OBITUARY

James S. Nash, son of Marquis and Florida Nash, was born in Hamburg township on the old homestead in the year 1860, and with the exception of six years spent in Iosco, lived his whole life in this neighborhood. He was married to Jennie S. Turner April 18, 1872. To this Union were born three children, Rose C. Hendrie, Grace M. Appleton, and Wm. J. Nash.

He passed away peacefully Nov. 25, 1920.

He leaves to mourn his loss, a devoted wife, the three children, fifteen grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren, one sister Mrs. Sarah Hodgeman of South Lyon, one half-brother, one half-sister, a number of nieces and a host of friends.

His life was an example of right living to those who knew him.

He was a member of the Congregational church and a trustee of same for many years.

In him the church has lost one of its pillars and we wonder who will take up his mantle. Such vacancies are hard to fill.

The community has also suffered a great loss, as he was always interested in the community life.

The funeral services were held at the family residence on Saturday Nov. 27, at 2:30 P. M., conducted by Rev. J. E. Cook, and he was laid to rest in the North Hamburg Cemetery.

SCHOOL NOTES

Percentage of attendance in High

80, Irene Wagner 80, Anna Clark 80, Hazel Gallup 90, Henry Stackable 80, Pauline Reason 90, Neita Wilcox 80, J. C. Bowman 90.

The attendance for November in the primary room was 97 per cent.

The second grade is sorry to lose Helen Dody from their class.

The Third Grade found by their chart that there have been more than twenty cloudy days in November.

The teacher of mathematics reports that she has the most advanced algebra class she has had in several years. Juniors! We are well pleased with the report.

The percentage of attendance in the high school for November was 99. This is a satisfactory record—nearly every student having been in school every day.

The seventh grade Geography class is working diligently on the study of Europe.

Several inquiries have been coming in asking whether or not the Pinckney High School is on the accredited list of the University. We take pleasure in answering these inquiries by stating the school is, and has been on the accredited list for the past six years. Graduates of Pinckney may enter any college or university in Michigan or practically any college in the United States without taking an examination. The position of the school can best be understood from the report of the last inspector. He said, "Pinckney has a fine school, comparing very favorably with high schools throughout the state as long as the present high standard of instruction is maintained and the Board of Education continues to supply the necessary equipment, there is no reason why Pinckney should not remain on the University list indefinitely."

However this does not mean that all graduates can enter the University. The University does not accept all the graduates from any high school, but has a ruling that no student, from any high school, can enter the University except his scholarship, character, and general ability is of the highest order. This merely means those students who draw A's B's and C's are capable of doing college work, while those who draw C's D's and E's cannot do college work. Every school is requested to carry out this rule very rigidly.

Ladies Aid Dinner

The Ladies of the Aid Society will serve dinner at noon on Dec. 11. They will also have a sale of articles suitable for Christmas Gifts. Every member is expected to furnish something for the sale table.

THE PROPOSED MASONIC BUILDING

Preparations for the new Masonic building to be erected on the site of the burned stores are going forward with activity on the part of the Masonic lodge.

Architectural plans have been submitted to the assessors each two stories in height. The corner building will be 28 feet by 28 feet and the second store will be 28 by 28. It has not been decided whether the Pinckney Lodge will build the third building, but private capital is ready to do so if the Masons do not, so Pinckney is assured of three modern brick stores in the place of those burned down.

On the second floor of the corner building will be a large dancing hall and two good sized dressing rooms. The second floor of the other building will have the lodge room, kitchen, and two smaller rooms, with front and back stairs.

The perspective drawing shows a substantial front with enough stone work to relieve the severity. The fronts will probably be constructed of pressed brick.

Although handicapped last week on account of rain, the work of removing the debris and cleaning the good brick has gone ahead, with good results. The sidewalks are now clean and every day volunteers are busily engaged in removing the large mass of brick and other materials from the cellars.

Everyone helps as much as possible, and many worked all day last Wednesday through a drizzling rain. This is a sign of the good feeling existing in the village.

Later—Thos. Read has bought the lot east of the two lots on which the Masonic building will be built and proposed to put up a store building at the same time the other stores are being built. Mr. Read says he did not buy the lot for speculation but only in order to be sure the burned district is rebuilt, and he is willing to sell the lot at cost to parties who are willing to build as quick as possible. This shows unselfish loyalty to Pinckney's interests on the part of Mr. Read that is certainly commendable. It also shows that Mr. Read, a careful, conservative business man, has confidence in the future of our village.

Market Quotations By Wireless For Farmers

Arrangements for trying out the wireless as a means of sending out agricultural-market news to the farmers of the country are being made by the United States Department of Agriculture. The trial service will be offered to half a dozen or more counties adjacent to the District of Columbia, going out probably from the wireless station of the Federal Bureau of Standards to numerous private licensed operators who would aid in distributing the reports to farmers and others interested in the territory covered.

