THE PINCKNEY FIRE DEPARTMENT

Last week the fire engine and apparatus was installed in its new home on West Main Street.

The Fire Hall is now completed. It is a fine brick structure, an ornament to the village. No pains were spared to build the building right in every way, and the brick work, done by Ivan Richeson, of Stockbridge and the carpenter work done by Neal McClear of Gregory are of the kind that only thorough mechanics turn out.

The council committee in charge of the erection of the buildings is President C. L. Sigler, E. D. Capple and F. E. Weeks.

Two reservoirs have been completed and filled with water this week—one on William street and East Main and the other on Park street at Unadilla. These make four reservoirs completed the past season. The work was done by Street commissioner Wm. Kennedy Jr. They are built of reinforced concrete and will no doubt last indefinitely as Mr. Kennedy has put in only the best materials and taken great pains with the work.

Pinckney is perfectly justified in feeling proud of its fire department.

RICHARD D. ROCHE

Richard D. Roche, formerly of Pinckney, a prominent Howell attorney, died at his home in Howell, Friday November 18th. He had attended the banquet in honor of Marshal Foch at Detroit and was taken ill on his return home.

Upon examination he was found to have suffered from a ruptured blood-vessel caused by ulcers of the stomach. An operation was performed by Dr. Cassidy of Detroit assisted by Drs.

en but his death followed early Friday morning.

He was one of six brothers and three sisters, children of Richard and Alice Farrel Roche who came to Putnam township in the 50's from Ireland and settled on what was later known as the James Hearst farm, four miles north of Pinckney. The family later moved to the farm now occupied by Phillip Smith in Marion township where Richard was born. They later moved to the farm on the "table lands" now owned by Frank Haines.

He was educated in the schools in and around Pinckney and took up the study of law with L. E. Howlett while he was undersheriff for his brother, Malachy Roche, former sheriff of Livingston county.

He was admitted to the bar in 1899 and enjoyed an increasing and lucrative law practice since that time in various Michigan county courts and the supreme court. He was Justice of Peace in Howell for many years and was secretary of the Livingston County Fair Association, which has grown from a small beginning to a big success under his management.

As a public speaker he was an orator of exceptional ability, in constant demand throughout the state.

Six years ago he was married to Miss Norma Culver of Howell who died about a year after their marriage. Two years ago he married Miss Cora Perry of Howell, who with his little son, Richard Jr. survive him.

His sisters are Mrs. William Ledwidge of Anderson, Mrs. Michael Lavoy of Pinckney and Mrs. Eugene McClear of Whitmore Lake. The brothers are, Malachy of Fowlerville, James of Pinckney, Michael and William of Anderson and Dr. Andrew Roche of Calumet.

The funeral services were held in St. Joseph Catholic Church at Howell Monday morning. It was very largely attended, among those present were Judge Collins of this district and many of the legal fraternity from different parts of the state. Many law organizations sent floral offerings.

The burial was at Mt. Olivet cemetery, Howell.

RED CROSS NOTES

Last week Dr. Pierce and assistants examined the pupils of Pinckney public schools.

Large per cent of the pupils examined were found to have defective teeth. Only twenty-six of the 130 examined were 10 per cent or more under weight. A much better record than is found in the majority of schools on mal-nutrition.

Brushing the teeth every day, Surely saves them from decay

C. H. KENNEDY

NICE JUICY TURKEY may be a powerful incentive to Thanksgiving, yet is not necessary when there is genuine appreciation of the real blessings of the year.

His Highness

GIVING THANKS may be made so formal that the Almighty doubts the existence of gratitude. It was the poor Publican's prayer that was commended to us all.

WHAT WOULD THE DAY BE WITHOUT A BIRD LIKE THIS TO GRACE THE BOARD?

Thanksgiving Should Mean More Than Mere Feeling of Gratitude for Favors

It is to be regretted that the beautiful and appropriate custom of observing a day of Thanksgiving has become associated with an abundance of material things. If crops have been bountiful, if the harvest has been great, if there has been an overflow of the "good" things of earth, and if the times have been peaceful, reasons for thanksgiving are supposed to increase correspondingly.

There is something in the outward tradition of Thanksgiving that would appear to justify this stressing of the importance of material things; but there is also something in the real Thanksgiving that would demand the stressing of other things, demand the placing of emphasis upon spiritual matters rather than upon conditions which pertain solely to the physical well being of man.

The real Thanksgiving demands a feeling of deep appreciation for whatever has come, the acceptance "with equal thanks" of the good fortune or the bad fortune of previous months. This Thanksgiving is essentially an internal thing—it can be observed regardless of what one had for dinner that day, and its observance is an affair that should be open to the rich and the poor of the earth.

It may well be that some, on this day of taking stock and expressing gratitude for blessings, can find little of good that has come to them as the world counts good. But these are the ones for whom Thanksgiving may hold the deepest reality. These may say: "Lord, for life, its love, its hope, its interest, its opportunity for service; for the great and durable satisfactions of living that center about home and work; for deep and abiding memories of joy that bereavement has brought into sharp relief; for all these blessings may I be truly thankful."

To this prayer may be added by those in prosperity: "And may I be mindful lest in the excess of good things I become self-centered and forget my obligations to my fellow men."

Pessimism Has No Place in the Real Spirit of Thanksgiving

After having devoted so much of our time to bemoaning the misfortunes that have come to us as a people during the past year, it will do us good on this Thanksgiving day to stop and look at the other side of the ledger and cast up the account of the good things that have come to us.

Our situation admittedly has not been as favorable in many respects as we could desire. We have had problems and difficulties which naturally aroused dissatisfaction and discontent. We have been feeling mighty sorry for ourselves.

Perhaps Thanksgiving occasion could bring no greater blessing to us as a people than to readjust our perspective and displace pessimism with a new spirit of optimism.

Before we enter into the true spirit of the day it is necessary to put away our hatreds, our grouches and discontents and center our thoughts upon the blessings that have come. If one would give thanks he must realize the fact of having been blessed, and in doing so he minimizes the misfortunes he has experienced. The pessimist is in no position to give thanks. The spirit of optimism will possess us to the extent that we are able to give thanks in spirit and in truth to the Giver of All Good Gifts today.

For the fact remains that, in spite of our difficulties, we are the most prosperous and the most favorably situated nation on the earth and that we have more reasons for contentment and gratitude than any other people.

This Thanksgiving day, if observed in the spirit of those who inaugurated it, is capable of lifting the spirit and thought of the American people to new heights and of ushering in a new era of contentment and happiness. Thanksgiving day comes to mean today not only an occasion when we may express our gratitude to the Most High for His care and kindness in the past, but likewise a time when by marshaling our blessings before us we are inspired with new hope and courage for the future.

Cranberries Always Have Played Prominent Part at Thanksgiving Feast

It is a tradition in Plymouth that the eating of turkey and cranberry sauce on Thanksgiving day goes back to the first Pilgrim Thanksgiving.

That little band of self-exiled, devoted Christians crossed the stormy sea in the Mayflower and landed at Plymouth Rock on December 21, 1620. Their first winter in the New World was one of great suffering, marked with famine and hardships.

Governor Bradford, in his account of the Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving, does not give a menu of the dinner, but he often refers to the wild turkeys as one of the luxuries of the colony. However, John Josslyn, an English traveler and naturalist, who visited New England in 1638 and wrote an account of its "Rarities," says: "Cranberry or bearberry (because bears used much to feed upon them) is a small trailing plant that grows in salt marshes that are overgrown with moss. The Indians and English use them much, boiling them with sugar for sauce to eat with their meat."

That cranberries belong to the traditional Pilgrim dinner is shown by the menu of the "decent repast" served at the first "Celebration of the Landing of Our Forefathers," which was observed on December 22, 1769. This day was celebrated by the Old Colony club of Plymouth with a procession and a dinner consisting of a large baked Indian whortleberry pudding, a dish of sauetach (succotash), a dish of clams, a dish of oysters and a dish of codfish, a haunch of venison, roasted by the first jack brought into the colony; a dish of fowl, cranberry tarts, a dish of fresh fish and eels, an apple pie, a course of cheese made in the old colony. These articles were dressed in the plainest manner (all appearance of luxury, whose memory we shall ever respect).

Turkey, succotash and cranberries still play their part in the Thanksgiving dinners in Plymouth, and five grains of parched corn are laid beside each place in remembrance of the early years of famine.

