DROWNING AT LAKELAND

Clarence Baecker, 23, student in the engineering department of the University of Michigan, was drowned in Zukey Lake Saturday night. The body was recovered on Sunday. Baecker and five other students were guests at the Trojanowski cottage. While rowing across the lake for a swim, Baecker jumped into the water,

A. K. PIERCE

Editor and Publisher of the South Lyon Herald, died Wednesday, June 8th, 1921.

The following, clipped from the Herald shows the high esteem he earned in his home town. In Pinckney, where he was well known, his many friends endorse the sentiments expressed and tender heartfelt sympathy to the relatives. As a newspaper man he was unexcelled in Southern Michigan.

Universal regret was expressed on every side, when the news was given out that Bert Pierce, editor and publisher of this paper, had passed away on the morning of June 8th.

For some months he had been in failing health, which proved to be of a malignant type that defied the best skill of the medical profession. Very few persons were aware of the seriousness of his condition, until about a month before death overtook him, when he was forced to relinquish all work and gradually failed until the end came and released him from all suffering.

Albert K. Pierce was born in Alpena, Mich. on July 14, 1869 and was the only son of Rev. and Mrs. Nathan W. Pierce, now of Howell, Michigan.

He was educated in the public schools and graduated when quite young from the Flint High School. In

CHARLES MILLER FOUND DEAD

Tuesday evening about seven o'clock Charles Miller was found dead in the yard of Met Bradley north of Anderson, where he had been staying. Heart trouble is thought to be the cause of his death.

Mr. Miller was about seventy five years old, and has lived on his farm near Anderson for forty five years, and was well liked by everybody.

The funeral services were held this afternoon at two o'clock, from the Green Church in Inosco.

YOUNG HOWELL BOY KILLED UNDER TRUCK

Monday, Earl Sharp, young son of John Sharp was killed under the wheels of a truck, on the road just outside of Howell.

The boy was helping move some household furniture and was riding on the rear end of the truck when his hat flew off. He jumped to get it and in some way fell beneath the wheels, the truck passing over and killing him instantly.

The Sharp family formerly lived at Chubb's Corners.

INTERURBAN ACCIDENT NEAR CHELSEA

Five persons were killed and twenty wounded in a collision of interurban cars at Warsaw, near Chelsea last Saturday afternoon.

The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pierce, Highland Park.

Miss Emma Scarff, Highland Park.
Miss Elizabeth Keusch, Chelsea.
Miss Vina Johnson, Ann Arbor.

Among the injured was Mrs. Herbert Schoenals, sister of Fred Lake of this place.

Wooden car No. 7293, the first of two sections from Ann Arbor, left that station at 4:45 P. M. and took the switch at Warsaw to await passage of an east-bound car.

In some way the switch is said to have been left open and the second section of the Ann Arbor train follow-car No. 7293, ran into the switch, crashing into the rear of the wooden car, telescoping it.

WOOL POOL

The Farm Bureau Wool Pool in Livingston County, met with such success that a third grading day has been secured. Don't forget that the final grading date for taking in wool at Howell is Saturday, June 25th.

ed the remainder of his life.

After working on the "Pinckney Dispatch" for a couple of years he changed to "The Chesaning Argus" where he was foreman for seven years. For the next five years he was editor and publisher of "The Millington Gazette" and sold his business there to become editor and owner of the "South Lyon Herald". For the past thirteen years he has published and edited this paper in a manner that has commended it as one of the best made up rural papers in the state.

When the local Board of Commerce was organized, over two years ago, he was its first secretary, which position he efficiently filled until failing health caused him to resign. So highly was he respected by his fellow townsmen that he served them in several public offices and as president of the village, and on the day of his funeral the town flag floated at half mast, in respect to his memory. He was also a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity and of the Order of the Eastern Star.

On February 23rd, 1898 he was married to Miss Addie M. Sigler of Pinckney, who will continue to publish The Herald.

By his own request the funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. G. Evans of the First Presbyterian church assisted by Rev. Frank Watters of the Methodist church, and at the grave in South Lyon cemetery by his brethren of the South Lyon Lodge, F. & A. M. The many beautiful floral offerings from the people of the community, including the Brotherhood of the Presbyterian church, the Masonic organizations, the business men and the Board of Commerce all testify to the worth of his work in the community.

Besides his wife, he is survived by his aged father and mother and four sisters, viz: Mrs. William Wilke, of Flint; Mrs. John Hart of New Lathrop; Mrs. C. Kingsley, of Pinckney; and Mrs. Harvey Craft, of Howell.

GARDEN NOTES

Did you plant any sweet corn for late summer and fall use? Try a planting of Golden Bantam now. It should mature ears, large enough for table use before killing frosts occur.

Remember that the strawberry is a shallow rooted plant. For this reason cultivation should not be too deep. A good dirt mulch, six inch or two in depth is sufficient.

 by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. Catarrhal Deafness requires constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions.

