ANOTHER BIG BLAZE HOTEL PROPERTY NOW ASHES GOOD NEIGHBORS COME TO HELP

Fire-Fighting Apparatus Rushed to Pinckney from Howell, Brighton And Ann Arbor

Shortly after nine o'clock Saturday night, Oct. 16 the hotel barn was discovered to be afire and efforts to subdue the blaze were fruitless, the building soon burning to the ground.

The old ice house caught fire, the flames spreading from there to the meat market, the old skating rink and hotel building. The heat was so intense that the stores across Main Street were in danger—paint blistered and plate glass windows in the store fronts were cracked.

S. O. S. messages were sent and Brighton, Ann Arbor and Howell fire engines soon clanged the way through the Pinckney streets to assist. However, the fierce fire had done its worst with the wooden buildings as dry as tinder when the firemen had arrived.

The hotel barn was occupied by George Meabon with his well-drying tools, pipes, automobile, etc.

W. C. Downing was partially insured. The meat market and ice house were owned by Floyd Reason, no insurance. The market was conducted by R. Entwisle and his stock and tools were removed before the building went. The old skating rink owned by George Reason who used it as a repository for carriages, wagons, etc. was partially insured, most of the contents removed. The hotel was owned by Toledo parties and was not insured. Housekeeping rooms were occupied by M. E. Darrow, whose furniture was saved but several tons of coal were lost.

At one time it looked as if the undertaking establishment would be destroyed but hard work by willing workers subdued the fire and the loss is small.

The fierce burning of the old wooden buildings made a bright beacon light for miles around and great crowds thronged the town.

In a surprisingly short time after being called the fire engines from our neighboring towns arrived and their willingness to come to our assistance is deeply appreciated by our citizens. Dr. C. L. Sigler, village president, asked to have them present bills for the service but both Brighton and Ann Arbor authorities refused to consider payment, the Mayor of Ann Arbor who was present, saying: "What's the use of having a neighbor if you can't do him a good turn once in awhile!"

Only a slight breeze was blowing during the fire fortunately, but if a wind from the south had fanned the fire the firemen would have had hard work to save the buildings on the north side of the street.

There is at least one practical lesson brought home to us by the fire. If Pinckney had its own fire engine every building would have been saved with the possible exception of the hotel barn. Lower insurance rates would help to pay for the protection.

G. W. Teeple and R. J. Carr who are agents for the insurance companies, state that already some of the losses have been paid. This is promptness indeed.

SCHOOL NOTES

The students of the high school are experimenting with self government. All rules and regulations of the high school have been cancelled. A student council has been elected and given control of the government of the high school, and it is expected their influence will work throughout the whole school. This plan affords excellent training for the student body and was made possible by the honest endeavor of ninety per cent of the students to obey all rules and regulations, until discipline became almost unnecessary. The plan will be given a thorough trial and if found satisfactory, the student council will become a permanent organization, if not, the entire scheme will be abandoned until some future time when the students prove capable of such liberties.

Percentage of attendance last week was as follows: Gilbert Campbell 80, Dayle Kettler 90, Margaret Driver 80, Bonita Ahrens 40, Lloyd Teeple 80, J. C. Bowman 80, Norman Campbell 60, Gladys Meabon 60, Marjorie Smith 80.

Percentage of attendance in the intermediate room was as follows, Floyd Campbell 80, Wayne Carr 90, Forbes Placeway 90.

The Ancient History class is completing the study of the prehistoric age and has spent a part of each class hour of the past week in telling myths. In a test covering this work the highest mark, 99 per cent, was received by

"METERED MAIL" TO AID SERVICE

INVENTION WILL SEAL, STAMP, CANCEL AND PROTECT MAIL MATTER.

SCHEDULED TO APPEAR SOON

Provision Made for Change Through Rider Attached to Agricultural Bill At Last Session.

Washington—"Metered mail" is to be the next novelty in the rapidly developing postal system of the country. It has received the indorsement of Congress and the Postoffice Department and is scheduled to appear soon.

Metered mail will be sealed, stamped and canceled by the individual owner of a meter. The mail then will be taken to the postoffice and placed immediately upon an outgoing train without further routine.

Metered mail is provided for in a rider on an agricultural bill passed at the last session of Congress. This rider grants to first class mail matter the registered permit privileges now enjoyed by second class mail. Instead of being required to stamp each letter a firm now will have the privilege of obtaining a mailing permit, thus expediting its mail.

Under the plan firms will be able to lease postal meters that have been authorized for use by the postal authorities.

The meter will be a rather heavy metallic box, about the size of a lunch box. It will have two small doors which will be locked by the postal authorities and securely sealed. A firm will take the meter to the postoffice and buy a desired amount of postage. The postal authorities will adjust the meter so that it will stamp and cancel just so many letters and no more.

On the lower of the two doors and the postal authorities will keep a record of the amount of postage sold to each meter owner, so that an absolute check may be kept.

The firm will keep the meter at its offices except when it is necessary to buy more postage. The meter will be operated by a small electric motor. The letters will be fed into the meter in batches and will be sealed, stamped and canceled at the rate of 250 a minute.

UNIVERSITY MUST SERVE STATE

Dr. Burton, New U. of M. Head, Declares in Inaugural Address.

Ann Arbor.—Urging the university as the instrument through which America must be given greater national unity, President Marion Leroy Burton, new president of the University of Michigan, in his inaugural address declared that "our institutions of higher learning exist in a very definite, compelling fashion to help in the establishment of the new American civilization. Education simply must serve America."

