R. R. Ordered to Improve Service

Michigan Livestock shippers are jubilant over what they believe to be a signal victory for them in their long drawn out contest with the carriers. A partial decision from the state railroad commission, Tuesday, is all in their favor they say.

One of the important points of contest was the furnishing of two single deck cars by the railroads when a double deck car was asked for, with the resulting charge of two minimums by the railroads. On this point the commission held that railroads must furnish double deck cars when called for, or if they elect to substitute two single decks they shall only charge one minimum.

The commission withheld further order on the livestock case, and demanded that railroads improve their service to shippers. The order is effective March 1. Virtually every railroad in the State was made a party respondent in the livestock hearing. Traffic commissioner R. R. Darwin of Lansing is handling the shippers' case.

"I've got a safe full of thankful letters testifying to the mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment for old and running sores, eczema, salt rheum, ulcers, sore nipples, broken breast, itching scalp and skin, blind, bleeding and itching piles."

Orders Are Orders.

The new doorkeeper at the museum turnstile had learned a book of rules by heart before taking over the job.

"Here, sir, you must leave your umbrella at the door," he said to a visitor who had failed to hand over that article.

"But I haven't an umbrella," the visitor pleaded.

"Then go back and get one," said the keeper. "No one is allowed to pass in here unless he leaves his umbrella at the door."

Mike's Foolish Question.

The talk topic at a recent social session turned to the propensity that some people have for asking foolish questions when this happy little incident was recalled by Harry Fox, the well-known actor:

One Sunday morning last summer the weather was so exceedingly hot in Pat's happy home that he took himself out to the back porch for his Sabbath shave.

While Pat was performing the operation of amputating his bristles, his next-door neighbor, Mike, snatched out on the back porch adjoining.

"Shure, Pat," pleasantly remarked Mike, leaning on the partition railing, "how comes it that yez are shavin' on the outside this mornin'?"

"Begorra, Mike, an how can Ol help it?" responded Pat, his eyes merrily twinkling through a mass of lather. "Do yez think for wan minute that Ol'm fur-lin-ol?"—Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

USE CUFF HEM ON NEW SKIRTS

Parisian Designers of Recent Models Have Introduced a Novel Feature.

EFFECT IS THAT OF FRAME

Designs Seen So Far Have Been Charmingly Effective—Many Ways in Which It Can Be Arranged to Get Best Results—Blouses Without Belts.

New York.—An actually new feature of fashion which the materials reflect, or possibly instigate, is the use of a turned-up hem, called a cuff hem, at the bottom of skirts, made of brilliant colors or plain fabrics, with an Egyptian or Aztec design printed on them. There are many kinds of materials for these borders, and a woman can frame herself in, as it were, by bordering her skirt, cuffs, collar and waistline.

All artists know the value of a frame. They realize that any arrangement of lines and colors needs a strong outline around it to co-operate its parts into a pleasing whole, and it is the artists who have constantly impressed upon women that their costumes need some one strong note going around the figure. At last comes the border, to do this very thing. You yourself know the difference between an unframed and a framed picture. You know what striking character is given to a small design of any kind by taking a bit of dark paper or a crayon and putting a line around it.

Now, exactly this thing is being done in fashion. A woman will be framed in with a sharp line of some dark or brilliant color. It need not be broad. A slender line does the work in an effective way. On Shantung, tussor, jersey silk and muslins, there will be a sharp, distinct frame made through a border of the same or another material in marked coloring.

Where It Is Most Effective.

It is more important to put this striking frame around a gown which has designs on it, than around one made of plain fabric. Take, for instance, the new Shantung with the bold, crudely-colored Egyptian figures on it, and also that new weave of georgette crepe that the specialists are putting out, which has its white surface covered with quantities of small, flying birds in the Chinese design, all brilliantly colored; both these fabrics would make gowns appear fragmentary and unfinished—sketchy, as it were—if they did not have a frame of black, dark blue or dull red at all the edges to hold the design together.

This is a very new bit of millinery from Paris, which is a different version of the high hat from the one we know. It is all white, and the feathers rise to an amazing height.

Flying birds that have gone through all the art of China, and quivering butterflies flying in flocks, have been taken up by the designers in different ways. They are printed on the surface in a remarkable manner, in lines, in circles, and again as fragmentary bits of color, irregularly placed.

