Reminiscences Of Putnam

A treat that will be fully appreciated by all our readers.

The following letter from Mr. James T. Eaman of Detroit, formerly one of Putnam's prominent and highly respected citizens, fully explains itself. We anticipate great pleasure in reading the promised sketches, and await the first installment with what patience we can command.

Thank you, Mr. Eaman.

Dear Editor of the Dispatch:

Your recent request of me to offer an occasional contribution to the columns of your paper reminds me of the earlier days of Putnam and Pinckney, and I am at once pleased and interested, grieved and disappointed. I am pleased with your purpose in wishing to record and hand down to the rising generation, some account of the early settlement and development of the community in which they live, so well as to give them some of the pleasures and hardships of those early days. I am grieved and disappointed because I am unable to do so. I have no recollection of the early days of Putnam and Pinckney, and I am unable to give you any account of them. I am sorry that I am unable to do so, but I am sure that you will understand my position.

Chevrolet

Greatest value in America

We mean just that. Close examination of this car will prove conclusively that the Chevrolet and the General Motors Company are giving you, Mr. Buyer, more dollar for dollar value than any other company now producing motor cars.

SCHOOL NOTES

The Seniors are working hard on their annual play. The date is June 6; the title, Deacon Dibbs. This promises to be a big success; in fact, best ever.

The various English classes throughout the school are writing themes discussing the cigarette habit.

We have several new beginners in the primary department.

Two ball games this week, Brighton and Howell.

The Seniors are having a box social Friday night at the home of Zita Harris.

The Pinckney High school has had a very successful year. The high team won the county championship in the sport of basketball.

memory by covering them. If I had persisted in keeping one of the half-dozen dresses that I start in my youthful days, what a fruitful source of information it would be in this time of need.

Nevertheless, and in spite of all handicaps, I am inclined to give you such aid as I can in carrying out your purpose, by giving you, from time to time, brief sketches of some of the pioneers of Putnam of whom I had personal knowledge and acquaintance. It is certainly giving some idea of the hardships and hardships with which they had to contend in their early days. I am sorry that I am unable to do so, but I am sure that you will understand my position.

MEMORIAN
On a nearby sunny hillside where the murmuring water flows,
And the birds make sweetest music all the day,
There we lay our darling mother in her last long sweet repose,
To await the trumpet's call on judgment day.
Oh, we miss you, darling Mother, but we do not wish you back,
For we know you're safe with Jesus in the light;
And we all will try to meet you on that bright and shining shore,
When we bid this wicked world a last good-night.

CARD OF THANKS
We desire to express our sincere thanks to all neighbors and friends for the many beautiful flowers, and their assistance and sympathy during the last illness and death of our beloved wife and mother.

Prohibition
Edited by M. E. S.
Washington, April 28.—Returning from St. Louis on the Pennsylvania railroad one day this week I had a most important interview with a brakeman. As the train left Pittsburgh at 9:10 o'clock in the morning a drunken man staggered into the car. The brakeman was seated alongside of me, asserting the tickets he gathered for the conductor. He turned to me as the inebriated man lurches past us and said: "That is what some people call personal liberty. But that kind of liberty is soon to be ended. At last the people of the United States have become properly 'wised up' on the subject of booze." "Then you think that prohibition has come to stay?" I asked. "I know it has," he replied. "There isn't a chance that the people will ever go back to the old condition. Why, we've got a conductor on one of our runs who went down to West Virginia the other day and who asked some of his friends down there how prohibition was working out there. They told him that if it were admitted to a vote tomorrow the vote in favor of prohibition would be four times what it was when it was originally put in force." The latest count from the vote of April 7 gives Michigan prohibition a 70,000 majority against 68,000 in Nov. 1917.

THIS WOMAN SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, One of Thousands of Such Cases.

Black River Falls, Wis.—"As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation, I cannot say enough in praise of it. I suffered from organic troubles and my side hurt me so I could hardly be up from my bed, and I was unable to do my housework. I had the best doctors in Eau Claire and they wanted me to have an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me so I did not need the operation, and I am telling all my friends about it."—Mrs. A. W. BINZER, Black River Falls, Wis.

