OBITUARY

Ella Louise Nash was born in Putnam February 11, 1864 and departed from this life May 6, 1922.

September 20 1875 she was united in marriage to Rollin G. Webb, they settling down on the farm where they have spent their lives together. She is survived by the husband and four children to mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother and wife.

The children are Mrs. E. J. Briggs of Howell, Mrs. Ross Hinchey of Putnam, George at home, and Mrs. Ray Hicks of Lansing. She also leaves two sisters, three brothers, five grand children and a host of other relatives and friends.

Mrs. Webb was a woman of high sterling qualities and Christian character, a faithful attendant and helper in the Methodist church until her health failed, ever ready and willing to give assistance to her friends and neighbors. She will be greatly missed by the whole community.

The funeral services were held at the family residence in Putnam on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 P. M., conducted by Rev. J. E. Cook. Interment in the Pinckney cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our most sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors for their kind words and deeds during the illness and death of our dear wife and mother, to the donors of the beautiful flowers, to Miss Martin and Mr. Swarthout for their choice song selections, and to Rev. Cook for his words of comfort.

Rollin G. Webb
George Webb
Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Briggs
Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hinchey
Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hicks

I wish hereby to express my grateful appreciation of the flowers, fruit, and cards which were sent in kindly remembrance of my recent birthday.

PINCKNEY 3—HOWELL 2

The Howell Independents and a goodly number of sympathizers returned to the county seat Sunday afternoon saddened by the defeat of their boasted ball team who took the short end of the score after ten exciting innings of the national game, every round of which was replete with thrills, excitement and uncertainty.

For several innings the score was tied, two and two, and men were frequently on bases, but striving their utmost, neither side could send a man across the plate. The constant practice of Howell makes their team superior in the fielding department to Pinckney, whose players are all business men and workers and do not have time to play ball and practice during Traverse City—Edward Westjohn, 21 years old, was drowned in Boardman river, while fishing from a bridge near the downtown section.

Adrian—The sixty-third commencement exercises of Adrian college will open Sunday night June 11, when the baccalaureate sermon will be delivered.

Lansing—Moody Fox, a student at M. A. C. pleaded guilty to impersonating a city health officer when arraigned before Judge Charles B. Collingwood.

Grand Rapids—Seized with cramps while bathing in a pool in Plaster creek, Peter Craft, 36 years old, drowned. His body was discovered by small boys.

Pontiac—The farm home of Benjamin Darcy, rear Romeo, was destroyed by fire. Cause of the blaze is unknown. The damage is set at $10,000 with $4,000 insurance.

Lansing—Attorney General Wiley and Auditor General Fuller notified treasurers of 37 counties, delinquent in paying taxes to the state, to send in the money at once.

Iron Mountain—Forty day laborers employed by the Iron River Construction company, refused to work unless they were paid $3 for a nine-hour day. They were being paid $3 for a 10-hour day.

Adrian—The Lenawee County Bar association has appointed a committee to arrange for observance by the association of the centennial anniversary of Lenawee's foundation as a separate county, Sept. 10.

Pontiac—Raymond Blaess, Ann Arbor, is held here on a charge of forging a check for $722.60 on Bert Vincent, Milform automobile dealer. Blaess says he is a hay merchant. His bonds were placed at $2,000.

Holland—Miss Nellie Kole, of Fremont, member of the class of 1924 at Hope College, was awarded first place in the Adelaide oratorical contest. She will represent Hope in the woman's department of the state historical contest next March.

Traverse City—Peace reigns again at the city hall following the dropping of impeachment proceedings recently filed against Mayor Swanton and Commissioner Garland. A general rearrangement of city departments has been ordered by the city commissioners.

Lansing—The state will get this year $8,674,831 primary school tax from the Michigan utilities, Auditor General O. B. Fuller announced. The big state utilities which include railroads, sleeping car companies, telephone and telegraph companies were assessed $501,907,950.

Lansing—State utilities commission has authorized the merger of the Citizens Telephone Co. holdings in Grand Rapids with the Michigan State Co. lines, the Citizens stockholders to get American Telegraph and Telephone stock at par for their holdings to the amount of $3,000,000.

Muskegon—"My child was crying for bread, so I made and sold liquor," Louis Purillo told Judge Vanderwerp when arraigned for a second offense. The judge said he sympathized with him, but he had already given him a chance, and sentenced him to six months in Michigan Reformatory.

Lansing—The hearing on the petition of the city of Harbor Beach for a resumption in lake service to that port by the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Co. was set by the Public Utilities Commission for June 8. The company has filed a brief setting up that the commission is without jurisdiction.

Marshall—James W. Mackey, former city attorney, has filed suit in the circuit court here against the Marshall Gas Light company, in the name of the city. The complaint alleges that the company has violated its franchise granted in 1866 for 50 years. For the last six years the company has charged meter rates contrary to the franchise, the complaint sets forth.

Grand Rapids—Frank J. Cook, former cashier of the Farmers & Merchants' bank and former county official, who was taken to prison to begin his seven-year term for forgery, refused to accede to the demand of the county auditors to refund $466 he collected as his salary as county purchasing agent during his suspension after the forgery charge was preferred against him. He declared he will press a claim for his salary for his full two-year term, which does not end until January 1, 1923.

Mt. Clemens—Ellis Goldberg, dapper stock salesman charged with violating the Michigan blue sky law by selling $80,000 in worthless film stock to Macomb county people, created a sensation in circuit court by entering a plea of insanity. Judge Richter of Detroit was on the bench. The preponderance of evidence swayed to the prosecution when it was proved by state witnesses that he made illegal sales of stock. On the assurance that Goldberg was entering the plea without undue inducement by outside parties, Judge Richter accepted it.

Grand Rapids—John Huisman, 25 years old, buzz saw operator, was cut severely when he fell upon a revolving saw.

Bessemer—A special election on the issue of $130,000 bonds to cover city deficits of the last five years has been set for June 5.

Muskegon—An organization intended to bring about greater enforcement of the prohibition laws has been formed here. S. E. Pringle was named head of the committee.

Saginaw—Frank D. Criscaden, 52, prominent in Masonic circles here, died from an internal hemorrhage resulting from over-exertion while cranking an automobile.

Grand Haven—Mrs. J. Fuller, aged occupant of a cottage in Spring Lake, was rescued through a window of the building as she was about to collapse when the cottage burned.

Grand Rapids—After riding for one day less than three weeks, Miss Bertha Silsby, of this city, pedaled into New York. She walked and rode her bicycle approximately 1,000 miles on the trip, which she made alone.

Iron Mountain—While his wife looked on, Pierre Trempler, 32, of Spread Eagle, seven miles from here, shot himself in the head with a rifle. His widow says he was despondent because he had no money to pay the taxes.

Iron Mountain—The entire underground force of 30 men at the Bates mine at Iron River, owned by the Florence Mining company went on strike for higher wages. The wage scale paid is the McKinley scale, or $2.10 for surface men and $2.85 for miners.

Marshall—The extreme heat a few days ago caused a strip of brick pavement on the Marshall-Albion highway to blow up. The explosion occurred just east of the Frank Clark farm and took out a strip of pavement across the road for a space of about five feet.

Monroe—Pinned under his overturned automobile, John Pasie, 32 years old, printer, of Toledo, was killed and his companion, Carl Maunz, 30 years old, stenographer, also of Toledo, was injured seriously. The car skidded and turned turtle in a five-foot ditch.

Detroit—An eight-story fall, in which his body plunged through a glass and steel canopy to the sidewalk ended the life of William Blum, a window cleaner, a few minutes after he started work on his first big contract. A whim of fate saved Blum's partner, Lewis Murov, for he fainted and fell inside the building.

Detroit—Detroit not only has the lowest death-rate of any large city in the country, but within the last year actually restored to normal health 97 of the 100 tubercular babies treated in the city tuberculosis institution at Northville, according to a statement made by Dr. Henry F. Vaughan, superintendent of health.

Saginaw—W. H. Martin, president of the Saginaw County Bar association, has received word from Chief Justice William Howard Taft, of the United States supreme court, that he will be unable to attend the annual meeting of the Michigan Bar association in Saginaw June 9 because of his departure for England June 10.

Saginaw—Mrs. Mary E. Fisk, 12 North Harrison street, who recently celebrated her ninety-first birthday, has been a resident of Saginaw 86 years. She came to Saginaw from Detroit when five years old. It required 11 days to make the trip with horses and wagon. At that time there were only five or six families of white people living here.

Muskegon—The state and city joined in paying tribute to the memory of John Q. Ross, for two terms Lieutenant-Governor of the state and one of the leading figures in the industrial and civic life of Muskegon. Business was practically suspended in the city during the funeral services. Street cars halted for two minutes and many of the business places were closed.

Grand Rapids—A verdict of $400 for the plaintiff has been returned in circuit court in the case of William Collins against former Patrolman Leo W. Rolfe, who was charged with false arrest and imprisonment. Collins says the officer attacked him so severely it was necessary to receive treatment at a hospital before he could be taken to jail and that later a charge of disorderly conduct was dismissed.

