AWARDED $3,650

Saturday a jury in the circuit court awarded Mrs. Mirah Ziva $3,650 as a claim for blighted affections in a breach of promise suit against Trifan Plan, who owns the old Coste Farm on the Howell road one mile north of town. Plan was recently charged with violating the state prohibition laws but was discharged for lack of evidence.

Both Plan and the woman are Roumanians, the latter being unable to speak English. Plan denied on the stand that he had ever promised to marry the woman, alleging that she was the vamp in this case.

MAN AND WOMAN EXCHANGE SHOTS

QUARREL OVER DOG ENDS IN SERIOUS WOUNDING OF DISPUTANTS.

CHILDREN OF BOTH SEE TRAGEDY

Failure to Keep Dog Tied Up Causes Fight That Will Be Remembered in New Haven.

New Haven, Mich.—As the result of a quarrel over a dog, a man, 45 years old, with a wife and six children, and a widow of 50 with four children are believed to be dying from wounds received in a shot-gun and rifle duel between the two at the doorstep of the woman's home April 8.

The victims, Martin Baade and Mrs. Emma Haas, are neighbors. Baade's hunting dog, the pet of his children, had been annoying Mrs. Haas by scampering over her carefully kept lawn and disturbing her afternoon naps with his barking.

That morning the dog escaped from the Baade children and ran over on the Haas lawn. True to her threat, Mrs. Haas ran out and seized the dog and, despite the entreaties of the Baade children, locked him in a shed.

When Baade came home, the children met him with their story. Madened, he took a shotgun from the wall and strode over to the Haas home. The widow met him at the door, with a rifle in her hands.

Baade told the authorities that Mrs. Haas fired first. When she raised the rifle, he turned quickly, he said, and the shot struck him in the back, piercing the kidneys. As he fell he pulled the trigger of his shotgun, the charge striking the widow full in the

Consider the lilies how they grow. They toil not, neither do they spin, and yet I say unto you that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. —Luke 12:27.

They found what they wanted in a lily that grows in the Formosa islands, south of Japan. The Japanese were quick to grasp the opportunity that came to them from the misfortune of Bermuda. Lily farms sprang up all through the islands of the Pacific in the vicinity of Formosa. The industry grew as if by magic all the way from Formosa to Yokohama.

ON THE same ground. There must be rotation of crops. This discovery resulted in the diminution of much of the lily disease from the Bermudas. While the bulb-growers in the Bermudas were fighting the lily disease, and many of the American florists were giving up the growing of the lilies, the more persistent of the American growers were looking all over the world for new sources of supply. They found what they wanted in a lily that grows in the Formosa islands, south of Japan. The Japanese were quick to grasp the opportunity that came to them from the misfortune of Bermuda. Lily farms sprang up all through the islands of the Pacific in the vicinity of Formosa. The industry grew as if by magic all the way from Formosa to Yokohama.

Now the lily farm, as the Japanese know it, is small—the average is not more than four or five acres. And the Japanese lily farmer has little or no capital. And it takes three or four years to grow a good flowering bulb. So the Japanese government steps in and gives the lily farmer a lift—loans him money on his crop to buy bulbs and fertilizer and to keep him going. Also Japanese dealers in bulbs contract for the bulbs in advance, loan him money and keep a watchful eye on his operations. These islanders, when their lily crops are harvested, generally carry the bulbs to Yokohama for delivery. This means an ocean trip of from 100 to 500 miles. The boats are small. Many of them are little more than what we would call open rowboats. Consider the toil and danger of that voyage! At Yokohama the bulbs are graded by size, packed into cases containing from 100 to 400 bulbs each. The exportation of these lily bulbs seems to be in the hands of three or four concerns, and it's a good guess that the Japanese government controls these concerns. Reproductions of photographs showing the various phases of this lily farming by the Japanese would be interesting. Yes; but the Japanese government does not encourage the taking of such photographs. Possibly one print of a negative might be allowed, but no negatives can leave Japan. Nowadays we are importing something like 20,000,000 lily bulbs from Japan each year. Upon arriving at San Francisco the bulbs are shipped in bond to Chicago and New York, whence they are distributed throughout the United States. Probably one-third of the 20,000,000 bulbs are forced into blossom for Easter.

of toil all along the way from far-off Formosa. Then the local florist must put in six months of skilled effort to bring the bulb into blossom for Easter. Finally comes the Easter rush—it is as bad as the well-known Christmas shopping. Many is the florist who works all night during this last minute Easter rush!

It may be that your Easter lily is costly, but think of the work it represents, and be thankful to get it at the price you paid!

