augustus Montague Toplady's world famous hymn, "Rock of Ages," originally appeared in the Gospel Magazine for October, 1775, and was prefaced by a terrifying list of the number of sins the average man may be supposed to commit during the course of his lifetime.

"At ten years old," computes the morbid mathematician who wrote the article, "each of us is chargeable with 315,036,000 sins, at twenty with 630,720,000," and so on until at eighty the list stands at 2,532,880,000.

DEALERS ACCUSED OF VIOLATING LAW

Dairy Department Says Storage
Butter Is "Doctored."

WARNED TO CEASE PRACTICE

Those Who Are Taking Advantage of Present High Prices Threatened With Prosecution by the State.

Lansing.—That dealers in butter and potatoes are making hay while the sun shines on the general high cost of living is the burden of a bulletin issued by the dairy and food department.

Dealers who are bringing in cold storage butter, and treating it in such a way as to make it contain 25 per cent moisture are warned to cease or prosecutions will follow. This practice, according to the bulletin, is being indulged in to a considerable extent.

The bulletin says that potatoes in the northern part of the state are selling for $1 a bushel, while in the southern portion potatoes from Maine and New York are being brought in and sold direct from the cars at $1.50 a bushel. The department wants dealers in potatoes to communicate with it to arrange to ship Michigan potatoes south as they can be sold much below the $1.50 figure.

Predicts Long Stay at Border.

Michigan guardsmen will see more service at the border than all organizations from other states, in the opinion of Col. J. S. Bersey, adjutant general.

"It will be several months, at least, I think, before the Michigan troops will be mustered out," he said. "There are several indications to this end."

"In the first place the Michigan troops are admitted to be in better condition for service than the majority of the organizations at the border, not only as far as equipment is concerned, but in personnel. Compared to the other state troops, the Michigan soldiers were exceptionally well equipped, while they are among the few who were immunized against typhoid fever and smallpox before reaching the border."

"Another thing is that the Eleventh division, composed of Michigan and Ohio troops, is now complete. It seems probable that the war department will keep this division intact."

"Many of the National Guard organizations have been mustered out. It is absurd to think that the troops would be at the border if none were needed there, and it is reasonable to believe that the more troops sent to their home stations the more probable it will be that it will be some time before the Michigan guardsmen are relieved from service."

Hits Health Regulations.

"At 10 cents a quart the consumer is paying too much for milk. Somebody is making just a little too much profit, and that somebody is not the farmer."

That, in a nutshell, is the idea which James W. Helme, state dairy and food commissioner, has about the milk question. Contrary to most people, however, Mr. Helme insists that not all of the blame belongs to the distributor. A large part of the present high price of lactical fluid is due to "impossible, improbable and impracticable" sanitary and health regulations, he says.

"Don't put all the blame of the high price of milk on the distributor," he urges. "Everybody knows that this year a peculiar condition arises because there is no fall pasture. That is going to make milk scarce. But don't forget, too, that these theorists and faddists on the boards of health are responsible for a lot of rise in the price of milk."

"Every time they put a new regulation into effect, one which is improbable, impossible and impracticable, as most of them are, they tend to create a monopoly and up goes the price. That has been the history not only in this state but in all other states, where the faddists have been able to control legislation, both state and municipal."

Pattengill Wants Off Ticket.

Henry R. Pattengill of Lansing has written Secretary of State Vaughan declaring that he is not a candidate for governor on the National Progressive ticket, and does not want his name printed on the ballot.

In the primary election Mr. Pattengill received one vote for governor on the National Progressive ticket. One vote was also registered for Henry Ford as the Progressive's gubernatorial candidate. The tie was broken by the board of canvassers by drawing lots and the nomination went to the Lansing man.

However, Mr. Pattengill, who was one of the organizers of the Bull

Moose party in 1912 and was the National Progressive candidate for governor two years ago, is now supporting Charles E. Hughes, the Republican candidate for president, and declares he is not a candidate for office himself this year.

Short Weights Increase.

