

PINCKNEY DISPATCH

Vol. XXXVII

Pinckney, Livingston County, Michigan, Thursday September 16, 1920

No. 38,

FIRE DESTROYS BARN, CROPS

Thursday morning Sept. 9th the barn on the C. V. Van Winkle farm was totally destroyed by fire.

The year's crops, including unthreshed wheat, oats, rye, and about half the season's hay were in the barn at the time and were also consumed.

The barn was a comparatively new one having been built to replace the new barn which burned ten years and two days previous to this fire and whereby Mr. Van Winkle also lost all his crops at that time.

STOWE WON'T TAKE DARE

LIVINGSTON PROBATE JUDGE THINKS HAS MORE "SAND" THAN SENSE —IN POLITICS

His Friends Don't Agree With Him

TO THE ELECTORS:

Sometime ago there appeared in the Livingston Democrat a statement to the effect that I was protesting against being a candidate to succeed myself. This at that time was true, and I feel yet that a mistake had been made when my friends, without my consent or knowledge, circulated my petition, and on my further protesting said, "What's the matter? Are you scared out because the ladies are going to vote?" and, as I was always credited (in politics) with more sand than sense, permitted them to be filed. Since that time I have investigated and talked with my friends and I find that there is some sentiment outside of my own party, for a continuance of the service rendered in the last eight years. I am not going to take that dare, but will give my friends a chance to show whether the people of this county want the present policy of the office continued, thereby utilizing the experience they have already paid for, or whether they better change. It is up to them and I shall have to be contented with the result even if not satisfied. With the confirmation—and the Court is supposed to use business judgment as to whether the price is right. In many cases money is saved to estates, especially to minor children.

Drains and Roads

In drain matters as well as roads the laws are often changed and many have not been passed upon by the highest court. I have in mind one that went to the supreme court on Livingston decision. It was a tri-county affair and the question was, whether the combination proceedings should be tried by a jury or commissioners. Livingston's Judge decided on the jury plan while Washtenaw and Ingham said "No". The question went to the Circuit Court and both Judge Collins and the Supreme Court said Livingston had it right. This was something of a guess as the court had not passed on the question before. It has been said that a Judge need not be a great technical lawyer but must have fair judgement, some horse sense, and be a good guesser.

Juvenile Court Work

This is a branch of the work not well understood even by the attorneys, and with a little tact the trouble can usually be ironed out, without a trial, but with the Court and County Agent acting as attorney, jury, and judge. The County Agent and myself have found it necessary in seven and a half years to send only three boys to the Industrial School and not a girl has been sent to Adrian. The three boys sent were all subnormal in intellect and were all sent at the parents' requests. Most cases are turned over to their parents on suspended sentence and required to report many come into court and do not get their names on the records of the court, as a short talk or personal letter to the parents or child often turns things the right way. It is our policy to use Lansing or Adrian schools as a last resort, they being quasi-criminal in their nature. The State School at Coldwater is used quite often where parents are worse than the children or where they become a public charge on the county.

Mothers Pension

This is an amendment to the Juvenile law, the purpose of which is to assist needy and worthy mothers by paying the mother the money it would take to send them to Coldwater and keep them it will be impossible to spend the time to see very many people, and my well wishers will have to do some work. In this connection a few facts might be considered.

During the first term several laws seemed to need amendment and the present incumbent drew up and had passed by the Legislature a law shortening the time for hearing claims in estates from six to four months; also one simplifying sales of real estate in probate court, both of which have been the laws of the state ever since.

During the last seven years and eight months there has been put on the books (out side of Juvenile Court work) 1230 cases and out of that number appeals will not exceed one per year, thus saving Circuit Court costs and jury fees to the county and estates. Whether decisions of the court are right or not people seem to accept them. Several cases have gone to the Supreme Court and so far not a case has been reversed. By a ruling in the first term that probate notices should run in the papers three weeks instead of four, every estate has been saved from 70 cents to $1.25 on each notice.

Widow's Allowance

It has always been the policy of the court to make reasonable and just allowances for the support of the widow and minor children during the settlement of estates. In some cases this has to be done at the expense of creditors and older heirs. About the worst scolding this court has had in years was given this summer by outside attorneys—when an allowance of $15.00 per week was made to a widow with no children, and the creditors were not paid in full.

Inheritance Tax

This is a State tax which applies in certain estates and needs close attention, but some experience is a good thing in computing it.