Mt. Clemens—Harry J. Meyers, son of Henry Meyers, Detroit, died at a local hospital, the result of a playful accident near the village of New Haven. Meyers, with other companions, motored to a farm near New Haven to visit friends. The young people say he tried to hang by his feet from a cross arm of a pole. His feet slipped and although only a few feet from the ground, two vertebrae in his neck were fractured. Though he remained conscious his body was paralyzed from the neck down.

Detroit—Concluding litigation that has been in progress in the state and federal courts of Detroit and Alpena and Boston, Mass., for nearly half a century, Judge Arthur J. Tuttle in federal court has rendered an informal decision the effect of which will be to give Miss Marian E. Brown, of Boston, approximately $380,000 in money. The settlement probably is the last chapter in a legal controversy that began in 1873. The dispute arose over the ownership and division of lands situated in and near the city of Alpena.

CASHIER'S MOTHER, BROTHER GUILTY

MRS. LANKENAU SENTENCED TO TWO YEARS, CARL GETS 18 AND EDWARD NINE.

$60,000 TAKEN IN SIX YEARS

Most Sensational Criminal Trial in the History of Bay City Ends With Convictions.

Bay City—Mrs. Isabel Lankeau and her son, Edward C. Lankeau, were both convicted in Federal Court May 18, on the first charge of the joint indictment which accused them of being accessories, after the fact, to the embezzlement, by Carl J. Lankeau, another son, of $60,000 from the Bay City Bank.

Edwards was also convicted on five charges of receiving embezzled money and in aiding and abetting the embezzlements of his brother. The jury, which was out about four hours, asked to be excused from reporting on the other counts against Mrs. Lankeau.

In the evening, the mother and her two sons were sentenced by Judge Arthur J. Tuttle. Carl had been convicted last October and was held here as a witness in the trial of his mother and brother. Carl was sentenced to Atlanta Prison for 18 years. Edward to the same institution for nine years, and Mrs. Lankeau, to the Detroit House of Correction for two years. All received their sentences without any show of emotion.

Thus closed the most sensational criminal trial in the history of Bay City. Carl, the eldest son and teller of the Bay City Bank, had confessed to using large sums of the bank's money to cash checks, running into thousands of dollars, which his brother drew on the bank, though the latter never had more than a few dollars on deposit at any one time. He did this, he told the court, because he believed Edward was in need and because Edward was his brother. The defalcations extended over six years.

Mrs. Lankeau is the widow of a former publisher of a German language paper, the Michigan Free Press, in Bay City. She is 62 years old. Carl is 35 and his brother 32. Carl also is married and has one child. All three have been in jail since last fall because of their inability to raise bail.

ONE KILLED IN CAB-TRAIN CRASH

Three Others Seriously Injured At Crossing Accident in Kinde.

Kinde, Mich.—Mrs. John Benorick, 30 years old, was killed instantly, and three other persons were injured, when the automobile, in which they were driving, was hit by a north-bound Pere Marquette passenger train, at the grade crossing in Kinde, May 18.

Mrs. Joseph Wagner, 35 years old, had both legs severed. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meagher were seriously injured.

Buildings obscured the crossing, and it was thought Meagher, who was driving, had no warning that a train was near. An inquest has been ordered.

FLIVVER NO. 6,000,000 NOW OUT

Automobile Magnate Witnesses Passing of Another Milestone.

Detroit—Twenty-two years ago Henry Ford made his first automobile. Thursday morning, May 18, he stood in his factory in Highland Park and saw the motor for car number 6,000,000 turned out. A short time afterwards the motor was installed in a car, and another automobile was rolled out of the mammoth plant.

Ford cars now are sold in every country in the civilized world. The small machine shop in which the first one was turned out has been succeeded by the largest plant of its kind in the world.

HOSPITAL FOR VETS IN MICHIGAN

President Directs Committee to Seek Site for Institution.

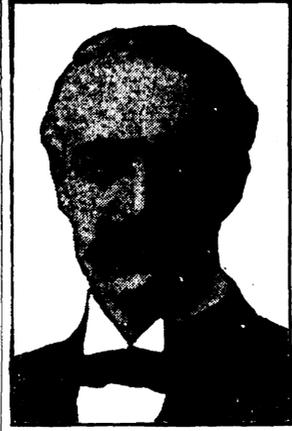

Washington—Michigan, the state having the greatest percentage of disabled soldiers in proportion to its military strength during the war, is to get a United States government hospital.

President Harding has told Senators Townsend and Newberry, who visited at the White House, that he would instruct the hospitalization committee of the treasury department to cancel plans for constructing a hospital in Great Lakes, Ill., and directed the committee to seek a hospital site in Michigan.

Investigate High Gasoline Prices.

Washington—The McKellar resolution, directing an inquiry into the cause of increased prices of gasoline, would be broadened so that the Senate investigating committee could employ attorneys and summon witnesses, under a substitute resolution introduced by Senator LaFollette (Rep.), Wisconsin, chairman of the manufacturers' committee. LaFollette also submitted an amendment for an investigation into the leasing of the naval oil reserve of Teapot Dome.

"BULL MOOSER" WINS IN PENNSYLVANIA PRIMARY

GIFFORD PINCHOT

Philadelphia—Gifford Pinchot, friend of former President Roosevelt, and a Progressive party supporter in the 1912 campaign, won his race for the nomination for the governorship of Pennsylvania in the primary last week, defeating George E. Alter, the candidate endorsed by the regular Republican organization of the state. Senator Pepper received the endorsement of the voters by a large majority.

"WHITE WING" WINS ELECTION

Jim Gannon Shocks Society Town He Now Represents as Alderman.

Chicago—A month ago, Jim Gannon was working on the streets of the exclusive little town of Lake Forest, sweeping or repairing pavements.

He is now alderman of the Third ward of the village and is the political representative of such men as Lawrence H. Armour, Louis F. Swift, Delaware Smith and John A. King, whose motor cars rumble down the winding pathways which were ministered to by his broom.

Gannon did not slide into office on the nicely greased skids of a political machine. Far from it. He worked harder to get votes than ever he did on the streets of Lake Forest.

William J. Quigley was the aldermanic candidate on the "regular" ticket, which was headed by Henry Rumsey, candidate for re-election as mayor of Lake Forest and head of Rumsey & Company, Chicago grain brokers.

When the election returns were in it was discovered that Gannon led Quigley by 51 votes. Now Jim had given up his work on the streets. The little city on the north shore has not yet recovered from the shock of Mr. Gannon's election.

COUPLE GOES BACK TO NATURE

Unclad Pair to Live Absolutely Primitive Life.

Boston—Entering the Maine woods naked without food or weapons, Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Sutter announced here that they will prove that they can live an absolutely primitive life for six weeks.

Sutter, who is 27, and his wife, a slight but strong young woman of 23, have picked the wildest part of north central Maine for their experiment.

Their first problem, in view of the coldness of the climate, will be to make themselves clothing from the inner bark of certain trees. Fish and game will be caught with crude implements of their own manufacture.

The area selected is uninhabited and abounds with various wild animals, but the pair of nature lovers, skilled in woodcraft, scoff at suggestion of danger.

If they can live in the woods six weeks, they contend, it will be proof that man can return to primitive conditions and live so indefinitely.

JOHN DODGE SUED FOR $10,000

Check Made Out in Payment of Wager Unpaid, is Claim.

Detroit—Civil action has been brought by Nic Frank to collect $10,000 from John Duval Dodge and Albert A. Day, the latter well known in boxing circles. In his bill of complaint, filed with the county clerk, Frank says that $10,000 represents money loaned to the defendants July 1, 1921.

Chief Assistant Prosecutor Robert M. Toms refused to recommend a warrant in this case sometime ago. Upon investigation, he reported, he found that a check for $10,000 given by Dodge to Day, and returned by the bank marked "insufficient funds," was given as the result of a wager.

Orders Armour to "Unscramble".

Washington—The Federal Trade commission, announcing that it was attempting to do what the late J. P. Morgan declared could not be done, issued an order to "unscramble" Armour and Company, and the E. H. Stanton Company of Spokane, Wash. The commission declared that the acquisition of the E. H. Stanton Company by Armour & Company, was a violation of the Clayton anti-trust act, and ordered Armour to dispose of all capital stock of the Stanton Company.

Separate Bureau for Grafters.
Washington—The House bill providing $500,000 additional for the Department of Justice for prosecution of fraudulent war contracts was passed by the Senate and now goes to President Harding for approval. Reorganization of the Department of Justice to provide a separate bureau for prosecution of war fraud cases is under way.

Girl Returned to Institution.
Bucyrus, O.—Irene Menges, 26 years old, rescued recently by county officials from an iron-sheeted smokehouse on her father's farm, near Crestline, where, it was said, she had been held prisoner for two years, was returned to the Toledo State Hospital as insane. She was released from that institution in 1915 as mentally competent. She was committed after an examination as to her sanity. Since her rescue she has been at the home of Sheriff Edward Knappenberger.

COAL CONFERENCE CALLED BY HOOVER

NON-UNION OPERATORS ASKED TO CO-OPERATE TO AVERT FUEL CRISIS.

WAR TIME PLAN TO BE REVIVED

Hoover Suggests That District Committees Receive and Distribute Orders While Strike Lasts.

