TO THE LIVINGSTON COUNTY ROAD COMMISSIONERS

Gentlemen:
Your attention is AGAIN called to that dangerous section of the Pinckney and Howell Road, known hereabouts as DEAD MAN'S CURVE

Last Friday evening on their return from the county schools' sports day matinee at Howell, Mrs. Eugene Campbell, Miss Nyra Graves, Andrew and Merwin Campbell, Clare, L. J. and Cecil Hendee and little Lila Lewis escaped death or disability by what might, without exaggeration, be called a miracle.

Mrs. Campbell, a careful automobile driver, was slowly piloting her car around Dead Man's Curve, north of town on the Howell road, when Lila Lewis, a little tot not more than five or six years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Lewis, coming along the road, without an instant's warning jumped in front of the car.

Mrs. Campbell was compelled to either run over the little one or ditch the car, with only an instant to decide. She ditched the car, which was completely overturned. When they were extricated from under the car it was found that outside of superficial bruises no member of the party was injured, and the car when righted was only slightly damaged.

Dead Man's Curve has been the scene of many accidents. One man lost his life there, several persons have been injured and cars have been wrecked. The attention of the County Road Commission has been called to the danger of rounding the curved hill where it is impossible to see the road ahead and the narrowness of the road bed, unprotected by a safety fence makes even the most careful driving hazardous.

"Will Dead Man's Curve ever be made safe for automobiles and other vehicles," is a question frequently asked. One citizen says "Yes, if one of the Road Commission or any of their friends ever meet with an accident there." It is hoped they will not wait until then to make that dangerous place safer. Further negligence would be unjustifiable, inexcusable.

PINCKNEY MAKES SHOWING IN COUNTY TRACK MEET

It was thought that the Pinckney track team had very slight chance of placing in any of the events at the county meet, but when the day was over it was found that Pinckney had carried away two firsts, three seconds and three thirds. Kettler of Pinckney had stiff competition from Howell in the jumps, but in the end established himself as the best high school jumper in the county. Wilcox of Pinckney seemed to have trouble from Fowler in the weights but finally stepped into the circle and tossed the twelve pound shot three feet beyond the mark of his nearest rival. Both the relay teams from Pinckney ran like clock work and finished second in each event.

Pinckney was greatly handicapped due to lack of experience but more so due to lack of information handed out by Howell officials.

The following people ran under Pinckney colors: Dayle Kettler, Morgan Harris, Clifford Cook, Myron Wilcox, J. C. Bowman, Andrew Campbell, Stanley Hall, Willian Van Blaricum, Gerald Reason, Norman Campbell, Cynthia Hanes, Margaret Driver, Erma Read, Pauline Reason, Edna Craft, Neita Wilcox, Agnes Howard, Lucille Stackable, Ruth Darrow.

OBITUARY

The death of Mrs. William McQuillan occurred at the family residence in the township of Genoa, last Friday night following a lingering illness of the past year.

Mrs. McQuillan was born in the township of Putnam, this county, July 4, 1864; she was the daughter of Patrick Kelley and wife, early settlers in the township, November 23, 1887, she was united in marriage to William McQuillan of the township of Dexter to this union twelve children were born, eleven with the husband surviving to mourn their great loss.

Following her marriage to Mr. McQuillan, the family resided for about four years on the McQuillan farm in the township of Dexter, when they removed to the township of Hamburg, this county, and purchased the C. O. Burgess farm, where they resided until nineteen years ago when they purchased the Joseph Rider farm, in the township of Genoa, where she since resided and was very highly respected by all who knew her.

The following are the children: Mrs. L. G. Devereaux, Pinckney, Mrs. Chas. Kennedy, Mrs. Clarence Walsh, Laverne and Mark of Detroit; Walter, Lee, Mary, Norman, Sylvan and Elaine at home.

The funeral from St. Joseph's church Howell, at 9:30 last Tuesday morning, was very largely attended, Rev. Fr. Courtney (nephew of the deceased) officiating, assisted by Rev. Fr. Crowe of Pinckney, and Rev. Fr. McDace of Howell. The burial was in the family lot at Dexter.

YOUNG MOTHER NOW STRONG

Her Mother's Faith in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Led Her To Try It

Kenosha, Wisconsin.—"I cannot say enough in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My mother had great faith in it as she had taken so much of it and when I had trouble after my baby was born she gave it to me. It helped me so much more than anything else had done that I advise all women with female trouble to give it a fair trial and I am sure they will feel as I do about it.—Mrs. FRED P. HANSEN, 562 Symonds St., Kenosha, Wisconsin.

A medicine that has been in use nearly fifty years and that receives the praise and commendation of mothers and grandmothers is worth your consideration.

If you are suffering from troubles that sometimes follow child-birth bear in mind that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's medicine. It is especially adapted to correct such troubles.

The letters we publish ought to convince you; ask some of your women friends or neighbors—they know its worth. You will, too, if you give it a fair trial.

Stop That Backache!

Those agonizing twinges, that dull throbbing backache, may be warning of serious kidney weakness. Serious if neglected, for it might easily lead to Gravel, Dropsy or Bright's disease. If you are suffering with a bad back look for other proof of kidney trouble. If there are dizzy spells, headaches, a tired feeling and disordered kidney action, get after the cause. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A Michigan Case

Mrs. Hans C. Anderson, 805 E. Danaher St., Ludington, Mich., says: "I had kidney trouble and such backache I couldn't straighten. A sharp, heavy pain awakened me towards morning. My back got so bad I just had to grasp hold of something to keep from falling. I became dizzy, nervous and worn out. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me."

EFFORTS BEING MADE TO PREVENT SPREAD OF EUROPEAN CORN BORER

European Corn Borer in Various Stages and its Work.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Special efforts to prevent the European corn borer from spreading to the corn belt, which it now threatens to do from the southern shore of Lake Erie, will be made this season by the United States Department of Agriculture. The most important single measure will be the rigid enforcement of federal quarantine regulations by the federal horticultural board of the department, in co-operation with the Canadian government and the various states where the pest now exists. This will prevent other infestations of the insect from coming into the United States and will go a long way toward keeping the borer from being carried to other parts of the country.

The bureau of entomology of the department has prepared its plans for investigating the insect, which was discovered in this country during 1917, with a view to applying and amplifying methods of controlling it. The slight infestations along the lake shore, it is believed, will not cause serious injury to corn there immediately, giving ample time for a careful study of the insect and its behavior in this new environment before actual commercial damage is done. For this purpose the bureau will establish immediately a number of entomologists at Sandusky, Ohio.

May Have Come From Canada. The infestation on Lake Erie, it is believed, originated in the province of Ontario, Canada, where a severe infestation has been present for several years. Favorable winds during the flight season of the moth in the summer of 1921 are supposed to have compelled the adult insects to fly across the lake to the American side, where they became established along almost the entire southern shore. Records of the weather bureau indicate that for the first time in five or six years the winds prevailing then blew from the north or northwest for several days at a time. It is not thought, therefore, that this condition will prevail again for several years, and other moths be blown over.

In order to watch this phase of the matter, however, the bureau of entomology will request permission of the lighthouse service to station observers during the flight season at the powerful lights maintained along the southern shore. They will ascertain, if possible, whether moths are attracted to the lights from the other side.

The federal quarantine includes 144 cities and towns in Massachusetts, three in Michigan, 12 in New Hampshire, 115 in New York, 42 in Ohio, and 13 in Pennsylvania, and prohibits the shipment of corn and broom corn, including all parts of the stalk, cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia, hollyhock, and cut flowers or entire plants of gladiolus and dahlia, except the bulbs, to other states throughout the year. The ban applies to other products for the period between June 1 and December 31, in the New England territory. The prohibition applies to corn and broom corn, including all parts of the stalk, all sorghums and sudan grass from infested areas in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Michigan throughout the year. No restrictions are placed on the interstate movement of clean shelled corn and clean seed of broom corn.