MARKET REPORT

FURNISHED BY U. S. BUREAU OF MARKETS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

(For the week ending November 17, 1921)

Grain. Markets unsettled during the week. Advances were influenced by improvement in milling and export demand, advance in sterling exchange and strength in stock and cotton markets. Declines were due to liquidation and lack of support. Corn very firm the last three days on brisk demand from seaboard. Wheat export and milling demand quiet. Closing prices in Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat $1.23; No. 2 hard winter wheat $1.06; No. 2 mixed corn 50¢; No. 2 yellow corn 48¢; No. 2 white oats 35 1-2¢. For the week Chicago December wheat up half cent closing at $1.05 3-8; Chicago December corn up 2¢ at 48¢; Minneapolis December wheat down 1-4¢ at 77¢; Winnipeg December wheat unchanged at $1.02 3-8; Chicago May wheat closed at $1.08 1-4; Chicago May corn 53 1-2¢; Minneapolis May wheat $1.14 3-4; Kansas City May wheat $1.00 5-8; Winnipeg May wheat $1.06 1-2. Average price to farmers in central Iowa for No. 2 mixed corn about 34¢; to farmers in central North Dakota for No. 1 dark northern wheat $1.00 3-4; to farmers in central Kansas for No. 2 hard winter wheat 90¢.

Hay. Eastern hay markets continue dull but prices are fairly steady. No. 1 Timothy quoted November 16: New York $28, Philadelphia $21, Cincinnati $19.75, Chicago $23, Atlanta $25.50; No. 1 Alfalfa Memphis $24, Kansas City $20; No. 1 Prairie Chicago $17.50, Minneapolis $15, Kansas City $12.50.

Feed. Mill feed offerings light. Demand slow. Prices irregular in distributing markets, firm in western markets. Holders asking higher prices but find difficulty in making sales. Production of corn feeds good, offerings well taken. Glutens being quoted $1 higher. Alfalfa meal dull. Stocks generally good. Quoted November 16: Bran $14.25, middlings $15.25, flour middlings $22, Minneapolis; 35 percent cottonseed meal $33 Memphis; white hominy feed $19.50 St. Louis, $21 Chicago; gluten $25.50 Chicago; linseed meal $38 Minneapolis; No. 1 alfalfa meal $16.50, Kansas City.

Live Stock and Meats. Chicago hog prices declined 50¢ to 65¢ per 100 pounds during the week. Beef steers lost generally 25¢ to 30¢; butcher cows and heifers weak to 25¢ lower. November 17 Chicago prices: Hogs top $7; bulk of sales $6.50 to $7.75; medium and good beef steers $17.75 to $19.25; butcher cows and heifers $13 to $18.75; feeder steers $4.50 to $6.40; light and medium weight veal calves $5 to $8; fat lambs $8.25 to $9; feeding lambs $7.50 to $9.40; yearlings $5.50 to $7.50; fat ewes $2 to $4.25.

Eastern wholesale fresh meat prices indicated mixed movements. Beef, lamb and mutton advanced while veal and pork were weak to lower. November 17 prices good grade meats: Beef $12 to $15; veal $14 to $17; lamb $20 to $22; mutton $10 to $12; light pork loins $17 to $20; heavy loins $15 to $18.

Fruits and Vegetables. Cabbage markets assumed a strong upward tone during the week. Supplies limited. Demand moderate. New York Dutch type up to $2.15 in eastern city markets at $2.50 per ton. Bulk up $10 to $12.

Butter market easy. Receipts lighter and production increasing as cold weather approaches. Imports include small quantities from Denmark, Ireland and Canada. Argentine butter exports in December and New Zealand now being offered.

Closing prices 92 score: New York 45¢; Philadelphia 46¢; Boston 46¢; Chicago 44¢.

We may excuse him only because he has been penned up in public eating places for so many years that he has lost all sense of proportion and lacks facts for comparison. American women have not forgotten how to cook. Their good, wholesome, well-prepared food for home dining room feeds, and feeds amazingly well, 80 per cent of the population. So general is good home cooking that every man forced by circumstances to get his meals at public places regards himself as unfortunate because he cannot always eat at home, or at somebody else's home. The Block Signals Are Working— In some respects, human experience is like railroading. Every moment of the business and social day the block signals are giving right of way to keenness and alertness—while the slow and the heavy must wait on the sidetrack for their chance to move forward. The ability to "go through" and to "get there" depends much on the poise of body, brain and nerves that comes with correct diet and proper nourishment. Toomsboro, Ga.—"I suffered terribly with backache and headache all the time, was so weak and nervous I didn't know what to do, and could not do my work. My trouble was deficient and irregular periods. I read in the papers what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and decided to give it a trial. I got good results from its use so that I am now able to do my work. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to mine and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. C. F. PHILLIPS, Toomsboro, Ga.

Weak, nervous women make unhappy homes, their condition irritates both husband and children. It has been said that nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous despondency, "the blues," irritability and backache arise from some displacement or derangement of a woman's system. Mrs. Phillips' letter clearly shows that no other remedy is so successful in overcoming this condition as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

ALL with its garnered harvests, reminds us of Thanksgiving day—both the feast that has become a national fixture and the thanks that should form no small part of the observance of the holiday. And Thanksgiving reminds us of the Pilgrims of the Mayflower and the tercentenary observances that have lapped over into 1921.

To listen to the proud descendants of the Pilgrims and to see the relics and furniture that "came over in the Mayflower" is to smile. As a matter of fact records and relics of the Pilgrims are much like angels' visits. For instance, Governor William Bradford's "History of the Pilmoth Plantation" and "Mour's Relation," supposed to have been written by Bradford and Edward Winslow to friends in England, contain the only accounts of the Mayflower's voyage. It was not until 1855 that Americans discovered that the complete manuscript of Governor Bradford's history was reposing in a London library. It was published in 1856 for the first time. How it came back to Massachusetts is told later.

captain—"Master Jones." Some historians say that he was one Christopher Jones and a trustworthy man; others hold that he was Capt. Thomas Jones, a sort of retired pirate. There is no authentic record of the accommodations of the Mayflower and no exact description of the vessel. Some believe she was at one time a slave. In fact the historians get the first authoritative evidence that the name of the vessel of the Pilgrims was "Mayflower" from the "Allotment of Lands," an official document drawn up at Plymouth in March, 1623.

It is thought that the group of autographs at the upper left, includes all the known signatures of those who came in the Mayflower, except that of Dorothy May, who was then the wife of William Bradford. Resolved White was then but a child and Peregrine White was not born until the Mayflower had reached Cape Cod harbor.

The portrait of Governor Edward Winslow is the only authentic likeness of any of the Mayflower Pilgrims. It was painted in England in 1651, when Winslow was 56. It has been several times engraved. The original, once the property of Isaac Winslow, is now deposited in the gallery of the Pilgrim Society at Plymouth.

Contrary to the popular belief the actual relics of the Mayflower Pilgrims are few. It is believed that the celebrations of the tercentenary in America, England and Holland have brought to light some new records and relics, the authenticity of which will stand the closest investigation.

An undoubted autograph of John Robinson, pastor of the Pilgrims in Leyden, is one of the relics that has been unearthed. It was found in Leyden by Dr. Eekhof among the notarial papers in the city's archives.

John Robinson, as every American should know, was the pastor of the little group of religious radicals who first gathered at Scrooby, England, about 1606 and later became known to history as the Pilgrims. From Scrooby they went to Amsterdam and then to Leyden. When they decided to go to America the question was: How many would go and who? It was decided that Robinson should lead them, if the majority voted to go. If the majority voted not to go, William Brewster was to lead those who went. The majority voted not to go. Robinson never saw the New World. He died March 1, 1625, and was buried in Leyden.

Hitherto no wholly authenticated signature of John Robinson has been known. The two reproduced have been half-heartedly accepted by historians. The upper signature is given by Dr. H. M. Dexter in "Congregationalism as Seen in Its Literature" (1880) as from a book in the British museum, believed by the experts of that institution to have belonged to him. This book is a pamphlet, "A Perswasion to the English Recusants," by John Dove, D. D., printed in 1602. It is presumably by the same hand as the lower signature, which is upon the title page of Sir Edwin Sandys' "Relation of the State of Religion" (London, 1605), which belonged to the late Charles Deane of Cambridge. It was supposed that John Robinson once owned the treatise. Of the new authentic signature the London Graphic says:

"The Leyden deed signed by John Robinson, of whose autograph Dr. Eekhof is assured, refers to a debt acknowledged by Robinson, Thomas Brewer, and William Jepson—the latter being also well-known members of the Pilgrim community. Brewer possessed money and position, and, jointly with another, set up a printing press in Leyden. Jepson is described as a carpenter and merchant. They covenanted to pay seven hundred and forty-four guilders by a certain date. A later entry confirms the fact that the debt was discharged before the period mentioned. In the second document, dated a week before the Pilgrim fathers left Holland in the Speedwell, William Bradford authorized two of his friends who remained behind to collect one hundred carolus guilders which were owing to him as a mortgage by a Leyden citizen.