It is just such experiences as that of Mrs. Binzer that has made this famous root and herb remedy a household word from ocean to ocean. Any woman who suffers from inflammation, ulceration, displacements, backache, nervousness, irregularities or "the blues" should not rest until she has given it a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. "As You Were" Defined. A British officer who has just returned from German East Africa tells an amusing story of the Askari recruits whom he was training. Mistakes in the drill were frequent, and in consequence, "As you were" became an order rapped out with increasing severity of expression. Later the officer overheard a conversation between two natives in the squad. "What does our officer mean by 'As you were'?" inquired one Askari.

REVISED COVENANT LEAGUE OF NATIONS MADE PUBLIC IN U.S.

REDRAFT OF FIRST OUTLINE
MADE AFTER CONSULTATION
WITH 13 NEUTRAL NATIONS.

SUMMARY OF ARTICLES GIVEN

Document Does Not Create a Super
State; League Must Depend
On Free Consent of Its Component States.

Paris.—The revised covenant of the League of Nations went before a plenary session of the peace conference Monday for final action.

A semi-official analysis of the revised covenant says the re-draft was made after consultation with 13 neutral nations, and examination of criticisms coming from both sides of the Atlantic. The resulting document, it is declared, does not create a super-state; the league must depend upon the free consent of its component states.

The preamble provides that all nations signing the covenant will adhere to its terms.

Article 1. Names the states which are to be members of the League. This list includes all the nations that were at war with Germany and such neutrals as are invited to become members.

Article 2. States that an assembly, a council and secretariat shall be named.

Article 3. Provides that the assembly shall consist of representatives of the members of the league. Each nation to have one vote.

Article 4. Provides that the council

Four other members are to be named later.

Articles 5. Provides for majority rule at council and assembly meetings.

Article 6. The permanent secretariat shall be established at the seat of the league, but the name of this official is not yet made public.

Article 7. Names the seat of the league as Geneva. Council may change this at any time.

Article 8. Provides for reduction of armaments.

Article 9. Establishes a permanent commission to report to the council.

Article 10. Binds members of the league to respect and protect other members from aggression.

Article 11. Any threat of war will concern all members of the league.

Article 12. All disputes must be submitted to the council. War must not be resorted to until 3 months after award of council.

Article 13. Members of League agree to adhere to decisions of award made by council.

Article 14. Permanent court of international justice to be established.

Article 15. The council, when authorized by the assembly, may make public the whole facts in any case. Members of League may take action to uphold justice, if council cannot agree.

Article 16. Any member declaring war contrary to terms of the covenant shall be an outcast. Other members are to sever all trade relations. Provides military measures to be taken against such nation.

Article 17. In disputes between non-members of league, parties are to be invited to join league for the purpose of settlement of dispute. Council to take action to prevent hostilities.

Article 18. Treaties must be registered with secretariat and made public.

Article 19. Inapplicable treaties may be reconsidered.

Article 20. Covenant supercedes all other treaties.

Article 21. Nothing in covenant shall be deemed to affect the validity of the international engagements, such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe doctrine for securing the maintenance of peace.

Article 22. For colonies to be ruled by "Advanced Nations" temporarily. Those sufficiently developed may become independent states. Permanent commission to examine reports of mandatories ruling colonies.

Article 23. League members to maintain fair conditions for labor.

Article 24. Bureaus already established by treaties now in force shall be under direction of league.

Article 25. Pledge development of Red Cross.

Article 26. Provides for amendments to covenant.

MY HEAD!

When the head feels thick or aches, when one feels all out-of-sorts—perhaps a coated tongue—it is the signal that poisons are accumulating in the system, and should be cleaned out at once.

Auto-intoxication can be best ascribed to our own neglect or carelessness. When the organs fail in the discharge of their duties, the putrefactive germs set in and generate toxins—actual poisons, which fill one's own body.