Is not an Easter lily worth saving, after all the time and patience and work and money it has cost? Then take care of yours this Easter.

Florists who are getting ready their Easter lilies for Easter force them along in quite a warm temperature until they are sure they will flower in time for the Easter trade. Then the plants are taken to cool houses to "harden up."

Naturally, in this process of forcing they are kept very wet at the roots and syringed frequently over the tops, this syringing sometimes being done twice a day. You understand, therefore, the changed conditions into which a plant is placed when brought into our homes, where the atmosphere is dry and warm. It is usually placed in a window and possibly the first day we fall to give it any water, and the second day not before ten o'clock in the morning, and even then only a little is placed on the surface of each pot, which in an hour, owing to the dry atmosphere, has evaporated.

You all desire to have your flowers attractive and fresh-looking as long as possible, and you will have no difficulty if you will only give them the same treatment they receive before leaving the greenhouse. As soon as you receive the plant, before placing it in the window, give it a thorough soaking. To dampen it is of little use and the results were disappointing, but wetting thoroughly at the roots stiffens, freshens and revives the flowers. Your lily, under this treatment, should remain in full bloom and every bud unfold.

Keep your lily in a pot until the middle of May, when you should plant it in the open border. The tops will die away, but almost invariably it will form a new bulb and flower again in late August.

In the case of azaleas and hydrangeas at Easter time it is necessary to stand them in a bucket of water for at least ten minutes twice a day. The same method of watering applies to many other Easter plants.

Revised Version of Old Story Leaves Welshman the Winner Over Admittedly Canny Scotsman.

Admittedly, this may be an old story, but it has the distinction of possessing a new twist at the end: A person died. He willed all his earthly possessions to be divided among an Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotsman. But the will was conditional; each of the legatees was to place five pounds in the testator's coffin. On the day appointed (by Fate) the Englishman placed a five-pound note as willed; the Irishman collected a number of coins somehow—shillings, sixpences and coppers—and made up his contribution of five pounds, which he placed on the Englishman's five. The Scotsman then made out a check for 15 pounds and, pocketing the 10 pounds already deposited, threw in his check, with the remark, "That's easier."

A month later, when the Scotsman perused his pass book he was surprised to find that his check had been cashed. The undertaker was a Welshman.—Philadelphia Record.

Sensible Question.

She had the money and he a small job. He wished to get married very badly, but she was rather undecided. One night as they sat talking about the future, he having coaxed her into a half-way engagement, he said: "And we'll be very careful and not run into debt and have trouble as the Sissons did. We'll always pay cash, won't we, dear?"

A suspicious look came into her face. Quickly she put forth the question: "Whose cash?"

"Oh," I said to a girl I was showing them to, "you would not be interested in those. They are only some old-timers."

I was speechless when the second one I turned up was her own.—Exchange.

Hungary can now boast of possessing the largest aluminum deposits in the world. A recent discovery near Tapolca has revealed a deposit containing more than 150,000,000 tons, according to estimates of expert engineers.

Dead European Towns

Europe is full of dead towns—trailing glories from the age before the Turks captured Constantinople and Columbus discovered America. Many of them lie on small rivers, as Bruges does. For in the days when an ocean ship was only an enlarged rowboat a river harbor was preferable to the best ocean port. Such was Seville, such was Pisa, such once was Florence. But when the Turks cut the Indian trade routes, and when ships became too big for river ports, new cities sprang up and old, glorious cities died. Some have come to life again, like Florence and Nuremberg and Seville, because of new conditions. Some, like Pisa, and Reichenburg in Bavaria, and Ragusa in Dalmatia, stayed dead.

When Will There Be A Disarmament of Dining Tables?

Suppose everybody would recognize the fact that there's no gain but much loss in keeping up hostilities with the stomach!

Suppose the ancient aggravation of improper food on indignant digestive organs should be settled with guarantees of sensible diet and tranquil digestion!

The saving would be beyond all possibility of counting.

Yet millions go on declaring war on the stomach and accepting war in return—loading up on starchy, heavy, unbalanced and highly-seasoned food at breakfast or lunch—and wondering why comfort, happiness and efficiency are out of reach.

Grape-Nuts makes a friend of the taste and an ally of the stomach.

There's a charm and satisfaction to this delicious food which prompts appetite to say, "There's a meal!" and digestion to answer, "Thank goodness, here's peace at last!"

Grape-Nuts is the perfected nutriment of wheat and malted barley—sweet, crisp, and wonderfully nourishing. It digests quickly, and provides the necessary elements, including the vital mineral salts, for body, nerve and brain.

Order Grape-Nuts from your grocer today, and let a delighted taste pass a treaty of peace along to an enthusiastic digestion and assimilation.