Washington—Administration plans for holding down soft coal prices were carried a step further Sunday when Secretary Hoover issued a general call for a conference of all the 1,500 odd operators whose mines are still producing. The conference is to be held in Washington, May 31.

The operators will be asked to approve and put into effect the scheme of creating district committees to receive and allocate all orders during the duration of the strike, and with co-operation from the Washington committee to prevent coal going into hands of speculators and middlemen who may unduly enhance prices.

Fifty operators controlling the bulk of present non-union and open shop production have pledged themselves to support the plan using the Garfield prices as a general basis from which to set up fair price standards.

This would establish mine prices of bituminous in a range of from $2 to $3 per ton.

Striking union miners have gone back in considerable numbers only in southeastern Kentucky and Tennessee, according to a report of the geological survey, and the production figures generally "suggest no marked change in the number of men on strike." Anthracite production, it was said, "remains at practically zero."

FAMILY FEUD COSTS TWO LIVES

One Man Shot, Other Dead From Shock, Woman Wounded.

Paw Paw, Mich.—F. W. Baldwin and J. C. Geddes, are dead. Mrs. Baldwin seriously wounded and William Cole was taken to the county jail on a charge of murder, the result of a shooting affray Sunday afternoon following a long-standing feud between the Baldwins and Cole families over a line fence.

After wrangling with his neighbor for several minutes, Cole rushed into his home and got a loaded revolver, police declare. In a fight which followed, Baldwin was shot through the heart and killed. A shot hit Mrs. Baldwin. Cole was overpowered by other neighbors.

Geddes, an elderly man who had been suffering from heart attacks for several months, was watching the scene from his porch a couple hundred feet away when the fatal shot was fired. He was seen to fall from his chair to the floor and when members of his family reached his side he was dead.

SHIPS CRASH; MANY LIVES LOST

Collision Occurs Near French Coast; Dense Fog Blamed.

Brest, France—Nearly 100 persons perished Saturday night when the Peninsular and Oriental Line steamer Egypt sank off the Island of Ubat, after a collision with the French freight steamer Seine.

The collision occurred during a dense fog within 22 miles of the Armen lighthouse. The dinner gong was going about to be sounded on board the Egypt. Many of the passengers and most of the crew were on deck. The shock threw several persons into the sea; others jumped and a number went down with the ship, which sank in 20 minutes. The Egypt was rammed amidship on the port side.

FILM STAR ACCUSED OF BIGAMY

Rudolph Valentino in Meshes of Law; Out on Bail.

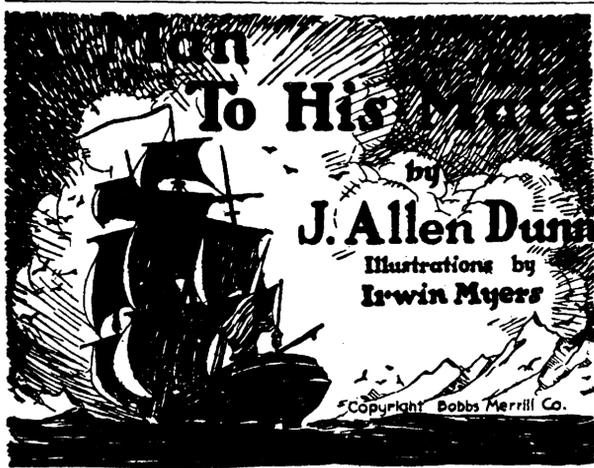

Los Angeles—Rudolph Valentino, motion picture hero, has been accused of bigamy, in a complaint issued by Deputy District Attorney McClelland, as the result of the actor's marriage on May 12 at Mexicali, Lower California, to Miss Winifred Hudnut.

Bail was fixed at $10,000 in bonds and $5,000 in cash which was immediately furnished. The hearing is set for June 1.

Mr. Valentino was married to Jean Acker in 1919, and was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce on January 10, last. This decree was not to become final for one year.

Americans Must Face Trial.

Mexico City.—A dozen Americans who have been captured recently in the Tampico oil fields, charged with inciting to rebellion and committing robberies, will be dealt with by the Mexican authorities without any plea for leniency from American officials, it is said at the American embassy. The official advice indicates that the men were violating Mexican laws, and that Michael, who was killed May 6, were those under the leadership of Motomarauding bandits.

SOME FIGHT!

Synopsis.—Looting on the San Francisco waterfront, John Rainey, newspaper reporter, is accosted by a giant blind man, who asks Rainey to lead him aboard the sealing schooner Karluk. In the cabin they find Captain Simms and a man named Carlsen. Simms recognizes the blind man, calling him Jim Lund. Lund accuses Simms of abandoning him, blind, on an ice floe, and denounces him. Simms denies the charge, but Lund refuses to be pacified. He declares his intention of accompanying the Karluk on its expedition north, where it is going in quest of a gold field which Lund has discovered. Peggy, Simms' daughter, is aboard, and defends her father. Carlsen, who is a physician as well as first mate, drugs Rainey. Awakening from his stupor, Rainey finds himself at sea. Carlsen informs him he has been kidnapped. He offers Rainey a share of the gold, and Rainey is forced to declare himself satisfied. Lund gives him a brief account of a former expedition of the Karluk, tells him he distrusts Carlsen, and suggests a "partnership." Rainey to act as Lund's "eyes." Rainey is made second mate. Captain Simms is ill and the navigation is entirely in the hands of Carlsen. At the latter's suggestion a shooting match is staged and the seal hunters exhaust their ammunition. Carlsen shows his skill with the pistol and Lund does some astonishing shooting "by sound." Sandy, the ship's boy, is swept overboard and is rescued by Rainey, who thus wins Peggy's admiration. The seal captain gets worse. Sandy tells how Carlsen is stirring up trouble over the division of the gold. Carlsen draws a gun on Rainey, who overpowers him. Tamada, the mysterious Japanese cook, declares himself neutral. Lund, his sight restored, kills Carlsen. Captain Simms dies.

"I guess he was 'Honest' Simms," after all," said Lund at last. "The gal blames me for the morphine, but Carlsen never meant him to live. She'll see that after a bit, mebbe."

Rainey glanced at him curiously. He was getting fresh lights on Lund.

Then the girl appeared, pale, composed, coming straight up to Lund, who halted his stride at sight of her.

"Will you change the course, Mr. Lund?" she said. "Father spoke once more. After you left. He does not want to go on to Unalaska. He said it would mean a rush for the gold; perhaps you would have to stay there. He does not want you to lose the gold. He wants me to have my share. He made me promise. And he wants—he wants"—she bit her lip fiercely in repression of her feelings—"to be buried at sea. That was his last request."

She turned and looked over the rail, struggling to wink back her tears. Rainey saw the giant's glance sweep over her, full of admiration.

"As you wish, Miss Peggy," he said. "Hansen, 'bout ship. Hold on a minute. How about you, Miss Peggy? If you want to go home, we can find ways at Unalaska. I play fair. I'll bring back yore share—in full."

"I am not thinking about the gold," the girl said scornfully. "But I want to carry out my father's last wishes, if you will permit me. I shall stay with the ship. Now I am going back to him. You—you"—she quelled the tremble of her mouth, and her chin showed firm and determined—"you can arrange for the funeral tomorrow at dawn, if you will. I want him tonight."

Her face quivered piteously, but she conquered even that and walked to the companionway.

"Game, by Heaven, game as they make 'em!" said Lund.

CHAPTER IX.

Deming Breaks an Arm.

Rainey, dozing in his bunk, going over the sudden happenings of the day, had placed Carlsen's automatic under his pillow after loading it. He found that it lacked four shells of full capacity, the two that Lund had fired at his bottle target, the one fired by Carlsen at Rainey, and the last ineffective shot at Lund, a shot that went astray. Rainey decided, largely through Lund's coup-d'etat, of tearing off his glasses and flinging them at the doctor.

The dynamo that he had idly fancied he could hear purring away inside of Lund was apparent with vengeance now, driving with full force. Lund had brains, cunning, brute force that commanded a respect not all bred of being weaker. In a way he was magnificent. And Rainey vaguely heralded trouble when Captain Simms was at last given to the deep. He felt certain that the hunters under Deming were hatching something big, as the main, his mental prophecy of trouble coming was connected with the girl.

On the border of dreams he was brought back by a strange noise on deck, a rush of feet, many voices, and topping them all, the bellow of Lund, roaring, not for help, but in challenge.

Rainey, half asleep, jumped from his bunk and rushed out of the room. He had no doubt as to what had happened; the hunters had attacked Lund! And, unused to the possession of firearms, still drowsy, he forgot the automatic, intent upon rallying to the cry of the giant. As he made for the companionway, the girl came out of her father's room.

"What is it?" she cried.

"Lund—hunters!" Rainey called back as he sped up the stairs. He thought he heard a "wait" from her, but the stamping and yelling were loud in his ears, and he plunged out on deck. As he emerged he saw the stolid face of Hansen at the wheel, his pale blue eyes glancing at the set of his canvas and then taking on a glint that turned amidships.

Lund looked like a bear surrounded by the dog-pack. He stood upright while the six hunters tore and smashed at him. Lund's arms swung like clubs, his great hands plucked at their holds, while he roared volleys of deep-sea, defiant oaths, shaking or striking off a man now and then, who charged back snarlingly to the attack.