"Our universities have failed to focus," he said. "We have discussed and advocated all kinds of educational aims but none has gripped the imagination of all of us and none today emerges as predominant and comprehensive. That education must serve the state is a doctrine that has been proclaimed many times and many places. The years of war, however, have burned it into our souls. We must actually do the thing rather than formulate it in glibulous and vanishing flourishes of rhetoric."

AGENT HELD AS RUM RUNNER

Said to Have Aided Auto Party in Attempted Smuggling.

Marquette.—John E. Fillion, federal prohibition agent working under Leo J. Grove, group chief, who made liquor seizures that resulted in the "rum rebellion" at Iron River early in the year, was arrested on a federal warrant charging malfeasance in office and illegal transportation of whiskey. He was released under $2,000 bonds.

Fillion's arrest followed statements said to have been made by Anton Yarda, of Hurley, Wis., that Fillion was one of 44 whisky runners who attempted to smuggle thousands of dollars' worth of liquor into Hurley from Milwaukee with 22 automobiles, five of which were captured.

Yarda, whose companion, John Mitchell, was killed in an attempt to evade capture by Grove's men, charges Fillion "double crossed" the whisky runners by leading them into the group of federal agents camped on a road near Hurley awaiting the arrival of the caravan.

DON'T WED GENIUS MILDRED HARRIS' ADVICE TO GIRLS

Washington—"Do not wed a genius if you want to be happy though married," is the advice of Mrs. Mildred Harris Chaplin, who is here in connection with the promotion of one of her motion pictures.

"Do not marry too young, either," said Mrs. Chaplin in a discussion of her marital troubles with Charlie Chaplin. "I was only 17 when I married and I do not know my own mind and I do not know it now, for that matter. A girl should be at least 25 years old before she thinks seriously of marriage."

"No actress, either in legitimate drama or in the motion pictures, should marry a member of her own profession if she really wants to be happy."

"Charlie was simply buried in his own genius and did not think of me."

LOFTIS ESTATE OVER $600,000

Thousands in Gems and Liquors Stolen After Sudden Death.

Chicago.—Samuel A. T. Loftis, widely known diamond merchant who died suddenly two months ago in his apartment while with Miss Ruth Wood, left an estate of more than $600,000, according to Attorney Harris F. Williams. The appraisal filed by Paul Corke, assistant to the probate judge accounts for $300,000.

Shortly after Loftis' death, Roy M. Shayne, son of a former widely known State street fur merchant was detained together with Miss Wood in connection with the death. They were exonerated when it was shown that Loftis died of natural causes. Later Shayne and Miss Wood were married.

Attorney Williams said jewelry and liquor valued at several thousands of dollars disappeared after the apartment was searched by strangers during the excitement over the death.

RELIES ON FRIENDSHIP OF U. S.

It Will Aid Mexican Development, Says Commerce Minister.

Dallas, Tex.—Friendship and co-operation between the United States and Mexico, with "neither doubt nor darkness," was predicted here by General Jacinto Trevino, minister of industry and commerce in the cabinet of the provisional government of Mexico. He was speaking before a committee of the Dallas chamber of commerce, which welcomed the minister and a large party of Mexican officials and business men to the state fair of Texas.

"The friendship of the United States will aid in the development of the resources of Mexico," he said. "From now on there are two flags together, the Mexican and that of the United States. Linked in as close a friendship as if typified by the two delegations gathering here today, no power on earth can separate those flags."

CANCEL WAR DEBT, SAYS BRYAN

Commoner Says World Peace Can Be Purchased With Sum Due.

Washington.—William Jennings Bryan's plan for the purchase of world peace by the United States was the subject of much discussion here, but little hope was held out of the plan ever becoming effective.

"Cancellation of the $10,000,000,000 debt owed to the United States by the allied powers was advocated by Bryan in his speech before the World Brotherhood convention, as the 'first step toward universal reconciliation.'"

England, France and Italy cannot pay this debt without collecting it from the central powers and to collect it would sow the seeds of another war, Bryan declared.

AGAINST EXTENSION OF CREDIT

U. S. Treasury Will Not Be Party to Keeping Up Prices.

Washington.—Agricultural interests carried their fight for amelioration of credit conditions to Secretary Houston of the treasury department. They asked for rehabilitation of the war finance corporation to foster exports to Europe and were told by the secretary that it was not in line with good business for the government to extend further credits to Europe which would be the result if the request was granted.

The treasury would not be a party, Houston also declared, to the withholding of any commodity from market in order to maintain artificially high prices.

"After carefully examining the preparation known to the public as Earle's Hypo-Cod and carefully watching the results of several cases in which it was used, it is in my opinion absolutely the best Cod Liver Oil preparation made.

"Its great merit explains its great popularity. The formula is one that is indorsed by many of the leading physicians in the United States today. Yours very truly, J. Henry Scruggs, Ph. G., P. D. (Graduate Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons.)"

"I LOVE JIM."

Synopsis.—Writing long after the events described, Jack Calder, Scot farmer of West Inch, tells how, in his childhood, the fear of invasion by Napoleon, at that time complete master of Europe, had gripped the British nation. Following a false alarm that the French had landed, Jim Horscroft, the doctor's son, a youth of fifteen, quarrels with the father over joining the army, and from that incident a lifelong friendship begins between the boys. They go together to school at Berwick, where Jim is cock boy from the first. After two years Jim goes to Edinburgh to study medicine. Jack stays five years more at school, becoming cock boy in his turn. When Jack is eighteen Cousin Edie of Eymouth comes to live at West Inch. Jack falls in love at first sight with his handsome, romantic, selfish and autocratic cousin of seventeen. They watch from the cliffs the victory of an English merchantman over two French privateers. Reproached by Edie for staying at home, Jack starts to enlist. Edie tells him to stay. Jack says he will stay and marry her. She acquiesces. Jim comes home. Jack sees Jim kissing Edie.