Peremptory orders have been issued by State Sealer of Weights and Measures Burr B. Lincoln to all of his deputies throughout the state to arrest every person found using short weights or short measures and to prosecute them.

Following the order, Mr. Lincoln heard that several suits had been started on the west side of the state, for short weights in potatoes.

"I do not know why it is," says Mr. Lincoln, "but suddenly we are getting reports of a lot of violations of the honest weight and measure laws."

"What the answer is I cannot tell. I do know that there is a general movement to cheat Mrs. Housewife. We are going to stop it if we have to arrest every dealer."

Start on Drill Schedule Again.

El Paso, Tex.—Michigan troops have begun a repetition of the drill schedule they went through in El Paso three months ago. Orders to begin again with the fundamentals of military training came through General Kirk. It was the answer to the question of the men as to what work would be given next. Whether the full three-months' schedule will be given is not known.

The men started with squad drills, special attention of the commissioned officers being paid to the work of the squad leaders, the corporals. This is supplemented with sight-setting, sight-practice, first aid and bayonet exercises.

The orders provide that every officer, from the colonel of the regiment to the corporal, participate in the drills.

All three Michigan regiments have gone through this schedule since the muster-in. The Thirty-third got the same drill at Grayling that was given the Thirty-second and Thirty-first on the border. It is likely that the drills will be taken up in order until the entire brigade is given the brigade test and maneuvers.

To Play No Favorites.

Gen. John P. Kirk called officers of his brigade together and talked to them on alleged favoritism to enlisted men. He declared all must be treated alike.

He had been informed, he said, that in certain cases men were punished while others equally guilty went free. Incidentally, the general announced he intended to be on the job at all times and to see that others did the same.

Soldiers Kept Busy.

Practically every minute of the time from morning to noon mess is now taken up with work, and in the afternoon one hour is devoted to school for both commissioned and noncommissioned officers.

The cancellation of entraining orders for the Massachusetts field hospital is the chief gossip of the camp today. This organization was one of the first outfits to reach the border, and had been ordered home. After they had turned in all their extra equipment and horses, the orders were canceled.

It was so unexpected that the troops found themselves without ration. Whether the cancellation came as a result in a change of policy in the war department, or through some fault of the outfit itself, could not be learned.

Many favorable remarks are heard in camp concerning the speedy manner in which the government is taking care of the allowances for men with dependent families. The $2,000,000 fund was no sooner available than the soldiers began to get their pay checks. It has taken only a few days after the filing of applications to get action.

General Kirk said that, in his opinion, the Michigan troops would not go out on drill after November 1. He said he thought the men would be given theoretical instruction in schools. Many of the officers have provided winter quarters and have settled down for a comfortable stay until spring.

Private Harry L. Phillips, Company I, Thirty-first Michigan, has been discharged because of dependents.

Private Floyd Butcher of the supply company, Thirty-first Michigan, has suffered a recurrence of trouble as the result of a mule kick received two months ago, and has gone to a hospital.

TWENTY-SEVEN LOSE THEIR LIVES

COLGATE FOUNDERED IN LAKE
ERIE WITH CREW OF 22.
ONLY ONE RESCUED.

CLUNG 12 HOURS TO SPAR

The Schooner D. S. Flier Was Sunk
With Six of Her Crew,
Captain Rescued.

Cleveland.—Another tragedy of Lake Erie's "Black Friday," which cost the lives of 21 men, came to light Sunday, borne on the waves, when a life raft to which Captain Walter Grashaw, master of the whaleback steamer James B. Colgate, had clung since she foundered, 34 hours before, was picked up off Rondeau, Canada, and taken to Conneaut, Ohio.

Nineteen men were sucked down to death when the Colgate foundered off Long Point, opposite Erie, and Captain Grashaw's two companions on the life raft were washed away just as the rescue ship, car ferry steamer Marquette and Bessemer No. 2, came plowing through the waves toward them. Grashaw is the sole survivor of the Colgate's crew of 22.

The loss of the Colgate is the most conspicuous of the year, the next being the steamer S. R. Kirby, which sank in Lake Superior with 19 men May 8.