Should the experiment prove practicable the service will be extended to other parts of the country. Although no system of dividing the country and of operation has been determined upon as yet, the plan favored at the present time calls for the use of 17 wireless stations throughout the country. There would be ten 250-mile radius stations, eight in the East where market centers are more numerous and closer together, and two in the far West; two 300-mile radius stations to each the outlying points of Maine and New York, to be located in the northeastern part of the country, and five 500-mile radius stations west of the Mississippi River.

Each of the distributing radio stations would be connected with the Washington office and with the other distributing station by leased telegraph wires, and twice a day would receive for immediate release by wireless a summarized report of market conditions and quotations at principal market centers and shipping points. Detailed reports of market conditions in the immediate territory served would also be released, as well as crop and weather reports issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

For Ex-Service Men Who Desire Higher Education

There has been an appropriation made by the Y. M. C. A. to provide the advantage of higher education to any ex-service man who desires it. Thousands of men throughout the country are availing themselves of this opportunity. Putnam township has been allotted two men from this district and one ex-service man has already signed up for one course, which leaves one more appointment from this township.

Courses are given in Agricultural and Rural Engineering, Mathematics, Commercial and Science courses, and Civil, Mechanical, and Electrical Engineering or any of their branches.

It does not cost an ex-service man anything to avail himself of this opportunity and it will help you to higher things.

Only one more man from this district can take advantage of this so if you are interested see the local chairman, Floyd E. Weeks.

RED CROSS ELECTION

The annual meeting of the American Red Cross, Livingston County Charter, will be held at the Womans Club Rooms Howell, at 2:30 P. M. Thursday Dec. 2, 1920, for the purpose of electing seven members of the Board of Directors. The members whose terms of office expire are Mrs. W. P. Van Carrie Sheridan, Mrs. O. F. Merrithew Mrs. R. B. McPherson. All members of the Red Cross of Livingston County are asked to attend this meeting.

An instructor of Elementary Hygiene and Home Care of the Sick is to come into the county to teach this subject in the High Schools and conduct evening classes for adults. It is expected that she will be in attendance at this meeting and explain the character of this work.

Mrs. W. P. Van Winkle, Chairman.

The GREAT SHADOW

by A. Conan Doyle
AUTHOR of THE ADVENTURES of SHERLOCK HOLMES

We were early risers at that time, and the whole brigade was usually under arms at the first flush of dawn. One morning—it was the sixteenth of June—we had just formed up, and General Adams had ridden up to give some order to Colonel Reynell, within a musket-length of where I stood, when suddenly they both stood staring along the Brussels road. None of us dared move our heads, but every eye in the regiment whirled round, and there we saw an officer, with the cockade of a general's aide-de-camp, thundering down the road as hard as a great dapple-gray horse could carry him. He bent his face over its mane and flogged at its neck with the slack of the bridle, as though he rode for very life.

"Hullo, Reynell," says the general. "This begins to look like business. What do you make of it?" They both cantered their horses forward, and Adams tore open the dispatch which the messenger handed to him. The envelop had not touched the ground before he turned, waving the letter over his head as if it had been a saber.

"Dismiss!" he cried. "General parade and march to half an hour."

polo had crossed the frontier a day before, had pushed the Prussians before him, and was already deep in the country to the east of us with a hundred and fifty thousand men. Away we scuttled to gather our things together and have our breakfast, and in an hour we had marched off and left Ath and the Dender behind us forever. There was good need for haste, for the Prussians had sent no news to Wellington of what was doing, and though he had rushed from Brussels at the first whisper of it, like a good old mastiff from its kennel, it was hard to see how he could come up in time to help the Prussians.

It was a bright, warm morning, and as the brigade tramped down the broad Belgian road the dust rolled up from it like the smoke of a battery. I tell you that we blessed the man that planted the poplars along the sides, for their shadow was better than drink to us. Over across the fields, both to the right and the left, were other roads, one quite close and the other a mile or more from us. A column of infantry was marching down the near one, and it was a fair race between us, for we were each walking for all we were worth. There was such a wraith of dust round them that we could only see the gun barrels and the bearskins breaking out here and there, with the head and shoulders of a mounted officer coming out above the cloud, and the flutter of the colors. It was a brigade of the Guards, but we could not tell which, for we had two of them with us in the campaign. On the far road there was also dust and to spare but through it there flashed every now and then a long twinkle of brightness like a hundred silver beads threaded in a line, and the breeze brought down such a smirking, clanging, clashing kind of music as I had never listened to. If I had been left to myself it would have been long before I knew what it was, but our corporals and sergeants were all old soldiers, and I had one trudging along with his halberd at my elbow, who was full of precept and advice.

