THE COMMUNITY PROGRAM

Without a hitch of any kind the first Pinckney Community School entertainment was carried through to a successful finish at the school last Friday evening. The movable partition of the two assembly rooms was removed so as to make one large auditorium and this space was well filled by a large and enthusiastic audience whose loud and frequent applause demonstrated the pleasure and satisfaction they received from the efforts of the high school members for their entertainment.

It is to be regretted that an unfortunate conflict of dates kept some members of the Federated Church away, as they held their annual meeting on the same night.

The first part of the evening's entertainment was a musical and literary program. The first number was the High School Chorus composed of the following members:

Dorothy Darrow, Nita Wilcox, Blanche Frost, Irene Warner, Lillian Wasson, Myra Graves, Viola Shipley, Vera Shipley, Olah Docking, Cynthia Hanes, Agnes Carr, Pauline Reason, and Ruth Galligan, Organist.

Recitations by Viola Shipley, Erma Read, Marjorie Smith, and Pauline Reason followed; a humorous class poem by Irene Warner, and the School Sextette composed of Nita Wilcox, Lillian Wasson, Irene Warner, Myra Graves, Viola Shipley, and Vera Shipley completed the first part of the entertainment.

Then followed the Debate. The question to be decided was Resolved—

Resolved: That the United States is

On the affirmative side were Cynthia Hanes, Agnes Carr, Dorothy Darrow, Margaret Driver, and Bessie Swartout.

Opposed were Olah Docking, Blanche Frost, Helen Mercer, Stanley Hall, and Edna Darrow.

Facts and figures supporting both sides of the question were interspersed with sparkling humor, brilliant witticisms, stinging sarcasm, good logic, and solid argument in a way that surprised and pleased the friends of the participants by the efficiency attained so soon—not one having ever taken part in a public debate before this occasion.

The Judges, Mrs. M. E. Darrow, G. W. Teeple, and F. E. Weeks gave the decision to the affirmative side, and thus ended the first High School Entertainment for Pinckney—a complete success in every way. Those who took an active part or assisted in this affair—pupils and teachers—are to be congratulated on the outcome. Let's have more, and oftener.

It would not be going outside the bounds of reason to state that with more experience Pinckney High can furnish a debating team that would make a creditable showing against teams of larger schools in public debate.

A light lunch and Shadow box social were furnished after the debate, which was a social, gastronomic, and financial success.

Come again.

80 YEARS OLD

On Saturday afternoon November 20, Mrs. E. G. Fish was very pleasantly and completely surprised when a little company of friends gathered at her home to remind her of her 80th birthday anniversary, bringing along gifts and a bountiful pot-luck supper.

Mrs. Fish assured them that it was the first "real birthday party" she had ever been tendered, and to make the occasion still more enjoyable she was presented with a dainty basket of fruit, a remembrance from the Philaetha Class of the Federated Sunday School.

Mrs. Fish is one of the oldest residents of the neighborhood, coming to her present farm home nearly fifty three years ago, and is loved by young and old. Five children and three grand children were among those present at the little gathering which her neighbors had so thoughtfully planned for her pleasure.

CLEANING UP BEE

The Pinckney Masonic Lodge, having definitely decided to rebuild the business places on Main street burned down at the last fire, a clean up bee was scheduled for Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week.

On Monday it rained all day and there was nothing doing for the workers. Tuesday started out with prospects of another rainy day but in the forenoon the workers began to arrive and in the afternoon a force of thirty or forty men and boys were busily engaged in sorting out the good bricks and removing the debris from the sidewalk. Before night they had accomplished a great deal in the cleaning up.

Wednesday morning the rain began again and the completion of the work will be delayed. The good spirit of community work seems to have struck this town and the willing workers at this work show what can be accomplished when the right incentive is offered.

SCHOOL NOTES

Percentage of attendance for last week was as follows: Harvey Johnson 40, Merlin Shehan 80, John Stackable 80, Henry Stackable 80.

The following pupils received A in their spelling test last week: Velma Hinchey, Harry Murphy, Katherine Leoffler, Ross Cooke, Classie Hanes, and Gertrude Tupper.

The Senior social was a financial success. The Seniors cleared twice as much as they expected.

AFTER 7 YEARS OF POOR HEALTH TAKES HYPO-COD

In Just a Few Weeks This Gentleman of Seventy Feels 100 Per Cent Better.

"My husband, seventy years old, for several years has been in very poor health. He had something like bronchial trouble, a bad cough and for the last year he just couldn't eat anything except light foods and had become so nervous he just couldn't rest at night. The last few months he had been confined to the house not able to get out," declared a lady whose name and address is given below.