Brief though the fight had been when Rainey arrived, there was ample evidence of it. Clothes were torn and faces bloody, and already the men were panting as Lund dragged them here and there, falling, striking, half-smothered, but always coming up from under, like a rock that emerges from the bursting of a heavy wave.

A hunter lunged out heavily and confidently to meet him as the others got Lund to his knees for a fateful moment, piling on top of him, bludgeoning blows with guttural cries of fancied victory.

Rainey's man struck, and the strength of his arm, backed by his hurling weight, broke down Rainey's guard and left the arm numb. The next instant they were at close quarters, swinging madly, rifle with the one desire to down the other, to maim, to kill. A blow crashed home on Rainey's cheek, sending him back dazed, striking madly, clenching to stop the piston-like smashes of the hunter clenching him, trying to trip him, hammering at the fierce face above him as they both went down and rolled into the scuppers, tearing at each other.

He felt the man's hands at his throat, gradually squeezing out sense and breath and strength, and threw up his knee with all his force. It struck the hunter fairly in the groin, and he heard the man groan with the sudden agony. But he himself was nearly out. The man seemed to fade away for a second, the choking fingers relaxed, and Rainey gulped for air. His eyes seemed strained from bulging from their sockets in that fierce grip, and there was a fog before them through which he could hear the roar of Lund, sounding like a siren blast that told he was still fighting, still confident.

Rainey saw his face, one red mark of blood and hair, with his agate eyes flaring up with the glory of the fight. He roared no longer, saving his breath. One of the men tackling his legs dropped senseless from the buffet he got on the side of his skull, and Lund's kick sent him scudding across the deck limp, out of the fight that could not last much longer.

All this came as Rainey, still dazed, helped himself by the skylight toward the companion, going as fast as he could to get his gun. If he did not hurry he was certain they would kill Lund. No man could withstand those odds much longer.

Lund killed, it would be his turn next, and the girl would be left at their mercy. The thought spurred him, clearing his throbbing head, jarred by the smashes of his still senseless opponent who would be coming to before long.

Then he saw the girl, standing by the rail, not crouching, as he had somehow expected her to be, shutting out the sight of the fight with trembling hands, but with her face aglow, her eyes shining, watching, as a Roman maid might have watched a gladiatorial combat; thrilled with the spectacle, hands gripping the rail, leaning a little forward. She had no eyes for Rainey, her soul was up in arms, backing Lund. The shine in her eyes was for the strength of his prime manhood, matched against the rest, not as a person, an individual, but as an embodiment of the conquering male.

He got the gun, and he snatched a drink of brandy that ran through his veins like quick fire, revivifying him so that he ran up the ladder and came on deck ready to take a decisive hand. But he found it no easy matter to make a shot in that swirling mass. They all seemed to be arm weary. Blows no longer rose and fell. Lund was slowly dragging the dead weight of them all toward the mast. The two men on the deck still lay there. Rainey's opponent was trying to get up, wiping clumsily at the blood on his face, blinded. A man broke loose from the scrimmage, on the opposite side from Rainey, who barely recognized the disheveled figure with the bloody, battered face as Deming. The hunter had managed to get hold of Lund's gun. Rainey's aim was screened by a sudden lunge of the huddle of men. He saw Lund heave, saw his red face bob up, mouth open, roaring once more, saw his leg come up in a tremendous kick that caught Deming's outleveling arm close to the elbow, saw the gleam of the gun as it streaked up and overboard, and Deming staggering back, clutching at his broken limb, cursing with the pain, to bring up against the rail and shout to the seamen:

"Get into it, you d—d cowards! Get into it, and settle him!"

Even in that instant the sarcasm of the cry of "cowards" struck home to Rainey. The next second the girl had jumped by him, a glint of metal in her hand as she brought it out of her blouse. This time she saw him. "Come on!" she cried. And darted between the fighters and the storming figure of Deming, who tried to grasp her with his one good arm, but failed.

Rainey sped after her just as Lund reached the mast. The girl had a nicked pistol in her hand and was threatening the sullen line of irresolute seamen. Rainey with his gun was not needed. He heard Lund shout out in a triumphant cry and saw him battering at the heads of three who still clung to him.

All through the fight Lund had kept his head, struggling to the purpose he had finally achieved, to reach the mast-rack of belaying pins, seize one of the hardwood clubs and, with this weapon, beat his assailants to the deck.

He stood against the mast, his clothes almost stripped from him, the white of his flesh gleaming through the tatters, streaked with blood. Save for his eyes, his face was no longer human, only a mass of flayed flesh and clotted beard. But his eyes were alight with battle and then, as Rainey gazed, they changed. Something of surprise, then of delight, leaped into them, followed by a burning flare that was matched in those of the girl who, with Rainey herding back the seamen, had turned at Lund's yell of victory.

The girl wheeled and fled, dodging behind Tamada, who gave way to let her pass, his ivory features showing no emotion, closing up the fore companionway as Peggy Simms dived below.

Lund did not follow her. Instead, he laughed shortly and appeared to see Rainey for the first time.

"Jumped me, the bunch of 'em!" he said, his chest heaving, his breath coming in spurts from his laboring lungs. "Couldn't use my gun. But I licked 'em. D—n 'em! Equals H—!"

He seemed to have a clear recollection of the fight. He smiled grimly at Deming, who glared at him, nursing his broken arm, then glanced at the man that Rainey had mastered.

"Did him up, eh? Good for you, matey! You didn't have to use your gun. Jest as well, you might have plugged me. An' the gal had one, after all."

He seemed to ruminate on this thought as if it gave him special cause for reflection.

He surveyed the smelly, groaning combatants with the ruse of a conqueror, then turned to the seamen.

"Here, you!" he roared, and they jumped as if galvanized into life by the shout. "Chuck a bucket of water over 'em! Chuck water till they git below. Then clean the decks. Off-watch, you're out of this. Below with you, where you belong. Jump!"

"They all fought fair," he went on. "Not a knife out. Only Deming there, when he knew he was licked, tried to git my gun. Yore yell, Deming," he said, with contempt that was as if he had spat in the hunter's face. "I thought you were a better man than the rest. But you've got yore. Git down below an' we'll fix you up."

Then He Saw the Girl Standing by the Rail.

Lund passed his hand over his face. "I'm some mess myself," he said, stretching his great arms. "Give me a five-finger drink, Rainey, afore I clean up. Some scrap. And the gal! Did you see the gal, Rainey?"

Out of the bloody mask of his face his agate eyes twinkled at Rainey with a sort of good-natured malice.

"After this cheery little fracas," said Lund, mopping at his face, "we'll mebbe have a nice quiet, genteel sort of ship. My gun went overboard, didn't it? Better let me have that one you've got, Rainey."

He stretched out his hand for it. Rainey delivered it, reluctantly. There was nothing else to do, but he felt more than ever that the Karluk was henceforth to be a one-man ship, run at the will of Lund.

But the girl, too, had a weapon. He hugged that thought. She carried it for her own protection, and she would not hesitate to use it. What a girl she was! What a woman, rather! Rainey thought of her as one does of a pool that one plumbs with a stone, thinking to find it fairly shallow, only to discover it a gulf with unknown depth and currents, capable of smiling placidness or sudden storm.

CHAPTER X.

The Rifle Cartridges.

The girl did not appear for the evening meal. She had refused Tamada's suggestions through the door. Lund drank heavily, but without any effect, save to sink him in comparative silence, as he and Rainey sat together, after the Japanese had cleared the table.

"We've got to git hold of those cartridges," Lund said, after a long pause. "Carlsen had 'em planted somewhere, an' it's likely in his room. Best thing to do is to chuck 'em overboard. Cheaper to dump the cartridges an' shells than the rifles an' shotguns."

"Where is the magazine?" asked Rainey.

"In the little room aft o' the galley. We'll look there first. Come on."

The strong room of the Karluk was a narrow compartment, heavily partitioned off from the galley and the corridor. There was a lamp there, and Rainey lit it while Lund closed the door behind them. The magazine was quite empty.

"Thorou' man, Carlsen," said Lund. "Prepared for a show-down, if necessary. Might have put 'em in the safe. Wonder if he changed the combination? I bet Simms didn't, year in an' out. We'll tackle Carlsen's room next. I don't suppose you looked between the bunk mattresses, did you?"

"I never thought of it," said Rainey. "I didn't imagine there would be more than one."

"I've got a hunch you'll find two on Carlsen's bunk. An' the shells between 'em. He kep' his door locked when he was out of the main cabin an' slep' on 'em nights. That's what I'd be apt to do."

As they came into the main cabin Rainey caught Lund by the arm.

"I'm almost sure I saw Carlsen's door closing," he whispered. "It might have been the shadow."

"But it might not. Shouldn't wonder one of 'em's sneaked in. Saw the cabin empty, an' figured we'd turned in. While we was in the strong-room."

He took the automatic from his pocket and went straight to the door of Carlsen's room. It was locked or bolted from within.

"The fool!" said Lund. "I've got a good mind to let him stay there till he swallows some o' the drugs to fill his belly." He rapped on the panel with the butt of the gun.

"Come on out before I start trouble."

There was no answer. Lund looked uncertainly at Rainey.