"That's heavy horse," said he. "You see that double twinkle. That means they have helmet as well as cuirass. It's the Royals or the Enniskillens or the Household. You can hear their hymbals and kettle. The French heavy-arms are too good for us. They have ten to our one, and good men, too. You've got to shoot at their faces, or else at their horses. Mind you that when you see them coming, or else you'll find a four-foot sword stuck through your liver to teach you better. Hark! hark! hark! there's the old music again!"

And as he spoke there came the low grumbling of a cannonade away somewhere to the east of us, deep and hoarse, like a roar of some blood-stained beast that thrives on the lives of men. At the same instant there was shouting of "Heh! heh! heh!" from behind, and somebody roared, "Let the guns get through!" Looking back, I saw the war companies split suddenly in two and hurl themselves down on either side into the ditch, while six cream-colored horses, galloping two and two, with their bellies to the ground, came thundering through the gap with a fine twelve-pound gun whirling and creaking behind them. Following were another and another, four-and-twenty in all, flying past us with such a din and clatter, the blue-coated men clinging on to the guns and the tumbrils, the drivers cursing and cracking their whips, the manes flying, the mops and buckets clanking, and the whole air filled with the heavy rumble and the jingling of chains. There was a roar from the ditches and a shout from the gunners, and we saw a rolling gray cloud before us, with a score of bushes breaking through the shadow. Then we closed up again, while the growling ahead of us grew louder and deeper than ever.

"There's three batteries there," said the sergeant. "There's Bull's and Webber Smith's, but the other is new. There's some more on ahead of us, for here's the track of a nine-pounder, and the others were all twelves. Choose a twelve if you want to get hit, for a nine mashes you up, but a twelve snaps you like a carrot"—and he went on to tell about the wonderful wounds that he had seen until my blood ran like lead water in my veins, and you might have rubbed all our faces in mud, and we should have been no your tripe," said he; and then, as I saw some of the old soldiers laughing, I began to understand that this man was trying to frighten us, so I began to laugh also, and the others as well, but it was not a very hearty laugh either.

The sun was almost above us when we stopped at a little place called Hal, where there is an old pump from which I drew and drank a shako full of water—and never did a mug of Scotch ale taste as sweet. More guns passed us here, and Vivian's hussars, three regiments of them, smart men with bonny brown horses, a treat to the eye. The noise of the cannons was louder than ever now, and it tingled through my nerves just as it had done years before when, with Edie by my side, I had seen the merchant ship fight with the privateers. It was so loud now that it seemed to me that the battle must be going on just beyond the nearest wood, but my friend the sergeant knew better.

"It's twelve to fifteen miles off," said he. "You may be sure that the general knows that we are not wanted, or we should not be resting here at Hal."

What he said proved to be true, for a minute later down came the colonel with orders that we should stack arms and bivouac where we were, and there we stayed all day, while horse and foot and guns, English, Dutch and Hanoverians, were streaming through. The devil's music went on till evening, sometimes rising into a roar, sometimes sinking into a grumble, until about eight o'clock in the evening it stopped altogether. We were eating our hearts out, as you may think, to know what it all meant, but we knew that what the Duke did would be for the best, so we just waited in patience.

Next day the brigade remained at Hal in the morning, but about midday came an order from the Duke, and we pushed on once more until we came to a village called Braine something, and there we stopped, and time, too, for a sudden thunderstorm came on and a plump of rain that turned all the roads and the fields into bog and mire. We got into the barns at this village for shelter, and there we found two stragglers, one from a kilted regiment and the other a man of the German legion, who had a tale to tell that was as dreary as the weather.

Boney had thrashed the Prussians the day before, and our fellows had been sore put to it to hold their own against Ney, but had beaten him off at last. It seems an old, stale story to you now, but you cannot think how we scrambled around those two men in the barn, and pushed and fought just to catch a word of what they said, and how those who had heard were in turn mobbed by those who had not. We laughed and cheered and groaned all in turn, as we were told how the Forty-fourth had received cavalry in line, how the Dutch-Belgians had fled, and how the Black Watch had taken the lancers into their square, and then had killed them at their leisure. But the lancers had had the laugh on their side when they crumpled up the Sixty-ninth and carried off one of the colors.

To wind it all up, the Duke was in retreat, in order to keep in touch with the Prussians, and it was rumored that he would take up his ground and fight a big battle just at the very place where we had been halted.