Estate Tax

This is a new Federal Government tax, similar to the Income tax, and applies only in estates of $50,000 or more. These are usually passed up to the revenue collectors but have to be watched closely and reports made to save being penalized.

Real Estate Titles

As the county grows older buyers become more technical and more attention is given to abstracts, and it is necessary that real estate passing through the court be properly assigned and recorded in the Register's office, which is always or should be done. Real estate sales in court also require close attention—all sales must wait eight days for

HUNDREDS LOSE LIVES IN 'QUAKE

20,000 ITALIANS MADE HOMELESS BY TWO SHOCKS; THOUSANDS INJURED.

CRATER APPEARS ON MOUNTAIN

Pizio d' Ucello, A Mountain 5,845 Feet High, Opened By Shock Of First Earthquake.

London.—More than 1,400 persons were killed by earthquake shocks in Northern Italy and thousands were injured, says a Rome dispatch to the Morning Post.

The correspondent estimated the recovered dead at 327. However, many bodies were still buried under the ruins and the complete death toll could not be accurately judged.

More than 500 injured were under treatment in hospitals at Spezia and 300 were being treated at Lucca.

The Epoca, of Rome, says the dead exceed 500 and 20,000 are homeless.

Rome.—A volcanic crater has suddenly opened at the top of Pizio d' Ucello, a mountain 5,845 feet high, about nine miles northeast of Spezia.

It is located on what appears to be the northwest corner of the district shaken by the last earthquake, which resulted in the loss of hundreds of lives in the region just north of Florence.

A telegram from Spezia states the crater is emitting smoke and sulphuric fumes, and that scientists there attribute the volcanic outbreak to the earthquake.

Berlin.—The seismographic station at Jena suggests as the possible cause of the Italian earthquake a sinking of the earth along the mountains bordering the Gulf of Genoa. Experts there say it indicates a massive caving zone in the earth's crust.

SHOWS NEED FOR LAKE ROUTE

Advance in Railroad Rates Additional Reason For Waterway.

Toronto, Ont.—The announcement of the increase in railway freight rates provides an additional reason for the speedy development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence route to the seaboard, according to Major Alex C. Lewis, of the Canadian Deep Waterways and Power association.

The present increase is the third in five years, amounting to about 100 per cent on the rates prevailing in 1915.

In the meantime water rates are decreasing. At present freight can be carried to Great Britain at one-third of the rates prevailing two years ago.

LAKE CAPTAINS RE-INSTATED

Licenses Which Were Revoked Are Again Returned.

Marquette—Licenses of Captains Lawrence J. Francis, of Lakewood, O., master of the steamer H. P. McIntosh, and Kenneth McRae, of Conneaut, O., of the steamer Adriatic, accused of "gross negligence and misconduct" in management of their vessels in attempts to rescue 16 members of the crew of the steamer Myron, which foundered off Whitefish Point Nov. 22, 1918, have been restored by Capt. Fred J. Meno, supervising steamboat inspector of the eighth district.

GETS COMMISSION AS MAJOR

Chester B. McCormick Resigns From Michigan Securities Commission.

Lansing.—Chester B. McCormick, for the past year head of the law enforcement department of the Michigan securities commission, has resigned to re-enter the military service of the United States as major of the regular army field artillery service.

Major McCormick is going back into a game in which he has been active more or less since 1904. His first military service covered a period of two years in the old New York state National Guard, and following his removal to Michigan in 1904, he re-enlisted in the Michigan Guard.

MOTHER WITH BABY SENTENCED TO JAIL; REFUSED ADMISSION

Jefferson City, Mo.—Mrs. Margaret Burlington, convicted in a Federal court in Wisconsin of having used the mails to defraud and sentenced to three years' imprisonment, was refused admission to the Missouri State Penitentiary because she has a six-months old baby with her. The Missouri law does not permit incarceration of children in the state prison.

Under the terms of the Federal commitment, Mrs. Burlington was to take the baby to prison with her and keep it for six months, after which the baby was to be in the custody of its father six months. It was to alternate for six months periods between mother and father until the expiration of Mrs. Burlington's sentence.

STATE'S CROPS BEST IN YEARS

Less Acreage But Increase In Value At Least $35,000,000.

Lansing.—"Notwithstanding the decrease of about 5 per cent in crop acreage in the state this year, present conditions and prices indicate a production that will exceed last year's in value by $35,000,000 to $40,000,000, or approximately 9 per cent," says the state crop report.