"I hate to start a rumpus ag'in," he said, jerking his head toward the skipper's room. "Count of het. Reckon he can stay there till after we've buried Simms. He's safe enough."

"She's a woman," said Lund. "An' you're a d—d prig."

Old Age.

To those who have no recourse in themselves for living well, every age is burdensome. We must fight against disease. Regard must be paid to health. Moderate exercise must be adopted. So much of meat and drink must be taken. Senile folly, which is commonly called dotage, belongs to weak old men, but not to all. For, as I like young men in which there is something of the old, so I like old men in whom there is something of the young. One who always lives in these pursuits and labors for the welfare of the state does not perceive when old age steals upon him.—Cicero.

That Sunday School Class!

Wishing to become acquainted with the methods of her predecessor, a young woman who taught a Sunday school class for the first time asked the group of bright-faced six-year-olds what the lesson had been the previous Sunday. Silence prevailed for a moment. Then a snub-nosed urchin waved his hand frantically and when granted permission to speak, answered: "It was about burning the bugs in the church." Conversation with the former teacher afterwards revealed that the lesson had been "Burning Insects in the Temple."

True Detective Stories IROQUOIS MURDER

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THERE are many who have ridiculed the methods by which Craig Kennedy, Sherlock Holmes and other master sleuths of fiction have arrived at their infallibly correct conclusions by deductive reasoning or by mechanical apparatus which registers every fraction of a heartbeat or every minute change in the suspect's respiration.

But every now and then these same methods are used by detectives in real life, frequently with a great degree of success.

For example, there was the Hotel Iroquois murder case in which Police Commissioner Dougherty of New York applied a mixture of the Holmes and Kennedy rules in such a manner as to make the guilty man practically convict himself, although at the time he was ignorant of the fact that he was doing it.

William H. Jackson, a wealthy guest of the hotel, was found dead in his room one morning, stabbed through the heart. His gold watch and several other pieces of jewelry had not been touched, but the only money in his clothes were three twenty-five cent pieces in one of his vest pockets. As Jackson was known to have carried a good deal of money, the supposition was that he had been murdered by someone who had either lost his nerve or who feared to take the watch and jewelry because they could be too easily traced.

Even Commissioner Dougherty's knowledge of the working of the criminal mind could find little that could be dignified by the term "clue."

Jackson had evidently returned to his room rather late the night before—in fact one of the clerks recalled seeing him enter shortly after midnight—but the elevator boy said that he had come up alone, and that no one had gone up or come down from the same floor for several hours afterwards.

"That means nothing," Dougherty pointed out.

After a careful examination of the room and the body of the murdered man, Dougherty returned to his office and contented himself with seeing that the machinery of the police was kept carefully oiled. But to no effect.

As days passed without further developments, the public began to criticize and find fault.

Finally, when the wave of criticism had reached a height that he could no longer afford to overlook it, Commissioner Dougherty decided to try a method which, as he phrased it, "was a shot in the dark—and a hundred-to-one shot at that."

"All we've been able to find out," he said to one of his lieutenants, "is that Jackson was stabbed by a left-handed man, standing behind him and slightly to one side of him. Jackson dropped without a sound and the murderer was able to lift his roll without disturbing the body in the slightest. The whole thing probably didn't take more than sixty seconds. Now, excluding the guests in the hotel at the time—most of whom it's manifestly impossible to reach—I want you to round up every person who was in the Iroquois that night. Find out which ones are left-handed, and bring 'em down here and let me talk to 'em."

"Third degree, chief?"

"No!" snorted the commissioner. "That wouldn't do in this case. At least the old-fashioned kind wouldn't. I'm going to try something new. It's a gamble, but we've got to take a chance."

One by one the left-handed brigade was marched into Dougherty's office. One by one he put to them a set of questions, one of the first of which regarded their health and the state of their pulse. Once he had his finger on the suspect's wrist, he never lifted it until the final question had been asked and answered.

It was not until the commissioner commenced to question Paul Geldel, the elevator boy who had taken Jackson up to his floor the night that he had been murdered, that he noted any material change in the pulse beats of the persons he was examining. When he asked Geldel what he had done immediately after Jackson had stepped out of his car, the boy's pulse heaved and then commenced to race. But his voice was quiet enough as he replied that Jackson had asked him for some ice water, that he had brought it, placed it outside his door, and gone on with his work.

Instantly a thought flashed into Dougherty's mind—"Jackson opened the door, produced a roll of bills, asked for change for a dollar, and tipped Geldel a quarter, slipping the other three into his vest pocket. Geldel, seeing the money, murdered Jackson either then or later. At least he knows something about the crime. His pulse is proof of that."

But, aloud, the commissioner only said: "You're left-handed, aren't you?"

"No, sir," replied Geldel, promptly.

"Right-anded," and again his pulse was racing.

"That'll do," Dougherty concluded. "Thank you for coming here."

The instant the boy left the commissioner ordered him followed. Two days later he was arrested and finally convicted—one of the few cases on record where a man's inability to control his heart-action during the strain of lying, provided the initial indication of his guilt.

TANLAC KEEPS HIM FIT, SAYS MCGRAW

Has Used It for Years With Splendid Results—Fine for Run Down Condition.

"For four years Tanlac has kept me in the pink of condition as I take a few doses of it every time I feel a little run down and it always builds me up again," said Wm. A. McGraw, 207 Beach Place, Tampa, Fla.

"I began taking Tanlac first about four years ago when I was in a very bad state of health and had been run down for several years. I was always taking laxatives, too, but I believe they did me more harm than good. Tanlac made me feel like a brand new man in a very short time and I have never had a return of any of my old troubles. The reason of this I am firmly convinced is that I always have Tanlac handy and take a few doses every time I feel a bit under the weather."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

She is Considered Talkative.

A Northeastern matron is considered talkative. Her chatter usually is bright and entertaining and her good friends only laugh at her loquaciousness. Others, not such good friends, sometimes complain they can't "get a word in edgewise" when she is the company. Two friends called Sunday. They were met at the door by Elmer, nine years old. He admitted them, then went to the stairs and called: "Mother, come down. There's someone here wants to hear you talk."—Kansas City Star.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Remarkable Indeed.

"You see that stout old chap in the corner?" asked Jones.

"Yes. Whath about him?" replied Smith.

"He's a wonderful acrobat."

"Go on! He looks like a stock broker."

"So he is."

"But I thought you said he was an acrobat."

"He's both. I asked him yesterday whether he was busy, and he said: 'My boy, I just hang on from day to day, keeping my nose above water by the skin of my teeth.'"

Fish Stories.

Representative Merrick was talking in Oklahoma City about a fish speculator who had made millions during the war.

"It's a good fish story," he said, "and fish stories are popular. In fact, they've been a popular ever since the days of Jonah."

"In the days of Jonah the fish swallowed the prophet and the people swallowed the story, but nowadays the people swallow the fish and somebody also swallows the profit."

We know of some fellows who are howling for justice who would be surprised if they should get it.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

Livingston County Farm Bureau members are in the midst of their annual township meetings, the main purpose being to elect new officers for the ensuing year.

C. L. Bolander, the new County Agricultural Agent, has attended every meeting so far and has made plans to attend every meeting throughout the county. At some of the meetings there has been a very good turnout, with much interest and welcome shown the new Agent. Mr. Bolander has been favorably impressed by the farmers he has already met, and his one desire now is to be able to get in touch with the whole family. Previous to coming here, he was very much interested in Boys' and Girls' Club work and is in hopes of starting a couple of local clubs in the county this spring. Due to the spring season being so soon past, it will not be possible to get so very much time for club work. He has voiced this plan, that the first couple of communities that express their desire to give the young folks in their communities a little support, he will give them all the support possible and would like to hear from boys and girls who are interested in club work.

Let us have, in the following scheduled meetings, a rousing, good turnout. Whether you are a Farm Bureau member or not, come and bring the whole family and don't be afraid of embarrassing Mr. Bolander by getting him cornered in arguments. Come and voice your thoughts.

NEIGHBORING NEWS

CHELSEA—During the past few weeks there have been several instances when people near the M. C. crossing at Main St. have stood back and held their breath. So far there have been no accidents, but from the narrow escapes that many people have had, and from the law of probability there will be some unless more care is taken.

The gates are not even down some times when the fast trains fly through. Only this morning a couple of boys in a buggy, were crossing the tracks. The train had whistled and given warning, and several people had started to run toward the crossing. It almost seemed that the horse had stopped. There had evidently been no warning from the watch tower until the buggy was on the track. The gates were down when the train had passed.

As the train flew by the engineer leaned out of the window and shook his fist in a menacing manner at the man in the tower. Although no one was any the worse for the narrow escape, it is no wonder that railroads implore the people to be careful. The gates should have been down but they were not. It will pay all to watch such crossings. Tribune.

STOCKBRIDGE—If you are out joy-riding on the state reward roads and the old bus is inclined to ramble right along, you better keep one eye on the speedometer, and the other in the rear of your car, for Deputies Keith Lang and Fred Frye are out patrolling the Ingham county roads.

Equipped with two new Harley-Davidson motorcycles, the traffic cops are going to keep the speed limit down to 35 miles per hour, and during the first week in May they were lenient with those exceeding the rate and gave them fair warning. However, many arrests will follow as Keith and Fred are going to do their duty, and autoists must comply with the law.—Brief-Sun.