Sleepiness after meals, flushing of the face, extreme lassitude, biliousness, dizziness, sick headache, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, offensive breath, anemia, loss of weight and muscular power, decrease of vitality or lowering of resistance to infectious diseases, disturbance of the eye, dyspepsia, indigestion, gastritis, many forms of catarrh, asthma, ear affections and allied ailments result from auto-intoxication or self-poisoning.

Take castor oil, or procure at the drug store, a pleasant vegetable laxative, called Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, composed of May-apple, aloes and jalap.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Women Served.

In September, 1917, the British war office proclaimed it needed 10,000 women before the end of October for a Woman's Auxiliary corps for home and overseas service. Mrs. Charles Watson, sister of Sir Auckland and Sir Eric Geddes, was made first chief controller. About 10,000 women a month were recruited thereafter, enrolled for the duration of the war. They replaced men in England and France, cooking, laundering, driving automobiles, doing stenographic work, etc. Other British women served in the Women's Royal Naval service, "Wrens," and in the woman's division of the Royal Flying corps, "Penguins." These women form part of the British military and naval forces and are subject to military discipline.

The frankness with which a seven-year-old girl refers to herself as an old maid is certainly amusing.

The Wrong Office.
An absent-minded professor out of a job got one temporarily as a book agent.

"Permit me to show you a new dictionary of the English language," he said to the first man on whom he called.

"But I don't speak the English language," impatiently responded the man, who happened to be a busy lawyer.

"I—I beg your pardon," hastily apologized the absent-minded professor as he backed out.—Boston Transcript.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one application is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is good under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

VERDICT $4,075

AUTOMOBILE DAMAGE SUIT

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 2, 1919. —In the circuit court today the jury brought in a verdict of $4,075 against J. Allen Snyder to recover for injuries sustained by Frederick Uithoven as a result of an automobile accident in which it is claimed that Frederick Uithoven has suffered injuries of a serious nature. J. Allen Snyder was insured in one of the small insurance companies which gave him protection for $800 for liability and he will have to pay the amount of $3,275.

As the result of this verdict automobile owners are much interested in the policy of insurance they take. The Big Mutual Automobile Insurance Company of Howell protects the owner of the car against damage claims made against him above $25 up to $5,000. During the five seasons that the company has been operating no member has had to pay to exceed $25 upon a claim, as the policy has been sufficient to take care of large claims.

Automobile salesmen are taking more interest in insurance and are recommending the Citizens Mutual Automobile Insurance Company of Howell, as it has a large reserve fund of $65,000 and monthly income sufficient to pay $15,000 of claims per month.

This is the only mutual that has so large a reserve fund to meet the serious losses.

Beauty Hides a Multitude of Virtues in the Maxwell

THIS fine beauty conceals the virtues—not the "shin"—of the Maxwell. It is a car of the Maxwell type, a car of the Maxwell type, a car of the Maxwell type.

In the Maxwell you find a sound, rugged, compact, over-the-top chassis that now has a record manufacturing run of 10,000—all alike.

For in five years the number of chassis have come out of the eight great Maxwell plants—each built on the same pattern; each one better than the last.

To date more than 100 improvements, big and little, have been made in the Maxwell. The plan is to improve and improve—but not to change in any way the original chassis.

Thus you'd understand why a Maxwell never quits running; never grows wobbly and loose with use; never forces the garage man to send you a staggering bill for a mechanical treatment.

Now you get a far better Maxwell than ever before. Which would be sufficient for the average buyer. But more than that you are getting a Maxwell that the touch of artistic magic has made into a car of pure beauty.

It doesn't take an art critic to pass judgment on the beauty of a 1919 Maxwell. Anyone with fair eyesight gets it in a jiffy.

The Light in the Clearing

A Tale of the North Country in the Time of Silas Wright

He had a priceless and unusual talent for avoiding school-reader English and the arts of declamation and for preparing a difficult subject to enter the average brain.

Not much in my term of service there is important to this little task of mine. I did my work well, if I may believe the senator, and grew familiar with the gentle and ungentle arts of the politician.

One great fact grew in magnitude and sullen portent as the months passed: the gigantic slave-holding interests of the South viewed with growing alarm the spread of abolition sentiment.