And soon we saw that this rumor was true, for the weather cleared toward evening, and we were all out on the ridge to see what we could see. It was such a bonny stretch of corn and grazing land, with the crops just half green and half yellow, and fine rye as high as a man's shoulder. A scene more full of peace you could not think of, and look where you would over the low, curving, corn-covered hills, you could see the little village steeples pricking up their spires among the poplars. But slashed right across this pretty picture was a long trail of marching men, some red, some green, some blue, some black, zig-zagging over the plain and choking the roads, one end so close that we could shout to them as they stacked their muskets on the ridge at our left, and the other end lost among the woods as far as we could see. And then on other roads we saw the teams of horses toiling and the dull gleam of the guns, and the men straining and swaying as they helped to turn the spokes in the deep, deep mud. As we stood there, regiment after regiment and brigade after brigade took position on the ridge, and ere the sun had set we lay in a line of over sixty thousand men, blocking Napoleon's way to Brussels. But the rain had come swishing down again, and we of the Seventy-first rushed off to our barn once more, where we had better quarters than the greater part of our comrades, who lay stretched in the mud, with the storm beating upon them, until the first peep of day.

CHAPTER XII.

The Shadow on the Land.

It was still drizzling in the morning, with brown, drifting clouds and a damp, chilly wind. It was a queer thing for me as I opened my eyes to think that I should be in a battle that day, though none of us ever thought it would be such a one as it proved to be. We were up and ready, how-heard the most lovely music that I ever listened to playing somewhere in the distance. We all stood in clusters hearkening to it, it was so sweet and innocent and sad-like. But our sergeant laughed when he saw how it had pleased us all.

"They are the French bands," said he; "and if you come out here you'll see what some of you may not live to see again."

Out we went—the beautiful music still sounding in our ears, and stood on a rise just outside the barn. Down below, at the bottom of the slope, about half a musket shot from us, was a snug tiled farm with a hedge and a bit of an apple orchard. All round it a line of men in red coats and high fur hats were working like bees, knocking holes in the wall and barring up the doors.

"Them's the light companies of the Guards," said the sergeant. "They'll hold that farm while one of them can wag a finger. But look over yonder, and you'll see the campfires of the French."

We looked across the valley at the low ridge upon the farther side, and saw a thousand little yellow points of flame, with the dark smoke wreathing up slowly in the heavy air. There was another farmhouse on the farther side of the valley, and as we watched we suddenly saw a little group of horsemen appear on a knoll beside it and look across at us. There were a dozen hussars behind, and in front five men, three with helmets, one with a long, straight, red feather in his hat, and the last with a low cap.

"By God!" cried the sergeant. "That's him! That's Boney, the one with the gray horse. Aye, I'll lay a month's pay on it."

I strained my eyes to see him, this man who had cast that great shadow over Europe which darkened the nations for five-and-twenty years, and which had even fallen across our out-of-the-world little sheep farm, and had dragged us all—myself, Edie and Jim—out of the lives that our folk had lived before us. As far as I could see he was a dumpy, square-shouldered kind of man, and he held his double glasses to his eyes with his elbows spread very wide out on each side. I was still staring when I heard the catch of a man's breath by my side, and there was Jim, his eyes glowing like two coals and his face thrust over my shoulder.

"That's he, Jock," he whispered. "Yes, that's Boney," said I. "No, no; it's he. This De Lapp or De Lissac, or whatever his devil's name is. It is he."

Then I saw him at once. It was the horseman with the high red feather in his hat. Even at that distance I could have sworn to the slope of his shoulders and the way he carried his head. I clapped my hand upon Jim's sleeve, for I could see that his blood was boiling at the sight of the man, and that he was ready for any madness. But at that moment Bonaparte seemed to lean over and say something to De Lissac, and the party wheeled and dashed away, while there came the bang of a gun and a white spray of smoke from a battery along the ridge. At the same instant the assembly was blown in our village, and we rushed for our arms and fell in. There was a burst of firing all along the line, and cleaning their pieces, for their priming was in some danger of being wet from the damp nig t.

Plea for More Fruit Trees.

Why do we not plant more fruit trees for beauty? Not one of our familiar fruits will fall us in this respect, if so considered. The apricot will often have its white flowers open to match the purity of the last snow, the cherry will follow with a burst of bloom, the apples and crab apples will continue the show, aided by plum and pear and peach, and the quince—ah, there's a flower in a green enamel setting!—will close the blooming time. But the cherry fruits now redden in shining roundness, the earlier apples throw rich gleams of color to the eye, and there is chromatic beauty until frost bids the last russets leave their stems, leaving bare the framework of the trees, to teach us in lines of symmetry and efficiency how strength and elegance are combined in nature's handiwork.—J. Horace McFarland, in "Getting Acquainted With the Trees."

NEEDED A THOROUGH SOUSING

Evil Spirit of Hackman Could Not Be Exorcised Except by Most Stringent Methods.

Doctor Brown, a negro evangelist, was a firm believer in the ancient custom of river baptism, and converts whom he baptized in this manner seldom forgot it. A few years ago he held a christening in a New Jersey town on the banks of the Delaware river, where a dozen or more converts were assembled, awaiting their turns to be immersed. Among them was a hackman, who evinced a lively interest in the ceremony.

