FARMERS' CO-OP

The local co-ops known as the Pinckney Agricultural Association is again sitting up and taking notice. After the preliminary meeting some time ago the flu came along and many of the directors and officers were afflicted but now they are up and at it again and have rushed matters along so that the first shipment of stock will go out of town next Monday, March 1, with J. A. Shehan as manager of the consignment.

Mr. Shehan has been buying feeders by the carload and selling and shipping the finished animals for himself for several years with good success and it would seem that the new association is fortunate in securing his services for this end of the live stock department.

Auction Sale

All the personal property, consisting of farm tools, stock etc. belonging to Wm. Heminger will be sold at auction on his farm on one mile south of town Wednesday, March 10. An all day sale. Full particulars on auction bills later.

MICHIGAN STATE FARM BUREAU

A "back to the farm" movement is the only sure cure for the "high costs" epidemic that is disturbing the whole country and unless it begins soon on an extensive scale foodstuffs are apt to qualify as a luxury. Roland Merrill of Benton Harbor, President of the Michigan State Farm Bureau, says, "Merrill has been gathering statistics on the shortage of labor in the rural districts of the country and his summary is startling. Too many farmers are being drawn from the country by big daily supply of good food is necessary to the successful operation of any or all industries. The country cannot get by quite so easily as suggested by a worthy Detroit lady who, in a recent "ladies" club meeting called to kill "high cost" eggs and butter remarked that she saw no reason to waste time discussing the farmer as all present bought their butter and eggs of the grocer.

"But attention must be focused on the farmer. A careful canvass of Iowa shows a shortage of farm hand for this spring of more than 50,000 men, which means that Iowa must drop not less than 500,000 people off her feeding list. It appears that the ten principal middle western states will show a shortage this spring of half a million farm hands; and that the country-wide shortage will be between $1,000,000 and 1,500,000, which means the cutting off of supplies for some 20,000,000 consumers. A good season will not produce such drastic conditions. On the other hand adverse weather conditions will make the situation more alarming.

Just at present there is a lot of fool propoganda going the rounds about farmers going on strike. The word "strike" is as obnoxious to the average farmer as a rattlesnake and the idea is pure bunk. The farmer knows his place and will fill it as a good citizen but his power to save the nation from hunger and worse is limited to the industrial support of those who must depend on him for their existence, a matter which in the present crazy industrial rush is being overlooked.

"The situation is just this: a "back to the farm" move must start quickly or thousands of people in this country are going to go hungry. And this move must be started in the cities. The remedy for the conditions we are facing today lies in the hands of big industries, and also their employes. The demand for men from the country must cease and the continuing strikes for higher wages and shorter hours must stop. Otherwise the cost of living will be a game with the sky as the limit.

Sunday Movies at Howell

Some of the Howell citizens are opposed to having the movie place of amusement opened on Sunday and were intending to make the question a feature of the coming election but were too late in getting ready for the campaign, as under the new law more time must be taken before election in order to allow at voters a chance to vote by mail.

END OF EIGHT YEARS MISERY

Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Recovered.

Newark, N. J.—"The doctor said I had an organic trouble and treated me for several weeks. At times I could not walk at all and I suffered with my back and limbs so I often had to stay in bed. I suffered for eight years. Finally I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was a good medicine and tried it with splendid effect. I can now do my household and my washing. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound and your Blood Medicine and three of my friends are taking them to advantage. You can use my name for a testimonial."

"Why don't you go to work?" "It would be highly improper for me to do so," answered the communist. "My idea is that people should live without working, and I've got to set an example."

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

WAS NEAR DYING

Finally Used Doan's and Was Restored to Health. Has Been Strong and Well Since.

"Malaria fever weakened my kidneys when I was a young man," says L. W. Garrison, 23 F St., Anderson, S. C. "Finally, ten years ago, I was in such bad shape that I expected to die. Medicine wouldn't help me any more. My back pained as if it were pierced with a knife. Many times I have fallen in the street and didn't have any strength to move until the awful misery was eased up. I couldn't sleep in bed for two years. The kidney secretions passed every few minutes and scalding hot water couldn't have burned any worse. I thought I was doomed to die, but a friend pleaded with me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I owe my life to his visit. Doan's helped me from the start and eleven boxes made permanent cure which has lasted eight years. I have not had one sick minute since, nor missed a day from work." Sworn to before me.

MADE DISCOVERY TOO LATE ALTOGETHER TOO MUCH LIGHT

Detective's Knowledge Really Did Him Little Good After He Had Acquired It.