The Juvenile Choir made its first appearance in the Methodist Church and did some excellent work.

Mrs. Sarah Caskey, whose death occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Norman Wilson in Jackson, March 30th, will be greatly missed here where she has lived many years. The sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved family, and of the quiet, lovable woman who has gone to her long sleep we can truly say:

"This woman was full of good works and deeds which she did."

NEIGHBORING NEWS

FOWLERVILLE—The survey has been made and stakes set by the state highway department for the building of the cement road from where it was left east of this village to the west side of the village.

Clay Gordon solved the road problem Friday when he loaded his family on a stoneboat and took them to the Farmers club meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Wilkinson.—Review.

FOWLERVILLE—The proposition of bonding the village for $75,000 to build a new schoolhouse carried by three votes. The election was held Thursday. Two hundred forty-five votes were cast. One hundred twenty-four favored the plan while 121 voted "No."

The school board with J. B. Munsell as chairman are pushing the plans for the new building which they hope to have well under way if not complete by September 1, 1922.

The plans for the new building are being drawn by W. S. Holmes of Lansing, a member of Fowlerville high class of 1903.

Bonds will be issued for $75,000 to cover a period of 25 years.

HINMAN MILKERS

The one farm machine that you only buy once in a lifetime and that you use for every day. The upkeep expense is less than $1.50 per unit per year. Can you still honestly say that you can afford to milk cows other than with a Hinman, especially since the big reduction in price? R. E. Barron, Howell.

Abundant vitamin now contained in small yeast tablet

Yeast Foam Tablets are from 4 to 5 times as concentrated as the ordinary baking yeast. The necessary vitamin potency, therefore, is contained in a much smaller dose.

"CONGRATULATE YOU," writes a well-known physician, "on your new therapeutic yeast. I am sure it will be welcomed by the medical profession and by thousands of people who dislike eating such large quantities of fermentative baking yeast—as well as by countless others who sought in vain for any appreciable tonic benefits in many drug-laden and untested 'vitamin' preparation."

This yeast supplies what modern foods lack

Yeast Foam Tablets correct a serious deficiency in present day diet by supplying the essential vitamin which is found in many raw foods but which is completely eliminated, in many cases, by the time these same foods reach our table.

This vitamin is necessary to digestion and the conversion of foods into healthy tissue and bodily vigor.

Without sufficient quantity of vitamin your body goes sick and you are only too aware of it in such signs as loss of appetite, failing strength and endurance, nervousness, sallow skin and other definite signals of vitamin starvation.

Yeast richest source of vitamin

In the yeast plant is an abundant store of this indispensable vitamin and in Yeast

Foam Tablets there is nothing but pure whole yeast—millions of these tiny plants being concentrated in each tablet.

The vitamin potency of this new yeast is therefore high and, consequently, its tonic and reconstructive properties are most unusual.

Yeast Foam Tablets are made by the world's largest manufacturers of dry yeast, the makers for 45 years of the famous baking yeasts, Yeast Foam and Magic Yeast.

They are the result of two years of experiment conducted under the guidance of some of the country's leading medical scientists. Recommended by physicians and sold by druggists everywhere.

Extraordinary advantages of Yeast Foam Tablets

The only pure, whole yeast in easy-to-take tablet form.

They contain no drugs or other ingredients. They do not form gas nor cause belching.

They are the only pure, whole yeast suitable for children; they do not cause fermentation.

Each lot is tested to insure high and uniform vitamin potency.

The second attempt to close Howell's Sunday moving picture shows failed when voters, by a majority of 130 out of 1,200 votes cast, disapproved an ordinance submitted by the city council. The election followed a two weeks' campaign, in which the Sunday closing ordinance was the chief issue.

LAKELAND—C. L. Vandercook of Loath, Mich., who made himself famous last winter by catching 34 sharks at Punta Gorda, is in Lakeland to spend the next three weeks, being located at the Bridges Hotel. Mr. Vandercook has spent many winters in Florida at St. Petersburg and Punta Gorda. He has spent this season at the latter point but is in form this year, owing to the unsatisfactory state of his health, so that he is captured only 35 sharks this year. Mr. Vandercook fishes with a 100-foot line and makes a specialty of catching salt water cat fish as well as sharks. He is much pleased with Lakeland in spite of the absence of sharks.—Florida Lake and News.

CULTI-PACKERS
I have the Dunham Standard Cultipacker that is put up with the Wood or Bronze bearings. You should see the Dunham Standard if you are interested in a culti-packer, as there is a difference in Dunhams. R. E. Barron, Howell.

