ANN ARBOR The suit of Clarence E. Glenn vs. George A. Fuller started Saturday morning in circuit court. The plaintiff is seeking to restrain the defendant from trespassing on land which he claims to own in section 6 of Dexter township along Half Moon Lake.—Chelsea Standard.

FOWLerville Charles Krause rooms in the building formerly occupied by Dr. A. W. Cooper as an office. On Wednesday evening about 11:30 as he was moving about in his room a charge of shot came through the south window of the building but fortunately passed over his head. No trace of the one who fired the shot could not be obtained that night, but the next day Curran Cunningham volunteered the information that he did the act. He has been doing some queer things for some time past which showed that his mind was not just right at times and stops were at once commenced to have him enter the state hospital at Pontiac for treatment.—Review.

FOWLerville—Frank Head had a pretty narrow escape at the gravel pit west of this village Friday, a slide of sand and gravel burying him nearly to his neck and it took about 40 minutes good lively shoveling to dig him out.—Review.

REPORT NEWBERRY LEGALLY ELECTED

MICHIGAN SENATOR ENTITLED TO SEAT, SENATE COMMITTEE DECLARES.

MINORITY FAVORS UNSEATING

Democrats Agree Ford Was Not Elected, But Recommend Declaring a Vacancy.

Washington—Truman H. Newberry was legally elected over Henry Ford in Michigan in 1918 and is entitled to be seated in the senate, according to the majority report submitted late last week by the senate privileges and elections committee.

The report clears Mr. Newberry of all charges of corruption in connection with his election and recommends that the contest of Henry Ford be dismissed and that Mr. Newberry be declared duly elected. It is stated that Mr. Newberry's qualifications for the office of United States senator have been established conclusively.

Both the majority and minority reports, the latter being submitted by the Democratic members of the committee, agree that too much money was spent in the Michigan campaign and that Mr. Ford could not under any evidence be considered as elected.

The Republican committee held that Mr. Newberry was not personally responsible for the unduly bulky campaign outlay, while the Democrats contended the reverse.

The minority report submitted by the Democratic committee, opposes the seating of Mr. Newberry and recommends that his seat be declared vacant.

With the filing of the reports the case now goes to the senate for final decision, which will probably not be made for several weeks. In the meantime, it is understood, Senator Newberry will not attend the senate sessions.

Claims of Mr. Ford to the Michigan seat were denied by both majority and minority members on the same grounds—that all charges against Senator Newberry related to the primary and not the general election and that it was established conclusively that in the general election Senator Newberry had received a majority of the votes.

Mr. Ford's charges of bribery, illegal voting, and intimidation of voters in the general election were declared by the majority to be without foundation. The majority report after setting out the senate resolution under which the hearings were held, proceeds to give a chronology of the case from the time when Newberry and Ford were candidates for the Republican senatorial nomination at the primary of August, 1918, down to the end of the recount of ballots in Washington, which report says, that Truman H. Newberry was elected United States senator, "and that there is no evidence to sustain any of the charges of the contestant with regard to the general election."

Our company is going to harvest its timber, but not clear it out." Mr. Ford urged greater efforts at fire protection and more systematic forest management in the upper peninsula, also the reforestation of all lands cut over.

NEW STATE TAX VOID, SAYS COURT

JUDGE TUTTLE, IN U. S. DISTRICT COURT RULES CORPORATION LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

EXTRA SESSION IS POSSIBLE

If Decision is Upheld in Highest Court, Governor Will Ask for Needed Amendment.

Detroit.—If the ruling on Michigan's new corporation tax made by Judge Tuttle in federal court Saturday is upheld by the United States supreme court, the state will stand to lose the $6,000,000 revenue, which the collection of this tax is estimated will bring, unless a special session of the legislature is called and the law amended so as to remove the flaw pointed out in the decision.

In his ruling denying a motion to dismiss the suit brought by the Detroit Mortgage corporation and the Republic Acceptance corporation, both foreign corporations, to restrain the state from collecting the tax, Judge Tuttle declared that the corporation tax law was unconstitutional and void. The motion to dismiss the suit was made by the state on the ground that the plaintiff was not entitled to relief.

The corporation tax law was passed by the last regular session of the legislature as a means of raising additional revenue for the state, and to relieve real and personal property of the heavy burden of taxes now being borne by them.

It provides that each corporation, both domestic and foreign, doing business in Michigan, must pay a franchise fee of approximately 3 1/2 mills on each dollar of capital stock and surplus.

Lansing.—That the new corporation tax will continue to be collected, in case the present law imposing it is upset on the grounds advanced by Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, in the United States district court, was decided by Governor Groesbeck and the leaders of the legislature during conferences held when the new law was first attacked from this angle.

It was decided at these conferences that the state should hold that the present law is unconstitutional.

The corporation tax into the primary school interest fund, the legislature will be called in extraordinary session and will amend the law so as to put the money in that fund.

The law has been attacked in the state courts by domestic corporations as well as in the federal court in the present case. That the present constitution of Michigan does not, however, require that such taxes as that levied under the corporation tax law shall go into the primary school fund, is the main contention of Merlin Wiley, attorney general, in his brief filed in the state supreme court Monday morning in answer to the suit of the Union Steam Pump Sales company, of Battle Creek, the first corporation to attack the validity of the new tax law.

Hundreds of corporations have paid the fee under protest.

UNKNOWN SOLDIER TO BE HONORED

WILL BE BURIED IN ARLINGTON ON ARMISTICE DAY WITH ALL MILITARY CEREMONY.

