Vol. XXXVII

Pinckney, Livingston County, Michigan, Thursday April 1, 1920

No. 14.

Daylight Saving Urged By Governor

Lansing, Mich., March 29.—A proclamation issued by Governor Sleeper Monday calls upon all communities to adopt eastern standard time during spring and summer, beginning April 6.

The proclamation follows: "The use of two times within the state of Michigan is the cause of a good deal of inconvenience and confusion, and furthermore the adoption of eastern time by the whole state during the spring and summer months would give us an extra hour of daylight at the close of the day.

"Therefore, I, Albert E. Sleeper, governor of the state of Michigan, do issue this my proclamation and I respectfully urge all communities, which have not already done so, to take the necessary action to make eastern time official on and after April 6 next. I further request that on that day all timepieces that now indicate Central time be set ahead one hour."

As all nearby cities and villages have adopted the daylight-saving time, why not make the change here also? So the Village President, Dr. C. L. Sigler hereby notifies the public that the official time for Pinckney will be eastern standard time on and after April 6th, in accordance with the above proclamation.

OBITUARY

William Gawley was born in Drumkirk, County Monaghan, Ireland, in 1841. He was the oldest surviving son of Thomas and Eliza Gawley, whose ancestors were Scottish Covenanters who settled in Ireland during the exodus from Scotland in the troublesome times of the latter half of the seventeenth century.

The family emigrated to America and first settled in Dixboro, Washtenaw County, moving from there to the present home farm when this section was new.

He died at his home Wednesday evening, March 24.

With the help of his brother Freeman and sisters, William cleared up the land and later became a prosperous farmer.

The surviving relatives are his brother Freeman, and Mrs. Alice Golden of Galesburg, Mrs. S. J. Butterfield of Detroit, George Pettys of Washington, D. C., Harry Crippen and H. J. Smith of Detroit, and L. E. Smith of Pinckney, nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held in the Congregational church Saturday, March 27, Rev. Cook officiating. Interment in Pinckney cemetery.

Livingston County Taxes

Livingston county has become very rich in the way of paying taxes. The county treasurer has paid the state $104,972.73, its share of the state tax for the year 1919.

Changing Residences

J. J. Teeple is moving from his old home, recently sold to R. D. Clinton, to his apartment recently occupied by E. G. Lambertson.

R. D. Clinton and family are moving from the Dunbar house on West Main St. to the Teeple house.

Albert Frost will soon move from his present farm home to the house now occupied by R. D. Clinton.

Reds in Ann Arbor Jail

Ten Federal prisoners from Detroit arrived at the county jail in Ann Arbor Friday for an extended stay.

Crowded conditions in Detroit jails have made it necessary to move some of the prisoners to nearby cities. Most of the men are radicals who are awaiting deportation or further investigation.—Chelsea Tribune.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN?

The Oxford Leader wants to know what would happen if farmers and their help were to get $1.00 per hour for what they do. They would have to get $4.50 per bushel for potatoes, $20 a bushel for beans, $50 a ton for hay, $8 a hundred pounds for milk, and everything in like proportion. Then the workmen in the cities would have to have more wages, and the country editor would be no more.—South Lyon Herald.

From the Atlantic to Iowa and from Tennessee to Canada clover is the key crop in rotations, but there is a gradual though steady decline in the culture of red clover in this area. Specialists in the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, are seriously concerned over this decline and urge all farmers to get back to clover.

Less planting of clover has injuriously affected the productiveness of the region and is likely to affect it still more injuriously if something is not done either to increase the acreage of clover or to find a substitute.

"Whether a farmer adopts a three, four or five year rotation," the specialists declare, "he is sure to find that his yields will decline if he does not have clover in the rotation. Theoretically, of course, it is possible to substitute another leguminous crop for clover, but clover fits so well into the agricultural practices of this section that it is the only leguminous crop having any large degree of influence upon keeping up the productivity of the soil."

How to Control Hog Mange

Hog mange is spread mainly by direct bodily contact, according to investigations recently conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture. The disease is contracted most rapidly among hogs of low vitality, especially those kept in small enclosures. It spreads more slowly among vigorous animals kept in pastures or in clean, well-lighted, roomy pens or buildings. Failure by swine owners to control hog mange results in heavy losses from shrinkage as well as from a high death rate. The department states that the disease can be eliminated by four dippings in a lime-sulphur or arsenical solution with intervals of 6 or 7 days between dippings.

HAS NO PAIN NOW

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Mrs. Warner.

Onalaska, Wis.—"Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of stomach I could not lie in bed. I suffered so it seemed as though I would die, and I was not regular either. I suffered for a year and was unfit to do my housework, could only wash dishes once in a while. I read an advertisement of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other women and decided to try it. It surely did wonders for me. I have no pains now and I can do my housework without any trouble at all. I will always praise your medicine as I do not believe there is a doctor that can do as much good in female weakness, and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. LESTER E. WARNER, R. 1, Box 69, Onalaska, Wis.

The reason women write such letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. and tell their friends how they are helped is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives. Freed from their illness they want to pass the good news along to other suffering women that they also may be relieved.

GERMAN REPUBLIC MAY GET ALLIES AID

IF EBERT GOVERNMENT CANNOT DOWN BOLSHEVISM TROOPS WILL INTERVENE.

REDS GAINING IN STRENGTH

Threaten to Destroy All Factories and Mines in Western Germany, Says Berlin Dispatch.

Paris.—Allied military intervention in the Ruhr District of Germany will follow, if troops of the Ebert government are unable to restore order there. If the Ebert emissaries are unable to negotiate peace in the present parleys, it was said, the Allies will grant full permission to send as many troops into the district as President Ebert wishes.

Several French military and economic experts have gone to the Rhine to follow developments in the Communist revolution. These men say Germany faces a critical situation unless she can quell the Reds immediately.

The district under Communist control contains Germany's only unpledged coal supply and on the output of these Ruhr mines the nation's coal supply and industrial life depends.

Reds Set Up Rule.

London.—Workers' forces entrenched along the Lippe river, south and southeast of the city of Wesel, threaten, if they fail to capture Wesel, to destroy all factories and mines in western Germany, says a Berlin dispatch.