"He had been treated by doctors and taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine and I am glad to say he found the right thing when he began taking Earle's Hypo-Cod. He had been taking Hypo-Cod for about five weeks and improved wonderfully; he goes out now, can sleep good and eats anything he wants and in every way he is 100% better. This tonic has done more for him than all the other treatments put together, including some electrical treatments he took. We can't praise Hypo-Cod too high," continued Mrs. John Grerson, 814 E. Third St., Flint, Mich.

Many people have found Earle's Hypo-Cod ideal according to their statements. It is so pleasant to taste and agrees so nicely with the weakened stomach that even children like it. There is nothing secret or magical about it. The formula is on every bottle. Read it at your druggist's tonight. Druggists, chemists and experts assert it is good and thousands of users recommend it to you. Give it a trial.

Earle's Hypo-Cod is sold here by all druggists and the leading druggists in all nearby towns.—Adv.

His Way.

"The Hon. Bascom Bunk of your township is an avowed candidate for the legislature, isn't he?" asked the able editor of the Tumlerville Torch of Liberty and Tocsin of the Times.

"Eh-yahr!" replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "He's the avowin'est candidate you 'most ever seed. Why, it's got so that when they see him coming the children club trees or scoot under the house to keep from being avowed by him. And if he don't quit avowing us men some feller will take a shot at him the first thing he knows."—Kansas City Star.

JOKE ON AMATEUR FARMER OF SUCH THINGS ARE DREAMS

He Still Has Something to Learn About the "Enormous Profits" Made by Agriculturists.

A federal official at Washington has to learn touching agriculture. Now, he purchased a farm as a summer home for his family, and finds special delight in walking about the place, commenting on the condition of the crops and in many ways showing his interest in his possessions.

One evening during the summer he was strolling over the farm. The hired man had cut the grass during the day—a very thin crop—and left it on the ground to dry. The official saw it and, calling his man, said:

"It appears to me that you are very careless. Why haven't you been more particular in raking up this hay? Don't you see that you have left dribblings all around?"

For a moment the hired man stared, wondering whether his boss was quizzing him. Then he replied:

"Dribblings? Why, sir, that's the crop!"

No Court of Appeal for Judge.

A great many folks in the District of Columbia do not know the judges of the Supreme court, hence these dignitaries sometimes are treated just like other mortals.

Recently Justice McReynolds started to board the front end of a street car, and the motorman, who had opened the front door merely to talk to a friend, shouted:

"Hey, there, you; don't try to get on this front platform! Go back to the rear!"

The justice calmly obeyed the order of the higher court, the motorman muttered, changed his bell viciously and the car passed on.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Remarks That Might Well Be Classed Under the Head of "Impossible Paragraphs."

"Spiffkins, the boss says you can have a two months' vacation with pay, instead of the usual two weeks. And he wants me to notify you that he will pay all expenses."

"Stay out as late as you please, dear, and have a good time. A married man is entitled to jump the fence once in a while."

"Dear Sir: We want you to try our new brand of granulated sugar and beg you to accept a ten-pound sample free of charge."

"Isn't this near-beer delicious? I think it is much superior to real beer, don't you?"

"Come on down to my house, Jim, and I'll give you a case of whisky. I've got more than I can use myself."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Documentary Evidence.

A Washington mother was not particularly pleased by the willingness of her daughter to proceed upon various excursions with a young man from another city.

"I would much prefer," said mother, "that you would not go sailing with that young man, Marie; I don't believe he knows a thing about a sailboat."

"Oh, but he does, mother!" was the quick response. "He showed me a letter of recommendation from a firm for which he worked, and they speak very highly indeed of his salesmanship."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"So," said I, "De Lissac is his name, and not De Lapp. Well, colonel or no, it is as well for him that he got away from here before Jim laid hands upon him. And time enough too," I added, peeping out at the kitchen window, "for there is the man himself coming through the garden."

I ran to the door to meet him, feeling that I would have given a deal to have him back in Edinburgh again. He came running, waving a paper over his head, and I thought that maybe he had had a note from Edie, and that it was all known to him. But, as he came up, I saw that it was a big, stiff, yellow paper, which crackled as he waved it, and that his eyes were dancing with happiness.

"Hurrah! Jock," he shouted. "Where is Edie? Where is Edie?"

"What is it, man?" I asked.

"It's my diploma, Jock. I can practice when I like. It's all right. I want to show it to Edie."

"The best you can do is to forget all about Edie," said I.

Never have I seen a man's face change as his did when I said these words.

"What! What d'ye mean, Jock Calder?" he stammered. He let go his hold of the precious diploma as he spoke, and away it went over the hedge and across the moor, where it stuck flapping on a whin-bush, but he never so much as glanced at it. His eyes were bent upon me, and I saw the devil's spark glimmer up in the depths of them.

"She is not worthy of you," said I.

He gripped me by the shoulder.

"What have you done?" he whispered.