While it is too early to predict a bumper yield, for any crop, and no crop shows better than 95 per cent condition, seldom has the general level of crops been so high. Only two crops in the leading ones of the state show a condition below the 10-year average and a number are from 8 to 10 per cent better. Most of the fruits are from 15 to 25 per cent better. The two that are below normal are wheat and hay. Sixteen of the 25 crops show improvement over last month.

The condition of beans is reported excellent condition with an outlook for 92 per cent of a normal crop. Hay is also credited with good condition and a larger yield than last year. Commercial fruits are said to be in a flattering condition particularly apples.

TRANSFER MEMORIAL FUNDS

New York.—The executive committee of the Roosevelt Memorial Association made the formal transfer of the funds and records to the association recently incorporated by a congressional charter. The treasurer reported contributions up to Aug. 30 totaling $1,696,391.54.

The new officers elected are: William Boyce Thompson, president; William Loeb, Jr., vice-president; Albert W. Higgin, treasurer; Robert I. Barr, assistant treasurer; Hermann Hagedorn, secretary; and Hazel H. Plate, assistant secretary.

Charles E. Hughes, Leonard Wood and Elihu Root were elected honorary presidents, and Henry Cabot Lodge, Hiram W. Johnson and James R. Garfield, first, second and third honorary vice-presidents.

VOLSTEAD OUSTED FROM TICKET

Supreme Court of Minnesota Nullifies Nomination of Representative.

St. Paul.—After the disqualification of the Rev. O. J. Kvale as the Republican nominee for congress in the seventh district, the Minnesota state supreme court also eliminated Representative A. J. Volstead as the nominee by the district court.

This ruling, in the opinion of state officials, will leave the naming of the Republican congressional nominee in the seventh district to the Republican congressional committee there. If the district committee is unable to decide on a nominee, the state Republican committee could act, it was said.

SCHOOL GETS HEATING PLANT

Industrial Home For Girls At Adrian Allowed $55,000.

Lansing.—The board of state auditors allowed $55,000 for the reconstruction of the heating system of the State Industrial School for Girls at Adrian, in order that the institution may have heat this winter. The plant, which has never been given general repairs since the institution was built, practically went to pieces last winter, when the home, with more than 350 girls from 18 to 30 years old were without heat at various times for as long as 18 hours, sometimes in near zero weather.

CANADA'S HARVEST IS OVER

Threshing Shows Increase Over Expected Yields.

The Winnipeg Free Press of a few days ago contained a cartoon of which the following is a copy:

This probably as much as anything else will give some idea of the state of mind of the Western Canada farmer, as he watches the tally from the thrashing machine while his wheat is being carried to the elevator. From all sections of the country, the most optimistic reports are received, the local and city papers are filled with reports from twenty to thirty bushels of wheat to the acre, while in some places oats are showing a record of as high as 120 bushels to the acre.

Referring to Saskatchewan, it is confidently expected that the wheat yield will be nearly 125 million bushels. Heavy rains which fell in districts that did not promise so well in July, had greatly improved the prospects there, and in the eastern part of the province may not show to the advantage that will those of the western part, but too much cannot be said of this, for it is the results as they come from the machine, and often these prove happily deceptive.

There is now every reason to believe that the wheat crop of the three prairie provinces will approach 250 million bushels.

Alberta will exceed the 70 million bushels that had been looked for. The average yield will be considerably higher than it has been in the province in any of the last four years. The Department of Agriculture in a recent report gave the opinion that it cannot fall below twenty-two bushels to the acre, and that it might easily pass the twenty-five bushel mark. Most of the wheat in the province when the report was written, stood well up to three feet high, and on some fields was still higher. The report goes on that in parts of Southern Alberta forty and fifty bushels to the acre yields will not be uncommon, while there will be a good many yields of from thirty to thirty-five bushels to the acre.

In the northwest part of the province, in the country surrounding Battleford and adjacent to the Canadian National Railway line to Lloydminster, and south the crops are excellent and the yield will be heavy.

A larger than average wheat crop is being thrashed in Manitoba. It has been estimated that the total yield of the three provinces will not be less than 225,000,000 bushels, and it may be that somewhere between 250,000,000 and 300,000,000 bushels will be the final figure.