The Reds have established great headquarters similar to that of the old German army and are issuing frontier are calm, but railroad and telegraph conditions are chaotic and food is growing scarcer in southern Germany. Many wealthy German families after much trouble in securing passports are crossing the border to get good meals. They are forced to return to Germany within 24 hours, however, and because of the exchange rate must pay high prices for food secured in Switzerland.

TREATY EVADED, SAY FRENCH

Allied Commission Reported to Have Found 12,000 Cannon in Germany.

Paris.—Three thousand five hundred three-inch field guns have been found by the inter-allied commission in the vicinity of Berlin alone and altogether 12,000 of these guns have thus far been discovered throughout Germany, as well as 6,000 aeroplanes intact. According to the terms of the treaty of Versailles the German army should now have only 204 three-inch guns and no aeroplanes whatsoever.

These discoveries and other information in possession of the French authorities have caused considerable skepticism here as to the reason given for the request of the Berlin government that it be permitted to send troops into the neutral and occupied zones.

The fact that the request came before the Germans had executed any material clause of the treaty, although the time limit has expired on some three score of its provisions, is declared in French official circles as laying the Germans over to suspicion of making another move in efforts to prevent the carrying out of the engagements they entered into at Versailles.

SUGAR BEET WAR THREATENS

Growers Demand More Money Or No Beets Will Be Grown.

Owosso, Mich.—Unless the controversy between the sugar beet growers and manufacturers in Michigan is settled within 20 days, no beets can be grown, according to C. E. Ackerman, of Durand, manager of the Michigan Growers' association.

The growers are demanding a conference with the manufacturers in an effort to get a more profitable contract. Hundreds of growers about the state have returned their contracts to the companies and say they will not grow beets unless more money is paid. Ackerman says the growers' association now has 9,000 members, divided into 100 locals. The association is to be incorporated.

He announces that the state farm bureau has asked the manufacturers for a conference, between representatives of the growers and the farm bureau.

Congressman Drops Dead in Barber Shop

Washington, Representative W. J. Browning, of Camden, N. J., dropped dead last week in the barber shop at the capitol. Mr. Browning was about to step out of the barber's chair when he was stricken with an attack of heart failure. He died before physicians who were hastily summoned could reach the shop.

Born in Camden, N. J., 70 years ago, Mr. Browning had represented the first New Jersey district in congress since 1911, having been elected while serving as chief clerk of the house of representatives.

He was the ranking Republican member of the naval committee.

PLAN AIR ROUTE FROM DETROIT

Regular Service to Cleveland and Buffalo Scheduled.

Detroit.—Twelve passengers will fly from Detroit to Cleveland May 1 in the first of the aerial feet of a new company now in the final stages of formation here, according to reports. Thereafter a regular schedule of trips is planned to be maintained, not only between Detroit and Cleveland, but between Detroit and Buffalo. Later Toronto will be included in the points reached.

That passenger carrying through the air has reached a practical stage is proved, say the backers of the new service.

While it is planned to extend the service to many additional points, at the present time the company is limited by the fact that its "fleet" will be composed exclusively of sea planes. The river or lake routes will have to be adhered to because these planes are not equipped for landing except on water.

Two Curtis sea planes are due to arrive in Detroit within the next week.

Compromises will be made on the trip. A little more than an hour will be required for the journey between Detroit and Cleveland.

Behind the scheme is ex-Lieutenant Thomas F. Dunn, an American aviator.

RED ARMIES ATTACK POLAND

Spring Drive of Bolsheviki Launched on 400 Mile Front.

Warsaw.—Bolshevik attacks have been launched against the Polish line at scattered points along a front of approximately 400 miles and the long planned spring attack by the Russian soviet armies apparently has been commenced.

While the bolsheviki have made small advances at some places despite the desperate resistance of the Poles, the latter have been holding the enemy in check in most sections, say official statements.

The Reds have been compelled to retreat from several newly acquired positions along the front, but fighting still continues, the soviet troops using heavy artillery, tanks, armored cars and other apparatus captured from General Denekine on the south Russian front.

NEW YORK FIGHTS WATERWAY

Great Lakes to Ocean Project Opposed By Eastern Interests.

New York.—The project to make the St. Lawrence River, between Montreal and Lake Ontario, navigable for ocean-going vessels was declared to be a "commercial and economic failure," in a resolution adopted by the New York delegation of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress.

The resolution declared that the proposition now being considered by the international Joint Boundary Commission, whereby the United States is to co-operate with Canada in the construction of the canal, should be opposed "within all reasonable means."

REPUBLICANS WANT FORD QUIZ

Demand Investigation of Campaign Expense in Senatorial Fight.

Saginaw, Mich.—Saginaw county Republicans have demanded an investigation of the campaigns of Henry Ford and Chase S. Osborn, to follow the recent Newberry investigation.

Resolutions, were unanimously adopted by the Saginaw county Republican committee as follows: "Resolved, That the governor be requested to direct the attorney general to cause to be called a grand jury in Ingham county to investigate the expenses of Henry Ford and Chase S. Osborn in the primary and other elections held in 1918."

After being freed from the demolished car the chickens scattered in all directions, and within a short time residents of West Alton were engaged in a chicken hunt.

Income Tax For 1919 Is $3,500,000,000.

Washington.—Income and excess profits taxes aggregating $908,828,172 were paid as the first installment of the nation's tax bill for 1919. While these figures do not represent an exact one-fourth of the taxes for last year, they indicate collection for the entire year of approximately $3,500,000,000, treasury officials say. The first installment more than offsets outstanding treasury certificates of indebtedness, issued in anticipation of the payment.

INDIGESTION Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people—in fact about 9 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion.

ing, heartburn, bloating after eating, food peaking, sour, gassy stomach. There are many ailments which, while they do not cause much distress in the stomach itself, are, nevertheless, traceable to an acid stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver, rheumatism, impoverished blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia and a long train of physical and mental miseries that keep the victims in miserable health year after year.

The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC now makes it easy to do this.