Control Practices Recommended. To control the corn borer on the farm, the department recommends the following practices: 1. Burn, or otherwise destroy, before May 1 of each year, all cornstalks, corn cobs, corn stubble, vegetable, field and flower crop remnants, weeds and large-stemmed grasses of the previous year. 2. Keep cultivated fields, fence rows, field borders, roadsides and such places free from large weeds or large-stemmed grasses. 3. Cut corn close to the ground. 4. Cut and remove sweet corn fodder from the field as soon as the ears are harvested. Feed direct to live stock or place in silo. 5. Cut and remove field corn from the field as soon as the ears are mature. Feed the stalks to live stock as soon as possible and burn or otherwise dispose of the uneaten parts before May 1 following. Shred or cut the fodder to increase its consumption. 6. Plow under thoroughly, in the fall, all infested cornstalks, corn stubble, other crop remnants, weeds and similar material which it is impractical to destroy in any other manner. When necessary to adopt this practice an attempt should be made to plow under all the material to a depth of at least 6 inches. 7. Plant small areas of early sweet corn to act as a trap crop, adjacent to fields intended for field corn or late sweet corn. Feed, or otherwise destroy, this early sweet corn, as soon as the ears are harvested, or preferably just before that period, if the grower is willing to sacrifice the ears. Such plantings, where not destroyed at the proper time, constitute a menace to later corn. 8. Limit the size of cornfields to areas that can be kept free of weeds. 9. Do not plant corn within 50 feet of beets, beans, celery, spinach, rhubarb, or flowering plants intended for sale. 10. Do not throw the uneaten parts of cornstalks used as feed or bedding into the manure pile unless this material is worked into piles containing enough fresh horse manure to produce heating. 11. Do not transport outside of the infested area, any of the plants, or plant products, listed in Federal Quarantine No. 43. 12. Do not transport any living stages of the European corn-borer outside of the infested areas. 13. Do not place in swill container any sweet corn ears or portions thereof or discarded portions of celery, beets, beans, rhubarb, and spinach when this material is suspected of containing the borer. 14. Do not dump cornstalks, or other plant refuse from the vegetable and flower garden on public dumps nor on the edge or flood level of brooks, rivers, and other bodies of water. 15. Do not attempt to circumvent the quarantine regulations. The penalty is severe. 16. Do not mix products grown with in the infested area with those grown outside the infested area. 17. Do not label packages containing flowers or other products with misleading statements of contents. 18. Do not pack produce in boxes or other containers until all old tags and permits have been removed. 19. Do not feel angry if products are confiscated at border lines for violation of quarantine regulations. Such action is the most lenient that may be taken under the law.

Stories of GREAT INDIANS

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union. RED CLOUD VICTOR IN AN AMERICAN WAR

THE average school histories assert that America has been victorious in all of her wars. But they are strangely silent about a conflict in which one man defied the power of the United States and dictated his own terms of peace. That man was Red Cloud (Makpilya Luta), chief of the Ogallala Sioux.

When government commissioners sought the right to build forts along the Bozeman trail to the Montana gold fields, Red Cloud steadfastly opposed this encroachment on the choicest hunting grounds of the Sioux. In a council of his people he declared: "Dakotas, I am for war!"

Col. H. B. Carrington entered Wyoming, nevertheless, to build the forts and Red Cloud sent him this defiant message: "I shall stand in the trail." A war followed in which the Ogallala leader killed 81 soldiers under Colonel Fetterman near Fort Phil Kearney. This loss was avenged the next year when Red Cloud lost half of the 3,000 warriors whom he sent against 32 soldiers in a wagon box corral.

Despite this reverse Red Cloud remained master of the situation. In 1868 he delivered his ultimatum to a peace commission. The forts must be abandoned and all further attempts to open the Montana road must cease. More than that, he fixed the boundaries of the Sioux country to suit himself. The commissioners agreed to every demand, for the Ogallala chief refused even to meet them until the garrisons had actually been withdrawn. His victory was complete.

From the day he signed the treaty he kept his promise to live at peace with whites. "Ninety-one years old, blind, almost deaf, he sits dreaming of the past," writes one who visited him then. "No wonder he is irritated by the idle information seeker. Who would be called back from the dreams of his youth? Slightness and infirm, he is reliving the days of his youth when he sat on his horse as king, the pride of the great Sioux nation.

"To his ears must come the roar of the hunt as the countless bison herd, like a tidal wave, rolls by. And again the great day of his life, when his red-blanketed band swept down on the hapless Fetterman troop. Even now his heart must seem to stand still as he lives over again that fearful day of the Wagon Box fight, when he hurled the pick of the Sioux nation against the riflemen."

On December 10, 1909, the old man's dreams ended and Red Cloud, the greatest war chief of the Sioux, died.

CHIEF'S NAME WAS OLD-MAN-AFRAYD-OF-HIS-HORSES

DURING the Sioux war of 1866-67 the head chief of the Ogallalas was a man known to his people as Tashunka Kokkipapi. Once a careless interpreter translated this name into English as Old-Man-Afrayd-of-His-Horses, and this title, with its implication of cowardice, stuck with him through history.

Accustomed as the white man was to curious Indian names, this one was particularly interesting and many attempts were made to explain it. The literal interpretation that he feared his own horses was scarcely complimentary to a war chief of the Ogallala Sioux. Then there was a story that he owned a great many horses which he was constantly afraid of losing and that once when the Shoshones attacked his camp he left his family in the hands of the enemy to run off his horses.

More creditable was the interpretation of his being such a great chieftain that even the slight of his horses inspired fear in the hearts of his enemies. The true interpretation of his name, as given by his son, Young-Man-Afrayd-of-His-Horses, was "He Whose Horse They Fear" (literally: "Ta, 'his'; shunka, 'horse'; kokkipapi, 'they fear it"). This arose from the fact that he had a vicious pony.

His English name is an example not only of the frequent poor translation of Indian names by the whites but also of the fact that some insignificant incident may be the deciding factor in naming a great Indian warrior. Old-Man-Afrayd-of-His-Horses retained his position as head chief of the Ogallala until 1873. At his death in the late '70s the name passed on to his son, Young-Man-Afrayd-of-His-Horses, who was prominent during Ghost Dance troubles of 1890-91.

After the troubles were over a Washington newspaper correspondent was sent to interview Young-Man-Afrayd. The correspondent took an interpreter with him to the chief's tepee. Young-Man-Afrayd asked them to dinner. They ate. Then wanting to do the right thing but not knowing whether it was proper to tip a big Indian chief, the newspaper man dropped three silver dollars into the hands of the chief's wife and had his interpreter say: "In my country a compliment to a man's wife is thought a double compliment."

The interpreter repeated the statement to Young-Man-Afrayd who grunted, rose, left the tepee and came back with four more wives!

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores. Advertisement.

For Handsome Cars

EVERY MOTORIST who is proud of the appearance of his car will be interested in Corduroy Cords.

An exceptionally smart and distinctive appearance is given to the tire by the eight graduated corrugations on the sidewall.

At the same time, these corrugations constitute the strongest possible resistance to sidewall wear—that disagreeable condition for which there was no preventative until the advent of Corduroy Cords.

Corduroy Cords are thus doubly attractive—they look well and wear well.

That's what you want in a tire, isn't it? Then be sure to see the Corduroy Cord dealer before buying your next tires.

A Man To His Mate

By J. ALLEN DUNN

COPYRIGHT BOBBS MERRILL CO.

"MEBBE A QUEEN!"