They were not far away, but too taken up with each other to see me.

which I knew so well, casting her eyes away from him, and shooting out a word from time to time. He paced along beside her, looking down at her and bending his head in the eagerness of his talk. Then, as he said something, she placed her hand with a caress upon his arm, and he, carried off by his feet, plucked her up and kissed her again and again. At the sight I could neither cry out nor move, but stood with a heart of lead and the face of a dead man staring down at them. I saw her hand passed over his shoulder, and that his kisses were as welcome to her as ever mine had been.

Then he set her down again, and I found that this had been their parting, for indeed in another hundred paces they would have come in view of the upper windows of the house. She walked slowly away, with a wave back once or twice, and he stood looking after her. I waited until she was some way off, and then down I came, but so taken up was he that I was within a hand's touch of him before he whisked round upon me. He tried to smile as his eyes met mine.

"I saw you," I gasped, and my throat had turned so dry that I spoke like a man with a quinsy.

"Did you so?" said he, and he gave a little whistle. "Well, on my life, Jock, I'm not sorry. I was thinking of coming up to West Inch this very day and having it out with you. Maybe it's better as it is."

"You've been a fine friend," said I. "Well, now, be reasonable, Jock," said he, sticking his hands into his pockets and rocking to and fro as he stood. "Let me show you how it stands. Look me in the eye and you'll see that I don't lie. It's this way. I had met Edie—Miss Calder, that is—before I came that morning, and there were things which made me look upon her as free, and, thinking that, I let my mind dwell on her. Then you said she wasn't free but was promised to you, and that was the worst knock I've had for a time. It clean put me off, and I made a fool of myself for some days, and it's a mercy I'm not in Berwick jail. Then by chance I met her again—on my soul, Jock, it was chance for me—and when I spoke of you she laughed at the thought. It was cousin and cousin, she said, but as for her not being free, or you being as for her not being free, or you being more to her than a friend, it was fool's talk. So you see, Jock, I was not so much to blame after all, the more so as she promised that she would let you see by her conduct that you were mistaken in thinking that you had any claim upon her. You must have noticed that she has hardly had a word for you for these last two weeks."

I laughed bitterly. "It was only last night," said I, "that she told me that I was the only man in all this earth that she could ever bring herself to love."

Jim Horscroft put out a shaking hand and laid it on my shoulder, while he pushed his face forward to look at my eyes.

"Jock Calder," said he, "I never knew you tell a lie. You are not trying to score trick against trick, are you? Honest, now, between man and man."

"It's God's truth," said I. He stood looking at me, and his face had set like that of a man who is having a hard fight with himself. It was a long two minutes before he spoke.

"See here, Jock," said he, "this woman is fooling us both. D'you hear, man?—she's fooling us both. She loves you at West Inch, and she loves me on the brae-side, and in her devil's heart she cares a whin blossom for neither of us. Let's join hands, inan, and send the hell-fire hussy to the right-about."

But this was too much. I could not curse her in my own heart, and still less could I stand by and hear another man do it, not though it was my oldest friend.

"Don't you call names!" I cried. "Ach! you sicken me with your soft talk. I'll call her what she should be called."

"Will you, though?" said I, lugging off my coat. "Look you here, Jim Horscroft, if you say another word against her I'll lick it down your throat if you were as big as Berwick castle. Try me, and see!"

He peeled off his coat down to the elbows and then he slowly pulled it on.

"Don't be such a fool, Jock," said he. "Two old friends mustn't fall out over such a—well, there, I won't say it. Well, by the Lord! if she hasn't nerve for ten!"

I looked around, and there she was, not twenty yards from us, looking as cool and easy and placid as we were hot and fevered.

"I was nearly home," said she, "when I saw you two boys very busy talking, so I came all the way back to know what it was about."

Horscroft took a run forward and caught her by the wrist. She gave a little squeal at the sight of his face, but he pulled her toward where I was standing.

"Now, Jock, we've had tamfoolery enough," said he. "Here she is. Shall we take her word as to which she likes? She can't trick us now, that we're both together."

"I am willing," said I. "And so am I. If she goes for you I swear I'll never so much as turn an eye on her again. Will you do as much for me?"

"Yes, I will."

"Well, then, look here, you! We're both honest men and friends, and we tell each other no lies, and so we know your double ways. I know what you said last night. Jock knows what you said today. D'you see? Now, then, fair and square! Here we are before you, once and have done. Which is it to be, Jock or me?"

You would have thought that the woman would have been overwhelmed with shame, but instead of that her eyes were shining with delight, and I dare wager that it was the proudest moment of her life. As she looked from one to the other of us, with the cold morning sun glittering on her face, I had never seen her look so lovely. Jim felt it also, I am sure, for he dropped her wrist, and the harsh lines were softened upon his face.

"Come, Edie! Which is it to be?" he asked.

"Naughty boys; to fall out like this," she cried. "Cousin Jack, you know how fond I am of you."

"Oh, then, go to him!" said Horscroft.

"But I love nobody but Jim. There is nobody that I love like Jim." She snuggled up to him, and laid her cheek against his breast.

"You see, Jock!" said he, looking over her shoulder.

I did see, and away I went for West Inch, another man from the time that I left it.

CHAPTER V.

The Man From the Sea.

