JOSEPH W. PLACEWAY

Joseph W. Placeway was born in Hamburg township May 4, 1852, and passed away at his home in Pinckney March 7, 1922, at the age of 69 years, 10 months and 3 days.

He was united in marriage to Addie Jane King, on December 29, 1875. Two children blessed the union, Firman J. and Iva Louise, both deceased.

Nearly forty years were spent on the farm east of Pinckney, for a short time they lived in this village, then moved to Howell, but returned to Pinckney, where Mrs. Placeway died September 4, 1920.

Mr. Placeway was a good friend and loyal neighbor, and leaves many friends both in this community and wherever known. Two sisters are left to mourn, Mrs. Romina Placeway and Mrs. Rosina Mercer, also seven grandchildren.

The funeral services were held in the Federated church on Friday, Mar. 10, at 2 P. M., by Rev. J. E. Cook and interment was in the Placeway cemetery.

FOR BETTER FARMING

The Dispatch's Agricultural Department

Prepared By Experts

The illustrated agricultural articles which appear in the Dispatch from week to week are for the most part prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture and embody knowledge resulting from innumerable experiments, tests and developments, in some cases extending over many years and accumulated data of the department, to give the farmers information which only could be provided by this branch of the government with its highly-organized staff of scientists and practical men.

No doubt our farm readers have read and enjoyed these articles during the winter, but with the coming of spring, farm information has an added interest and value, and we trust that any who have hitherto overlooked one of the best departments of the Dispatch will now make it a point to give it the attention it deserves by its timeliness and practical worth.

PHILATHEA CLASS

The Philathea Class of the Federated church met at the home of Mrs. H. A. Flick March 8 for their regular meeting.

Clella Fish conducted the Devotional part of the program; a half hour was spent in the study of the Bible, which was very beneficial. A nice pot-luck luncheon was served.

As usual the sick and shut-ins were remembered. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Dale Darrow. Don't forget the time and place.

Make Every Meal A Perfect Feast

Tanlac Makes Each Bite a New Delight

WHEN your digestive system is working efficiently and smoothly, extracting from your food abundant stores of vital energy and piling up a reserve force of vigor to meet any emergency, every bite is eaten with keen zest and appreciation. If your meals are not a real event, if you do not approach the table organ and through ample secretion of digestive fluids. It then promotes energetic action of all the bowel muscles and glands and enables the food to pass through the digestive canal in the normal time. Each of the thousands of little glands whose duty it is to pick up nourishment from the food and send this to all parts of the body are stimulated to their utmost. The whole result is that food is taken care of without distress of any sort in such manner as to derive the utmost benefit from it.

If your appetite is not keen, if your food seems to disagree with you, if you are underweight, nervous, irritable and lack energy, give Tanlac the chance to show you that it can work a miracle with the most lively anticipation of its delights, then you are only half-living, because you are only half getting the value of your food.

Lack of appetite, or distress from indulging the appetite, are both due to the same cause—failure of the digestive system to properly do its important work. The undigested food remaining in the alimentary canal may merely cause a distaste for more food when it cannot take care of what it has, or it may undergo chemical and putrefaction changes that cause acute disease.

Besides, these chemical changes produce poisonous substances that are carried to every cell and organ of the body and that cause all sorts of distressing symptoms.

Tanlac, the famous digestive tonic and body builder, has achieved its wide success because it is able to invigorate the entire digestive tract.

It acts to cause vigorous stomach in your condition as it has in so many thousands of other cases.

If you are despondent, gloomy, with little taste for and enjoyment of life, try Tanlac and no doubt you will see the clouds of gloom roll away under the sunshine of health.

You are entitled to be healthy, vigorous, efficient and happy. Give yourself the chance to become so as thousands of others have, by taking Tanlac.

Get Tanlac from your druggist this very day. Why wait for tomorrow when Tanlac and health await you?

Bull-Dog Drummond

The Adventures of a Demobilized Officer Who Found Peace Dull

By Cyril McNeile "Sapper" Copyright by Geo. S. Down Co.

"Right. Throw your gun on the floor." Drummond picked up the weapon and put it in his pocket; then he rang the bell. "I had hoped," he murmured, "for a larger gathering, but one cannot have everything."

Save to Peterson, who understood, if only dimly, what had happened, the thing had come as such a complete surprise that even the sudden entrance of twenty masked men, who ranged themselves in single rank behind their chairs, failed to stir the meeting. It merely seemed in keeping with what had gone before.

"I shall not detain you long, gentlemen," began Hugh, suavely. "Your general appearance and the warmth of the weather have combined to produce in me a desire for sleep. But before I hand you over to the care of the sportsmen who stand so patiently behind you, there are one or two remarks I wish to make. Let me say at once that on the subject of Capital and Labor I am supremely ignorant. You will therefore be spared any dissertation on the subject. But from an exhaustive study of the ledger which now lies upon the table, and a fairly intimate knowledge of its author's movements, I and my friends have been put to the inconvenience of treading on you."

