

PINCKNEY DISPATCH

Vol. XXXVII

Pinckney, Livingston County, Michigan, Thursday July 15, 1920

No. 29,

SCHOOL NOTES

At the annual meeting of the Pinckney District Dr. C. L. Sigler was elected to succeed himself as trustee.

The Board of Education met Tuesday night and elected the following officers: Moderator, Ross T. Read; Treasurer, W. E. Murphy; Director, L. E. Smith.

The old heating plant in the school has been giving wretched service for some time past and new radiators have been purchased to replace the old piping. The new ones will be installed at once and the teachers and scholars will no doubt appreciate the change in the cold days next winter.

July 14, 1920

Dear Editor:

I am giving you some facts regarding the school meetings in consolidated districts last night. Unadilla Township Unit District elected the following board of education: Harvey Dyer, Arthur McCleer, Wm. Marsh, Alex Pyper, O. B. Arnold. Unadilla township voted on the question of uniting the township last fall but could not elect the board until the annual meeting. They expect to maintain some of the rural schools as they are until they think it advisable to build a central building which will provide grade and high school training and transportation for children to school.

The question of organizing a consolidated school district in Hartland township came up early this spring. Several public meetings were held. These meetings were addressed by representatives from the Department of Public Instruction, by the School Commissioner and local leaders. Districts outside of the township became interested and District No. 1 of Brighton, Districts No. 5 and 6 of Tyrone voted to join. It is reported that the Bitten School

GOOD WORDS

The following extracts from a speech made by a candidate for a state office strike us very favorably.

Too often platforms and speeches are forgotten by candidates after election and this paper is not trying to further anyone's political interests at this time but it heartily endorses the sentiments expressed below.

RINGING HOGS' NOSES

The biggest job now ahead of the American People is that of ringing hogs' noses.

Hogs and hog fattening are all right in their place, but we want them to quit rooting up other yards than their own. It is bad enough that they get all the swill in the trough away from the little fellows who try to live with them.

The hogs I refer to are the woolen manufacturers who are now buying wool from the farmer at thirty cents a pound (about half the cost of production) and then selling cloth to the retailers at an exorbitant price. By cutting the farmer below the cost of production they save $2.00 on a suit of clothes, but instead of giving the advantage to the consumer, they are feeding fat on the profits the public is compelled to pay for its clothes. Last year they made in this country 620,000 yards of so-called woollen cloth and put into it enough of rotten shoddy and old rags to make 380,000,000 yards of that amount.

They wove in just enough of virgin wool to make the stuff hold together. The consumers and few of the mer-means of protection or method of helplessness and consumers are getting it in the neck, largely through fraud and deception.

There is a bill before Congress, known as the pure fabric measure, that would compel the manufacturer to back of third and the game was saved for Fowlerville only by phenomenal fielding by Glover, who hurled the fence and quickly fielded the balls—both of which landed in the same spot—retiring Lavey at third and holding Shehan at second.

A large number of spectators were present and throughout the game although the game was not a very exciting one. Lavey, McCleer and Leo Lavey were the Pinckney battery. McCleer's arm was not in the best condition and he relied on a slow ball almost entirely.

Williams and Gehringer did the hitting and receiving for Fowlerville and although ten hits were garnered by Pinckney they were well scattered except in two innings and Williams was steady in the pinches.

Fowlerville has a good team, playing a good team, playing a gentleman's game of ball and the boys are welcome in Pinckney.

A. W. Vince of Pinckney and of Fowlerville umpired the game. Poorer judgement on balls and strikes has been witnessed in Pinckney—but only once, thank goodness.

This was the third game Pinckney played this year, winning the two previous battles easily from Dexter and Chelsea. With a shift or two and some real practice Pinckney would have a team equal if not superior to any previous Pinckney team.

The team as lined up at this game was as follows:

Harlow Shehan.....Shortstop
Harold Darrow.....3rd Base
Leo Lavey.....Catcher
Roche Shehan.....Left Field
Claude Kennedy.....First Base
Duane Lavey.....Right Field
Ambrose Fitzsimmons.....Center Field
Adrian Lavey.....Second Base
Loy McCleer.....Pitcher

Pinckney and Dexter play here next Sunday. Pinckney played at Dexter recently, winning 17 to 7. Dexter intends to win the next game, however, and it will be an interesting battle.

FRUSTRATED SAFE CRACKERS AT BRIGHTON

Sunday morning about 3 o'clock bank robbers made an unsuccessful attempt to crack the safe of the Brighton bank.

The telephone exchange is over the bank and the robbers tried to gain admittance but the door to the rooms was locked and the operator did not respond to the knock. The men then went to the rear of the bank and broke a window. By this time the people living in the vicinity were aroused and when they appeared the crackmen hastily left, leaving a complete safe opening with exploding gas tanks, now on exhibition at the county jail.

HONORABLY MENTIONED

In a recent issue of the State Trooper, a magazine devoted to the interests of the Michigan State Troops, an article appears lauding Trooper Eugene Mann for his work.

After 50 continuous hours work without rest he gathered evidence and arrested alleged criminals and received praise for his work from his superior officers.

BASE BALL

Fowlerville and Pinckney played an exciting game at Monks' Park Sunday, Fowlerville winning 7 to 5.

It was a game full of thrills. Fowlerville took a good lead in the second inning assisted by a little wild pitching a couple of errors and a grounder between first and second that could not be judged because of an eccentric bound.

Pinckney soon tied the score however and in the next inning took the lead. Fowlerville played good ball and recovered the lead and it was anyone's game until the last Pinckney man was out in the ninth inning after "Rube" Shehan and "Pat" Lavey had started a batting rally by terrific hits over the fence.

GERMANS AGREE TO DISARM AT ONCE

ACCEPT ALLY ULTIMATUM THAT ALL RIFLES AND CANNON BE SURRENDERED.

MUST REDUCE ARMY TO 150,000

Compulsory Military Service Abolished—Allied Terms Are Signed Under Protest.