Oats is a good crop in all three provinces. This crop has also grown rapidly during the last two or three weeks. Excepting from those fields which were sown late for green feed, the yield will be heavy and the grain excellent. Barley and rye are above the average. There was sufficient help to harvest the crop.—Advertisement.

As Told In Greenfield. Back in the dim distant years when the high cost of living was not an ever present problem and some things were cheap, James Whitcomb Riley walked into a barber shop at Greenfield for a 5-cent shave. The proprietor of the shop was an old negro.

"Well, Sam, how are you getting along?" Mr. Riley asked. "Mr. Jim, I had a very good day," Sam replied. "If I could make 75 cents between now and quittin' time I'd have $1."

Such is the story as told in Greenfield.—Indianapolis News.

Sign of Prosperity. "So you regard the advance in railroad rates as a sign of prosperity?" "Assuredly," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "A public that can afford to meet the new charges cannot possibly be other than prosperous."

"Will Mansel testify against Jake Stinger?" asked Ford joyously.
"No doubt of it—that is, if you promise him immunity."
"We'll do more than that," said Ford. "I've been thinking of what Mansel did—saving the Regent's passengers—and can tell him that after he's helped us out by testifying he can come to me and I'll see that he gets a fresh start."
"I call that mighty liberal of you," said the ambassador.
Tris Ford shook his head. "No—Mansel will be doing a great thing for baseball—helping to soak the gamblers—so he deserves consideration. Besides, there must be plenty of good in a real hero like him."
"Ought to be, and bet there is." The ambassador pulled out his watch, caught the time and got quickly to his feet. "If you'll excuse me," he said. "I'll complete the job with the British ambassador so's we both can get back to Rome. Won't I see you there?"
"Sure," answered Tris Ford. "we play a game of ball there before long—our club and the new world's champions."
"Of course! I hadn't forgotten that big event. Keep this under your shirt—I've promised the president to get the king to see the game!"

ing the one trust—the one magnate upon whom the presidential wrath was to descend—it was far from an easy assignment. The ramifications of big business were multifarious, and to turn in one direction was to tread on some important body's money-crusted corns in another. Ultimately, the president's own predilections influenced him—unconsciously, of course. As a boy he had been afraid of firearms of every variety. Hunting held for him no lure. Even when he became first citizen the presidential salute of twenty-one guns made him jump. He much preferred "Hall to the Chief" capably rendered by some brass and jingling cymbal. No, the president wasn't a sportsman. He was an advocate of peace. Thus, unwittingly swayed by his personal bias, the head of the nation selected the president of the powder trust for the role of horrible example.

J. Pierce Lamont, president of the Pierce Powder company, was the magnate marked for sacrifice. And the attorney general, aided and abetted by the secret service, got busy, very busy. This was some time before Win Shute was shanghaied, before Imogen Leonard sailed for Alexandria, via Genoa, under the name of Miss Riley—as directed by her employer, who explained that her confidential relations with him, big figure in the business world, would subject her to the importunities of interviewers.

Everything was done with unwonted secrecy, considering that it was a government undertaking, and the man hunt was progressing most favorably when, one day, the Washington correspondent of the New York Standard called at the White House and requested an interview with the president. The Standard was an independent paper which leaned toward the president's party; its support the executive fervently desired for his administrative and legislative program. The Standard was a great newspaper, therefore not untiring with "yellow." The details of that interview will never be known. But it subsequently leaked out that the president, later in the day, made the big mistake of his term in attempting to go over the correspondent's head by appealing directly to the editor. In a word, the president tried to suppress news! Result—"pitiless publicity." (The phrase is quoted because it was the president's own, uttered before election and turned on him when he ran counter to it.) In twenty-four hours the country rocked with indignation.

An American girl, sole support of a widowed mother, while enjoying her first real vacation in years—a trip to Europe—had been torn from her parent by Italian soldiers, thrown into prison, and there given the "third degree." Poor, persecuted Imogen Leonard!

Such was the "flash," in newspaper parlance, that traveled over free America. In more detail:

Miss Leonard was stenographer and private secretary to one of the officers of the Pierce Powder company. This concern, sometimes called the Powder trust, because of its command of the industry, had manufactured powder for the Italian government under a secret formula furnished by Italy—a powder peculiarly adapted for transportation and for use in the tropics. The manufacturing was done by agreement that powder so made was not to be sold to any other country than Italy, excepting, of course, the United States.