REPRESENTS THE SERVICE

How it Happened That Many Who Died in France Could Not Be Identified, Despite the Disks They Were Given.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—In the presence of ranking military officers of all countries which took a part in the great war as allies against the central powers of Europe, an unknown American soldier will be buried on Armistice day in the national cemetery at Arlington.

Already in England and in France the bodies of unknown soldiers of those countries have been buried with every possible tribute.

Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding general of the American army, is now on his way to France, where he will participate in the ceremony of awarding the American Medal of Honor, voted by the American congress, to the unknown soldier of France, whose body lies under the great triumphal arch.

If General Pershing has time before his presence is needed in the United States to welcome Marshal Foch and other foreign military officers, he will visit England and place the American Medal of Honor upon the grave of the unknown British soldier, who lies in Westminster abbey.

Representative Spirit of the Service.

The unknown American soldier, whose body is to be buried in Arlington on Armistice day, will rest in the great amphitheater which has within its encircling walls a Hall of Fame.

Some men in high position believe that when the conference on limitation of armaments is at an end the administration will have something to propose which it thinks will bring the nations closely together in some kind of a working agreement to direct world affairs in the path which they should go.

Of course all this is in the future, but it may be that if such a plan is proposed President Harding will have his first experience with something which will look like a revolt in the senate.

Discarded or Lost Their Disks. Soldiers sometimes did curious things which it is hard to explain. A number of men threw away their identification disks or else lost them, although how they could be lost it is hard to explain.

Had Direct Communication. Before the war, Germany was in direct cable communication with the United States. In the spring of 1900, the cable of the Deutsche-Atlantische Telegraphen-Gesellschaft was laid from Borkum to Fayal and in the summer extended to New York.

Discriminating. Hostess—"Very bad form, I call it, to ring one up during church hours." Guest—"Probably she knows you don't go to church." Hostess—"Very likely; but she might have the decency to assume that I do."

of course, Democratic interest in this matter just about as keen as that in evidence in the ranks of the dominant party.

Senator James E. Watson of Indiana has been suggested as a leader pro tem for the Republicans during the Massachusetts senator's absence.

The Republican situation in the senate today is entirely different from that which obtained in the congress which was brought to an end on March 4 last.

Nothing yet has developed in the senate to make for an immediate breach between the President and the majority of his party's representatives in the upper house, but history has shown that breaks do come and it may be that President Harding will have some trouble with some Republican senators before all the international relations questions definitely have been answered.

It is, of course, an old story now, but during the campaign President Harding expressed himself as being favorable to some kind of an association of nations which would make for lasting peace and therefore for lasting good in the world.

There are some Republican senators who are opposed to any kind of an association of nations unless it be one which is stronger in name than in fact.

Recently it has been said that President Harding has reconsidered his thoughts on an association of nations and intends to make no proposal at any time looking to such a pact.

Some men in high position believe that when the conference on limitation of armaments is at an end the administration will have something to propose which it thinks will bring the nations closely together in some kind of a working agreement to direct world affairs in the path which they should go.

Of course all this is in the future, but it may be that if such a plan is proposed President Harding will have his first experience with something which will look like a revolt in the senate.

SILOS GIVE BETTER SERVICE IF INSIDE IS GIVEN COAT OF PAINT

Filling the Silo—Canning Corn for Live Stock.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

With the approach of the time for filling the silo the United States Department of Agriculture calls attention to the desirability of putting silos in shape and making plans for filling which will save valuable time in the rush of work.

Even the best constructed silos will need some attention occasionally. Concrete silos, which are among the most expensive of construction, require the least attention as a general rule, but they will give better service if the inside is given a coat of special paint about once in three years.

Wooden silos, either stave or board construction, require additional attention. The hoops of stave silos should be tightened and any defective pieces of wood replaced.

Small Bundles Easier to Handle. Careful attention should be paid to before it would be cut for shocking; that is, when about 80 per cent of the kernels are dented and at least 75 per cent of the kernels are hardened so that no milk can be squeezed out.

Pods May Be Destroyed by Fumigation With Carbon Disulphid—Liquid May Be Placed in Any Shallow Receptacle.

Many seeds, especially beans, corn, and lettuce, are subject to injury by a number of insects, all of which may be destroyed by fumigation with carbon disulphid, say experts of the United States Department of Agriculture.

MARKET REPORT

FURNISHED BY U. S. BUREAU OF MARKETS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

(For the week ending Sept. 29, 1921)

Live Stock and Meats

Compared with a week ago Chicago live stock prices as a rule showed a downward trend. Hogs ranged from 10 to 40 cents lower while fat and feeding lambs declined 15 to 25 cents.

Butter markets during the week were firm on top grades but undergrades continued to move slowly at unsettled prices.

An improved export demand caused higher prices first two days of week but after that the price trend was downward except at the close of the market on Sept. 29th.

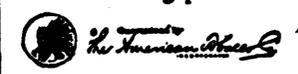

Market firm during week because of light receipts. Demand continued limited with only best grades wanted.

"Of all the nerve I ever saw, Miss Upstart has the most complete supply! She seems to think her newly-acquired wealth will take her anywhere!" said a disgruntled acquaintance of the lady.

"Yes, but that is not the limit of her ambitions, by any means. I heard her bragging at luncheon that she thought she would send in her application to join the League of Nations!"

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and sentiment supposed to represent the spirit of the service and the willingness for sacrifice of all Americans who entered the army or navy during the great war.

Who is the unknown soldier? No one can answer. It is certain, of course, that the American authorities, and the British and French authorities, used every effort to determine the identity of the unknown before making the bodies the subjects and the centers of the tributes of the nations.

Every soldier and sailor in the American army, officer or enlisted man, was supposed to wear on his person two identification disks. Sometimes three were worn, one on the wrist and two about the neck pendant from cords.