Where is she?

lodge here." I had been casting about in my mind how I could break it gently to him; but I was always backward in speech, and I could think of nothing better than this.

"Oh!" said he; and stood nodding his head and looking at me, though I knew very well that he could neither see me, nor the steading, nor anything else. Then he gave a gulp in his throat, and spoke in a queer, dry, rasping voice.

"When was this?" said he.

"This morning."

"Were they married?"

"Yes."

He put his hand against the door-post to steady himself.

"Any message for me?"

"She said that you would forgive her."

"May God blast my soul on the day I do. Where have they gone to?"

"To France, I should judge."

"His name was De Lapp, I think?"

"His real name is De Lissac, and he is no less than a colonel in Boney's Guards."

"Ah, he would be in Paris likely! That is well. That is well!"

"Hold up!" I shouted. "Father! father! Bring the brandy!"

His knees had given way for an instant, but he was himself again before the old man came running with the bottle.

"Take it away!" said Jim, his face still convulsed with rage.

"Have a soop, Mister Horscroft," cried my father, pressing the liquor upon him. "It will give you fresh heart!"

Jim caught hold of the bottle, and sent it flying over the garden hedge.

"It's very good for those who wish to forget," said he; "I am going to remember."

"May God forgive you for sinfu' waste," cried my father aloud.

"And for well-nigh braining an officer of His Majesty's infantry," said old Major Elliott, putting his head over the hedge. "I could have done with a nip after a morning's walk, but it is something new to have a whole bottle whiz past my ear. But what is amiss, that you all stand round like mutes at a burying?"

In a few words I told him our trouble, while Jim, with a gray face and his brows drawn down, stood leaning against the door-post. The major was as glum as we by the time I had finished, for he was fond both of Jim and Edie.

"Tut, tut!" said he. "I feared something of the kind ever since that business of the peel-tower. It's the way with the French. They can't leave the women alone. But at least De Lissac has married her, and that's a comfort. But it's no time now to think of our little troubles, with all Europe in a roar again, and another twenty years' war before us, as like as not."

"What d'ye mean?" I asked.

"Why man, Napoleon's back from Eiba, his troops have flocked to him, and Louts has run for his life. The news was in Berwick this morning."

"Great Lord!" cried my father. "Then the weary business is all to do over again."

"Aye, we thought we were out from the shadow, but it's still there. Wellington is ordered from Vienna to the Low Countries, and it is thought that the emperor will break out first on that side. Well, it's a bad wind that blows nobody any good. I've just had news that I'm to join the Seventy-first as senior major. I am to join my regiment as soon as I can, and we shall be over yonder in a month, and in Paris, maybe, before another one is over."

"By the Lord, then, I'm with you, major!" cried Jim Horscroft. "I'm not too proud to carry a musket, if you will put me in front of this Frenchman."

"My lad, I'd be proud to have you serve under me," said the major. "And as to De Lissac, where the emperor is he will be."

"You know the man," said I; "what can you tell us of him?"

"There is no better officer in the French army, and that is a big word to say. They say that he would have been a marshal, but he preferred to stay at the emperor's elbow. I met him two days before Corunna, when I was sent with a flag to speak about our wounded. He was with Soult then. I knew him again when I saw him."

"And I will know him again when I see him," said Horscroft, with the old dour look on his face.

And then at that instant, as I stood there, it was suddenly driven home to me that I should lead while this crippled friend of ours and the companion of my boyhood were away in the forefront of the storm. Quick as a flash my resolution was taken.

"I'll come with you, too, major," I cried.

"Jock! Jock!" said my father, wringing his hands.

Jim said nothing, but he put his arm half round me and hugged me. The major's eyes shone and he flourished his cane in the air.

"My word! but I shall have two good recruits at my heels," said he. "Well, there's no time to be lost, so you must both be ready for the evening coach."

And this was what a single day brought about, and yet years pass away so often without a change. Just think of the alteration in that four-and-twenty hours. De Lissac was gone. Edie was gone. Napoleon had escaped. War had broken out. Jim Horscroft had lost everything, and he and I were setting out to fight against the French. It was all like a dream until I tramped off to the coach that evening, and looked back at the gray farmstead and at the two little dark figures—my mother, with her face sunk in her Shetland shawl, and my father, waving his drover's stick to hearten me upon my way.

CHAPTER XI.

The Gathering of the Nations.

And now I come to a bit of my story that clean makes me wish that I had never taken the job of telling it in hand. But you can find the cause and reason of everything in the books about history, and so I shall just leave that alone and talk about what I saw with my own eyes and heard with my own ears.