Well, I was never one to sit groaning over a cracked pot; if it cannot be mended, then it is the part of a man to say no more of it. For weeks I had an aching heart; indeed, it is a little sore now, after all these years and a happy marriage, when I think of it. But I kept a brave face on me, and above all I did as I had promised that day on the hillside. I was a brother to her, and so more, though there were times when I had to put a curb upon myself.

For the most part she and Jim were happy enough. It was all over the countryside that they were to be married when he had passed his degree, and he would come up to West Inch four nights a week to sit with us. My folk were pleased enough about it, and I tried to be pleased too.

We used to take long rambles together, Jim and I, and it is about one of those that I now want to tell you. We had passed over Bramston heath and round the clump of firs which screens the house of Major Elliott from the sea wind. It was spring, and the year was a forward one, so that the trees were well leaved by the end of April. It was as warm as a summer day, and we were the more surprised when we saw a huge fire roaring upon the grass plat before the major's door. There was a fir tree in it, and the flames were spouting up as high as the bedroom windows. Jim and I stood staring; but we stared the more when out came the major, with a great quart pot in his hand, and at his heels his old sister, who kept house for him, and two of the maids, and all four began capering about the fire. He was a dour, quiet man, as all the country knew; and here he was, like Old Nick at the carlin's dance, hobbling round and waving his drink above his head. We both set off running, and he waved the more when he saw us coming.

"Peace!" he roared. "Huzzza, boys! Peace!"

And at that we both fell to dancing and shouting too, for it had been such a weary war, as far back as we could remember, and the shadow had lain so long over us that it was wondrous to feel that it was lifted. Indeed it was too much to believe, but the major laughed our doubts to scorn.

"Aye, aye, it is true," he cried, stopping, with his hand to his side. "The allies have got Paris, Boney has thrown up the sponge, and his people are all swearing allegiance to Louis XVIII."

"And the emperor?" I asked; "will they spare him?"

"There's some talk of sending him to Elba, where he'll be out of mischief's way. But his officers—there done these last twenty years that have not been forgotten. There are a few old scores to be settled. But it's peace, peace!" and away he went once more with his great tankard, hopping round his bonfire.

Well, we stayed some time with the major, and then away we went down to the beach, Jim and I, talking about this great news and all that would come of it. How little did Jim know at that moment, as he strode along by my side so full of health and of spirits, that he had reached the extreme summit of life, and that from that hour all would in truth be upon the downward slope.

There was a little haze out to sea, for it had been very misty in the early morning, though the sun had thinned it. As we looked seaward we suddenly saw the sail of a small boat break out through the fog and come bobbing along toward the land. A single man was seated in the sheets, and she yawed about as she ran, as though he were of two minds whether to beach her or no. At last, determined, it may be, by our presence, he made straight for us, and her keel grated upon the shingle at our very feet. He dropped his sail, climbed out, and pulled her bows up onto the beach.

"Great Britain, I believe!" said he, turning round and facing us.

He was a man somewhat above middle height, but exceedingly thin, well dressed in a suit of brown with brass buttons, and he wore high boots, which were all roughened and dulled by the sea water. His face and hands ents begin to discuss the dowry which in the case of the Javanese, is supplied by the groom, consisting of dresses, food, household goods and other similar articles.—Detroit News.

Not Always Warned by Instinct.

Many persons are under the impression that the instinct of animals warns them against eating or drinking anything injurious. This may be the case with wild beasts, but it certainly is not true with domestic animals. A chicken will drink paint, and cows have been known to poison themselves by draughts from a pool in which highly poisonous nitrate of soda had been steeped. Give a canary hemlock in quantities and it will very soon kill itself.

On the other hand, there are poisons quickly fatal to man which have comparatively little effect upon a lower form of animal life.

Dogs and horses can take ten times as much morphine, in comparison to their body weight as man can. The dove or pigeon can take 500 times as much, while the frog is unhurt by a dose 1,000 times greater, weight for weight, than would kill us.

Diamonds were known and worn as jewels in India 6,000 years ago and used as cutters and gravers 8,000 years ago.

MATING ARRANGED BY ELDERS

Young People of Java Have Little to Say in Selection of Husband or Wife.

Marriages in Java are typical of people in all tropical climates, in that the couples wed when they are very young. When a girl reaches her eleventh or twelfth year, her parents begin to look out for a suitable husband, and after the selection has been made they start long preliminary discussions with the parents of the boy. The father of the girl then consults the "wise man" of the village, usually the only literate person in the community, further action being taken solely on his advice.

The wise man takes the first letters of the names of the prospective bride and groom and draws them together in various shapes, then meditating over the combination which is to decide whether the boy and girl are going to be happy in their marriage. If the drawing suggests in the imagination of the wise man a tree with many branches, he warmly recommends the alliance between the boy and girl as the drawing is supposed to promise them prosperity and, above all, a large family.

When the selection is made to the satisfaction of all concerned, the par-were so dark that he might have been a Spaniard, but as he raised his hat to us we saw that the upper part of his brow was quite white, and that it was from without that he had his swarthy skin. He looked from one to the other of us, and his gray eyes had something in them which I had never seen before. You could read the question, but there seemed to be a menace at the back of it, as if the answer were a right and not a favor.

"Great Britain!" he asked again, with a quick tap of his foot on the shingle.

"Yes," said I, while Jim burst out laughing.

"England? Scotland?"

"Scotland. But it's England past yonder trees."

"Don't I know where I am now, I've been in a fog without a compass for nearly three days, and I didn't thought I was ever to see land again." He spoke English glibly enough, but with some strange turn of speech from time to time.