In the war with Turkey over Tripoli, Italy found that the Turks were using identically the same powder! And while the Turkish supply could not be directly traced to the Pierce company, the Italian government was convinced in its monarchial mind that the American Powder trust had violated its agreement.

If Italy could prove this, there was a large monetary fortune provided in the original agreement—something that could be enforced either through diplomatic channels or through The Hague. All that Italy needed was the proof.

Imogen Leonard could furnish the proof! Because of her confidential relations with the head of the trust, Italy believed there was no doubt about it. This was why she had been forcibly taken from the Colonia when the steamship called at Genoa, and placed under surveillance. Regardless of party affiliations the press, the country, hurled at the White House the verdict—outrage!

The president was not without his excuses. Proof of J. Pierce Lamont's guilt under the criminal section of the Sherman law lay in a secret memorandum whereby the restraint of the powder trade was maintained. This memorandum had been dictated by Lamont to his stenographer, Imogen Leonard, and by her transcribed and mailed unsigned to the smaller, fear-ridden manufacturers of powder. Wherefore Miss Leonard could give testimony that would convict J. Pierce Lamont—land a trust magnate behind the bars.

Unfortunately, Miss Leonard's vacation, comprehending a sea trip at the expense of her employers, was so timed—owing to a leak in the United States attorney's office—that she was beyond the three-mile limit before the secret service knew it. Nothing remained, therefore, but to engage the co-operation of some foreign power in the enterprise of detaining the vitally important witness and effecting her return home—to the witness-box. Italy's fight with the Powder trust dovetailed into this scheme. Miss Leonard was to be detained by the Italian authorities and pumped, but with the American ambassador standing by, ready to offer a refuge—and safe return home!

On the part of the administration at Washington it was Machiavellian, on Italy's part, the execution of America's "third degree." At best it wouldn't look well in print—at worst it would defeat the president's party at the next election. Wisely, the White House kept silent. But the American ambassador to Italy be-stirred himself.

Out of the horde of Americans who have invaded Europe, three are remembered: General Grant, Colonel Roosevelt and Pitcher Larkin. Each made his impress, but of these impressionists Barney Larkin contributed by far the most color. He said when he got back to the Giant-killers' ball park that he might forget his trip abroad, but he didn't think Europe would!

Naples, where the globe-running baseball players landed, was the one place where Barney devoted himself strictly and wholeheartedly to sight-seeing. Accompanied by Ernest Steadman, his guide, custodian, and friend, he fared forth, with the best intentions to behold every treasure that the city and its environs advertised. But he was first conducted to the Neapolitan aquarium—and never left it. Here "Damon and Piscatorius" were enraptured with the curious marine wonders of the Mediterranean—cuttle fish, crested blubbers, impossible-looking crabs, crayfish, and pipefish, the electric rays, which Barney, after experiencing a shock, pronounced, "live wires, all right!"

Above all, the eccentric twirler was delighted with the octopus! At home Barney had seen pictures of it in the papers, usually labeled "Standard Oil," or "Sugar," or "Steel," but in a foreign land he saw it in the original—mother of the trusts! He had to be dragged away to the train.

At Rome he announced that he was tired of "lookin' round." But some one told him of the Catacombs—cellars where the early Christians were laid on the shelf. He apparently became fascinated with the subterranean phenomenon, and devoured all of the literature he could find on the subject. The reason he gave for visiting the Pantheon was that "twenty-eight wagon loads of the best bones" had been carried there from the Catacombs and planted beneath the altar.

When he made his excursion to the Roman Catacombs he took Ernest Steadman with him. Apparently he wandered through the galleries absorbed in what he saw. But there was malice aforethought in his wanderings. He succeeded in losing his keeper!

POLICE WILL NOT FREE KUEHLING

HUSBAND OF DROWNED DETROIT HEIRESS BEING HELD FOR INVESTIGATION.

DISFIGURED BODY RECOVERED

Missing Divorcee Had Fear of Poisoning, Former Husband's Reported Assertion.

Washington—Roy Harper Kuehling will not be released by the police voluntarily until details regarding the supposed drowning of his wife, Gertrude Viger Osgood Kuehling, Detroit divorcee and heiress, are cleared up, Clifford L. Grant, chief of detectives, asserted. He said he was prepared to fight any attempt to effect the freedom of Kuehling, who is being held on a technical charge of investigation.