Daddy Endured Conditions as Long as He Could, and Then Entered Protest.

While they waited for the train two passengers entered into conversation. Presently one disclosed the fact that he was a detective, and the other was greatly interested.

They stood together by the open door. What mattered the cold to these pulsating lovers? What mattered the icy wind that entered from the street outside and threatened to extinguish

"Yes, I must say I have had my share of it," owned the sleuth.

"Discovered a great many gigantic frauds, I suppose?"

"I should say so," the detective replied. "Between you and me, the most complete case of fraud I ever saw was a woman, young and pretty. I would have been ready to swear she was an angel. But she has a temper like a whirlwind, and is as cunning as a serpent."

"How did you discover her true character?"

"I married her!"

The Difficulty.

"Does your boy Josh know anything about how the place ought to be run?"

"I'll say he does," answered Farmer Corntassel. "I'll say he knows all about it. The trouble seems to be that the hired man and I are too dumb to follow out instructions as fast as Josh can give 'em."

There's no use arguing with a man who has his mind made up not to agree with you.

"Heart of my heart," he whispered, "how I love you!"

"And how I love you," she answered back, "light of my days, light of my thoughts, light of my very existence, light—"

"Lucy," shouted her father's angry voice from above, "just put out that light at once and get to bed!"

A Cool Head.

While a six-year-old child of the East end was getting ready for school the other day her mother noticed that the water was fairly dripping out of her hair, and exclaimed: "Why, Wilma, what makes you wet your hair this cold day?"

The youngster replied: "Teacher told us to. She told us to keep our feet warm and our heads cool."—Indianapolis News.

Cadillac.—Mrs. Mildred Wolgast has been awarded $25 a week temporary alimony, pending the disposition of the suit for divorce filed in the Wexford circuit court. The alimony award was made by a California judge, who also restrained Ad Wolgast, the former world champion light weight pugilist, from disposing of any of his property, said to be valued at $17,000.

SENATE TIGHTENS TREATY DEADLOCK

REPASSES RESERVATION GIVING U. S. RIGHT TO WITHDRAW AT WILL FROM LEAGUE.

VOTE FOR ADOPTION, 45 TO 20

Outcome Foreshadows Pact Will Be Made Issue in Presidential Campaign This Year.

Washington—The first of the reservations attached to the peace treaty last November has been re-adopted unchanged and by an increased majority in the senate, after the treaty's irconcilable foes, holding the balance of power, had balked the efforts of Republican and Democratic leaders to secure modification in the interests of compromise.

The reservation on which the senate acted relates to withdrawal from membership in the league, providing that this nation shall be the sole judge whether its obligations have been fulfilled in case it desires to withdraw and that notice of withdrawal may be given with a concurrent resolution of congress.

The vote on its adoption was 45 to 20, 10 Democrats joining the solid Republican lineup supporting it.

The outcome, although involving the defection of four more democratic senators from the ranks of those who have stood against all reservations, generally was accepted by all elements in the senate as tightening the treaty deadlock and bringing the question of ratification one step nearer the political campaign.

Foreshadowing the outcome, most of the debate resolved about the treaty as a campaign issue and drew from conspicuous figures on the Republican side a volley of criticism of the utterances made on the subject by Elihu Root in his address before the New

THE "BLUES" Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people who worry, are despondent, have spells of mental depression, feel blue and are often melancholy, believe that these conditions are due to outside influences. Nearly always, however, they can be traced to an internal source—acid-stomach. Nor is it to be wondered at. Acid-stomach, beginning with such well-known symptoms as indigestion, belching, heartburn, bloating, etc., will, if not checked, in time affect to some degree or other all the vital organs. The nervous system becomes deranged. Digestion suffers. The blood is impoverished. Health and strength are undermined. The victim of acid-stomach, although he may not know the cause of his ailments, feels his hope, courage, ambition and energy slipping. And truly life is dark—not worth much to the man or woman who has acid-stomach!

And Chilly, Too. Jimson meant well, but somehow he was always putting his foot in it. At a dance he was presented to a young lady whose proportions were anything but meager. As usual, he asked her for a dance. She replied with a disconsolate air: "I am only free for the two-step and I cannot pledge myself for that because I'm afraid my people will be leaving before it comes off."