SOUTH LYON—Ground was broken this week for the erection of a new building on Lake street, between the stores of A. E. Holloway and Kniffen and Arms. L. E. Lucas, the publisher of this paper, is having the building erected for his own convenience. We expect to be nicely located in our new home sometime early in June, if all goes well.—Herald.

MILFORD—Sheriff Butler and Deputy Colby went to Ann Arbor Sunday and arrested Raymond Blaess of that city on a charge of passing a worthless check for $722.60 to Bert Vincent, local Ford dealer. He was taken to the county jail and demanded an examination which was set for May 24. He was held at the jail in default of $2000 bail.

About three weeks ago Blaess, it is alleged, came to Milford and arranged for the purchase of a Ford sedan which was to be delivered a few days later. He tendered a check signed by Frank Breshenhan on the Detroit National Bank and Mr. Vincent gave him a personal check on the First State Bank for $262.82, representing the difference between the price of the car and the check. He cashed the first state bank check and the check on the Detroit National Bank came back with the information that no account was carried there in that name.—Times.

MILFORD—Big Lake, three or four miles north of White Lake settlement, was the scene of a shooting affair on Sunday noon which caused the death of one John Dogastine, a 30 year old Detroit Italian. The tragedy occurred at the farm of Carlo Crupi, who with his wife and her 20 year old son were taken to the Oakland county jail pending an investigation. Crupi is said to have made a statement at the jail Monday admitting firing the fatal shot. He said Dogastine had come out to his farm either to get $1,000 or $2,000 demanded in Black Hand letters or take his daughter away.

On Wednesday Prosecutor Blakslee ordered the release of all who had been at the jail in connection with the case and made a statement that he believed Crupi to have been justified in the shooting. It has been ascertained that the slain man had been terrorizing the family for a year.—Times.

Geo. Mutter and family of Howell were Sunday visitors at Mrs. Delice Hadley's.

Mr. and Mrs. George Langford and son Bobby, Mrs. Grace, Miss Helen Brace and Harold Roehm of Ann Arbor and Theron L. Moore of Detroit were guests at the Watson home Saturday.

HOWELL—The proposition to bond the city of Howell for the sum of $10,000 for improving the unpaved streets for which a special election was held here Monday, was defeated by a large majority. Of the 355 votes cast, which was exceedingly light considering the city's 2,000 voters, 164 were in favor of bonding and 191 voted against it.

MODERN CLEANING
—ELECTRIC

Old-fashioned cleaning day, with its upset rooms, its tiresome rug beating and sweeping, is a task all women shun.

Modern housecleaning, with the Electric Vacuum Cleaner, is simple and pleasant.

Rugs, carpets, draperies, curtains and upholstered furniture are cleaned with a new degree of thoroughness without moving them from their usual place.

And it is sanitary because there is no scattered, germ laden dust, as with other cleaning methods.

The mail service on the Michigan Air service are registered at this office. The latest failure to deliver mail properly pouched in the Pinckney post office, the Stockbridge mail was not delivered on time.

The reason for the delay in publish-fishermen in an opinion prepared by the attorney general's department.

 Under an old law owners of land along the lake front were given exclusive fish-a law abolishing the limitations. An opinion as to the enforcement of the law was asked by John Baird, state commissioner of conservation, and the attorney general held that fishermen may fish anywhere regardless of prop-

How Do You Feel—
 When You Stoop?

Slow and sluggish movements, tired action, backache, rheumatic pains, stiff joints or sore muscles indicate that something in the human system is out of order. In most cases, these symptoms are the result of waste matter or poisonous acids being left in the blood by the failure of the kidfiltering and casting out impurities from the blood.

"STOPPED HIS BACKACHE"

 Pills, thinking I needed them—my back was hurting and aching all the time. I got so bad that when I would stoop over in the store while at work I could hardly get up such an awful ache in my back. After taking just one bottle of Foley Kidney Pills, my backache was entirely gone and I felt good and strong. I think they are the greatest remedy for backache and irregularities of the kidneys."—W. P. YOUNG, E. F. D. I.,

CHANGE OF LIFE WOMAN'S TRIAL

Proof That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is of Great Help at This Period

Metropolis, Illinois.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it is all it claims to be and has benefited me wonderfully. I had been sick for eight months with a trouble which confined me to my bed and was only able to be up part of the time, when I was advised by a friend, Mrs. Smith, to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. I was so much benefited by the use of these medicines that I was able to be up and about in two weeks. I was at the change of life when I began taking the medicines and I passed over that time without any trouble. Now I am hale and hearty, do all my housework, washing, ironing, scrubbing, and cooking, all walk there to about a house, and can walk two or three miles without getting too tired. I know of several of my neighbors who have been helped by your medicines."

Depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Nervousness, irritability, heat flashes, headache and dizziness, are relieved by this splendid medicine.

Golden Guinea Hatched.

Grace's father keeps a flock of fine guineas on his Bartholomew county farm, but Grace, a pupil in Columbus high school, was ready to turn over all the blue ribbons for guinea raising to St. C. Harner. She made the acquaintance of "The Weaver of Ravenna" in her English class and she read with wonder the story of his golden guineas, for all of her father's guineas were of a dull gray color. Then test time came and Grace, describing the miser's joy with his gold pieces, wrote bravely: "That morning Silas was happy for he had hatched a new brood of golden guineas to add to his flock." —Indianapolis News.

CLOSE CO-OPERATION NECESSARY BETWEEN CANNERS AND GROWERS

Loading Peas to Be Hauled to the Canning Factory.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Growing canning peas is a specialized industry which requires the closest co-operation between the grower and the canner. A new Farmers' Bulletin, No. 1255, "The Production of Peas for Canning," by Chester J. Hunn, assistant horticulturist, has been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. This bulletin describes the plan followed by canners to provide a supply of peas, and the methods the growers should use in growing, harvesting and handling the crop.

Being legumes, canning peas fit admirably into a general farm rotation in sections where the crop can be grown and have a marked influence in increasing the yield of crops which follow them. Easy accessibility to a canner which will contract for the entire output is a necessity if the growing of canning peas is to be undertaken on a commercial scale. Peas for canning pass their prime condition within a very few days, and it is necessary to handle the crop promptly.

Refuse Is Big Asset.

In dairy and stock-feeding regions the utilization of pea-vine refuse as feed is an important asset. Many canners winter large herds of stock profitably, using pea-vine silage for the greater part of the ration. When pea vines are completely rotted they have a fair fertilizing value but the material should not be used on land to be planted in peas. It is considered a better practice to feed the roughage to stock and obtain manure from the animals, thus securing a double return on the vines and labor.

Peas rank third in tonnage among the canned vegetables of this country. The industry, which originated near Baltimore, Md., is now centralized for the most part in the region about the Great Lakes. In 1920 there were 12,313,000 cases of peas canned, which represented 133,272 tons of peas grown on 139,188 acres.

Fertile Soil Is Needed.

The pea crop requires a mellow, fertile, well-drained soil. The seed bed should be deeply prepared and left with a smooth surface to facilitate harvesting with a mower. The crop, as usually grown in drills like wheat, requires no cultural attention after the seed is sown. Being essentially a cool-weather crop, it is grown most successfully in those regions where the spring is a little slow in changing from cool to warm weather.

The location of a canning factory is determined by the suitability of the section for the growing of peas and by the prospects of obtaining, at equitable prices, sufficiently large crops in the vicinity to run the plant at its full capacity for a reasonable length of time. The pea crop is usually grown under contract. The canning company usually specifies the varieties and acreage to be planted, often provides the seed, and decides the time to harvest. From 10 to 15 acres of peas will maintain a fair rotation balance for a farm of 100 acres.

Such crops as alfalfa and clover may be sown as companion crops with peas. In many sections of the country where the early types of peas are harvested during the first part of June the land may be fitted immediately for some other crop. Often a poor crop of peas may be deliberately turned under without harvesting to get the secondary effect upon any succeeding crop. The increase with wheat following this practice has been noted in New York state as varying from 5 to 18 bushels per acre. Some farmers believe that a marked improvement is also seen on the hay crop and on the pasturage which follows the wheat.

General Suggestions.

Good drainage is very important. Fall plowing is recommended where it can be practiced without injury to the land, and thorough flaking of the top layer of soil at planting time. Weeds are partly prevented by the early working of the ground, by the heavy cover formed by the pea vines, and also by the early harvesting of the crop. Stable manure, when available, may be applied with advantage. Many growers prefer to apply the manure to the previous crop rather than directly to the peas. Manure mixed with decayed pea vines should not be used as this practice is liable to spread diseases affecting the crop. The growing of peas increases the nitrogen content of the soil. Inoculation of the seed will often give an increase of 100 to 700 pounds of peas per acre.

Seed should be procured from a reliable source. It should be from the crop of the previous year and not a blending of new and old seeds. The time for planting and harvesting is determined by the locality. Methods of harvesting and practices followed in disposing of the pea vines are discussed in the bulletin, which is available on application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

RAPE GOOD SUMMER PASTURE

Takes High Rank as Succulent Feed for Hogs and Sheep—Plant Will Endure Frost.