"There are many things, we know, which are wrong in this jolly old country of ours; but given time and the right methods I am sufficiently optimistic to believe that they could be put right. That, however, would not suit your book. You dislike the right method, because it leaves all of you much where you were before. Every single one of you—with the sole possible exception of you, Mr. Terrance, and you're mad—is playing with revolution for his own ends: to make money out of it—to gain power. . . .

with which he lit his cigar was as steady as a rock.

"I congratulate you, Captain Drummond," he remarked suavely. "I confess I have no idea how you managed to escape from the somewhat cramped position I left you in last night, or how you have managed to install your own men in this house. But I have even less idea how you discovered about Hocking and the other two."

Hugh laughed shortly. "Another time, when you disguise yourself as the Comte de Guy, remember one thing, Carl. For effective concealment it is necessary to change other things besides your face and figure. You must change your mannerisms and unconscious little tricks. No—I won't tell you what it is that gave you away. You can ponder over it in prison."

"So you mean to hand me over to the police, do you?" said Peterson slowly.

"I see no other course open to me," replied Drummond.

The sudden opening of the door made both men look round. Then Drummond bowed, to conceal a smile. "Just in time, Miss Irma."

The girl swept past him and confronted Peterson.

"What has happened?" she panted. "The garden is full of people whom I've never seen. And there were two men running down the drive covered with weeds and dripping with water."

Peterson smiled grimly. "A slight setback has occurred, my dear. I have made a big mistake—a mistake which has proved fatal. I have underestimated the ability of Captain Drummond; and as long as I live I shall always regret that I did not kill him the night he went exploring in this house."

Fearfully the girl faced Drummond; then she turned again to Peterson.

"Where's Henry?" she demanded.

"That again is a point on which I am profoundly ignorant," answered Peterson. "Perhaps Captain Drummond can enlighten us on that also?"

"Yes," remarked Drummond. "I can. Henry has had an accident. After I drove him back from the duchess' last night—the girl gave a cry, and Peterson staid her with his arm—"we had words—dreadful words. And for a long time, Carl, I thought it would be better if you and I had similar words. In fact, I'm not sure even now that it wouldn't be safer in the long run. . . ."

"But where is he?" said the girl, through dry lips.

"Where you ought to be, Carl," answered Hugh grimly. "Where, sooner or later, you will be."

He pressed the studs in the niche of the wall, and the door of the big safe swung open slowly. With a scream of terror the girl sank half-fainting on the floor, and even Peterson's cigar dropped on the floor from his nervous lips. For, hung from the ceiling by two ropes attached to his arms, was the dead body of Henry Lakington. And even as they watched it, it sagged lower, and one of the feet hit sullenly against a beautiful old gold vase.

"My God!" muttered Peterson. "Did you murder him?"

"Oh, no!" answered Drummond. "He inadvertently fell in the bath he got ready for me, and then when he ran up the stairs in considerable pain, that interesting mechanical device broke his neck."

"Shut the door," screamed the girl; "I can't stand it!"

She covered her face with her hands, shuddering, while the door slowly swung to again.

"Yes," remarked Drummond thoughtfully, "it should be an interesting trial. I shall have such a lot to tell them about the little entertainments here, and all your endearing ways."

With the big ledger under his arm he crossed the room and called to some men who were standing outside in the hall; and as the detectives, thoughtfully supplied by Mr. Green, entered the central room, he glanced for the last time at Carl Peterson and his daughter. Never had the cigar glowed more evenly between the master-criminal's lips; never had the girl Irma selected a cigarette from her gold and tortoise-shell case with more supreme indifference.

"Good-by, my ugly one!" she cried, with a charming smile, as two of the men stepped up to her.

"Good-by," Hugh bowed, and a tinge of regret showed for a moment in his eyes.

"Not good-by, Irma," Carl Peterson removed his cigar, and stared at Drummond steadily. "Only au revoir, my friend; only au revoir!"

EPILOGUE.

"I simply can't believe it, Hugh." In the lengthening shadows Phyllis moved a little nearer to her husband, who, quite regardless of the publicity of their position, slipped an arm around her waist.

"Can't believe what, darling?" he demanded lazily.

"Why, that all that awful night mare is over. Lakington dead, and the other two in prison, and us married."

"They're not actually in jug yet, old thing," said Hugh. "And somehow . . ." he broke off and stared thoughtfully at a man sauntering past them. To all appearances he was a casual visitor taking his evening walk along the front of the well-known seaside resort so largely addicted to honeymoon couples. And yet . . . was he? Hugh laughed softly; he'd got suspicion on the brain.

"Don't you think they'll be sent to prison?" cried the girl.

But whether they arrive or not is a different matter. I don't somehow see Carl picking oakum. It's not his form."