One of hundreds of thousands of grateful users of EATONIC writes: "I have been troubled with indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the gas and pain in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed."

We have thousands of letters telling of these marvelous benefits. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise.

"Your country needs you more," she whispered. "It is better that way. And what a man you are in uniform! I think I see you smashing heads instead of bottles. Six out of six, Dave! It's awful, but you must do it. Already we know what has happened in Belgium. You will forget your own wrongs in the greater wrongs of others. . . . And I shall join the service as a nurse. My father was a doctor, and I can soon pick it up."

She chatted on, but he had become suddenly grave. "I don't think that is your course, Irene," he said. "This is going to be a bigger job than it looked. The government will get soldiers and nurses; the popular imagination turns to such things. But it will be neither soldiers nor nurses that will win the war. I feel sure of that now. Millions of men will be taken from production and turned to purposes of destruction. They will be taken from offices, where they need little food, and put in the trenches, where they need much food. Countries will be devastated; armies will retreat, destroying all food as they go. Ships will go down with cargoes of wheat; incendiary fires will swallow warehouses of food. I believe my place is in the trenches; but those less fit for the fight than I must, in some form or other, produce food. That includes the women; it includes you."

"We? But what can I do?" "Since I left home I've thought a good deal of the old ranch. I despised it in those prosperous days—those days we thought were prosperous—but the prosperity is gone and the ranch remains. It still lies out there, and your father confided. "She tum back pwetty soon."

"And father?" I asked. "Where is he?"

Into the dark eyes came a deeper look; they suddenly shone with the spirituality of a life only three years removed from the infinite. By what instruction, I afterward wondered, by what almost divine charm had she been able to instil into his young mind the honor and the glory and the pride of it? For there was pride, and something more than pride—adoration, perhaps—in his words as he straightened up and said in perfect English: "My father was a soldier. He was killed at Courcellette."

I looked in his little sunburnt face, in his dark, proud eyes, and presently a strange mist enveloped the room. How many little faces, how many pairs of eyes! It was just fading away when a step sounded on the walk, and I arose as she reached the door.

"The Man of the House has made me at home," I managed to say. "I am shipwrecked on the hill for a little gasoline."

"There is plenty out in the field, where the tractor is," she replied. "You will find it without difficulty. Or if you care to wait here, Charlie may be along presently."

Her voice had sweet, modulated tones, with just that touch of pathos which only the Angel of Suffering knows how to add. And her face was fair, and gentle, and a little sad, and very sweet.

"He has told me," I said. There seemed no reason why I should not say it. She had entered into the situation

I took it and read:

I have had many letters to write since my service began as a nurse in the war, but never have I approached the task with such mixed emotions. The pain must give you, I would gladly bear myself if I could; but it is not all pain; underneath it, running through it in some way I cannot explain, is a note so much deeper than pain that it must be joy.

You have already been advised that David Eiden was among those who fell at Courcellette. It is trite to say that you have the sympathy of a grateful nation. How grateful the nation really is we shall know by its treatment of the heroes who survive the war and of the dependents of those who have crossed over. But nothing can rob you of the knowledge that he played a man's part. Nothing can debar you from that universal fellowship of sympathy which is springing up wherever manhood is valued for its worth.

A new Order has been born into the world; the Order of Suffering. Not that it is new, either; it has been with us since the first mother went into the shadow for her first child; but always suffering has been incidental, a matter of the individual, a thing to be escaped if possible. But now it is universal, a thing not to be escaped, but to be accepted, readily, bravely, even gladly. And all who so accept it enter into the new Order, and wear its insignia, which is unselfishness and sympathy and service. And in that Order you shall not be least, measured by either your sacrifice or the spirit in which you accept it.

But you are yearning for his last word: for some voice which will seem to you now almost a voice out of the grave, and I am happy to be able to bring you that word. It was something more than chance that guided me that night—as it is every night.

We were well behind the line of actual fighting, but I had become detached from my party in moving to another station; lost, if you like, yet not lost; never have I gone so directly to so great a destination. While trying to get my location, I became aware of a presence; it will sound strange to you, but I became intensely aware of your presence. Of course I knew it could not be you, in the flesh, but you it seemed to be, nevertheless. I moved as though led by an invisible hand, and presently I found a bit of shattered wall. In the gloom I could just discern the form of a man lying in the shelter of the wall—if you could call it shelter—it rose scarce a foot above the ground.

I knelt beside him and turned my torch on his face. It was pale even through the brown skin; the closed, the hair was matted, plastered on the forehead; there were smears of blood on it and on his cheeks. As my light fell on his lips they framed a smile.

"Reenie," he said, "it was good of you to come. I knew you would come."

"I am here, Dave," I answered, and I think you will forgive the impersonation. "Now let me find out where you are hurt and we'll fix you up, and get you moved presently."

He opened his eyes and looked at me

His voice was weaker, and I had to lean close to catch his words.

"I'm going—out," he said. "Kiss me, Reenie."

And then I kissed him—for you. Suddenly he sat up. "The mountains!" he exclaimed, and his voice was a thrill with the pride of his old hills. "See the moonlight—on the mountains!"

Then his strength, which seemed to have gathered itself for this one last vision of the place of his boyhood, gave way, and he fell back, and he did not speak any more.

And what can I add? Dear, it is not defeat. It is promise. It is hope.

Some day we shall know. But until then we shall go on. It is woman's bit to carry on. But not in despondency, not in bitterness, not in anger or despair. He didn't go out that way. He was reverent—and a little curious, and he went out with a smile. And we shall go on, and carry his smile and his confidence through the valley of our sacrifice. What am I doing, speaking of our sacrifice? I salute you, sister in the Order of Suffering—and of hope.

EDITH DUNCAN.

I handed the letter back to her, and for a time I had no words. "Won't you let me tell the story?" I said, at length. "The world is full of sorrow, and it needs voices to give that sorrow words, and perhaps turn it into hope—as this letter does."

She hesitated, and I realized then how much I had asked. "It is the story of my life—my soul," she said. "Yet, if it would help—"

"Without names," I hastened to explain. "Without real names of places or people."