The regiment to which our friend had been appointed was the Seventy-first Highland Light Infantry, which wore the red coat and the trows, and had its depot in Glasgow town. There we went, all three, by coach, the major in great spirits and full of stories about the Duke and the Peninsula, while Jim sat in the corner, with his lips set and his arms folded, and I knew that he killed De Lissac three times an hour in his heart. I could tell it by the sudden glint of his eyes and grip of his hand.

We were in Glasgow next day, and the major took us down to the depot, where a soldier with three stripes on his arm and a fistful of ribbons from his cap showed every tooth he had in his head at the sight of Jim, and walked three times round him, to have the view of him as if he had been Carlisle castle. Then he came over to me and felt my muscle, and was well nigh as pleased as with Jim.

"These are the sort, major; these are the sort," he kept saying. "With a thousand of these we could stand up to Boney's best."

"How do they run?" asked the major.

"A poor show," said he, "but they may lick into shape. The best men have been drafted to America, and we are full of militiamen and recruits."

"Tut, tut!" said the major. "We'll have old soldiers and good ones against us. Come to me if you need any help, you two." And so, with a nod, he left us, and we began to understand that a major who is your officer is a very different person from a major who happens to be your neighbor in the country.

Soon came the news that the folk at Vienna, who had been cutting up Europe as if it had been a jigget of mutton, had flown back, each to his own country, and that every man and horse in their armies had their faces toward France.

We heard of great reviews and musters in Paris too, and then that Wellington was in the Low Countries, and that on us and on the Prussians would fall the first blow. The government was shipping men to him as fast as they could, and every port along the east coast was choked with guns and horses and stores. On the third of June we had our marching orders also, and on the same day we took ship from Leith, reaching Ostend the night after. From there we went on to a place called Bruges, and from there to Ghent, where we picked up with the Fifty-second and the Ninety-fifth, which were the two regiments that we were brigaded with. It's a wonderful place for churches and stonework, is Ghent; and, indeed, of all the towns we were in there was scarce one but had a finer kirk than any in Glasgow. From there we pushed on to Ath, which is a little village on a river, or

—and the whole brigade set to work at its drill from morning till evening. General Adams was our chief and Reynell was our colonel, and they were both fine old soldiers; but what my heart into us most was to think that we were under the Duke, for his name was like a bugle call. He was at Brussels with the bulk of the army, but we knew that we should see him quick enough if he were needed.

I had never seen so many English together, and indeed I had a kind of contempt for them, as folk always have if they live near a border. But the two regiments that were with us now were as good comrades as could be wished. The Fifty-second had a thousand men in the ranks, and there were many old soldiers of the Peninsula among them. They came from Oxfordshire for the most part. The Ninety-fifth were a rifle regiment, and had dark-green coats instead of red. It was strange to see them loading, for they would put the ball in a greasy rag and then hammer it down with a mallet, but they could fire both farther and straighter than we. All that part of Belgium was covered with British troops at that time, for the Guards were over near Enghien, and there were cavalry regiments on the farther side of us. You see, it was very necessary that Wellington should spread out all his force, for Boney was behind the screen of his fortresses, and of course we had no means of saying on what side he might pop out, except that he was pretty sure to come the way that we least expected him. On the one side he might get between us and the sea, and so cut us off from England; and on the other he might shove in between the Prussians and ourselves. But the Duke was as clever

TO MAKE AND HOLD FRIENDS

Knack That Can Be Acquired by Most People, and Is Well Worth the Having.

Few people are naturally blessed with the happy faculty of making friends easily. With most people it is more or less an acquired art. If you wish to acquire this art, don't be discouraged at the apparent ease with which some of your friends seem to "get on" with everybody. They've only learned a few more of the "tricks of the trade," so to speak, than you have. That's all. The main point is that they have learned them. A person who would have friends must show himself friendly. Just you try it and see if it doesn't act like a charm.

Half the battle is to meet people as if it may be taken for granted that they are glad to see you, and that you are glad to see them. Nine cases out of ten if you are genuinely glad to see them and show it they will be glad to see you.

as he, for he had his horse and his light troops all around him, like a great spider's web, so that the moment a French foot stepped across the border he could close up all his men at the right place.

For myself, I was very happy at Ath, and I found the folk very kindly and homely. There was a farmer of the name of Bois, in whose fields we were quartered, who was a real good friend to many of us. We built him a wooden barn among us in our spare time, and many a time I and Jeb Seaton, my rear-rank man, have hung out his washing, for the smell of the wet linen seemed to take us both straight home as nothing else could do. I have often wondered whether that good man and his wife are still living, though I think it hardly likely, for they were of a hale middle age at the time. Jim would come with us too sometimes, and would sit with us smoking in the big Flemish kitchen, but he was a different Jim now to the old one. He had always had a hard touch in him, but now his trouble seemed to have turned him to flint, and I never saw a smile upon his face, and seldom heard a word from his lips. His whole mind was set on revenging himself upon De Lissac for having taken Edie from him, and he would sit for hours, with his chin upon his hands, glaring and frowning, all wrapped up in the one idea. This made him a bit of a butt among the men at first, and they laughed at him for it; but when they came to know him better they found that he was not a good man to laugh at, and they dropped it.