For a while they were silent, occupied with matters quite foreign to such trifles as Peterson and his daughter.

"Are you glad I answered your advertisement?" inquired Phyllis at length.

"The question is too frivolous to deserve an answer," remarked her husband severely.

"But you aren't sorry it's over?" she demanded.

"It isn't over, kid; it's just begun." He smiled at her tenderly. "Your life and mine . . . isn't it just wonderful?"

And once again the man sauntered past them. But this time he dropped a piece of paper on the path, just at Hugh's feet, and the soldier, with a quick movement which he hardly stopped to analyze, covered it with his shoe. The girl hadn't seen the action; but then, as girls will do after such remarks, she was thinking of other things. Idly Hugh watched the saunterer disappear in the more crowded part of the esplanade, and for a moment there came onto his face a look which, happily for his wife's peace of mind, she failed to notice.

"Let's go and eat, and after dinner I'll run you up to the top of the head land."

Together they strolled back to their hotel. In his pocket was the piece of paper; and who could be sending him messages in such a manner save one man—a man now awaiting his trial?

In the hall he stayed behind to inquire for letters, and a man nodded to him.

"Heard the news?" he inquired.

"No," said Hugh. "What's happened?"

"That man Peterson and the girl have got away. No trace of 'em. Then he looked at Drummond curiously. "By the way, you had something to do with that show, didn't you?"

"A little," smiled Hugh. "Just a little."

"Police bound to catch 'em again," continued the other. "Can't hide your self these days."

And once again Hugh smiled, as he drew from his pocket the piece of paper.

"Only au revoir, my friend; only a revoir."

He glanced at the words written in Peterson's neat writing, and the smile broadened. Assuredly life was still good; assuredly.

And into an ash tray nearby he dropped a piece of paper torn into a hundred tiny fragments.

"Was that a love-letter?" she demanded with assumed jealousy.

"Not exactly, sweetheart," he laughed back. "Not exactly." And over the glasses their eyes met.

"Here's to hoping, kid; here's to hoping."

Falsehood, like the dry rot, flourishes the more in proportion as air and light are excluded.—Whitely.

Mrs. Theresa Wilkeson

South Bend, Ind.—"For some time I suffered from an organic trouble, with pains in my side, backache, and bearing pains. Through this I became so nervous and weak that I could not do anything. I was a miserable wreck, got so thin I only weighed ninety pounds. No medicine seemed to give me relief until I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. After I had taken a few doses of this medicine I knew I had at last found something that was going to help me. I felt so much better. I now weigh 140 pounds, and do not have an ache or a pain, and am completely rid of all my ailments. Can do all my work and am stronger and healthier than for a long time. Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It
Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

ARE TUBERCULOSIS CLINICS IN RURAL DISTRICTS WORTH WHILE?

Undoubtedly this is a question that has been in the minds of the public many times since these clinics have been conducted in Livingston county.

The majority of patients examined have been students who showed 10 per cent or more underweight at the time of physical inspection in the schools. Five clinics have been held, 115 patients examined, 84 suspicious cases found. One has been admitted to the Sanatorium for treatment, and advice as to care in the home given to others.

While few of these cases have been diagnosed active tuberculosis, with further observation a large number would be found to be positive cases.
Underweight children are easy victims of tuberculosis.

A great many people are prone to believe that the ex-soldiers, crippled and disabled in the world war, are not being properly and carefully cared for, and that the government is remiss in its duty and consequently ungrateful. There are two kinds of skeleton-mentors—the bone surgeon and the skeleton-assembler. Art schools, medical colleges, and students of anatomy require an accurately constructed skeleton to aid in their work.

All the bones must be properly assorted and carefully put together. They are strung on fine wires. The skeleton-assembler must also pick out of the hundreds of odd bones that are sent him the 200 or more bones that belong to the particular individual being reconstructed. It is not an easy task, and the price of skeletons is justified by the amount of work required to construct them.—Popular Science Monthly.

May Use South American Wood.

The Pennsylvania railroad, owing to the unprecedented cost of railroad ties, has decided to investigate the adaptability of the hard woods of Central and South America for this purpose. It is announced. Normally the Pennsylvania system uses from 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 ties annually. The average net cost has risen fully 100 per cent since the beginning of the war. Furthermore, white oak, which the company regards as the most desirable wood for ties, is becoming scarcer. Therefore, the company has inquiries under way to determine the comparative cheapness and durability of southern hard woods for railroad ties.

New York Boys' New Game. The game of marbles no longer holds a throne in boyville. Any New York side street where there's enough room between bluecoats and automobile traffic to play, will show you that a new game has taken its place.

"Sidewalk checkers," the boys call it. The new game really has the elements of both the old marble shooting days and checkers as played on a board. Checker men are used—red, black, blue—the color makes no difference. A ring is drawn with chalk and the object is to flip your checker man with enough force to knock your contenders out of the ring.