"Where did you come from, then?" asked Jim.

"I was in a ship that was wrecked," said he shortly. "What is the town down yonder?"

"It is Berwick."

"Ah, well, I must get stronger before I can go further." He turned toward the boat, and as he did so he gave a lurch, and would have fallen had he not caught the prow. On this he seated himself, and looked round him with a face that was flushed and two eyes that blazed like a wild beast's.

"Volligeurs de la Garde!" he roared in a voice like a trumpet call, and then again, "Volligeurs de la Garde!" He waved his hat above his head, and suddenly pitching forward upon his face on the sand, he lay all huddled into a little brown heap.

Jim Horscroft and I stood and stared at each other. The coming of the man had been so strange, and his questions, and now this sudden turn. We took him by a shoulder each and turned him upon his back. His lips were bloodless, and his breath would scarce shake a feather.

The coming of Bonaventure

Love as a Camouflage Artist.

To fall in love means the surrendering of one's normal capacity for judgment, says a modern novelist. It is impossible both to love and criticize. Love turns every goose into a swan. Love is the greatest of all camouflage artists. It makes ugliness appear beauty, cruelty seem like kindness, insanity has a sort of genius. When you fall in love with an ass or a cad or an empty-headed young woman with very moderate looks (as you frequently do) and your friends point out the truth to you (as they certainly will), you either lose your temper or your friends, or spend your whole life in inventing mitigating circumstances. In either case you are inevitably and quite properly regarded as a fool. Do not imagine that you can love with discretion, win the thrills, at the same time retaining the reputation of well-balanced sanity. That is impossible.—Exchange.

Fighters' Superstitions.

A superstition which is an outgrowth of the recent war and which is not generally known among those who did not participate in it is the aversion which men have toward permitting a third man to light his "smoke" from the same match. After it has been used by two men the match must be put out, and if matches are scarce, lights can be secured from the lighted cigarettes of the first two. This superstition is generally believed to have started in the British army and spread throughout the allied forces.

Cause of Breathlessness.
Breathlessness is caused by insufficiency of the heart either from lack of proper exercise or from disease. The heart fails to pump the blood to the lungs fast enough and accordingly the CO2 accumulates and overstimulates the breathing center. This causes the sensation of inability to breathe fast enough.

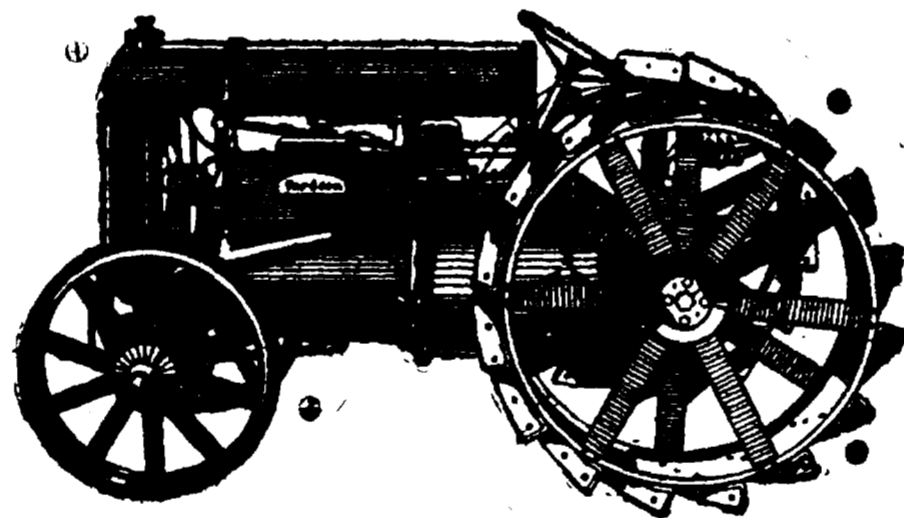

FORDSON
FARM TRACTOR

The Fordson cuts the cost of preparing land almost half of what it costs with horses. But even more important is the fact that the Fordson saves from 30 to 50 percent of the farmer's time and time saved—getting fields in shape to plant in proper season; getting things done when they should be done, means money to the farmer.

As ever, the machine way is faster than the old way. In the factory the machine increases production, saves labor, produces more at less cost. And that is what the Fordson does on the farm. The Fordson way is the machine way of farming. Besides it helps the labor problem.

The Fordson cost is low, and the after or operating cost is low. It is a compact, easily handled tractor, backed by the greatest tractor service organization in the world.

We are Fordson dealers. Not only do we sell Fordson tractors, but we carry a stock of Fordson parts and employ Fordson mechanics to help the farmers get the best results from the Fordson. Let us demonstrate the Fordson on your own farm.

Vote "NO" on the School Amendment

Because

Michigan's Educators Denounce It

University Regent James O. Murfin, says:

I am against the proposed amendment for a number of reasons:—first and foremost—it appears to me it is dishonest.

University Regent Frank B. Leland, says:

I think it is Un-American and in my opinion its incorporation into the basic laws of the commonwealth would be unwise.

Former Regent Chase S. Osborne, says:

The movement against the Parochial Schools is unwarranted, unwise, misdirected effort and, in so far as it destroys something of good and supplants it with nothing, is unjust.

Prof. H. C. Vaughn, Dean of the School of Medicine, University of Michigan, says:

I do not believe the amendment is wise,—I do not believe that the State should interfere with parents in selecting the school to which their children shall go.

President Stringham of the Detroit Board of Education, says:

The enactment of such a law would be a mistake and a calamity.