Plants Revived by Sleep.

After the period of growth in spring and summer there is a period of dormancy in plants before the cold weather sets in, and if plants are maintained artificially at a high temperature this dormant period persists. Exposure to cold is needed to activate the plant for another period of growth. Perhaps the liberation of enzymes acts on the stored starches, converting them into sugars, or the phenomenon may be due to a change in the permeability of the cell-membrane. Though normally the stimulus required for a renewal of growth is supplied by cold, mechanical injury or a period of drying may have the same effect. The process two branches of a plant are kept continually warm while the other is subjected to the usual winter chilling, the former will not develop normally on the return of summer temperature, though the latter develops as usual.

Japanese Masks of Shame.

One of the most unusual features of a Japanese court to a stranger is the fact that each prisoner has his head covered by a wicker mask, more like an inverted waste-basket than any thing else, the object of which is to prevent recognition of the prisoner, to permit him to hide his shame under the disguise and, very possibly, to prevent him from making a bolt for liberty.

The sight of a prisoner so arrayed is ghastly, the mask bringing up the suggestion of the hangman's cap.

Once in the prisoners' box, however, the masks are removed, while the prisoners sit with deeply bowed heads in an attitude of the utmost humility.—Boston Post.

Dependent on Tides.

There is only one season of the year when one can visit Angkor (in the interior of Cambodia, French Indo-China) owing to a curious phenomenon known nowhere else in the world—the fact that the river Ton-le-Sap flows inland part of the year and then turns and flows outward, in the opposite direction, for the remainder of the year. At such times as it flows inland, during and following the rainy season, there is water enough to float steamboats. When it flows outward it completely drains a large lake that forms part of the river bed and leaves the lake dry except for a small trickle down the center.

Don't always expect the other person to make the advances if there is no good reason why you shouldn't make them. Sometimes the very persons who seem most "unapproachable" turn out to be quite willing to be friendly if they are approached in the right way. Look for the good in people, always, and you will be very sure to find it.

Enemies Died Together.

A rural postman in Inverness found two animals caught in one trap; one a rabbit, held firmly by a hind leg, and the other a ferret, with both forelegs fixed in the trap. Apparently the rabbit was being pursued by the ferret when both were caught.

Progress.

Throughout the whole web of national existence we trace the golden thread of human progress toward a higher and better estate.—James A. Garfield.

Most men get married before they are old enough to know better.

Millions for a New Stomach

One of the greatest American millionaires said to his physician, "A million dollars, Doctor, spot cash and no grumbling, for a new stomach," and then the sick man groaned and turned away. All his wealth could not make him happy or contented, for happiness largely depends upon digestion. Without health where does happiness come in? After all the stomach plays a great part in everyday life. Without a healthy stomach and good digestion our blood is thin, watery and poor, our heart action is weak, our liver does not do its duty, and man is miserable and unhappy. Prevent disease by putting the house in order and strengthening the system against the germs of disease.

Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., years ago understood diseases and their prevention, and he discovered certain roots and herbs which were nature's remedies, and succeeded in putting them up in a form that could be easily procured at the drug store (liquid or tablets). This he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This Discovery gives no false stimulation because it contains no alcohol or any narcotic. It helps digestion and the assimilation of such elements in the food as are required for the blood. It feeds to the blood the food elements the tissues require. For over fifty years it has enjoyed the confidence of the American public. Try it now!

LIVINGSTONITES IN CALIFORNIA

Reprinted from the Glendale Local Newspaper

The Ray C. Jewell family of 1319 East Harvard street, were much surprised last evening when two automobile loads of friends from their old home in Livingston county, Michigan, stopped before their door.

The party of ten included John Roberts and family, Mrs. Bert Roberts and family.

The party camped along the way and report a glorious good time, even the seventeen-months' old baby standing the trip like a veteran. Excepting the baby and its mother who are occupying the guests room of the Jewell home, they are still camping, free from the bane of high rents and the scarcity of house.

They expect the arrival this evening of another Michigan party, comprising Mrs. Walter Gordon, Archie Gordon and family, and Leon Lauterbach and family.

Ray C. Jewell came here with his family the first of last July and purchased the home on Harvard street which they are now occupying. The Jewells are enthusiastic boosters for Glendale, its fine scenery, good water, pure mountain air, delightful climate, and high moral tone.

This last party will make a total of thirty two coming from Livingston county to Southern California in the last ten months. Each one who comes immediately becomes a California booster and entices others.