"Dr. Eekhof's discovery also disclosed the will of John Robinson's widow. This was drawn up eighteen years after the Pilgrim fathers' pastor had passed away. She remained in the city, and at the time of her death had four children, to whom she devised her belongings. To each and all she bestowed something of value. Her son Isaac had gone out to New England with the Pilgrims, had married and settled there. To his wife his mother bequeathed the long cloak and skirt of black cloth of apparel. To the son, who was a doctor in England, was given his father's Rhemish Testament.

"Dr. Ploof, of Leyden, and Dr. Rendel Harris, Ryland's library, Manchester, have also collaborated in other researches. They have issued a facsimile edition of those portions of and later of the marriage itself and the names of the officiating magistrates."

A document relating to William Bradford was also found by the Leyden professor, and these three created a sensation among those who had gathered at Leyden this summer to pay their tributes to the founders. In the Boston Transcript, George H. Sargent presents translations of these documents made by A. J. F. Van Laer, state archivist of New York, and authority on Dutch notarial documents. The task of translation was not easy, as it is said:

"The document which bears the Robinson signature is an acknowledgment of indebtedness, given by Brewer, Robinson, and Jepson in behalf of Selgneur Jehan de Lalaine for the sum of seven hundred and forty-four guilders, thirteen stivers, and three pence on account of several years' accumulated interest, the last due on May day, 1621. The three subscribers promise to pay this on May day, 1621, without further delay, this agreement being drawn up by the notary and signed on January 2, 1621, at his office on the Breestraet, in the presence of the notary's clerk, Jan Jacobsz, van Tethrode and Willem Cornelisz, Ket, a farm-or 'burymen' of the manor of Rijnsburck."

The late George Frisbie Hoar, United States Senator from Massachusetts and a descendant of Roger Sherman, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, tells in his "Autobiography of Seventy Years" (1903) how he recovered the history by William Bradford, the second governor, containing the Mayflower Compact. Just how it got to England nobody knows, but for more than a century it had reposed in the library of the bishop of London at Fulham palace. Senator Hoar armed himself with letters of introduction in 1896 and made a respectful demand on Dr. Temple, then bishop of London.

Dr. Temple agreed that the precious manuscript ought to be restored to American custody, but suggested that the request should be referred to the Archbishop of Canterbury and Queen Victoria. So Senator Hoar returned to America and inspired the drafting of a formal request for the return of the manuscript in the name of the antiquarian and historical societies. Dr. Temple had in the meantime become Archbishop of Canterbury and gave his assistance, with the result that the precious manuscript now reposes in the library of the state house of Massachusetts.

World's Greatest Tunnel

In the Simplon tunnel under the Alps, which is by far the greatest tunnel in the world, the quantity of water flowing out of the southern end, from the many veins encountered in the heart of the mountain, amounted to 15,000 gallons a minute, and furnished sufficient power to compress the air by which the drills were worked, and to refrigerate the tunnel. The necessity for refrigeration may be judged from the fact that the heat in the deeper parts of the tunnel rose as high as 140 degrees Fahrenheit when not artificially reduced.—Christian Science Monitor.

Semiramis' "Fleet."
We learn that Semiramis, Assyria's imperious queen, 1965 B. C., had a fleet of 3,000 ships, with which she conquered the fleet of Staurobarates, 4,000 strong, at the mouth of the Indus. But our wonder is abated when we learn that the fleet of Semiramis was carried on the backs of camels from the shores of Syria to the Indus banks. Those "ships" must have been smaller craft than now compete at Henley regatta, and the fleets of both monarchs could have been comfortably stored in the hold of one of Great Britain's present-day leviathan cargo boats. But the little rude ships of those far-off ages must not be despised. They were the seeds of an industry destined to be one of the greatest factors in the progress of civilization.—Whitehall Gazette.

Like This?

Dad was forty-five, well dressed, evidently all business. Son was fifteen or sixteen. Both were standing up on an East Tenth street car.
"Son, this fellow Ruths—Babe Ruths you call him—is he the mascot for the team?"
"No, dad," replied the lad with an embarrassed grim, "he's heavy hitter for the Yankees. What made you think he was a mascot?"
"Why, Babe, you know, Babe, I thought he was a little fellow. And what is it you say, 'Yank'?"
"No, dad, Yanks, Yanks." Then, after a moment, disgusted: "Say, dad, didn't you ever hear of John McGraw?"
"McGraws, McGraws. No, I can't remember that name."
The lad was visibly perturbed, and getting closer to dad, he whispered: "Say, dad, when we get home I'll slip it to you who some of these birds are so you will know next time."—Indianapolis News.

She Was Justified.

My new young man took me to call on his sister, who was married. I wanted to make a good impression, so dressed in my best dress and was on my best behavior.
Two brothers dropped in, and I overheard them say they "wanted to give Fred's girl the once over."

A four-year-old niece administered the finishing touch when she asked, in a voice that could be heard in the kitchen, "When you and Uncle Fred get married, may I be your flower girl?"
The brother grinned, brother-in-law in the kitchen howled, while I turned a most unbecoming red.

The youngster thought she'd waited long enough for an answer, so she said, "May I?"
I managed to say yes, and two years later we were, and she was.—Chicago Tribune.

The Key to Success Is Work— There Is no Substitute for It!

In order to do your best work, you must be healthy. You must sleep soundly at night, your nerves must be strong, steady and under perfect control.

If you are accustomed to drinking tea or coffee with your meals or between meals, you may be loading yourself with a very great handicap. Your nervous system may be stimulated beyond what is natural for you.

For tea and coffee contain their and caffeine. These are drugs as any doctor can tell you. They are known to irritate the nervous system by their action and to cause restlessness and insomnia, which prevent the proper recuperation of the vital forces.

If you want to be at your best, capable of doing the very best work that lies in you, why not stop drinking tea and coffee? Drink Postum, the rich, satisfying beverage made from scientifically roasted cereals.

Postum contains absolutely no drugs of any kind, but in flavor tastes much like rich coffee. It helps nerve and brain structure by letting you get sound restful sleep.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in package of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Ask your grocer for Postum. Sold everywhere.

NEIGHBORING NEWS

CHELSEA—The common council is considering the advisability of having the cement pavement covered with asphalt the coming year.

Mrs. M. Franklin has sold thirty acres of her farm, adjoining the farm known as the O'Connor place in Sylvan to the Star Commonwealth Company, of Albion. The property has a frontage on Cedar Lake and was purchased with the intention of establishing a orphan girl's home at that place. The erection of suitable buildings will possibly be started within the next year.

Officers of the association expect to start work on the track at once. The society has $20,000 on hand for the work and they have fair prospects of securing $8,000 more that will be used for the necessary improvements that are contemplated. Undoubtedly the society will hold a fair the coming fall.

Mrs. M. A. Glenn died Tuesday, November 15, 1921, at the home of her nephew, Rev. John Knapp, in Cincinnati. Mrs. Glenn was a former resident of Chelsea and well known in this vicinity. The remains will be brought here Friday morning. Burial in North Lake cemetery—Standard.

SOUTH LYON—While trapping on the former Palmer farm on the New Hudson road, Charles Birdsall found a gully in which were brush, cornstalks and lately moved earth, which gave him an impression of something having been recently buried. A deputy sheriff was notified and upon investigation found parts of an automobile. Next day two officers from Pontiac and two Detroit, with men to do the shoveling, unearthed a seven-passenger Willys-Knight sedan, which had been stripped of engine, tires, plate glass and all movable accessories. Officers and automobile clubs of Detroit and Pontiac are investigating the matter.