Detroit.—Six lives, two ships went out in the 50 m. gale from the southwest that swept over Lake Erie beating the sea into a fuming, raging mass of destructiveness.

"I heard the screams of my crew as they were dashed into the water. It sent a chill through me. I wanted to save them, but what could I do?"

Thus Capt. John Mattison, master of the schooner D. L. Flier, which was sunk off Bar Point, near the mouth of the Detroit river, described his plight during the gale that swept Lake Erie and in which two ships foundered, with a loss of six lives, all from the Flier.

Capt. Mattison, rescued only after he had clung 12 hours to a spar that was part of the wreckage of his ill-fated craft, was worn to a point of total exhaustion when he was brought to Cleveland by the D. & C. steamer Western States, but he gave a graphic account of his experience.

Thirteen others were rescued from the vengeance of the storm. They were members of the crew of the steamer Marshall F. Butters, which foundered on Southeast Shoals. Three of these were rescued by the steamer Frank Billings, which took them to Cleveland; the other 10 were picked up by the steamer F. G. Hartwell and were taken into Fairport.

VILLA WINNER IN BIG BATTLE

Carranzista Troops Were Cut To Pieces in Battle 20 Miles from Chihuahua City.

El Paso, Tex.—By executing a feigned retreat while General Ynez Salazar, with several hundred men, flanked the Mexican government troops, Villa inflicted a crushing defeat on Carranzista forces in a battle 20 miles south of Chihuahua City, according to private advices received by American mining men here. Employees of American mining companies who had started for the mining properties on Carranza trains, fled back into Chihuahua city with reports of the Carranzista defeat.

The remnants of the Carranzista forces, who were commanded by General Carlos Ozuna, are straggling back into the Chihuahua capital. As the Carranza troops neared Santa Isabel Villa feigned a retreat, Ozuna's men starting in hard pursuit. Meanwhile General Salazar, with his detachment, marched around the Carranzista forces and attacked them from the rear, cutting Ozuna's men to pieces and driving them back to Pailon.

The DESTROYING ANGEL

By Louis Joseph Vance

HOW THE STORY GOES

Hugh Whitaker is told, after a diagnosis by eminent surgeons, that he cannot live longer than six months. His sweetheart jilts him. The double blow stuns him. Peter Stark, his friend, proposes a South sea voyage on Stark's yacht. Whitaker consents, but runs away to a country hotel with the intention of committing suicide. He surprises Mary Ladislav, daughter of a rich and hard New Yorker, in the act of drinking poison and stops her. She has been deserted by the man with whom she had planned a clandestine marriage. Whitaker marries the girl to save her good name, gives her money and immediately puts her on a train for home. He turns and walks into Peter Stark's arms. "No more foolishness," says Stark. "You've got to go sailing with me." The sick man shrugged wearily: "All right," he replied. "Have your own way." What happens next is told in this installment. You'll find it mighty interesting.

CHAPTER IV—Continued.

Beyond drawing heavily on his bank and sending Drummond a brief note, Whitaker failed to renew communication with his home. He sank into a state of semi-apathetic content. The Adventure was five months out of port before he began to be conscious that he was truly accursed. There came a gradual thickening of the shadows that threatened to eclipse his existence. And then, one day as they dined with the lonely trader of an isolated station in the D'Entrecasteaux Islands, he fell from his chair as if poleaxed. He regained consciousness only to shiver with the chill of the wind that fanned by the wings of death. It was impossible to move him. The agonies of the damned were his when, with exquisite gentleness, they lifted him to a bed.

Stark sailed in the Adventure before sundown of the same day, purposing to fetch a surgeon from Port Moresby. Whitaker said a last farewell to his friend, knowing in his soul that they would never meet again. Then he composed himself to die quietly. But the following morning brought a hapchance trading schooner to the island, and with it, in the estate of supercargo, a capricious Scotch gentleman who had been a famous specialist of London before drink laid him by the heels. He performed a heroic operation upon Whitaker within an hour, announced by nightfall that the patient would recover, and the next day sailed with his ship to end his days in some abandoned Australian boozing-ken—as Whitaker learned in Sydney several months later.