Even though the house of Callot uses materials with quivering butterflies in blue, black and yellow floating over the surface, such a material is not for every woman. One must have many gowns in the wardrobe to take possession of one of this variety, and, before putting money into these expensive fabrics, it is well to be quite sure that the face and figure can carry off so startling a motif as flying birds and butterflies.

Blouses Minus Sleeves.

The kind of Russian blouse which is kept in fashion for the spring has an exceedingly ornamental belt placed at the normal waistline. To begin with this lifting of the belt is a change from what we have been wearing. In the medieval styles which have influenced us greatly for the last six months, there has been an omission of the belt, or it has been placed at the hips; but the whole tendency of dress, as we get it from France this month, is toward emphasizing the normal waistline for the street and the empire waistline for the house.

Mind you, the Russian blouse, or any kind of bodice that has an outside pep-pleum, does not carry a belt that confines the material at the waistline and into the measurements of the figure; it carries a belt that is even in outline but merely takes in a bit of the fullness at the place where the waistline is arranged on the figure itself. This is an interesting development in clothes and should not be missed by the woman who watches the small things.

No Sleeves to Blouses.

Another interesting feature is that these Russian blouses are without sleeves. This is nothing new, but its accentuation in these late styles shows that we will probably keep to the jumper effect. Even in house gowns there are sleeves of fine, tea-tinted muslin with Byzantine embroidery at the cuffs, and a bit of a yoke, or rather, a line of the same material coming above the oblong flatness of the neckline. These sleeves and this piece at the neck are not detached from the blouse; they are part of it.

The wide headband is of violet-colored straw made of narrow strips lapping each other. The daring, stiffened crown is of violet satin, piped at the outer edge.

There are also blouses made of brilliant red Shantung which are cut well out at the armholes, and rather high at the neck in the medieval line, and show an underpiece of black satin that comes well out over the armholes. From this satin encircling the wrist, drop the full peasant sleeves with their vivid embroidery.

Revival of Smocking.

Since the advent of high priced and artistic evening coats, which are fitted in at the shoulders through elaborate smocking done with silk threads in the same color as the velvet or satin material, there has come about a revival of this primitive style of hand-work. It has been used for three or four years on that wide assortment of so-called garden costumery that took women's fancy, but, as a means of ornamentation, it was not used on high priced, elaborate garments until Lanvin and Cheruit took it up for velvet evening capes. Lanvin went from smocking to quilting, and it is rather strange that America has not caught up with this trick of fashion, for we were once known as a nation of quilters and our quilting bees, as a method of social diversion, were incorporated into our history.

The French are still using quilting as a method of ornamenting coats and one-piece frocks. A satin street suit, made with severity, has its hem, its belt, and the wrist part of its long, tight sleeve finished in machine quilting done in coarse, black silk thread.

Sports skirts of white jersey have quilted hems of scarlet, and quilted kangaroo pockets hanging from the sides of the three-quarter coats. This stitchey rivals smocking on the French gowns, and both of these methods of ornamenting a plain garment should suggest to the woman who sews at home, an excellent way out of an ever present difficulty.

GENERAL FUNSTON DIES SUDDENLY

ACUTE INDIGESTION TAKES COMMANDER OF TROOPS ON MEXICAN BORDER.

PERSHING NOW IN COMMAND

Will Have Charge of Movement of National Guard Ordered Home Recently.

San Antonio, Tex. Major General Frederick Funston commanding the southern department of the United States army and one of the leading figures in the country's military history since his capture of Aguinaldo while commanding a Kansas volunteer regiment in the Philippines, died of acute indigestion on February 19. He collapsed in a hotel soon after dinner with friends and did not regain consciousness before his death, a short time afterward.

General Funston had been at his office all day, with no sign of ill health. During dinner he seemed in his usual good spirits and after the meal began to play with a child of one of the guests. He fell over unconscious before anyone could reach him. General Funston was 51 years old.

Maj. Gen. Frederick Funston.

Major-General Pershing, who has been in command of the El Paso district since the withdrawal of the American expedition from Mexico, automatically succeeds to the duties of commander of the southern department until an appointment has been made. Recently made a major-general, he is the only officer of that rank now assigned to the department.

As immediate successor to the command, General Pershing will have charge of the many remaining units of the National Guard ordered home from the border. It is expected that this movement, plans for which were worked out by General Funston as virtually his last military duty, will go forward without interruption.