"Why does the good doctor," he asked of a fellow convert, "duck some of them folks two times an' others more?"

"He ducks 'em once," explained his friend, "for every new name they're goin' to have."

"Is that possible?" the hackman replied. "I was goin' to call myself Thomas Jefferson Lincoln Anderson, but I guess 'Tom' will be 'bout long 'nuff."

This conversation was overheard by the sharp ears of Doctor Brown, who finally beckoned the hackman to come forward.

"Yo' name, please?" he inquired in a deep bass voice.

"Jess baptize me 'Tom,' that's 'nuff," the candidate replied, as the evangelist, taking him none too gently by the neck, piloted him far out into the stream, where he ducked him not once but half a dozen times with such rapidity and vigor that a few minutes later the hackman found himself on the shore, coughing, sputtering and fighting for breath. The ceremony was soon over, and when he had recovered his strength he made his way to the side of Doctor Brown.

A LETTER FOR WOMEN

From a Woman Whose Serious Illness Was Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Garnett, Kas.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a complete nervous breakdown following the birth of my oldest child. I got up too soon which caused serious female trouble. I was so weak that I was not able to be on my feet but very little and could not do my housework at all. I had a bad pain in my left side and it would pain terribly if I stepped off a curb-stone. One day one of your booklets was thrown in the yard and I read every word in it. There were so many who had been helped by your medicine that I wanted to try it and my husband went to town and got me a bottle. It seemed as though I felt relief after the second dose, so I kept on until I had taken five bottles and by that time I was as well as I could wish. About a year later I gave birth to a ten pound boy, and have had two more children since and my health has been fine. If I ever have trouble of any kind I am going to take your medicine for I give it all the praise for my good health. I always recommend your medicine whenever I can."—Mrs. EVA E. SHAY, Garnett, Kansas.

Shortage of Refrigerator Cars

With 6,000 cars of potatoes, 300 cars of apples, and a considerable amount of small truck to ship Michigan farmers face a shortage of refrigerator cars which will make it necessary for some shippers to use box cars instead, according to the state farm bureau.

In a conference with H. O. Halstead, superintendent of car service of Pere Marquette railway, and Carl Stewart of the Michigan Public Utilities Commission, the farm bureau traffic department reports it has secured an endorsement of a plan providing that box cars lined by local cooperative associations at their own expense be returned to them.

If the Michigan Public Utilities Commission issues an order covering this proposition it will become effective in all railroads in this state. Mr. Hartland, has already stated that the Pere Marquette will agree. To become effective outside of the state the Inter-state Commerce Commission will have to issue an order. To secure return of cars under this plan cooperative associations would have to notify local agents and divisional freight agents, giving car number, consignee, and destination.

Lining cars is expensive but such a provision would make it possible for association which have a number of cars to ship to do so more economically. When cars were returned they could not be held any longer than ordinary loading time without demurrage charge.

Speaking of Names. I learned that a young woman of Detroit rejoices in or deprecates the name of Eura Case; but speaking of singular monikers it would be pretty hard to beat that of a negro youngster in Alabama, Regusotto (Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.) Johnson—Transcript.

U. S. INSISTS ON TREATY RIGHTS

BRITAIN TOLD AMERICA EXPECTS SHARE OF OIL PRIVILEGES UNDER MANDATES.

EXCLUSIVE OIL RIGHTS ISSUE

All Associated Powers, Little Same As Big, Entitled to Treaty Rights And Discussion.

Washington.—The American government has informed Great Britain politely, but firmly, that it does not propose to be excluded from participation in rights and privileges secured under mandates provided in the treaties of peace. Furthermore, it expects to be heard regarding the terms of those mandates before they are put into force.

The position of the United States is set forth in a note by Secretary Colby to Earl Curzon, British secretary of state for foreign affairs and the specific question discussed is that of the Mesopotamian petroleum fields. Colby's note was made public following its delivery to the British foreign office.

It is in reply to a British note of last August 9, which never has been made public and which deals with application of the principles of equality of treatment to the territories of the Near East to be placed under British mandate.

The American note takes issue with what is described as the British position that mandate agreements and treaties are to be considered only by states that are members of the League of Nations. It states that the United States, as a participant in the world war and a contributor to its successful issue, can not consider any of the associated powers, the smallest not less than itself, debarred from discussion of any of its consequences, or privileges secured under mandates provided under the treaty of peace.

U. S. TO PAY HAITI'S LEAGUE BILL

So Delegates Won't Make Complaint Against American Occupation.

Geneva.—There are rumors that the Haitian delegation decided to complain to the League of Nations against American occupation, financial control and the alleged marine atrocities in Haiti.

It is intimated, however, the big powers induced Haiti not to make the appeal in view of the ticklish international situation between the League and America and because they feared it would arouse further American opposition to the league.