In the same place, and at the same time, he received his first authentic news of the fate of the Adventure. The yacht had struck on an uncharted reef, in heavy weather, and had foundered almost immediately. Of her entire company, a solitary sailor managed to cling to a life-raft until picked up, a week after the wreck, by a tramp steamship on whose decks he gasped at his news and his life in the same breaths.

Whitaker hunted up an account of the disaster in the files of a local newspaper. He read that the owner, Peter Stark, Esq., and his guest, H. M. Whitaker, Esq., both of New York, had gone down with the vessel. There was also a cable dispatch from New York detailing Peter Stark's social and financial prominence—evidence that the news had been cabled home. To all who knew him Whitaker was as dead as Peter Stark.

"There is a world outside the one you know
To which for curiousness 'E'll can't compare;
It is the place where wilful missings go,
As we can testify, for we are there."

Kipling's lines buzzed through his head more than once in the course of the next few years; for he was "there." They were years of such vagabondage as only the South Seas countenance; neither unhappy nor very strenuous, nor yet scarred by the tooth of poverty. Whitaker had between four and five thousand dollars in traveller's checks which he converted into cash while in Sydney. Memory of the wreck of the Adventure was already fading from the Australian mind; no one dreamed of challenging the signature of a man seven months dead. And as certainly and as quietly as the memory, Whitaker faded away; Hugh Morten took his place, and Sydney knew him no more, nor did any other parts wherein he had answered to his rightful name.

The money stayed by him handsomely. Thanks to a strong constitution in a tough body (now that its malignant demon was exorcised) he found it easy to pick up a living by one means or another. Indeed, he played many parts in as many fields before joining hands with a young Englishman he had grown to like and entering upon what seemed a forlorn bid for fortune. Thereafter he prospered amazingly.

When at length he did make up his mind to go home, he was in Melbourne with Lynch, his partner. Whitaker passed old friends in the street. They were George Presbury and his wife—Anne Forsythe that was—self-evident tourists, looking the town over between steamers. Presbury, with no thought in his bumptious head of meeting Hugh Whitaker before the day of judgment, looked at and through him without a hint of recognition; but his wife was another person altogether. Whitaker could not be blind to the surprise and perplexity that shone in her eyes, even though he pretended to be blind to her uncertain nod; long after his back alone was visible to her he could feel her inquiring stare boring into it.

The incident made him think; and he remembered that he was now a man of independent fortune and of idle hands as well. After prolonged consideration he suddenly decided, told Lynch to look out for his interests and expect him back when he should see him, and booked for London by a Royal Mail boat—all in half a day. From London Mr. Hugh Morten crossed immediately to New York on the Olympic, landing in the month of April—nearly six years to a day from the time he had left his native land.

He put up at the Ritz-Carlton, precisely as any foreigner might be expected to do, and remained Hugh Morten while he prowled around the city and found himself. Now and again in the course of his wanderings he encountered well-remembered faces, but always without eliciting the slightest gleam of recognition; circumstances that only went to prove how thoroughly dead and buried he was in the estimation of his day and generation.

Nothing, indeed, seemed as he remembered it. But his ultimate and utter awakening to the truth that his home had outgrown him fell upon the fourth afternoon following his return, when a total but most affable gentleman presented himself to Whitaker's consideration with a bogus name and a genuine offer to purchase him a drink, and promptly attempted to enmesh him in a confidence game that had degenerated into a vaudiville joke in the days when both of them had worn knickerbockers. Whitaker privately admitted that he was outclassed, that it was time for him to seek the protection of his friends.

He began with Drummond. The latter, of course, had moved his offices. Whitaker found him independently established in an imposing suite in the Woolworth Building—found him an ashenfaced man of thirty-five, who clutched the side of his roll-top desk as if to save himself from falling.

"Whitaker!" he gasped. "My God!" "Flattered," said Whitaker. "I'm sure."

He derived considerable mischievous amusement from Drummond's patent stupefaction. It was all so right and proper—as it should have been. He considered his a highly satisfactory resurrection. Seldom does a scene pass off as one plans it; but Drummond played up his part in a most public-spirited fashion—gratifying, to say the least.