Discarded or Lost Their Disks. Soldiers sometimes did curious things which it is hard to explain. A number of men threw away their identification disks or else lost them, although how they could be lost it is hard to explain.

in working condition. Corn harvesters and silo-filling machinery are frequently owned in partnership by several farmers and, of course, arrangements need to be made in advance to see that all the owners get their corn in at the season when it is in best shape.

The corn ordinarily is hauled to the cutter on common, flat hayracks. The low-wheeled wagon is much preferred to the high one. An underslung rack can be constructed with comparative ease and will save much labor.

The apex of the V is suspended below the front axle of an ordinary farm wagon by means of a long kingbolt. The other ends are attached below the hind axle by U-shaped clevises.

If the silage cutter and lifting machinery have not been selected, every effort should be made to get machinery which has sufficient or excess capacity. The mistake is often made of getting an outfit that is too small, thus making the operation of filling the silos slow and interfering with the continuous employment of the entire force of men.

Opinions differ as to the fineness to which silage should be cut. The length varies from one-fourth to one inch. The latter is a little too long, as the pieces do not pack so closely in the silo, and they are not so completely consumed in feeding as the shorter lengths.

Two types of elevators are in use—the old-style chain carrier and the blower. The chain carrier requires less power, but is harder to set up and makes more litter, especially in windy weather, though some chain carriers are so inclosed as to keep the corn from blowing out.

Harvest Corn Before Fully Ripened. Ordinarily, corn should be harvested for the silo about a week or ten days dish it evaporates rapidly, producing a foul-smelling gas that is heavier than air. Therefore, in fumigating seeds, to kill insects attacking them it is necessary to place the carbon disulphid on top of the seeds in order that the gas may sink into them and reach every part of the container.

Speds to be fumigated must be dry, and if they are in paper bags, the bags should be opened. The gas penetrates cloth bags easily. The liquid may be placed in any shallow dish, such as a saucer or plate, or merely poured on the seeds. The liquid will not injure the seeds if poured directly upon them.

USE HATCHET ON SICK FOWLS

No Economy in Spending Valuable Time in Attempting to Cure Ordinary Chicken.

Once disease gets into the flock, or a single bird is badly affected, the free use of the hatchet usually is the most practical method of wiping it out, as it does not pay to spend two dollars' worth of time in trying to cure an ordinary bird, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

HINTS ON SELECTING FOWLS

Fast Growing Pullet That Begins to Lay Early is an Indication of Health and Vigor.

Some pullets have inherent qualities that make them better than others. They mature earlier, are fuller in body and begin to lay before others of the same age.

FACTORS FAVORING STORAGE

It is of Great Importance to Prevent Rot and Decay—Guard Against Frost.

The factors favoring successful storage are those which prevent rot, decay, and drying out. Temperature should be low enough to prevent decay and sufficiently high to protect from frost.

Wheat mill feeds were generally dull and inactive. Better demand for middlings at Kansas City and Omaha.

GREETING THE FARMER

The following, published by the Washtenaw Post will apply equally well in Pinckney as in Ann Arbor.

How do you greet the farmer when he comes to Ann Arbor? Is your made to feel that he is in his town, is one of us, among his people, and with his friends?

The making or marring of this our beautiful city depends greatly upon your attitude towards the farmer when he favors us with a visit.

He is the backbone of the community, and without his aid and encouragement this would be an unsuccessful place in which to do business. We ride out in the country and the farmer extends the glad hand of fellowship and bids us welcome, when we leave he invites us to call again, and he does so in a sincere and honest way. But is our leave-taking and welcome marked by such sincerity?

We of the City are proud of the farmers of this community, and of their wives and sons and daughters. They are men and women of high order and intelligence, whose integrity is beyond question, and when thrift and energy and perseverance transform the countryside into a hive of industry and wealth. But we of the city are too often forgetful of the great duty that we owe to them for their loyalty and generosity in support of our business enterprises. So let us constantly seek to cultivate a spirit still more friendly and neighborly and open up our hearts that the farmer may look within, for we are but one big family, with one common interest, and the welfare of one is always the welfare of all.

Henry Ford Was Right When He Said

'The Tractor will enable the farmer to work fewer hours in the day, giving him more time to enjoy life. I believe the tractor will make farming what it ought to be—the most pleasant, the most healthful, and the most profitable business on earth.'

This tractor has done much—very much—in bringing true Mr. Ford's prophecy; for in it is a machine which has harnessed one of the most dependable, efficient, adaptable, economical sources of power in the world—a machine which many farmers claim plows, harrows or drills as much ground in the same time as four, six or even eight horses. And more—a machine that takes care of every power job on the farm.

Call and let's talk it over, or telephone or drop us a card and we will bring the facts to you.

CHAPTER XIV.

A Will Is Changed. The two years that had passed since Tony Devon had entered the Pendlehaven home, the greater part of which she had spent in school, had brought about many changes. Paul Pendlehaven had taken his place among the world's workers, but this does not say that he did not still long for the child who had gone from his life eighteen years before.

Mrs. Curtis was no nearer giving Cousin John to Katherine as a father than she ever had been, and Ithaca had caught no sight of Reginald Brown since he had fled from it with the notion that he might follow Uriah Devon behind the prison bars. Phillip had carried on his wonderful work, living in the joyous letters he received from Tony and spending his spare time in answering them.

One morning Tony came to Paul Pendlehaven, smiling and blushing girlish, and he motioned her to a little stool at his feet. "Darling," he began in a moved tone, "I sent for you because I've come to perhaps the most important decision of my whole life."