Wm. Balden Jr. and Lawrence Smith caught an opossum Nov. 10 on the Jas. O'Brien farm in Northfield township, Washtenaw county. The hide was presented to Walter Hastings who will give it to the University of Michigan to be put in the museum. The opossum weighed 7 1-2 pounds and was very rare species for Michigan. The writer of this is very fond of opossum, as it is—like the writer—a "southern product." An opossum dinner was enjoyed at "Tobe Bradley's" home Sunday.—Herald.

BRIGHTON—According to a report received here William Berlin was tracked by officers to his door after breaking into Paul Brogan's general store at Chilson. Neighbors heard some unusual noises at the store just after it had been closed Monday night and investigated just in time to see some one making a hasty escape down the railroad tracks. Officers were called and the tracks were easily traced to Berlin's door.

Ready to Consider Extra-Territorial Rights Which Appeared "Fair and Satisfactory."

Washington—Japan has joined with the other Powers in an expression of sympathy for the national aspirations of China, but added a postscript regretting any tendency toward a detailed examination by the Armament Conference into "innumerable minor matters" in the Far East.

In a statement omitting mention of specific points of controversy between the two countries, the Japanese delegation informed the Conference delegates that their government claimed no "special rights and privileges" in the procurement of raw materials from China, harbored no "policy of territorial aggrandizement" at China's expense, and was ready to join in any readjustment of extra-territorial rights which appeared "fair and satisfactory."

World Ready to Accept.

Washington—At the close of the first week of the Washington conference, how shall one summarize the progress of events?

Briefly the first week of the conference has demonstrated that the whole world is ready to accept a program of naval limitation such as Mr. Hughes, with daring courage, presented to the conference on the first day. By contrast, all the talk of modification and change in the relative strengths is "small beer."

TWIN SISTERS, IN LOVE WITH SAME MAN, DREW LOTS TO WIN OR DIE

Genoa.—The love tragedy of twin sisters who drew lots for death by poison became known recently in the Innsbruck courts when one of them was tried for murder. She was acquitted after she told her story.

The girls, daughters of a farmer named Goldheim, fell in love with a former Hungarian officer, who was unable to distinguish the girls and courted both, thinking he was always with the same sister.

The officer, when he realized the situation, asked the girls to decide which should marry him. They solved the problem by preparing a glass of water and a glass of poison. They drew lots and the loser drank and died. When the surviving sister was arrested, the officer disappeared.

NEW CLEW REVIVES MYSTERY

Ardith Monroe Names Prominent Man of Dowagiac as Slayer.

Kalamazoo—Did a widely known resident of Dowagiac club William Monroe and his wife and daughter, Neva, to death in their home at Dowagiac, two months ago, or is the belief that he did only a figment of the imagination, or the disordered dream of Ardith Monroe, 12 years old, the only survivor of the tragedy?

Two weeks ago Ardith, who is living with relatives here, named a prominent professional man of Dowagiac as the perpetrator. She was just then recovering from her own injuries, and her story was taken to be an illusion born of the strain she has been under. Her insistence, however, has led relatives to appeal to Cass county officials to arrest the man.

Sheriff Sherman H. Wyman of Cassopolis, assisted by Sheriff Putname of Kalamazoo, questioned the child here. They were not fully convinced by her story, but are investigating. The name of the accused man is being withheld. Absence of any motive has made the officials cautious in linking him with the crime.

LOOK FOR RATE CUT PROTEST

Other Roads May Oppose Ford's 3-Cent Per Mile Charge.

Lansing.—Whether or not the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroad, controlled by Henry Ford, will succeed in making a three-cent fare effective when other roads in Michigan are operating under a 3.8 cent fare is a question raised by members of the state public utilities commission.

Some time ago, when the utilities commission endeavored to secure an injunction to prevent the carriers in Michigan from charging 3.8 cents, the carriers succeeded in going over the state body and having the control of rates vested in the Interstate Commerce Commission. If the new schedule is not protested, it will go into effect and the D. T. & I. will be the only steam road in the state operating on a three-cent basis.

FOUR NEW COMMITTEES NAMED

Administrative Board Divided into Permanent Committees.

Lansing.—Four new permanent committees of the State Administrative Board have been appointed. They are:

Emergency—Auditor-General Fuller, Highway Commissioner Rogers and State Treasurer Gorman.

Budget—Secretary of State Deland, Auditor-General Fuller and Attorney-General Wiley.

Institutions—Attorney-General Wiley, Superintendent of Public Instruction Johnson and Secretary of State Deland.

Accounts and Purchases—State Treasurer Gorman, Highway Commissioner Rogers and Superintendent Johnson.

Gov. Groesbeck is ex-officio member of each committee.

SIX POSTAL VACANCIES IN STATE

Positions to be Filled Jan. 24, Commission Announces.

Washington.—Six more Michigan postoffices are in a new list of vacancies issued by the postmaster general, all to fall vacant January 24 next. With the salaries, the offices are: Bad Axe, $2,500; Boyne City, $2,400; Grand Ledge, $2,400; Petoskey, $3,000; Rochester, $2,300; Three Oaks, $2,400.

The civil service commission announces an open competitive examination to fill each vacancy.

Sues D. U. R. for $50,000.

Pontiac, Mich.—The D. U. R. is defending a damage action in circuit court here in which $50,000 damages are asked by Eliza Kurtz, who claims the loss of use of a leg from an accident in Detroit a year ago. A. D. U. R. car backed into the automobile in which Kurtz was riding. Doctors called by the defense claim Kurtz suffered from a tubercular condition in the leg as a boy, and allege it is responsible for loss of use of the member now.

PARENTS' SLAYER BEGINS SENTENCE

CHAMPLAIN GIVEN LIFE TERM IN STATE PRISON FOR DOUBLE CRIME.

GIRL'S FAITH CAUSED QUARREL

Prisoner Tells Warden Stepmother Stirred Father to Keep After Him Continually.

Saginaw—The doors of Jackson prison closed on Richard Champlain, 22-year-old Hemlock boy, Saturday morning, and for the rest of his natural life at hard labor he will atone for shooting and burning his mother and father, wealthy and highly respected farm couple, at the farm home near Hemlock, on Nov. 14.

The departure of Champlain from Saginaw was without event. The day fitted into the picture. It was raining and cold. "Dick" was up at 5 o'clock, ate a hearty breakfast and was at the depot at 6 o'clock. His sister Frances and her husband, only relatives living here, bade him an affectionate farewell.

Clara A. Humpert, "Dick's" school teacher sweetheart, didn't show up to bid him good bye.

Parents' Religious Intolerance Blamed.

Jackson.—Conflicting religious beliefs was given by Richard A. Champlain, in a statement after entering Jackson prison, as the real reason why he had killed his father and stepmother and burned their bodies in their home near Hemlock.

In answer to a question by Warden Hulbert, Champlain declared that his real mother was a Roman Catholic, and that he had been christened in that faith. He said that his mother had died when he was 3 years old, and that his father married again.

Questioned further, he stated: "Two years ago my sister was married to a Roman Catholic boy. My father, because she did this, disinherited her. My stepmother kept nagging him, and I believe she was responsible for the disinheriting of my sister. I have had several sweethearts. But three weeks ago I met Clara Humpert. I loved her. I do Saginaw.—The badly mutilated bodies of William Van Valkenburg, 55 years old, and his wife, who was 50, were found on the Pere Marquette right of way, near Hoyt Station, five miles from Saginaw. It is believed they were struck by a freight train. A letter in the man's pocket indicated they had recently come from Detroit.

Grand Rapids.—The Michigan Cannery association elected the following officers: President, Harold Royal, Shelby; vice president, William McShing, South Haven; secretary-treasurer, A. R. Todd, Lansing; executive committee members, E. P. Dagget, Copersville, Walter Reid, Lake Odessa, and Hans Weigands, Traverse City.

Charlevoix.—Elver Sweet, 21 years old, charged with passing forged checks here Nov. 10, was returned to Ionia reformatory to complete a five-year term for robbery. He was convicted of robbery, in the circuit court here a year ago, sentenced to serve from six months to five years in Ionia. He was paroled after serving seven months.

Kalamazoo.—The sudden death of her husband, Otto Glen Martin, made his girl bride a widow, three weeks after their marriage. Martin was engaged in repairing a boiler at the Hawthorne Paper mill. He was about to emerge from the boiler, evidently after having had a premonition of his coming collapse, when he sank back dead. The coroner decided Martin died of heart failure.

Detroit.—Officials of the village of Oakwood appeared before the county election commission with a request that the November election be investigated. They complain that in the ballot on annexation with Detroit, which carried 303 to 249, more votes were cast than there are qualified voters in the village. The commission advised them that inasmuch as all who voted had registered, someone else should investigate, starting on the registration books.