It took him some minutes to recover, Whitaker standing by and beaming. He remarked changes, changes as striking as the improvement in Drummond's fortunes. Physically his expartner had gone off a bit; the sedentary life led by the average successful man of business in New York had marked his person unmistakably. Only his face seemed as it had always been—sharply handsome and strong. Whitaker remembered that he had always somewhat meanly envied Drummond his good looks; he himself had been fashioned after the new order of architecture—with a steel frame.

He discovered that they were both talking at once—furiously—and, without surprise, that he had a great deal more enlightenment to impart to Drummond than he had foreseen.

"You've got an economical streak in you when it comes to correspondence," Drummond commented, offering Whitaker a sheet of paper he had just taken from a tin document-box. That's Exhibit A."

Whitaker read aloud:

Dear D.: I'm not feeling well, so off for a vacation. Burke has just been in and paid $1,000 in settlement of our claim. I'm enclosing herewith my check for your share. Yours,

H. M. W.

"Far be it from me to cast up," said Drummond; "but I'd like to know why the deuce you couldn't let a fellow know how ill you were."

"That's so. And you never heard—?" "Merely a rumor ran round. More than that nothing—until we heard that the Adventure had been lost, half a year later."

"I'm sorry," said Whitaker contritely. "It was thoughtless . . ."

"But that isn't all," Drummond objected, flourishing another paper. "See here—Exhibit B—came in a day or so later."

"Yes," Whitaker recognized the document. "I remember insisting on writing to you before we turned in that night."

He ran through the following communication:

Dear Drummond: I married here, tonight, Mary Ladislav. Please look out for her while I'm away. Make her an allowance out of my money—five hundred a month ought to be enough. I shall die intestate, and she'll get everything then, of course. She has your address and will communicate with you as soon as she gets settled down in town. Faithfully,
Hugh Morten Whitaker.

"If it hadn't been so much in character," commented Drummond, "I'd've thought the thing a forgery—or a poor joke. Knowing you as well as I did, however . . . I just sat back to wait for word from Mrs. Whitaker."

"And you never heard, except that once?" said Whitaker thoughtfully.

"Here's the sole and only evidence I ever got to prove that you had told the truth."

Drummond handed Whitaker a single, folded sheet of note-paper stamped with the name of the Waldorf-Astoria.

Dear Sir: I inclose herewith a bank-note for $500, which you will be kind enough to credit to the estate of your late partner and my late husband, Mr. Hugh Morten Whitaker.

Very truly yours,

Mary Ladislav Whitaker.

"Dated, you see, the day after the report of your death was published here."

"But why?" demanded Whitaker, dumfounded. "Why?"

"Mrs. Whitaker may have desired to marry again immediately. If I'm any judge of human nature, she argued that repayment of the loan wiped out every obligation. Feminine logic, perhaps, but—"

Whitaker nodded in somber abstraction.

"You may not," continued Drummond with light malice, "have been so generous, so considerate and chivalric, after all."

"Oh, cut that!" growled Whitaker, unhappily. "I never meant to come back."

SEEK GOLD IN CEMETERY

Murderer Believed to Have Hidden Large Sum in Burial Ground at Pomona, Cal.

One morning recently there was found a hole in the ground under a gigantic sycamore tree in the east end of the Pomona (Cal.) cemetery. The incident reopens a mystery which puzzled the people of this community ten years ago and was never solved. The mystery seems deeper than ever. One morning about ten years ago the cemetery caretaker discovered that somebody had dug a hole five feet long and two feet deep under a huge limb of the sycamore. When the incident was investigated it was learned that a man who had just finished serving 30 years in the penitentiary had been seen strolling through the cemetery a few days earlier. His history was traced and it was learned that the ex-convict had served time for killing an old miner, from whom, it is alleged, he had stolen $50,000 in gold.

The incident caused great excitement. During the next few weeks the cemetery was honeycombed with holes which were dug by treasure seekers.

The Penalty.