Tony glanced up at him wondering. He appeared solemnly sober and looked as if he hadn't slept. "If it affects me, Cousin Paul, it can't be greater than the one you made over two years ago when you took poor little me into your home," she asserted.

His hand fell lovingly upon her curly head as though in benediction. They both lapsed into a long silence, the girl's dreamy eyes fixed on space, and the man gazing at her shining head. "Tony," he ejaculated at length. There was something in his voice as he pronounced her name that dispelled her reverie instantly. "Yes," she breathed. "Yes, what is it?" Pendlehaven cleared his throat. "I would never have believed that anyone could have worried her way

"I hope so," returned Pendlehaven, and Doctor John pulled at the corners of his mouth to keep back a malicious grin.

"I'm going to adopt Tony Devon—" Doctor Paul had only time enough to make this statement when Mrs. Curtis jumped to her feet.

"You couldn't do that!" she cried. "That would be wicked, Paul, absolutely wicked! Oh God, don't do that!"

Without heeding in the slightest his cousin's bitter ejaculation, Paul Pendlehaven picked up a box that lay at his elbow. With much ceremony he opened it and took out an exquisite pearl necklace.

"I do not need to remind any of you," he said, turning his eyes from his brother to his two white-faced cousins, "that these belonged to my dear wife. I have always considered them the property of her daughter too. That is the reason, Katherine, why I've always refused your request to wear them. But now I have a daughter." He turned smiling eyes upon Tonnibel. "I shall allow her to wear them whenever she wishes, and if—her lost sister isn't found, then they are hers—hers forever."

A long hissing breath broke from Sarah Curtis, and a gasp came from Katherine.

"I couldn't wear them," Tony got out at length. "I simply couldn't."

"Not to please me, your father, Tonnibel?" demanded Paul, almost brusquely.

"And me, your new uncle!" laughed Doctor John. "Why, honey, little girl," he reached out and took Tonnibel's hand, "don't look as if you'd lost your last friend!" Then Paul Pendlehaven drew Tonnibel Devon to his side, and when he had clasped the jewels around her neck, he lifted her face and kissed her. "There, little daughter!" His voice choked with emotion, but he conquered his feelings and went on, "they're very lovely, very precious."

to Reginald Curtis, summoning him home.

CHAPTER XV.

The Last Card.

One day some weeks later, Reginald Brown walked rapidly along the boulevard past the row of squatter shacks. He had received word that Uriah Devon, released from prison, would anchor the Dirty Mary near the Hoghole in her accustomed place. Devon was on deck when Browns ran up the gangplank.

"So you came, old top," was Uriah's greeting. "It's good you did; I want to know what's doin'."

A woman came to the door of the cabin and peered out. When she saw the newcomer, she scowled and went back.

"I thought you said she was dead," commented Reggie, with a wag of his head toward the spot where the woman had stood.

"Well, she ain't! Worse luck!" growled Uriah. "I told that to the kid to make her feel bad. Ede was willing to be dead for a while anyhow. What's the news of Tony?"

"Oh, she's a lady now," answered Reggie, sarcastically. "The Pendlehavens have sent her to school ever since you went away. My mother tells me Paul Pendlehaven's going to adopt her. And what do you think else?" he demanded.

"I dunno," granted the other. "Good God! Don't sit there tearin' me to pieces with curiosity. Fire ahead, and tell me."

"She's copped Phil MacCauley," returned Reginald; "Ithaca's snob of a Salvation Army captain, the fellow who threw me in the lake that day, and he's as rich as the Pendlehavens put together."

"Well, he won't get 'er," asserted Uriah, sharply. "I've told you the girl's rich too. Her father's got money to burn."

"A lot of good that'll do you, Ry," sneered Reggie. "She wouldn't look at

"Oh," she exulted, "how happy I am! It isn't the pearls, though they're simply great, but it's that I have some real people." She turned a flushed and radiant face to each man. "Somebody that's my very own. My mother's dead, and my father—"

"Is in prison," snapped Mrs. Curtis, vindictively. "I'm wondering what he'll say to all this when he comes home."

"His opinion won't make any difference to us," Paul Pendlehaven stated coolly. "He has forfeited every right to any claim on Tony."

"Hideous!" exclaimed Mrs. Curtis, and "Well, I never," dropped from Katherine.

"And," went on Doctor Paul, relentlessly, for he knew the bars that were being thrust into the souls of his two cousins. "I'm going to change my will in favor of my new daughter here—"

"And I mine in favor of our young Salvation Army captain who is going to marry my new niece," chuckled Doctor John. "I guess that's all we have to say, Paul."

In silence Katherine and Mrs. Curtis faded from the room, carrying with them bitter humiliation and nursing outraged feelings.

"It's all your fault, mamma," scolded Katherine, bursting into tears when they were in the seclusion of their own apartments. "You've whined and wept yourself right out of Cousin John's life, that's what you've done. God, how I hated that girl when I saw Caroline's pearls around her neck!"

"What are you doing now?" thrust back her mother. "Aren't you crying as if your heart would break? I tell you tears—"

"Oh Lordy, tears! What good do they do?" came sharply. "Here we are without a future, without a home! That interloper will see we go the moment Paul gets out those papers! Oh, what shall we do?"

"I wish that man—her father, I mean—was out of jail," mused Mrs. Curtis. "I really believe he could do something, Katie. Perhaps, Reggie—"

Katherine wiped her eyes with a sudden movement.

"Mamma, why don't you send for Reggie?" she questioned. "Now, listen to me. Reggie confided in me before he left that he really was fond of that girl, and if— Oh, mamma, I've thought of a wonderful thing. Send for Reggie, shove the girl under his nose every minute. Let him cut Phillip out—"

"And perhaps have my son marry that thing," objected the mother curtly.