MILFORD—Mrs. Crosby had been showing a branch of a cherry tree which is rushing the season with 215 clusters of blossoms. It is only correct to state, however, that the cherry branch was one used to decorate her show window on Washington's birthday. Then it was put in water and a month later was a mass of bloom.—Times.

CHELSEA—A fire in the home of F. W. Hamlin at 549 McKinley street Wednesday morning practically demolished the house. The fire was discovered at 5:30 o'clock by John Buehler, who aroused the neighborhood and gave the alarm. The Chelsea fire department responded at once and had it not been for a split fire hydrant which reduced the pressure they would have been able to save more of the house.

When the Hamlins were called the roof and the floor of the house was in flames. They had hardly enough time to pick up a few clothes and escape. When they came down the stairs it was a mass of flames and not more than three minutes after the family had descended the stairs fell in.

The building and furniture was practically a total loss, but the furniture was partially insured. The amount of the loss is about $5,000.—Times.

KOKOMO FENCE
You make an investment whenever you buy a rod of Kokomo fence. You have added a permanent improvement to your farm which increases its value. The Kokomo has a lead coating and two coatings of galvanizing. R. E. Barron, Howell.

BRIGHTON—Will Hodge and family had just returned from Fowlerville Sunday when they discovered a fire on the second story. Neighbors helped put it out, but $200 worth of damage was done. Mr. Hodge had just about finished remodeling and re-furnishing that part of his house, too. He had no phone connection with Brighton to get the department, if it had been needed.—Times.

A Cordial for Low Spirits.
 No man's spirits were ever hurt by doing his duty; on the contrary, one good action, one temptation resisted and overcome, one sacrifice of desire or interest, purely for conscience' sake, will prove a cordial for weak and low spirits, far beyond what either indulgence or diversion or company can do for them.—Palcy.

PLAIDS AND FRINGES

Fashion still puts striped materials in the lead for sport skirts, but they have some competition in plaid and checked patterns in all skirt materials. Checks with fringed edges, are reminiscent of shawls and they make many of the smart new models in which the fringe is substituted for a hem at the bottom of the skirt and also finishes the patch pockets. A skirt of this kind appears in the picture above, cut on simple lines and having a separate belt of the material. These fringed materials are particularly smart in the new wrapped skirts with the fringed edge arranged to run from belt to hem.

Sport skirts and street skirts are a little longer than they were, the regulation length being from six to eight inches from the floor. Flannel in plain colors, in stripes and plaids, is a rival for prunella and other cloths.

The board of State Tax Commissioners are making a drive to get the land contracts on record and on the tax roll and a new law now makes banks report such contracts as may be deposited with them. It is said these contracts have generally escaped taxation, but it is now made a misdemeanor to conceal such property for the purpose of getting away from paying taxes.

Week-day schools in religious education opened some time ago at Plymouth with about 80 pupils. The school meets for an hour on the afternoons of two days each week in two of Plymouth's churches. The curriculum includes training in worship, instruction in the Bible by means of story telling, memory tests and similar methods. Plymouth is the latest center to open classes for the religious education of children during school hours.

FAKE EMPLOYING PLAN REVEALED

MANY CHICAGO ITALIANS PAY $10 FOR FORGED ORDERS FOR FORD JOBS.

BLACKHAND GANG IS BLAMED

Amazing Plot Brought to Light When Go-Between is Arrested and Brought to Detroit.

Detroit—A swindle in which the method employed was the sale to residents of the Italian quarter of forged orders for employment at the Ford River Rouge plant, was revealed last week with the return from Chicago of David Washington, a Negro prisoner, for whom warrants were issued over a month ago. More than 100 men of Italian descent were duped into purchasing the orders, each of which netted the swindlers $10. Washington, when arrested, told Chicago police of an amazing plot by Italian blackhanders in Detroit, asserting he was merely an agent and go-between for an organized ring. The prisoner was returned from Chicago by Detective O'Rourke. He is being held on the two charges for further investigation. The modus operandi was for Washington to approach his victims with application blanks for employment at the River Rouge plant. The blanks were identical with those used in the plant, and were signed with the name of the chief of the River Rouge Ford employment agency. The signatures, according to police, were cleverly forged. The victims, who invariably were of Italian descent, were told that one of the forms would obtain employment for them at River Rouge. One hundred and eight men purchased the forms, paying $10, so far as is known to police. It is believed there were many others. On February 18 the men who had purchased the "orders" appeared at the gates of the River Rouge plant. Several of them were admitted, as the orders appeared genuine. The gate-men at the plant began to suspect something, however, and refused to admit all of the applicants. A near

