Vol. XXXVI

Pinckney, Livingston County, Michigan, Thursday August 14, 1919

No. 32

OBITUARY

Margaret A. Carpenter was born in Wayne county, Michigan, November 2, 1841 and passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Lake, at one o'clock in the morning of August 9, 1919, aged 77 years, eight months and four days. She was the oldest of five children born to John and Orinda VanArsdale, only one brother, Joseph VanArsdale of Durand being still living. She was married to Allen Carpenter on February 27, 1867 at Howell, Mich. To them were born three daughters, Hattie, Florence and Sarah, Hattie and Sarah having preceded her to the great Beyond. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter began their married life at one family home at Chilson where for years, willingly and faithfully she cared for the aged parents of both herself and her husband until they passed away. In 1893 they moved to Pinckney where for the first time in years, she was free to enjoy her affiliations with the Eastern Star and Maccabee lodges and the Congregational Aid Society of which she was a member. But it was not to be, for in January, 1913, she was stricken with a severe illness from which she never fully recovered, being lovingly cared for during the remaining years of her life by her husband and daughter, who survive her.

Bright and cheery in disposition, always doing for others, she will be greatly missed by her family and large circle of relatives and friends. So has one more good woman gone to claim

A DOCTOR FOR CIVIC SICKNESS

Mr. L. E. Wilson of Vermont, who is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wilson was in town last Saturday. Mr. Wilson and his family drove from his home in Vermont to Pinckney in an auto, practically the entire distance being driven on unpaved roads.

It is the founder of a unique organization, one whose business is "treating" boards of commerce for the various ailments that creep in many civic business centers. Boards of trade suffer like individuals from a long list of disorders and when stricken the civic body does not function properly.

When the business interests of a city require a tonic the board of commerce sends to Mr. Wilson's company, which immediately starts an expert in diagnosis, who sizes up the bankroll of the suffering city and if satisfactory terms can be made this expert ascertains what the trouble is and orders diet-treatment etc. In simpler cases this

CAMPBELL-EISLE

Monday at 3 p. m. Miss Thelma E. Campbell and Mr. Wilbur F. Eisle were married by Rev. F. S. Harburt at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Campbell.

The wedding was a very quiet affair, only the nearest relatives being present. The bride and groom are Pinckney young people and no one is more highly esteemed in the home town than they are. Mr. Eisle returned from the army last spring and the bride has taught the Sprout school since graduating from the Pinckney High School two years ago.

They left on a short trip and will make their home in Pontiac, where Mr. Eisle has a fine position.

Rebecca Helen Catrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Catrell, was born February 13, 1919, in Howell, Mich. She died August 5, 1919. ## RESOLUTIONS

The Grim Messenger of Death has again invaded the Chapter of the Eastern Star and has taken Sister Margaret Carpenter from our midst. God, in his all-wise Providence, has seen fit to bring sorrow upon us, with the promise of a home beyond the grave, where grief can never enter. Our deepest sympathy is extended to the relatives and friends of the departed sister.

commerce is placed under treatment like a patient in a hospital. But if the bank roll is large enough the treatment is always successful and the city soon emerges from its state of lethargy and coma and becomes the pride of its business men and the envy of nearby towns who lack the enterprise and price necessary to call in the board of commerce physicians.

Malignant cases of civic hookworm and sleeping sickness succumb to the treatment given by Mr. Wilson and his assistants. If he could be persuaded to produce a remedy for "knock-out", a disease now so prevalent in smaller towns, he would confer untold blessings upon the rural world.

Mr. Wilson conceived the idea of this present business while he was secretary of the Detroit Board of Commerce a few years ago. Now the business has grown until about 15 cities of all sizes scatter all over the country and among his regular clients.

FIRST AIRPLANE RIDE

My first airplane ride was an experience I shall never forget, for although were parts of it that I had just as soon would not have happened.

The first half of the distance to Leslie we were flying at such a height that we could see the buildings, fields and lakes very nicely, and it was a beautiful sight. We could also see Munith as we passed somewhat north of it, but as we came nearer to Leslie the pilot thought I wanted to get up higher, so gradually kept going up until we came in sight of what he told me was Leslie. We were so high that I would not have known it was a village. It looked more like a bunch of trees with perhaps one building in the center. But hardly had he called my attention to it when he shut off the engine, tipped the nose of the machine down, and we were in no time right above the stores in Leslie.

He then turned upwards again, did a nose spin or two, dropped a message he had, and started homeward. The wind was with us returning, and we came home over 100 miles per hour. It seemed as though we had only started when he pointed out that we were about home again. I then motioned him that I did not care for any more exhibitions of high diving, but evidently he did not understand me, for he went through about the same performance as in Leslie, and then we circled around to the field from where we started.