ROAD BUILDING DISCUSSED

Highway Officials of State Get New Ideas at U. of M.

Ann Arbor—If there is anything wrong with the roads of the state it will receive a thorough airing at the third annual course in highway engineering given at the University of Michigan this week. This course, which comprises a series of lectures by prominent engineers from all over the country, is held for the benefit of road officials of the state.

Road officials claim that the heavy trucks coming into general use make it impossible to keep roads in repair, and the agitation has resulted in the introduction of bills at Lansing limiting the weight of trucks which may be used on improved roads.

The various laboratories of the highway department of the engineering college were opened to the visitors who wished to study tests as an aid in the selection and use of roadmaking substances. They found there every kind of material used in the building of roads, for since this department has been in existence city engineers, county, township and state officials have submitted samples. From these samples data have been compiled which has resulted in saving in the cost of road construction.

STATE TO VOTE ON "DRY" AMENDMENT

VOTE HOWEVER WILL NOT AFFECT STATUS OF ONE ADOP-TED LAST NOVEMBER.

BUDGET REFORM IS URGED

Sleeper Recommends More Up-to-Date Method of Handling Finances of Our State.

(From Our Special Correspondent.) Lansing.

Whether Michigan shall be "bone dry" or whether she shall be moistened with limited shipments will be decided by the people of the state at the spring election, April 2.

This unlooked for decision was made by the sub-committee of the joint house and senate liquor committee. The voters of the state can decide for themselves whether the state is to be bone dry or moist.

Whether a majority of the people of Michigan voted last November merely to wipe out the saloons and still enjoy a limited use of liquor by means of importation, or whether they voted for the absolute death of liquor has been an issue in the legislature since the assembly of that body. The subject has been discussed almost continuously and the claims have been sharply defined. Petitions from supporters of both sides signed by thousands of petitioners, have been received almost daily. Members have had piles of letters on the subject. Churches and church organizations, ministers and dry workers and leaders have written and petitioned on both sides. The result has been that instead of throwing light on the people's attitude, the agitation has merely defined the issue.

The defeat of a "bone dry" constitutional amendment will in no wise effect the standing of the prohibition amendment adopted last November. This will continue in force. If a "bone dry" amendment is passed by the people, it will merely add, in effect a prohibition on shipping liquor into the state or having liquor in one's possession.

Racing Bill Pigeonholed.

The house had a lively time over Rep. Arthur Wood's bill to prevent the publication of entries and results of horse races. Rep. Wood passed the lie to Rep. Ari Woodruff when the latter said Wood had said that he would get his picture on the first page of the papers if this bill passed. Wood declared that his bill was aimed at handbook betting in cities, but Rep. Toepel declared that its only effect would be to keep Michigan papers from printing entries and results of races, while outside papers containing them could come in. The bill was practically killed by being referred to the judiciary committee. Many of the members were fearful that the bill, by specific exemption of trotting races from its scope, was giving official recognition to the racing game.

Pure Food Bills.

Rep. Taube, of Detroit, has introduced two important food bills. One would put under the food department every sort of establishment handling foods and making infractions of sanitary laws subject to heavy penalties. The other would compel cold storage houses to be registered and have annual licenses, as keep track of the entry of every package into cold storage and to stamp it with the date. They also would be inspected every 30 days and be limited to five months' keeping food, in storage. The food department could not grant them more than 60 days over-time on this limit and goods once in and out of storage could not be returned to storage again.

Presidential Primary Law Repealed.

The house made last week notable in its record by passing the bill to repeal the presidential preference primary law, passed at the special sessions in 1912. After some "kidding" over the race last spring between William Alden Smith and Henry Ford, the house voted 77 to 7 for the repeal.

Salary Raises Sidetracked.

The senate has sidetracked the proposal to amend the constitution so as to provide for $5,000 salaries for the secretary of state, auditor general and state treasurer. The senators believed that if they submitted it the people would vote it down.

Other Proposed Laws.

Rep. Leighton proposes in another bill that witness fees be raised so that those witnesses testifying in courts of record be paid $3 a day and witnesses in justice courts be paid $2 a day.

Special Message on Budget System.

Gov. Albert E. Sleeper and the members of the legislature still have to come to an agreement as to how Michigan is going to acquire a budget system for its financial affairs.