SLAYING PROBE CAUSES STIR

Startling Disclosures Expected as Aftermath of Beck's Shooting.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Disclosures, nationwide in scope, threaten to link the name of dashing army officers with socially prominent women, many of them married, and cause a series of scandals expected to startle the country as an aftermath of the tangled web of conflicting stories shadowing the slaying of Lieut. Col. Paul W. Beck, of Post aviation field, Fort Sill. Beck is said to have been shot by Jean P. Day, former supreme court judge, who has told the police he returned home early in the morning and found the army officer forcing his attentions on Mrs. Day. Indications are that the war department may order a far-reaching probe of alleged booze parties which rumor has linked with army posts throughout the United States and in the more isolated national domains.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. Man To His Mate by J. Allen Dunn Illustrations by Irwin Myers

"SCIATICA!"

SYNOPSIS.—Littering on the San Francisco water front, John Rainey, newspaper reporter, is accosted by a giant blind man, who asks Rainey to lead him aboard the sailing schooner Karluk. The blind man tells Rainey he is an old shipmate of Captain Simms. In the cabin they find Captain Simms and a man named Carlsen. Simms recognizes the blind man, calling him Jim Lund. Lund accuses Simms of abandoning him, blind, on an ice floe, and denounces him. Simms denies the charge, but Lund refuses to be pacified. He declares his intention of accompanying the Karluk on its expedition north, where it is going in quest of a gold field which Lund has discovered. Peggy, Simms' daughter, is aboard, and defends her father. Carlsen, who is a physician, drugs Rainey, awaking from his stupor. Rainey finds himself at sea. Carlsen informs him he has been kidnapped. He offers Rainey a share of the gold, and Rainey is forced to declare himself satisfied. Lund gives him a brief account of a former expedition of the Karluk, tells him he distrusts Carlsen, and suggests a "partnership." Rainey to act as Lund's "eyes."

"That makes all the more reason for us lookin' out for things, matey," he went on, almost in a whisper. "If they've played me once they may do it ag'in. And they've got the odds settin' aside my eyes. But I can turn a trick or two. Stick to me an' I'll see you git your share."

"I'll have yore bunk changed. You'll come in with me. An' we'll put one an' one together. We'll be mates. Don't forget they fixed yore grog. I had nothin' to do with that. I may be stranded, but, if the tide rises—"

He set the clutch of his powerful fingers deep into Rainey's leg above the knee with a grip that left purple bruises there before the day was over. "We two, matey," he said. "Now you an' me'll have a tot of stuff that ain't doped."

He moved about the little cabin with an astounding freedom and sureness, chuckling as he handled bottle and glasses and measured out the whisky and water.

"When you're blind," he said, ramming his pipe full of black tobacco, "they's other things comes to ye. I know the run of this ship, blindfold, you might say. I c'd go aloft in a pinch, or steer her. More grog?"

But Rainey abstained after the first glass, though Lund went on lowering the bottle without apparent effect.

"So you're a bit of a sailor?" the giant asked presently. "An' a scholar. You can navigate, I make no doubt?"

"I hope to get a chance to learn on the trip," answered Rainey. "I know the general principles, but I've never tried to use a sextant. I'm going to get the skipper to help me out. Or Carlsen."

"Carlsen! What in h—l does a doctor know about navigation?" demanded Lund.

Rainey told him what the girl had said, and the giant grunted.

"I have my doubts whether they'll ever help ye," he said. "Wish I could. But it 'ud be hard without my eyes. An' I've got no sextant an' no book of tables. It's too bad."

His disappointment seemed keen, and Rainey could not fathom it. Why had both Lund and Carlsen seemed to lay stress on this matter? Why was the doctor relieved and Lund disappointed at his ignorance?

CHAPTER III.

Target Practice.

The Karluk was an eighty-five-ton schooner, Gloster Fisherman type, with a length of ninety and a beam of twenty-five feet. Her enormous stretch of canvas, spread to the limit on all possible occasions by Captain Simms, was offset by the pendulum of lead that made up her keel, and she could slide through the seas at twelve knots on her best point of sailing—reaching—the wind abaft her beam. After Rainey had demonstrated at the wheel that he had the mastery of her and had shown that he possessed sea-legs, Captain Simms appointed him second mate.

"We don't carry one as a rule," the skipper said. "But it'll give you a rating and the right to eat in the cabin." He had not brought up the subject of Rainey's kidnapping, and Rainey let it go. There was no use arguing about the inevitable. The rating and the cabin fare seemed offered as an apology, and he was willing to accept it.