And so, in that little whitewashed home, where the brown hills rise around and the placid mountains look down from the distance, and a tongue of spruce trees beyond the stream stands sentinel against the open prairie, she is carrying on, not in despondency and bitterness, but in service and in hope. And so her sisters, all this world over, must carry on, until their sweetness and their sacrifice shall fill up and flood over all the valleys of hate.

And if you should chance that way, and if you should win the confidence of young Three-year-old, he may stand for you and say, with his voice filled with the honor and the glory and the pride of it: "My father was a soldier. He was killed at Courcellette."

back there, Reenie. I think you'll have to take the boy Charlie, and what other help you can get, and go back to the old ranch and raise something for the soldiers to eat. You can do it. There are good men to be had; men who can't very well carry a rifle, but can drive a plow. And believe me, Reenie, it's the plow that's going to win. Go back and put them at it. Think of every furrow as another trench in the defenses which shall save your home from the fate of Belgium's homes. It's not as easy as going to the front; it hasn't got the heroic ring to it, and I suppose there are many who will commercialize it. Let them. We shall need their profits after the war to pay our debts. But it's the thing that must be done. And you'll do it, won't you?"

"I'll do whatever needs to be done, Dave. I'd rather be by your side, or as near as may be, but if you say that my duty lies back on the old ranch I shall go back to the old ranch and raise food for my soldier. And when it's all over we shall ride those old hillsides again. . . . Up the canyon, you remember, Dave? The little niche in the wall of the canyon, and all the silence and the sunlight? . . . Forever."

CHAPTER XV.

Any philosophy which accepts the principle that the great, overshadowing events of life are subject to an intelligent controlling influence must of necessity grant that the same principle applies to the most commonplace and every-day experiences. The course of the greatest stream of events may well be deflected by incidents so commonplace as to quite escape the notice of the casual observer.

Some such thought as this comforted me—or, at least, would have comforted me, had I thought it—when a leaking gasoline tank, left me, literally as well as figuratively, high and dry in the foothills. The sun of an August afternoon blazed its glory from a cloudless sky; low in a valley to the left a ribbon of silver-green mountain water threaded its way through fringes of spruce and cottonwood, while on the uplands beyond sleek steers drowsed in the sunshine, and far to the westward the Rockies slept unconcerned in their draperies of afternoon purple. All these scenes the eye took in without enthusiasm, almost without approval, and then fell on the whitewashed ranch buildings almost in the shadow underneath. And in these days a ranch—almost any ranch—meant gasoline.

I soon stood at the door. My knock attracted a little chap of two and a half or three years; his stout hands showed the screen back, and I found myself ushered into his company. There evidently was no one else about, so I visited, and we talked on those things which are of importance in the world of three-year-olds.

"Muvver's don to the wiver," he

"My Father Was a Soldier—He Was Killed at Courcellette."

terhood—that universal sisterhood of suffering which the world has known in these long, lonely years.

And it was between us, for we were all in the family. There was no occasion to scrape acquaintance by slow, conventional thrust and parry.

"Yes," she said, sitting down and motioning me to a chair. "I was bitter at first. I was dreadfully bitter at first. But gradually I got a different view of it. Gradually I came to feel and know that all we can feel and know here is on the surface—on the outside, as you might say, and we can't know the purpose until we are inside. It is as though life were a riddle, and the key is hidden, and the door behind which the key is hidden is called Death. And I don't believe it's all for nothing; I won't believe it's all for nothing."

"Then there is the suffering," she continued, after a pause. I don't know why there should be suffering, but I know if there were no suffering there would be no kindness. It is not until you are hit—hard hit—that you begin to think of other people. Until then all is selfishness. But we women—we women of the war—we have nothing left to be selfish for. But we have the whole world to be unselfish for. It's all different, and it can never go back. We won't let it go back. We've paid too much to let it go back."

It was hard to find a reply. "I think I knew your husband a little," I ventured. "He was—a man."

"He was all that," she said. She arose and stood for a moment in an attitude of hesitation; her fingers went to her lips as though enjoining caution. Then with quick decision she went into an inner room, from which she returned in a moment with a letter.

"If you knew him you may care to read this," she said. "It's very personal, and yet, some way, everything is impersonal now, in a sense. There has been such a common cause, and such a wave of common suffering, that it seems to flood out over the individual and embrace us all. . . . So this is really, in a sense, your letter as well as mine."

had taken me in. "Funny, I thought it was Irene. I must have been dreaming." I questioned him again about his wound and began feeling his hair. "It's not there," he said. "Guess I got it all over my hands. They got me this time. Don't waste time on me. Some other fellow may have a chance."

I found, with a little examination, that the case was as bad as he supposed. Fortunately, the wound had induced a local paralysis, and he was not suffering to any great degree. I placed my hand in his and felt his grip tighten on it.

"I'm going to stay till it's over, Dave. We'll see it out together."

"That's decent," he answered, and then was still for quite a time.

"I've often wondered what was on the other side," he said, at length. "I shall know presently."

"You are not afraid?" I whispered. "No. Only sort of curious. And—reverent. I guess it's reverent. You know I haven't been much on religion. Never seemed to get the formula. What is the formula? I mean the key—the thing that gives it all in one word?"

"In one word—sacrifice. He that loathes his life shall find it. I quoted."

He did not answer, but I could see his lips smiling again. His breath was more labored. A few drops of rain fell, and some of them splattered on his face.

Presently he chuckled. It was an eery sensation, out on that broad plain of death, alone by the side of this man who was already far into the shadow—to hear him chuckle.

"That splash of water—you remember—it made me think of the time we pulled the old car into the stream, and the harness broke or something, and I had to carry you. You remember that, Reenie?" I could only say "Yes," and press his hand. His mind was back on the old, old trails.

He became suddenly sober. "And when Browne was killed, he went on. I said it was the innocent thing that got caught. Perhaps I was right. But perhaps it's best to get caught. Not for the getting caught, but for the—the compensations. It's the innocent men that are getting killed. And perhaps it's best. Perhaps there are compensations worth while."