Yesterday's group enjoyed with the Jewell family an elaborate picnic dinner, all enjoying the affair hugely, the newcomers relating the news of acquaintances back home, and the Jewell family telling them of the joys that would be theirs in California.

The present intention of this group is to remain for the winter only, but those coming in by train today will remain permanently somewhere in the Southland, and Mr. Jewell says this auto crowd will be permanent here some time, if not now.

There is one significant piece of news not printed in the above, that will make some people here hesitate to leave this county just at present. The party referred to has rented a cottage for the winter, the rent being $100 per month. So if you decide to go to California don't forget to take a well filled purse.

HAS ADMIRATION OF WORLD

Capitol at Washington Recognized As the Finest and Noblest Building on the Earth.

Foundations for the central structure of the present capitol in Washington were finished on August 24, 1818. The old capitol had only two wings connected by a covered wooden bridge, which was destroyed and the wings damaged by the British, who set fire to the building in 1814. Three years later congress voted to remove the wings and build the new central structure, which with its dome was completed in 1820.

The two great marble extension wings in which the senate and house of representatives meet were begun in 1851 and completed for occupancy in 1853. The old dome, made of wood and brick, was torn away in 1855, and the present dome completed in 1864. The great statue of the goddess of freedom, which rests upon the dome, was designed by Thomas Crawford, father of Marlon Crawford, novelist. Charles Bulfinch of Boston was the architect of the original central structure and Thomas U. Walter designed the marble extensions and the present was about $16,000,000, and it has been pronounced by architectural authorities, both in America and Europe, to be the greatest and noblest building in the world.—Chicago Journal.

KNOWS NOW HOW IT FEELS

Dentist, Given Emergency Toothache Treatment, Dreads Further Ordeal of a Session in the Chair.

A haggard-faced man rushed into the Park Emergency hospital shortly after 3 o'clock a few mornings ago.

"For the love of mud will you give me something to stop a raving toothache? It's had me up all night, and I've tried everything," he moaned to the steward in attendance.

The steward made the pain-ridden patient comfortable in a chair and then applied soothing remedies to the offending molar.

"Why, the pain's gone," the patient exclaimed after a while.

"Well, that tooth won't bother you any more for a while, but you had better see a dentist in the morning," said the steward.

"Guess I'll have to," said the patient gloomily.

"Everybody hates to go to a dentist," remarked the steward. "Will you give me your name for our records?"

"Yes," said the patient. "I am Dr. A. Karageorge."

"Are you a physician?" asked the steward.

"No, I'm a dentist," smiled the patient. "I have cured scores and scores of aching teeth, but this one of mine sure unnerved me. Guess I'll have to go to a dentist in the morning. Gee, I hate to!"—San Francisco Chronicle.

Hearing of Butterflies.

The hearing of certain butterflies, the moths and the spiders has been a subject of much study by F. Ezzers, whose results have been reported in a Berlin zoological journal. The seat of hearing is found to be the "tympal organ" of the last ring of the thorax. The air-filled vesicle or bladder of this organ adjoins two very thin spots in the external chitin, and one of these is the true drumhead, connected with a nerve strand having two sensory cells, while the other, the so-called opposite drumhead, seems to serve as a sounding board to reinforce vibrations. Experiments with crickets have shown that the chirping of the male is heard only by females having the tympal organ intact. The organ of the butterflies, which is more sensitive, cannot be tested in the same way, but response has been had to very high, shrill tones, such as that made by rubbing a cork against a wet glass, and in one species to a clattering sound made by the wings of the male. Butterflies flying by day seem to have hearing organs more generally than those that are active at night.

Mark Memorial Trees.

Regardless of how thoughtfully the trees have been selected and how thoroughly the planting has been done, there remains intelligent care to have them live and thrive, says the American Forestry association of Washington, which will register your memorial trees on its national honor roll. Many planters have been disappointed with the results of their work because they considered their job completed when the last shovelful of soil was placed around the tree.

East Lansing.—Michigan agriculturists will be well represented at the big International Hay and Grain Show which is to be held at Chicago Nov. 27 to Dec. 4, in connection with International Live-stock Exposition. A complete educational exhibit of Michigan crops, 200 entries of small grains alone from farmers of the state, and the honor of furnishing one of the grain judges are among the things which will give Michigan a prominent place in activities of this year's show.

Remarkable development which has been made in Michigan along the line of introduction and distribution of improved crops varieties will feature the state exhibit, which is being prepared by the Michigan Agriculture College. The exhibits will show three units of the advanced work being done in the state along this line: 1. The development of improved varieties by the Crops Department at the college; 2. The increase of the varieties by the Michigan Crop Improvement association; and 3. The assistance in marketing given by the Seed Department of the State Farm Bureau.