The body of Mrs. Kuehling, Detroit heiress, was recovered near the Maryland side of the Potomac river about 300 yards below the place on the Virginia side where her husband, Roy Harper Kuehling, told the police she was drowned when the canoe he was paddling capsized.

The body, badly disfigured, apparently from contact with rocks, was discovered by a riverman and taken to the morgue, where it was identified by Howard Osgood, Detroit real estate dealer and divorced husband of Mrs. Kuehling. Identification was made possible by a platinum wedding ring.

Osgood dived from the police tugs into the treacherous eddies of the upper Potomac river in an effort to recover the body. He and Detectives Walsh and Bauer risked their lives in the waters more than two hours. Five tugs were employed earlier by the police in the search for the body.

Since the reported fatality Kuehling's status following which the official made known his attitude regarding an attempt to obtain the man's release and intimated that if a writ of habeas corpus was obtained bonds of at least $10,000 would be asked.

Investigation the police say, developed that Mrs. Kuehling wrote to her sister, in Detroit, last July a letter in which she is said to have expressed fear of death from poisoning. This information, they said, was furnished by Osgood, divorced husband of Mrs. Kuehling. Detectives visited Mrs. Kuehling's room and took several bottles of drugs, which were turned over to the district health department to be analyzed.

HAS FORGED PASSPORT PAPERS

Reed, Would Be Envoy of Russia, Not Recognized By U. S.

Washington—Reports that John Reed, who sought to represent the Russian bolshevik government as consul general in the United States, has an American passport was denied officially at the state department.

All of the four identifying papers which Reed carried, it was announced, were forgeries. They include a seaman's identification card issued last year to a James Cromley, who secured a duplicate upon filing affidavit that the original had been stolen in New York. Reed was said to have substituted his own photograph for that of Gromley on the passport.

An emergency passport which Reed holds, made out to "Samuel Arnold, Jr.," at Paris was declared to be a forgery in its entirety, including the signature of Ambassador Wallace as was a letter addressed to Arnold, purporting to be signed by Wallace.

48 MILLIONS FOR RED CROSS

Will Spend Large Sum in Europe For Relief Work.

Washington—Appropriations of $48,200,000 have been made for the American Red Cross's relief program during the fiscal year ending June 1, 1921. The total will comprise nearly two-thirds of the budget of $31,000,000 for activities abroad, being based on reports to Red Cross tending to show that "central Europe faces another winter of famine, pestilence and ruin."

"Physicians who investigated the situation at the behest of the League of Red Cross societies have given their unqualified opinion that the coming winter will see a recurrence of typhus on an unprecedented scale," said an official announcement here.

"The Red Cross feels it must continue preventive measures against deadly maladies."

by the hand preparatory to going.
"One minute, please," begged Ford. John Blismer bobbed his head.
"Funny thing—but Mr. Shute has got it awful bad—got stuck on a girl! Why?"—Tris Ford leaned toward the ambassador—"she's made him forget all about being kidnaped—forget all about baseball!" This was the climax.

Forget baseball! The ambassador couldn't believe it.

"Yes, sir. Why—he hasn't asked me a thing about the world series yet, and I haven't had a chance to tell him about the round-the-world trip of our club and the world's champions."

"You don't tell me! He has got it bad. Hope she's the right girl."

"Shute swears she is—all right in every department. She's what I want to talk to you about if you'll give me a minute more."

The ambassador was obviously surprised.

"You can help," Tris Ford added quickly. "You see, she's an American girl, and she's in trouble—in trouble over here."

"Oyer here? Where?" For the first time the ambassador spoke sharply.

"Genoa."

"She's not Imogen Leonard?"

"That's her name—Imogen Leonard. And Win Shute says she's a mighty fine girl."

"I'll be d—d!" exploded his excellency John Blismer. Then, after a period devoted to deep thought: "Does the White House know anything of this—know your man Shute's interested in this particular young woman?"

"Not as I know," answered Ford. "Didn't know it myself till less'n an hour ago. But I say—why did you ask?"

It was the born diplomat, Tristram Carlingford, who put the question.

It was the ambassador ex-officio who parried:

"Because Washington knows that Imogen Leonard is under surveillance by the Italian government. It is an international matter. And for the present, I regret to say, I can do nothing for you. I bid you good-morning, Mr. Ford."

The ambassador bowed—rather stiffly, the manager of the Giant-killers afterward thought—and hurried off. His gait at least was not according to the canons of diplomatic usage.