The most welcome year of my life dawned on the first of January, 1844. I remember that I arose before daylight that morning and dressed and went out on the street to welcome it.

I had less than six months to wait for that day appointed by Sally. I had no doubt that she would be true to me. I had had my days of fear and depression, but always my sublime faith in her came back in good time.

Oh, yes, indeed, Washington was a fair of beauty and gallantry those days. I saw it all. I have spent many years in the capital, and I tell you the girls of that time had manners and knew how to wear their clothes, but again the magic of old memories kept my lady on her throne.

There was one of them—just one of those others who, I sometimes thought, was almost as graceful and charming and noble-hearted as Sally, and she liked me, I know, but the ideal of my youth glowed in the light of the early morning, so to speak, and was brighter than all others.

Above all, I had given my word to Sally, and—well, you know, the old-time Yankee of good stock was steadfast, as were Ben Grimshaw and Squire Fullerton.

The senator and I went calling that New Year's day. We saw all the great people and some of them were more cheerful than they had a right to be. It was a weakness of the time. I shall not go into details for fear of wandering too far from my main road.

Let me step aside a moment to say, however, that there were two clouds in the sky of the Washington society of those days. One was strong drink and the other was the crude, rough-coated, aggressive democrat from the frontiers of the West.

These latter were often seen in the holiday regalia of farm or village at fashionable functions. Some of them changed slowly, and by and by reached the stage of white linen and diamond breastpins and waistcoats of figured silk.

the senator received an intimation that he would be put in nomination if Van Buren failed. Immediately he wrote to Judge Fine of Ogdenburg, chairman of the delegation from the northern district of New York, forbidding such use of his name on the ground that his acquiescence would involve disloyalty to his friend the ex-president.

He gave me leave to go to the convention on my way home to meet Sally. I had confided to Mrs. Wright the details of my little love affair—I had to—and she had shown a tender, sympathetic interest in the story.

The senator had said to me one day, with a gentle smile:

"Bart, you have business in Canton, I believe, with which trifling matters like the choice of a president and the Mexican question cannot be permitted to interfere. You must take time to spend a day or two at the convention in Baltimore on your way. . . . Report to our friend Fine, who will look after your comfort there. The experience ought to be useful to a young man who, I hope, will have work to do in future conventions."

I took the stage to Baltimore next day—the twenty-sixth of May. The convention thrilled me—the flags, the great crowd, the bands, the songs, the speeches, the cheering—I see and hear it all in my talk. The uproar lasted for twenty minutes when Van Buren's name was put in nomination.

Then the undercurrent! The South was against him as Wright had foreseen. The deep current of its power had undermined certain of the northern and western delegations. Ostensibly for Van Buren and stubbornly casting their ballots for him, they had voted for the two-thirds rule, which had accomplished his defeat before the balloting began.

It continued for two days without a choice. The enemy stood firm. After adjournment that evening many of the Van Buren delegates were summoned to a conference. I attended it with Judge Fine.

The ex-president had withdrawn and requested his friends in the convention to vote for Silas Wright. My emotions can be more readily imagined than described when I heard the shouts of enthusiasm which greeted my friend's name. Tears began to roll down my cheeks. Judge Fine lifted his hand. When order was at last restored he bore:

"The county which is the proud possessor of his home, your enthusiasm has a welcome sound to me; but I happen to know that Senator Wright will not allow his name to go before the convention."

He read the letter of which I knew. Mr. Benjamin F. Butler then said: "When that letter was written Senator Wright was not aware that Mr. Van Buren's nomination could not be accomplished, nor was he aware that his own nomination would be the almost unanimous wish of this convention. I have talked with the leading delegates from Missouri and Virginia today. They say that he can be nominated by acclamation. Is it possible that he—a strong party man—can resist this unanimous call of the party with whose help he has won immortal fame? No, it is not so. It cannot be so. We must dispatch a messenger to him by horse at once who shall take to him from his friend Judge Fine a frank statement of the imperious demand of this convention and a request that he telegraph a withdrawal of his letter in the morning."