President Frank Kedzie, of the Michigan Agricultural College, says:

I am not favorable to the Anti-parochial Amendment.

University Regent Benjamin S. Hanchett, says:

I am earnestly opposed to any proposition that would result in the closing of Parochial or any private schools that maintain a proper standard of instruction.

President Charles McKenny, of the Michigan State Normal School, says:

This amendment, if carried, would shut out thousands of children because of no public schools to accommodate them.

Superintendent of Public Instruction, Thomas E. Johnson, says:

There is a very grave question whether the proposed amendment would not put up a legal barrier to prevent the use of the State Institution for the Feeble Minded, the State Institution for the Epileptic, the State School for the Deaf and State Schools for the Blind.

Superintendent Frank Cody, of the Detroit Public Schools, says:

The public school men of Michigan are unanimous against the proposition. The influx of the parochial and private school children into the public schools would swamp our schools.

Dr. Delos Fall of Albion College, formerly Superintendent of Public Instruction, says:

The State Department of Education already possess ample power to visit and supervise these schools.

BENGAL TIGERS.

"I've little use for mild, quiet, nice creatures who won't get angry and who have no sense about what is fun and what isn't," said the Bengal tiger.

"I should really be called Royal Bengal tiger for that is what I am. My home is in India. I'm wild and I can be so cruel and I'm dangerous. Oh, it is thrilling to be so dangerous as I am.

"I don't usually go after people if they leave me alone—that is, I don't go out of my way for them unless I'm hungry. Then I do, by all means. I wouldn't let people stand in my way if I were hungry. I should say not. I would get them out of my way by eating them up, ha ha!" And the tiger gave a great roar which made people watching him shiver.

"Yes," said the second tiger, "we are wild. We like to kill oxen and other animals and then to eat them quickly, for the taste is so good then.

"We're not against killing and eating people either, as you say, though we're more for animals. We get the better of creatures too; we can climb trees which the old lions can't do.

"When our mates are looking after the young, they eat everything and kill everything that comes anywhere near them so as to keep the little ones safe and to provide the lair with food.

"Old elephants aren't so afraid of us as they should be. Every creature should be afraid of us."

"That's so," said the first tiger, "there are some creatures who aren't as afraid as they should be, such as the elephants. But there are enough creatures who're afraid of us to make us good and happy."

But nothing happened to wake them up ahead of time, so instead they kept on sleeping with their beautiful heads on their beautiful paws and they dreamed and dreamed of the days in the wild forests when there were no bars in front of them and no cages and when they were free to go about and enjoy and do such damage as they wanted to without anyone to stop them!

Among those of us ordinary mortals who occasionally find relief in letting off steam in the form of something more expressive than slang, there seems to be a common misconception that "getting the Dickens" is a modification or abbreviation of (heaven help us!) "getting the devil." It is not. It is a harmless, legitimate and respectable expression that may be used with impunity in the best of company. It is simply an allusion to our old friend, Charles Dickens.

Though immortal as a novelist, Dickens was well known in his own time as a newspaper man. So vitriolic he said to have been in his attacks on faulty public officials or other prominent men that gradually it came to be said, when anyone was criticised by him, that he got "the Dickens."

THE LIGHTING QUESTION

Copies of the following letter were recently mailed to The Detroit Edison Company, R. Clinton and Dr. C. L. Sigler, Village President and are self-explanatory.

Detroit Edison Company, Detroit, Michigan.
Clinton Power and Light Co., Pinckney, Michigan.
Village President, Pinckney, Michigan.

Gentlemen:

At the conclusion of the hearing before the Commission, regarding rates and service of the Clinton Power and Light Company, in the Village of Pinckney, this Commission took up with the power company and also with the Detroit Edison Company, the question of the sale by the Clinton Power and Light Company, of its property, to the Detroit Edison Company, in accordance with the wish of the residents of Pinckney, as expressed at the hearing.

Our understanding was that the Clinton Power and Light Company would sell certain of its property located at Pinckney, to the Detroit Edison Company, at a valuation to be fixed by our Engineering Department and we adopted the report furnished, a copy of which is herewith enclosed.

In order to consummate this sale, the village of Pinckney will be obliged to give to the Detroit Edison Company, a franchise, or right to occupy the streets for the purpose of distributing and selling electric current. We trust this matter may be closed up within a very short time.

Yours very truly,
Sherman T. Handy
Commissioner.

Michigan Public Utilities Commission, Lansing, Michigan.
Gentlemen:

In re: Clinton Power and Light Co.

Agreeable with your request, I visited the Village of Pinckney, Michigan on August 25th 1920, at which time I inspected the entire property of the above named company, having in view the ascertaining of the type of service rendered, the condition of the plant, the maximum in service possible from the equipment, the appropripoles 25 feet high with a scant six inch top. The cost of this line to Mr. Clinton I would estimate as approximately $2,000. As this is a single phase line designed to carry 2,300 volts for a distance of three and a half miles, the successful operation of a power lead in excess of 5 horse power, is doubtful.

The distribution system is a conglomerate mass of misfits, consisting in the main of makeshifts resembling temporary construction, which have been permitted to acquire considerable age. Its ability to render service at all satisfactory is doubtful. In the rendering of power service, the present distributing system would be of little value beyond that of the salvage. All customers' meters are the property of the customer and not of the company. As near as I could gather the street lighting system is a multiple circuit or circuits, but having been out of operation for a year or two, a considerable amount of maintenance has been deferred and at present the system is much the worse for wear. The street lighting circuit appeared to consist of No. 10 and 12 copper wire. In the rendering of modern street lighting service the present system, would be useless.