Fred Dore and A. Bonomi, Haitian delegates, said: "We do not intend to bring up the question of American occupation and control of Haiti at this meeting in view of the promise, already received, that the United States government will pay Haiti's share of the League of Nations expenses."

FIUME ARMY IS REORGANIZED

D'Annunzio Substitutes Councils For High Commands.

Fiume.—Gabriele d'Annunzio has effected a drastic reorganization of the Fiume administration, abolishing high commands and substituting "councils" for them.

D'Annunzio under the new plan, retains the title of "commandante" and the councils will be subordinate to him. There are councils, respectively, of operations, provisioning, recreation, engineering, tactics and other army affairs.

All members of the councils will be equal in rank, although retaining grades they were entitled to in the regular Italian army, when in the field. All members of the councils are chosen by d'Annunzio, and all their actions must be endorsed by him.

LAYING OF W. U. CABLE HALTED

Navy Department Dispatches Sub-Chasers to Biscayne Bay.

Miami.—The work of laying a cable connecting Miami and Miami beach had reached its final stages when a submarine chaser, dispatched by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, arrived to prevent the employes of the Western Union from making the connection.

The attempt by the Western Union Telegraph company to connect its cable on the causeway across Biscayne bay, between the cities of Miami and Miami Beach was followed by the arrival here during the night of a second sub-chaser from Key West.

PROPOSED WATERWAY APPROPRIATION ASKS $1,315,000 FOR STATE

Washington.—River and harbor improvements and maintenance will require appropriations of $78,207,685 for the next fiscal year, according to estimates of Maj.-Gen. Lansing H. Beach, chief of Army Engineers. He recommended a Rivers and Harbors Bill total of $67,206,715, supplemented by sundry civil items aggregating $10,982,950.

In the Detroit district, he asks Congress for $1,010,000 for the Detroit River; $100,000 for the St. Clair River; $34,000 for channels in Lake St. Clair; $5,000 for Alpena; $31,000 for Cheboygan; $27,000 for Harbor Beach Harbor of Refuge; $103,000 for River Rouge, and $5,000 for Black River.

200 REMAIN AT CAMP CUSTER

One Battalion, Part of 10th Infantry, Guards $19,000,000 Property.

Battle Creek.—Camp Custer, the 7,000-acre tract that a few years ago rang with the tread of thousands of marching feet, now presents a lonely and dejected appearance. A single battalion of 200 men now guards the great military reservation and its $19,000,000 worth of Government property. The battalion is a part of the 10th Infantry and is in command of Maj. H. E. Coates.

The headquarters of the 10th Infantry was moved to Camp Sherman recently and the only other unit, the 14th Infantry, that remained after the 14th Division was demobilized, left more than a month ago for Camp Clayton, Panama Canal Zone. There has been no definite order to salvage the camp or abandon the reservation.

NEW DEPARTMENTS PROPOSED

Bill Would Abolish Department of

Washington.—Abolition of the department of interior and creation of two new departments—one to be known as the department of public works and the other as the department of public welfare—is proposed in a bill prepared by Senator McCormick, Republican, Illinois, for the coming session of congress.

The proposed bureau of public works under the bill would include all important engineering and building of such by the government. The department of public welfare as outlined in the bill would include various welfare agencies of the government.

General reorganization of other government departments is proposed.

BAIL REFUSED, ESCAPES JAIL

Suspected Bank Robber Saws Way From Tawas City Jail.

Tawas City.—A search is being made for Jesse M. Frazer, suspect in the robbery of the Iosco county bank, who escaped from jail here.

Frazer cut and bent the bars of a 12-inch jail window and crawled through it. He then made off in the automobile of H. W. Case, taking it from the court house garage.

Frazer left a note for Sheriff Johnson, thanking the officer for the treatment he had received. The note added: "When my brother offered to mortgage his house to get bonds I did not think it right that bail was refused so I am going to get out while I have the chance."

TEACHERS WANT CHANGE IN LAW

NEW PENSION BILL FRAMED TO REMEDY DEFECTS OF PRESENT LAW.

ASK STATE TO SHARE EXPENSE

Full Return of All Contributions, With Four Per Cent Interest, Provided in New Bill.

Lansing.—State financial support will be asked in a proposed bill to be presented the state legislature, which, in effect, will create a new retirement system for Michigan teachers. The present law adopted in 1915, is claimed by proposers of the new law to be unsound.

Among provisions in the new bill is one that will make possible the merging of the Detroit teachers annuity fund with the new system. The measure has been approved by a joint committee of the retirement fund and the State Federation of Teachers' Clubs.

Five weaknesses in the present bill are pointed out by the educators and their correction is provided in the proposed legislation. Among the most important is the "unfair arrangements in which the financial burden is placed on the teacher with no aid from the state." In the new bill, it is proposed to have equal division of this burden.