"That thing, as you please to call Tony Devon, is one of the prettiest and richest young women in this country," Katherine snapped back. "She's the heiress to the Pendlehavens, and engaged to be married to a man who owns half the town. Thing, eh? Well, I think she's a little higher up in the world at this moment than my half-brother, Reggie, if you want my opinion."

"That night an urgent message from the frantic mother traveled by wire

Archer Milton Huntington, the famous author and collector, said at a dinner to Baychester:

"When a war profiteer begins to collect, the spectacle is amusing. 'A New York profiteer was visited by a book agent who tried to sell him a very elaborate dictionary for his library.'

"This dictionary," said the book agent, 'has all the latest modern improvements, scientific terms, and there isn't a feature lacking that goes to make a first-class work of the kind.'

"Let's have a look at her," grunted the profiteer.

"He examined the dictionary a moment, then he handed it back. 'Young fellow,' he said, 'you can't work that book off on me.'

"What's the matter with the book?" said the agent.

"She ain't got no copious index," said the profiteer."

Boishevik Exponent Is Premier, Michael Kalinin Being President of Central Executive Committee.

Most Americans believe that Nikolai Lenin is president of Russia, whereas he holds an office which corresponds to that of the British premier. Michael Kalinin, a peasant, for more than two years has been president of the All-Russian Central Executive committee. His position is only about as politically powerful as that of the French president, and, whereas the French executive's position is mostly social, the Russian president is mediator, champion and political adviser of the peasant masses of Russia.

Kalinin's office in Moscow is not in the Kremlin, but in an ordinary office building in the heart of the city. It is the one place in Russia where no "papers" are demanded when one enters and no guards stand about the doors.

Whose fault is it when your husband is cross at breakfast?

If you hit your thumb with a hammer you wouldn't blame your thumb for hurting.

Then why blame your husband whose nerves may have been pounded by coffee, and whose rest probably has been broken by the irritation of the caffeine it contains?

If you stay awake half the night you don't feel any too cheerful.

The caffeine of coffee and the thein of tea are known drugs. If their use is persisted in, sooner or later the nervous system may give way.

Then you may have insomnia, or disturbed sleep. Your nerves and tissues will be robbed of that stability essential for normal and happy living.

There are no prohibitionists among the insects, says a correspondent. Hundreds of wasps were recently observed among the fir trees of Keston lake crawling eagerly over spindles and sucking at drops of turpentine which form at this time of year. A vast humming came from the trees, reminiscent of the midsummer ring over the heated hay fields. Large flies and blue-bottles were also seen. In many cases the insects consumed so much of the brewer that they fell to the ground in a drunken stupor, or clung hazily to the trees. The 'web' spider chasing its prey through the grass like a dog was having a rich harvest. Other insects came to the bacchanalian repast. A species of aphid was much in evidence and also its keeper, the ant, busy milking it of its gathered liquor.

There are no prohibitionists among the insects, says a correspondent. Hundreds of wasps were recently observed among the fir trees of Keston lake crawling eagerly over spindles and sucking at drops of turpentine which form at this time of year. A vast humming came from the trees, reminiscent of the midsummer ring over the heated hay fields. Large flies and blue-bottles were also seen. In many cases the insects consumed so much of the brewer that they fell to the ground in a drunken stupor, or clung hazily to the trees. The 'web' spider chasing its prey through the grass like a dog was having a rich harvest. Other insects came to the bacchanalian repast. A species of aphid was much in evidence and also its keeper, the ant, busy milking it of its gathered liquor.

Paris Returns to Long Skirt

There has been much speculation regarding the styles of evening dresses that will be worn during the coming winter.

The talk about long skirts, asserts a fashion correspondent, has grown to be more than a rumor. We hear them discussed everywhere as a fashion that has taken a firm hold. It is true they are not yet worn on the streets in this country to any extent, but they are seen in the newest evening dresses which are recent importations or copies of new French models.

All of the conjecture regarding the beauty of the new styles in evening dresses is being verified daily by the appearance of lovely new models from the hands of the great artist dress-makers of Paris. The gay summer social season has made it possible for many of the winter novelties to be anticipated. Paris is back again to its prewar gaiety, and the numberless events given in honor of visiting strangers have brought together wealth and fashion to an unrivaled degree.

While no one can deny the continued vogue of black—which faded, starting for daytime wear, finished by absorbing evening costumes as well—one is happy to note that at the most recent social affairs gay splashes of color are beginning to appear. The all-prevailing black had got to the point where it was depressing in its severity and predominance, especially as many Parisiennes with these black dresses laid aside their jewels, something that is not done even in the deepest of mourning. Thus the introduction of a sprinkling of more cheerful gowns has been received with enthusiasm.

The many colorful balls given as benefits for various charitable works throughout the season in Paris afforded occasions upon which these dazzling new evening dresses could be worn with great effect. Visitors from all nations have united in attending gala performances and other benefits in the guise of social gatherings. Thus these beautiful new evening dresses have come under the eyes of all the world, so to speak, for smart women of all countries have worn them, first in Paris, and at the opening of the fall and winter season they will unquestionably be seen in multi-and silk are brocaded on foundations of satin finish. Large motifs are chosen, and the design appears to stand away from the fabric in a gorgeously glowing effect.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Our country's prosperity was built up by industry and thrift. Our forebears had a just fear of work and accomplishment. Instead of this our youth of today are seeking easy ways of subsistence, when there is no such thing as an easy way except at the expense of their own and our country's future.—Theodore Vall.