We were gone about 30 minutes, I believe, and had reached a height of about 2,000 feet. In fact, at one place near Leslie we must have gotten into a cloud, as it sprinkled for quite a distance. It was somewhat cooler where we were but I do not hesitate to say that I was plenty warm all of the time. —W. Gurn Dancer in Stockbridge Brief-Sun.

Barnes listened at the door until he heard the waiter clattering down the stairway, and then went swiftly down the hall to No. 30. Mr. Prosser was sleeping just as soundly and as resoundingly as at midnight!

"By gad!" he muttered, half-aloud. Everything was as clear as day to him now. Bolting into his own room, he closed the door and stood stockstill for many minutes, trying to picture the scene in the cottage.

He found a letter in his box when he went downstairs, after stuffing the tin box deep into his pocket. Before he slit the envelope he knew that Sprouse was the writer. The message was brief:

"After due consideration, I feel that it would be a mistake for you to abandon your present duties at this time. It might be misunderstood. Stick to the company until something better turns up. With this thought in view I withdraw the two days' limit mentioned recently to you, and extend the time to one week. Yours very truly, calm and sensible. See how well I have myself in hand? I do not tremble, I am strong. We may now discuss ourselves calmly, sensibly. Oh! What are you doing?"
 "J. H. WILSON."

"Gad, the fellow thinks of everything," said Barnes to himself. "He is positively unerring."

"I too am strong," he whispered. "I am sure of my ground now, and I am not afraid."

He had clasped the hand that rested on his sleeve and, as he pressed it to his heart, his other arm stole over her shoulders and drew her close to his triumphant body. For an instant she resisted, and then relaxed into complete submission. Her head sank upon his shoulder.

"Oh!" she sighed, and there was wonder, joy—even perplexity, in the tremulous sigh of capitulation. "Oh," came softly from her parted lips again at the end of the first long, passionate kiss.

CHAPTER XXI.

The End in Sight.

Barnes, soaring beyond all previous heights of exaltation, ranged dizzily between "front" and "back" at the Grand opera house that evening. He was in the "wings" with her, whispering in her delighted ear; in the dressing-room, listening to her soft words

Mrs. Courtney was not only curious but apprehensive. She hadn't the faintest idea who Miss Cameron was, nor where her brother had picked her up. But she saw at a glance that she was lovely, and her soul was filled with strange misgivings. She was like all sisters who have pet bachelor brothers. She hoped that poor Tom hadn't gone and made a fool of himself.

The few minutes' conversation she had with the stranger only served to increase her alarm. Miss Cameron's voice and smile—and her eyes!—were positively alluring.

She had had a night letter from Tom that morning in which he said that he was bringing a young lady friend down from the north—and would she meet them at the station and put her up for a couple of days? That was all she knew of the dazzling stranger up to the moment she saw her. Immediately after that she knew by intuition a great deal more about her than Tom could have told in volumes of correspondence. She knew, also, that Tom was lost forever!

"Now tell me," said the countess the instant they entered the Courtney apartment. She gripped both of his arms with her firm little hands and looked straight into his eyes, eagerly, hopefully. She had forgotten Mrs. Courtney's presence, she had not taken the time to remove her hat or jacket.

"Let's all sit down," said he. "My knees are unaccountably weak. Come along, Ede. Listen to the romance of my life."

And when the story was finished the countess took his hand in hers and held it to her cool cheek. The tears were still drowning her eyes.

"Oh, you poor dear! Was that why you grew so haggard and pale and hollow-eyed?"

"Partly," said he with great significance.

"And you had them in your pack all the time? You—"

"I had Sprouse's most solemn word not to touch them for a week. He is the only man I feared. He is the only one who could have—" occurred to him that his plan to leave for New York that day with Miss Cameron might be attended by disastrous results.

But the jewels? What of them? He could not go gallivanting about the country with a half million dollars' worth of precious stones in his possession.

He spent the early part of the forenoon in wandering nervously about the hotel—upstairs and down. The jewels were locked in his pack upstairs. He went up to his room half a dozen times and almost instantly walked down again, after satisfying himself that the pack had not been rifled.

For the next three days and nights rehearsals were in full swing, with scarcely a moment's let-up. And so the time crept by, up to the night of the performance. Miss Cameron remained in ignorance of the close proximity of the jewels, and the police of Crowdale remained in even denser ignorance as to the whereabouts of the man who robbed Mr. Hasselwein of all his spare cash and an excellent gold watch.

No time was lost by the countess in getting word to her compatriots in New York. Barnes posted a dozen letters, and all the time he was averaging two hundred dollars nightly and Mr. Rushcroft was already booking return engagements for the early fall. He was looking forward to a tour of Europe at the close of the war.