Synopsis.—Loitering on the San Francisco waterfront, John Rainey, newspaper reporter, is accosted by a giant blind man, who asks Rainey to lead him aboard the sailing schooner Karliuk. In the cabin they find Captain Simms and a man named Carlsen. Simms recognizes the blind man, calling him Jim Lund. Lund accuses Simms of abandoning him, blind, on an ice sea, and denounces him. Simms denies the charge, but Lund refuses to be pacified. He declares his intention of accompanying the Karliuk on its expedition north, where it is going in quest of a gold said which Lund has discovered. Peggy, Simms' daughter, is aboard, and defends her father. Carlsen, who is a physician, as well as first mate, drugs Rainey. Awakening from his stupor, Rainey finds himself at sea. Carlsen informs him he has been kidnapped. He offers Rainey a share of the gold, and Rainey is forced to declare himself satisfied. Lund gives him a brief account of a former expedition of the Karliuk, tells him he distrusts Carlsen, and suggests a "partnership." Rainey to act as Lund's "eyes." Captain Simms is ill and the navigation is entirely in the hands of Carlsen. At the latter's suggestion a shooting match is staged and the seal hunters exhaust their ammunition. Carlsen shows his skill with the pistol and Lund does some astonishing shooting "by sound." Sandy the ship's boy, is swept overboard and is rescued by Rainey, who thus wins Peggy's admiration. The captain gets worse. Sandy tells how Carlsen is stirring up trouble over the division of the gold. Carlsen draws a gun on Rainey, who overpowers him. Tamada, the mysterious Japanese cook, declares himself neutral. Lund, his sight restored, kills Carlsen. Captain Simms dies. The hunters attack Lund, who has taken charge of the Karliuk. They are beaten after a fierce fight.

Rainey was a little surprised at this show of thoughtfulness, but he did not remark on it. He was beginning to think pretty constantly of late that he had underestimated Lund.

The giant's hand dropped automatically to the handle as if to assure himself of the door being fast. Suddenly it opened wide, a black gap, with only the gray eye of the porthole facing them. Lund had brought up the muzzle of his pistol to the height of a man's chest, but there was nothing to oppose it.

"Hidin' the d—n fool! What kind of a game is this? Come out o' there." Something scuttled on the floor of the room—then darted swiftly out between the legs of Lund and Rainey, on all fours, like a great dog. Cur-like, it sprawled on the floor with a white face and pop-eyes, with hands outstretched in pleading, knees drawn up in some ludicrous attempt at protection, calling shrilly, in the voice of Sandy:

"Don't shoot, sir! Please don't shoot!"

Lund reached down and jerked the roustabout to his feet, half strangled

"Don't shoot, sir! Please don't shoot!" him with his grip on the collar of the lad's shirt, and flung him into a chair.

"What were you doin' in there?" Sandy gulped convulsively, feeling at his scraggy throat, where an Adam's apple was working up and down. Speech was scoured out of him, and he could only roll his eyes at them.

"You d—d young traitor!" said Lund. "I'll have you keelhaulked for this! Out with it, now. Who sent you?"

"You've got him frightened half to death," intervened Rainey. "They probably scared him into doing this. Didn't they, Sandy?"

The lad blinked, and tears of self-pity rolled down his grimy cheeks. The relief of them seemed to unstopper his voice. That, and the kinder quality of Rainey's questioning.

"Deming! He said he'd cut my bloody heart out if I didn't do it. Him an' Beale. Lookit."

He plucked aside the front of his almost buttonless shirt and worn underwear and showed them on his left breast the scoring where a sharp blade had marked an irregular circle on his skin.

"Beale did that," he whined. "Deming said they'd finish the job if I come back without 'em."

"Without the shells?"

"Yes, sir. Yes, Mr. Rainey. Oh, Gord, they'll kill me sure! Oh, my Gord!" His staring eyes and loose mouth, working in fear, made him look like a fresh-landed cod.

"You ain't much use alive," said Lund.

"Mebbe I ain't," returned the lad, with the desperation of a cornered rat. "But I got a right to live. And I've lived worse'n a dog on this bloody schooner. I'm fair striped an' bruised w' boots an' knuckles an' ends o' rope. I'd ave chucked myself over long ago if—"

"If what?"

The lad turned sullen.

"Never mind," he said, and glared almost defiantly at Lund.

"Is that door shut?" the giant asked Rainey. "Some of 'em might be hangin' 'round." Rainey went to the corridor and closed and locked the entrance.

"Now then, you young devil," said Lund. "What did you do for'ard ain't a marker on what I'll do to you if you don't speak up an' answer when I talk. If what?"

Sandy turned to Rainey.

"They said they was goin' to give me some of the gold," he said. "They said all along I was to have the hat go 'round for me. I told you I was dragged up, but there's—there's an old woman who was good to me. She's up ag'in it for fair. I told her I'd bring her back some dough an' if I can hang on an' git it, I'll hang on. But they'll do me up, now, for keeps."

Rainey heard Lund's chuckle ripen to a quiet laugh.

"I'm d—d if they ain't some guts to the herrin' after all," he said. "Hangin' on to take some dough back to an old woman who ain't even his mother. Who'd have thought it? Look here, my lad. I was dragged up the same way, I was. An' I hung on. But you'll never git a cent out of that bunch. I don't know as they'll have enny to give you."

His face hardened. "But you come through, an' I'll see you git somethin' for the old woman. An' yoreself, too. What's more, you can stay aft an' wait on cabin. If they lay a finger on me, I'll lay a fat on them, an' worse."

"You ain't kiddin' me?"

"I don't kid, my lad. I don't waste time that way."

Sandy stood up, his face lighting. He began to empty his pockets, laying shells and shotgun cartridges upon the table.

"I couldn't begin to git half of 'em," he said. "The rest's under the mattresses. They said they only needed a few. I thought you was both turned in. When you come out of the corridor I was scared nutty."

Between the mattresses, as Lund had guessed, they found the rest of the shells, laid out in orderly rows save where the lad's scrambling fingers had disturbed them. Lund stripped off a pillow-case and dumped them in, together with those on the table.

"You can bunk here," he told the grateful Sandy. "Now I'll have a few words with Deming, Beale and company. Want to come along, Rainey?"

Lund strode down the corridor, bag in one hand, his gun in the other. Rainey threw open the door of the hunters' quarters and discovered them like a lot of conspirators. Deming was in his bunk; also another man, whose ribs Lund had cracked when he had kicked him along the deck out of his way. The bruised faces of the rest showed their effects from the fight. As Lund entered, covering them with the gun, while he swung down the heavy slip on the table with a clatter, their looks changed from eager expectation to consternation.

"Caught with the goods!" said Lund. "Two tries at mutiny in one day, my lads. You want to git it into your boneheads that I'm runnin' this ship from now on. I can sail it without ye and, by God, I'll set the bunch of ye ashore same's you figured on doin' with me if you don't sit up an' take notice! The rifles an' guns—he glanced at the orderly display of weapons in racks on the wall—"are too vallyble to chuck over, but here go the shells, ev'ry last one of them. So that nips that little plan, Deming."

He turned back the slip to display the contents.

"Open a port, Rainey, an' heave the lot out."

Rainey did so while the hunters gazed on in silent chagrin.

"There's one thing more," said Lund, grinning at them. "If enny of you saw a man hurtin' a dog, you'd probably fetch him a wallop. But you don't think ennything of scarin' the life out of a half-baked kid an' markin' up his hide like a patchwork quilt. That kid's stayin' aft after this. One of you monkey with him, an' you'll do jest what he's bin doin', wish you was dead an' overboard."

He turned on his heel and walked to the door, Rainey following.

The girl kept below and seldom came out of her cabin, Tamada serving her meals in there. Rainey could see Lund's resentment growing at this attitude that seemed to him normal enough, though it might present difficulty later if persisted in. But the morning that they headed up through Sequam pass between the spouting reefs of Sequam and Amilla islands, she came on deck and went forward to the bows, taking in deep breaths of the bracing air and gazing north to the free expanse of Bering strait. Rainey left her alone, but Lund welcomed her as she came back aft.

"Glad to see you on deck again, Miss Peggy," he said. "You need sun and air to git you in shape again."

"How far have we yet to go?" she asked.