Weberville—N. M. Monroe has a cane which he has been using for the past year which has a rifle cartridge shell on the end for a ferrule. One day last week when the sidewalks were icy he thought a bad in the end of his cane would be a good thing and forthwith took the cane on the day's blacksmith shop. Mr. Bentley put the cane in a vise and after sharpening a spike attempted to drive it into the end of the cane. There was a deafening explosion, Nelt's hat flew heavenward, his hammer in another direction, and when the dust cleared away it was found he had a badly lacerated finger. The next time that Nelt drives a spike into a cartridge he will ascertain whether it is loaded or not.—Index.

has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

REVISED RAIL BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

MEASURE GUARANTEEING FIXED RETURN TO ROADS GIVEN SIG MAJORITY.

UNION'S PROTEST UNHEEDED

Federation and Brotherhood Chiefs Fight Bill—Arbitration Clause Objected To.

Washington.—The compromise Esch-Cummins railroad bill was approved February 21, by the house which adopted the conference report after four hours of debate. The vote was 249 to 150—a clean margin of 99 votes.

During the debate, in which more than a score of representatives took part, Chairman Esch declared that the railroads would be handed back to their owners on March 1, regardless of whether congress enacted legislation meanwhile, but he warned the house that defeat of the bill at this stage would put half the railroads of the country in the hands of receivers in three months.

Union labor, led by the officers of the American Federation of Labor and the railroad brotherhoods, made strenuous efforts to prevent Congress from passing the bill.

Besides the memorial prepared by representatives of 15 railroad unions and federation officers which was addressed to Congress as a whole indideluged with letters and telegrams from union leaders generally protesting against enactment of the bill.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a table-spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

At 10 a. m., April 6, 1909, the Stars and Stripes were hoisted over the North Pole, terminating a race for that honor which has attracted the most learned and daring explorers of the world for 400 years.

The man who finally accomplished the feat which won for this country an honor equal only by the discoverer of America, was Robert Edwin Peary, then a commander in the United States Navy, and one of the foremost Arctic explorers of the world. The achievement was the climax of a career of 23 years of effort, of which period 12 years were actually spent in the Arctic region.

LAW UPHOLDS NEGROES' RIGHTS

Cafe Manager Fined for Refusing to Serve Colored Patrons.

Grand Rapids.—Verdicts of $250 each have been awarded Rev. William N. Deberry, pastor of St. John's Congregational church, Springfield, Mass., Rev. Alex C. Garder, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church, of Washington, D. C., and Rev. Charles Wesley Burton, pastor of the Lincoln Memorial Congregational church, of Chicago, against Robert E. Jones, former manager of the Livingstone cafeteria, in their action to determine the civil rights of Negroes in Michigan.

The pastors are Negroes and attended the national counsel of the church in Grand Rapids last October, when they claimed Jones refused to serve them in his cafeteria. He called an officer, after they asked permission to obtain a dinner in the restaurant.

Mr. Higbie read from notes taken in the grand jury room. There was no objection by the defense, aside from an insistence that the record make note of the fact that the testimony was from notes.

The most startling statement was made by Dewitt Brown, a deputy game warden of Stephenson, Menominee County, who testified, according to Higbie, that he had been brought into the campaign by Roger M. Andrews, Menominee publisher, who gave him $50 for expenses in arranging for a show and speeches, that he had been told by "Harris" that Andrews received $30,000 from the Newberry Senatorial Committee for his work in the Upper Peninsula.

Henry A. Montgomery, divorce proctor of Wayne County and manager of the Osborn campaign in Wayne County, testified that the defendant Milton Oakman, former county clerk of Wayne and manager of the Newberry campaign in Wayne County, told him that he would have to be with Newberry because he (Oakman) had been promised $20,000.

Thirty Thousand Michigan Men Classified As "Willful Deserters."

New York.—Fifteen thousand draft dodgers living in Michigan are to be rounded up by the war department, military authorities here announced upon receipt from Secretary of War Baker of an order providing for the investigation of 173,911 men who are now classified as "willful deserters."

Originally 30,000 Michigan youths were reported as draft dodgers, but investigation, subsequent to the spring of 1918, revealed the fact that many men who had failed to report to their different boards had previously volunteered and some were at the front fighting.

Since the armistice was signed the war department has investigated more than 400,000 cases of alleged draft dodging. This number of suspects has been reduced to 173,911, it now appears.

The building's frontage is 30 feet and the depth 100 feet. The total gross rental will be $1,113,000, the lessees paying all taxes and charges.

More Daylight Bill in House Again.