RECIPES WORTH SAVING.

Those who do not enjoy a thick mayonnaise will like this salad dressing, which will keep indefinitely.

Boiled Salad Dressing.—Beat the yolks of seven eggs until thick and lemon-colored; drop three tablespoonfuls of olive oil slowly, beating continually; add one-half cupful of melted butter and continue beating; add one-half cupful of vinegar and the juice of one lemon, slowly. Cook in a double boiler until it coats the spoon. Remove from the heat and sift in the following ingredients, which have been thoroughly blended: One and one-half tablespoonfuls of mustard, one-half teaspoonful of white pepper, one-eighth teaspoonful of cayenne pepper, three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Mix well and, when using the dressing, add whipped cream.

Potato Salad.—Boil eight medium-sized potatoes in their jackets; peel and cut in one-quarter-inch cubes; add two cucumbers, cut in the same sized cubes, one cupful of blanched and shredded almonds, two tablespoonfuls each of red and green peppers, chopped fine, with one small onion, also chopped. Serve with the above boiled dressing.

Beet Salad.—Take a pint or more of the small cooked beets, finely diced, add one pound of shelled pecans, broken in bits; serve with the boiled dressing, colored a light pink, using the beet liquor. The beets are best if marinated for several hours in a small amount of French dressing.

French Dressing.—Add one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of powdered sugar, a dash of cayenne to three tablespoonfuls of oil and one of vinegar; mix well before using.

Chicken Salad.—Cut cold boiled fowl into half-inch dice; add an equal quantity of tender celery, cut in pieces, one

HOW WOMEN AVOID SURGICAL OPERATIONS

Some Are Extremely Necessary, Others May Not Be

Every Woman Should Give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Trial First

Chicago, Ill.—"I was in bed with a female trouble and inflammation and had four doctors but none of them did me any good. They all said I would have to have an operation. A druggist's wife told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took 22 bottles, never missing a dose and at the end of that time I was perfectly well. I have never had occasion to take it again as I have been so well. I have a six room flat and do all my work. My two sisters are taking the Compound upon my recommendation and you may publish my letter. It is the gospel truth and I will write to any one who wants a personal letter."—Mrs. E. H. HAYDOCK, 6524 St. Lawrence Ave., Chicago, Ill.

A Vermont woman adds her testimony to the long line of those fortunate women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after it had been decided an operation was necessary:

Burlington, Vt.—"I suffered with female trouble, and had a number of doctors who said that I would never be any better until I had an operation. I was so bad I could hardly walk across the floor and could not do a thing. My sister-in-law induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it certainly has helped me wonderfully. I keep house and do my work in the great grand old town of Burlington, Vermont. I have a small child. I have recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to a number of my friends and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. H. E. SHABON, Apple Tree Point Farm, Burlington, Vt.

In hospitals are many women who are there for surgical operations, and there is nothing a woman dreads more than the thought of an operation, and the long weary months of recovery and restoration to strength if it is successful. It is very true that female troubles may through neglect reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but most of the common ailments of women are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same. When disturbing ailments first appear take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. In fact, many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Modern and Classic Notes Combined.

In addition to their beautiful colors the strikingly new note is the length of the evening dress. Practically every model that is smart and new is long. One might say very long, touching the heels, though never so completely long but that the wearer's ankles are revealed through openings or transparencies.

The modern and the classic join in these dresses—Greek, Egyptian and striking up-to-date Parisian ideas are combined. Every coquetry and flattering effect is incorporated in the flowers, such as the fleur de lis and the tulip. All leaves, too, are used in a conventional way. When smaller flowers are used the design is in branches, and the effect of such patterns is daring and beautiful.

Gold and silver brocades are seen on crepe satin foundations or even on backgrounds of dull crepe—a way of enlivening these dull fabrics, which have been almost too much in evidence during the last few months.

Introducing the Bias Decollete. Madeleine et Madeleine have had remarkable success with their yellow and silver dresses. They have chosen vivid canary shades, heavily trimmed with silver lace. Often they use the one-shoulder strap, leaving the other shoulder bare or with a strap of opposing color. Thus one shoulder may be draped in yellow and the other with a slender band of silver.

Their newest dresses appear to be made of one piece of goods cut on the bias and wrapped around the figure with the loose end caught up on one side to form a cascade drapery. The girdle or trimming is always adjusted at a low waist line. Such a dress is particularly pronounced in this style when the wearer assumes the sleek coiffure of a Spanish beauty of classic days and to this adds a jet comb and long jet earrings.

Jenny varies little from her characteristic simplicity. She also affects the bias decollete in her new evening dresses. One of her most successful recent novelties is a dress in violet velvet of a marvelous shade heavily trimmed with embroidered gold passementeries. This dress, too, like many of the season's successes, appears to be of one piece of material wrapped around the figure and allowed to fall in uneven lengths about the ankles.

Distinctly original in their concept are some of the new gowns by Lanvin combining the idea of long and short and full and narrow skirts. That is to say, to the short, full skirt she has added an underpetticoat narrow and long. Often this underpetticoat is transparent, or if it is of an opaque material a wide trimming band in open effect is set into the over-skirt.

Notes From Paris.

Now that the French dressmakers have settled down to their prewar status Parisian weddings are beginning to show all kinds of novel and charming touches, sometimes extremely picturesque, but always maintaining the true French elegance. Some of the older generation are asking if it can be possible that the brides of today intend to abandon altogether the symbolic white costume, and their classic orange blossom of age-long tradition.