"Almost a thousan' miles to the strait proper," said Lund. "The Nome-Alaska steamer lane lies to the

He was keen to hold her in conversation, and she willing to listen, assenting almost eagerly when he offered to point out their position on the chart, spread on the cabin table. Lund talked well, for all his limited and at times luridly inclined vocabulary, whenever he talked of the sea and of his own adventures, stating them without brag, but bringing up striking pictures of action, full of color and savor of life in the raw. From that time on Peggy Simms came to the table and talked freely with Lund, more conservatively with Rainey.

The girl, Rainey decided, was humoring Lund, seeking to know how with her feminine methods she might control him, keep him within bounds. Her coldness, it seemed, she had cast aside as an expedient that might prove too provoking and worthless.

And Rainey's valuation of her resources increased. She was handling her woman's weapons admirably, yet when he sometimes, at night, under the cabin lamp, saw the smoldering light glowing in Lund's agate eyes, he knew that she was playing a dangerous game.

"What d'ye figger on doin' with yore share, Rainey?" Lund asked him the night that they passed Nome. It was stormy weather in the strait, and the Karliuk was snugged down under treble reefs, fighting her way north. The cabin was cozy, with a stove going. Peggy Simms was busied with some sewing, the canary and the plants gave the place a domestic atmosphere, and Lund, smoking comfortably, was eminently at ease.

"Cordin' to the way the men figgered it out," he went on, "though I reckon they're under the mark more'n over it, you'll have forty thousand dollars. That's quite a windfall, though nothin' to Miss Peggy, here, or me, for that matter. I s'pose you got it all spent already."

"I don't know that I have," said Rainey. "But I think, if all goes well, I'll get a place up in the Coast Range, in the redwoods looking over the sea, and write. Not newspaper stuff, but what I've always wanted to. Stories. Yarns of adventure?"

"Goin' to write second-hand stuff?" asked Lund. "Why don't you live what you write? I don't see how you're goin' to git under a man's skin by squattin' in a bungalow with a Jap servant, a porcelain bathtub, an' breakfast in bed. Why don't you travel an' see stuff as it is? How in blazes are you goin' to write adventure if you don't live it?"

"Me, I'm goin' to git a schooner built accordin' to my own ideas. Have a kicker engine in it, mebbe, an' go round the world. What's the use of livin' on it an' not knowin' it by sight? Books and pictures are all right in their way, I reckon, but while my rigger'n holds up, I'm for travel. Mebbe I'll take a group of islands down in the South seas after a bit an' make somethin' out of 'em. Not jest copra an' pearl-shell, but cotton an' rubber."

"A king and his kingdom," suggested the girl.

"Aye, an' mebbe a queen to go with it," replied Lund, his eyes wide open in a look that made the girl flush and Rainey feel the hidden issue that he felt was bound to come, rising to the surface.

"That's a man's life," went on Lund. "Travel's all right, but a man's got to do somethin', buck somethin', start somethin'. An' a red-blooded man wants the right kind of a woman to play mate. Polish off his rough edges, mebbe. I'd rather be a rough castin' that could stand filin' a bit, than smooth an' plated. An', when I find the right woman, one of my own breed, I'm goin' to tie to her an' how to me."

"I'm goin' to be rich. They've cleaned up the sands of Nome, but there's others'll be found yit between Cape Hope an' Cape Barry. Meantime, we've got a placer of our own. With plenty of gold they ain't much limit to what a man can do. I've roughed it all my life, an' I'm not lookin' for ease. It makes a man soft. But—"

He swept the figure of the girl in a pause that was eloquent of his line of thought. She grew uneasy of it, but Lund maintained it until she raised her eyes from her work and challenged his. Rainey saw her breast heave, saw her struggle to hold the gaze, turn red, then pale. He thought her eyes showed fear, and then she stiffened. Almost unconsciously she raised her hand to where Rainey was sure she kept the little pistol, touched something as though to assure herself of its presence, and went on sewing. Lund chuckled, but shifted his eyes to Rainey.

"Why don't you write up this y'rage? When it's all over? There's adventure for you, an' we ain't had through with it. An' romance, too, mebbe. We ain't developed much of a love-story as yit, but you never can tell."

He laughed, and Peggy Simms got up quietly, folded her sewing, and said "Good night" composedly before she went to her room.

"How about it, Rainey?" quizzed Lund. "How about the love part of it? She's a beauty, an' she'll be as helpless. Ain't you got enny red blood in yore veins? Don't you want her? You won't find many to hold a candle to her. Looks, built like a racin' yacht, smooth an' speedy. Smart, as rich into the bargain. Why don't you make love to her?"

Rainey felt the burning blood mounting to his face and brain.

"I am not in love with Miss Simms," he said. "If I was I should not try to make love to her under the circumstances. She's alone, and she's fatherless. I do not care to discuss her."

"She's a woman," said Lund. "And you're a d—d prig! You'd like to bust me in the jaw, but you know I'm stronger. You've got some guts, Rainey, but you're hidebound. You ain't got half the git-up-an-go to ye that she has. She's a woman, I tell you, an' she's to be won. If you want her, why don't you stand up an' try to git her 'stead of sittin' around like a sick cat whenever I happen to admire her looks?"

"I've seen you. I ain't blind enny longer, you know. She's a woman an' I'm a man. I thought you was one. But you ain't. Yore idea of makin' love is to bust the gal a box of candy an' walk pussy-footed an' write poems to her. You want to write life an' I want to live it. So does a gal like that. She's more my breed than yore, if she has got education. An' she's flesh and blood. Same as I am. You're half sawdust. You're stuffed."

He went on deck laughing, leaving Rainey raging but helpless. Lund appeared to think the situation obvious. Two men, and a woman who was attractive in many ways. The only woman while they were aboard the schooner, therefore the more to be desired, admired by men cut off from the rest of the world.

"That's a Man's Life," Went on Lund. east. Runs close to the Pribilofas, three hundred miles north, with Hall an' St. Matthew three hundred further. Then comes St. Lawrence isle, plumb in the middle of the strait, with Siberia an' Alaska closin' in."

Highest Quality—Lowest Prices

The entire Goodyear effort of many years has been toward one result—the tire buyer's advantage. Goodyear has taken two methods to achieve that result.

One has been to raise the quality of Goodyear Tires. The other, to lower Goodyear prices.

Goodyear has succeeded in both—to your great advantage.

Goodyear Tires are better today than ever—larger, heavier and stronger. Many users tell us they are getting double the mileage from them they got from Goodyears ten years ago.

Goodyear prices are lower today than ever. On the average they have decreased more than 60% from the prices of 1910.

Look at the figures listed below.

Think of the fine performance of the Goodyears you have known, and remember that Goodyear Tires are giving even better performance now.

You can get these tires at your Goodyear Service Station Dealer's. See him today.

GRANT M. HUDSON FOR CONGRESS

After several weeks of consideration of the matter, and upon urgent request of his friends, who sought to have him place his name before voters of the Sixth Congressional District of Michigan, composed of Ingham, Livingston, Oakland, Genesee and part of Wayne counties, Grant M. Hudson formally announces his candidacy for Congress, to succeed Congressman Patrick H. Kelley.

Mr. Hudson is eminently qualified for this important office, from long experience in public affairs. He was a member of the Michigan Legislature in 1905-07, and the special session of 1906, which enacted important railroad legislation and general primary laws; was state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, 1913-19; and served for a brief term on the State Industrial Accident Board before being called by his denomination to the present position of General Director of the Michigan Baptist Convention.

Mr. Hudson's work for the past 175 years has made him familiar with all parts of the state. He knows Michigan thoroughly, her possibilities and her needs, and knows intimately the sixth district. In his statement of what he believes to be the outstanding national issues at this time are included International Affairs, Taxation, Economic Interests, a Deep Waterway System, Moral Issues, etc.

Mr. Hudson has always been interested in and has worked toward the upbuilding of the home and the safeguarding of the welfare of its inmates, and deserves the vote of men and women who believe in State and Nation, good government, law and order.

Infection Confers Immunity.