Spa.—Germany's delegates last Friday signed, under protest, an agreement accepting the terms of the allied note relative to disarmament.

The allied note, which amounted virtually to an ultimatum, stipulated that, in the event of the Germans failing to carry out the demands, allied forces would occupy parts of Germany.

The Germans protested, in signing the engagement, that the Treaty of Versailles did not oblige them to acquiesce in further territorial occupations except for failure to fulfill the treaty terms regarding reparations.

The final decision of the Allies sets forth that Germany must:

First—Immediately disarm certain of its forces, including the security police.

Second—Publish a proclamation asking for the immediate surrender of all weapons and firearms in the hands of the civilian population.

Third—Abolish immediately compulsory service.

Fourth—Surrender to the Allies all arms, guns and cannon it possesses above the limit fixed by the treaty of Versailles.

The allies agree to extend to Oct. 1 the period provided for the reduction of the reichwehr to 150,000, including a maximum of 10 brigades. The Allies also agree to another postponement, expiring on Jan. 1, 1921, on which date the reduction of effectives to 100,000, with the exact composition troops, must be completed.

SCHOOL AMENDMENT HELD VOID

Groesbeck Rules Proposal to Abolish Private Schools Is Illegal.

Lansing.—Alex J. Groesbeck, Attorney-General, has advised Coleman C. Vaughan, Secretary of State, not to place the proposed amendment to abolish private schools on the ballot. The Attorney-General, in his opinion, says that the amendment is unconstitutional; that the state has a right to regulate private institutions of learning; but "can not go so far as absolutely to prohibit and destroy them or prevent those so desiring from attending them."

It is expected that the proponents of the amendment will take the issue to the Supreme Court, which meets July 20.

Mr. Groesbeck says that the courts have uniformly held that the guarantees of the Federal Constitution include the right to be free in the enjoyment of one's faculties in all lawful ways; to pursue any vocation, profession or other lawful calling or livelihood.

PHONE RATE RAISE ALLOWED

Michigan State Given Permission to Increase Rates in Detroit.

Lansing.—Asserting the Michigan Bell Telephone company must give satisfactory service if the corporation is to have an increase in rates in Detroit, the state public utilities commission establishes a new policy for regulating the rates of public utility companies in Michigan.

The Bell is granted an increase of 28 per cent in rates for telephone service in Detroit, but it is flatly told the new rates will only continue in force in case the company renders reasonably adequate service and makes such improvements in its equipment as will allow for an improvement in its service.

The company asked for an increase of 55 per cent and Detroit had urged an increase of 26 per cent would be sufficient.

The new rates go into effect August 1.

COAL SHORTAGE RUMORS HIT

Wholesalers Head Says Reports of Famine Are Unfounded.

Washington.—Assurance of an adequate supply of coal to meet all domestic requirements during the coming months is given by George H. Cushing, managing director of the American Wholesale Coal association, who declared in a statement reports of an impending coal shortage were unfounded. The public, he said, is panic-stricken without reason or excuse.

DETECTIVES DISCOVER 10,000 GALLONS OF MOONSHINE. WOOD ALCOHOL BOOZE

Detroit.—A raid by local secret service and city detectives prevented, it is believed, the flooding of the illicit liquor market with 10,000 gallons of what Chief Joseph A. Palma suspects would have been deadly poison.

The raid was made on a house at 85 Ironwood avenue and resulted in the arrest on charges of counterfeiting and liquor law violation of Sol Seamon, Isadore Larivich and Harold Arnold, and the seizure of 10,000 bottles, 10,000 supposedly counterfeit Canadian inland revenue stamps and 10,000 Imperial brand whisky labels, also believed to have been counterfeited, along with 180 gallons of chemical compound, said to be of high wood alcoholic content, and 10 gallons of coloring fluid.

BAN ON RUSSIAN TRADE LIFTED

Government Modifies Restrictions On Dealing With Soviet.

Washington.—Restrictions on trade with soviet Russia have been removed by the state department except in so far as they pertain to the shipments of materials susceptible of immediate use for war purposes. An individual export license must be obtained for the shipment of such materials and it was announced that such licenses would be granted only in exceptional cases.

Individual export licenses also will be required for the export to Russia of locomotives, railroad material and rolling stock, and motor cars and component parts.

While taken independently of other nations, this action followed extensive exchanges between the United States, Great Britain and France.

In announcing its action the state department took particular pains to state political recognition, present or pending, of claiming to exercise governmental jurisdiction over the subject nor intended.

It also emphasized that individuals or corporations trading with Russia would do so on their own responsibility and at their own risk as this government could offer no protection to Americans going to Russia or trading with Russia.

DETROIT TO GET MAIL BY PLANE

Postoffice Department Plans New Service to Cleveland.

Washington.—Acting under its construction of the new postoffice appropriation law, the postoffice department has advertised for bids for carrying mail over three new air routes, including one between Detroit and Cleveland.

The advertisement states the distance between the two cities as approximately 95 miles, and provides for carrying 1,000 pounds of mail each way daily on a single trip. Under the designated schedule the mails would leave Detroit not later than 7:30 a. m. Eastern time, arrive at Cleveland by 9:30 a. m. On the opposite trip, they would leave Cleveland 5 a. m., arriving in Detroit by 7 a. m.

The service is to begin November 15, 1920, and the contract is for the term of one year thereafter.

POLES TOLD TO WITHDRAW ARMY

Allies Promise Help If They Retire to Own Borders.

Spa, Belgium.—If the Poles consent to retire within the natural frontiers of Poland, the Allies will give them all possible assistance in event of their being attacked by the bolsheviks. This announcement was made here Sunday.

The Allies have sent a proposal to the Russian soviet government for an armistice on condition that the Poles retire within their natural Polish frontier.

It is set forth that the armistice will be followed by a conference of representatives of all the countries on the Russian border, and that, if the bolsheviks attack the Poles within these frontiers, the Allies will come to the aid of Poland.