Little John is a confirmed sleepy-head. One morning when he was more than usually averse to getting up, his mother reasoned with him by calling his attention to the flowers.

"Why, the little flowers have been awake for hours," she told him, "and here you are at eight o'clock still in bed."

"Oh, well," was the reply. "Look what awful dirty beds they have, and how nice and clean mine is!"

"Then why did you?"

"Oh . . . I don't know. Chiefly because I caught Anne Presbury's sharp eyes on me in Melbourne—as I said a while ago. At the worst—if what you suggest has really happened—it's an open-and-shut case; no one's going to blame the woman; and it ought to be easy enough to secure a separation or divorce."

"You'd consent to that?" inquired Drummond intently.

"It's the only decent thing I can do."

Drummond laughed quietly. "If that's how you feel," he said, "I can only give you one piece of professional advice."

"What's that?"

"Find your wife."

After a moment of puzzled thought, Whitaker admitted ruefully: "You're right. There's the rub."

"I'm afraid you won't find it an easy job. I did my best without uncovering a trace of her."

"Did you try old Thurlow?"

"Her father died within eight weeks from the time you ran away. He left everything to charity, by the way. Unforgiving blighter."

"Well, there's her sister, Mrs. Pettit."

"Address," observed Drummond, dryly: "the American Embassy, Ber-

"Whitaker!" He gasped. "My God!"

lin. . . . Pettit's got some sort of a minor diplomatic berth over there."

"O the devil! . . . But, anyway, I can write."

He moved to a window and stared rudely at the Post Office Building for a time. "I'm going to find her just the same—if she still lives," he announced, turning back.

And when Whitaker does find her, what do you suppose happens?—considering that she may have remarried.

They Misinform the Measles.

In Japan the nursery is still protected from the inroads of measles and other infections by means of an inscription over the nursery door saying with exquisite urbanity "this child is not at home." In the Wellcome Historical Medical museum, says the London Lancet, a most fascinating exhibition is on view, illustrative of "Japanese charms, amulets, votive offerings and objects of medical interest," among which these nursery notices occupy an important place. Akin to these notices are the charms embodied as toys. A yellow tiger with a wagging head is now said to be a toy, but anciently it was a form of exorcism against palsy and numbness of the limbs.

Always Good Humored.

Gouverneur Morris was talking about the late Richard Harding Davis. "Davis was never at a loss for a joke," said Mr. Morris. "I dined with him at Crossroads farm one evening, the dinner being served by a new and very awkward waitress."

"The waitress, half way through the dinner, slipped with a tray, spilled a bottle of beer down Davis' neck."

"He said to her reproachfully, as he swabbed up the beer with his napkin:

"It was ginger ale, not beer, I asked for Gretchen."

Lost Art.

The four-year-old had just been re-proved at the table. He continued to talk cheerfully, though unanswered, to father. After some minutes of soliloquy he turned to mother and remarked:

"Your husband doesn't talk very much this noon, does he, mother?"—Harper's Magazine.

Yea, Verily!

"Hunting for contentment," observed the Peru philosopher, "is a good deal like hunting for a flea."

"What's the explanation?" queried the dense youth.

"When you get where it was you find it has just left," answered the philosophy dispenser.

Cynics and pessimists have a hard row to hoe in this busy old world.

"There's a Reason"

The Board of Supervisors in the regular October session passed the following resolution- Whereas, the so called question of Home Rule is to come before the voters of this County on Nov. 7th. Therefore be it resolved by the Board of Supervisors of Livingston County, that we are opposed to the adoption of Sec. 30 Article 8 of the constitution, the same being the so called Home Rule Amendment.

Yes I am a farmer and I'm not ashamed of it. On Election Day—so help me—I'd go Ten Miles in a Thunder Storm to hurl my Ballot against the Monstrous "Home Rule" Amendment that threatens to put a Dram Shop in my neighborhood; That Aims to disfranchise me by shutting me up in the country and not letting me vote on saloons in my own market; and then taxes me heavily to pay the tremendous Expenses that grow out of the saloon, (four State asylums, three state prisons two reform schools, countless jails, juries, court trials, sheriff's fees, boarding of prisoners, etc)

I'll put both feet on this Insulting Thing that says: The Quick headed Rubes won't see our Real Purpose. They'll vote for the "Home Rule" Noose by which they are to be Hanged. "Oh Will They?" You have Another Guess coming. Mr. Millionaire Brewer and Distiller.