A second defect is seen in the failure to award a full return of contributions to younger teachers resigning from service. To benefit under the 1915 legislation, teachers "must persist until 25 years of service has been rendered." The new act proposes that a younger teacher on leaving the service receives full return on all contributions with four per cent compound interest.

"The fund has no protection against retirement of teachers during their early years," is brought out as the law, several teachers have retired.

Early retirement, the explanation continues, of teachers is a loss to the schools and an unwarranted abuse of the retirement idea. The proposed law provides an age limit of 60 years, with earlier retirement in case of mental or physical disability.

Lack of a guarantee solvency they claim gives the 1915 law its fourth weakness. It is asserted the present law provides for a reduction in the amount of the annuities when the fund becomes overburdened.

Many teachers resent the 1915 law, it is contended, because it makes the system compulsory on all teachers, old and new. No freedom of choice, gives it a fifth weakness, in the minds of the educators, while the proposed law makes it optional with the teachers at the time of its adoption, but is so framed as to encourage all to take the advantage of its provision.

SINN FEIN BLAMED FOR FIRES

12 Cotton Warehouses in London and 15 in Liverpool Burned Out.

London.—An orgy of outrage and destruction, believed to have been engineered by Sinn Feiners, was carried out on 12 cotton warehouses and several timber yards here. Several fires were burning at once necessitating a call for the assistance of outlying fire brigades.

A suspected man, believed to have been connected with one of the fires, when seized by a policeman, pulled a revolver and shot the policeman dead. The man later was arrested.

Fifteen warehouses in Liverpool and Bootle, a suburb, principally cotton warehouses in Liverpool, were set on fire. Two of the cotton warehouses in Liverpool were burned out. Gasoline cans and paraffin were found about the premises. It was stated in police quarters there was strong evidence that the fires were the work of Sinn Feiners.

HYPO-COD PUT HIM BACK ON HIS FEET

Coughed So Much Nights He Couldn't Rest—His Health Failing Fast.

TOOK HYPO-COD AND TROUBLES STOPPED

"I had bronchial trouble for a long time. It kept getting worse and I coughed and coughed until my whole system was a wreck in sympathy with it. I coughed most all night and it would keep me awake and restless and I honestly was feeling so bad I took medicines and more medicines. Seemed like nothing helped me though, and I kept getting worse until along came Earle's Hypo-Cod and ended all my troubles like magic.

"I had even lost my appetite when I got hold of Hypo-Cod, but right away I began to improve. Pretty soon that old cough that had stuck to me for ages began to get better. Then I began wanting to eat my head off at meal times, and now since taking two bottles I am not troubled at all with my throat and the old cough has gone. I feel as good as I ever did and I can say Earle's Hypo-Cod is certainly wonderful medicine and am glad to recommend such a tonic to all my friends," declared Mr. I. S. McDuffy, of Detroit, Mich., living at 1304 Zinsh St.

Thousands suffer as Mr. Duffy did. Cough, catarrhal troubles, clogged up head, throat and nose. Bad breath possibly, and as a rule people so troubled have indigestion or other stomach troubles.

Thousands have used Earle's Hypo-Cod and found it an ideal tonic. Druggists, chemists and experts assert it is the most powerful tonic of its kind made. Yet you will be surprised at its pleasant taste, and how nicely it agrees with your stomach if it has become in a weakened condition. Just read the formula that they say is so good. Take home a bottle tonight.

Earle's Hypo-Cod is sold here by all druggists and the leading druggists in all nearby towns.—Adv.

There could be no better testimony of the value of this remedy for these troubles than the fact that its use for the last fifty-four years has extended into many thousands of households all over the civilized world and no indication of any failure has been obtained in all that time where medicine could effect relief. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Help That Bad Back!

Why be miserable with a "bad back?" It's time you found out what is wrong! Kidney weakness often causes much suffering from backache, lameness, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and kidney irregularities. Neglected, it may lead to dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease, but if taken in time it is usually easily corrected by using Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands.

A Michigan Case

Mrs. J. L. Johnson, 815 S. Milwaukee St., Jackson, Mich., says: "My kidneys were in bad shape. My back would give out on me and I would be dizzy on arising in the morning. A New Log Saw Cuts Faster, Costs Less, Makes More Money for Users and Works While You Rest.

A new improved power log saw, now being offered, outdoes all other log saws in cutting wood quickly and at little cost. A new 4-cycle, high power motor equipped with Oscillating Magnet—no batteries to fail you—makes the saw bite through logs faster than other log saws. It finishes its cut and is ready for another before the ordinary saw is well started. This log saw—the Ottawa—has a specially designed friction clutch, controlled by a lever, which starts and stops the saw without stopping the engine. Others have imitated, but no other power log saw has this improvement just like the Ottawa. The Ottawa Log Saw sells for less money than any power saw of anything like its size.