WHALE BLAMED FOR DISEASE

Malady That Attacks the Lungs is Thus Diagnosed by Prominent Danish Scientist.

The echinococcus disease (caused by a small tapeworm in the liver or lungs), which first made its appearance in Holland, is believed by Dr. Van Delnse to be due originally to whales. The Medical Record quotes from a Dutch scientific paper some of the facts upon which Van Delnse bases this theory.

"It is said that this affection is endemic in Iceland and that it eventually reached Friesland from that locality. Not only Friesland was attacked in the eighteenth century, but many other seaports along the North sea and English channel. The connecting link appeared to be the whale fisheries, originally a Basque industry, with headquarters at Bordeaux. In the seventeenth century the channel ports engaged in the whale-catching industry. Friesland, possibly infected from Iceland, also engaged in whaling, appeared to be a distributing point of the infection.

"Not only whales, but also seals and other Arctic fauna, were perhaps infected with echinococcus disease, was swung upward and held for a fraction of a second before it "went." How started a custom, a mannerism now so general that no one drinking in company would think of omitting it even in these days of ginger ale and sarsaparilla? American sportsmanship demands that boxers shake hands before the bout. Autre temps autres mœurs. The time and temperament that sanctioned duels decreed that before the mortal combat the antagonists drink a glass of wine. To avoid the suspicion of attempting to poison each other's liquor both raised their glasses aloft and poured a little from each into the other. In these unromantic days poison has passed out of fashion, but the custom of raising glasses with its significance and implication of sincerity has remained.—Exchange.

What Men Do Not Confess.

Some things men really confess, and other things they do not. No one will confess that he is a fool or without understanding; but quite the contrary, you will hear all men saying, I wish I had the fortune equal to my understanding. A man will not readily confess that he is intemperate; and that he is unjust he will not confess at all. He will by no means confess that he is envious or a busybody. Most men will admit that they are compassionate. What, then, is the reason? The chief thing is inconsistency and confusion in the things that relate good and evil. They do not at all confess the things that are offenses against society.—Epictetus.

Believed to Bar Mosquitoes.

Many plants are popularly believed to keep away mosquitoes, among them being several species of eucalyptus the castor-oil plant, the chinaberry tree, etc. Scientific observations have not confirmed the popular idea on this subject.

FIND THE CAUSE!

It isn't right to drag along feeling miserable—half sick. Find out what is making you feel so badly and try to correct it. Perhaps your kidneys are causing that throbbing backache or those sharp, stabbing pains. You may have morning lameness, too, headache, dizzy spells and irregular kidney action. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands of ailing folks. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. John McDonnals, 1119 Fourth St., Escanaba, Mich., says: "Some years ago kidney trouble made my life miserable. My back was so sore that I couldn't straighten up to save my life and my whole body ached. My kidneys were weak and irregular in action and caused annoyance. My hands and feet were swollen and if I pressed my fingers into the flesh a dent remained for quite some time. Six boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills soon cured me."

Logic in Her Assertion.

Mabel, age seven, led off after the Sunday blessing with a story she had heard on the way home from Sunday school. "A little boy," said Mabel, "who went to ball games said Sunday school wasn't much different from ball games, because at the Sunday school they sang, 'Stand Up for Jesus,' and at the ball game they said—"

"Mabel!" cried the horrified family in unison, "don't tell that story!"

"Why?" asked Mabel. "Have you all heard it?"

"Of course, and it's—"

"Well, then," proceeded Mabel calmly, "it won't hurt you to hear me tell it."—Kansas City Star.

"The one best thing to set you right—When you start to cough at night."

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR

COUGHING during the day is bad enough. The racking and straining weakens and debilitates the system. When you add the loss of sleep, the nervous drain, the irritation and annoyance of wakeful nights, a cold quickly "wears out" the sufferer, and he or she is in no condition to ward off attacks of more serious illness.

Prompt steps should be taken to check coughing at night—not only for the sake of the afflicted one, but for the comfort and health of the other members of the family.

How to Check Coughs and Colds

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound brings relief from day or night coughs, whether the result of cold or influenza, bronchial affection, spasmodic croup or whooping cough.

It is a boon to young and old—prompt, efficient, safe. Contains no opiates. Foley's Honey and Tar clears the throat of phlegm and mucus, stops the tickling in the throat, eases the hoarseness, opens the passages for easier breathing, and coats the raw, inflamed surfaces with a healing, soothing medicine. One or two doses in the early evening usually free the sufferer from attacks of coughing and enables him to enjoy a refreshing night's sleep. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar Compound comes in three sizes.

INCREASE SHORT-FED CATTLE

To Save Feed, Department of Agriculture Advises Against Too Much Finishing of Animals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
In view of the unfortunate experience last winter of some feeders of heavy cattle, the continued high price of grain and the uncertainty of a continuation of good prices which well-finished heavy carcasses now command, the United States department of agriculture believes that feeders should concentrate their efforts on the production of economically short-fed cattle. Of course, this statement does not refer to baby-beef production, which is a specialty within itself.

There is no question that for the last several years cattle feeders have been making beef too fat; that is, they have put more finish upon the animals than economy would justify. This idea was evidently in the minds of the advisory committee of agricultural and live stock producers appointed by the department of agriculture and the food administration when that committee recently made the following recommendation:

"We feel that cattle marketed at the present time in class 4 (long-fed or export and highly finished cattle) and known as 'exports,' owing to the high costs of labor and feed, are not an economical product, and their production should not be encouraged."

Not only has the advisory committee thus warned against the heavy feeding of cattle, but it is also understood that the government officials directing the buying policies of the government will not consider themselves responsible for the prices of very fat cattle.

Recent experiences by various state experiment stations and the United States department of agriculture have borne out the fact that good beef can be produced by using a relatively small amount of grain, or with nitrogenous concentrates in connection with silage and some other cheap roughage in the form of hay.