Barnes' sister, Mrs. Courtney, met them at the Grand Central terminal. "It's now a quarter to five," said Barnes after the greeting and presentation. "Drop me at the Fifth Avenue bank, Edith. I want to leave something in my safety box downstairs. She'll be more than five minutes."

He got down from the automobile at Forty-fourth street and shot across the sidewalk into the bank, casting quick, apprehensive glances through the five o'clock crowd on the avenue as he sprinted. In his hand he lugged the heavy, weatherbeaten pack. His sister and the countess stared after him in amazement.

Presently he emerged from the bank, still carrying the bag. He was beaming. A certain worried, haggard expression had vanished from his face, and for the first time in eight hours he treated his traveling wardrobe with scorn and indifference.

"Thank God, they're off my mind at last," he cried. "That is the first good, long breath I've had in a week. No, not now. It's a long story and I can't tell it in Fifth Avenue. It would be extremely annoying to have both of you die of heart failure with all these people looking on."

He felt her hand on his arm, and knew that she was looking at him with wide, incredulous eyes, but he faced straight ahead. He was terribly afraid that the girl beside him was preparing to shed tears of joy and relief. He could feel her searching in her jacket pocket for a handkerchief.

so ill-mannered, but I—I must call up one or two people at once. They are my friends. You will understand, I am sure."

Barnes was pacing the floor nervously when his sister returned after conducting her new guest to the room prepared for her. The countess was at the telephone before the door closed behind her hostess.

"I wish you had been a little more explicit in your telegram, Tom," she said peevishly. "If I had known who she is I wouldn't have put her in that room. Now I shall have to move Aunt Kate back into it tomorrow and give Miss Cameron the big one at the end of the hall." Which goes to prove that Tom's sister was a bit of a snob in her way. "Stop walking like that and come here." She faced him accusingly. "Have you told all there is to tell, sir?"

"Can't you see for yourself, Ede, that I'm in love with her? Desperately, horribly, madly in love with her. Don't giggle like that! I couldn't have told you while she was present, could I?"

"That isn't what I want to know. Is she in love with you? That's what I'm after."

"Yes," said he, but frowned anxiously. "She is perfectly adorable," said she, and was at once aware of a guilty, nagging impression that she would not have said it to him half an hour earlier for anything in the world.

She was strangely white and subdued when she rejoined them later on. She had removed her hat. The other woman saw nothing but the wealth of sun-kissed hair that rippled. Barnes went forward to meet her, filled with a sudden apprehension.

"What is it? You are pale and—what have you heard?"

She stopped and looked searchingly into his eyes. A warm flush rose to her cheeks; her own eyes grew soft and tender and wistful.

"They all believe that the war will last two or three years longer," she said huskily. "I cannot go back to my own country till it is all over. They implore me to remain here with them until—until my fortunes are mended." She turned to Mrs. Courtney and went on without the slightest trace of indecision or embarrassment in her manner. "You see, Mrs. Courtney, I am very, very poor. They have taken everything. I—I fear I shall have to accept this kind, generous proffer of a—" her voice shook slightly—"of a home with my friends until the Huns are driven out."

Barnes' silence was more eloquent than words. Her eyes fell. Not until Mrs. Courtney expressed the hope that Miss Cameron would condescend to accept the hospitality of her home until plans for the future were definitely fixed was there a sign that the object of her concern had given a thought to what she was saying.

"You are so very kind," stammered the countess. "But I cannot think of imposing upon—"

"Leave it to me, Ede," said Barnes gently, and, laying his hand upon his sister's arm, he led her from the room. Then he came swiftly back to the outstretched arms of the exile.

"A very brief New York engagement," he whispered in her ear, he knew not how long afterward. Her head was pressed against his shoulder, her eyes were closed, her lips parted in the ecstasy of passion.

"Yes," she breathed, so faintly that he barely heard the strongest word ever put into the language of man.

Half an hour later he was speeding down the avenue in a taxi. His blood was surging, his heart was bursting with joy—his head was light, for the feel of her was still in his arms, the voice of her in his enraptured ears.

He was hurrying homeward to the "diggings" he was soon to desert forever. He was to spend the night at his sister's apartment. When he issued forth from his "diggings" at half-past seven he was attired in evening clothes, and there was not a woman in all New York, young or old, who would have denied him a second glance.

Later on in the evening three of the countess' friends arrived at the Courtney home to pay their respects to their fair compatriot and to discuss the crown jewels. They came and brought with them the consoling information that arrangements were practically completed for the delivery of the jewels into the custody of the French embassy at Washington, through whose intervention they were to be allowed to leave the United States without the formalities usually observed in cases of suspected smuggling. Upon the arrival in America of trusted messengers from Paris, headed by no less a personage than the ambassador himself, the imperial treasure was to pass into hands that would carry it safely to France. Prince Sebastian, still in Halifax, had been apprised by telegraph of the recovery of the jewels, and was expected to sail for England by the earliest steamer.