Thirty-three elevators and cooperative associations have joined the elevator exchange of the state farm bureau and doing business in grain and beans solely through this one agency, according to the state farm bureau. Most of the elevators have all of their business in hay to be handled through the same channel.

The elevators are well distributed over the state, five in Huron, 4 in Kent 2 in Branch, 2 in Barry, 2 in Ottawa, and the rest extending from the southern border to Sault Ste. Marie. Indications seem to point that there will be two or three times as many members in the next few months.

At the last meeting of the Board of Control of the exchange, T. E. Buell, manager, reported that a total of 79 cars had been handled during the first three weeks since the exchange had been doing business, in the spirit of the handicap of just getting organized and the lull in the market due to the presidential election.

LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

LEAGUE ORDERS TROOPS TO VILNA

BRITAIN AND SPAIN ASKED TO MAINTAIN ORDER DURING PLEBISCITE.

SIX VICE-PRESIDENTS CHOSEN

Committee On Disarmament And Mandates Carries Motion to Hold Sessions Open to Public.

Geneva.—Great Britain and Spain will send military contingents to Vilna to maintain order during the "popular consultation of the inhabitants."

This announcement was made by the assembly of the League of Nations. It was added that the French and Belgian governments already had agreed to dispatch contingents thither.

The communication issued avoids the use of the word "plebiscite" in connection with the dispatch of the troops. When Gen. Zeligowski entered Vilna with his outlaw troops some time ago he announced it as his purpose to allow the inhabitants to determine their government.

Lord Robert Cecil and Hjalmar Branting at the first meeting of the committee on disarmament, economic blockade and mandates put through a motion that the session of the committee would be open to the public, thus profiting by the latitude left by the assembly for the holding of the committee deliberations behind closed doors or not. Much curiosity is evidenced here whether the example will be followed by other committees.

The League of Nations assembly completed its organization by the election of six vice-presidents, who with the six chairmen of the committees elected form a sort of executive committee of the assembly.

The vice-presidents are: Viscount Ishii, Japan; Honorio Pueyrredon, Argentina; Sir George E. Foster, Ca-

Eduard Benes, Czecho-Slovakia.

MAY REVOKE CABLE PERMIT

State Department Insists on Privileges Accorded Other Governments.

Washington—A veiled threat that the permits granted for the landing of Western Union cables in the United States will be revoked unless the company continues to accord the American government the same privileges that it accords the British and other governments in handling cable messages is contained in a formal statement issued by the state department.

The Western Union Telegraph company, says an announcement issued by the state department, not only has refused to accept any government cable messages without prepayment of tolls, but also has refused to carry at the reduced government rate messages originating outside of the United States.

CHARGES MADE BY CAPTAIN

Says Coast Guard Stations Failed To Lend Aid During Storm.

Sault Ste. Marie—Capt. Arthur Forbes, of the wrecked steamer Francis J. Widlar, charged the Crisp Point and Vermillion Coast Guard Stations with inefficiency and lack of co-operation in the effort to rescue the Widlar's crew when the vessel grounded at Pancake Shoals.

Rescue tugs had arrived and taken off the crew, Capt. Forbes declared, before any of the Coast Guard vessels came to their assistance. In response to the call for aid, he said, the stations had replied that they could not get boats away immediately, owing to ice-covered launchways. Capt. Forbes added that flares from his vessel had not been seen by the Coast Guard crews, while points further distant had observed them.

DISLIKE SONS TO GROW UP

Few Mothers Welcome the Time When Their Boys Go Out Into the Hard World.

Almost every mother keeps her boy in "knee pants" just as long as she can; she hates to see him becoming a man, for she feels that he is getting the boy pass from the love and care and peace with which she has surrounded him, out into the world of pitiless endeavor in which he must play his part.

The mother's selfish fondness discloses itself in the ludicrous child's garment and the worn-out, home-bred horse with which she sends forth the would-be knight. These are to the modern analytical mind painfully symbolic of the unconscious interference of the part of parents with the proper adult equipment of their children for an independent life. Their apparent fondness conceals the unconscious wish that the child will find himself unequipped for the greater world and compelled to turn back to the shelter.—New York Medical Journal.

BEAUTY MARSHALED FOR CZAR

Russian Monarch Selected B-ride From the Prettiest Maidens of Land Over Which He Ruled.

In Russia, in the Sixteenth century, the choice of a bride for the czar was made from all the pretty girls of the country. Ivan, who ruled 1530-1584, being ready for a wife, ordered all the beautiful girls in the country to come to Moscow. Preliminary contests were held in which candidates were contestants were delighted with the chance to go to Moscow, and still more delighted with hope of becoming ruler of Russia. An immense hall was built and, on the day of the choosing, 1,500 of the most beautiful girls in Russia were ready to contest for Ivan's favor.