Dr. F. Neufeld, who was assistant to Koch, reviews in the Zeitschrift fuer Tuberculose (Leipzig) all the efforts that have been made to produce immunity from tuberculosis, and asserts that there is no method of vaccination applicable to man. The only immunity attainable is that from mild infection. Dr. A. von Wassermann comes to a similar conclusion.

AN OFF DAY

Everyone has an occasional off day and last Sunday proved to be such for the Pinckney ball team. They journeyed over to Washtenaw county to play the Dexters but when the game was started it was Parks, the famous U of M pitcher on the mound for Dexter and Richmond of the Ypsilanti Normals on the receiving end, Dexter not daring to pit their own pitcher against Lapham.

Mr. Parks and the entire Dexter aggregation were a disappointed bunch as the Pinckney men soon solved his delivery and piled up a lead of seven or eight runs in the first three innings and it looked like a walkaway. But the Pinckney Hoodoo then took charge and for the rest of the game Pinckney booted, muffed and threw wildly and at the end of the ninth inning the score was 12 to 11 in favor of Dexter.

After gathering 17 hits off Parks, there is no excuse to offer for the poor exhibition shown by Pinckney—
 they just simply couldn't play ball—it wasn't their day. The game also showed that in two positions Pinckney is weak and changes must be made before they strike their proper stride.

Next Sunday Howell comes again.
 Suffering from the chagrin of losing the first game to the despised Pinckneys they are out for a victory and will make every effort to win. Pinckney, though, wants to make it two straight, and as they have now had their "off day" disposed of it is expected they will settle down to their regular gait and make up for last Sunday's fiasco.
 A large number of Howell supporters will be here to witness their team's attempt to down Pinckney.

Thomas Markey who has been visiting relatives here for some time returned last week from a trip to Niagara Falls and through New York state. He returned to his home near Coleman, Kansas this week.

The Stockbridge ball team, members of the Tri-County league won its first three games this season. The last was a ten inning affair with Fowlerville,
 the score being one to nothing.

Dr. Mark Clinton and son, Misses Loretta and Gertrude Clinton, and Richard and Walter Clinton visited at the Cassimer Clinton home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Snyder and daughter Marilyn of Windsor spent the first of the week at the home of Mr.
 and Mrs. R. T. Read.

Irene Richardson closed a successful year of school in the Reeves District last Saturday with a picnic at the school house in which all the children of the school took part in speaking, and Mr. Rolt, Kellest sang a song which he sang in the same school forty years ago.

Mr. Thomas Markey visited his uncles at Flint and Fenton last week.

Will Rounds of Howell called on Frank Johnson and family Monday.

How Do You Feel—
 When You Stoop?
 Slow and sluggish movements, tired
 action, backache, rheumatic pains, stiff joints or sore muscles indicate that something in the human system is out of order. In most cases, these symptoms are the result of waste matter or poisonous acids being left in the blood by the failure of the kidneys to properly do their work of filtering and casting out impurities from the blood.
STOPPED HIS BACKACHE
 "I am 70 years old. I tried Foley Kidney Pills, thinking I needed them—as my back was hurting and aching all the time. I got so bad that when I would stoop over in the store while at work I could hardly raise up such an awful catch in my back. After taking just one bottle of Foley Kidney Pills, my backache was entirely gone and I felt good and strong. I think they are the greatest remedy for backache and irregularities of the bladder."—W. P. Tolson, R. P. D. 1, Washington, Pa.
FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS
 have been used by young, middle-aged and old with complete satisfaction. You will find them different from all other remedies. They act quickly and surely and have given relief in cases of years' standing. If you have cause to suspect your kidneys are weak, disordered or inactive, you should act immediately.

Wolverine News Brevities

Lansing—Lansing board of education voted, 7 to 5, against the placing of the German language back in the high school curriculum. Lansing—The state administrative board has authorized a survey, under the direction of the state, to determine what part mentality plays in crime. Lansing—Following a statement by Governor Groesbeck that more parks are needed in the eastern part of the state, the state administrative board voted to assist Lansing in equipping a tourist park. Bay City—Stanley, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Solinski, of this city fell from a second story window of a hotel landing on his head on the cement sidewalk. He was taken to a hospital where his condition is serious. Ewart—Stockholders of the First State and Ewart Savings banks, of this place, have resolved to merge their interests, immediately. The consolidated bank will occupy the new brick building, recently erected by the Ewart Savings. Saginaw—The annual state Older Boys conference, for the lower peninsula, will not be divided into six districts, but will take place at Battle Creek in November, as originally planned. J. F. McFarland, state Y. M. C. A. boys' work secretary, said. Paw Paw—Asparagus shippers are having a good year, the weather being particularly favorable to rapid growth of their crop. The price now is running at $2.50 per case, although the early cutting brought as high as $4. This is regarded by the growers as a very satisfactory price. Kalamazoo—Mrs. Lina J. Burnett, 65, and her daughter, Miss Beesie D. Burnett, 35, the later an art instructor in the Central high school, were killed at Shafter crossing, eight miles east of this city, when their automobile was struck by an interurban car on the Michigan highway. Grand Rapids—Clark W. McKenzie, of Kalamazoo, was elected most worshipful grand master of the Grand Lodge of Michigan, F. and A. M., at the annual communication of the Grand Lodge, in session here. Kalamazoo was named the 1923 meeting place of the Grand Lodge. Saginaw—The valuable art collection of the late Edward C. Mershon, worth many thousands of dollars, will be loaned to the Hoyt Public Library here within the next month by Miss Elsie C. Mershon, his sister and the present owner of the collection, for public inspection. Lansing—William C. Dudley, head of the Lansing Paper Co., was appointed a member of the state correctional board having in charge the Industrial School for Boys in Lansing and the Industrial School for Girls in Adrian. He succeeds R. H. Scott who resigned in September. Paw Paw—Jason Woodman, of Paw Paw, will have the honor of formally endowing Dr. David Friday with the presidency of the Michigan Agricultural college, at the inauguration ceremonies in Lansing, Wednesday, June 21, in connection with the commencement exercises that will be held at the same time for the graduating class. Lansing—Frank O'Dess, sheriff of Delta County, of which Escanaba is the seat, resigned rather than face charges which were about to be brought against him in connection with liquor, gambling and vice conditions in Delta County. George Harvey, of Escanaba, has been appointed to succeed him, with Louis Danielson as under-sheriff. Kalamazoo—William Ahnes, a traveling salesman, narrowly escaped death when he vainly tried to save Henry Dooley, freight agent at Monthey Junction, who was electrocuted by the interurban third rail, Dooley had assisted in making repairs on a car and was mounting the platform when the 1,600-volt current was grounded through his body. Detroit—Judge Harry J. Dingeman, in circuit court, held valid the divorce granted by him March 29, last, to the wife of Oliver Morosco, theatrical producer. The finding, based on a report by Edward Pokorny, friend of the court, declared that the "testimony failed to show that Morosco did not have a legal residence in Michigan for two years prior to the filing of his suit." Otsego—H. C. Pitz, Kalamazoo jeweler, pleaded guilty over the telephone to having driven through a funeral procession in this city and he was fined $5 and costs by Justice William P. Jones. Pitz disregarded a warning by Deputy Marshall Hollenbeck. The incident has led to a movement for the passage of an ordinance greatly increasing the penalty attached to the offense. Marshall—County Agent Roland is planning to take the high school agricultural students, of Marshall and Battle Creek, on a tour of Calhoun County. It is planned to visit the Lakewood dairy and poultry farm, near Battle Creek, the Arbogast farm, near Union City, the Farley fruit farm, at Albion, and a number of other farms, so the students will have opportunity to compare various breeds of dairy and beef cattle and other types of stock and poultry, as well as observe the growing of pedregreed grains and the alfalfa crop.