"Hully gee!" said a future Ponzil as he gathered up his winnings on Rende street near Broadway, "ain't I got enough lumber here to start me a paper mill?"—New York Sun.

MINERS READY TO MEET OPERATORS

LONG BATTLE ON COAL WAGE CERTAIN UNLESS U. S. INTERFERES

LEWIS SAYS OPERATORS LAG

President of Union Declares Government Pressure May Be Necessary to Bring Them to Time.

Indianapolis—Hope of averting a nation-wide strike of soft coal miners April 1 rests with the coal operators of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois accepting the appeal of Secretary of Labor Davis for a wage conference of operators and miners, according to the statement here of President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America.

The union, Lewis declared, is ready to meet operators of the four states, which comprise the central competitive field, at "any time and place."

Declaring operators were "morally bound" to meet miners in conference, Lewis added: "Up to this time we have failed to bring the operators into a conference and the only thing we can hope for now is that the government at Washington may bring sufficient pressure to bear on these operators to compel them to meet us as they agreed they would do."

Semi-official returns of the strike vote now being cast by the miners continued to be reported by district union officials arriving here for conferences with the international executive board. These reports, it was said, authoritatively, forecast nine-tenths of the miners in favor of the walkout unless an agreement is reached.

HUGHES EXPLAINS 4-POWER TREATY

SECRETARY IN LETTER TO SENATOR UNDERWOOD SAYS HE WROTE FACT.

"STRAIGHTFORWARD DOCUMENT"

Declares It Attains Most Important Object American Government Has Had in View.

Washington—Secretary of Hughes wrote the four power treaty.

In a letter to Senator Underwood, Democratic member of the American delegation, Secretary Hughes disposes of the authorship issue and denies intimations that the American delegates were induced to accept a cunningly contrived foreign scheme proposed to American interests.

"A very poor and erroneous notion of the work in connection with the conference," the secretary declared, "would be nothing short of national calamity."

"There isn't the slightest mystery about the treaty or basis of suspicion regarding it," the secretary said, in his letter which Senator Underwood read to the senate.

"It is a straightforward document which attains one of the most important objects the American government has had in view and is of high importance to the maintenance of friendly relations in the Far East upon a sound basis."

"I understand that the course of debate in the senate upon the four-power treaty questions have been raised with respect to its authorship. It seems to be implied that in some way the American delegates have been induced to accept some plan cunningly contrived by others and opposed to our interests."

"Apart from the reflection upon the competency of the American delegates such intimations betray a very poor and erroneous conception of the work in connection with the conference—was begun, prosecuted or concluded in intrigue. Nothing could be farther from the fact."

"In preparation for the conference

He declared there is no idleness in Germany.

Marshall—Jack Dempsey's gift to Mrs. Floyd Fitzsimmons of Benton Harbor, a $10,000 automobile, was damaged and Mr. and Mrs. Fitzsimmons' attorney and a state senator, whose names were not learned, were injured slightly, when the steering gear of the car broke and sent the machine into a ditch between Battle Creek and Marshall. The party was going to Lansing to interview Governor Greenback in regard to a boxing bout at Benton Harbor.

Owosso—Whether or not joint use of a driveway for 30 years by neighbors makes a permanent joint driveway is put up to the circuit court by the filing of a suit by Mrs. Anna Oehmig, of this city, against John and Ellen Depotcy, also of Owosso. Mr. Hill died a few weeks after the attack as the result of exposure and injury.

Cheboygan—Two boys and a man were burned to death in the fire, which destroyed four business blocks here, with more than $500,000 loss, March 8. The dead are: Frank J. Hoehler, pioneer baker and former alderman; Edward Laway, 8 years old; George Tobias, 10 years old. Hoehler was trapped as he attempted to rescue the Laway boy. The three charred bodies were recovered. Gaylord and Grayling fire departments were hurried to the fire on a special Michigan Central train. With their assistance to the local department the fire was checked.

STATE HOLDING WHEAT CROP

Growers Have 23 Per Cent of 1921 Crop, Report Says.

Lansing—Farmers are holding more grain this year than usual, although less than they held last year, according to a crop report issued by the state department of agriculture.

Of the 1921 Michigan wheat crop, 23 per cent is still in the hands of the growers, according to the report. They also hold 38 per cent of the oat crop and a large part of the corn crop.

These last two grains are held mainly for feeding purposes, Michigan not being an exporting state in oats or corn.

TAX DELINQUENTS ON INCREASE

85,208 Descriptions Advertised This Year, 74,100 in 1921.

Lansing—O. B. Fuller, auditor-general, will advertise 11,108 more descriptions of property to be sold for taxes this year than last, he announced. This is property on which the 1919 tax remains unpaid. Last year 74,100 descriptions were advertised, and the number this year is 85,208.