The principle that should be avoided in future feeding operations, according to the advice of the department of agriculture, is to reduce to a minimum the amount of high-priced feed and to make judicious use of cheap roughages. In other words, instead of feeding from 50 to 60 bushels of dry corn per steer in the long feeding period, as was the custom in the past, the quantity should be, and may be profitably, reduced to 15 to 20 bushels in a shorter feeding period, or the dry corn grain can be eliminated altogether, as the liberal use of good quality silage will furnish an excellent ration. The use of cottonseed meal, linseed meal or other protein-rich feed, even though high in price, is to be highly recommended, because the higher other feeds are, the more profitable becomes the use of a protein supplement. Expensive hay may be completely eliminated in the ration by the use of a cheaper dry roughage such as corn stover, coarse hay or straw.

The department believes that by avoiding too heavy feeding and too high finish, and by following the suggestions given above, feeders should be able to feed cattle at a profit in spite of the high prices of feed and labor. The recent statement of the United States food administrator, and the available reports from foreign countries, indicate that there may be a great increase in the demand for beef, which is encouraging to the cattle feeders of this country, and especially those who suffered losses during the past feeding season.

AFTER 6 YEARS--STILL WELL

Now Strong and Hearty Though Case Looked Hopeless

"Six years ago I was in awful condition," says E. K. Chase, 38 E. Cross St., Ypsilanti, Mich. "My family was told I couldn't live more than two months. I was in constant pain from the uric acid and was so bad with rheumatism my legs seemed all drawn up. My back never stopped hurting. The kidney secretions were held back until only a few drops came, and I bloated until I thought my skin would burst. My legs were twice their normal size. "The water seemed to fill my chest and press against the heart. For three months I never moved out of the chair and I choked and gasped for breath like a dying man. All the doctoring failed, and my weight went from 185 to 125 pounds. "Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life. Eleven boxes cured me of every complaint. I have been well six years and able to work as hard as any man." Sworn to before me. FLOYD E. DAGGETT, Notary Public.

"Can't Cut Off My Leg" Says Railroad Engineer

"I am a railroad engineer; about 20 years ago my leg was seriously injured in an accident out West. Upon my refusing to allow the doctor to amputate it I was told it would be impossible to heal the wound. I have tried all kinds of salves and had many doctors in the past 20 years, but to no avail. Finally I resolved to use PETERSON'S OINTMENT on my leg. You cannot imagine my astonishment when I found it was doing what over 100 things had failed to do. My leg is now completely cured."—Gus Hauff, 78 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Great for sore, cracked, old sores and all skin troubles. Peterson Ointment Co. Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