Carlsen acted as first mate, and Rainey had to acknowledge him efficient. He fancied the man must have been a ship's surgeon, and so picked up his seamanship. A sailor named Hansen was promoted to acting quartermaster, and relieved Rainey. Carlsen spent most of his time attendant on the girl or chatting with the hunters, with whom he soon appeared on terms of intimacy.

The hunters esteemed themselves above the sailors, as they were, in intelligence and earning capacity.

There were six hunters and twelve sailors, outside of a general roustabout and butt named "Sandy," who cleaned up the forecabin and the hunters' quarters, where they messed apart, and helped Tamada, the cook, in the galley with his pots and dishes. "Cordin' to the agreement," Lund said to Rainey, "the gold's to be split into a hundred shares. One for each sailorman, an' they chip in for the boy. Two for the hunters, two for the cook, four for Bergstrom, the first mate, who died at sea. Twenty for 'ship's share.' Fifty shares to be split between Simms an' me."

"What's the 'ship's share'?" asked Rainey. "Represents capital investment. Matter of fact, it belongs to the gal," said Lund. "Simms gave her the Karluk. It's in her name with the insurance."

"Then he and his daughter get forty-five shares, and you only twenty-five?"

"You got it right," grinned Lund. "Simms is no philanthropist. It wa'n't so easy for me to git enny one to go in with me, son. I ain't the first man to be taken in."

"An' I had nothin' to show for it. Matter of fact, Honest Simms was the only one who didn't laff at me outright."

"An' we had a hard an' tight agreement drawn up on paper, signed, witnessed an' recorded. 'Course it holds him as well as it holds me, but he gits the long end of that stick. When I read, or got it read to me, in the Seattle News-Courier, that the Karluk was listed as 'Arrived' in San Francisco, it was all I could do to git car fare an' grub money. If I hadn't bin blind, an' some of 'em half-way human to'ard a man with his lights out, I'd never have raised it."

"But I'm here an' I've got some say-so. One thing, you're goin' to git Bergstrom's share. I don't give a d—n where the doctor comes in. If he marries the gal he'll git her twenty shares, ennyway. Though he ain't married her yet. And I ain't through with Simms yet," he added, with an emphasis that was a trifle grim. Rainey thought.

"It's me an' you ag'in the rest of 'em, seems to me, Rainey. The doc's aimin' to be the Big Boss aboard this schooner. He's got the skipper buffaloed. But not me, not by a jugful."

He slammed his big fist against the side of the bunk so viciously that it seemed to jar the cabin. The blow was typical of the man, Rainey decided. He felt for Lund not exactly a liking, but an attraction, a certain compelled admiration. The giant was elemental, with a driving force inside him that was dynamic, magnetic. What a magnificent pirate he would have made, thought Rainey, looking at his magnificent proportions and considering the crude philosophies that cropped out in his talk.

"An' That's the Sort of Woman I'm Lookin' For."

"I'm in life for the loot of it, Rainey," Lund declared. "Food an' drink to tickle my tongue an' fill my belly, the woman I happen to want, an' bein' able to buy ennything I set my fancy on. The answer to that is Gold. With it you can buy most enny thing. Not all wimmen, I'll grant you that. Not the kind of woman I'd want for a steady mate. There's one thing I've found out can't be bought, my son, the honor of a good woman. An' that's the sort of woman I'm lookin' for."

Lund invariably waited for Rainey. Tamada kept the food hot for them. To Rainey, Tamada seemed the hardest worked man aboard ship. He had three messes to cook and he was busy from morning until night, efficient, tireless and even-tempered. The crew, though they acknowledged his skill, were Californians, either by birth or adoption, and the racial prejudice against the Japanese was apparent. A week of good wind was followed by dirty weather. The persistence and increasing opposition of the storm seemed to have a corresponding effect upon Captain Simms. He grew daily more irritable and morose, even to his daughter. Only the doctor appeared able to get along with him on easy terms, and Rainey noticed that, to Carlsen, the skipper seemed conciliatory even to deference. Peggy Simms watched her father with worried eyes. The curious, tanned look of his tanned skin grew until the flesh seemed continually dry and of an earthy color; his lips peeled, and more than once he shook as if with a chill. On the eleventh day out, Rainey went below in the middle of the afternoon for his seaboots. In the main cabin he found Simms seated in a chair with his daughter leaning over him, speaking to her in a harsh, complaining voice. "You ain't doin' nothin' for me," he was saying. "I've got to get Carlsen. I've got to get Carlsen."

As Rainey passed through to his own little stateroom neither of them noticed him, but he saw that the captain was shivering, his hands picking almost convulsively at the tablecloth. "Where's Carlsen, curse him!" Rainey heard through his cabin partition. "Tell him I can't stand this any longer. He's got to help me. Got to. Got to."