The suggestion was unanimously approved and within an hour, mounted on one of the best horses in Maryland—so his groom informed me—I was on my way to Baltimore with the messenger.

I had two days to spare on my schedule of travel and reckoned that, by returning to Baltimore next day I should reach Canton in good time.

It was the kind of thing that only a lithe, supple, strong-hearted lad such as I was in the days of my youth, could relish—speeding over a dark road by the light of the stars and a half-moon, with a horse that loved to kick up a wind. My brain was in a fever, for the notion had come to me that I was making history.

The lure of fame and high place hurried me on. With the senator in the presidential chair I should be well started in the highway of great success. Then Mr. H. Dunkelberg might think me better than the legacy of Benjamin Grimshaw. A relay awaited me twenty-three miles down the road.

Well, I reached Washington very sore, but otherwise in good form, soon after daybreak. I was trembling with excitement when I put my horse in the stable and rang the bell at our door. It seemed to me that I was crossing the divide between big and little things. A few steps more and I should be looking down into the great valley of the future. Yet, now that I was there, I began to lose confidence.

The butler opened the door. Yes, the senator was up and had just returned from a walk and was in his study. I found him there.

"Well, Bart, how does this happen?" he asked.

"It's important business," I said, as I presented the letter.

Something in his look and manner as he calmly adjusted his glasses and read the letter of Judge Fine brought the blood to my face. It seemed to puncture my balloon, so to speak, and I was falling toward the earth and so swiftly my head swam. He laid the letter on his desk and, without looking up and as coolly as if he were asking for the change of a dollar, queried:

"Well, Bart, what do you think we had better do about it?"

"I—I was hoping—you—you would take it," I stammered.

"That's because the excitement of the convention is on you," he answered. "Let us look at the compass. They have refused to nominate Mr. Van Buren because he is opposed to the annexation of Texas. On that subject the will of the convention is now clear. It is possible that they would nominate me. We don't know about that, and we never shall know. If they did, and I accepted, what would be expected of me is also clear. They would expect me to abandon my principles and that course of conduct which I conceive to be best for the country. Therefore I should have to accept it under false pretenses and take their yoke upon me. Would you think the needle pointed that way?"

"No," I answered.

Immediately he turned to his desk and wrote the telegram which fixed his place in history. It said so.

Into the lives of few men has such a moment fallen. I looked at him with a feeling of awe. What sublime calmness and serenity was in his face! As if it were a mere detail in the work of the day, and without a moment's faltering, he had declined a crown, for he would surely have been nominated and elected. He rose and stood looking out of the open window. Always I think of him standing there with the morning sunlight falling upon his face and shoulders. He had observed my emotion and I think it had touched him a little. There was a moment of silence. A curious illusion came to me then, for it seemed as if I heard the sound of distant music. Looking thoughtfully out of the window he asked:

"Bart, do you know when our first fathers turned out of the trail of the beast and found the long road of humanity? I think it was when they discovered the compass in their hearts."

So now at last we have come to that which our lonely place where we may aid of the candle and the compass. Now let us stop a moment to rest and to think. How sweet the air is here! The night is falling. I see the stars in the sky.

Just below me is the valley of Eternal silence. You will understand my haste now. I have sought only to do justice to my friend and to give my country a name, long neglected, but equal in glory to those of Washington and Lincoln.

Come, let us take one last look together down the road we have traveled, now dim in the evening shadows. Scattered along it are the little houses of the poor of which I have written. See the lights in the windows—the lights that are shining into the souls of the young—the eager, open, expectant, welcoming souls of the young—and the light carries many things, but best of all a respect for the old, unchanging way of the compass. After all that is the end and aim of the whole matter—believe me.

My life has lengthened into these days when most of our tasks are accomplished by machinery. We try to make men by the thousand, in vast educational machines, and no longer by the one as of old. It was the loving, forgiving, forbearing, patient, unselfish love of mother and father on vineyard, man, argument of love, they left no doubt in our hearts, my son.