Miami, Fla.—Dr. I. T. Law, a physician, was electrocuted in his office while making an X-ray examination of the fractured arm of a patient. As the physician was adjusting the machine his arm came in contact with a high voltage wire. Death was instantaneous.

MICHIGAN GETS 60 REINDEER

Come From Norway and Will Be Used For Breeding Purposes.

New York—Fifty female and ten male reindeer, consigned to the state of Michigan arrived March 9 on the steamer Bergensford from Christiania, Norway. Dr. Halstan Christiansen, who brought them, said they would be used for breeding purposes.

Woman Held on Rum Charge.
Allegan, Mich.—Mrs. Minnie Eble, 49 years old, was in custody on a charge of violating the prohibition statutes, and officers were searching for her husband, believed to be in hiding. Their two daughters were being cared for by county officers. Four barrels of mash and a 15-gallon still were found, officers said, in their home. The woman told officers, they said, she started making whisky after her husband had been out of work for weeks.

Supreme Court Refuses Review.

Washington—The supreme court having announced its refusal to review, Michael Weisman of Minneapolis, must pay a fine of $5,000 and serve 18 months in the penitentiary the sentence imposed on him by the federal district court of Minnesota for having conspired to facilitate the transportation and concealment of liquor fraudulently imported from Canada.

Movie Saves Child Near Death.
Atlantic City, N. J.—The movies are given credit at the children's seashore home for the recovery of Katherine Hartwell, aged 7 years, who was in a coma and near death. During a flash of semi-consciousness, a movie film that was being shown in a special effort to arouse her, caught her attention and she reacted to the "interest" appeal. It was the girl's first movie show.

Says "Humanizing" Prisons Pays.
Washington—It pays to "humanize" the federal prisons. So thinks Attorney-General Daugherty, who pointed to these results in one year: 1,000 paroled prisoners, who have earned $1,000,000, and are again useful members of society. Productive endeavor, created through the government's policy of aiding them, has helped to cut the cost of prison operations $77,000 below the appropriations.

Six-Year-Old on Movie Spree.
Chicago—A city-wide search, following a general police alarm resulted in the return to her home of six-year-old Frances Chyzy. She explained to the policeman who found her weeping on the street, that she had found a dollar and had gone to five movies. "And now it's all gone, and I wanna go home," she sobbed. The police supplied the missing carfare and she was returned to her parents.

Woman Smuggler Carried Fortune.
Riga—A veritable treasure trove was discovered when authorities arrested Alice Kahlberg at Walk, an Estonian border town. The police found diamonds worth $4,000,000, three famous and valuable Russian stamp collections and several paintings, including a Rubens, sewed up in the woman's negligee. It is stated Mile. Kahlberg was enroute from Petrograd to Paris. This is the biggest smuggling attempt yet discovered.

Auto Too Much for Puncher.
San Francisco—Hereafter Ray Hill, cowboy and "broncho buster" from Texas, is going to stick to "hoses." Hill was thrown through the windshield of an automobile, when it struck a safety station. "I just naturally can't hang on to those things when they get to bucking that way," Hill told the Central Emergency hospital doctor who sewed up the gashes in his lip and cheek. Robert O'Neill, who drove the machine, was uninjured.

3 MARQUETTE PRISONERS OUT

Five Make Escape Through Roof But Two Are Recaptured.

Marquette, Mich.—Battering their way through the Marquette prison roof with a plank torn from a bathroom partition, five convicts escaped and three were still at large Sunday, while two had been recaptured.

The escaped men are Roman Alizniczak, Syrian, and John Mitchell and Edward Turner, Negroes. Turner was sentenced at Detroit to a 15 to 20-year term, for robbery armed. Mitchell was sentenced in lower Michigan and was caught in an attempt to escape last summer.

Steve Madaja, double lifer, sentenced from Bay City, and John Wileiski, sentenced there, also, to a 10 to 20-year term for robbery armed, were captured in a nearby swamp, shortly after their escape by Trooper Engle of the state police stationed at the prison, and by Prison Guard Robert Fingle.

GENERAL SMUTS FIRED UPON

Strikers in South Africa Try to Assassinate Premier.

Johannesburg, Union of South Africa.—A shot was fired at the steamobile containing General Jan Christian Smuts, the premier, Sunday, as he was being driven toward the Rand near Potchefstroom. The premier was not hurt, although a bullet struck the car.

Other developments were: Troops have captured 1,500 revolutionists at Sophiatown and Brixton Ridge. Aeroplanes dropped 52 bombs on revolutionists surrounding a party of police in the Brixton area, causing numerous casualties and scattering others, many of whom surrendered.

Crowd Attends Williams' Burial.
New York—A crowd which gathered at the Masonic temple of St. Cecilia lodge and overflowed into the street attended funeral services for Egbert Austin (Bert) Williams, famous American Negro comedian, who died here March 4. Williams was a member of Waverly lodge, No. 897, of Scotland, and it was at the cabled request of the grand lodge of Scotland that the services were held at St. Cecilia's known as the theatrical lodge of the city.