Washington.—A daylight saving bill, an old friend of the house, has again fallen into the hopper. Introduced by Representative O'Connell, Democrat, of New York, it would put the clocks ahead one hour on the last Sunday in March and turn them back an hour the last Sunday in October. In view of the big vote by which the daylight saving law was repealed last year, Republican and Democratic leaders said there was no hope of its enactment.

Bert Morrison's confession had, however, set up another very insistent train of thought in Irene's mind. She realized that Bert, with all her show of cynicism and masculinity, was really a very womanly young woman, with just the training and the insight into life that would make her almost irresistible should she enter the matrimonial market. And Bert and Dave were already good friends; very good friends indeed, as Irene suspected from fragments of conversation which either of them dropped from time to time. Although she never doubted the singleness of Dave's devotion, she sometimes suspected that in Bert Morrison's presence he felt a more frank comradeship than in hers. And it was preposterous that he should not know that Bert might be won for the winning. And meantime

Another winter wore away; another spring came rushing from the mountain passes; another summer was upon them, and still Irene Hardy had not surrendered. A thousand times she told herself it was impossible, with her mother to think of—and always she ended in indignation over her treatment of Dave. It was outrageous to keep him waiting . . . and somewhere back of her self-indignation flitted the memory of Bert Morrison.

Irene Hardy chose to be frank with herself over the situation. She had not doubted the sincerity of her attachment for Dave Elden; but, as she experienced such a doubt, the memory of Bert Morrison in check as she guessed—she feared—she hoped—that she had prayed that he might forget his fine resolves—that his heart might at last outrule his head.

In the deepening darkness her fingers found his arm. The motion of the car masked the violence of her trembling, but for a time the pounding of her heart would not allow her speech.

"Dave," she said, at length, "I want to tell you that I think you—that we—that I—Oh, I've been very selfish and proud—" Her fingers had followed his arm to the shoulder, and the car had idled to a standstill. "I have fought as long as I can, Dave. I—I always wanted to—lose, you know; and now—I surrender."

Elden lost no time in facing the unpleasant task of an interview with Mrs. Hardy. It was even less pleasant than he expected.

"Irene is of age," said Mrs. Hardy, bluntly. "If she will, she will. But I must tell you plainly that I will do all I can to dissuade her. Ungrateful child!" she exclaimed, in an outburst of temper, "after all these years to throw herself away in an infatuation for a cow puncher when there are men like Mr. Conward—"

"Conward!" interrupted Dave. "He has the manners of a gentleman," she said, in a tone intended to be soothing.

"And the morals of a coyote," Dave returned hotly.

"O-o-h!" said Mrs. Hardy, in a low, shocked cry. That Elden should speak of Conward with such disdain seemed to her little less than sacrilege. Then, gathering herself together with some

He had no compunctions as to his method of attack. While Dave was manfully laying siege to the front gate Conward proposed to burglarize the home through the back door of family intimacy. And now that Dave seemed to have won the prize Conward realized that his own position was more secure than ever. Had he not been called in consultation by the girl's mother? Were not the inner affairs of the family now laid open before him? Did not his position as her mother's adviser permit him to assume toward Irene an attitude which, in a sense, was more intimate than even Dave's could be? He turned these matters over quickly in his mind and congratulated himself upon the wisdom of his tactics.

"It's very dreadful," Mrs. Hardy was saying, between dabblings of her perfumed handkerchief on eyes that bore witness to the gentleness of her distress. "Irene is not an ordinary girl. She has in her qualities that justified me in hoping that—that she would do—very different from this. Need I conceal from you, Mr. Conward—from you, of all men—what have been my hopes for Irene?"

Conward's heart leaped at the confession. He had secretly entertained some doubt as to Mrs. Hardy's purpose in opening her home to him as she had done; absurd as the hypothesis seemed, still there was the hypothesis that Mrs. Hardy saw in Conward a possible comfort to her declining days. He had no doubt that her vanity was equal to that position, but he had done her less than justice in supposing that she had any directly words of praise fell very gratefully upon him. Flatterers are seldom proof against their own poison.

"Yes, I have studied human nature," he admitted. "The most interesting—and the most profitable—of all studies. And I know that young couples in love are not governed by the ordinary laws of reason. That is why it is useless to argue with Irene—sensible girl though she is—on a subject like this. We must reach her some other way."