And while the visitors at the Courtney house were lifting their glasses to toast the prince they loved, and in the city, thousands of persons descended to the park, seven miles away, in every manner of conveyance.

On reaching the resort nothing tragic at first met the eye of these curiosity seekers. To allay the fears of the thousands who already crowded the park, Sousa's band, which is playing there this week, continued its concert and while shouts of the firemen mingled with the moans of the dying there came from the bandstand the notes of opera and ragtime airs.

Montreal.—Seven persons were burned to death Sunday in a fire on a scenic railway at Dominion park, an amusement resort near this city.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is believed it was started by a lighted cigarette or match.

The fire started in the mill and quickly the flames laid hold on the skeleton structure of the railway. When the firemen arrived the mill was a blazing pyre and a few minutes later that part of the railway constructed over the mill fell with a crash into the roaring furnace.

According to witness, a car filled with merry-makers took a fatal leap into the flames.

"Yours very respectfully,

"SPROUSE.

"P. S.—I saw O'Dowd today. He left a message for you and the countess. Tell them, said he, that I ask God's blessing for them forever. He is off tomorrow for Brazil. He is very much relieved when he heard that I did not get the jewels the first time I went after them, and immensely entertained by my jolly description of how I went after them the second. By the way, you will be interested to learn that he has cut loose from the crowd he was trailing with. Mostly nuts, he says. Dynamiting munition plants in Canada was a grand project, says he, and it would have come to something if the d—d women had only left the d—d men alone. The expletives are O'Dowd's."

Ten hours before Barnes found this illuminating message on his library table he stood at the window of a lofty Park avenue apartment building, his arm about the slender, yielding figure of the only other occupant of the room. Pointing out over the black housetops, he directed her attention to the myriad lights in the upper floors of a great hostelry to the south and west and said:

"That is where you are going to live, darling."

GRAIN ELEVATOR BURNS, 8 DIE

Spontaneous Combustion Destroys Welland Canal Structure.

Port Colborne, Ont.—Eight persons were killed and a score were injured, seven seriously, in an explosion which wrecked the large government grain elevator on the Welland Canal here Saturday afternoon.

The loss is estimated at $1,800,000. Spontaneous combustion is said to have caused the explosion.

The elevator was built eight years ago at a cost of $2,000,000. It had a capacity of more than 2,000,000 bushels and the bins were said to be about one-third filled with grain, mostly wheat.

The concussion shook the whole town and windows in nearby buildings were smashed. Flames spread through the wreckage but, because of fire proof construction, they soon burned out and an hour after the explosion, rescue parties were at work.

A SUMMER COLD

A cold in the summer time, as everybody knows, is the hardest kind of a cold to get rid of. The best and quickest way is to go to bed and stay there if you can, with a bottle of "Boschee's Syrup" handy to insure a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectation in the morning.

But if you can't stay in bed you must keep out of draughts, avoid sudden changes, eat sparingly of simple food and take occasional doses of Boschee's Syrup, which you can buy at any store where medicine is sold, a safe and efficient remedy, made in America for more than fifty years. Keep it handy.—Adv.

Friends Gave Her Up Mrs. Hoffman's Recovery From Dropsy a Surprise. She Used Doan's. "I was in dreadful shape," says Mrs. W. B. Hoffman, 689 Oakley Ave., Hammond, Ill. "There was a sickening pain across the small of my back and when I stooped over, knife-like twinges nearly drove me wild. I had large puffs under my eyes and my body bloated badly all over. My feet were swollen to twice their natural size and the skin looked shiny. When I pressed it down, it left a dent there and I knew I was bad off with dropsy. My friends didn't think I would live very long. I doctored with three different physicians and they didn't help me and I was discouraged. Nobody knows the torture I went through. "I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and I was cured. I felt fine. As the swelling went down, my appetite picked up and I was soon perfectly healthy. My color came back and people said I looked as well as ever. Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life." Sworn to before me, MABEL T. SHERBY, Notary Public. Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box. ## Beauty Hides a Multitude of Virtues in the Maxwell

This time beauty conceals the virtues—not the "sins". For the new "garments" of the 1919 Maxwell are severely pretty, simple modern, and the kind that make you want to possess one.

But underneath this "robe of beauty" you'll find a sound rugged, compact, everlastingly-on-the-job chassis that now has a record manufacturing run of 300,000—all alike.

For in 5 years that number of chassis have come out of the 8 great Maxwell plants—each built on the same pattern; each one better than the last.

To date more than 1000 refinements, big and little, have been made in the Maxwell. The plan is to improve—but not to change in any radical way the original chassis.

They all understand why a Maxwell never quits running; never grows wobbly and lags with age; never forces the garage man to send you a staggering bill for mechanical treatment.