Grand Rapids.—In its answer filed in United States district court yesterday, the House of David of Benton Harbor denies each allegation made by the expelled members, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hansel, in their suit to recover property turned over to the inmates and for compensation for services amounting to $69,000. Special denial is made of charges of immorality in the colony, brought by the Hansels, who are charged with attempts to break up the cult. Date for hearing has not been set on the defendant's motion to quash the case.

Kalamazoo.—Is a woman whose husband dies three weeks after their marriage entitled to his insurance, despite the fact his policy was left in the name of his former wife? That is the question the Kalamazoo County Circuit Court will have to decide between Mrs. Glenn Martin No. 1 and Mrs. Glenn Martin No. 2. Martin remarried three weeks after he divorced his first wife. No. 1 kept up the payments and the policy names her the beneficiary. No. 2 contends she is the beneficiary because she was Martin's wife at the time of his death.

Kalamazoo.—The boy ringleader of Kalamazoo's burglary league, Harry McCormick, 18 years old, and his chief lieutenant, Wilfred Blair, were taken to the state prison at Jackson to begin the sentences imposed by Circuit Judge Welmer McCormick was given five to fifteen years; Blair two to fifteen.

Coldwater.—Major George Turner, 82, former state adjutant general who served four years in the Civil war, died at his home here following a short illness. He was captain of Company A during the war, and also served as a member of the Michigan Soldiers' Home board for several years.

Kalamazoo.—Twelve days was long enough to break Mrs. William Spark's dream of a happy married life, according to the testimony presented in circuit court when the husband obtained a divorce. They lived together less than two weeks, constantly quarreling throughout their honeymoon, it was said. At the end of the 12 days the wife returned to her parents home and resumed her maiden name.

Lansing.—The cost of maintaining the Legion hospital at Camp Custer during the first few months of operation will be borne by the state, out of the war preparedness fund voted in 1917, according to a resolution passed by the state administrative board. The state's plan is to care for the necessary expenses of the institution until the legion welfare committee is able to provide funds of its own.

Hemlock.—Mr. and Mrs. Adria Champlain, well to do farmers living a short distance east of this village, were burned to death in a fire that destroyed their home. Fire apparatus from Hemlock and Merrill was called to the farm but was unable to do more than protect nearby buildings. The cause of the fire is not known. Richard Champlain, 22, son of the fire victims, saved himself by jumping from a second story window.

Flint.—Plans to establish a coal mine on the John Zimmerman farm on the Corunna road have been abandoned. Several months ago a rich vein of coal was discovered beneath the farm by geologists. The coal rights were by the Genesee Coal company. The company's lease expired September 1 and Mr. Zimmerman then leased the property to the school board. He says no further mining plans have been considered, although it may again be taken up in the future.

Grand Rapids.—Addressing the Kent county conference of social workers, prosecuting attorney Cornelius Hofius said: "It looks as though it were the beginning of the end of society when girls of 14 and 16 years of age will accept the attentions of any male who may accost them on the street, particularly if he has an automobile. The present laws are entirely inadequate to care for a vast number of the cases. Marital relationship and immorality cases compose the large part of my work and conditions that I see are appalling."

The automobile manufacturer and the inventor, in a conference here arranged to visit the big nitrate and power plant soon after Thanksgiving, when they will make a survey to determine how much it will cost the Government to complete the project so that Ford can take it over.

Ford came here direct from a bedside conference with Secretary Weeks in Washington last Friday. Major details of Ford's offer to buy Muscle Shoals were agreed upon at this conference.

END OF MEDICINAL BEER SEEN

Senate Votes 56 to 22 On Anti-Beer Bill; Up To President.

Washington.—Congressional action on legislation to prohibit the medical prescription of beer and other malt liquors was completed, Nov. 18, through adoption by the senate, 56 to 22, of the conference report.

The legislation, which would also put additional "teeth" in the nation's prohibition enforcement code, now goes to the president, the house having acted last August. Twelve Republicans and 10 Democrats voted against the conference report.

HOUSE VOTES HIGHER SURTAX

50 Per Cent Rate Passed Despite Harding Compromise Offer.

Washington.—Disregarding the expressed wish of President Harding, the house voted, 201 to 173, to accept the senate amendment to the tax revision bill fixing the maximum income surtax rate at 50 per cent on incomes of $200,000 or more.

Ninety-four Republicans, most of them from the middle and far west, joined with the practically solid democratic minority in supporting the amendment.

WOODWORTH JOB TO HARTMAN

Governor Makes Appointment for Ford and Drug Department.

Lansing.—William F. Hartman, of Grand Rapids, secretary of the Western Michigan Development bureau, has been appointed by Governor Groesbeck to succeed Fred Woodworth as head of the state food and drug department. Woodworth was recently appointed federal internal revenue collector, with headquarters at Detroit.

Ask Employes to Accept Cut.

Philadelphia.—The Pennsylvania railroad will hold joint conferences with its employes in the near future to ask them to accept wage cuts without referring the matter to the railroad board. In a letter to all employes, President Samuel Rea of the system, declares: "In many cases shippers are unable to pay the present rates." Mr. Rea said, "and we cannot cut the tariffs unless we slash our pay roll, which makes up more than half the transportation costs."

5,556 Barrels of Wine Seized.

New York.—Wine supposedly manufactured for sacramental purposes, and valued at more than a half million dollars, was seized when 14 federal prohibition agents descended upon a winery in East Third street, confiscated 5,556 barrels of the fermented liquor, and arrested six men for violating the Volstead Act.

Envoy to Russia Recalled.

Riga.—Former Governor Goodrich, of Indiana, who went to Russia two months ago as a special investigator for Herbert Hoover, chairman of the American relief administration, has been recalled by cable and asked to return to America to report immediately of Hoover concerning latest Russian famine conditions.

"Big Tim" Given Six Years.

Chicago.—"Big Tim" Murphy, former state representative, gang leader and president of the gas workers and street sweepers' unions, was sentenced to six years in Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $30,000, by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis for his part in planning the $360,000 Dearborn station mail robbery last April.

Claims Wife Misrepresented Age.

Grand Rapids.—Fred Harrington won a divorce in superior court from Mrs. Pearl Harrington because his wife claimed to be only 21 when they obtained their marriage license, although she was 26 at the time and because she failed to tell him she had been twice previously married and was the mother of children.

Returns $5,186 And Is Released.

Cleveland.—Miss Mary Tracy, 21 years old, was freed in police court when she turned over to her former employer $5,186, alleged to have been stolen by her while she acted as ticket seller for a movie theater owned by Sam Deutch, well known fight promoter. Deutch told the court he was unwilling to prosecute.

Bank Vault Door Burned Off.

Muncie, Ind.—George Banning, merchant in the village of Oakville, 10 miles south of here, was compelled to stand with his hands above his head while four robbers with an acetylene torch burned the door off the vault in the Farmers' State bank. Three thousand dollars in Liberty Bonds and a small amount of cash were obtained.

Would "Cover" Magazine Girl.

Lewisburg, Pa.—More "cover" on the magazine cover girl is wanted by women of the Lewisburg Civic Club. Those maidens of fair face and form who regularly adorn the covers of the most popular and even the home type of publications are forced, the women charge, to appear before public gaze with a shameful lack of clothing. The club members assert that this display of shapeliness in bathing suits and other negligee attire "does not conform to our ideas of modesty."

cially would be also. When my parents learned that I was courting a girl of another faith, my stepmother began to keep after my father about it, all the time stirring him up and goading him on.

"Kept At Me and At Me." "Monday evening the row began in earnest at the supper table. My stepmother kept at it and at it and at it. Then my father kept at me and at me and a me. It was not the sight of blood in France, as I told the Saginaw officers and newspaper men, that stirred me at this moment; it was solely because my stepmother was so bitter against the religious faith of my real mother. I got up from the table, and, securing a revolver, I returned to the table, first shot down my father through the heart, then my mother."

ANOTHER CHANGE MADE AT M.A.C.

Addison M. Brown, Secretary, Requested by Board to Resign.

Lansing.—Addison M. Brown, secretary and controlling influence at the Michigan Agricultural College for several years, has resigned at the request of the state board of agriculture. His resignation is to be effective January 1, which is the day of the beginning of the new regime at the college and the inauguration of David Friday as president.