It might be well in arriving at a proper sum, to Mr. Clinton for his property and such privileges as he enjoys in the village of Pinckney, to set up a general figures relative to the situation. It is the estimate of the writer that with a modern distribution system, rendering twenty four hour unlimited service, the village of Pinckney will yield a gross annual income of approximately $4,000.

I would estimate that it cost Mr. Clinton approximately $3,000 to build and construct the distribution system including the street lighting system at Pinckney. This would represent the total investment within the village limits. As the above sum represents the cost new, the present value would be considerably below this due to existing depreciation.

The Detroit Edison would, of necessity, due to the general condition of the present distribution system, be forced to entirely reconstruct the system with new poles, fixtures, wire and equipment. I believe it will cost the Detroit Edison Company approximately $6,500 to reconstruct the distribution system at this time.

After giving due consideration to the requirements of the people of Pinckney I recommend:

1—That the Detroit Edison pay to Mr. Clinton the sum of $3,500 in cash for his entire electric light distribution system and street lighting system, including all property within the village limits with the exception of the two transformers now installed within the eral, in order that I might submit some plan to the commission whereby all interested parties will be equitably dealt with and the village of Pinckney have the best electric light and power service obtainable.

The generating equipment which supplies light and power to the village of Pinckney consists of a 50 kilowatt alternating current generator belted to a vertical shaft driven by a 26 inch waterwheel. The power site is located approximately three and a half miles southwest of the village at the foot of a chain of small lakes at the source of a tributary to the Huron River. As the site is within 5 miles of the source of a tributary to the Grand River, it is evident that the natural water shed is not very far distant. At the most a drainage area of five square miles furnishes the entire water supply. The value of this site is small and of little consequence due to its lack of continuity as a source of power. Mr. Clinton, the owner and operator, states that he has sufficient water to carry the present load all night, every night, and in addition thereto supply service two mornings a week and street lighting service from dusk until midnight every night. This statement I doubt, as I fear that he is powerless to offer any guarantee of continuity of service due to the limited drainage area from which he draws water.

The transmission line from the power site to the village consists of two number six weather-proof copper wires which are supported on cedar

2—That Mr. Clinton be granted the privilege of furnishing himself electricity for his own private use if he so desires. It being understood that Mr. Clinton shall not sell electric current to anyone within the village limits nor to himself as a stockholder or partner in any enterprise located within the village limits

3—That all electric current consumers who now own their own meters shall sell the same to the Detroit Edison Company for the price of $1.00 each, regardless of size or kind with the understanding that the Detroit Edison Company shall test their accuracy within a reasonable period of time after obtaining ownership and at all times keep the meters in repair. It is understood that the Detroit Edison Company shall install additional meters as required without charge and that any changes necessitated in complying with meter installation requirements of the Detroit Edison Company to meters now installed shall be at the expense of the Detroit Edison Company.

4—That all property outside of Pinckney village limits shall remain the property of Mr. Clinton, to dispose of or use as he sees fit. This property is understood to consist of the transmission system from the village limits to the power site and the power site together with the associated generating equipment.

Respectfully submitted,
Fred R. Harris,
Chief Engineer.

Mrs. Swanke—Yes, but who sees blankets?—Answers.

Iron Ore Formed by Bacteria. Geologists are realizing more fully as they extend their studies the magnitude of the work done by plants and animals in building up and tearing down parts of the crust of the earth. Even microscopic organisms perform a large part of this work. Pasteur long ago showed us the deadly power of bacteria in disease and their efficiency in promoting fermentation, but their influence on the fertility of soils and their work in expediting rock decay are still subjects of scientific study.

BRITISH TROOPS HELD FOR CRISIS

GENERAL INDUSTRIAL UPHEAVAL FEARED AS MILLION MEN QUIT COAL PITS.

ARMY STOPS ABSENCE LEAVES

Premier Lloyd George Accepts Defy For Fight to Finish; Many Plants to Close Down.

London.—Immediately after the strike of more than 1,000,000 miners and other workers began in the British coal fields the government took active measures to cope with violence. All leaves of absence from the army were stopped and all army officers on leave of absence were recalled to duty.

Railwaymen and dock workers have pledged their aid to the miners, but it is not yet certain these branches of labor's triple alliance will join the walkout.

Premier Lloyd George has issued a proclamation to the United Kingdom asking the people to resist "the attack with all of their strength." The premier declared the government had used every means in its power to avert the strike, but that the miners had rejected all offers. Lloyd George called the strike a national calamity and gave notice the government would fight to the last ditch.

Notices have been given that scores of manufacturing plants will close, throwing tens of thousands of men and women out of work. Railway service has been curtailed.

The proclamation by the premier and the stern attitude of the federation of miners show the struggle will be a fight to the finish with no quarter on either side.

IRISH HUNGER STRIKER DIES

Fitzgerald's Death Comes After Fast

Cork.—The first death among the hunger strikers in Cork jail occurred with the passing of Fitzgerald after having fasted 68 days.

Fitzgerald was one of the 11 men on hunger strike in the Cork jail whose cases for a long time have been the source of wonderment on the part of the medical authorities. Nearly a month ago Dr. Pearson and Dr. Battiscombe, the jail physicians, expressed profound amazement that the men who were abstaining from food were still alive and conscious. At that time the physicians said that except for the devotion and care of the nuns in attendance upon the prisoners it was certain that several of them would long since have been dead.

All the hunger strikers are declared to have been reduced to a severe degree of emaciation. The facial emaciation of Fitzgerald at the time was declared to be most pronounced.