The Improved Model, 4-H. P. Ottawa Log Saw.

One man wheels this outfit from cut to cut and log to log like a barrow. Separate attachments cut down trees and cut up branches. Extra power lets the engine do heavy work of all kinds. Owners of the Ottawa Log Saw laugh at coal shortages and are making big money with ease, the machine doing the work. 35 to 50 cords cut any day, rainy or dry, by one man, are normal figures. And wood is approaching $20 a cord! The Ottawa is compact, simple and durable. It sells for cash or easy payments and is guaranteed. If you have wood to cut the Ottawa Log Saw will be the most satisfactory machine you've ever owned. We suggest that you write the Ottawa Mfg. Co., 2724 Wood St., Ottawa, Kan., for their complete new illustrated book and prices, sent free to all readers of this paper.

RED BLOSSOMS ARE FAVORED

American and Liberty Roses, Carnations and Immortelles Among Popular Christmas Flowers.

IF CHRISTMAS eve comes in mild and warm and Christmas morning follows its gentle prophecy, the city florists will be happy. That will mean that the thousands of boxes of Christmas flowers which must be delivered on Christmas forenoon can go out with only the ordinary packing. But should there be freezing weather, every flower must be packed in cotton, which doubles the labor and the time necessary. Even with the mild Christmas, which is the florist's delight, the force in the big retail flower stores works all night the night before Christmas. From midnight until 7 o'clock in the morning all hands are busy packing the boxes which in a few hours are to convey Christmas remembrances. At 7 o'clock the delivery wagons start, and before noon all the fragile blooms have reached the feminine hands for which they were purchased. Probably 20,000 such boxes are delivered every Christmas morning in New York. One dealer in a fashionable residence district has sent out between 300 and 400 every Christmas morning for many years.

The "mixed box" ranges from $10 to $50 in price. It is a very modest little box for the first price—just half a dozen roses, a dozen carnations, a bit of "Christmas green." In the $50 box there will be probably half a dozen American Beauties, half a dozen long-stemmed liberty roses of the rich, velvety, deep crimson variety; some violets, some "valley," some mignonette to sweeten the whole box; perhaps some sweet peas and hyacinths, a bit of heliotrope and always some holly and a red satin ribbon to tie the whole.

These expensive boxes are simply pretty trifles, sent to the rich, by those who are not sufficiently indebted or on sufficiently intimate terms to send more costly or substantial gifts. The very evanescence of the flowers makes them superlatively luxurious. Fifty dollars for flowers that fade in amount put into some more durable trifle.

Red is pre-eminently the Christmas color, and red carnations and red roses are the favorite purchases. The red immortelles, also, go in great bunches for Christmas decorations in houses of both high and low degree. These immortelles are real flowers, though some people have a notion they are made of paper. The natural color is yellow, and they grow in the south of France, where great fields of them may be seen dried and dyed for the market. It is a great industry there. Europeans use them largely to the exclusion of fresh flowers for all occasions. They are dyed in all colors for the European market, and thousands upon thousands of boxes of the red ones are imported to New York every year for the Christmas trade. They cannot be successfully grown in America, owing to climatic differences. A few have been produced in Texas, but the florists say they are not "right."

About the Mistletoe

COLES, in his "Art of Simpling," observes, "If one hang mistletoe about the neck the witches can have no power of him." Some lingering superstition remains in the present day, and in many houses a bunch of the mistletoe is suspended from the ceiling, under which the male part of the assembly have the privilege of taking the ladies and saluting them. At the same time they should wish them a happy new year and present them with one of the berries for good luck. In other places people try by lots by the cracking of the leaves and berries in the fire.

THE CHRISTMAS SEASON.

Though Christmas seems to gain rather than lose in popular favor as the years roll by, yet it is worthy of note that the Christmas season has been much curtailed from what it originally was. For several centuries it began with the eve of All Saints' day or "Hallow eve," October 31, and continued until Candlemas day, February 2. In England it is now computed only from Christmas eve to "Twelfth night," January 6, while in our own country it begins on Christmas eve and practically ends on Christmas night. Yet even now it really begins on December 16, marked in the church calendar, "O Sapientia," from the name of an anthem sung during Advent.

Remember This.
There are many stories told against Irishmen of ripe and full age, but not so many about them when they are young. Still, here is a proof that they are Irishmen even before they are breeched.

It was a classroom in a village school in Ireland and the teacher was giving a lesson on salt.

"Now," she said at the conclusion of her rather long and inclusive lecture, "I want some one to give me a good definition of salt."

"Shure, teacher," said Micky, a bright, blue-eyed youngster, "It's the stuff which makes potatoes taste nasty when you boil them and don't don't put any in."