An Appeal! To the People Of this Vicinity, Men and Women:

When the representative of this paper called on the Teeple Hardware Company to see what they had to say about advertising this week Mr. John J. Teeple said they were too busy to attend to the matter and requested us to write an ad. using our own judgment about what to say

You all know what this firm is up against right now

THEY NEED MONEY

Just imagine yourself in their predicament and ask yourself if you too, would not need it. And we are sure, knowing the community as well as we do, that every man or woman who owes this concern—the oldest mercantile firm in this part of the county—will come down this week and pay their accounts in full if possible. If this is not possible, give them what you can on account, and if you are not just at present in a position to do either, you surely can come down and give them a hearty, sympathetic handshake and tell them you will do the best you can as quickly as possible

The future of this concern is largely in your hands at the present critical time. What are you going to do about it?

They are at home, under the opera house with a small stock of hardware. The stock of implements was not destroyed, and they will be glad to see their many friends at all times.

Novel Chautauqua Attraction

ON the second afternoon of our Community Chautauqua Festival we will hear one of the biggest Chautauqua novelties in the country, John Kilham, with his lecture, "Indian Traits and Trails." Mr. Kilham impersonates Indian chiefs in costume, relates some thrilling personal experiences with Indians, and exhibits a collection of relics and curios that is valued at thousands of dollars. Secure a program folder for a full list of attractions and complete Chautauqua information.

FAMOUS HAWAIIAN COMPANY

ON the closing day of our Community Chautauqua Festival we will hear one of the big Chautauqua Musical attractions—the Hawaiian Singers and Players. These men from the far-off islands sing their delightful melodies to the accompaniment of their native instruments. You'll be thoroughly entertained by these musical men. Don't miss them. Secure a program folder for a full list of attractions and complete Chautauqua information.

Floats for Boats.
S. E. Van Horn of Manhasset, N. Y., is the inventor of a scheme for making boats unsinkable. The safety boat is provided with a couple of umbrellas of rubberized fabric, one on the port and the other on the starboard side, attached to the gunwale by a sort of outrigger.
When not in use the umbrellas are collapsed and take up little room, the outriggers being swung alongside of the craft, out of the way. But in case of danger the outriggers are hastily swung outward into position, the umbrellas spreading automatically.

There seems to be no good reason why in this country the gathering of sweet-smelling herbs and flowers for the perfumery trade might not be found profitable. It has recently become a considerable industry in rural parts of England, a great many women and children having taken it up.
In April the picking of cowslips begins, those flowers being in demand as a cure for sleeplessness, and also for "potpourri" and sachets. Broom and elder flowers follow. Mullein and mallow, bergamot, peony petals, rose petals and red poppy petals bring good prices; likewise raspberry leaves, sage, mint, balm and thyme.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Better than Pills

YOU WILL NEVER wish to take another dose of pills after having once used Chamberlain's Tablets. They are easier and more pleasant to take, more gentle and mild in their action and more reliable. POULTRY

BEST FOWLS FOR BACK YARD

American Breeds, Such as Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes and Orpingtons, Are Recommended.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Hens of the medium-sized breeds—Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and Orpingtons—are best suited to back-yard conditions. Large hens kept in close confinement are likely to get too fat to lay well. Small, nervous hens are apt to develop such vices as egg eating and feather eating. The bad tendencies mentioned do not prohibit the keeping of large and small breeds in small back yards, but make it necessary for the keeper to use extraordinary care to keep them in good condition and productive. White and light-colored varieties are not desirable for small back yards, because their plumage soils too easily.

As a rule it is most satisfactory to buy hens of a local poultry keeper or dealer in live poultry. Desirable small flocks are frequently offered by people who are obliged by change of work or of residence to sell their poultry. Dealers in live poultry everywhere sort out from their general receipts the hens that show good breeding and quality to sell to back-yard poultry keepers. When satisfactory stock cannot be obtained locally, the advertising columns of poultry papers, agricultural papers or newspapers that carry poultry advertising should be consulted, and the hens bought from the nearest breeder who can supply what is wanted at a reasonable price.

For the back-yard flock kept to produce eggs only it is not necessary to have hens of extra good standard quality. What breeders of standard poultry call choice utility hens are as good as any for egg production and cost but little more than ordinary mongrels. Hens of this grade in the medium-faults—its unsoundness of color, or irregularity of markings, or of the shape of the comb—which in no way affect their laying capacity but make them unfit for exhibition and undesirable for breeding purposes.

When buying hens in person, particular attention should be given to general condition—whether the bird seems vigorous and lively—and to the appearance of the comb and the condition of the feet. Healthy hens have bright red combs and bright eyes, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. A slight paleness of the comb is simply an indication that the hen is not laying at the time; but a bird whose comb has either a yellowish or a bluish cast should be rejected, for these are symptoms of internal disorders. The skin and scales of legs and toes should be smooth and the soles of the feet soft and free from corns.

BETTER SIRES FOR BANTAMS

Culpeper County (Virginia) Farmer Raises Purebreds From Chickens to Dairy Cattle.