HEAR THIS FARMER'S PROPHECY:

Wait a minute and I will tell you what is going to happen Nov. 7th. You've Lied so much, NOBODY that knows you. Believes One Word you say or print. Your Posters are dirty looking but false. 25,000 Fraudulent Names already on the Poll's lists. 50 men registered from one Little House. There's YOUR TIN TYPE. What self respecting Citizen can vote for the things SUCH MEN WANT?

Wets and Drys Together Will Vote No to Kill Home Rule. My wet neighbors say they will.

We're Going To Make Old Michigan Dry and End Foreign Sausage in Politics, and voting every Two Years on County office.

We're going to QUIT paying your Boozie Lords FIFTY MILLION a year in order to get TWO and a HALF MILLIONS a year in revenue BUM BUSINESS.

So Help Us God we'll save our Wives our Sons, and Daughters from your Vulture Tallons!

When You Count Our Votes, you'll think the Hayseeds and Cobwebs are on yourselves. You've asked more than Sane Citizens can grant. The "TRAFFIC" has bitten off so big a Chunk this time that it will choke in swallowing it. RAUS MIT EM!

When You Are In Need Of A Coat - There Is

Three Things to Consider,
STYLE - QUALITY - PRICE

Style is the most important, for no one one wants to wear a garment unless it possesses Real Style. Without good quality of materials (fabric, lining, canvass, buttons and trimmings) and most of all, without good quality of workmanship, a coat will not retain its lines. If a garment loses its lines, it has lost its Style.

With the majority of women, price must be taken into consideration. If you select a RED FERN Garment, you are assured that its style is authoritative; the quality is guaranteed by the maker; and the modest price will both surprise and delight you.

Come in. It will be a pleasure to show you.

EARL R. FINCH

Democratic Candidate for County Commissioner of Schools

Mr. Earl R. Finch, Democratic candidate for County Commissioner of Schools, is a graduate of the Central State Normal College at Mt. Pleasant and has had a special course at Columbia University in pedagogy and school administration. He has had three years experience in district schools and seven years experience as principal and superintendent of high schools, the last three years of which has been spent in Fowlerville.

Mr. Finch is thoroughly in earnest and up to date in his profession to which he devotes and will devote, if elected County Commissioner of Schools his entire time. There will be no side issues with him. He is of pleasing address and manner, keen of perception, quick of decision, easily approached, and ever ready to extend a helping hand to teacher or student. If elected, he will inject into the schools of Livingston County a new and greater enthusiasm than heretofore. His thorough knowledge of school work and vivacity is an inspiration to all teachers with whom he comes in contact. He is not asking for a third term and will not. If we hope to keep our schools abreast of the times, we should elect Mr. Finch.

MR. VOTER!

If you will examine the record of Eugene A. Stowe, Judge of Probate, who is a candidate for re-election, you will find three things that stand out prominently: SERVICE, EFFICIENCY and RELIABILITY.

He was formerly a successful farmer, is a good business man and has a thorough knowledge of probate law. He is therefore peculiarly fitted for the duties of Probate Judge. His knowledge of human nature enables him to handle the juvenile court and mother's pension matters judiciously and carefully.

He guards the rights of widows and orphans and has the ability to council and guide executors, administrators and guardians; gives you with pleasure, legal counsel on probate matters and the benefit of his business judgement free of charge. That's Service.

He is considered very proficient in construing wills and determining inheritances, and applies business methods and principles to a public office, saving money for the estates and county. That's Efficiency.

He gives his personal attention to the details of the office, his decisions are seldom appealed from, and in those cases in which appeals have been taken his decisions have never been reversed by the Supreme Court. That's Reliability.

A good word and your vote on

November 7th

is earnestly requested and will be greatly appreciated