"The way that occurs to me is to create distrust. Love is either absurdly trustful or absurdly suspicious. There is no middle course, no balanced judgment. In the trustfulness of love little virtues are magnified to angelic qualities, and vices are quite unseen. But change that trust to suspicion, and a hidden, sinister meaning is found behind the simplest word or act. We must plan two campaigns: One, which I have already suggested, and one, if that should fail, to cause Elden to distrust Irene. No, no," he said, raising his hand toward Mrs. Hardy, who had started from her seat, "there must be no vestige of reason, except that the end justifies the means. It is a case of saving Irene, even if we must pain her—and you—in the saving."

"It's very dreadful," Mrs. Hardy repeated. "But you are very thorough; you leave nothing to chance. I suppose that is the way with all big business men."

"You can trust me," Conward assured her. "There is no time to be lost, and I must plan my campaigns at once."

NEW SOURCE OF TURPENTINE

Tree in Central India to Be Looked To for Supply of Really Good Quality.

Turpentine oil and rosin are already being produced on a commercial scale in India by the distillation of pine resin. A new source of supply which though comparatively small, may be valuable, especially for Indian use, has now been found in frankincense or oilbanum. This material is obtained by the natives by making incisions in the stems of Boswellia serrata, a tree continued to trifle with Dave Elden—Yes, trifle. She would be frank. She would not spare herself. She had been trifling with him. . . . She would lay her false pride aside. In the purity of her womanhood, which he could not misunderstand, she would divest herself of all convention and tell him frankly that—that—

She was not sure what she would tell or how she would tell it. She was sure only that she would make him know. . . . At the very next opportunity.

It came on a fine summer's evening in late July, while Dave and Irene drifted in his car over the rich ripening prairies.

Everywhere were fields of dark-green wheat, already beginning to glimmer with the gold of harvest; everywhere were herds of sleek cattle sighing and blowing contentedly in the cool evening air. Away to the west lay the mountains, blue and soft as a pillow of velvet for the head of the dying day; overhead, inverted islands of brass and copper floated lazily in an inverted sea of azure and opal; up from the southwest came the breath

"We started at the wrong end in our nation building," Dave was saying. "We started to build cities, leaving the country to take care of itself. We are finding out how wrong we were. Depend upon it, where there is a prosperous country the cities will take care of themselves. We have been putting the cart before the horse—"

But Irene's eyes were on the sunset; on the slowly fading colors of the cloudlands overhead. Something of that color played across her fine face, mellowing, softening, drawing as it seemed, the very soul to cheeks and lips and eyes. Dave paused in his speech to regard her, and her beauty rushed upon him, engulfed him, overwhelmed him in such a poignancy of tenderness that it seemed for a moment all his resolves must be swept away and he must storm the citadel that would not surrender to siege. . . . Only action could hold him resolute; he pressed down the accelerator until the steel lungs of his motor were drinking power to their utmost capacity and the car roared furiously down the stretches of the country road.

It was dusk when he had burnt out his violence, and, chastened and spent, he turned the machine to hum back gently to the forgotten city. Irene, by some fine telepathy, had followed vaguely the course of his emotions; had followed them in delicious excitement and fear and hope. She sensed in some subtle feminine way the impulse that had sent him roaring into the distances; she watched his powerful hand on the wheel; his clear, steady eye; the minute accuracy with which he controlled his flying motor; and she prayed—and did not know what or why she prayed. But a color not all of the dying sunlight lit her world you to see Irene; I know that would be useless. But please do not trouble me with your presence."

When Dave had gone Mrs. Hardy rang up Conward's number.

"Oh, Mr. Conward!" she said. "You know who is speaking? . . . Yes. You must come up tonight. I do want to talk with you. I—I've been insulted—in my own house. By that—that Elden. It's all very terrible. I can't tell you over the telephone."

Conward called early in the evening. Mrs. Hardy had heard the bell and bustled into the room. She had not yet recovered from her agitation, and made no effort to conceal it.

"Come into my sitting room, Mr. Conward. I am so glad you have come. Really, I am so upset. It is such a comfort to have some one you can depend on—some one whose advice one can seek, on occasions like this. I never thought—"

"There, there," he said. "You must control yourself. Tell me. It will relieve you, and perhaps I can help."

"Oh, I'm sure you can," she returned. "It's all over Irene and that—that—I will say it—that cow puncher."