Now you get a far better Maxwell than ever before. Which would be sufficient for the average buyer. But more than that you're getting a Maxwell that the touch of artistic magic has made into car of rare beauty.

It doesn't take an art critic to pass judgement on the beauty of 1919 Maxwell. Anyone with fair eyesight gets it in a jiffy.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All druggists, etc.

The stringency regarding the hiring of country school teachers still exists in Washtenaw county, according to a statement made by School Commissioner Essery. The commissioner says that unless there are sufficient instructors engaged by the time school begins in September, some of the smaller schools for which teachers are not secured may have to close, and the pupils of those schools be sent to some larger one. There are fifty-two schools which have not sent in their reports on teachers to the county school official.

A TRIAL WILL CONVINCE YOU.

NOTHING that we could say would so thoroughly convince you of the value of Chamberlain's Tablets as a personal trial. FOOD PROFITEERS ARE DENOUNCED BY PRESIDENT WILSON

Comprehensive Extension of the Present Food Control Act Is Recommended.

SITUATION CRITICAL AND DIFFICULT AND MUST BE MET WITH COURAGE AND RESOURCE.

Calm and Deliberate Consideration Rather Than Hasty Action is Called For by the 'Present Situation of the Country.

Washington.—Extension of the present food control act, both as to its period of operation and to include all commodities indisputably necessities of life, regulation of cold storage to define the limits within which foodstuffs can be held; marking of all goods destined for interstate commerce with the price at which they left the hands of the producer; federal licenses for all corporations and persons engaged in interstate commerce, which will provide for competitive selling, and passage of the pending bill giving the capital issues committee control of security issues, are the remedies proposed by President Wilson, in his address to congress to meet the existing high cost of living.

The president said in part: Gentlemen of the Congress: I have sought this opportunity to address you because it is clearly my duty to call your attention to the present cost of living and to urge upon you with all the persuasive force of which I am capable the legislative measures which would be most effective in controlling it and bringing it down. The prices of the people of this country are paying for everything that is necessary for them to use in order to live are not justified by a shortage in supply, either present or prospective, and are in many cases artificially and deliberately created by vicious practices which ought immediately to be checked by law.

supply them will be energetically proceeded against. But others have not yet been brought under the law and should be dealt with at once by legislation.

With the increase in the price of the necessities of life comes demands for increases in wages—demands which are justified if there be no other means of enabling men to live.

Upon the increase of wages there follows close an increase in the price of the products whose producers have been accorded the increase—not a proportionate increase, for the manufacturer does not content himself with that, but an increase considerably greater than the added wage cost and for which the added wage cost is oftentimes hardly more than an excuse.

The laborers who do not get an increase in pay when they demand it are likely to strike, and the strike only makes matters worse.

It checks production, if it affects the railways it prevents distribution and strips the markets, so that there is presently nothing to buy, and there is another excessive addition to prices resulting from the scarcity.

Conditions Not "Natural."

These are facts and forces with which we have become only too familiar; but we are not justified because of our familiarity with them or because of any hasty and shallow conclusion that they are "natural" and inevitable, in sitting inactively by and letting them work their fatal results if there is anything that we can do to check, correct or reverse them. We must, I think, frankly admit that there is no complete immediate remedy to be had from legislation and executive action. The free processes of supply and demand will not operate of themselves.

MUST KNOW SOURCE OF PEACE.

There can be no confidence in industry, no calculable basis for credits, no confident buying of systematic selling, no certain prospect of employment, no normal restoration of business, no hopeful attempt at reconstruction or a proper rearranging of the dislocated elements of enterprise until peace has been established, and so far as may be guaranteed. Our national life has no doubt been less radically disturbed and dismembered than the national life of other peoples whom the war more directly affected, with all its terrible ravaging and destructive force, but it has been nevertheless profoundly affected and disarranged, and our industry, our credits, our productive capacity, our economic processes are inextricably interwoven with those of other nations and peoples—most intimately of all with the nations and peoples upon whom the chief burden and confusion of the war fell and who are now most dependent upon the co-operative action of the world.

Exports Greatest in History.

We are just now shipping more goods out of our ports to foreign markets than we ever shipped before—not foodstuffs merely, but stuffs and materials of every sort; but this is no index of what our foreign sales will continue to be or of the effect the volume of our exports will have on supplies and prices. It is impossible yet to predict how far or how long foreign purchasers will be able to find the money or the credit to pay for or sustain such purchases on such a scale; how soon or to what extent foreign manufacturers can resume their former production; foreign farmers get them accustomed crops from their own fields; foreign mines resume their former output; foreign merchants set up again their old machinery of trade with the lands of the earth. All these things must remain uncertain until peace is established and the nations of the world have concerted the methods by which normal life and industry are to be restored.