Cost and Dress Modes of Today

Quite fascinating are the latest fashions at the dress shops. Every-thing notes a fashion writer in the New York Times, is new and charged with vibrations of promised springtime. And, in spite of the usual line, which is always the same where fashions are con- sidered, there being no change of color, still there is every subtle change in the lines of the silhouette character of all-important de-

The immediate concern of every woman is—what will be the first spring dresses and suits? What will the Unusual Frock of Poiret Twill Trimmed With Bands of Brocaded Ribbon in Bright Colors.

What materials are most reasonable and most wearable all in combination? At how many prices from the floor will the skirts show their downward trend? Will they be much the same or changed in any way? And myriads more of

The only thing to do, for one who attempts to give adequate answers to these questions, is to watch each new creation and its effect upon the public. So that just now there are a few fine points which have been registered with that force which indicates that they will be prominent. Further than that we cannot go just now.

There is a general feeling that the suit has gone out, or that it is not so much in fashionable favor as was the case sometimes in the past. That may or may not be so, but nevertheless there are any number of new and lovely-looking suits upon the market. Most of them (with the exception of the sport suits) are characterized by the fact that, instead of being made with skirt and blouse and coat, they are made with a dress in one piece and a coat to go with it.

Blouse Harmonizes With Skirt.
Sometimes there is a clever amalgamation of these two ideas, and the blouse is made to harmonize so perfectly with the skirt that the two together look, for all the world, like a one-piece frock. This latter combination has one big advantage over the old-fashioned idea of shirtwaist and skirt in that, when the waist wears out, there can be another one. And, since this is the portion of the dress which always shows the first signs of wear, there is more in the idea than might be at first visible.

But there are so many pitfalls in the direction of combining blouse and skirt that if one attempts that character of dressing one must be more than usually clever in constructing or choosing the design and in the manner in which one amalgamates the two. Not any blouse will do with any skirt, but the two of them have to be thought out together and arranged so that, when worn in unison, they will look as though they belonged together.

An interesting blouse shows a peculiar type of waist which does well when combined with a separate skirt and worn with a coat to match. In spite of the fact that the blouse is a unit in itself, it none the less has the quality of being able to blend with a skirt of some other material in a purely artistic manner. This blouse is made of yellow crepe chiffon, with many bunches of fullness about it and an underlying layer of a warmer yellow, to make it take on a richer tone.

Doubles Life of the Costume.
It is designed to be worn with a full brown skirt of kasha cloth and a cape made of that material, and then the blouse should be lined with the same material in order to carry out successfully the color scheme. The embroidered bands arranged on the blouse carry out those shadings of tones, running from brown to yellow, and, as the stitches are done in silk threads, there is a lustre which is charming against the thin chiffon and which does a great deal toward drawing together the color of the skirt and the colors in the blouse.

For a woman who has to give her spring suit, or any suit for that matter, a great deal of wear, this manner of combining waist and skirt is a veritable boon, for it just about doubles the life of her costume and, when there is so much expense involved, that consideration becomes an important item.

The girde for this blouse is made of a soft crepe in a shade of brown, midway between the yellow of the blouse and the brown of the skirt. Then it has a long fringe of all of the varicolored threads used in the embroidery on the trimming of the blouse, which also serves to tie the two separate parts of the costume into one single unit.

This type of blouse for the costume suit is far more beautiful and fashionable than the old and accepted variety of white shirtwaist. In fact, the latter seems to have disappeared entirely off the face of the earth, except in its tailored state for sport suits and as a handmade French thing to go with the regulation tailored suit.

A suit is the thing which, in the spring, makes a woman look so well groomed and compact in style and so ready for any outdoor or street occasion. Women are loath to let it go as a type of dressing and, even though its character has been somewhat changed and twisted around, it is still the suit that has meant so much to the general well-dressed appearance of the American woman.

There is a new type of suit, with the very much abbreviated jacket, and a little vest that adds a touch of color in a new and original way. It is a relief to see suits getting away from that collar and cuff trimming which, after all, is so obvious. And this little waistcoat creates a freshness of feeling which will be a relief to many women who long to wear this sort of suit and still insist upon having their clothes in the fore ranks of fashion.

Loosest Sort of Homespun Weave.
Wool etamine is the material used for this suit. It is the loosest sort of homespun weave, and it also has about it a wiriness of character that makes it take very interesting lines, when developed either in the little spring suit or in a coat dress meant to be worn on the street. It is a fabric which is a little more dressy than the woolen homespun which is weave is so much like that of homespun that it keeps the fabric in the class of popularly accepted materials. Following the craze for the long waistline that is bloused, many of the spring suits, especially those that are sent from Paris, show that long, bloused, Russian line with a very short, flaring peplum and a high, standing collar. It is an infernal sort of suit, but one that is extremely youthful in its appearance and which, for that reason, is bound to exert a strong influence upon spring styles. With it the high, close-fitting Russian turban is the thing, and the whole makes an interesting silhouette which is new in every way.