St. Joseph—Loomis K. Preston, St. Joseph attorney, has entered the race for election to the state house of representatives from the first district of Berrien county. Grand Rapids—Seized with a fainting spell, John Popicki, 50, street car company employe, staggered and fell in front of an automobile driven by A. C. Snyder and was instantly killed. Goodrich—Henry Hull, 50 years old, and Alonzo Allen, 60 years old, were killed instantly on the D. U. R. crossing here when their roadster was struck and demolished by a Flint-Detroit car. Lansing—The public utilities commission has ordered the Detroit & Ironton railroad station at Scofield reopened. The station was closed before Henry Ford came into control of the railroad. Pontiac—Allegations that a dam, placed in the outlet of Pork Barrel Lake, has caused flooding of his land, Herman Rublittus has sued for an injunction to compel Howard C. Stewart to lower the dam. Iron Mountain—The local sportsmen's association will make special efforts to have one of the two fish hatcheries, to be established in the Upper Peninsula by the state, located in Dickinson county. Monroe—Ray Whitney, 28, carpenter, Lakeside, Mich., was taken into custody by Sheriff Gesener charged with the possession of 130 bottles of beer. He waived the examination and furnished a $1,000 bond. Lansing—Every building, with the exception of the chapel, comprising the state hospital for insane in Pontiac, contains fire hazards, a report made by Inspector Charles V. Lane to Roy C. Vandercook, commissioner of public safety, says. Ann Arbor—On the invitation of the Michigan officers of the Kiwanis Club of America, the University of Michigan "Varsity" band will go to Toronto June 19 as the official band of the Kiwanis international convention to be held in that city. Manistee—Robbers broke into the Citizens' bank at Bear Lake, and escaped with $200 in small silver. To prevent an alarm, they cut the long distance telephone wires, making it necessary for the cashier to drive to Onekama, to notify the sheriff. Flint—Mrs. Roy Boyle, 27 years old, who gave birth to triplets, all girls, died a few hours later. Physicians say the babies will live. The triplets weigh nearly four pounds each. Besides her husband and the triplets, Mrs. Boyle leaves a son 6 years old. Lansing—Thomas Bobinac, an Austrian who has lived in the United States for 12 years, was given 30 days by Circuit Judge C. B. Collingwood in which to leave the country. Bobinac, who had taken out his first papers, pleaded guilty to violating the liquor laws. Flint—Sheriff Homer Vette has obtained extradition papers for O. R. Shearer, California contractor, accused of swindling local people out of about $25,000 in the sale of oil stock in the "Ford Petroleum" corporation of Delaware. Shearer was arrested on complaint of George Ormiston of this city. Marquette—The trial of Swan Alfred West, former bookkeeper of the Michigan state branch prison, here, charged with embezzling funds entrusted to his care, began in circuit court, with Judge Richard C. Flannigan, of Norway, presiding. The case grew out of an investigation more than a year ago, when 12 indictments were returned. Flint—"I have come to your home to die," Matthew Barrett told his aunt, Mrs. Kalman Burma, when he arrived from Chicago. Mrs. Burma thought he was joking. The next morning she found his body hanging in an archway in her home. He had hanged himself with a towel. Barrett leaves a widow and four children. He was 25 years old and had recently suffered a nervous breakdown. Iron Mountain—Henry Lancour of Perkins, Delta county, candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff, was found guilty of violating the prohibition law by a jury in federal court in Marquette. If he does not withdraw from the race he will have to direct his campaign from the Detroit house of correction, as Judge C. W. Sessions sentenced him to serve six months. He was convicted of selling moonshine. Pontiac—Mrs. Victor Waken, filed suit for $100,000 against the Standard Oil company for injuries to herself and loss of her husband in the explosion of gasoline which wrecked their farm home in Royal Oak township, last December. This is the fourth suit to be filed as a result of the accident, which is blamed to mixing of kerosene and gasoline in the company's tanks, a total of $278,000 damages being asked thus far. Seven other suits are expected to be filed for $50,000 each. Lansing—Following a conference between Dr. R. M. Olin, state health commissioner of public safety, and Attorney General Merlin Wiley, a detachment of state police was ordered to accompany Dr. George Ramsey, deputy state health commissioner, to Ontonagon with instructions to virtually take over the village government. According to reports that reached here, the village administration has refused to take the precautionary steps in the face of a typhoid fever epidemic. About 65 cases have been reported.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE THREATENS RESIGNATION

HENRY C. WALLACE

Washington—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace may resign from the cabinet if President Harding approves the reorganization plan to transfer three of his bureaus to other departments, according to White House visitors who have urged the president to make no material change in the agricultural department.

ARMED MEN LOOT P. M. FREIGHT

Train Held Up Near Holly and Merchandise Hauled in Trucks.

Holly, Mich.—A band of 20 armed men held up a Pere Marquette freight train near here early May 26 and looted it of several thousand dollars' worth of merchandise, which they hauled away in a fleet of waiting motor trucks.

Four miles north of Holly, where the track skirts a thick woods, the robbers cut the air hose, stopping the train. When the crew got off to learn what the trouble was, they were covered with revolvers and warned not to resist.

With a half dozen of the bandits kept the crew covered the others went from car to car, breaking the seals and selecting the choicest of the merchandise, which they carried to five or six trucks waiting, with their drivers, at the roadside. The loot selected was mostly automobile tires, dry goods and shoes.

WOMEN WANT BETTER LAWS

Michigan Woman Effect Permanent Organization at Meeting.

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Permanent organization of the legislative council of Michigan women was effected at a meeting in Lane hall here, when three Detroit women were elected to offices in the council.

Mrs. W. D. Aschong, representing the National Women's party, was chosen vice-president; Miss Marion H. McClench, of the state Federation of Business and Professional Women, is secretary, and Mrs. W. R. Alvord, state Federation of Women's Clubs, is a member of the board of directors. Mrs. Lucia Grimes, also of Detroit, presided.

"MUSHROOMS" FATAL TO THREE

Mother and Two Daughters Die After Eating Poisonous Fungus.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.—Three deaths have occurred in the family of Mr. Joseph Lawlor, a farmer at Gordon Lake, Ont., nine miles north of Desbaratas as a result of eating poisonous fungus believed to be mushrooms, and the lives of two other members of the same family are in danger. A little three-year-old child who refused to eat the dish, is the only one of the family not affected.

Mrs. Lawlor, mother of the family of two boys and two girls, was the first to die. Her death was followed by that of the two daughters, aged 12 and seven.

ONCE AGAIN LLOYD GEORGE WINS

Commons Refuses to Vote Measure Criticizing Genoa Work.

London—Once again Lloyd George appeared in the house of commons to render as prime minister an account of his stewardship at Genoa, and once again, after a precise and carefully worded statement and an eloquent rebuttal of criticisms directed against him, he received the support of the house in what is considered the equivalent of another vote of confidence.

Bed Has Electric Attachments.

Atlantic City—Those who hate to get out of bed in the morning needn't do it. The latest thing in beds, described here at the National Electric Light association convention has attachments for heat pads, lights, a fan, and a grill to cook breakfast, or heat baby's bottle. In case baby has to be walked to sleep in the middle of the night, papa or mamma can turn on a light under the springs, which illuminates only the floor, so they can see their way.

UNUSUAL HAPPENINGS AND OTHER BRIEF NEWS

Shipping Board Free of Debt

Washington—The Shipping Board, for the first time in its history, approaches the end of a fiscal year free of debt, except claims and lawsuits. Chairman Leaker made known.

Dentist Held as Shop Thief.

Hoboken N. J.—Barney Hageman, a New York dentist, was arrested as a fugitive from justice. He is charged with participation in a $60,000 robbery of the pawnshop of Samuel Savine in Cincinnati.

Robbers Outfought by Police.

Bridgeport, Conn.—One robber was killed, another injured and the $12,000 carmen's payroll of the Connecticut company was recovered after a hold-up by four men, and a pistol fight with the police. The other robbers were captured.

Peaches Get Lower Freight Rate.

Rochester, N. Y.—The freight classification on peaches in what is known as official classification territory, embracing Michigan, will be reduced from first class to second class on July first, R. G. Phillips, secretary of the International Apple Shippers' association, announced.