Among the crops which can be grown for succulent pasture for hogs or sheep during the summer and fall months, rape takes high rank. It furnishes abundant food which is greatly relished by those animals; it is easily grown and can be sown most any time in the spring or early summer after there is no further danger of severe frost. It will endure severe frost in the fall and can be pastured late provided stock is kept off when it is frozen.

PROTEIN FEEDS ARE NEEDED

On Average Farm Such Roughages as Alfalfa Hay, Clover or Pea Hay May Be Fed.

A dairy cow may take on flesh when she receives a carbohydrate ration; but her milk flow will continue to diminish until enough protein feed is included to balance the ration. Protein feeds are essential where dairy cows are fed for profit. On the average farm such roughages as alfalfa hay, clover or pea hay may be fed to form the bulk of the protein ration, while cottonseed meal is satisfactory for supplying protein in concentrated form.

GROWING VERY MILD ONIONS

Liberal Use of Well Rotted Cow Manure as Fertilizer Is Favored—Moisture Helps.

It is possible to grow very mild onions by the liberal use of well rotted cow manure as a fertilizer instead of the manure from the horse barn. Apply the manure liberally during the spading process, and plant the onions at least two inches in depth. Too shallow planting will produce stronger onions than deeper planting, no matter what kind of soil is used. Moisture will help also in the production of mild onions.

WHEN TO CUT ALFALFA CROP

Time of Harvesting Always Interesting Subject to Practical Farmer—Some Tests.

The time to harvest alfalfa for hay is always of interest to the practical farmer. In this connection some interesting results have just been published. It has been found that two cuttings taken when the alfalfa was in full bloom yielded as large a quantity as three cuttings taken when the plants were at the tenth bloom stage. However, the quality of the hay was superior when the three cuttings were made.

RATS MULTIPLYING RAPIDLY

Pest Is One of Most Serious Sources of Loss to the Farmer and Poultryman.

Rats are multiplying in numbers every year in spite of all our rat-killing campaigns and propaganda. This pest is one of the most serious sources of loss to the farmer and poultryman. Every effort should be made to free the premises of them, and the fact that they seem to hold their own should only be the signal for redoubting our efforts against them.

GROW COWPEAS IN ROTATION

Few Crops Are Equal to It When It Comes to Standing Drought—Good After Grain.

Cowpeas are excellent crops to follow wheat and oats in a rotation. As soon as the small-grain crop is harvested and removed, a crop of peas may be planted. If the season is suitable a good crop of peas may be expected. Few crops will endure hot weather as peas and very few are equal to it when it comes to standing drought.

Valuable Plant Overlooked.

One very valuable garden plant often overlooked is tame greens. A few square feet will yield many pots of food rich in iron, and at a time when green food is most welcome kale, spinach and turnips are fine for this.

Our Soldier Dead Come Home

By JESSIE DELL

(Historian, Quartermaster Corps, United States Army)

THE big army transport, with its solemn cargo, slowly and majestically steams up New York harbor, into the historic Hudson, and home is again reached!

It is the Cambrai, bringing home more than a thousand soldier dead. With her arrival the solemn duty of the quartermaster corps of the United States army of bringing home the soldier dead bears completion. More than 44,000 have been returned for burial in their homeland. About 32,000 will sleep forever overseas, according to the wish of their next of kin.

And this is the way of their coming home of those who are to sleep forever in their homeland.

Paying its tribute of honor to the memory of these heroes who are nearing the end of "the last journey," the flag floats half-masted from New York's great buildings; from vessels in the harbor. As the ship moors at the pier in Hoboken, she is met by the military guard of honor, two companies of the famous Thirteenth United States Infantry, and by all officers, and civilians on duty in the graves registration offices in Hoboken.

Hundreds of selected men under the personal supervision of our officers and soldiers commence the work of removing the bodies from the ship and conveying them by means of electric trucks to the designated places on "The Pier of the Dead." A flag is then draped over each one and stays there until the coffin is lowered into its final grave, when the emblem is removed and given to the relatives.

As soon as the bodies are at rest on "The Pier of the Dead" the name of each is listed. Then a telegram is sent by the quartermaster corps officer in charge at Hoboken, to the nearest of kin, announcing the arrival of the body and requesting a reply confirming the shipping instructions previously given to that office. When this is received at Hoboken, acknowledgment is promptly made by mail.

If, on the other hand, no reply is received to the first telegram, a second one is sent and if within a reasonable time no reply comes, the failure is immediately telegraphed to the cemeterial division at Washington for their help in locating relatives. After all attempts of the cemeterial division are futile, the Hoboken office is directed to have the body sent to Washington for interment in the Arlington National cemetery. Fortunately, but few of such cases have occurred.

The officer in charge at Hoboken, in addition to his other duties, cooperates with the committees representing the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and other patriotic organizations, in arranging memorial services to be held for the dead arriving on each transport. These ceremonies are most impressive. The military guard of honor stands at "attention" as distinguished men eulogize the dead. The President of the United States, the secretary of war and other members of the cabinet, committees of congress, the chief of staff and other general officers, as well as thousands of relatives and friends have attended these memorial ceremonies.

Relatives from every state in the Union, even from far-away Alaska, have come to Hoboken to meet their boys or "The Pier of the Dead."

As soon as possible after notifying relatives of the return of a body, preparations are made for shipment to its final destination. A telegram goes from the transportation division of the Hoboken office to the nearest of kin, advising of the departure of the body from Hoboken, the hour due for its arrival, and the railroad by which it is sent. When no relative or authorized friend comes to receive and accompany the body to its destination, it is placed in charge of a military escort who remain as guard until the destination is reached and the body is formally turned over to the family.

Another matter given careful attention is in providing the escort to accompany the body home. One soldier is selected who can speak the language of the family to whom he is taking it. It is the duty of this military escort to obtain the written receipt for the body, and the burial certificate. These records are exceedingly important and are carefully preserved in the cemeterial division, because the war risk bureau calls on the division for certification that the funeral has taken place, and on these records depends the authority for that bureau to reimburse relatives for funeral expenses incurred by them. It is to be noted that the quartermaster corps bears all expenses up to the point of turning over the body to the nearest of kin, at its final destination.

Sometimes many bodies are to be sent to the same city; in these cases a special train is provided for the purpose and a military escort for each car. Again it may be that trains leaving Hoboken carry many bodies whose destinations are in several states. In such cases, bodies are segregated according to state and placed in cars which will convey them to the distribution point for that state.

There are sixteen of these distribution points: Atlanta, Ga.; Arlington, Va.; Cheyenne, Wyo.; Chicago, Ill.; Columbia, S. C.; Columbus, O.; Detroit, Mich.; El Paso, Tex.; Little Rock, Ark.; Louisville, Ky.; Omaha, Neb.; Portland, Ore.; San Antonio, Tex.; San Francisco, Cal.; St. Paul, Minn.; and Washington, D. C. At the railroad station at each of these points, the cemeterial division has its representative who keeps in close touch with the nearest army post or camp from which a detail of soldiers for escort is provided to receive the trains bearing the dead.

From this point each body has its military escort, and if requested, firing squads are furnished for the funeral, provided it can be arranged without too great cost of transportation to the government, or without interfering with the duties of the men composing the firing squad.

During the past year there have been 2,364 of our overseas' dead interred in beautiful Arlington National cemetery.

Telegrams announcing the date on which interments will take place in Arlington, are sent to relatives by the chief of the cemeterial division who further advises that should they attend the funeral ceremonies, and should they so desire, all information and assistance concerning hotel accommodation and transportation to Arlington will be given them by the Travelers' Aid society representatives who are on duty in the Union station in Washington.

The splendid, efficient and sympathetic assistance of this society has been a blessing to the relatives of the dead.

The District of Columbia chapter of the Red Cross, at their headquarters on Jackson square, receive all the out-of-town relatives and friends who come to attend these services, and on Mondays and Thursdays, special luncheons are served for them. They also provide motorbus transportation to Arlington cemetery and return.

The interest of the Red Cross does not stop there, for it has made special arrangement with the quartermaster general and the cemeterial division to have large canvas tents pitched at or near the places where the burials take place. Several women representing the Red Cross are always in these tents to receive the relatives and friends and to make them comfortable, or to let them rest until the hour arrives for the services which is announced by the measured tread of the military companies detailed for this duty from the command at Fort Myer.

The detail, with its band, its buglers and its firing squad, is always accompanied by at least two chaplains, one Protestant and the other Roman Catholic, and when necessary a Rabbi is there, to conduct the last rites.

Another touching incident connected with these funerals is the dropping of flowers in each grave as the final prayers are said. This loving act is performed by representatives of the War Mothers, who never fail to be present when Arlington is receiving its overseas' dead.

As we hear the sweetly doleful notes of the band, and listen to the soft-spoken words of the chaplain, followed by the musketry salute, we feel a thrill of solemn pride, a realization that, in hours of need, our country has ever had its full quota of the brave and heroic.

The bugler now steps up to the grave, and as the notes of his trumpet echo amongst the hills and trees, through our thoughts pass the words of "Taps":

Fades the light:
And afar
Goes the day,
Cometh night:
And a star
Leads the all,
Speedeth all
To their rest.