"When do you wish to marry me?" she whispered.

"As soon as possible, but my pay is only sixty dollars a month now."

"We shall make it do," she answered. "My mother and father and your aunt and uncle and the Hackets and the minister and a number of our friends are coming in a fleet of boats."

"We are prepared either for a picnic or a wedding," was the whisper of Kate.

"Let's make it both," I proposed to Sally.

"Surely there couldn't be a better place than here under the big pine—it's so smooth and soft and shady," said she.

"Nor could there be a better day or better company," I urged, for I was not sure that she would agree.

The boats came along. Sally and I waved a welcome from the bank and she merrily proclaimed:

"It's to be a wedding."

Then a cheer from the boats, in which I joined.

I shall never forget how, when the company had landed and the greetings were over, Uncle Penbody approached your mother and said:

"Say, Sally, I'm goin' to plant a kiss on your forehead."

He did it and so did Aunt Fred and old Kate, and I think that, next to your mother and me, they were the happiest people at the wedding.

There is a lonely grave up in the hills—that of the stranger who died long ago on Rattleroad. One day I found old Kate sitting beside it and on a stone lately erected there was the name, Enoch Rone.

"It is very sorrowful," she whispered. "He was trying to find me when he died."

We walked on in silence while I recalled the circumstances. How strange that those tales of blood and lawless daring which Kate had given to Amos Grimshaw had led to the slaying of her own son! Yet, so it happened, and the old wives will tell you the story up there in the hills.

lover. Its air was sweet with the breath of the meadows. The daisies and the clover and the cornflowers and the wild roses seemed to be waving a welcome to me, and the thorn trees, shapely ornament of my native hills, were in blossom. A cloud of pigeons swept across the blue deep above my head. The great choir of the fields sang to me: bobolinks, song-sparrows, meadowlarks, bluebirds, warblers, wrens, and far away in the edge of a spruce thicket I heard the flute of the white-throated sparrow.

I bathed in a brook in the woods and put on a clean silk shirt and tie out of my saddlebags. I rode slowly then to the edge of the village of Canton and turned at the bridge and took the river road, although I had time to spare. How my heart was beating as I neared the familiar scene! The river slowed its pace there, like a discerning traveler, to enjoy the beauty of its shores. Smooth and silent was the water and in it were the blue of the sky and the feathery shadow-spires of cedar and tamarack and the reflected blossoms of iris and meadow rue. It was a lovely scene.

There was the pine, but where was my lady? I dismounted and led my mare and looked at my watch. It lacked twenty minutes to eleven. She would come—I had no doubt of it. I washed my hands and face and neck in the cool water. Suddenly I heard a voice I knew singing: "Barney Leave the Girls Alone." I turned and saw—your mother, my son. (These last lines were dictated to his son.) She was in the stern of a birch canoe, all dressed in white with roses in her hair. I raised my hat and she threw a kiss at me. Old Kate sat in the bow waving her handkerchief. They stopped and Sally asked in a tone of playful seriousness:

"Young man, why have you come here?"

"To get you," I answered.

"What do you want of me?" She was looking at her face in the water.

"I want to marry you," I answered bravely.

"Then you may help me ashore if you please. I am in my best, white slippers and you are to be very careful."

Beautiful! She was the spirit of the fields of June then and always. I led her ashore and held her in

Give it in Time

Every mother knows that coughs and colds, if not checked, may lead to the most dreaded of all diseases, bronchitis, pneumonia and tuberculosis. Have their treatment by the use of gold.

The wise mother says
Doyle's Honey and Tar
is the best remedy for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, influenza, and all the ailments of the throat and lungs. It is a natural product of the forest, and is the only one that is both palatable and effective.

What Fordson Service Will Do For You

There are two big factors to consider when you are buying a new Fordson tractor. One is the tractor itself and the other is the service that goes with it.

The Fordson tractor is a well-known name in the world of agriculture. It is a tractor that has been built for years and has a reputation for being reliable and durable.

But the real test of a tractor is the service that goes with it. The Fordson tractor is backed up by a service that is second to none.