Fitzgerald was arrested for shooting Private Soldier Jones outside Fermoy church on September 7, 1919.

BOARD IS NAMED FOR INQUIRY

Will Investigate Charges of Illegal Executions in Hayti.

Washington.—Substitution of Maj. Gen. W. C. Neville, Marine Corps, for Brig. Gen. J. H. Pendleton on the board which will begin investigation of charges of illegal executions by Marines in Hayti was announced by Secretary Daniels. Gen. Pendleton, the secretary said, had served in Hayti, and the substitution was made in order that the investigation should be by men "absolutely detached from Haytian affairs."

A number of former marines named in testimony taken by Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, commandant of the corps, in his recent investigation in Hayti are now being sought.

OFFICER NAMED IN RUM GRAFT

Saloonkeeper Says Chicago Police Sergeant Asked $100 a Week.

Chicago.—Further developments in the inquiry into alleged participation of policemen in the liquor graft scandal was forecast when Frank McGovern, a saloonkeeper, told United States Commissioner Lewis of Mason that John D. Walsh, a police sergeant, had demanded $100 a week pay for protection in a deal in which McGovern admitted he was engaged. McGovern said he sold his saloon some time ago.

On three occasions, McGovern asserted, Sergeant Walsh had held up the bartender in the saloon at the point of a revolver and taken $10 or $15 from him.

Walsh denied the charges.

The Housewives Burden

When a woman is almost distracted from overwork, her home is in disorder, crying children, and on top of all is suffering from backache, bearing down pains, or some other form of feminine ills, then she should remember that hundreds of women in just her condition have been restored to health and regained their youthful strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and not rest until she has given it a fair trial.

Proof that it Restored the Health of These Two Women

Cairo, Ill.—"Some time ago I got so bad with female trouble that I thought I would have to be operated on. I had a bad displacement. My right side would pain me and I was so nervous I could not hold a glass of water. Many times I would have to stop my work and sit down or I would fall on the floor in a faint. I consulted several doctors and every one told me the same but I kept fighting to keep from having the operation. I had read so many times of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped my sister so I began taking it. I have never felt better than I have since then and I keep house and am able to do all my work. The Vegetable Compound is certainly one grand medicine."—Mrs. J. R. MATTHEWS, 3811 Sycamore Street, Cairo, Ill.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—"I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my baby came when I could no longer keep up. It strengthened my back and relieved me of the ill effect which so often develops at such times. That was my first experience with the Vegetable Compound. Years afterwards I took it during the Change of Life and got along so well I scarcely ever had to lie down during the day and seldom had dizzy, fainting spells. I am now well and strong, can do all my housework with perfect ease and it is a comfort to me to be able to say to other suffering women 'take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and be strong.' I will be glad to have you use my name if it will be the means of helping any one."—Mrs. R. A. FAIRBURN, 608 Orchard Knob Ave., Chattanooga, Tenn.

HENRY H. WINES

Republican Candidate for COUNTY TREASURER
Second Term

As a candidate for county treasurer I desire to say that it is my duty to care for the finances of the county, which are kept in 121 funds known as the contingent funds. These funds range in amounts from $25.00 to $150,000. There are settlements to be made monthly and quarterly with the various asylums in the State, and other public institutions and with the Auditor General, besides the payment of all the various bounties, County officers and men hired by the Road Commission. I have conducted this work for two years, my books have been audited and found correct. In the past when officers have a good record for a term they have been elected to a second term. This is all I ask. It is all I can have under law, as a County Treasurer is limited to two terms.

Lady Candidate for County Treasurer

The Democratic party on their county ticket as well as on the state ticket have recognized the ability of Mrs. Bergin as a candidate for county treasurer.

Mrs. Bergin was left in 1916 a widow with five little children. In the spring of 1919 she was elected as treasurer of the township of Deerfield, she being the only Democrat on the township ticket to be elected, and was re-elected for the office in the spring of 1920 without opposition. She has performed the duties of that office so well that her friends say that if she is elected as County Treasurer she will be able to take care of the duties of that office in a very satisfactory manner.

CLARENCE J. FULLER

In 1916 and in 1918 was appointed by board of supervisors, a member of the board of county canvassers.

Will appreciate your support Tuesday November 2, 1920.

Stop, Look, and Listen

It will cost to run the State of Michigan for the year 1920 approximately $40,000,000. Every intelligent voter ought to ask whether or not we have had value received for the expenditure of such an enormous amount of money. In 1895 it cost less than $4,000,000. The population in 1895 was approximately 2,240,000. The population has not doubled during the past 25 years but the expenses of the state government have increased more than tenfold. Ought we not to make an honest effort to remedy this? And if so, what is the remedy?

We have but two democrats in the state legislature. The republican majority is too large to be responsive to the will of the people. You can remedy this by electing enough democrats to act as a check on the majority. This condition of affairs is not one peculiar to the republican party alone, but rather one common to every party whose majority is too large to be successfully challenged by the minority. Think this over when you vote on Nov. 2nd and vote in your own interest.

John Wrigglesworth.

CHARLES H. COLL

Candidate for Sheriff
On Democrat Ticket

He was born in Oakland County and with the exception of two years, has resided in Fowlerville all his life.

He was an overseas soldier in the U. S. Army, having been gassed and wounded, and at present is marshal at Fowlerville.

Upon solicitation of friends, he offers a candidate for this office and if elected will endeavor to fill his duties in a way that will be satisfactory to all.

Your vote on November 2nd will be appreciated.