Black has been so predominant among the winter street fashions, and we have become so accustomed to seeing it used in combination with gray and cream and tan, that it is hard to realize that it will ever go out as a universal fashion. However, there are strong rumors that midnight blue for street wear this spring will take the lead against this established supremacy of black. There will be many to welcome the advent of this old, tried and true color. Most women have the dark blue habit so strongly established in their systems that they cannot face the possibility of wearing any other color. In fact they cannot seem to feel at home in black, smart as it may be. Blue, when it is becoming, carries with it much charm and character, though when it is not exactly the right tone for the personality in question, there can be no other color more insignificant looking and more ineffectual as a fashionable thing.

HINTS THAT HELP

Before housecleaning time it is a good time to prepare. Make at least six outing flannel or cotton flannel covers for the broom. Make them at least six inches longer than the broom so that there may be a three or four-inch ruffle at the bottom, making the sweeping more effective when brushing down the walls. Old outing flannel night dresses may be saved to make these bags.

It is a good plan to keep an inventory of every household supply and where it may be found; it is useful for the housewife for reference and in case of emergency and for other people to find things easily.

Much may be done in spring cleaning on rainy days and days not bright enough to air clothing. Linen closets, chiffoniers, dresser drawers may be gone over and inventoried. If troubled with ants, sprinkle a little tartar emetic mixed with sugar where they come in. Be sure to keep it away from all food or pets as it is poison.

If the flavor of onion is liked in the roast or gravy, place an onion beside the roast and remove when the roast is done. An onion placed in a pot of beans is a great improvement to the seasoning.

Keep a small basket lined with newspaper to put all garbage and peelings, egg shells and table scraps; this will save many steps to the garbage pail and the paper may be wrapped around the garbage and dropped into the can, or burned in the incinerator. A paper sack near at hand may be used in the same way.

A large basket kept in a handy place for carrying vegetables, or articles from the cellar, or linen from one floor to another is a great aid. When going upstairs, if everything going up is taken, and everything brought down as one is coming down, many steps and much fatigue would be saved.

"Come out and play in the winter, with the snowflakes in your hair. Come while the gray clouds spill them, like feathers in the air. And come when the sun is shining on the daisies at your feet. Out in the meadow come and play, for all the year is sweet."

PINEAPPLE GOOD THINGS

For appealing salads, tasty desserts and tempting fruit dishes and drinks, there is nothing quite so delicious as pineapple.

Fruit Tart.—Bake a rich crust of pastry until a delicate brown. One-half hour before serving, fill the shell with canned pineapple, either crushed or grated. Pour over a thick boiled custard seasoned delicately with vanilla and place it where it will chill. Place a meringue on top and brown lightly or small baked pastry stars with a few marshmallows may be used to decorate the top.

Pineapple Cake.—Take one-half cupful of butter, cream and add two cupfuls of sugar gradually, then the well-beaten yolks of four eggs. Mix and sift two and one-fourth cupfuls of flour with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder; add alternately with one cupful of milk and three-fourths of a teaspoonful of flavoring. When well blended fold in the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Bake in three layers in a moderate oven. Fill with Pineapple Filling.—Take one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of boiling water and cook until it threads. Pour gradually on a well-beaten egg white. Beat until thick and of the right consistency to spread on the cake. Drain the juice from a can of crushed pineapple, spread the pineapple over the cake, then spread with the boiled frosting.

Pineapple Sherbet.—Boll two cupfuls of water with one cupful of sugar, dissolve one tablespoonful of gelatin (softened in a tablespoonful of water) in the hot sirup, beat until cold, then add the well-beaten whites of four eggs and a can of crushed pineapple, with the juice of a lemon. Freeze and serve in sherbet glasses.

Pineapple Puffs.—Cream one-third of a cupful of butter, add one cupful of sugar, two well-beaten eggs, one and seven-eighths of a cupful mixed with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Mix well and stir in one-half cupful of grated pineapple. Put into buttered muffin tins and bake twenty-five minutes in a moderately hot oven. Serve with the pineapple sirup, using the juice from the can.

Sponge Cake With Pineapple.—Arrange small pieces of sponge cake in a plait bowl, pouring over as much thick pineapple juice as the cake will absorb. Set in a cool place; at serving time, invert on a platter and garnish with pineapple and whipped cream.

True Detective Stories THE DOUBLE CRIME

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

IT WAS in the late summer of 1903 that the New York police discovered the body of a man, evidently an Italian, concealed in a barrel on the East side. Every mark that could possibly supply a clue to his identification had been removed—even the labels had been clipped from his clothes—and the manner in which his face had been mutilated rendered him totally unrecognizable.