FORD ACQUIRES BIG TIMBER TRACT

BUYS 400,000 ACRES OF VIRGIN FOREST AND MINERAL LAND IN UPPER PENINSULA.

ALSO BUYS D. T. & I. RAILROAD

Rail Line Taps Kentucky and Virginia Mine Fields—Road to Have Modern Equipment.

Detroit.—Acquisition by the Ford Motor company of 400,000 acres of virgin forest and mineral land surrounding Lake Michigan, in the upper peninsula, where the company will maintain a permanent timber preserve and erect a saw mill and closed body plant employing 2,000 to 2,500 men, has been announced by officials of the company.

This announcement followed an official admission by the company that Henry Ford and his son also had completed terms for the purchase of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroad.

The 400,000 acres in northern Michigan was purchased from the Michigan Iron & Land company and comprises 165,000 acres of hardwood timber and 100,000 acres of second growth timber, besides showing pronounced indications of mineral deposits.

It was stated that it is the purpose of the company to build a closed body plant and saw mill of large size, probably near Republic, Mich., although the site has not definitely been determined. The Republic site is said to have been more generally favored because of its water power facilities.

The intention is to manufacture in the two mills all wood parts for closed bodies, which require approximately 200 feet for each body. The green lumber, after moving under the saws, will go direct to the body plant. Steel parts, however, will be made in Detroit. It is expected, to the assembling points, thus obviating a second handling here and effecting a saving in freight costs.

A model policy of conservation is to be applied, according to officials. The largest trees will be cut first, the undergrowth cleared and every scientific encouragement given to second-growth timber.

The purchase of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroad, the company claims, assures the city an uninterrupted, non-confiscable coal supply as soon as the road can be put in condition. The road is a coal-carrier from southern Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky mines and is said to be capable of supplying Detroit and domestic fuel.

It unofficially is said that the new Ford gas car will be placed on the D. T. & I. tracks for passenger service. Employees of the road will be brought under the Ford plan in the matter of wages and hours, bonuses and certificate investment privileges. Included in the purchase are 454 miles of main track on the right of way, with 155 miles of side tracks; 85 locomotives, 3,200 freight cars, 27 passenger cars and four roundhouses in Ohio. The number of employees runs from 1,800 to 2,000.

Admits Slaying of Wife and Hired Dupe In Order to Get Inheritance.

Chicago.—Carl Wanderer, former Army lieutenant, confessed slayer of Ruth, his wife, a pretty choir singer, and of a man whom he had hired to enact a fake holdup of himself and his wife, is held without bail on the charge of murder.

He confessed to having murdered the two in order to get his wife's inheritance. He said he loved her too much to divorce her, yet felt that he could not stand the restrictions of married life.

Wanderer placed blame for the tragedy on his familiarity with firearms in the Army, his roving temperament and his association with his father's butcher shop.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. F. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR JULY 18

DAVID SPARES SAUL'S LIFE.

LESSON TEXT—1 Sam. 26. GOLDEN TEXT—Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you.—Luke 6:27. ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—1 Sam. 26. PRIMARY TOPIC—The Man Who Was Kind to His Enemy. JUNIOR TOPIC—"Paying Back." INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Overcoming Evil With Good. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Treatment of Wrongsdoers.

I. Saul in Pursuit of David (vv. 1-5).

Ever since David took his departure from Jonathan (ch. 20), when that crowning act of friendship was shown, Saul had been hunting him as a wild animal. He now pursues him with 3,000 chosen men. David flees from place to place, hiding as an outlaw. Sometimes he is in the enemies' country doing disreputable things. This is the period of his schooling which fitted him to be the eminent king that he was. It was a bitter period in his life, but God sent him to this school and adapted the instruction to his needs. David never could have been the broad man that he was, had he not been prepared in this crucible of bitter experience. His wading deeply into trouble adapted him to write psalms suited to all men, in all ages, and under all conditions. His life swung through the arc of human experience, touching the highest point of fame and dipping to the depths of sorrow and shame. Then, personally, he learned many lessons, among which may be mentioned:

1. His own weakness. It was necessary that he be humbled under the sense of his infirmities. Unless a man has learned this lesson, sudden elevation to power will utterly ruin him.

David's motive in returning to the cave was that he might show that he had redeemed him out of his adversity. His hiding places in the rocks gave him much of his imagery for the psalms.

3. He learned the country and people over which he was to rule. By knowing the grievous afflictions which Saul had heaped upon the people he could sympathize and remove them.

4. He learned the magnanimity of self-control. This a man must know before he can be a true king. He that ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh a city (Prov. 16:32).

11. Saul in David's Hands (vv. 4-20).

1. David sends out spies (v. 4). This he did to find out as to whether Saul was come in very deed.

2. David at Saul's camp (vv. 5-11). He took with him Abishi and went in the night to where Saul was sleeping. Abishi asked to be allowed to kill Saul, but David forbade him because Saul was the Lord's anointed.

3. David takes Saul's spear and cruse of water (vv. 12, 13). Once before at Engedi (ch. 24) David spared Saul's life. Now again he was at his mercy. This he did that he might show tangible evidence to the king that he had no evil intent.

4. David taunts Abner, the king's bodyguard (vv. 14-16). He calls to Abner and taunts him for his listlessness—his failure to watch over the Lord's anointed, the evidence of which is the cruse and the spear in his hands.

5. David reasons with Saul (vv. 17-20). When Saul recognized David's voice, David began to reason with him, showing that he had nothing but good intentions toward the king. He asked that he would show what wrong he had done or what evil intent was in his heart. David is very humble and begs Saul to relent, for surely if he had any wicked purpose he would not have saved his life twice when the Lord had placed Saul wholly at his mercy. David had peculiar regard for the Lord's anointed. He recognized the fact that the Lord had delivered Saul into his hands not to kill, but to save.

111. Saul's Confession (vv. 21-25).

1. He confessed that he had sinned. The sad feature about his confession is that it lacked conviction, for he went right on sinning. This is the great trouble with people. They are willing to confess that they are sinners, but still they go on sinning.