All that we shall do in the meantime to restrain profiteering and put the life of our people upon a tolerable footing will be makeshift and provisional. There can be no settled condition here or elsewhere until the treaty of peace is out of the way and the work of liquidating the war has become the chief concern of our government and of the other governments of the world.

"Europe will not, cannot recoup her capital or put her restless, distracted peoples to work until she knows exactly where she stands in respect to peace; and what we will do is for her the chief question upon which her purpose of mind and confidence of purpose depends. While there is any possibility that the peace terms may be changed or may be held long in abeyance, or may not be enforced because of divisions of opinion among the powers associated against Germany, it is idle to look for permanent relief.

Immediate Relief Measures. By way of immediate relief, surplus stocks of both food and clothing in the hands of the government will be sold and of course sold at prices at which there is no profit. And by way of a more permanent correction of prices surplus stocks in private hands will be drawn out of storage and put upon the market. Fortunately under the terms of the food control act the hoarding of foodstuffs can be checked and prevented, and they will be, with the greatest energy. Foodstuffs can be drawn out of storage and sold by legal action which the department of justice will institute wherever necessary; but as soon as the situation is systematically dealt with it is not likely that the courts will often have to be resorted to. Much of the accumulating of stocks has no doubt been due to the sort of speculation which always results from uncertainty.

Would Have Prices Plainly Marked.

I would also recommend that it be required that all goods destined for interstate commerce should in every case where their form or package makes it possible be plainly marked with the price at which they left the hands of the producer. Such a requirement would bear close analogy to certain provisions of the pure food act by which it is required that certain detailed information be given on the labels of packages of foods and drugs.

And it does not seem to me that we could confine ourselves to detailed measures of this kind, if it is indeed our purpose to assume national control of the processes of distribution. I take it for granted that that is our purpose and our duty. Nothing less will suffice. We need not hesitate to handle a national question in a national way. We should go beyond the measures I have suggested. We should formulate a law requiring a federal license of all corporations engaged in selling and prevent unaccountable profits in the method of marketing.

Law Would Do Much.

Such a law would afford a welcome opportunity to effect other much-needed reforms in the business of interstate shipment and in the methods of corporations which are engaged in it, but for the moment I confine my recommendations to the object immediately in hand, which is to lower the cost of living.

We are dealing, gentlemen of the congress, I need hardly say, with very critical and very difficult matters. We should go forward with confidence along the road we see, but we should also seek to comprehend the whole of the scene amidst which we act. There is no ground for some of the fearful forecasts I hear uttered about me, but the condition of the world is unquestionably very grave and we should face it comprehensively. The situation of our own country is exceptionally fortunate. We of all peoples can afford to keep our heads and to determine upon moderate and sensible courses of action which will insure us against the passions and detempers which are working such deep unhappiness for some of the distressed nations on the other side of the sea.

But we may be involved in their distresses unless we help, and help with energy and intelligence.

Disregarding the surplus stock in the hands of the government, there was a greater supply of foodstuffs in this country on June 1 of this year than at the same date last year. In the combined total of a number of the most important foods in dry and cold storage the excess is quite 18 per cent. And yet prices have risen.

Law Department Active.

The law department is active in dealing with the situation and is convinced that, under the stimulation and temptation of exceptional circumstances, combinations of producers and combinations of traders have been formed for the control of supplies and of prices which are clearly in restraint of trade, and against these prosecutions will be promptly instituted and actively pushed which will in all likelihood have a prompt corrective effect. There is reason to believe that the prices of leather, of coal, of lumber and of textiles have been materially affected by forms of concert and co-operation among the producers and marketers of these and other universally necessary commodities which it will be possible to redress. No watchful or energetic effort will be spared to accomplish this necessary result. I trust that there will not be many cases in which prosecution will be necessary. Public action will no doubt cause many who have perhaps unwittingly adopted illegal methods to abandon them promptly and of their own motion.

Retailers in Part to Blame.

There can be little doubt that retailers are in part—sometimes in large part—responsible for exorbitant prices, and it is quite practicable for the government through the agencies I have mentioned, to supply the public with full information as to the prices at which retailers buy and as to the costs of transportation they pay, in order that it may be known just what margin of profit they are demanding. Opinion and concerted action on the part of purchasers can probably do the rest.

Let me urge, in the first place, that the present foodstuff control act should be extended both as to the period of time during which it shall remain in operation and as to the commodities to which it shall apply.

the period of the war and becomes inoperative upon the formal proclamation of peace. But I should judge that it was clearly within the constitutional power of the congress to make similar permanent provisions and regulations with regard to all goods destined for interstate commerce and to exclude them from interstate shipment if the requirements of the law are not complied with.

Some such regulation is imperatively necessary.