She Didn't Get Hubby's Flowers.

New York—Mrs. Grace D. Hunter, of Brooklyn, is bringing suit to divorce her husband, Reginald D., and declares that she found many bills for flowers in Reggie's pockets—but that she never got the flowers. The judge allowed her $50 a week pending trial of the divorce action.

Woman Supreme Court Marshall.

Oklahoma City—Mrs. William Chesley Lewis, an Oklahoma City lawyer, has set a new record for her sex by obtaining appointment as marshal of the Supreme Court here. Mrs. Lewis is a graduate of Cumberland University, in Tennessee, and her husband is a lawyer at Duncan, Okla.

Children and Car in River.

Casper, Wyo.—Three children of Mr. and Mrs. William McIntosh were drowned in the Sweet Water river, 82 miles southeast of Casper, when the bank gave way under an automobile in which they were sitting. The mother and two older children jumped from the car and were rescued.

Oldest Theater "Comp" Found.

New York—Marc Klaw, theatrical magnate, brought to America what he interprets as the first "dead head" pass ever given for a theatrical performance. Exhibiting a fragment of lava, in the form of a skull, he said it was a ticket for an old Roman theater. He said he believed it was made in 77 A. D.

Rawlinson Must Answer Charges.

Los Angeles—Herbert Rawlinson, film star, must answer the $100,000 damage suit of Dorothy Clark, stage dancer, according to Superior Judge Craig, who over-ruled Rawlinson's demurrer. Miss Clark alleged that Rawlinson attacked her in New York City, when she was only 15. She issued this statement through her mother as guardian.

Rejected Suitor Sues Woman.

Chicago—Equal rights for men! Axel Johnson filed a suit for $25,000 alleging breach of promise. Pretty Mrs. Minnie Dowling is the defendant. Johnson says he knew Mrs. Dowling for seven years; that they expected to be married—"never to part." Came Jacob P. Barr of Grand Rapids, Mich., friend of Johnson's. "I brought Barr with me to see Mrs. Dowling," said Johnson. "Then she lost interest in me."

Expert Rider in Fatal Fall.

Pueblo, Col.—William A. Baxter, 45, expert horseman who formerly was an exhibition rider for the Buffalo Bill Wild West show, was found dead, his skull fractured and his face torn by a barbed wire, near his home. He was thrown by his horse which he had ridden to a neighbor's house. Baxter was said to be one of the few men who could ride a galloping horse at full speed and shoot glass balls at the same time.

Canada Holds 60,086 Shares.

Ottawa—As a holder of stock in United States Steel, Canada stands next only to Great Britain in order of importance, with 60,086 shares, having recently displaced Holland. This is significant as indicating that surplus of funds for investment exists. As the holdings by Canadians have increased during the last year, it is thought that this has been due very largely to the strength shown by the Canadian dollar in the United States.

Woman Rescued From Sewer.

West New York, N. J.—Facing death from drowning, Miss Rose Rusch, sister of a West New York police official, was finally rescued after she had stood for 15 minutes in a sewer submerged to her chin. Otto Koehler, the woman's rescuer, could not locate the cries for help he heard as he walked along the street, until he glanced down over the sewer opening. Miss Rusch said that she stepped on the edge of the cover, and as it turned, she slipped into the sewer.

U. S. ASKS PARLEY ON SEA CUT PACT

CANADA ASKED TO NEGOTIATE TREATY ON LAKE-TO-OCEAN ROUTE.

CANADIAN DELAY IS EXPECTED

Montreal's Opposition, for Same That New York Fights Project, May Hold Off Action.

Washington—The administration has opened communications with Canada, through the British embassy, looking to the negotiation of a treaty under which could be effected the project for deepening the boundary waterways so that the Great Lakes ports could be reached by ocean traffic. President Harding is understood to hold that a treaty must be made.

The state department has formally announced that on May 17, Secretary Hughes sent to Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador, a note stating that this government would be glad to open negotiations on the treaty. Sir Auckland, it is understood, has forwarded the note to the Canadian government but no formal reply has been received as yet.

It is understood that there may be some delay on the part of the Canadian government in getting down to cases in the matter. The new Canadian premier, Mackenzie King, who went into office in the recent Liberal victory in Canada, has a program of legislation that he is anxious to put through and he depends in considerable measure upon the support of representatives of the province of Quebec. These representatives, it is reported, are much interested in the port of Montreal, which is said to be opposed to the project on much the same grounds that New York is opposing it on this side of the line.

The belief of the administration that a treaty should be negotiated before the project is undertaken is said to be a serious disappointment to members of congress from the Great Lakes stations. At best, they see delay in it, and at worst practical defeat through indefinite postponement. For the same reasons the administration's position is cheering to members from New York, who are fighting the whole undertaking bitterly in the belief that if ocean traffic reaches the Great Lakes ports, New York's position will be weakened seriously.

Betsy Ross and The Flag

Arch Street Philadelphia...

As I could not lift the forms alone, and everybody was 'gone to war,' says Mrs. Alrich, 'I was obliged to close business.'

The statement was made in the National Tribune, Washington, D. C., that the story of Betsy Ross and the flag is a myth. I want to get the refutation of Mr. Alrich before the public. I shall send a copy to every historical society in the United States. The Kansas D. A. R. state convention took it up and indorsed it and placed it in their records.

Mr. Alrich, in the Civil war, was a member of Company B, Baker's California regiment (Seventy-first Pennsylvania Infantry). Mrs. Alrich is senior vice president of the National Woman's Relief Corps. Alaric G. Alrich, their son, is past division commander, Sons of Veterans of Kansas. Mrs. Alrich has printed a pamphlet with the title, "History, Not Myth," which contains her husband's "refutation" mentioned in the foregoing.

Mrs. Alrich's pamphlet begins thus: "The statement recently made that the story of 'Betsy Ross and the Flag is a Myth,' aroused a feeling that I would not be loyal to the memory of my late husband, Levi L. Alrich of Baker's California regiment (Seventy-first Pennsylvania Infantry), who enlisted May, 1861, and took part in 15 battles in 18 months, unless publicity was given to his response to the same remark several years ago.

"Born and reared in Philadelphia, Pa., he improved the opportunities of research, in the State Historical society; the records of the Friends' meetings; also of the Holland Society of New York; the latter in the descent from Jacob and Peter Alrich, Dutch governors of Delaware, under Peter Stuyvesant of New York.

"In 1868, when frequenting places of information, he met William J. Canby, who had the only genealogical tree of the Canby family in America; beginning with Thomas Canby, who came from Thorn, England, in 1685, which has on it all of his 16 children and their descendants down to 1868. One Susan Canby, married a Peter Alrich, who was the paternal grandfather of Levi L. Alrich, while Susan was the maternal grandmother of William J. Canby.

"This tree is tangible evidence that William J. Canby is not a myth; and from his Quaker training not inclined to perpetrate a lie on the public, when he in 1870 prepared a paper on the Flag which he read before the Pennsylvania Historical society, also told the story, not from tradition, but as told by Mrs. Ross to Mr. Canby."

Then follows the refutation, among the papers of Mr. Alrich, as he used it on previous occasions. It contains the following:

"A myth exists only in the imagination. Is Betsy Ross a myth? Did such a person live, and did she make the first Stars and Stripes which we now reverently speak of as 'Old Glory'?"

"It is recorded that some time between May 23 and June 7, 1777, Commander in Chief George Washington, accompanied by the committee, Robert Morris and Col. George Ross (a relative of Betsy) called on her, and there after consultation, instructed her to make the flag. The American congress resolved, on Saturday, June 14, 1777, 'that the Flag of the United States be 13 stripes alternate red and white, that the union be 13 stars, white on a blue field, representing a new constellation.' This was substantially the design agreed upon by the committee and made by Betsy Ross.