Mr. Conward, you are not a mother, so you can't understand. Ungrateful girl! But I blame him. And the doctor. I never wanted him to come West. It was that fool trip, in that fool motor—"

Conward smiled to himself over her unaccustomed violence. Mrs. Hardy must be deeply moved when she forgot to be correct. He had readily surmised the occasion of her distress. It needed no words from Mrs. Hardy to tell him that Irene and Dave were engaged. He had expected it for some time, and the information was not altogether distasteful to him. He had come somewhat under the spell of Irene's attractiveness, but he had no deep attachment for her. He was not aware that he had ever had an abiding attachment for any woman. Attachments were things which he put on and off as readily as a change of clothes. He planned to hit Dave through Irene, but he planned that when he struck it should be a death blow. Their engagement would lend a sharper edge to his shaft.

It may as well be set down that for Mrs. Hardy Conward had no regard whatever. Even while he shaped soft words for her ear he held her in contempt. To him she was merely a silly old woman.

From the day he had first seen Mrs. Hardy his attitude toward her had been one of subtle flattery, partly because it pleased his whim and partly on that same day he had seen Irene, and he was shrewd enough to know that his approach to the girl's affections must be made by way of the acquaintance which he would establish under the guise of friendship for her mother. Since his trouble with Dave Conward had a double purpose in developing that acquaintanceship.

Flatterers Are Seldom Proof Against Their Own Poison.

by bringing Conward into the house, by bringing Irene under the influence of a close family acquaintanceship with him, that young lady might be led to see the folly of the road she was following. . . .

"I suppose I need not conceal from you," he answered, "what my hopes have been. It is reasonably safe to judge a daughter by her mother, and by that standard Irene is one of the most adorable of young women."

"I have been called attractive in my day," confessed Mrs. Hardy, warming at once to his flattery.

"Have been?" said Conward. "Say rather you are. If I had not been rendered, perhaps, a little partial by my admiration of Irene, I—well, one can scarcely give his heart in two places, you know. And my deep regard for you, Mrs. Hardy—my desire that you shall be spared this—ah—threatened humiliation, will justify me in using heroic measures to bring this unfortunate affair to a close. You may trust me, Mrs. Hardy. Irene is—you will forgive me, Mrs. Hardy, but Irene is, if I may say it, somewhat headstrong. She is—"

"She is her father over again," Mrs. Hardy interrupted. "I told him he should not attempt that crazy trip of his without me along, but he would go. And this is what he has brought upon me, and he not here to share it."

Mrs. Hardy's tone conveyed very plainly her grievance over the doctor's behavior in evading the consequences of the situation which his headstrong folly had created.

"She is set in her own mind," Conward continued. "We must not openly oppose her. We must adopt other tactics."

"You are very clever," said Mrs. Hardy. "You have been a student of human nature."

Conward smiled pleasurably. Little as he valued Mrs. Hardy's opinion, her the cues contains a kind of turpentine, a rosin and a gum.

Investigations of the methods of separating these constituents in a marketable form have been conducted since 1912 by the forest authorities in India in co-operation with the Imperial Institute, and the results have been published recently in a paper by R. S. Pearson, forest economist, and Puran Singh, chemical adviser, at the Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun. The general conclusion reached, based on the results of numerous trials, is that the turpentine oil is equal to good quality American turpentine oil.

Dust to Check Explosions.

Perhaps the oddest, yet one of the most effective, means for preventing—or, at all events, minimizing—disasters in coal mines is the use of rock dust. A lot of it is placed on boards hung by chains from the roofs of mine tunnels. Obviously in case of an explosion the boards will swing and the dust will be thrown off. Following an explosion a roaring flame, let us say, is coming through the tunnel. The air is filled with coal dust (or possibly with inflammable gas) to feed it. But it meets a curtain of non-inflammable rock dust (discharged from the rock shelves) and is thereby stopped. Rock dust will not burn under any provocation. Suspended thickly in the air, it acts like an asbestos curtain. The flames cannot get through it.

Temperamental Disposition.

Frequently a burst of temper will throw a whole office out of gear. A temperamental disposition is sometimes excusable in a great executive, because it is his safety valve. But do not think for one minute that it has aided him to get where he is. On the contrary it has made him climb harder, you may be sure. Save your temper, be patient, be pleasant, and you will save yourself many reactions which work against concentration. But if you will go about your work quietly you will find that much more may be accomplished, because your entire attention will be given to your work, instead of being frittered away in hickering and fault-finding, futile and costly detriments to good work of any kind.—New York Evening Telegram.

Antiquity of the Emerald.

The emerald has been known since early times both in Europe and in certain parts of the Orient, where its attractive color and rarity have endowed it with the highest rank. Its name may be traced back to an old word which appeared in Greek as smaragdos, mentioned in Greek by Theophrastus 800 B. C.