2. He confessed that he had played the fool and erred exceedingly. We see about us daily many using such expressions, but still they go on repeating their sins. David shows his magnanimity of spirit, however, in delivering the cruse and the spear to Saul's servant. He knew that Saul's confession was not genuine, so he was afraid to go near. He knew the cunning of that old fox. He still appeals to Saul's kindness to him, and they part never to meet again.

The Double Squeeze

"INSIDE BASEBALL"

"Read it, please, and tell me—with brutal frankness, if I've delivered the lit'ry goods."

This is what Henry Beach Needham said to Connie Mack of the Athletics, as he handed the veteran manager the MS. of his first piece of baseball fiction—"The Jinx."

Connie Mack, however, didn't have to be brutal. He knew he was going to be hard to please—and he rather expected to be bored. Certainly he didn't expect to get all worked up over a game on paper—as he did.

Moreover, he says Mr. Needham's other baseball stories look good to him and will look good to you. So here's "The Double Squeeze" for your enjoyment.

If you're a fan, you certainly will enjoy it—and will recognize some of the characters. If you're not, you'll enjoy it as a story.

PART I.

The Star's Disappearance.

Downstairs, in the visitors' room of the University hospital, which stank of iodiform, Tris Ford, manager of the Giant-killers, waited uneasily. Upstairs, reposeful as befitted the true scientist, the resident bacteriologist squinted through his microscope. Before this revealing instrument, on a hanging drop slide, was a liquid globule of bouillon taken from a culture of typhoid bacilli.

Indulged in a continuous round of somersaults. Others tore through space and looped the loop as though riding invisible monoplane. Those more socially inclined tangled in pairs. But not one bacillus was static. All were in turmoil. The culture was "good."

With almost cruel cunning the bacillifer expert precipitated a tiny quantity of blood solution into a minute amount of the culture, and deftly transferred the combination drop to a fresh slide.

The base of the solution used was the blood of Bill Dart, pitching mainstay of the Giant-killers.

Curiously the resident bacteriologist awaited results. In five minutes there was to be noted a gradual quiescence in the movements of the wrigglers. They ceased their mad pranks and settled down as if overtaken with languor. One by one the bacilli became absolutely static, curling up in groups and going to sleep in a conglomerate mass, like so many young pups. In a quarter of an hour there was not a sign of life. The bacteriologist had brought his experiment to a successful conclusion.

An interne came to Tris Ford and reported. The manager of the Giant-killers got a dose of heavy language, in which emphasis was laid on "Widal reaction," and "positive." There was something assertively final about the surprisingly intelligible medical term "positive."

"You mean he's got it?" asked Ford. The interne majestically inclined his head. "There is not a shadow of a doubt. A positive reaction—typhoid."

"A light or a mild case?—suppose you can't tell?"

"Not with certainty, of course. But the bacteriologist informed me that the behavior of the bacilli after the mixture of the blood solution and the culture would indicate a pronounced type of typhoid, probably a severe case."

"Poor Bill," said Tris, half to himself. Then in a tone of authority he addressed the interne: "Everything is to be done to make Mr. Dart comfortable and to get him well. Don't try to save a nickel. Our club will stand it. I'll call again soon. Good-day!"

Walking to the trolley, Tris Ford came to three important conclusions: First—To count Bill Dart out for the entire season (not a fortnight old) and recast his campaign without taking his most valued pitcher into account.

Second—To write to the surgeon general, United States army, and learn all about the inoculation of officers and enlisted men as a preventive of typhoid fever.

Third—To go in search of Barney Larkin, who was touted as the greatest left-hander outside the breast-works of organized baseball.

Like the manager in the war game, Tris Ford believed in preparedness. He was almost invariably forearmed. But he wasn't prepared for the trick played him by a criminally negligent city which harbored a water supply devoted to the propagation of typhoid bacilli. Otherwise he wouldn't have thought for one moment of hitching up with two yards and fifteen stone of human trouble, even though said trouble did boast a phenomenal fast ball and beautiful control—"control" not of the man, but of the ball.

Not one of the other fifteen major league managers would have undertaken the job of handling Barney Larkin. Two had tried. It was Parke of Pittsburgh who discovered Larkin. For fully twenty-four hours after Larkin pitched his first big-league game, shutting out Cincinnati, Parke boasted of his find. Then abruptly he ceased to boast; and after two weeks, replete with excitement for the Pirates, the eccentric performer was given his unconditional release. When the parting was over, Parke made this statement:

"I've seen some grand port sliders and some 'bad actors' in my day, but Barney Larkin's got 'em all beat. Curving a ball and crooking his elbow seem to be born in him. Reminds me of a famous Irishman who boasted he could fight a duel and drink a bowl of punch between thrusts. And the more he drank the harder he fought. So with Barney. He can pitch shut-out ball between drinks. The more hard liquor he puts away the faster his ball and the better his control. I'm not joking—drinking actually improved his pitching. But it didn't have the same effect

Undismayed by the judgment of Parke, the manager of the Cincinnati grabbed Larkin, bragging: "Observe me—I can handle any player who isn't actually bughouse."

Baldom observed. It wasn't altogether what Barney Larkin did, although that was "a plenty." It was what he did to the Cincinnati team. When they next appeared in the East, one of the sporting writers said that nothing so disorganized had come out of Ohio since Coxe's army. Gladly the "load of wild oats," as Barney had come to be called, was given his unconditional release.

He was now officially designated a "free agent." But where had his freedom taken him?

There was a sure way to trace Barney Larkin. He loved the spotlight; no near statesman or Theoplian of the chorus sought the bright white light more persistently. Barney was either in the newspapers or seeking to break into print. Most generally he found the scribes in a receptive frame of mind. Barney Larkin was to the sporting writers what Harry Thaw was to the sob artists—good for a column any dull day. And the story, nine times out of ten, got on to the wire and traveled over the country.