LEAP YEAR AND SUZANNE

By JESSIE DOUGLAS

"I've an idea!" cried Suzanne Melrose, banging the table with the handle of her knife to attract attention. "I say, people, let's take the ski jump at midnight. There's no moon, so it will be fairly dark. How about it?" "Hear—hear!" came a chorus of voices. "Sure thing—jolly good sport!" "All settled, then," said Suzanne, and returned placidly to her consumption of Maryland chicken. Of all the merry, care-free crowd gathered for the winter sports at Agawam Lodge on Lake Adirondack, Suzanne was the most daredevil and the most persistent in her pursuit of pleasure. Lithe, glowing with health, she was the life of the party—quite too much to suit Cameron Stuart, whose one pursuit was Suzanne herself. He would have preferred a little less gregariousness on Sue's part and more of an inclination to spend some time alone with him. But his pleadings had effected nothing more than a peremptory stamp of the girl's expensively shod foot. "Some day I'll settle down," she had declared, "and do nothing but boss the servants, and say 'How divine' at old ladies' musicales, but now, right now, I am going to have my fling and play the game for all there is in it." Cameron, watching the play of expression across the girl's piquant features, loved her more than ever. The nine years' difference in their ages made him more tolerant of her youthful spirits than a younger man might have been. Sue's parents, feeling the urge of the sunny Florida regions more potent than the call of the north, had dispatched the girl and her fifteen-year-old brother to the Lodge, under the wings of a winter island already glorious picture in soft brown milk with a furry toque perched jauntily askew on her tawny hair. "Oh," she said slowly, tauntingly. "Home—where it is safe!" Cameron sprang to his feet. "Suzanne!" he thundered, "don't dare use those words to me, or that tone. You come with me." The girl, stunned, stood still. In all her life none had ever spoken to her like that. Cameron, snatching up mackinaw and cap from a settle, grasped her arm and led her unresistingly to the door. "Taking down his skis from the rack in the outer hall, still without a word, Cameron strode rapidly over the snow, Suzanne following meekly, like one hypnotized. Arrived at the spot where Cameron had shown the white feather, according to Sue, the man buckled on the skis, took the start, and leaped off. Presently he was back. Again he jumped. Suzanne, ready to take back all she had ever said, was silenced by the look on his face when he returned. Again he leaped. This time he did not come back so quickly—in fact, he did not come back at all. Sue waited—waited—then, fearing she knew not what, ran quickly down the slope, in and out through the trees. What was that dark object on the snow—prostrate? Not Cameron! But it was Cameron—Cameron with one foot badly twisted. "It's nothing," he managed to say, and tried to stand, then crumpled up. Suzanne knew it was no time to protest her sorrow and repentance. Like the very deer that she had often startled in the forest, the girl sped back to the Lodge for help. A week later Cameron, limping slightly, walked on the sunny south veranda of the Lodge. Beside him was Suzanne. Suddenly she halted him, a soft hand laid gently on his arm. "Cameron," she said, "don't you like me?" Cameron shut his lips. Then, "Every one does that, Sue," he said casually. Even as he had resolved to marry no one who thought him a coward, no less would he have anything to do with this girl, moved temporarily by pity and a feeling that she was rather re-stitutional tendency to feel fatigue quickly and a slight heart weakness often barred him from strenuous activities, much to his disgust. His one great friend was Cameron Stuart. And after dinner Cameron sought out the boy and begged him not to make one of the party taking the jump. "Are you going?" asked Dwight. "Of course," said Cameron. "You know I play watchdog for your sister." "She needs one," returned the boy frankly. But he did not say he would not go. Just at the age when a boy most feels himself a man, he resented, even from Cameron Stuart, any implication that he was not perfectly well able to hold his own with the rest. Eleven o'clock saw a laughing mackinawed crowd with waving scarves and woolly tams set out across the snow-blanketed grounds of the Lodge. Past the ice chute for the toboggans, across the blackness of the lake, into the shadowy forest they tramped, skis slung across their shoulders. At the jump itself the skis were carefully strapped on and tested. Suzanne herself led off, sailing gracefully into the air and landing triumphantly on the snowy stretch a hundred and thirty feet below. One by one they took the leap, and by the time Suzanne had regained the crest only Cameron and Dwight remained. Dwight had never attempted it before, being satisfied with the lesser jumps near the lodge. And Sue could not recall having seen Cameron take it either. As she approached Cameron stood on the brink as if irresolute, gazing down into the darkness below. Suddenly he turned, stooped down to unstrap the skis, and remarked quietly, "I guess I'll not take it after all." Suzanne stared at him in disbelief. Cameron Stuart a coward! She hardly noticed that Dwight also was taking off his skis. She was merely thankful that the rest of the crowd, plodding slowly up the slope, had not witnessed Cameron's act. "Cameron Stuart," she said with cutting emphasis, "never—never ask me to marry you again." Her head high, she moved away. And Cameron little knew the pain in her heart—only the great emptiness in his. Some nights later Cameron sat gazing soberly into the smoldering depths of the huge fireplace in the heavy-beamed living room of the Lodge. The crowd had gone sleighing, but he had chosen to stay here alone. What use, he mused bitterly, to tantalize himself watching Sue flirt with first one and then another of the men in the party, to catch glimpses of her profile as she talked to some man beside her, sending what messages he knew not with her starry eyes. No, he did not care to go. What was more, he would leave the Lodge tomorrow. Sue thought he was a coward. Since the day when he had not taken the jump she had avoided any chance encounter with him. Some one opened the door. Cameron looked quickly up. There stood the girl who had been in his thoughts, a have gone out and got it. And what is more important in life than the man you want to marry? And I want to marry you!" Cameron looked at her amazed. No, there was no doubting that expression of almost desperate sincerity. Then she covered her face with her hands. "Forget what I just said," she murmured brokenly. "It was unwomanly. But I thought—I thought you really cared." "My darling girl," Cameron's tender voice left no doubt as to whether he really cared. "My darling girl!" Presently Cameron told her why he had refused to take the jump. "At the time I was so hurt by your readiness to accept the unworthy explanation that I let it go at that. I realized that your brother ought not to take the jump, but knew that he would not undergo what would seem to him the humiliation of being the only one to refuse to do it. All he needed was an excuse—and my not doing it made it easy for him." "Forgive me, dear," said Sue humbly. "And forget that I asked you what you should have asked me!" "You only availed yourself of your privileges," smiled Cameron. "After all, it's leap year. And while sometimes it doesn't pay to take a leap," he eyed his foot whimsically, "sometimes it does!" "When we do it together," whispered Suzanne. Expensive Headgear. For centuries in Mexico and other Spanish-speaking countries the hat has been the object of man's vanity. The custom found its origin in the days when the Hapsburg power was supreme. One of the most cherished privileges which the old grandees enjoyed was that of wearing their hats in the presence of royalty. The absolute power of the monarch left them little else to do but enter into rivalry with one another in the splendor of their head coverings. The gay conceits spread rapidly throughout the Spanish dominions, and even today characteristic sugar-loaf hats may be found in Mexico for sale at the astounding price of from $500 to $1,000 for a single hat. Men Who Signed Peace Agreement. It was at Aix la Chapelle on November 15, 1818, that there was signed a declaration of peace, second only in importance to that signed Saturday, January 10 last. The signers of that document of November, 1818, bore names well known in history, and also well known the world over at that time. Time will show whether the leaders of the world today will cut as important figures. Here are the names of the men whose signatures attested the downfall of Napoleon Bonaparte's mad ambition. Matternich, Richelieu, Castlereagh, Wellington, Hardenberg, Bernstorff, Neessrode, Cape D'Isria.

Why don't you live a cheerful life And make the best of things? For discontent means constant strife And other ills it brings. It is hard tramping on life's pike, I know that this is true. But if you can't do what you like, Try liking what you do. —Luke M'Luke.

SOMETHING ABOUT POTATOES

One medium-sized potato, an ordinary serving of a common cooked cereal and a medium-sized slice of bread contain about the same amount of energy-yielding food, principally in the form of starches. We need starch to give us energy to live and work.

As a source of iron, potatoes are equal to whole cereals and eggs when properly cooked. The potato contains but a small amount of one type of building material which is very important; that is nitrogen; but the amount seems to equal the average amount found in cereals, on the basis of the usual servings. Although potatoes and cereals have a good supply of lime and phosphorus, they should not be depended upon as a source of these minerals. As lime and phosphorus are needed for building bones and teeth as well as regulating the body processes, they should be supplied from milk, eggs, legumes. One great advantage that potatoes have over cereals is that they help to keep the fluids of the body neutral or slightly alkaline, because of the potassium they contain. Those foods which have an alkaline reaction in the tissues seem to furnish better health to the average individual. The waste in paring a potato after cooking, as compared to that of the off with the skin after cooking. The temperature of water in which potatoes are put on to cook also influences loss of nutriment. Experiments have proved that the loss of mineral matter is little; the loss of protein is over twice as great when potatoes are put on to cook in cold water as in boiling water. From all points of view the best methods of preparing potatoes are by baking and steaming. If you have a mind to adorn your city by consecrated monuments, first consecrate yourself the most beautiful monument of gentleness and justice and benevolence.—Epictetus.

GOOD THINGS FOR OCCASIONS.

For those who have a sweet tooth, the following will be enjoyed:

Date Jam. Remove the stones from two pounds of dates after washing them in warm water. Put them in a saucepan with a pound of butter, cooked chicken, two tablespoonfuls of mustard, mixing with some of the milk, and spread over the ham. Bake, surrounded with the milk, until well browned, then turn and cover the other side of the ham with the sugar and mustard. Bake until well browned.

Chicken Cooked in Milk.—Cut up a chicken as for fricassee, cover with sweet milk, after rolling in well-seasoned flour, and bake in a moderate oven until the chicken is tender. The gravy will be thickened with the flour and ready to serve with the chicken.