And thus ends the last journey.

Spare to us our friends, soften to us our enemies, bless us if it may be in all our inane endeavors, if it may not, give us the strength to encounter that which is to come, that we may be brave in peril, constant in tribulation, temperate in wrath, and in all changes of fortune, and down to the gates of death, loyal and loving to one another."

Permanent Teeth

When your permanent teeth are all in place nature has finished her tooth job. You have your share of teeth and if you don't take care of them you will either have to do without teeth or use artificial ones. Who wants to do without teeth? Certainly you and we don't. Besides, it is not very pleasant to have them taken out. Your permanent teeth are a wonderful mechanism. They masticate your food, give shape and expression to your face and distinctness to your voice. The loss of even one tooth is a very serious injury, but the loss of more than one is a calamity. The longer you live the more you need your teeth.—National Dental Association Journal.

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

Massive Silver Set Ordered by Napoleon I Put on Exhibition at New York.

The massive silver set of 910 pieces ordered by Napoleon I, during the hundred days, delivered after his abdication to Louis XVIII, and used by the French royal family at Tuileries palace from 1815 to 1830, has been placed on exhibition in New York. Two bullet holes in the soup tureen bear evidence of the revolutions it has passed through. Each article bears the Bourbon coat of arms, the fleur de lis surmounted with the crown and is stamped with the official government mark, the mark of the chief craftsman and of the guild. Napoleon I ordered this set of silver from Biennais on his return to France from his first exile on the island of Elba. It was made during the hundred days of Napoleon's second reign, but before it could be delivered Napoleon was forced to abdicate and was again exiled this time to end his days on St. Helena. Louis XVIII, his successor, paid Biennais for the silver and had the Bourbon coat of arms placed on it. The set of silver passed finally to the heirs of the duc de Chambord and through them has come to North America.

As He Understood It.

A five-year-old boy was pleading to be allowed to go out to play. His mother became rather cross and said: "When I see fit, you shall go." The boy relapsed into silence, while his mother went hither and thither about her work. In half an hour he asked: "Mamma, have you seen him yet?" "Seen who, child?" "Why, seen fit."

Old Darry's Description of Wife's Failing Aptly Spelled Out Word He Didn't Understand.

Moses Diggs, an old Alabama darry, had been arrested for having more than one wife, the last woman being the complainant. He happened to be well known locally and considered an orderly character.

"How many wives have you had?" demanded the examining judge.

"Six, yo' honah," was the reply.

"Why couldn't you get on with them?"

"Well, sah, de fust two sp'iled de white folks' clo's when dey washed 'em; de thud' won't no cook; de fo'th was ject nacherally lazy; an' de fifth—I'll tell you, judge, de fifth, she—" "Incompatibility?"

The Greatest Dam.

The world's greatest dam, the Sonar, is being rushed to completion on the Blue Nile river, 2,000 miles south of Khartoum, Africa, where Lord Kitchener became famous.

This dam will bring under irrigated cultivation 3,000,000 acres of farming land now idle. It will run a swarm of factories, mightier than the pyramids.

Ancient way of conquering a territory was to enslave the inhabitants. Modern man's great conquests harness nature's forces and free human labor.

And Still Going.

This is a bad time for young men to impose on the old folks by sitting up with their daughter while coal oil is 15 cents a gallon and with an upward tendency.—Forty-five Years Ago Item in Newton Kansan-Republican.

From time immemorial woman has worn on the third finger of her left hand a plain band of gold as a symbol of her honored position of wifehood. And when death takes from her the partner of her life she signifies her loss and grief by wearing appropriate garb.

But in what a different manner today the widow of the present, that is, the one who by the sanction of the courts, has resigned her job as wife, makes known to all the world her renewed state of single blessedness. For the grass widow of today has just adopted the latest of fads, the "divorce ring." The jeweled symbol of the severance of the marital tie takes the place of the former gold band. It is made of gold or platinum on which is mounted a broken Cupid's bow at the end of which is set a jewel to represent a divorce. Should the wearer once more embark on the matrimonial sea and again come to wreck, then another jewel is added to indicate the second divorce, and so on.

Tough.

When Hungry Little Muscles Say, "Please Help Me"

DID you ever stop to think who it really is that's talking, when childish voices raise a clamor, "Mother, I'm hungry?"

It's really muscles and bones and nerves and cells worn in the stress and strain of play—that are calling for rebuilding material.

What kind of an answer? The right thing, or just anything? It makes a big difference.

Grape-Nuts, so deliciously crisp and appetizing to taste, and so quick and convenient to serve, is a splendid food for rebuilding young bodies. All the wonderful nutriment put in wheat and barley by Nature, including the vital mineral elements, is there—and Grape-Nuts digests easily, quickly and completely. Served with cream or milk, Grape-Nuts is exceptionally nourishing.

"That's splendid!" says appetite. "That's just the need!" say the hungry muscles, nerves and bones.

Ready to serve right from the package—always crisp and fresh. A favorite dish with all the family. Sold by grocers.

the week. But the Pinckney players showed their calibre by perseverance and hard work and frequently by brilliant fielding. Roy Bird playing in right field, by a clean pick-up of what seemed to be a safe hit, and a quick accurate throw from deep right, caught the Howell base runner by yards before he reached the initial bag.

Roche Shehan in center field made several phenomenal running catches in his garden of difficult flies. Claude Kennedy defeated what seemed like certain victory for Howell with the bases full, by a high leap in the air, catching a hot liner and starting a double play that brought cheers from the spectators. Kennedy was also much in evidence throughout the game with the willow, getting a single, base on balls and two three-baggers out of 4 times at bat. Cook also knocked out a three-bagger and singles.

Lapham pitched another good game for Pinckney, cool and steady in the pinches, pitching and fielding like a leaguer. He struck out eight of the first twelve Howell batters who faced him.

The umpiring of Edwards of Howell and S. D. Lapham of Pinckney was of the highest order, only a few decisions being questioned by the excited fans. Mr. Lapham knows the game thoroughly, is prompt with his decisions and has a clear penetrating voice that all can hear. If there is any criticism to offer on his umpiring it is that he might have given his son, pitching for Pinckney, the best of some of the close decisions on balls and strikes instead of otherwise.

The spectators numbered over twice as many more than the Dexter game and there is no doubt but that if the home team continues to offer the same brand of base ball that was shown in the first two games this season they will draw good crowds and the patronage that such playing deserves.

The batteries were: Pinckney, Lapham and Cook; Howell, Griffin and Bassett.

Howell plays another game here on Sunday, June 3rd when they will again try conclusions with the locals. Pinckney plays at Dexter next Sunday, May 28th.

BRIGHTON—At the meeting Tuesday night plans for a celebration in Brighton on the 4th of July were re-organized and the committee has renewed its activities. Developments will be made public as rapidly as possible.

The crowd at the dancing party at the Island Lake pavilion lacked only a few couples of being as large as the crowd at the opening dance a week before. It is noticeable that while many pavilions provide only a place for young people to come, the Hearn Company has made a place that they are anxious to return to.

A delicatessen store will be opened next week by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Barron in the building just east of Shaw and Lee's tire shop. The shop is being renovated and painted this week in preparation. Mrs. Barron will do baking and cooking of all fancy pastries and dishes. A complete dinner can be ordered there. Mrs. Barron has already acquired an enviable reputation for this kind of work.

Fire consumed the house and barn on the place five miles east of town recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pinkerton. The origin of the fire is unknown and was discovered by neighbors and passers by. Although a considerable number of men gathered in a short time, it was impossible to save the house because of lack of water. The barn burned first, and there was time to save the contents of the house except one upstairs room. The fire occurred in the afternoon. Mr. Pinkerton is said to be living in Detroit.—Argus.

Cat Evidently Was Offended.

A yellow cat called Shimmy, of no particular breed, but lately a cherished mascot of the Aberdeen (Wash.) fire department, left her home there suddenly. Shimmy, according to the fire laddies, who hunted three days without success for their vanished pet, made her nest in a coil of hose which is used to wash the floor of the fire hall. On the morn of Shimmy's disappearance a careless fireman turned the water into the coil. Shimmy was catapulted toward the ceiling and shot by the stream of water into the street. The cat has not yet come back.

Firestone CORD TIRES

The section at the right was cut from a new Cord of the same size. Careful measurements show that only 1/3 of the tread of the tire on the Yellow Cab has been worn away after this long, gruelling test. The carcass is intact after more than 11,000,000 revolutions.

Firestone Cords have averaged over 10,000 miles on Chicago Yellow Cabs (1,200 cabs all Firestone equipped). In thousands of instances, they have given from 15,000 to 30,000 miles.

Look at the tread—scientifically angled against skid, massive and heavy in the center where the wear comes, tapered at the edges to make steering easy and to protect the carcass against destructive hinging action of high tread edges. The carcass is air bag expanded to insure uniform tension and paralleling of every individual cord. It is double "gum dipped" to make sure that each cord is thoroughly insulated with rubber.

This is the reason why Firestone Cords unfailingly deliver extraordinary mileage. It explains the unanimous demand of thoughtful tire buyers for these values. The local Firestone dealer will continue to provide the personal service that makes Firestone tire comfort and economy complete.