It would materially add to the serviceability of the law, for the purpose we now have in view, if it were also prescribed that all goods released from storage for interstate shipment should have plainly marked upon each package the selling or market price at which they went into storage. By this means the purchaser would always be able to learn what profits stood between him and the producer or the wholesale dealer.

The world must pay for the appalling destruction wrought by the great war, and we are part of the world. We must pay our share. For five years now the industry of all Europe has been slack and disordered. The normal crops have not been produced, the normal quantity of manufactured goods has not been turned out.

Not until there are the usual crops and the usual production of manufactured goods on the other side of the Atlantic can Europe return to the former conditions; and it was upon the former conditions, not the present, that our economic relations with Europe were built up.

We must face the fact that unless we help Europe to get back to her normal life and production a chaos will ensue there which will inevitably be communicated to this country. For the present, it is manifest, we must quicken, not slacken, our own production.

U. S. Must Hold World Steady.

We, and we alone, now hold the world steady. Upon our steadfastness and self-possession depend the affairs of nations everywhere. It is in this supreme crisis—this crisis for all mankind—that American must prove her mettle.

In the presence of a world confused, distracted, she must show herself self-possessed and effective, capable of sober and effective action. She saved Europe by her action in arms; she must now save it by her action in peace.

In saving Europe she will save herself, as she did upon the battlefields of the war. The calmness and capacity with which she deals with and masters the disaster of peace will be the final test and proof of her place among the peoples of the world.

And, if only in our own interest, we must help the people overseas. Europe is our biggest customer. We must keep her going or thousands of our shops and scores of our mines must close. There is no such thing as letting her go to ruin without causing in the disaster.

In such circumstances, face to face with such tests, passion must be discarded. Passion and a disregard for the rights of others have no place in the counsels of a free people.

Prices Are Higher Than Last Year and Stocks in Storage Are Larger.

Washington—President Wilson has been requested in a joint resolution introduced by Chairman Campbell, of the rules committee, and Senator McCormick, Republican, Illinois, to submit not later than December 1, such reductions in estimates of government expenditures as will permit an annual reduction of one billion dollars in taxation next year.

Another resolution introduced in the senate by Senator Myers, Democrat, Montana, relating to the high cost of living, asked the senate judiciary committee to report whether legislation to prohibit exports for a limited time, at least, of foods, clothing and other necessities, would be advisable.

Although prices of practically all important foods have shown a substantial increase during the last year, stocks of food held in storage June 1 this year were approximately 20 per cent greater than those held June 1, 1918, according to a memorandum showing the relation between storage figures and prices issued by the federal trade commission.

Government stocks were excluded from the comparison.

"The fact that stocks of many important foods were much larger June 1 this year than on the same date last year," said the commission's report,

STARTS CRIMINAL ACTION

U. S. Grand Jury in Chicago Will Take Up Big Five Prosecution in Three Weeks.

Washington—The Government's case against the Big Five packers will be placed before the United States grand jury which meets in Chicago in three weeks. This means that criminal prosecution will be instituted.

Charles F. Clyne, U. S. district attorney in Chicago, said that besides asking indictments under the criminal sections of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, civil suits would be brought under that statute, and that in addition, the packers would be prosecuted under the Food Control Act on charges of hoarding.

Mr. Clyne has been in Washington several days conferring with Atty.-Gen. Palmer and George R. Williams, who prosecuted the oil trust cases. The three officials have been sifting the evidence gathered against the packers by the Federal trade commission.

Four hundred different branches of the industry as conducted by the packers, Mr. Clyne said, are being dealt with by the Department of Justice.

At Wilson's Direction.

The Government's program against the Big Five is the result of personal orders of President Wilson as one of the first results of his study of the cost of living problems.

It became known that the President came to his decision after a careful study of the investigations of the Federal Trade Commission and the hearings before committees of Congress considering bills to control the industry. Conferences with members of the commission and Atty.-Gen. Palmer followed. The announcement by the attorney-general that the suits would be brought was the immediate result.

No final decision has been reached as to whether the suits will be brought in the civil or criminal courts or in both. It seems likely the prosecution will proceed from both angles. The

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

A world demand which is not here, but which is expected when hunger-impelled strikes secure higher wages with which higher food prices are to be paid.

To show that the "law of supply and demand is not working, the commission listed eight staple foods which on June 1 showed an increase in stocks withheld from the market ranging from 9 to 298 per cent over stocks on June 1, 1918, and in each instance there was shown to have been a substantial advance in the wholesale price during that period.

Fowl Prices Go Up.

Stocks of frozen fowls showed a maximum increase of 298 per cent and the price, despite this fact, increased three cents a pound.