Cloth of silver trimmed with tulle and worn with sprigs of myrtle, white velvet draped over pale pink satins and trains lined with the same color are some of the newest bridal gowns. Fine seed pearls, which formerly were considered suitable for matrons, are now largely used on youthful wedding gowns.

very fine and add to the salad. Mix well with a boiled dressing and garnish with hard-cooked eggs cut in eighths, and curled celery.

Arabian Stew.—Sear in a hot frying pan six pork chops, then remove to a casserole. On each chop place one tablespoonful of uncooked rice, a slice of onion, a slice of tomato or its equivalent in cooked tomato, two strips of green pepper. Sprinkle each with salt and pepper, add hot water and cover. Cook from three to four hours in a moderate oven.

You may save your neighbor grapes or grape shot; he also will grow grapes or grape shot for you and you will each reap what you have sown.—Ruskin.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

Now that the tender fresh carrots are to be had from the garden, let us remember to serve them in such a way that all the food value is saved. Eaten raw, well masticated, the carrot is one of the chief food vegetables. Put through the meat grinder and added to various soups, sauces, salads, as well as main dishes, it is not half appreciated.

Spinach is another vegetable that is especially delicate and highly valuable, rich in iron, mineral salts and in combination with egg and a salad dressing makes a meal with a bread and butter sandwich. If one has not a garden, or the green is not in market, there are several very good brands of the canned article. Air it for some time to remove the smothered taste, drain off the liquor which should be used in a soup, and serve it sometimes just heated with plenty of butter and a little salt.

With the luscious peach, muskmelon and pear on the market in abundance, there will be no lack of fruit acids and salts which are so necessary in the body.

A glass of buttermilk with a sandwich will often be a satisfying lunch, but with a dainty sandwich and a bit of fruit it will be a well-balanced meal.

A raw vegetable or a fruit salad with whole wheat bread sandwich or a nut-bread sandwich is especially appreciated during the sultry fall days.

Madeira Cake.—Put the yolks of two eggs into a mixing bowl, then add one cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of butter. Add two cupfuls of well-sifted flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, then add one-half cupful of sweet cream and a few gratings of nutmeg, beating all the time. Lastly, fold in the well-beaten whites and pour into a greased tin lined with buttered paper. Place a slice of citron on top and bake in a round cake tin. Bake one hour and a quarter in a moderate oven, lowering the heat after the cake has fully risen.

You Said It—What's the Use?

PIONEERS' WAYS

Told by Mrs. Amanda Van Buren Wilcox

I have been asked to recall some of my experiences of early pioneer days and will gladly do so as far as my memory serves me at my advanced age of almost 87 years. I will begin with my childhood.

I came to Michigan with my parents Abraham and Betty Van Buren in 1836, at the age of two years, from New York state, Madison County, township of Lenox, where I was born, and I am the oldest of eleven children.

In coming to Michigan my parents first settled in the township of Iosco, Livingston County. My oldest brother Martin was the first white child born in that township. From Iosco they moved to White Oak, Ingham County, and lived there the remainder of their days.

I have lived in Ingham county all my life since coming to Michigan, and have experienced all the trials and hardships of early pioneer life, have seen the country develop from a vast wilderness to its present state of improvement. The woods were full of Indians and wild animals, and we had nothing but cowpaths and Indian trails for roads, our nearest market and milling point was Dexter and it took three days with ox-team to make the trip there and back, and when they started out to take a grist to mill they took

100,000 BUSHELS REQUIRED TO RESCUE DYING CHILDREN

For the first time in the annals of an American relief organization, a farm—one of the oldest and finest in Michigan—served as the meeting place recently of a State-wide group assembled to appeal to their fellow farmers as a class to contribute of their grain against want in a foreign land.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Whitney Watkins, of Watkins Farms, in Jackson County, were luncheon hosts to the Emergency Grain Board of the Michigan Committee of Near East Relief, and immediately after luncheon the board formally organized itself and named an executive committee to launch and manage a campaign among the farmers of the State for 100,000 bushels of grain, or its equivalent, to be sent as Michigan's share of America's gift of 5,000,000 bushels, now being collected, to Armenia, Syria, Assyria and adjacent lands of Asia Minor. Resultant of starvation and exposure there, cholera and typhus have broken out, and thousands of orphaned children and destitute adults are dying in the streets and by the roadsides.

FACTS OF HISTORIC INTEREST

Revealed by Extensive Excavations on Sites of Revolutionary Camps on the Hudson Heights.

Three years of excavating on sites of Revolutionary camps in the Hudson highlands, near West Point, has enabled a commission of the New York Historical society to establish interesting historical facts that have long been in dispute.

The chief source of information has been refuse heaps of the armed camps of Washington, and many facts have been learned merely from examining the buttons in the old dumps. Examination of cooking utensils and cutlery, broken pottery and other imperishable articles has aided the commission. The buttons, still showing the insignia after a century and a half, show that ten Massachusetts regiments, five from Connecticut and one from Rhode Island, occupied the main fortress in the highlands. Buttons worn in one camp by Connecticut soldiers bore an imprint in honor of the birth of the French dauphin, showing that the soldiers were in camp after 1781.

Similar investigation on the sites of British camps show their troops lived in much more luxury than the men who won independence for America. Silver buckles, china, and much broken glass from rum containers tell the story of the invaders' rations. The Revolutionary troops used hand-forged forks, pewter spoons, and left no broken glass.

FARM AND GARDEN

Three Michigan boys, representing M. A. C. in the Fourth Annual Collegiate Judging Contest in connection with the Dairy Cattle Congress at Waterloo, Iowa last week, won first honors in the Holstein-Friesian class, third honors in total team rank for judging all breeds, and a tie for fourth in individual work.