As Rainey appeared, walking heavily in his boots, the girl looked up. Her father was slumped in his chair, his face buried in his folded arms. The girl glanced at him doubtfully, apparently uncertain whether to go herself to find Carlsen or stay with her father.

"Anything I can do, Miss Simms? Your father seems quite ill."

The hesitation of the girl even to speak to him was very plain to Rainey. Suddenly she threw up her chin. "Kindly find Doctor Carlsen," she ordered, rather than requested. "Ask him to come as soon as he can. I—"

She turned uncertainly to her father. "Can I help you to get him into the cabin?" asked Rainey.

She thanked him with lips, not eyes, and he assisted her to shift the almost helpless man into his room and bunk. He was like a stuffed sack between them, save that his body twitched. While Rainey took most of the weight, he marveled at the strength of the slender girl and the way in which she applied it. Simms seemed to have fainted, to be on the verge of unconsciousness or even utter collapse. Rainey felt his wrist, and the pulse was almost imperceptible. "I'll get the doctor immediately," he said.

"Mighty funny sort of sciatica," Rainey told himself as he hurried forward. He knew where Carlsen was, in the hunters' cozy quarters, playing poker.

"The skipper's ill," said Rainey. "No pulse. Almost unconscious." Carlsen raised his eyebrows. "Didn't know you were a physician," he said. "Just one of his spells. I'll finish this hand. Too good to lay down. The skipper can wait, for once."

The hunters grinned as Carlsen took his time to draw his cards, make his bets and eventually win the pot on three queens.

"I wonder what your real game is?" Rainey asked himself as he affected to watch the play. According to his own announcement Carlsen was deliberately neglecting the father of the girl he was to marry and at the same time slighting the captain to his own men. Carlsen drew in his chips and leisurely made a note of the amount.

The captain did not make his appearance for that day, the next, or the next. Carlsen kept his own counsel, and Peggy Simms spent most of her time in the main cabin with her eyes always roving to her father's door. Carlsen was the apparent controller of the schooner. Lund was quick to sense this.

"We got to block that Carlsen's game," he said to Rainey. "There's a nigger in the woodpile somewhere an' you an' me got to uncover him, matey, afore we reach Bering strait, or you an' me'll finish this trap squatin' on the rocks of one of the Four Mountain Islands makin' faces at the gulls.

"I wish you c'ud git under the skin of that Jap. No use tryin' to git in with the crew or the hunters. They're ag'in both of us—leastwise the hunters are. The hands don't count. They're jest plain bash."

Lund spoke with an absolute contempt of the sailors that was characteristic of the man.

"They don't look on us two as mascots," went on Lund. "But to git back to that Jap. Forewarned is forearmed. He ain't over an' above liked, but they've got used to him goin' back an' forth with their grub, an' they sort of despise him for a yellow-skinned coolie."

"Now, Tamada ain't no coolie. I know Japs. He's a cut above his job. An' there ain't much goin' on that Tamada ain't wise to. See if you can't get next to him. Trouble is he's too d—n neutral. He knows he's safe, becuz he's cook an' a d—n good one. But he's wise to what Carlsen's playin' at."

"Carlsen don't care for man, woman, God or the devil. Neither do I."

"The Skipper's Ill," said Rainey. "No pulse. Almost unconscious."

he concluded. "An' I've got a card on two up my sleeve."

The storm blew out, and there came a spell of pleasant weather. Simms was still confined to his cabin.

Except for observations and the details of navigation, Carlsen left the schooner to Rainey. They were well off the coast, out of the fogs, apparently alone upon the lonely ocean that ran sparkling to the far horizon. It was warm, there was little to do, the sailors, as well as the hunters, spent most of their time lounging on the deck.

Lund hung over the rail, smoking, or paced the deck, always close to Rainey. The manner in which he went about the ship was almost uncanny. Except that his arms were generally ahead of him when he moved, his hands, with their woolly covering of red hair, lightly touching boom or rope or rail, he showed no hesitation, made no mistakes. When the breeze was steady he would even take the wheel and star perfectly by the "feel of the wind" on his cheek, the slap of it in the canvas, or the creak of the rigging to tell him if he was holding to the course. And he took an almost childish delight in proclaiming his prowess as helmsman.

The booms were stayed out against swinging in flaws and the rail of the sea, and Lund strode back and forth behind Rainey, who had the wheel. The hunters were grouped about Carlsen, who, seated on the skylight, was telling them something at which they guffawed at frequent intervals.