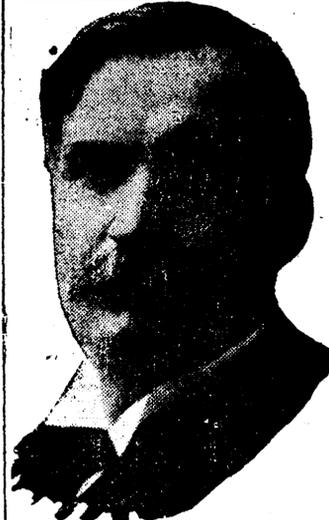

From bantam chickens to Holstein cattle is the range of live stock on the farm of Sam Sullivan & Sons, who recently enrolled in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement that is being directed by the United States Department of Agriculture. This farm, which is located in Culpeper county, Virginia, raises Holstein cattle, Duroc-Jersey swine, Rhode Island White chickens, White Holland turkeys, white guinea fowls, Cochon bantams, and Muscovy ducks.

Purebred horses also are kept on this farm, but no stallion is maintained. In accordance with the requirements of the better-sires movement, which is aimed to improve the average quality of farm live stock, all of the stock listed is bred to purebred sires.

A. C. EVERINGHAM

EVERYONE in our community is interested in farming, either directly or indirectly, for the success of our farming interests means the success of all interests. Of particular value, therefore, will be the lecture by A. C. Everingham, who has made a study of farm problems, and he will have some interesting and profitable observations to offer. Not only does he analyze these problems but offers sane and practical suggestions as to their solution. Mr. Everingham is himself a successful farmer and is ably qualified to discuss this subject on the opening night of the Chautauqua. Secure a program folder for a full list of attractions and complete Chautauqua information.

FRED M. WARNER

Dairy interests exhibiting at the state fair in Detroit next September 2 to 11 will have more attention than ever before.

Fred M. Warner, former governor of Michigan, will be the state fair board member in charge of this department.

His acceptance of this post and his personal attention to it during the ten days of the fair make it certain that this important department will take front rank in interest with visitors to the fair. With Mr. Warner will be associated, as superintendent, Mr. H. D. Wendt, secretary of the Michigan Allied Dairy Association.

DR. THOS. W. DAVIDSON

DR. THOS. W. DAVIDSON

DR. THOS. W. DAVIDSON of Brooklyn, New York, will deliver his lecture, "The Pathway to Power," on the last evening of our Chautauqua Festival. Educated in Ireland and a minister of important churches in Cork, Dublin and Belfast, later a minister of one of the leading churches in Montreal, Canada, and at present a minister in Brooklyn, New York, Dr. Davidson brings to us a real message, presented in an eloquent, forceful manner. John Kilham, lecturer on Indian life, and A. C. Everingham are other speakers on the program.

New Street-Car Idea.

The objections to the so-called "safety cars," which were introduced during the last few years, have been met in Seattle by the invention of what is called a one-man-two-man street car. The design of this car permits of its being operated in the slack hours by one man, while in the busy hours, with a little rearrangement of the interior, it is changed to make provision for the addition of a conductor. This is said to meet the great criticism of the "safety" in that so much time was lost in the stops when the single attendant was compelled to take the fares, answer the questions and attend to the various other matters, with the entrance of a group of passengers.

CONSERVATION OF ENERGY

"Girls ought to be discouraged from kissing one another."
"On account of its sentimentality?"
"No, indeed; on account of its economic waste."

IN THE SAME BOAT

Father—Jimmy, open the door for your poor, tired pa. Maquna has locked me out and I want to get in.
Jimmy—Well, she's locked me in and I wanna get out.

TOOK CHANCES

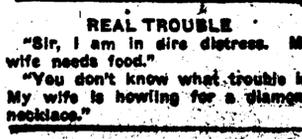

Jimmy—Say, uncle, is a man a bigamist when he has one wife too many?
Uncle—Not necessarily. Now I have one wife too many and yet I'm no bigamist.

HAD TO FOR BUSINESS REASONS.

So you've joined a golf club?

STATE FAIR TAKES BIG STEP FORWARD

GIFT OF PROPERTY TO STATE MAGNIFICENT ONE; MEANS MORE SUCCESS.

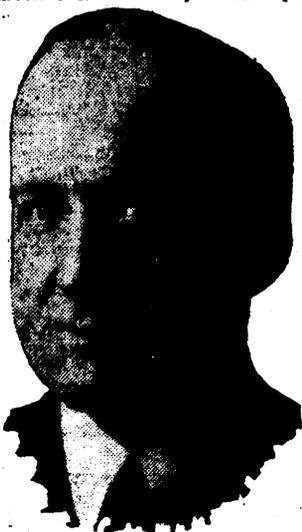

1921 EXHIBIT, SEPT. 2-11, TO BE AMERICA'S FINEST

Under an arrangement made between the Michigan State Agricultural Society and the State of Michigan, the people of this commonwealth have just received the most magnificent gift in their history. In the transfer of the property of the Michigan State Fair at Detroit to the people of the state.