Tris Ford sent out an "S. O. S." to Barney Larkin, the sporting editor of the North Star acting as transmitter. The scribe wrote a story about Barney, rehearsing his exploits with horsehide and highball, and winding up with the query:

"Has anyone seen Barney? Is he far from the maddening crowd of fans, bumping along on the water wagon, or is he mixing up drinks and pitching with his old-time abandon and never-failing skill? We repeat—has anyone seen Barney Larkin?"

Back flew the answer: "Barney is in our midst."

It came from Punxsutawney, state of Pennsylvania.

The rest was merely the correspondence of diplomacy, at which Tris-tram Carling-ford was a lineal descendant of Charles Maurice Talleyrand. The culmination was a telegram from Larkin, sent collect, reading:

"Come on and get me."

The manager of the Giant-killers took the first train for Punxsutawney, which is a borough most inconveniently located northeast of the Smoky city. He took with him a corpulent roll of yellow bills. Tris Ford knew that he must buy Larkin's release—not from the outlaw club, but from the tradesmen of Punxsutawney.

Up Center street and down the shady side, Ford and Barney tramped, making more calls than the letter carrier. There were the clothier, the shoe-store man, the haberdasher, the laundry, the barber, every bar in town, and both hotels to pay, and the express company. Barney owed the express company for transportation charges on a bulldog! The one thing that saved the enterprise from complete insolvency was the departure of the daily train for Pittsburgh at one o'clock in the afternoon.

Tris Ford did not leave Punxsutawney altogether in a cheerful attitude of mind, notwithstanding he had captured his quarry, for the directors of the outlaw club came to the train in a body and thanked the big-league manager because he was taking Barney out of town. Even to the man of iron nerve this was disquieting.

In the manner told was Barney Larkin brought to the Giant-killers' ball yard. His first appearance, notably unlike most pitching inaugurals, was an unalloyed triumph.

Facing Detroit, which club was then going strong, he let the Tigers down without a hit. But twenty-seven men went to bat, and of these Barney struck out fifteen—a record commented upon to this day. In the last inning, with two out and that demon batsman, "the Georgia persimmon," at bat, Barney walked toward the grand stand, stopped, and then motioned the crowd to go home. "All over!" he insisted.

The fans roared in delight—and roared louder still when he struck the champion batter out. From that moment Barney Larkin was the idol of the fans. There were times, many times, when he caused Bill Dart, who was fighting disease and death in the hospital, to be forgotten by the heartless rooter. The eccentric left-hander was keeping the Giant-killers in the hunt for the pennant.

Also, he was keeping Tris Ford awake nights. No such prize problem in manhandling had been put up to that whenever Barney was pitching airtight ball—mowing 'em down—it was necessary to keep an eye on him about eighteen hours out of the twenty-four; "going good," he was most inclined to give rein to his bad habits. But when he was in a slump he was not difficult to handle. This was infrequent, for he was continually leading the other pitchers in the number of games pitched and in games won.

Early in his association with Barney Larkin, the manager of the Giant-killers decided, first of all, that he must let the unruly pitcher believe he was fooling his boss. Every excuse must be accepted as the unglided truth; otherwise Barney would have to be disciplined, and that would mean in a short time his release. Usually Tris Ford was "wise." But there was that episode in St. Louis which illuminates Barney's character, wherein Tris was fooled completely.

It was on the Giant-killers' second trip West. Barney was given an afternoon off. He went at once to a saloon near the ball park and started in by negotiating a loan of five dollars from the proprietor. After the money had gone into drink for himself and his hobo admirers, he struck the proprietor for five dollars more.

The saloonkeeper hesitated. As security for the loan Barney offered to "hang up" the gold watch fob which admiring fans had presented to him in appreciation of his mighty pitching. Giving it to the proprietor, Barney made this proposition:

"You let me have the five, which will make ten I owe you, and I'll make Tris believe I've lost my fob. Then he'll advertise for it and offer a reward of ten dollars."

Oils and Their Uses.

Crushing seeds to extract oils has been employed in Japan for centuries. Rape seed oil has long been used for frying fish and lobsters, and is today the principal fat in the Japanese diet. Cottonseed oil was used as a substitute for rapeseed oil and for lighting purposes. The ancient Japanese also understood the extraction of oil.

Japanese Women and Literature.

It is to the Japanese women that the Japanese language owes much of the progress it has made during the last century. She was of old forbidden to study the Chinese language, which was considered the exclusive monopoly of men. The Japanese women took hold of their native tongue and were soon at the head of the literary movement of their country.

SMALLEST DOG.

"There are some creatures," said the small dog, "who can boast of being fine and of being strong and of being beautiful and of being great."

"I can't boast of any of these things. I can't even think them to myself."

"I can't even say to myself, 'I won't boast of such things for that would be most unattractive, still I am glad that I am so strong and big and noble and fine, and that folks think me a big and handsome creature.'"

"I can't even say such things to myself."

"Why not?" asked a toy spaniel dog.

"Because I am none of these things. Just take a look at me."

"Do you see how small I am?"

"Yes," said the toy spaniel dog. "You couldn't even say you were bigger than I am, and I'm small enough. In fact you are a great deal smaller, which seems funny."

"You're a nice looking little white dog though," said the toy spaniel dog. "Ah, yes, and though I am so small I have a nice little tail—not a bad-sized tail at all, and I can wag it and show creatures that though I am such a small dog still I have a whole lot of friendliness about me."

"My home was in Mexico. Yes, that was where I was born. And then I was brought to the United States. I must say I like it here, too. I was always brought up to be a well-mannered dog, however, and I still am. That's the best way for a dog to be, don't you think so?"

"Oh, yes," said the toy spaniel. "We should be well-mannered and so should other creatures. We don't like anyone to be rude to us, and shove us out of the way, or anything like that, and we don't want to be rude to others and talk when we're supposed to be napping or when we would interrupt the conversation."

"But you certainly are a cunning little thing," he added.

The small dog laughed. "I am an absurd little dog. My little face and ears and eyes—everything about me is small."