The board of agriculture elected L. Whitney Watkins, of Manchester, as its chairman, to succeed William H. Wallace of Saginaw. Mr. Watkins also was selected as chairman of a committee to select and recommend a successor to Mr. Brown. He is to choose the other two members of the committee.

These two acts of the board of agriculture signalize the transfer of authority at the college to the farmers of the state after a political battle of many years' duration.

FLOOD MENACES TERRE HAUTE

Residents of City Flee Homes When Wabash Overflows.

Terre Haute, Ind.—Many families in the lowlands of the city were forced to flee from their homes and the entire western part of the city was threatened with inundation, as the waters of the Wabash river overflowed its banks early Sunday. The river reached a stage of 16.8 feet.

He quoted the actor as saying: "I was continually beaten and slapped and my life made uncomfortable. I never knew when she would attack me. I shall charge extreme cruelty in my suit."

Bull-Dog Drummond

The Adventures of a Demobilized Officer Who Found Peace Dull

By Cyril McNeile

"THOSE DEVILS."

Synopsis.—In December, 1918, four men gather in a hotel in Berne and hear one of the quartet outline a plan to paralyze Great Britain and at the same time seize world power. The other three, Hocking, American, and Steinman and Von Gratz, Germans, all providing another man, Hiram Potts, an American, is taken in. The instigator of the plot gives his name as Comte de Guy, but when he leaves for England with his daughter he decides to use the name Carl Peterson. Capt. Hugh (Bull-Dog) Drummond, a retired officer, advertises for work that will give him excitement, signing "X." As a result he meets Phyllis Benton, a young woman who answered his ad. She tells him of strange murders and robberies of which she suspects a band headed by Peterson.

"Admiring my treasures?" he remarked. "Pretty things, aren't they? I couldn't speak a word: I just put them back on the table."
"Wonderful copies," he went on, "of the duke of Meibourne's lost miniatures. I think they would deceive most people."
"They deceived me, I managed to get out."
"All the time he was staring at me, a cold, merciless stare that seemed to freeze my brain. Then he went over to one of the safes and unlocked it. 'Come here, Miss Benton,' he said. 'There are a lot more—copies.'
"I only looked inside for a moment, but I have never seen or thought of such a sight. Beautifully arranged on black velvet shelves were ropes of pearls, a gorgeous diamond tiara, and a whole heap of loose, uncut stones. And in one corner I caught a glimpse of the most wonderful gold chaliced cup—just like the one for which Samuel Lory, the Jew moneylender, was stared at me in silence."
"All copies," he said quietly, "wonderful copies. And should you ever be tempted to think otherwise—ask your father, Miss Benton. Be warned by me: don't do anything foolish. Ask your father first."
"And did you?" asked Drummond. She shuddered. "That very evening," she answered, "and daddy flew into a frightful passion, and told me never to dare to meddle in things that didn't concern me again. Then gradually, as time went on, I realized that Lakington had some hold over daddy—that he'd got my father in his power." Her hands were clenched, and her breast rose and fell stormily.

Drummond waited for her to compose herself before he spoke again. "You mentioned murder, too," he remarked.
She nodded. "I've got no proof," she said, "less even than over the burglaries. But there was a man called George Dringer, and one evening, when Lakington was dining with us, I heard him discussing this man with daddy."
"He's got to go," said Lakington. "He's dangerous!"
"And then my father got up and closed the door; but I heard them arguing for half an hour. Three weeks later a coroner's jury found that George Dringer had committed suicide while temporarily insane. The same evening daddy, for the first time in his life, went to bed the worse for drink." The girl fell silent, and Drummond stared at the orchestra with troubled eyes. Things seemed to be rather queer than he had anticipated.
"Then there was another case," she

"Admiring My Treasures?" He Remarked. "Pretty Things, Aren't They?"

By the name of Irma," said the girl briefly. "She lies on a sofa in the garden and yawns. She's no more English than that waiter."
A faint smile flickered over her companion's face; he had formed a fairly vivid mental picture of Irma. Then he grew serious again.
"And what is it that makes you think there's mischief ahead?" he asked abruptly.
The girl shrugged her shoulders. "What the novelists call feminine intuition, I suppose," she answered. "That—and my father." She said the last words very low. "He hardly ever sleeps at night now; I hear him pacing up and down his room—hour after hour, hour after hour. Oh! it makes me mad. . . . Don't you understand? I've got to get him away from those devils, before he breaks down completely."
Drummond nodded, and looked away. While she had been speaking he had made up his mind what course to take, and now, having outstayed everybody else, he decided that it was time for the interview to cease. Already an early diner was having a cocktail, while Lakington might return at any moment. And if there was anything in what she had told him, it struck him that it would be as well for that gentleman not to find them together.
"I think," he said, "we'd better go. My address is 60A Half Moon street; my telephone 1234 Mayfair. If anything happens, if ever you want me—at any hour of the day or night—ring me up or write. If I'm not in, leave a message with my servant Denny. He is absolutely reliable. The only other thing is your own address."
"The Larches, near Godalming," answered the girl, as they moved toward the door. "Oh! if you only knew the glorious relief of feeling one's got some one to turn to. . . ." She looked at him with shining eyes, and Drummond felt his pulse quicken suddenly.
"May I drop you anywhere?" he asked, as they stood on the pavement, but she shook her head.
"No, thank you. I'll go in that taxi." She gave the man an address, and stepped in, while Hugh stood bare-headed by the door.
"Don't forget," he said earnestly. "Any time of the day or night. And while I think of it—we're old friends. Can that be done? In case I come and stay, you see."
She thought for a moment and then nodded her head. "All right," she answered. "We've met a lot in London during the war."
With a grinding of gear wheels the taxi drove off, leaving Hugh with a vivid picture imprinted on his mind of blue eyes, and white teeth, and a skin like the bloom of a sun-kissed peach.
For a moment or two he stood staring after it, and then he walked across to his own car. With his mind still full of the interview he drove slowly along Piccadilly, while every now and then he smiled grimly to himself. Was the whole thing an elaborate hoax? Somehow deep down in his mind, he wondered whether it was a joke—whether, by some freak of fate, he had stumbled on one of those strange mysteries which up to date he had regarded as existing only in the realms of dime novels.

He turned into his rooms, and stood in front of the mantelpiece taking off his gloves. It was as he was about to lay them down on the table that an envelope caught his eye, addressed to him in an unknown hand-writing. Mechanically he picked it up and opened it. Inside was a single half-sheet of notepaper, on which a few lines had been written in a small, neat hand.
"There are more things in heaven and earth, young man, than a capability for eating steak and onions, and a desire for adventure. I imagine that you possess both; and they are useful assets in the second locality mentioned by the poet. In heaven, however, one never knows—especially with regard to the onions. Be careful."
Drummond stood motionless for a moment, with narrowed eyes. Then he leaned forward and pressed the bell.
"Who brought this note, James?" he said quietly, as his servant came into the room.
"A small boy, sir. Said I was to be sure and see you got it most particular." He unlocked a cupboard near the window and produced a tautalms. "Whisky, sir, or cocktail?"
"Whisky, I think, James." Hugh carefully folded the sheet of paper and placed it in his pocket. And his face as he took the drink from his man would have left no doubt in an onlooker's mind as to why, in the past, he had earned the name of "Bull-Dog" Drummond.

"Personally, sir, I prefer a picture-palace. But I suppose there ain't no accounting for 'obbies. May I clear away, sir?"
"No, James, not at present. Keep quite still while I go on, or I shall get it wrong. Three months ago there arrived at The Elms, the most dangerous man in England—the IT of ITS. This gentleman goes by the name of Peterson, and he owns a daughter. From what Miss Benton said, I have doubts about that daughter, James." He rose and strolled over to the window. "Grave doubts. However, to return to the point, it appears that some unpleasant conspiracy is being launched by IT, the IT of ITS, and the doubtful daughter, into which Papa Benton has been unwillingly drawn. As far as I can make out, the suggestion is that I should unravel the tangled skein of crime and extricate papa."
In a spasm of uncontrollable excitement James sucked his teeth. "Lumme, it wouldn't 'aif go on the

"Will nothing move you, James?" remarked his master plaintively. "This man murders people and does things like that, you know."
"Personally, sir, I prefer a picture-palace. But I suppose there ain't no accounting for 'obbies. May I clear away, sir?"
"No, James, not at present. Keep quite still while I go on, or I shall get it wrong. Three months ago there arrived at The Elms, the most dangerous man in England—the IT of ITS. This gentleman goes by the name of Peterson, and he owns a daughter. From what Miss Benton said, I have doubts about that daughter, James." He rose and strolled over to the window. "Grave doubts. However, to return to the point, it appears that some unpleasant conspiracy is being launched by IT, the IT of ITS, and the doubtful daughter, into which Papa Benton has been unwillingly drawn. As far as I can make out, the suggestion is that I should unravel the tangled skein of crime and extricate papa."
In a spasm of uncontrollable excitement James sucked his teeth. "Lumme, it wouldn't 'aif go on the movies, would it?" he remarked. "Better than them Red Indians and things."