Besides landed property and buildings, there is more than $210,000 cash which goes to the state to be used for the further building up of the fair. The Michigan State Agricultural Society, just before the recent session of the legislature, offered to turn the property over to the state in case the latter would continue to operate it for the benefit of the people. This offer was accepted.

The fair has come to prosperity only in recent years. The turning point was the year 1912. Up to that time the enterprise had lost money annually and had every prospect of continuing to do so. It was then that the directors of the fair prevailed upon

H. H. Halladay, State Commissioner of Agriculture, who is Chairman of Board of Managers, Michigan State Fair.

Gov. Dickinson to resign as state commissioner and become Secretary-Manager of the fair.

Under his management the fair became much less of a horse-racing and side-show affair, and devoted its attention to featuring the constructive activities of Michigan life. This course has proved financially profitable, as the public was better satisfied, and this accounts for the fact that Dickinson paid up about $100,000 in debts, made many permanent improvements to the grounds and laid up a cash surplus of $210,000.

Formal taking over of the fair by the state is hailed as the most important forward step since the inception of the fair 'way back' in 1849. The scope of its activities now will be widened extensively and without radical changes in management.

John S. Haggerty, the Detroit manufacturer, former president of the fair, heads the list of appointments to the new board, and the state also takes over the contract of Secretary-Manager Dickinson. The policy of the fair as a non-profit organization will be maintained as in the past, all excess receipts to go towards building up the fair and increasing premiums and prize awards.

The new board of managers of the fair, named by Gov. Groesbeck, represents all sections of Michigan, upper peninsula as well as lower, and retains in its personnel many of the men who have helped bring the fair to its present high standing. H. H. Halladay, former livestock sanitary commissioner, and now state commissioner of agriculture, is chairman of the board, whose membership follows:

John S. Haggerty, Detroit; Fred M. Warner, Farmington, Edward N. Hines, Detroit; Oscar K. Webber, Detroit; Andrew J. Crawford, Detroit; Charles T. Prescott, Tawas City; Robert N. Wallace, Saginaw; A. E. Stevenson, Port Huron; Jacob DeGeus, Albia; Frank Coward, Bronson; H. S. Newton, Hart; Frank H. Milham, Kalamazoo; Clark H. Brody, Three Rivers; Forrest A. Lord, Mt. Clemens; Perry F. Powers, Cadillac; Edward A. Hamer, Chassell; John A. Miller, Swartz Creek; Thomas E. Newton, Detroit; Arthur Peterson, Escanaba; and William H. Oliver, Grand Rapids.

For the coming fair, Sept. 2 to 11, the biggest on record, arrangements have been made to broaden the scope of all existing departments in a way that will keep pace with the tremendous growth of Michigan in agriculture, breeding, livestock raising, automobile making, and all other forms of manufacture.

The cattle exhibition at the state fair in Detroit September 2 to 11 will be under the administration of H. W. Norton, Jr., state livestock sanitary commissioner, and successor in that position of H. H. Halladay, who now is state commissioner of agriculture and chairman of the board of managers of the state fair.

HANDY DUST BOX FOR FOWLS

Confined Hens Should Be Given Opportunity for Bathing—it Discourages Vermin.

When the flock is confined in laying houses the hens miss the opportunity afforded when they are on range to pick out a likely spot and take a dust bath. It is just as important to a hen's well-being that she be able to take a dust bath when cooped up as well as when on range. Besides, it provides her with the sort of ammunition which nature intended she should use in combating vermin and natural parasites. Hens that have ample facilities for dust baths will not be "carried off" by lice.

FEEDING PIGEONS IN WINTER

Failure to Provide Proper Kind and Quantity of Grain in Winter Causes Falling Off.

Neglect in feeding the right kind and amount of grain to pigeons in cold weather is often the cause of the marked falling off in the production of squabs in winter. More time and effort is required to feed and manage pigeons at this time of the year, but the owner is well paid for the extra work.

$10,000 BAIL FOR ALLEGED SLAYER

LIVINGSTON OFFICIALS CHARGE
LAWSON WITH SHOOTING
WIFE IN 1919.

BODY OF VICTIM WAS EXHUMED

Statement That Shooting Was Accidental Questioned Because of Alleged Discrepancies.

Howell, Mich.—Willard A. Lawson, of Detroit, was brought here and arraigned before Justice R. D. Roche, charged with the murder of his wife on Sept. 21, 1919, while hunting ducks in a swamp near Island Lake, Livingston county. He pleaded not guilty and demanded an examination, which was set for July 6. Justice Roche fixed bail at $10,000, which attorneys for the defendant endeavored to arrange.

An alleged discrepancy in stories told by Lawson of the circumstances connected with his wife's death and the theory of the prosecution that a wound such as the one which killed Mrs. Lawson could not have been inflicted accidentally in the manner he described, are the principal links in the chain of evidence so far revealed by the officials.