Literally and figuratively Tris Ford threw up his hands when he got back to Win Shute's room.

The president of the United States had been induced into office with one dominating ambition, namely, to place a trust magnate behind the bars. While engaged in popularizing himself with the electorate he had attacked the giant combinations, and especially lambasted the heads of the trusts. Guilt, he insisted, was personal, therefore nothing short of a magnate's confinement in a penal institution would "make the punishment fit the crime."

But when it came actually to pick-

Laundry of the Millionaire.
Order is pleasant. If I were a millionaire—which I think heaven I am not, nor scarcely a millionth part of one—I should take pleasure in the silent orderliness that shadowed me through my home. Those invisible hands that patted out the pillows and shined the shoes and picked up everything, even the Sunday newspapers—those I should enjoy. I should enjoy especially the guardian angel who hid from me the casualties of the laundry and put the surviving laundry away. In heaven there is no laundry, or mending of laundry. For the millionaire the laundry is sent and the laundry is sorted away, blessed be the name of the millionaire. I envy him little else—except, perhaps, his linen sheets.—New Republic.

Frances, Janet and Eleanor were discussing the respective merits of the babies in their households, and Frances had led off with:

"That's nothing," said Eleanor. "My little brother hasn't any teeth yet, but when he does have some they are going to be gold ones!"

TRIMMING IN USE

Wealth of Embroidery Takes Precedence Over Silhouette.

Lavish Use of Decoration Raises Question of Where Needlework is to Come From.

The trimming takes precedence over the silhouette, asserts a prominent fashion authority. This is the thing that strikes one most forcibly in the late models. Many of the old forms of trimming are cast aside for embroideries, which are used so lavishly that we wonder where all the workers are coming from to turn out so much of this needlework.

It is unfortunate to run to an extravagant use of any mode of ornamentation. No one can gainsay the decorativeness of beautiful embroidery, but it, like anything else, becomes commonplace when too extensively used.

One reason for using so much trimming may be because the silhouette has changed so slightly designers have felt that this is the only way of offering something new. Straightline dresses are covered with embroidery, the stitches being placed so closely together that it is almost impossible to discern the patterns. Coats and hats show quite as much embroidery as do the frocks.

It is surprising to see such a costly use of trimming directly following so many movements toward economy. It would seem that any effort toward economy in dress is like swimming against the current. With what measure of success these dresses will meet it is difficult to say. They must necessarily be expensive with so much needlework ornamenting them.

Very unusual are the things used to work out embroidery designs. A che-

FOR THE PORCH AND GARDEN

Furniture and Accessories Suitable for Outdoor Use and Which Resist Weather.

"Of all the furnishing problems that confront the home decorator, none is more fascinating than that of converting the porch or terrace into a charming outdoor room to which family and guests alike instinctively gravitate," writes Winifred Faies in June Good Housekeeping.

"The undertaking is delightfully easy, for nowadays appropriate furniture, fabrics, and accessories are obtainable in such limitless variety that the only real difficulty is to keep a reasonably tight hold on the purse strings, instead of yielding to the impulse to buy every new and enchanting thing that offers.

"The modern use of weatherproof materials and finishes for porch and garden furnishings has done much to encourage outdoor living by making it no longer necessary to drag heavy chairs and tables into the house at the first hint of a shower. Far from being injured by rain, the various basket types of furniture are actually improved by it, and even an occasional drenching will do them no harm. Indeed, the accepted cure for rattan and natural willow pieces that have begun to sag and lose their resiliency is to set them out on the lawn and administer a copious shower bath with the garden hose. While this remedy is a trifle drastic for fiber and willow furniture that has been stained or painted in the ordinary manner, even these types will successfully withstand fog and dampness."

SWEEPING AND DUSTING

(By U. S. Public Health Service.)

In sweeping a room raise as little dust as possible, because dust, when breathed in, irritates the nose and throat and may set up catarrh. Some of the dust breathed is carried to the lungs, making portions of them black and hard and useless.

To prevent raising dust in sweeping bare floors, use moist sawdust. When the room is carpeted, moisten a newspaper, tear it into small scraps and scatter these over the carpet. In sweeping, brush these scraps of paper along with the broom and they will catch most of the dust and hold it fast, just as the sawdust does on bare floors. Do not have the paper or sawdust dripping wet—only moist.