"Considering the fact that I'm such a wee thing, I do think my tail is pretty good sized, and that pleases me so much."

"You notice I have mentioned it twice."

"Yes, I noticed that," said the toy spaniel dog.

"Well," said the little dog, "I'm fully grown. I'll never grow any more."

"Gracious," said the toy spaniel.

"I'm not surprised you say that," said the little dog. "Everyone thinks that I'm a puppy of a very small kind of dog. But I'm not a puppy. I'm full grown."

"You'll never be any bigger?" asked the toy spaniel.

"Never," laughed the little dog. "I'm fully grown as I said before. But do you know that I can be held in one hand? Yes, that is about the size I am. Of course, I'm larger than a child's hand, but in the hand of a grown-up man I just fit in nicely."

"Doesn't that seem funny?"

"What is your family name?" asked the toy spaniel dog.

"Our family name," said the little dog, "is Chihuahua."

"That's a fearfully hard name to say," the toy spaniel dog said.

"Don't bother to call me that," said the little dog. "Just call me 'Handful.' That suits me."

"And by the way, they say that I'm the smallest of my breed in the whole of the United States. Yes, the very smallest one, and you can see we're a pretty small-sized animal when grown, even if some are a little larger than I am."

"I'm glad to have seen you, and you're a nice little Handful," said the toy spaniel politely, and the little dog wagged his tail delightedly.

A dog attains its full growth at the end of the second year.

Lost 65 Pounds in Weight and Had to Give Up Work. Has Been Well Since Using Doan's

"Being exposed to extreme heat when working as an engineer, and then going outdoors to cool off, caused my kidney trouble," says Karl Goering, 8513 N. Orkney St., Philadelphia, Pa. "In cold weather and when it was damp, my joints and muscles would swell and ache, and often my limbs were so badly affected it was only with great misery I was able to get around. For a week I was laid up in bed, hardly able to move hand or foot."

"Another trouble was from irregular and scanty passages of the kidney secretions. I became dull and weak and had to give up my work. Headaches and dizzy spells nearly blinded me and I went from 285 to 200 in weight. Nothing helped me and I felt I was doomed to suffer."

"At last I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills and began taking them. I soon got back my strength and weight and all the rheumatic pains and other kidney troubles left. I have remained cured."

"Can't Cut Off My Leg" Says Railroad Engineer

"I am a railroad engineer; about 20 years ago my leg was seriously injured in an accident out West. Upon my refusing to allow the doctor to amputate it I was told it would be impossible to heal the wound. I have tried all kinds of salves and had many doctors in the past 20 years, but to no avail. Finally I resolved to use PETERSON'S OINTMENT on my leg. You cannot imagine my astonishment when I found it was doing what over 100 others had failed to do. 3 Per Cent Buttermilk

The Detroit Free Press states that Dr. Herbert Watson, State Chemist of Delaware, informed Judge Hastings in Wilmington City Court that "real ripe buttermilk contains 3 per cent alcohol, and that every vendor of buttermilk is liable to prosecution.

Long before the dry wave engulfed the whole United States buttermilk had become very popular among the "brass rail brigade", much to the astonishment of the bartenders. It was sold at almost all bars. It was reserved for a scientist to discover the reason.

Buttermilk has long been recommended by physicians as a beverage, but how are we going to get around the 18th amendment? Here is another problem for Harding and Cox to solve before election day.

Showing Rattlesnake's Age.

Another ancient belief is shattered by science. The number of rattles a rattlesnake has is determined not by his age, but by the number of times he sheds his skin, is the decision given out by the curator in charge of the reptiles in the New York zoo. A baby rattler is born with only a button, but soon afterward he sheds his skin and has a rattle. Every time he sheds his skin he gains another, and he usually does this three times a year, although seasonal or food conditions may vary this.

"The rattle is rather a delicate organ," writes the curator. "The snake wears out the older rings dragging them around over rough, rocky ground. A rattle seldom attains a length of more than 10 or 11 rings, as when that number has been acquired the vibration at the tip, when the organ is used, is so pronounced that additional segments are soon worn, broken, or lost."

EATONIC Users —Do This—Get the Greatest Benefits

Chicago, Ill.—Thousands of reports from people all over the U. S. who have tested Eatonic, show the greatest benefits are obtained by using it for a few weeks, taking one or two tablets after each meal.

Eatonic users know that it stops Belching, Bloating, Heartburn, and Stomach Miseries quickly, but the really lasting benefits are obtained by using Eatonic long enough to take the harmful excess acids and gases entirely out of the system. This requires a little time, for Eatonic takes up the excess acidity and poisons and carries them out of the body and of course, when it is all removed, the sufferer gets well, feels fine—full of life and pep.

If you have been taking an Eatonic now and then, be sure and take it regularly for a time and obtain all of these wonderful benefits. Please speak to your druggist about this, so that he can tell others that need this help. Adv.

Without Confirmation.

Pete Johnson, carpenter on the farm, was on the meadows of Ito-taken looking for game. He walked around a half day and, finding nothing, he started for home, meeting a cow which he shot at and missed. It was his last shot, so Pete was out of luck when he met a bear, which chased him a half mile to a friendly oak tree. The bear and Pete circled the tree until both were becoming exhausted. Then Pete grabbed the bear's paws and held them around the tree until the bear died of starvation. They had been near at the farm and the skin of Bruno adorns the farm gates. Note—The recent storm prevented us from verifying this item. We hope it is true.—Undentified.

Something Unusual.

"He must have a wonderful father and mother."

"Why?"

"He's only nineteen and he insists on getting married."

"But what is there about that to show superior parentage?"

"Don't you see? He's lived with them for nineteen years and hasn't even the slightest suspicion that marriage is filled with difficulties and responsibilities. He thinks it's all love and roses."

STORIES from Here and There

A New Thing in Crime: Hold Up in Rhyme

NEW YORK.—"Get busy and arrest him!" yelled Peter Kurtz of the Howard Bakery company at 438 West Forty-eight street, dashing into the West Forty-seventh street police station.