With the senate holding the DeLand Roberts budget bill in committee and the house holding in another committee Rep. Foote's bill for a budget commission to study the subject, Gov. Sleeper has come out in favor of a thorough study of the budget problem and the passage of a law creating such a system, based on the report of investigators. He has sent in a special message to both houses urging that a commission of inquiry be named.

Many of the legislators are of the opinion that they are just as competent now to pass a bill providing a budget as they would be after hearing from an investigating commission on the subject.

The governor has obtained from Auditor General Fuller, who handles most of the state's financial matters, a statement which backs up the governor's position and has incorporated it in his message to the legislature on the subject. In his statement, Mr. Fuller says:

"I am in favor of adopting any policy or system that would in any way reduce the cost of the government of the state and not impair or interfere with the proper performance of the several necessary functions of government, and it may be that the budget system will reduce the amount expended each year, but as a budget system would materially change the present system of maintaining the state institutions, departments, boards and commissions, it will be necessary to amend or repeal several of the existing laws before a budget system will be operative.

"The budget system would necessarily include a provision that funds be drawn from the state treasury and should remain in the treasury until such time as they were needed for the payment of claims. A clause in the law to the effect that funds should remain in the treasury until needed would not be sufficient without specifically conferring upon some official the authority to determine the necessity for drawing the funds. If the funds were drawn from the treasury as the law now provides, the object of the budget system would be defeated; therefore it will be necessary to amend or repeal the present accounting laws of the state.

"Michigan has outgrown the system of appropriating money which was adopted in the infancy of the state and which has been continued. It is not a businesslike proposition to deposit state funds in the treasuries of the state institutions. There should be but one state treasury and the funds of the state should remain in the treasury until it is necessary to pay claims against the state, and it would be advisable to adopt a budget system in order that the present method of expending state funds may be placed on a business basis. But before the budget system becomes a part of our fiscal policy I would suggest that the system in force in other states be investigated and the operation of same be noted so that the defects, if any, may be avoided in the law that may be adopted in Michigan.

"I believe that a committee should be appointed to make a thorough examination of the budget system in force in other states and to report to the legislature at this or next session; and it would also be advisable to have a committee examine the present laws with a view to removing the legal obstacles from the path of the budget system that may be adopted."

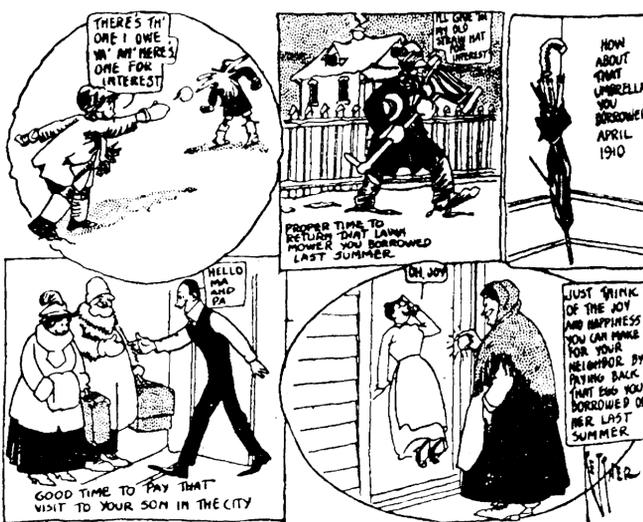

These views are thoroughly indorsed by the governor in his remarks appended to the letter of the auditor general, the message of the governor concluding:

"I therefore recommend that legislation be passed by the legislature for the appointment of a commission to be composed of men of high standing and ability, and who are not members of the legislature to examine thoroughly into the matters I have herein indicated and to report if practicable during the present session of the legislature, and if not, previous to the next session of the legislature."

Would Curtail "Bargain" Sales.

Merchants of the "fly by night" variety are to be exiled from Michigan if a bill introduced by Rep. Warner, of Ionia, becomes law. The bill requires that any one conducting a bankrupt sale, damage sale, closing out sale or any of the other bargain varieties of sales, must obtain a license from the city or village clerk. In the license application information must be given as to the reason for the sale, and an inventory, as well as the name of the person or firm from whom the goods were purchased, date of delivery, etc. False statements would make the offender liable to a five-year prison term.

U-BOAT CAMPAIGN HAS LOST ITS STING

TONNAGE SUNK BY GERMAN SUBMARINES SEEMS TO BE DIMINISHING.