In dusting a room, do not use a feather duster, because this does not remove the dust from the room, but only brushes it into the air. Use soft dry cloths to dust with, and shake them frequently out of the window; or use slightly moistened cloths and wipe them out in water when finished. In this way the dust can be gotten out of the room.

In rooms which have bare floors, in houses, stores, shops, school rooms, etc., all dust can be easily removed after it has settled by passing over the floor a mop which has been wrung out so as to be only moist, not dripping wet.

Straw Braid Trimming.
A very odd trimming is seen on some of the new satin models. It is a bristly straw braid sewn to the frock in a conventional design very much after the manner of old-fashioned braiding. The effect is extremely novel. By combining embroidery done in heavy black silk threads with this straw braid great elaboration is obtained.

Frocks of Taffeta.
Many afternoon frocks are of taffeta, very often black, combined with white georgette crepe or crepe de chine.

Father Wouldn't Be Satisfied Until He Saw Him in a Really Proud Position.

An instructor in the military academy at West Point was once assigned to conduct about the place the visiting parents of a certain cadet.

After a tour of the post, the proud and happy parents joined the crowd assembled to witness evening parade, a most imposing spectacle. The march past aroused the father of the cadet to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

"There!" he exclaimed to his spouse, "Isn't that fine? But," he added, reflectively, "I shall not be happy till my boy attains the proud position that leads 'em all." And he pointed in rapt admiration to the drum-major.

"Oh!" came the retort with crushing emphasis. "Then all I have to say is that somebody with brains about as added as them eggs has been mislending the hens with last year's calendar. Just you hang up a 1920 card, my good fellow, and maybe them chickens'll start working overtime to catch up to it!"

Well, the orchestra one night made its appearance at the house of the type of parvenu we should call nowadays a war profiteer. The guests were assembled and the fiddlers and so on were crowded up in the usual corner with the ferns and things. Suddenly the host approached. "Whatever's this horrible noise you're making?" he said. "Rotten piece, I call it!"

 at the State's expense. I am a firm believer in a method close (if she is right) to one for the future American rather than sending them out to strangers. This has never become at all burdensome in this county and it is our experience that excellent results come from its proper application. In discussing this subject before the Women's Club this last summer, the fact was shown that Livingston had only twelve on the pay roll. Oakland had 43, Washtenaw about the same. It is our usual custom where a mother has only one child, and she is well, to refuse a pension.

There are plenty of men and women also who can do this work and the present incumbent has no monopoly on the law, but if the people of the county care to continue the present policy, it is easily done by making an X at the top of the second ticket on the ballot, and if that is not your ticket mark your own and place an X before my name. This is all that need be done to approve of the present administration of the affairs of the office, which would be greatly appreciated.

Yours for the best, non-partisan service in me.

Howell is Up Against It

Talk about building schools under existing conditions. Howell is experiencing harder luck than any place in the state. A fine new high school building has been under way of construction there for the past two and a half years. Appropriations allowable by law were put into the building, and then some more money would be raised by hook or crook and the work carried on. It was almost a case of a thousand dollars at a time.

And now the real conundrum confronts the people. The build-ready for occupancy this new school year, only to be inspected by state officials and being condemned. The building has settled, and as the situation now stands the state will not allow it to be used for any purpose.—Durand Express.

Howell papers last week announced that the building would be ready for occupancy for school purposes about Thursday, September 16.

The above article was recently published in the Fowlerville Review and now comes a reply in the Republican over the signature of C.V. Courter, saying that the school house has not been inspected, has not settled, and generally denying the whole item.

Why not have the building inspected by the proper authorities so that parents will know the exact truth about the matter?

William Faulker, a young man about 23 years of age, was drowned in North Lake, Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock, in about 13 feet of water off Webb's landing.

Mr. Faulker, and a party of friends from Detroit were camping at the lake for a few days. Sunday morning he went out for a swim alone, diving from a boat. It is presumed that he was seized with cramps, as he was an excellent swimmer and was accustomed to the water.

The body was not recovered until it had been in the water for over an hour, and life was extinct.

Mr. Faulker's home was in Paducah, Kentucky, but he had been living in Detroit and was employed at the plant of the Dearborn Publishing Co., Dearborn, Michigan.

It is said that this is probably the first drowning in the history of North Lake. Richard Whalian says it is the first in his 65 years residence in that vicinity and he never heard any of the pioneers tell of a drowning at North Lake.—Chelsea Tribune