Lawson's statement to former Prosecutor Lyons, a 17-page document, is said to have set up the claim that the two were sitting in a rowboat, that he had his gun elevated, following birds in flight, when the weapon, an automatic, was accidentally discharged. When the body was exhumed, an autopsy revealed that the shot entered the back of the woman's neck, through a single small hole, and took a course downward, it is declared.

Harry C. Aspin, of 702 West Dayton street, Flint, a brother of the dead woman, who signed the warrant, has informed the officers that his sister and Lawson did not get along well during the summer of that year.

Aspin also declared that Lawson's the fatal shooting differed materially from his explanation to the officers in the 17-page sworn statement.

The body of Mrs. Lawson was exhumed a short time ago from a cemetery at Auburn, Mich., in the course of an investigation made upon the request of relatives under direction of the attorney-general's department and Special Prosecuting Attorney Glenn C. Yelland, of Livingston county. It was this investigation which led to the issuance of the warrant.

In June, 1917, Rep. Mason attracted considerable attention by declaring that he would offer a bill to repeal the Conscription law, or to amend it so as to provide that conscripted troops should not be sent abroad without their consent.

CAMERON DAM DEFENDER
PARDONED; MAY SUE STATE

JOHN DIETZ

Madison, Wis.—It is expected that John Dietz, "defender of Cameron Dam", who was pardoned recently by Governor Blaine, will sue the state of Wisconsin for false imprisonment. Dietz attracted a great deal of attention by refusing to engage counsel at his trial and pleading his own case.

WOULD BAN MILK COMPOUND

Dairymen Urge Law to Forbid its Manufacture and Sale.

Lansing—Charging that filled condensed milk compound, said to be made of skim milk and vegetable oils, was a menace to the dairy industry of the state, and that when the compound has been sold to the public as milk, a fraud has been perpetrated, directors of the Michigan Dairy Association urged that the compound be vented its sale and manufacture. Figures were submitted tending to show that 86,000,000 pounds of compound were made last year and that coconut oil replaced 7,000,000 pounds of American butter fat last year.

The association accepted Saginaw's invitation for the second annual convention and dairy show next February.

BACK FRIDAY AS M. A. C. HEAD

Michigan University Professor Is Boosted by Farm Bureau.

Lansing.—The state farm bureau executive committee has gone on record as favoring selection of Professor David Friday, of the economics department of the University of Michigan, as president of the Michigan Agricultural college. The resolution advocating election of Professor Friday declares that he is better equipped than any other available candidate to do the work now confronting the college.

No definite action in the matter was taken by the board of agriculture at its meeting last week. It is probable that a successor to President Kedzie, who has resigned, will be named at the July meeting when the new members elected in April take their seats.

WIFE'S LIE CAUSE OF SHOOTING

Passerby Killed Because She Called Him Robber of Home.

Milwaukee.—Because she lied to her husband, Mrs. Thomas Foran, 24 years old and pretty, and her helpmate are in jail charged with first degree murder. They are blamed for the death of Joseph Wamser, killed by Foran when pointed out by the woman as the man who had ransacked their home and stolen $20.

For several days the case puzzled the police, until Mrs. Foran broke down and told her story. She said she needed $20 to buy clothes for the children, and fearing to ask her husband, decided to take it and blame it on robbers.

"Most extraordinary," said the coroner. "Strychnine, doubtless. We can't do much for him, I'm afraid. We might try some mustard and hot water, Mrs. Arthurs."

"Take your time, Lil," whispered Arthurs. "You may save your country a long board bill." But Lillian Arthurs' abhorrence of Gardiner's perfidy had been overwhelmed in a wave of sympathy for a suffering fellow being. She hurried to the kitchen, while the men of the party filed down the stairs and out into the yard. John Harris was the last to leave the house, and he walked slowly, with bare, bowed head, into the group who were excitedly discussing the amazing turn events had taken. He took no part in their conversation, but stood a little apart, plunged deep in his own inward struggle.

At last he turned and called his wife in the kitchen door. "Bring Beulah," he said.

The two women joined him. At first Harris stood with face averted, but in a moment he spoke in a clear, quiet voice.

"I haven't played the game fair with you two," he said, "and I want to say so now. Perhaps it would be truer to say that I played the wrong game. Twenty-five years have proved it was the wrong game. Now, without a penny, I can start just where I started 25 years ago. The only difference is that I am an old man instead of a young one. I'm going to take another homestead and start again."

She put her hand in his, and her eyes were bright again with the fire of youth. "You know there is only one answer, John," she whispered.

Harris called Travers over from the group of men.

"There's one thing more," he continued. "When I started I had only a wife to keep, and I don't intend to take any bigger responsibility now. Allan will be having a homestead of his own. Jim Travers, I am speaking to you! I owe you an apology for some things and an explanation for some things, but I'm going to square the debt with the only gift I have left."