Accompanied by an aged courtier, the czar strolled through the hall, all the girls smiling shyly or openly at his highness as he passed them. After a process of elimination was gone through with, Anastasia, daughter of an ancient but poor family, was chosen, and was made empress of 50,000,000 people forthwith.

The Absent Back.

Cortlandt Bleecker was supping in a roof garden restaurant the other night when his companion nudged him and said:

"Look, there goes Merriweather. Poor duffer, every cent he earns goes on his wife's back."

"Then, by heaven, he must have lost his job," said Mr. Bleecker, "judging by the dress I saw his wife wearing at a dinner dance last week."

THE WHITE MAN'S BURDEN

Wheat—"Take Him Off and I Can Carry the Rest."

(By DR. F. F. KEMPTON, in Charge of Barberry Eradication, United States Department of Agriculture.)

The white man has been referred to in speech and in verse as having one of the heavy burdens of life to bear. This burden, real or fancied, may be heavy, but to the world, it in no way compares with the accumulated burdens borne by the farmer in the production of the wheat crop upon which the world depends for its staff of life.

If the crop escapes bad weather—cold, ice, flood, hail, frost, drought, or hot winds—various insects may be lurking about to feed upon what remains. Plant diseases in the form of and have a thicker skin than those of the common barberry. This barberry is harmless as it does not carry the stem rust and should not be destroyed.

If every property owner in the northern wheat-growing states of Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Wyoming co-operate, it will be possible to take this "Old Man of the Sea," black-stem rust, off the shoulders of the wheat grower. Every property should be carefully examined for the harmful barberry and all bushes found should be eradicated so that it or other trees or bushes, about fences or streams, in brushy pastures, or in any places where birds might carry the seeds. In this way you help to increase the prosperity of your community by increasing the production of wheat and other grains and also help to supply more food for the whole world.

Further information may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture or your state agricultural college.

Wide Interest Shown In Work.

The wide interest taken in the work of eradication has been evidenced by the numerous requests received by the department during the past fiscal year for informational material for use in the infested areas. Lack of funds has hampered somewhat the department's campaign against barberry. It was able, however, to supply a large number of posters, bulletins, circulars, and other matter for distribution.

A survey to locate barberries was begun in the larger cities because of the better means for spreading information. It was extended then to the towns, so that now nearly all cities and towns having a population of over 300 have been surveyed. An intensive survey of the entire rural area outside of the cities and towns has been begun.

A very important part of this survey is finding the escaped barberries which have started from seeds dropped by birds in thickets and pastures. Over 1,674,000 escaped bushes were found during the past year. A total of almost 1,900,000 bushes was found in rural districts last year. Records to date show that 3,865,426 bushes have been located and 3,705,142 bushes removed.

BEST-GRADED PRODUCTS WIN

Standardization Establishes Common Language Between Buyer and Seller.

It has been demonstrated many times that in the markets of the world the seller with the best-graded products is the favorite, because graded goods are standard and the buyer knows what he will get when he buys. Standardization establishes a common language between the buyer in one country and the seller in another, which creates understanding and confidence and prevents disputes.

A national grading system usually provides for authorized national inspectors to pass upon the goods and thus puts into effect a uniform standard application of the grades established, whatever they may be, that can be maintained unless the system is nation wide in its scope.

Amount of fat found in the hog's carcass varies from 24 to 42 per cent.

WHERE POTATOES ARE GROWN

North Atlantic States Lead With Production of 28 Per Cent—Central States Next.

Potato production is more evenly distributed among the various sections of the United States than is generally supposed. If the early as well as the late crop is taken into account, in the average of the four years 1916-1919, the North Atlantic states produced 28 per cent of the crop, the North Central states east of the Mississippi river 22 per cent, those west of that river 18½ per cent, the Rocky Mountain and Pacific states 16 per cent, the South Atlantic states 10 per cent and the South Central states 6 per cent.

Of this Vicinity,
Men and Women:

When the representative of this paper called on the Teeple Hardware Company to see what they had to say about advertising this week Mr. John J. Teeple said they were too busy to attend to the matter and requested us to write an ad, using our own judgment about what to say

You all know what this firm is up against

THEY NEED MONEY

Just imagine yourself in their predicament and ask yourself if you too, would not need it. And we are sure, knowing the community as well as we do, that every man or woman who owes this concern—the oldest mercantile firm in this part of the county—will come down this week and pay their accounts in full if possible. If this is not possible, give them what you can on account, and if you are not just at present in a position to do either, you surely can come down and give them a hearty, sympathetic handshake and tell them you will do the best you can as quickly as possible.

The future of this concern is largely in your hands at the present critical time. What are you going to do about it?

They are at home under the opera house with a small stock of hardware. The stock of implements was not destroyed, and they will be glad to see their many friends at all times.