FALLS SHORT OF WORK SET

Was Expected to Stop All Shipping But Sea Traffic Is Moving As Before.

New York—Predictions that Germany's ruthless U-boat campaign begun February 1 will fail are predicted upon the performances reported. The undertaking was eventually to stop all sea traffic, enemy and neutral, in the great new war zone, and in the meantime to sink shipping at the rate of 1,000,000 tons a month, or 33,000 a day.

The Germans have failed to approach the mark they set. Sea traffic is moving almost as before. But what seems really significant is that the toll of merchantmen, after having risen rapidly from 10 vessels of 13,000 tons February 1 to 14 vessels of 44,457 tons February 6, has been steadily falling since.

In the first eight days of February there were sunk 62 ships, aggregating 138,200 tons. In the next eight days there were sunk 42 ships, aggregating 87,450 tons.

The conclusion seems irresistible that it has done its very worst. The unknown factor in the case is the mortality of U-boats. That is unreported. We have only a record of their deadliness which appears to be diminishing.

LECTURES FOR THE FARMERS

M. A. C. Has Special Course Arranged for Week of March 5.

East Lansing—Moving pictures, demonstrating the use of farm machinery and operations involved in the production of produce and stock will be employed by the Michigan Agricultural college during the week beginning March 5, to force home the lessons of the tabloid college course for farmers. Lectures by well-known men and actual demonstrations of improved methods will also be used.

One day will be devoted by the college to each of the main agricultural subjects, so that a farmer who hasn't time to attend for a week, but can come for a day, will be able to pick a topic that will be of most value to him. Tuesday will be given over to soils and crops; Wednesday will be dairy day; Thursday has been selected for stock, and Friday will be divided between horticulture and fruit growing.

BASE HOSPITAL AT FOOD CITY

Secretary Baker Hints That One May Be Located There If War Comes.

Battle Creek—That Battle Creek will probably be selected as a location for one of 40 base hospitals in event of war, was evidenced by a letter received from Secretary of War Newton D. Baker by the local branch of the Red Cross society.

"I think, without a doubt your city would be chosen because of its facilities to handle such work," says Mr. Baker.

In case of the city being chosen by the war department, the sanitarium villa at Gogus lake, the hotel at Gull lake and other like buildings will be utilized to handle the 1,000 to 2,000 patients.

GUARD TO BE MUSTERED OUT

Death of General Funston Will Not Affect Demobilization.

Washington—Coincident with the reopening of the American embassy in Mexico the big army of national guardsmen that was concentrated on the border on account of bandit activities, will be in process of dissolution. Orders were issued by the war department directing General Funston to begin the immediate demobilization of all the guard units remaining in border camps, and it is expected that the last troop train will be on its way north by March 7.

It was at first feared that the death of General Funston would delay the departure of the troops but in line with this capable commander's custom practically all the details for the movement of the troops had already been worked out.

Michigan troops still stationed on the border and affected by the new order, are the Thirty-third infantry, troops A and B of cavalry, of Detroit and South Haven, Batteries A and B of Lansing, the signal company of Ypsilanti, and the engineer company of Calumet.

For eight months, almost to a day, the national guardsmen have done their tour of duty for varying lengths of time at the Mexican line, supporting General Pershing.

In all 150,000 guardsmen made the trip to the border, there are 36,000 there to be affected by the last ordering home. There will still remain on the border about 50,000 regulars to continue the work of protecting the line against Mexican raids.

GUARD WOULD AVOID WINTER

Prefer Now to Remain on Border Until Spring Sets In.

El Paso, Tex.—Pending definite orders to move, Michigan guards are setting the departure of the regiment between the dates of March 10 and April 1. The announcement that a special effort will be made to have all troops out by March 7 is taken with a grain of salt by observers of past procedure in troop movements.

Michigan has about 2,000 men here and one part of them could leave in 24 hours so far as paper work is concerned. It may be the physical examinations will be taken here, as some other units have done, in which case nothing would remain to be done at Fort Wayne but check up property and pay off, a matter of four or five days.

Arrival in Michigan about April 1 would satisfy a large majority of the men. Now they are certain of going, a matter of two or three weeks more would not count. Newspapers and personal letters telling of the severe cold weather in Michigan have caused a general desire to bask in Texas sunshine while March blizzards prevail in the north.

MONEY ORDERS TO CUBA CUT

Government Suspends Service to All Points Except Havana.