"Arrest whom?" replied Detective Sergeants Richard and Edward Dillon and Thomas Brady, refusing to get excited enough to forget their grammar.

"The hold-up who stuck me up. He ought to be easy to find. He's a poet."

"He is a poet? How do you know it?"

This from Richard Dillon, who is something of a versifier himself, as you see.

"Something new in crime— A hold-up in rhyme."

Did it limp—or worse— Was it libre vers?"

This rival contribution from the other Dillon.

"He walked right in and showed his gun, as I was counting out my mon," replied Kurtz, unconsciously falling into line. "And right away to me did say:

"Say, Kid, just look me in the face, I just dropped in to clean this place. So come across with all you've got! I never fail to hit the spot!"

"I had my hands up before he got to 'look.' So he just dipped into the cash register with his free hand and picked out $54. At the door he stops and says:

"I thank you for this wad of dough And now, good day! I think I'll blow!"

"I'll tell the world that's poetry and he's a poet."

"Anyway," remarked Brady, "he's getting about $9 a line for it—which is profiteerin' and agin the law. C'mon, fellers, let's go!"

They Have Sheridan's Opinion of Texas

LOS ANGELES.—"Oh, shucks! A woman in love is a fool; and, anyway, Ranger, Tex., is an awful place to live."

Mrs. Rose Roberts kicked viciously at a chair in the visitors' cell room of the county jail. And Mrs. Viola Connors, also of Ranger, her prisoner companion, chimed in, laughingly. "Isn't it the truth?"

The women, about 22 years old, are only became fearful when they admitted it was possible that they might be sent back to Texas and their husbands.

"Do I look like the reconciliation kind?" inquired Mrs. Roberts, when asked if she expected to obtain the forgiveness of her husband. "Not me. I am glad to get away from Texas, with its northers and heat, and sand, and everything. We didn't like Texas and we didn't like our husbands. That's why we're in jail."

Again Mrs. Connors echoed her companion's sentiments with a fervent, "Isn't it the truth?"

Mule Couldn't Stand 6 Years of Suspense

WAUKEGAN, ILL.—Six years ago began Lake county's celebrated mule case. James F. Doyle of Deerfield originally owned the mule. That much is sure. John R. Morris, likewise of Deerfield, is the other party to the suit. That's sure too. It's also certain that there has been at least one trial in a justice court and three hearings on appeal in the circuit court. But that's about as far as even a Philadelphia lawyer could be expected to get the hang of this famous case.

However, when it came up before Judge C. C. Edwards of Waukegan the other day, it seemed to be reasonably clear that Morris had possession of the mule. Doyle, to all appearances, wanted Morris to pay him $750 for the use of the mule—$10 a month for 75 months.

On the other hand, it appeared to be plain that Morris wanted the sum of $150 from Doyle. According to his figuring it had cost him $12 a month to board the mule. Board for 75 months at this rate is evidently an offset to $750 and $150 over.

Judge Edwards evidently had mastered the intricacies of this celebrated case. Anyway, he ordered Morris to return the mule, pay Doyle $750 and pay the costs of the four hearings mentioned.

But the six years of suspense had been too much for the mule. He dropped dead.

Has Tarzan of the Apes Had a Relapse?