Teams from many of the leading agricultural colleges of the West were entered in the contests, including Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, and Nebraska. The fine showing of local men was considered remarkable in view of the fact that it is the first team of its kind that has been sent out from the Michigan school.

The men on the team were L. E. Harter of Middleville; W. J. Sweetman of East Lansing; Frank Thomas of East Lansing; and L. J. Carter of Elsie, alternate. Thomas tied for fourth place in individual ranking among all contestants. The team was coached and managed by Prof. H. E. Dennison of M. A. C. Dairy department, judging being part of the class work at the college.

mill. Going to mill was no small task, but my two older brothers, Martin and Walker, made older the trip many a time.

In those days the grain was threshed with what was called an open machine or separator that did not separate the chaff from the grain. This had to be done with the fanning mill, and I have stood on a half bushel measure hour after hour and turned the fanning mill for father to clean up his wheat before it was put into the bin.

The school expenses were raised by the rate bill, and people who couldn't raise the money to pay their rate bill could not send their children to school. Our school book consisted of reading, writing, spelling, and arithmetic, all combined in one book.

I have sat up many a night until twelve and one o'clock winding shuttles for mother, she sitting in the loom weaving cloth to earn money to pay the rate bill, so her children could go to school.

I was taught to weave and spin and used to spin by the day for people. Forty knots or two runs was a days work and for this I was paid 20 cents. How would the girls of today like to have a job like that? And I have worked many a week at housework for 75 cents a week, and had to help milk the cows in the bargain.

But it was not all work, we had lots of enjoyment with our logging bees, spelling school, singing school, house-parties, and camp meetings, and so on. I look back it seems to me the young people of those days got more enjoyment out of life than they do now. Forty-seven years is a long life, and I have seen through a great many trials and hardships, but I have a great deal to be thankful for.—Stockbridge Chief-Sun.

New Hudson has a brand new modern school building, so that phase of the matter did not cut much of a figure.

THIS RIDE A REAL THRILLER

Ascent by Elevator to Summit of Alpine Peak Worth Going Long Journey to Take.

For years one of the most thrilling incidents of a visit to the Alps has been the ascent of the Jungfrau on the cog-rail road that starts from Kleine Scheidegg, at an elevation of 6,711 feet and climbs the mountainside at the startling grade of 25 per cent, or an angle of about 22 degrees, till it reaches Jungfraujoch, at an elevation of 11,339 feet.

In an illustrated article in Popular Mechanics Magazine is told how it is now proposed to add to this wonderful experience in mountain climbing a still further thrill, by comparison with which the former will appear quite insipid. From the present end of the track the mountain soars another 2,206 feet to the summit at an elevation of 13,547 feet. By means of excavations and tunnels the track will be extended until it reaches a spot in the center of the conical summit directly below its highest point. From the end of this tunnel a shaft will be bored vertically to the summit itself, and in this shaft passenger elevators will be installed, so that Alpine mountaineers will end their long thrilling railroad climb with an elevator trip like an exaggerated ride to the top of the Woolworth building in New York city. The climax will find them landed at the extreme summit of one of the highest peaks in the Alps, with a view of a world of snow-clad, craggy mountain tops around them.

HOWELL—A bus of the Automobile Transportation company went into the ditch at Benjamin's corners near this city early Sunday morning. The driver and one passenger who were riding in the front seat were thrown through the windshield but neither of them were seriously injured. It is said they were both residents of Lansing.

The car, which was a Buick, was badly smashed, the radiator stove in, and the motor torn loose from its hangings.

It is said the car was going at the rate of 40 miles an hour. It ploughed into the bank making a furrow three feet wide, a foot deep and seven feet in length.

The car was going from Detroit to Lansing.—State Journal.

BRIGHTON—The following school officers were elected at the first annual meeting of the new Brighton consolidated school district:

For three years Max W. Beck and E. N. Pitkin.

For two years Charles E. Herbst, and Dr. F. M. Blatchford.

For one year Dr. J. D. Slager.

Funds to send the boys on the trip to Waterloo were raised quite largely by subscription from interested dairymen and breeders of the state, who believed in the educational value of such competition. Local bankers also contributed to the expense fund.

Attacked in her boat while fishing in Pine Lake last Thursday, by a huge water snake, which she succeeded in beating off only after a spirited battle, was the experience of Mrs. Sarah Blake of near Pine Lake.

Mrs. Blake was rowing slowly near the shore when she was startled at seeing a large and peculiarly marked snake dart into the water from the shore and make for her boat. As the boat, Mrs. Blake struck at it with an oar, and in so doing snake, oar and fishing line became entangled. She dropped the oar and raised the pole, throwing the snake high in the air. It fell about ten feet from the boat and immediately renewed the attack.

For the second time she brought the oar down on the snake, this time partially stunning the reptile, whereupon she rapidly rowed away. In a moment the snake came to and took up its pursuit but she soon outdistanced it, and the last she saw of her assailant it was headed toward the shore defeated.

She estimated the snake's length at fully six feet, but is unable to place it as any of the reptile species in the vicinity—blow, spotted adder, water, or rattle snake.—Ex.

CHELSEA—Last Friday evening an automobile driven by Leon Cushman collided with a horse and buggy owned by Wm. Long of Sylvan, and driven by his daughter, Mrs. Edna Gazely. The accident occurred near the home of Albert Eisler, and the buggy was a complete wreck. At the time of the wreck it was quite dark and neither vehicle displayed a light of any kind. Mrs. Gazely was quite badly bruised when she was thrown from the buggy, but her baby which she had in her arms escaped without injury. There is a law in this state that requires all vehicles on the public highway to display a light at night, but the law does not seem to be very generally observed.—Standard.