Washington—Suspension of money order service between the United States and all postoffices in Cuba, except the city of Havana, was announced by Postmaster General Burleson, at the request of the Cuban government.

"The postmaster-general's order," said an announcement, "instructs postmasters to suspend payment of money orders issued after February 17, at any office in Cuba except Havana and to refuse to draw orders on any office in Cuba except Havana. Havana alone will continue to issue and pay orders on or from the United States."

SEVEN YEARS AGO AND TO-DAY

Then He Had 6 Mules, $660 Cash and Some Equity—Today He Has $20,000 and Owns 2 Sections of Land.

The story of the wealth of Western Canada cannot be told too often; the truth will bear repeating. And in telling of it it is hoped that advantage will be taken of the great opportunities that Western Canada offers by those who are today struggling for a mere existence, by those who are occupying lands, high in price and high in rentals.

From grain, live stock and dairying in 1916, there was a return from the three Prairie Provinces of $258,000,000, or an increase of four million dollars over 1915, and 118 million dollars over 1914.

A prominent Trust Company says: Some of our contract holders have paid off their purchase money on lands bought a year ago out of this year's crop, and what one man can do another can do. Thousands of Southern Alberta farmers harvested an average of 40 to 50 bushels of No. 1 wheat to the acre. These farmers have more real money to spend than any other people on the American Continent. J. D. Johnston of Bladsworth, Sask., left Johnson County, Kansas, seven years ago. When he left he had $660 in cash, six mules, some settler's effects and an equity in some prairie land. Mr. Johnston tells his story:

"In my seven years' residence in Saskatchewan, I have raised seven good crops the value of this year's crop alone being Twenty thousand dollars. I now own Two Sections of improved land, 17 horses and mules, 40 cattle, a large steam thrasher and a full line of farm machinery."

"We have made five trips to Kansas, one trip to the Pacific Coast and return. We have enjoyed the society of a class of people than whom none better can be found. The climate is healthful and invigorating. The soil is fertile and productive, well adapted for the production of the best quality and large yields of all cereals and vegetables, wild and tame grasses. It is an excellent stock country."

The question of taxes is one that carries with it considerable weight. Coming from a man like Mr. Johnston the same weight should be given the answer. He says:

The tax system especially commends itself to me as being simple, reasonable and just. All direct taxes are levied on the land at its appraised market value, exclusive of improvements thereon. No tax on personal property. This tends to discourage the holding of lands by speculators who prevent its cultivation or improvement, hoping to realize profits from the enhanced value of their holdings due to the industrial activities of the bona fide settlers. It tends to encourage the settlers to rear substantial improvements upon their land without paying a penalty in the form of taxation therefor. It encourages the raising of live stock and the possession of other personal property necessary to the development of the country.

"The laws are well and economically administered. Citizens of the Dominion vote on election of members of parliament and members of the Provincial assembly, while on questions of local improvements and school matters the franchise is exercised by ratepayers, irrespective of citizenship.

The people are enterprising, school facilities are good. Taxation, just and reasonable. Military service voluntary. Patriotic fervor unsurpassed, law and order the rule, and crime the rare exception. It is the land of banks, schools, telephones, grain elevators, broad, fertile acres, good climate, good citizenship and abounding in opportunities for the industrious man or woman of good morals. In short, the land of promise and fulfillment. I know of no better anywhere."

Had Not Rained Downright.

A gentle sprinkling of rain damped the ground and caused the plowman to leave his work. When his master saw him at home and learned the reason he advised him not to leave his work in future for such a trifling affair. "Wait till it rained downright."

A day or two later the plowman was caught in a heavy downpour, his clothes being well saturated when he left work.

"Oh, my good man, you should have left sooner."

"I should, but you said I was not to come before it rained downright, and it has not rained downright yet, for it was aslant all day."—London Tit-Bits.

"I am all right. I'm resting, dear, and thinking. Don't fret about me. When I feel able, I will come down to you."

"But you are no wife," he countered. "Dear, you are cruel to me!" "I think it's you who would be cruel to yourself, dear heart."

Rev. W. H. Warner, Myersville, Md., writes: "My trouble was scientific. My back was affected and took the form of lumbago. I had other symptoms showing my kidneys were at fault, so I took Dodd's Kidney Pills. They were the means of saving my life. I write to say that your medicine restored me to perfect health."