"Spinnin' them some of his smutty yarns," growled Lund, halting in his promenade. "Bad for discipline, an' bad for us. He's the sort of fine-feathered bird that wouldn't give those chaps a first look ashore. Gettin' in solid with 'em that way is a bad steer. You can't handle a mat you make a pal of, w'en he ain't yore rank."

"Captain Simms seems to believe in him," answered Rainey. He wondered how much of Carlsen's increasing dominance over the skipper Lund had noticed.

"Simms is Carlsen's dog!" exploded Lund. "The doc's got somethin' on him, mark me. Carlsen's a bad egg an', w'en he hatches, you'll see a buzzard. An' you wait till he's needed as a doctor on somethin' that takes more'n a few kind words or a lick out a bottle."

Hansen came aft, offering to take the wheel. "They bane goin' to shute at targets," he said. "Meester Carlsen he put up prizes. For rifle an' shotgun. Thought you might like to watch it, sir."

"That was splendid, Mr. Rainey! Wonderful! It was brave of you!"

St. Joseph, Missouri.—"Both of my sides swelled and hurt me so that I could not move or do any of my work. There was heavy pressure and pains through my lower organs and the doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for these troubles. He said I had this one chance, and if the Vegetable Compound did not help me nothing but an operation would. After taking several bottles I felt it was helping me and now I am able to do my own work. If my testimonial will help others I shall be glad for them to read it and hope your Vegetable Compound will do them as much good as it did me." — Mrs. Wm. LOCKMAN, 513 N. 4th St., St. Joseph, Mo.

CUTTING ROADSIDE TREES ILLEGAL

Many people are not aware that they cannot cut trees within the public highways without making themselves liable to a fine or imprisonment. In the extra session of the legislature of 1921, a law was passed making it a misdemeanor to cut trees or shrubs within the limits of the public highways in the State of Michigan without a permit from the authorities having jurisdiction over such roads. The State Highway Commissioner has jurisdiction in the case of State Trunk Line and Federal Aided Roads, and Commissioner Rogers is determined that the law shall be strictly enforced as far as such roads are concerned in which he has the cooperation of the State Department of Public Safety and the county highway authorities.

HUBAM CLOVER PRICE DOWN WITHIN REACH

Michigan farmers are taking great interest in the possibilities of the new Hubam clover, and are now for the first time in a position to try the crop out on a practical scale, because of lowered market price on Hubam seed.

The days of exploitation of this new crop as a speculative and proposition are long, according to Prof. J. F. Cox, head of the M. A. C. farm crop department. Organized production of Hubam by the Michigan Crop Improvement Association has resulted in a supply of seed which is available at prices on a par with red clover. The State Farm Bureau, at Lansing, is handling seed grown by members of the Association from seed sown from the Michigan Agricultural College experimental station.

"Hubam is a sweet clover which completes its growth in a single season," said Prof. Cox in discussing the new crop. "When planted with oats or barley, as clover is planted, it will produce under favorable weather conditions a very considerable growth for late summer or fall pasturing or soil improvement purposes. It may be planted on wheat or rye, just as clover is planted, and used for the same purpose. When planted alone in early spring it will produce in early July a leguminous hay crop comparable to sweet clover or alfalfa in quality. The value of Hubam as a hay crop has been proved, but its value for forage purposes is as yet undetermined."

"It is recommended that those who desire to try Hubam for forage, seed at the rate of from twelve to fifteen pounds to the acre, inoculating with culture which can be secured from the Department of Bacteriology of the Michigan Agricultural College."

"If the sweet clover, Hubam, will need from one to two tons per acre of finely ground limestone or several loads of marl for proper development on acid land."

BRIGHTON. G. Alfred Bidwell, lifelong resident of this township, died early Thursday morning at his home northeast of the village after a few hours of acute illness. The funeral was held at the house Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Masonic lodge.

George Alfred Bidwell, son of Seth D. and Laura H. Bidwell was born on the old Bidwell homestead, June 29, 1842. He served in the Civil War while a very young man, receiving his discharge at the age of 23.

Mr. Bidwell was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. He has been a member of the Masonic lodge ever since he was 21 years of age, a period of 56 years. At the time of his death he was still in the order of Mason in Livingston county, a contractor and builder, and it is said that he erected more buildings than any other man in Brighton.

What's Your View?

A Paris newspaper inquired of its readers what attributes a Frenchman regards as most desirable in his wife. The 200 replies indicated that health was regarded as the most desirable quality. Then came courage, frankness, wit, fidelity and cleverness in turn. The majority put wealth about halfway down the list and, more surprising still, beauty was placed last of all.—Indianapolis News.