Wheat stocks showed an increase of 174 per cent, with an increase in price of 31 cents; flour stocks, an increase of 21 per cent, with an increase in the price per barrel of nearly $3; egg stocks, an increase of 9.8 per cent, with an increase in price of 11 cents, and butter stocks an increase of 129 per cent, with the price soaring 12 cents above last year's figure.

Salt beef, canned salmon and canned corn completed the items in this table, the latter showing an increase of in price.

Wheat Price Stands.

Director Julius H. Barnes, of the grain corporation, decided to maintain the government's guarantee on wheat at $2.26 a bushel as a "reserve protection against a higher price later."

At the conclusion of a day's activity by the president, the subcommittee of the cabinet appointed by Attorney General Palmer and by the attorney general himself, announcements were made of these immediate steps to be taken and of the government's wheat policy.

In a lengthy statement, showing why the price of wheat would rise but for the government guarantee, Director Barnes promised a readjustment of flour prices at the expense of the national treasury as authorized by congress, if later developments indicated a world price for wheat lower than the guaranteed price.

Steps will be taken by the grain corporation to sell standard export flour in every community of the country in carload lots at a price not greater than $10 a barrel, Mr. Barnes announced. This price, he added is lower by $1 a barrel than any price ruling during the last four months.

Mr. Barnes said the grain corporation is buying the new crop so as to sell flour at $10 a barrel in any community where prices are now improperly high. This is regardless of the wheat price

Watts Reunion

The sixth annual Watts Reunion was held August 2 at Mr. and Mrs. Olin Marshall's. Forty-three responded to roll-call, ranging in ages from Baby Helen Lantis, eight months, to Mrs. Matilda Glenn, eighty years of age. Two deaths occurred in the past year, Sergt. J. Taylor Glenn, killed in France August 3, 1915, and Mrs. Arthur Webb, who died of influenza at her home, Merrimont, N. D.

After the usual good dinner, Pres. L. E. Chamberlain called the meeting to order with very fitting and touching remarks, Mrs. Olin Marshall responding with pleasant words of greeting.

The company then spent some time in relating their youthful experiences and life stories, which were very amusing and interesting, and E. L. Glenn gave a fine account of his western trip. The president then reported the following committee: Finance Com., Mrs. H. Watts, Mrs. C. D. Johnson, Mrs. Geo. Mars; Program Com., C. D. Johnson, Mrs. Otis Webb, Mrs. E. Halley; Historian, Mrs. C. ### The Coming Circus

Sparks World Famous Shows are billed to exhibit at Howell Saturday, Aug. 23 and from the newspaper reports preceding them their exhibition will be worth going many miles to witness.

Shows this season, some of the animal and training ever presented to an American audience. The big group of fighting forest-bred lions, all full grown males, give an exhibition that is full of thrills, and the audience is left with a positive feeling of awe at man's wonderful mastery over brute creation.

Another extraordinary feature with the show is Capt. Tiebor's troupe of educated Seals and Sea Lions. These interesting sea animals perform the most seemingly impossible feats; balancing chairs, umbrellas and whirling brands of fire while climbing ladders, jwaling ropes and riding the backs of galloping horses. This feature baffles description and must be seen to be appreciated.

Many other wonderful things are to be seen with this mammoth show, and the main performance beneath the big tent will present a number of the most marvelous foreign acts of the century.

The menagerie of wild animals carried with the show is complete in every detail, and contains rare and curious specimens of the earth's most interesting and curious animals.

A mile long street parade of dazzling splendor, beautiful women, and handsome horses, interspersed with three brass bands and a steam calliope will traverse the streets shortly before noon and this feature alone will be worth going many miles to see.

Don't forget the date and the place of exhibition Saturday, Aug. 23 at Howell.

NORTON'S HOME BAKERY

Open for inspection at all times
Come and see for yourself how Mother's Bread is made

A FARMER'S WIFE

Has always been the bread baker for the home. From childhood she has been trained in breadmaking until she has become expert and her bread is usually first-class—at least when the flour was good, the "ferments" all right and the stove doing its best.

The farmer's wife has usually scorned "baker's bread" as being inferior to her own bread.

Now however, many farmer's wives are using

MOTHER'S BREAD

Which is identical with home made bread when the latter is at its very best.

MOTHER'S BREAD is always at its best, always uniform, always ALL RIGHT.

That so many farmers' wives are now using Mother's Bread is its highest recommendation. A practical endorsement which comes from women who are not only the very best judges of bread, but who are also experts in home economy.

NOTICE—The bakery and restaurant will be closed at 7 o'clock every Wednesday evening.

Any one of these games alone will be worth double the admission to the whole Fair. Such interest in the National pastime has not been felt here in a quarter of a century. Fans are already waiting with feverish impatience for the clash of arms. The strain is telling, and if continued, strong men will be led away from the game, uttering incoherently, and you will wonder what they would say if they could talk. Don't miss it and ever hope to see it again.