The light breeze tossed the hair of Beulah's uncovered head, and the light of love and health glowed in her face and thrilled through the fine symmetry of her figure.

"Take her, Jim," he said.

"She is a goodly gift," said the young man reverently.

"You think so now," said her father. "You know nothing about it. In twenty-five years you will know just how great a gift she is—or she will not be worthy of her mother."

Harris and his wife were gazing with unseeing eyes into the mountains when Arthurs handed them a letter. "It came in the mail which the boys brought out this morning," he said, "and I forgot all about it until this minute."

It was from Bradshaw. Harris opened it indifferently, but the first few lines aroused his interest, and he read it eagerly to the end.

"My dear Harris," it ran, "on receipt of your telegram I immediately opened negotiations through my connections looking to the sale of your farm with its crop and equipment, complete as a going concern. I succeeded in getting an offer of the $40,000 you set on it, and had all the papers drawn up, when I discovered that among us we had made a serious omission. You will remember that, a good many years ago, when you were taking on some fresh obligations, you transferred the homestead into your wife's name. I assured the purchaser that there would be no difficulty about getting title from your wife, but as all the buildings are on 'he homestead quarter he would agree to nothing better than paying $20,000 for the rest of your land, leaving the homestead quarter, with the buildings, stock and implements out of the transaction. As his price seemed a fair one for the balance of the property, and as I assumed your need of the money was urgent, I closed a deal on that basis, cashed the agreement and remitted the proceeds to you at once by wire. I trust my actions in the matter meet with your approval.

"Yours sincerely,
"GEORGE BRADSHAW."

Harris placed the letter in the hands of his wife. She tried to read it, but a great happiness enveloped her as she read the typewritten characters seemed to swim before her. "What does it mean, John?" she asked, noting his restrained excitement. "What does it mean?"

"It means that the homestead quarter was not sold—after all—that it is still yours, with the buildings, and machinery, and stock, and this year's crop just ready for cutting."

She raised her eyes to his. "Still ours, John, you mean. Still ours."

In the rapid succession of events everyone seemed to have forgotten, or disregarded, Gardiner. But at this moment the doctor came rushing out of the house.

"Gardiner's gone!" he exclaimed, as he came up to the men.

Some of the party removed their hats.

"Oh, not that way—not that way!" exclaimed the doctor. "I mean he's gone—skipped—beat it, if you understand. Most extraordinary! I was taking his pulse. It was about normal, and he seemed resting easier, so I slipped downstairs for the antidote. When I went back—I was only gone a moment—there wasn't a sight or sound of him."

Sergeant Grey conducted a swift examination, not of Gardiner's room, but of the one in which Allan was lying. He was rewarded by finding the little slip of paper, with a few crystals of powder still clinging to it. The coroner examined the crystals through his magnifying glass; then, somewhat dubiously, raised them on a moistened finger to his tongue, and after a moment's hesitation concluded in an impressive, solemn fashion:

"But Sergeant Grey was at the open window. It was only an eight-foot drop to the soft earth, and to the policeman there was no longer any mystery in Gardiner's disappearance. The mock suicide was a carefully-planned ruse to be employed by Gardiner if the worst came to the worst.

"I want all of you men, and a horse for each," said Grey, quickly, turning upon them like a general marshaling his officers. "There are a dozen different trails he may follow, and we must put a man on each. I will give immediate pursuit, in the hope of riding him down before he can throw us off the scent and I will leave it to you, Mr. Arthurs, to organize the posse and scour the whole country until he is located."

Grey knew that the main road, if followed far enough, dwindled into a pack trail, which in turn seemed to lose itself in the fastnesses of the mountains, but in reality opened into a pass leading through the range. He gave Gardiner credit for knowing as much, and concluded that the fugitive would make a bolt straight through the mountains.

An hour's hard riding brought him into a tremendously rough country, where the trail at times was nothing more than a narrow defile or ledge, and sheer walls of rock rose thousands of feet above, their giant edges cutting the blue sky like the teeth of a mighty saw. Far below, a ribbon of green and white, the river rolled in its canyon. Here and there a thin stream of water sprayed down the mountain side, cutting a damp, treacherous belt across the trail. But at one such spot Grey's heart leaped within him, for there, unmistakably clear in the thin soil and soft rock, were the marks of a horse's shoe, not an hour old. A few minutes later he saw Gardiner swinging round a spur of rock half a mile further up the pass.

Suddenly, at a turn in the path, his eye caught a sight which made him throw his horse back on his tracks. A sheer precipice fell away a thousand feet below him, and beetling cliffs cut off the sky above. Across the path trickled a little stream. And there in the stream, so clear they could not be misled, were the marks cut by a horse's feet sliding over the precipice.

The policeman dismounted carefully. There was scarcely room for him to pass his horse on the narrow ledge. Where the stream had worn it it sloped downwards at an uncomfortable angle. He knelt beside it and traced the marks of the shoe-calls with his finger. They led over the edge. Eighteen inches down the mountain side was a fresh scar where steel had struck a projecting corner of rock.