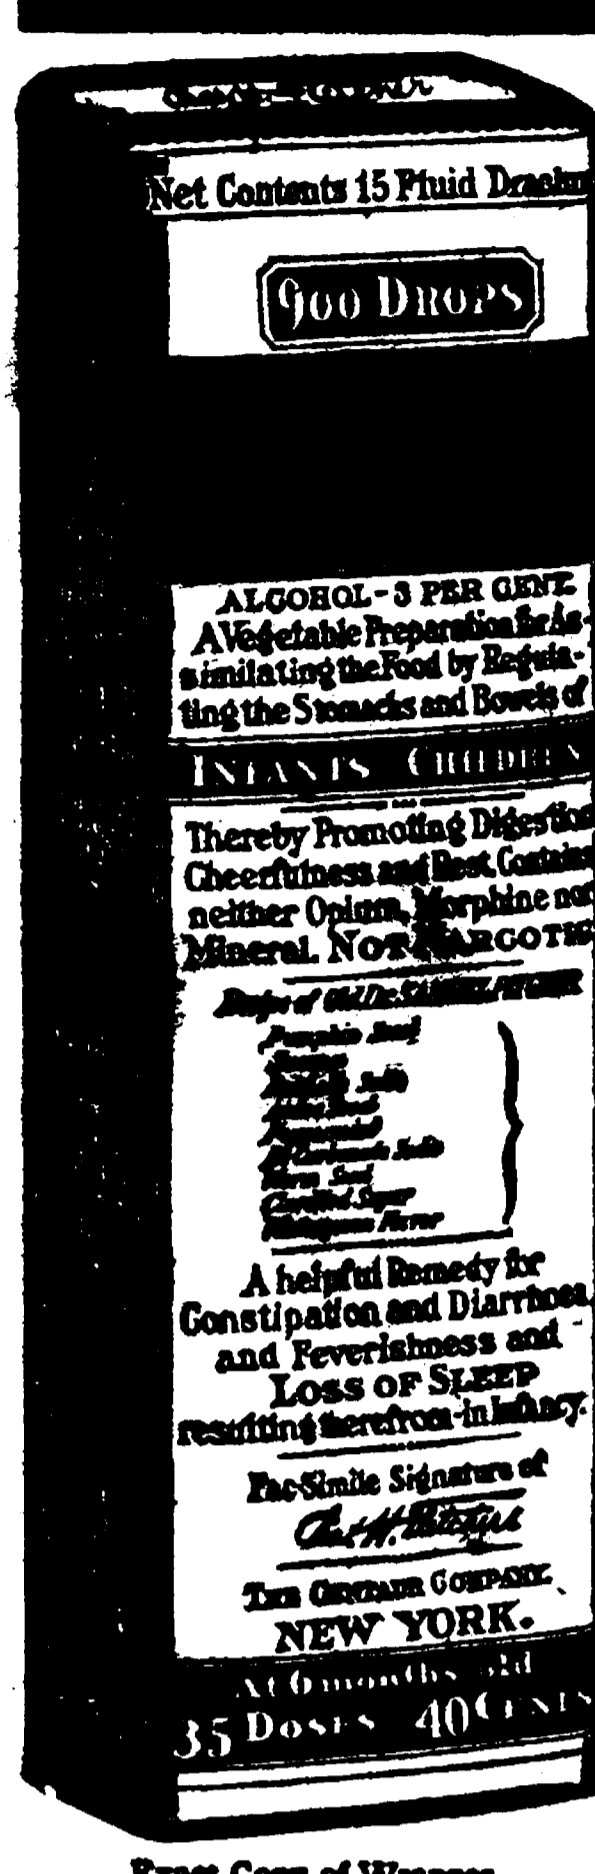

RED OAK, IA.—Has Tarzan of the Apes had another relapse? Anyway, there's a naked wild man in the woods in the northern end of Montgomery county who takes to the trees when pursued and swings from branch to branch a la Tarzan.

For a month reports of a wild man, entirely nude, roaming over the northern end of the county with Seeley's mill as a center, have been coming in to Red Oak. He was seen by a dozen different people. He was reported as about 30 years old, with a long, matted beard and hair.

The wild man has returned to the primeval and is roaming the woods like an animal. His body has been colored a deep tan by exposure to sun and weather, and from appearances he has been in the woods for months and months. Who he is and where he came from is a mystery. He is believed demented. At times he retains the power of speech, as he called to his boys one day. At other times he grins and makes signs and noises but speaks no words.

The whole country side turns out Sundays to hunt the ape-man. Last time the hunt was on 1,000 people, headed by Sheriff Ed Peterson, spent the entire day searching the bottoms along the Nishnabotna river. Automobile parties from Stanton, Elliott, Red Oak, Griswood, Coburg, Villisca and the surrounding towns were on the scene. Farmers from practically every township in the county took part in the hunt. More than 250 automobiles were parked in the district and during the search fifty automobile patrols patrolled the roads.

In the hush of the twilight they lingered by the gate. He was full of hope, but fearful to try his luck, while she—well, her fair face was lined and drawn with deterioration.

Presently, after a silence long and deep, she began: "I will never—"

Her eyes met his pleading orbs with an intensity of purpose which made his heart quail. "Wed any man?"

His bronzed face paled and he felt as if he stood on the brink of a chasm of despair. Then, with a politely cold "Present company—"

Again she paused and he waited in feverish anxiety for her next words. "Always accepted!"

And soon the wedding bells will be ringing for him and his girl. smile on her curved lips, she continued:

AND HE NEVER CAME BACK!

Pursuing Swimmer Had No Idea of Letting a Chance Like That Jot Away From Him.

There were mutinous murmurs aboard a certain merchantman when word spread among the crew that the ship would not, after all, put in at Tahiti, but merely drop the mail over and go on. Tahiti, being French soil, is a little island of liquor in mid-Pacific, and the thirsty men aboard had been lying awake nights thinking of the drinks that lay ahead.

The disappointment was too much for one seaman, who, uttering a plaintive cry, leaped into the sea and started to swim for the visible shore. The captain, much vexed and a little envious, ordered the best swimmer in the crew to go after him and bring him back before he reached land. An excited lookout kept all on deck posted on the progress of the race.

"He's gaining! He's gaining! Two hundred yards—a hundred yards—fifty yards. In a dozen strokes he'll have him. Five more strokes! A yard to go. . . . Great guns!"

"What is it? What is it?" "Great guns, sir, he's passed him!" —American Legion Weekly.

Too Vague.

"I don't know whether her husband is excitable or an aviator." "How do you mean?" "She said he was always going in the air."

Simply Worn Out

How Many Women Are Like This?

Can anything be more wearing for women than the ceaseless round of household duties? Oh! the monotony of it all—work and drudge; no time to be sick; tired, ailing, yet cannot stop. There comes a time when something "snaps" and they find themselves "simply worn out," and to make matters worse, have contracted serious feminine disorder which almost always follows the constant overtaxing of a woman's strength.

Then they should remember that there is no remedy like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—the experience of these two women establishes that fact:

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"After the birth of my last child I had such painful spells that would unfit me entirely for my household. I suffered for months and the doctor said that my trouble was organic ulcers and I would have to have an operation. That was an awful thing to me, with a young baby and four other children, so one day I thought of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it had helped me years before and I decided to try it again. I took five bottles of Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and since then I have been a well woman, able to take care of my house and family and my doctor has said I am well again."

Sandusky, Ohio.—"After the birth of my baby I had such organic trouble. My doctor said it was caused by too heavy lifting and I would have to have an operation. I would not consent to an operation and let it go for over a year, having my sister do my work for me as I was not able to walk. One day my aunt came to see me and told me about your medicine—said it cured her of the same thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and they have cured me. Now I do my own household work, washing and ironing and sewing for my family and also do sewing for other people. I still take a bottle of Vege-illness of any kind for three years. —Mrs. H. Koenig, 617 Ellis Blvd., Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

He has been spending more money, it is true, and what he gets and spends shows up where people can see and talk about it. His money is not spent at the bar, however, but in better living for his family and himself. I for one am glad that he can live better. If he doesn't always use the best of judgement in spending his money at first, that is a matter which time will remedy.

A rubber company, the other day, just one of thousands of similar concerns, told the public in one of its paid advertisements to float more securities, that every dollar invested in the stock of the company eight years before had grown to $48.00 of stock, now above par, and that 12 per cent cash dividends had been paid every year.

"A decent respect to the opinions of mankind" exposure, will do more to right some of these evils than jails. Cards face up on the table, frauds and swindles uncovered, a genuine return to the law of "supply and demand" will get us back to earth again, and save us from radical socialism.