Canapes, Spanish Style.—Cut the desired rounds, squares or diamonds for the canapes. Fry them in a little corn oil until well browned. Pound to a smooth paste one-fourth cupful each of butter, cooked chicken, two tablespoonfuls of ham and grated cheese, a dash of paprika and a little salt. Spread this well-blended paste over the prepared bread. Garnish each with figures cut from slices of pickle or cooked beets.

Breakfast Toast.—Prepare stale bread by dipping it in cold water and putting into a covered pan in a hot oven. Serve well buttered with hot, seasoned tomatoes poured over the hot bread. The tomatoes should be seasoned to taste with salt, pepper, butter and, if liked, a little sugar.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and have been able to recommend for in-

I have gained in strength, appetite and flesh, sleep better than I have for years, am doing all my own work again and feel like a new person."

"The beauty about Milks Emulsion is that it doesn't wear out like most things, and is so pleasant to take. It is a food as well as a medicine and builds up the blood and tissues. It surely put new blood in my veins and I have the healthiest color I ever had."—Mrs. M. Washburn, El Centro, Cal.

Already Accommodated.

One of the outfits patrolling the border during the Mexican tangle in 1916 had recruited to strength with a collection of raw material that knew little about the finer points of military tactics. One of the rawest of the raw was on guard duty one night after taps, when a major passed unchallenged.

"Don't you want the countersign?" inquired the officer sternly.

"No, thanks, major," replied the sentry. "The fellow in the guardhouse gave it to me already."—Home Sector.

tals who occasionally find relief in letting off steam in the form of something more expressive than slang, there seems to be a common misconception that "getting the Dickens" is a modification or abbreviation of (heaven help us!) "getting the devil." It is not. It is a harmless, legitimate and respectable expression that may be used with impunity in the best of company. It is simply an allusion to our old friend, Charles Dickens.

Though immortal as a novelist, Dickens was well known in his own time as a newspaper man. So vitriolic is he said to have been in his attacks on faulty public officials or other prominent men that gradually it came to be said, when anyone was criticised by him, that he got "the Dickens."

Not Disappointed. My friend's mother was reported to have died, so I immediately called at the house. My friend opened the door and I said: "So your dear mother is dead." She looked surprised and answered: "Why, no." I said: "Well, isn't that too bad." I meant, of course, that it was too bad such a report had got started.—Exchange.

REASON IN LOWER ANIMALS

That They Possess More Than Mere Instinct Seems to Have Been Abundantly Proved.

In the woods when male deer get to fighting, the rattle of their clashing antlers may be heard a long way off, and sometimes other males hearing the sound make toward it and lure away the female over which the other two are fighting.

Hunters frequently employ this knowledge of deer habits to decoy bucks into range of their rifles by rattling together a couple of sets of old antlers.

Take it all in all, it is hardly fair to the animals to say they merely possess instinct, when we have so many instances of their reasoning powers. If monkeys were able to preserve the best thoughts of each generation of their species as humans do with the printing press—well, anyway, it is too bad that Garner didn't live to establish on the Florida coast his monkey colony. Had he done this, who knows what startling discoveries he might have made concerning their intellect? —Exchange.

"Bake with Royal and be Sure"

She Prayed for a Dishpan—Got It!

MAJOR JENNIE WARD.

TYPICAL of the land's mouth experience led by the Salvation Army in its early days in this country is the story of how prayer brought a much-needed dishpan to Major Jennie Ward, the beloved head of the Army's famous Cherry Street Slum Settlement and Nursery on New York's East Side.

So much poverty and suffering existed in the neighborhood at the time that the Major and her helpers did not feel justified in taking even a slim dime to buy a new dishpan. Finally the Major and her assistants went down on their knees and prayed for a dishpan, just as they had prayed for guidance in their work of relieving the distress about them.

That evening the Major set out with her tambourine to collect such money as she could on the streets and in the saloons thereabouts. In one of the "gin-mills" was an utterly inebriated man with a large bundle.

"Here, shtstner," he mumbled, as the Major rattled her tambourine before him. "I ahnt got no money, but yeh-He-welcome to yeh."

"It was a fine big dishpan," said the Major the other day, as she reminisced about her work of thirty years ago.

"Is your boy Josh settling down to work?"

"Not so's you can notice it," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "I'm willin' to bet that after the prodigal son got settled back in the old home he soon had the old folks kindo' worried an' shamefaced because they didn't smoke his brand o' cigarettes an' couldn't name the really pl'cher stars."

A Sincere Compliment.

His Wife—What did little Mr. Peck say when you showed him that portrait of his wife?

Peck, the Portrait Artist—Not a word. The lady just looked at it in silence.

His Wife—Good! It was so lifelike he didn't dare to speak in its presence without permission.

Quite Fetching.

"That Mrs. Giddensleigh is a stunning looking woman."

"So she is, and I heard a cynical bachelor pay her a fine compliment the other day."

"What was it?"

"He said she was so good looking it was still safe for her to leave a little sigh and exclaim, 'Dear me! I'm getting old and ugly!'"

Sixteen Years Experience

For sixteen years a corps of metallurgists have been studying and constantly perfecting the steel that goes into every part of the Ford car and the Ford One Ton Truck. Each separate part has been studied to learn the type of steel best fitted for it. Parts receiving constant surface wear are made of hard, flint-like metal; parts subjected to great vibration or resilience are made of softer, spring steel. Every part is made according to its use—that is, every genuine Ford part.

But there are also counterfeit "Ford" parts. These imitations are made by concerns in no way connected with the Ford Motor Company and retailed as "sidelines" by mail-order houses, down-town stores and many garages. The unsuspecting customer accepts them because they are called "Ford" parts. To make sure of getting the genuine Ford-made parts, buy them only from Authorized Ford Dealers. Likewise bring your Ford car to our garage for repairs, replacements and general "tuning up".

We are Authorized Ford Dealers. We can supply you with all Ford parts for either passenger car or truck. And our shop is equipped to give real Ford service in all repair work.