But, just as the case was about to be entered upon the book of New York's unsolved mysteries, it was cleared up through a coincidence so startling that no writer of detective fiction would have dared make use of it.

On the night of the murder, William J. Flynn, then chief of the Eastern division of the United States secret service, with headquarters in New York, was working on one of the numerous counterfeiting cases which occur so frequently in the Italian section of the metropolis.

Flynn himself was elected to trail a pair of Italians whom he had reason to believe were working for or with the counterfeitters. The trail led to an Italian grocery, where, from the shadow of a doorway across the street, the government detective could see into a lighted room in the suspected house. A few moments later a covered wagon drew up in front of the house, a man got out, entered the grocery, and made his way into the very room that Flynn was watching. The light from the lamp fell directly upon his face, and the secret service operative realized that this must be a new addition to the gang, for he was certainly no one that he had seen before. Then the curtains to the window were drawn, and Flynn abandoned his chase for the time being.

The next morning the murdered man was discovered, nearly half a mile from the place where Flynn had hidden himself the night before. It was several days later that the operative read the official account of the crime and noted that the body had been found in a sugar barrel, partly filled with blood-stained sawdust. The date of the murder, coupled with the use of a sugar barrel, recalled to the operative's mind the fact that he had been watching an Italian grocery at or about the time that the foreigner himself that there was no connection between the counterfeitters and the murdered man, Flynn went to the morgue and examined the body. The peculiar shape of the forehead, the manner in which the hair splayed out above the prominent ears and the blood-stained green hat which had been found in the barrel, told the story beyond the shadow of a doubt. It was the stranger whom Flynn had seen entering the store which he had been watching!

Feeling certain that here was a sign which pointed toward the operations of the gang which he was after, Flynn had the body photographed from a number of angles, while experts in physiognomy reconstructed the features to something approaching a life-like appearance. Then, armed with these post-mortem pictures, Flynn took a trip to Ossining to see if any of the members of the Italian colony in Sing Sing could identify the dead man.

The idea proved to be a good one, for a convict whom Flynn knew—an Italian serving time for another counterfeiting case—identified the photographs as being those of his brother-in-law, Maruena Benedetto, whom he described as being a peaceful hard-working citizen who had never been implicated in any of the crimes of the Italian settlement.

Working backward from this clue, Flynn and the other secret service operatives trailed the Italians whom the chief had seen in the grocery store on the night of the murder, and it was not long before they had made a complete roundup of the gang. As was to be expected in a crime of this nature, alibis were plentiful, but, as was usual, these were none too well supported by fact, and it was a comparatively simple matter for the police to get at the bottom of the case, once the identity of the victim had been established.

A judicious application of the "third degree" brought to light the fact that Benedetto had been killed because he had gotten wind of the counterfeiting plot, and because he was the brother-in-law of the man who later identified the body—a man who had incurred the undying enmity of his compatriots by turning state's evidence. The inflexible laws of the society to which they both belonged—one of the societies which rules Little Italy with a rule of iron and a hand of blood—demanded the sacrifice of the next of kin in the event of information being given to the police.

But, if Flynn had not happened to be watching the grocery store the night of the murder, the chances are that the crime would still be unsolved. The leader of the murder gang was found to be Ignazio Lupo, one of the very men Flynn was after, but the government allowed the counterfeiting charge to hang fire until the expiration of Lupo's term for manslaughter. Another Lupo, brother to Ignazio, escaped at the time, and was not captured until ten years later, although Flynn and his associates were on the lookout for him all that time.

Youngtown, Ohio.—"Last fall I began to feel mean and my back hurt me and I could hardly do my little bit of housework. I was played out when I would just sweep one room and would have to rest. I would have to put a cushion behind me when I would sit down and at night I could not sleep unless I had something under my back. I had awful cramps every month and was just nearly all in. Finally my husband said to me one day, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine?' and I said, 'I am willing to take anything if I could get well again.' So I took one bottle and a second one and felt better and the neighbors asked me what I was doing and said, 'Surely it must be doing you good all right.' I have just finished my eighth bottle and I cannot express to you how I feel, the way I would like to. If you can use this letter you are welcome to it and if any woman does not believe what I have written to be true, she can write to me and I will describe my condition to her as I have to you."—Mrs. ELMER HEASLEY, 141 S. One day I saw your advertisement in the daily paper and began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. I have improved ever since taking the third bottle and find it is the best medicine I have ever taken."

"I was completely run down and not able to do my housework. I just dragged myself around and did not have energy to get up when once I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in our paper 'The Indiana Daily Times,' and learned all about it. I received results from the very first bottle and now I am doing all my own work, even washing and ironing, and I never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends it is due to you."—Mrs. ELIZABETH RAINBOLD, 403 N. Pine St., Indianapolis, Indiana.

Our Ever-Changing Weight. Weighed in a delicate scale, it would be found that your weight is a very fickle quality.