A thousand feet below the green water slid and swirled in the bed of the canyon.

QUICK CHANGES IN PARIS MODES

Extreme Novelties Are Suddenly Produced for Purpose of Making Sensation.

CHIEF AIM IS BECOMINGNESS

Women of Refined Taste and Social Position Demand Dresses That Are Free From Undue Eccentricity.

At recent race meetings in the Bois de Boulogne, writes a Paris fashion correspondent, we have had an excellent opportunity of reviewing present-day fashions; indeed it would be more correct to say "present-hour," because at this season of the year fashions change very frequently. Extreme novelties are suddenly produced for the purpose of making a sensation—and a good advertisement for some particular dressmaker.

As frequently pointed out, the general outline remains graceful and simple; that is to say, the dresses worn by our more exclusive Parisiennes, also by American women of refined taste and assured social position, are perfection itself, free from undue eccentricity and essentially becoming.

But then we have other and widely different fashions which are freely exploited by daring young actresses and by women who like to find themselves the center of a wondering crowd.

One of the New Models in Navy Blue Taffeta, Black Satin Waistcoat Worked With Red, Green and Yellow Wool.

These remarkable costumes are also created to please a certain type of American buyer who insistently demands "something quite new and sensational."

At the races one realizes that longer skirts have really become popular. The Parisiennes have been slow to consent to the added inches; in New York the dresses were ankle length, when over here, in France, the majority of women wore dresses that cut the lower limbs half way between knee and ankle. Even now there are many very smart Parisiennes who actively object to long walking dresses. My personal opinion is that the latest models by Paul Poiret have had much to do with this fight against the added inches.

Gowns to Suit the Age

Worth has lately made some effective theater costumes—for stage use I mean. For example, those created for Berthe Badg. This actress is notably a good dresser and the gowns worn by her can always be copied, with success, by women who have passed their first youth.

Berthe Badg is not a very young woman and she does not pretend to be that. She is between thirty and forty, and always dresses to suit that age, with the result that she looks younger than she actually is. For her Worth designed an exquisite theater or restaurant wrap I can confidently recommend to my readers.

It was of "Manon" outline, but instead of the traditional hood it had a big box frill at the neck. The material of this wrap was dull green satin lined with a really exquisite silver brocade. The cape was quite long—it covered the whole dress—and it was also very full and gathered into a shoulder yoke.

For the same actress Worth has made an admirable evening dress

At the beginning of the season Poiret launched models which were at one and the same time long and full. Women quickly realized that this outline, though quaint and picturesque, was not generally becoming; it called for a special type of woman and it rarely suited young girls.

Perhaps this was why so many of our best dressmakers—the real autocrats of the rue de la Paix—have decided to retain the beautiful straight outlines of last year while adding width, actually, to the hem of the skirt. The reason is not easy to discover, but the fact remains.

Paquin, Worth, Doucet, Doeuillet and others are showing lovely models which resemble those of yesterday, but which have much more material pressed into their composition.

At the fashionable race meetings one sees the most wonderful hats and toques. Quite amazing arrangements of paradise plumes, uncurled ostrich feathers and aigrettes—the latter as a rule artificial and cleverly made of fine horse hair.

There is just now a craze for bushy feathers, which make their wearer look like a savage chief in full war costume. These feathers—always uncurled and straggling—are placed in two or three rows round the brim of the hat or toque and allowed to fall over the eyes.

A curious fashion, but one which has caught on to an alarming extent. Lewis is trying to make us accept very wide-brimmed satin and straw hats, which have low crowns and scanty trimming; the genuine "picture hat" which used to be so dear to the heart of the artist "Drian." These hats will be immensely popular when the seaside season is in full swing, but for Paris they seem a trifle too remarkable.

As a matter of fact they are not really so remarkable as the small toques covered with straggling al-shapes are unexpected. It is quite a long time since we have worn them.

Short Jackets Popular.

The growing popularity of short jackets is something that must be taken into consideration. They are shown in all the best dressmaking studios and it is certain that they will become very popular.

Many of these little garments are of Breton outline. Almost exactly like the little coats worn by Breton peasants—the men—on Sundays and holidays. Very simple, rather wide at the hem, finished with long sleeves of pagoda outline and open in front.

I have seen jackets of this order chez Paquin, Beer and Redfern; they are distinctly original, but I do not consider them very becoming. Nevertheless they must be taken into serious consideration because they are going to be generally worn.

A model created by Redfern was worn at the Longchamps races. It was very simple in outline, but unusual. This was a genuine Breton model and it is one which will be very fashionable a little later on in linen and shantung for wearing with organdie muslin dresses, the little coques being in bright colors and decked out with a little fine braiding or embroidery on neck and sleeves.

Of course on the genuine Breton models there is no embroidery—only a narrow binding or braid all round the hem and up the fronts, but the short coats of the immediate future will be ornate, and they will look exceedingly chic and attractive when combined with flounced and ruffled frocks made of white organdie muslin or washing crepe.