"I fear, James, that you are not in the habit of spending your spare time at the British museum, as I hoped," said Drummond. "And your brain doesn't work very quickly. The point is not whether this hideous affair is better than Red Indians and things—whether it's genuine. Am I to battle with murderers, or shall I find a house party roaring with laughter on the lawn?"
"As long as you laughs like 'ell yourself, sir, I don't see as 'ow it makes much odds," answered James. "The first sensible remark you've made this morning," said his master hopefully. "I will go prepared to laugh."
He picked up a pipe from the mantelpiece, and proceeded to fill it, while James Denny waited in silence. "A lady may ring up today," Drummond continued. "Miss Benton, to be exact. Don't say where I've gone, if she does; but take down any message, and write it to me at Godalming postoffice. If by any chance you don't hear from me for three days, get in touch with Scotland Yard, and tell 'em where I've gone. That covers everything if it's genuine. If, on the other hand, it's a hoax, and the house-party is a good one, I shall probably want you to come down with my evening clothes and some more kit."
"Very good, sir. I will clean your small Colt revolver at once."
Hugh Drummond paused in the act of lighting his pipe, and a grin spread slowly over his face. "Excellent," he said. "And see if you can find that water-squirt pistol I used to have—Son of a Gun, they called it. That ought to raise a laugh, when I arrest the murderer with it."

TWO.

The 30 h.p. two-seater made short work of the run to Godalming. As Drummond thought of the two guns rolled up carefully in his pajamas—the harmless toy and the wicked little automatic—he grinned gently to himself. The girl had not rung him up during the morning, and after a comfortable lunch at his club, he had started about three o'clock. The hedges, fresh with the glory of spring, flashed past; the smell of the country came sweet and fragrant on the air. There was a gentle warmth, a balminess in the day that made it good to be alive, and once or twice he sang under his breath through sheer light-heartedness of spirit. Surrounded by the peaceful beauty of the fields, with an occasional village half hidden by great trees from under which the tiny houses peeped out, it seemed impossible that crime could exist—laughable. Of course the thing was a hoax, an elaborate leg-pull, but being not guilty of any mental subterfuge, Hugh Drummond admitted to himself quite truly that he didn't care a d—n if it was. Phyllis Benton was at liberty to continue the jest, wherever and whenever she liked. Phyllis Benton was a very nice girl, and very nice girls are permitted a lot of latitude.

A persistent honking behind aroused him from his reverie, and he pulled into the side of the road.
An open cream-colored Rolls-Royce drew level, with five people on board, and he looked up as it passed. There were three people in the back—two men and a woman, and for a moment his eyes met those of the man nearest him. Then they drew ahead, and Drummond pulled up to avoid the thick cloud of dust.
With a slight frown he stared at the retreating car; he saw the man lean over and speak to the other man; he saw the other man look around. Then a bend in the road hid them from sight, and still frowning, Drummond pulled out his case and lit a cigarette. For the man whose eye he had caught as the Rolls went by was Henry Lakington. There was no mistaking that hard-lipped, cruel face.
Presumably, thought Hugh, the other two occupants were Mr. Peterson and the doubtful daughter, Irma; Presumably they were returning to The Elms. And incidentally there seemed no pronounced reason why they shouldn't. But, somehow, the sudden appearance of Lakington had upset him; he felt irritable and annoyed. What little he had seen of the man he had not liked; he did not want to be reminded of him, especially just as he was thinking of Phyllis.
He watched the white dust-cloud rise over the hill in front as the car topped it; he watched it settle and drift away in the faint breeze. Then he let in his clutch and followed quite slowly in the big car's wake.
There had been two men in front—the driver and another, and he wondered idly if the latter was Mr. Denny. He accelerated up the hill and swung over the top; the next moment he braked hard and pulled up just in time. The Rolls, with the chauffeur peering into the bonnet, had stopped in such a position that it was impossible for him to get by.
The girl was still seated in the back of the car, also the passenger in front, but the two other men were standing in the road apparently watching the chauffeur, and after a while the one whom Drummond had recognized as Lakington came toward him. "I'm sorry," he began—and then passed in surprise. "Why, surely it's Captain Drummond!"

ly to change in a minute, as we've remarked. "I'm afraid I forgot to wave as you went past, but I got your smile all right. Are you likely to be long, because if so, I'll stop my engine."
The other man was now approaching casually, and Drummond regarded him casually. "A friend of our little Phyllis, Peterson," said Lakington, as he came up.
"Any friend of Miss Benton's is, I hope, ours," said Peterson with a smile. "You've known her a long time, I expect?"
"Quite a long time," returned Hugh. "We have jizzed together on many occasions."
"Which makes it all the more unfortunate that we should have delayed you," said Peterson. "I can't help thinking, Lakington, that that new chauffeur is a bit of a fool."
"I hope he avoided the crash all right," murmured Drummond politely.
Both men looked at him. "The crash!" said Lakington. "There was no question of a crash. We just stopped."
"Really," remarked Drummond. "I think, sir, that you must be right in your diagnosis of your chauffeur's mentality." He turned courteously to Peterson. "When something goes wrong, for a fellow to stop his car, by braking so hard that he locks both back wheels, is no bon, as we used to say in France. I thought, judging by the tracks in the dust, that you must have been in imminent danger of ramming a traction engine. I wonder if I could help your man?" he continued. "I'm a bit of an expert with a Rolls."
"How very kind of you," said Peterson. "I'll go and see." He went over to the man and spoke a few words.
"Isn't it extraordinary," remarked Hugh, "how the eye of the boss galvanizes the average man into activity. As long, probably, as Mr. Peterson had remained here talking, that chauffeur would have gone on tinkering with the engine. And now—look in a second—all serene. And yet I dare say Mr. Peterson knows nothing about it really. Just the watching eye, Mr. Lakington. Wonderful thing—the human optic."
He rambled on with a genial smile watching with apparent interest the car in front. "Who's the quaint bird sitting beside the chauffeur? He appears to me immensely. Wish to heaven I'd had a few more like him in France to turn into snipers."
"May I ask why you think he would have been a success at the job?" Lakington's voice expressed merely perfunctory interest, but his cold, steely eyes were fixed on Drummond.

Drummond gets busy and forces the fighting.

Ancients Knew of Compressed Air. The principle of compressed air was known to the ancients, having been experimented with by Hero, who lived from 284 to 221 B. C. The compressed air pump was invented by Otto von Guericke of Magdeburg, in 1654.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Hurry, mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.
Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Fed at Last. He was the most down-and-out looking specimen of a tramp who had applied at the back door of this particular farmhouse for many a year. The housewife viewed him with disgust.
"My goodness!" she exclaimed. "I don't believe you've washed yourself for a year."
"Just about that," agreed the hobo. "You see, I only washes before I eats."

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.
Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.
Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.
However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmor & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Choice of Evils. For a long time a beggar occupied a position in the street with a "blind" placard on his breast. One day the benevolent Mrs. Holmsterna finds him with the word "dumb" on his money box. She looks at him in surprise.

From your blindness?"
"Not exactly, but I got too many trouser buttons."—Kansas City Star.

Cuticura Soothes Baby Rash. That itchy and burn with hot baths of Cuticura Soap followed by gentle anointments of Cuticura Ointment. Nothing better, purer, sweeter, especially if a little of the fragrant Cuticura Talcum is dusted on at the finish. 25c each everywhere.—Advertisement.

Made it Plural. Frank, whose father is bald, caused much merriment by asking his mother, who was entertaining friends, "Mother, was daddy bald headed when we married him?"