MEANS BIG CROP

Wheat in Western Canada Has Excellent Start.

Germination, in the Rich Soil of That Country, is Speedy—Farmers on Road to Wealth.

It was on the 18th of May that the writer received a letter from a friend in Western Canada dated the 15th of the same month. Information was conveyed in the letter that its author had traveled over a considerable portion of Western Canada. He had covered most of the settled portions, and from those he had not covered he had secured information that amplified his own observations of conditions throughout all the vast area of that country. He found seeding of wheat practically completed, and placed in a bed of earth that was in a condition that warranted speedy and healthy germination. This was borne out by evidence that he was a witness of wheat that had been in the ground four days that was already breaking through, and that which had been seeded for a week was well above the ground, the field being as green as a new pasture plot. Everywhere this condition existed. It will be pleasing information for those who have friends in Western Canada—in any part of it, no matter where they may be—to learn that conditions have opened up in such a splendid way, and to be advised that the prospects were never brighter than now. When it becomes known that conditions are so satisfactory, many who were waiting, uncertain what to do in the matter of moving, will doubtless now come to a decision. With the opening of thousands of homesteads, which took place on the 1st of May, there was a rush to take advantage of the opportunity to secure 160 acres of excellent land free, within speaking distance of a railroad. The low railway rates granted by means of a certificate issued by Canadian government agents, located at different points in the that add considerable to the wealth of the farmer who desires to make money quickly. That these grains can be grown so successfully, and easily, makes it possible to go into other branches of farming industry, that give stability to it, wherever they are carried on. They are dairying and cattle-raising. There is an excellent market for the product, and the climate aids materially in assisting it, while the native grasses, as well as cultivated varieties, bring the cost of production to a much lower figure than is possible on lands that are much higher in price, with no better yielding qualities. Then, again, it is amply shown that fodder corn can be grown with great success, and that sunflowers, which it has been fully proven are little behind, if any, in food quality, thrive wonderfully. In fact, these two fodders, in addition to which may be added that of alfalfa and sweet clover, in which Western Canada farmers are well abreast with growers elsewhere, have brought about a period of silo-building which promises to eclipse any effort in this line made anywhere on the continent. In Manitoba alone, one firm is building two hundred this year. In Saskatchewan, many orders have been placed; in one small district in Alberta, where fifty were erected last year, another fifty will be built this summer. That there will be a thousand silos erected in the three provinces this year seems to be a conservative estimate. To the farmer in the States, who knows the advantage of the silos, who is interested in the fodder to be grown to fill them, what does this mean?—Advertisement.

Americanized.

He was a Chinaman. He ran a laundry and no one ever heard him speak a word of English. I often wondered why he had not learned our beautiful language. But to my queries he only shook his head.

One day when I paid for my weekly wash he returned less change than usual. "You've short-changed me, Ping Pong!" I cried.

Ping Pong smiled blandly, showed me his Americanization of foreign merchants' certificate and, speaking for the first time in faultless English, replied: "No, I've raised."—From Wroe's Writings.

To Be Exact.

"When does the last train leave for Brooks Junction?" asked the fussy old lady.

"I was reading in a newspaper this morning," said the ticket agent, dreamily, "where a celebrated soothsayer predicted that the world would come to an end in 1900. Barring unforeseen developments, the last train for Brooks Junction may leave here on or about that date."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

Alfalfa growers in Livingston County are continually expressing their satisfaction over results in growing this comparatively new crop. Many are reporting yields of from one to two tons per acre with first cutting. There should be two more cuts to follow if cut at the proper time. A great interest in this crop is manifest as more inquiries are received at the Farm Bureau relative to culture than for any other crop. The Farm Bureau has been instrumental in increasing the acreage by 1500 acres during the past year, and is never too busy to assist you in every way possible to secure a good stand. A series of experiments in alfalfa culture are now being conducted, location and results of which will be reported later.

No greater object lesson can be taught this season better than can be secured by comparing the yield from alfalfa fields with that of clover and native grasses. Alfalfa has fully demonstrated its ability as a drought resister. Anyone who has tried to dig reason. The roots have deep and in also secure plant food from a layer of soil never reached by corn and other cultivated crops.

- Essentials in Growing Alfalfa
- 1 Determination.
 - 2 Hardy, vigorous seed.
 - 3 Do not expect success on wet, sour, poor, weedy soil.
 - 4 Inoculation essential.
 - 5 Cut when new shoots start. (Most farmers cut too late)

I should advise every farmer to try at least a small piece of alfalfa and if he does not succeed at first to find out the reason why and to try again and keep on trying until he does succeed. MAKE A BEGINNING.

If the currant worm becomes serious when the fruit is nearly ripe, fresh hellabore should be used. As a spray, apply at the rate of 4 ounces in 2 or 3 gallons of water; or the plants may be dusted with a mixture of 1 pound of material in 5 pounds of flour or air slacked lime.