Harassing Wheat Pests.
Plant pests cause the loss of millions of bushels of wheat in the United States, and if all the wheat now destroyed annually by these pests could be saved and made into flour the United States Department of Agriculture says it would add approximately 29,483,700 barrels to the yearly output of the nation. The annual production of wheat in this country for the four-year period 1916 to 1919, inclusive, was 783,849,500 bushels. The annual loss from disease during this

It is not possible entirely to eliminate reduce the toll. One branch of investigation in the bureau of plant industry is to work out the preventive measures for the diseases of all cereal crops.

Tree Saved by Washington.
An oak whose life Washington saved in 1791 is still flourishing on the Hampton plantation, Santee river, South Carolina, and has been nominated for a place in the Hall of Fame for trees with a history that is being compiled by the American Forestry association. The nomination is made by J. Danforth Bush of Wilmington, Del., who informs the association that the best of care is given the famous tree by Col. Henry Rutledge, the owner of the plantation. The beautiful old home was built by Daniel Horry, a French Huguenot, about 1750. Washington persuaded Mrs. Horry to abandon her plan to cut down the tree.

Puritan's Well Uncovered.
An old well, now dry, which is believed to have belonged to Gov. John Endicott of the Massachusetts bay colony, was discovered recently when a policeman kicked a brick loose in the sidewalk on Tremont Row in the downtown district of Boston.

The sidewalk slipped in for several feet and investigation showed the well about ten feet and partly filled. Historians said the well was of the type used by the Puritans. Governor Endicott, in 1685, occupied an estate in the vicinity.

Of Canvas and Ribbon

It goes without saying that bags of all sorts are among those gifts that are always welcome. There are many new ones this year made of coarse canvas, or unbleached linen and trimmed with narrow satin ribbon and ribbon flowers. Baby ribbon may be drawn through the interstices of the canvas. Drawing threads out of either the canvas or linen makes it possible to weave wider ribbons over and under the remaining threads, in borders or ornaments. Flowers cut from cotton or linen, in various colors, are applied to the linen bags and buttonholed along their edges with cotton floss or yarn. A case for holding playing cards and a bag which may be put to various uses are shown above in gifts suited to either man or woman.

Coming within 8 eggs of the world's record for her breed, and within twelve eggs of the all breeds record, Mary Ann II, Barred Rock, owned by M. A. C. Lays 302 Eggs in a Year.

Proof that "blood will tell" is given by the fact that Mary Ann II has four sisters who produced between 200 and 250 eggs last year. She is the daughter of Mary Ann I, the founder of the now famous strain of Barred Rocks owned at M. A. C.

The Ann family are to be on display for class-room work during a special Poultry Short Course which opens at the College on November 28 and runs for four weeks.

"During the short course we will show how to raise hens capable of making such records, as well as how to handle them to make the records possible," says W. E. Newlin, Assistant Professor of Poultry at M. A. C.

An advanced Poultry husbandry course is to be given at the College in January, according to the Winter Short Course program. The work of both courses is designed for the practical man who is actually engaged or expects to be engaged in poultry raising.

SOIL SURVEY SEEN AS GUIDE TO BUYER

That soil surveys provide a valuable basis for the prospective land buyer, a standard for the banker in placing loans, and a general foundation for all future agricultural development, is the contention of experts from all parts of the country who gathered at the Michigan Agricultural College November 18 and 19 for the Second Annual Conference of the American Association of Soil Survey Workers.

Twenty-four states, ranging from California to New York, and five Canadian provinces were represented by fifty delegates who are leaders in American Soil Survey work. Correlation of the survey programs in the different states and exchanged ideas on the newest developments in the field marked the deliberations of the delegates.

A boost for the Michigan soil survey started on a small scale two years ago by the soils department at M. A. C. and the U. S. Bureau of Soils, cooperating and pushed actively since, was expected as a result of the conference, which emphasized many problems pertinent to Michigan work.

Some soil survey work has been done in every state in the Union. Canada is also taking up the survey question and will be organized in the near future. In Canada, as in this country, the state or provincial agricultural colleges cooperate with the government departments in carrying out work.

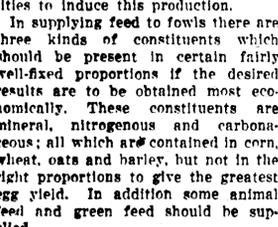

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

On the feeding of the flock depends to a large extent not only the general health of the birds, but also the economy which promotes success. It is a subject, however, which should be studied with a large amount of common sense, for there are no hard and fast rules which can be laid down as applying to every case. The price of feeds and the general environment should be considered in determining the right rations, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

For the largest profit a good proportion of the eggs should be secured during the winter. If two extra eggs a week can be obtained from each hen a good profit will be made, while if the product is increased by only one egg a week in winter, this one egg will pay for all the feed the hen eats. To obtain this greater production not only should the fowls be young and of a good laying breed, but the feeder should have full knowledge of the proper feed and its preparation.

The nutriment in the feed of laying hens serves a twofold purpose—to repair waste and furnish heat to the body and to supply the egg-making materials. As only the surplus over what is needed for the body is available for egg production, the proper feeds should be fed in sufficient quantities to induce this production.

In supplying feed to fowls there are three kinds of constituents which should be present in certain fairly well-fixed proportions if the desired results are to be obtained most economically. These constituents are mineral, nitrogenous and carbonaceous; all which are contained in corn, wheat, oats and barley, but not in the right proportions to give the greatest egg yield. In addition some animal feed and green feed should be supplied.

Green Feed is Quite Essential to the Production of Eggs in Winter.

In feeding poultry a valuable lesson may be learned from nature. In spring the production of eggs on the farm is an easy matter. Fowls at liberty to roam find an abundance of green and animal feed on their range, which with grain furnishes a perfect ration for laying hens. In addition to this they get plenty of exercise and fresh air. So far as lies within his power, then, the feeder should aim to make the winter conditions simulate

HERE'S WHAT HENRY FORD SAYS ABOUT FARMING IN THE FUTURE

There will be many who may not agree with Mr. Ford on his prophecies; but it should be remembered that he is a practical engineer, a practical farmer and a practical man. His interview published in the Free Press is instructive as well as interesting—particularly so to the people of this vicinity where one of his factories is to be erected.

"I tell you it is time that we awakened to the neglected opportunities that our country presents. It is time that we should do something more than complain of unemployment. It is also time that we paid some attention to modern methods of agriculture.

"Farmers may not know it but the old methods of agriculture are about ready to go. The farmers of the very near future are going to be bright, snappy young men from the cities. They are going to make more money while devoting but a fraction of the time to agriculture that the old-fashioned farmer put in.

"Fully 90 per cent of the farmer's work to-day is unnecessary. They do not sufficiently fertilize the soil and they do not use enough machinery.

Four-Day Harvest

"I harvested four thousand bushels of wheat on my Dearborn farm last summer and the operation required just four days. Twenty days a year is enough to do the work on any farm if it is done with machinery and in the right way.

"The farmer of the very near future will be a man who will divide his time among three occupations. Twenty days of each year he will devote to agriculture. Five or ten days more he will devote to transportation, during which he will load his products on motor trucks and whirl them over good roads to his market.

"The rest of the year he will devote to industry, by which I mean that he will be employed in a factory near his home.

Factories Sprout Like

factories in the very near future. I have been able to develop water-power and an establishing more all the time. In these factories some of the minor parts of my automobiles are made. One factory may be devoted wholly to the manufacture of bolts and nuts and another to screws.

"It is a common thing for the workers in these factories to say what time he wants to lay off for a day or so to dig his potatoes or harvest his wheat. We always let them off and are glad to do it, because, contrary to the common belief, our men do not spend their lives doing the same thing.

"We are constantly shifting them about so that each man knows how to do many things. It is, therefore, no trouble to let anybody off at any time because we have plenty of men trained to take his place.

"The farmer's day is just about to dawn. Farmers in the very near future will live in villages and have homes in which will be all the modern comforts and conveniences. The old isolated life, with a farm house here and another away off over the hills somewhere is about over. There is no longer any reason why each family should live on their own farm. So long as a farmer has an automobile, what difference does it make to him if he lives 20 miles away from his farm? It is only a pleasant little ride to go 20 miles."

Fadeless Flowers

Flowers made of petals cut from paper tape and coated with colored sealing wax, are among the novelties that add to the cheerfulness of home and Christmas this year. A cluster of them in several different colors, in a vase that is also coated with the wax, makes a very pleasing bouquet for the living room or dining table. The colored wax is a substitute for paint and a small alcohol flame becomes the brush for making the fadeless blossoms.