"But who was Betsy Ross? Her maiden name was Griscom, Elisabeth Griscom, born in 1752, of Quaker parents, Samuel and Rebecca Griscom. Samuel was a descendant of Andrew Griscom, who brought the first cargo of bricks from England, of which this famous house was built. Elisabeth married John Ross, an Episcopalian, and for this awful misdemeanor she was expelled from the Friends' society, and becoming an Episcopalian, with her husband, worshipped in the Old Christ Church, only a short distance from her home, and where the pew she occupied (No. 12) is still marked to designate it as hers, as is also her grave in Mount Moriah cemetery, beside her husband, Claypoole. General Washington also worshipped in the same church, and his pew is also marked, and both are shown today.

"Two children were born to John and Betsy Ross, one Zillah dying in infancy. The other was named Eliza. Ross died when a young man, his widow being at the time of the episode twenty-five years of age. Ross was an upholsterer, his widow continuing the business, was so occupied when the committee called upon her. Widow Ross married Joseph Ashburn, who was devoted to the cause of the young republic, and was captured by the British and died in Mill prison at Portsmouth, England. During his imprisonment he told a fellow prisoner, John Claypoole, his story was closely related to America, for it was here that many of the freetrackers which formerly announced the Independence day celebration were made. Among the great men who have been among Changsha's chief products was Gen. Tseng Kuo Fan, whose cooperation with "Chinese Gordon" was largely instrumental in putting down the Taiping rebellion.

Healthy Complexion Assured. Martha was a pale little wife whose white cheeks indicated her listless condition. Her husband worried about her lack of bloom till Cousin Helen came from the East for a visit. Martha improved wonderfully with bright companionship. Her husband was not slow to express his gratitude to his wife's cousin. "Helen, you can't imagine how much good your visit has done Martha. She looks ten years younger." "Well, I am so glad, Cousin George," Helen bubbled. "And if she keeps on using that rouge I'm leaving, her she'll always have that healthy complexion, like mine."—Exchange.

about a wife and child in Philadelphia. "Claypoole (with 215 prisoners) was placed on board the ship Symmetry and was exchanged on reaching America. He sought out Mrs. Ashburn, who was so favorably impressed with him, that they were married, May 8, 1783. Five daughters were born to them, one, Clarissa, married a Wilson, and succeeded her mother in the Flag making business.

"The original number and street of the Flag house was 89 Mulberry street; but Mulberry was changed to Arch. The numbers began at the Delaware river, alternating on north and south side of the street. In 1856 the present system of numbering in all cities originated in Philadelphia, giving 100 to each block (or square, in local parlance of that city), the Flag house becoming 239. The writer lived below the old house a short time before the new system of numbering was adopted, when Mrs. Mund then kept a tobacconist store in it, and refused large sums of money for parts of the house as relics."

Then follows "William J. Canby's statement": "It is not tradition, it is report from the lips of the principal participant in the transaction directly told, not to one or two, but to a dozen or more living witnesses, of whom I am one, though but a little boy when I heard it. I was eleven years old when Mrs. Ross died in our house, and well remember her telling the story. I have the narrative from the oldest of my aunts, reduced in writing in 1857. This aunt, Mrs. Clarissa Wilson, succeeded to the business of making flags which had been exclusively held by Mrs. Ross, and she continued to make flags for the navy yard and the arsenal for many years until, being conscientious on the subject of war, she gave up the government business, but continued the mercantile business until 1857. Washington was a frequent visitor at my grandmother's house, before receiving command of his army. She embroidered his shirt ruffles and did many other things for him. He knew her skill with the needle. Colonel Ross, with Robert Morris and General Washington, called upon Mrs. Ross and told her they were a committee of congress and wanted her to make the Flag from a drawing, a rough one, which upon her suggestion was drawn by General Washington, chiefly because the stars were six-cornered, and not five cornered. I fix the date to be during Washington's visit to congress from New York when he came to confer upon the affairs of the army, the Flag being, no doubt, one of these affairs."

Her husband was not slow to express his gratitude to his wife's cousin. "Helen, you can't imagine how much good your visit has done Martha. She looks ten years younger." "Well, I am so glad, Cousin George," Helen bubbled. "And if she keeps on using that rouge I'm leaving, her she'll always have that healthy complexion, like mine."—Exchange.

DAUGHERTY AFTER WAR PROFITEERS

ATTORNEY GENERAL PROMISES THEY WILL BE INDICTED AND PROSECUTED.

"BIG MEN" TO BE UNDER FIRE

Proceedings Against These Characters Will Have Considerable Effect on the Legislation to Pay a Bonus to Those Who Fought.

By EDWARD B. CLARK

Washington.—The promise has come from the Department of Justice that on the passage of a bill for an additional grand jury for the District of Columbia, cases which have been prepared against alleged war-time profiteers will be taken up for indictment and for the prosecution of the indicted.

For weeks charges were made freely that the Department of Justice was a laggard in its attempts to get at the profiteers. The matter was taken up in congress and direct charges against the department were made by some Republican representatives, and of course the Democrats have been making capital out of the controversy.

A promise of prosecution and a statement of what has been done were made by the attorney general in a letter to the President. The direct word is that some of "the big ones of earth" will be under the fire of the courts before much time has elapsed. The fate of the bill for bonus for the former service men is perhaps in some measure dependent upon what happens to the profiteers or to the men alleged to be such. If there had been no profiteering during the war, there probably would have been no demand for a bonus for veterans of the World war. The majority in the senate today is trying to figure out some means of providing what is equivalent to a cash bonus and doing it in such a way that it will receive the Presidential sanction. If developments prove that men in business life most active in opposition to the bonus profited largely at the expense of the government during the war, it seems likely that opposition to the cash payments to the veterans will melt away like a snow on a southern slope under a spring sun.

No Politics in the Bonus.

Of course the fact that some men profited during the war, "did" their government out of money and enriched themselves at the expense of the taxpayers does not in itself form an excuse for the calling upon the taxpayers to pay more money, but it supplies the human reason for the demand of the ex-service men that they get a bonus, and it also supplies a reason why the men asking for the bonus get considerable sympathy from the people for their demand.

Members of the lower house who voted in favor of the bonus have told your correspondent that they do not believe that a vote for or against the bonus will have any political effect one way or the other. These members said they thought men who voted against the measure will get as much voting benefit at the polls from their action as would come to men who voted for the measure.

One of these representatives has told me that he was moved to vote for the bonus by the comparatively recent action of certain great business organizations of the country which came out in bitter opposition to the payment of anything to the former service men.

This man said that a study of the personnel of the business organizations showed him that a large number of the memberships are held by men who reaped financial harvests from the war, although he would not say whether or not he thought all these men actually were intentional profiteers. The representative added that opposition to the payment of comparatively small sums of money to the men who served did not come with good grace from men who did not serve and who made large sums of money as a result of their business activities during the war.

Many Charges by Both Parties.

The profiteering charges have been provocative of all kinds of charges against individuals and corporations in private life and against officials of government. Democrats and some Republicans with them have charged that the present administration has endeavored through its Department of Justice to cover up some of the profiteering. Many Republicans have declared, on the contrary, that the Department of Justice has been at work unearthing the facts in the various cases, and that when they are disclosed to the public view it will be found that officials of the previous administration winked at profiteering operations.

That there was profiteering during the war is known to every American. Men who made fortunes out of the government contracts spent their acquired riches in glazing living in New York city, and, in winter, at Florida resorts and elsewhere. They flaunted their wealth. It is said that many of them since have gone broke—not being able to stand the prosperity which suddenly came to them.

Bureau Transfer Controversy. It is intended to transfer some certain bureaus of government from departments in which they have operated for years to other departments of Uncle Sam's service.

Cabinet officers who perhaps may lose control of bureaus over which they and their predecessors have exercised jurisdiction for many years do not believe in every instance that the changes recommended are for the good of the service. Other cabinet officers who expect to profit by the enlargement of their department naturally hold that the proposal for the transfers is much to be commended.

The report recommending the changes is that of Walter F. Brown of Ohio, who is the chairman of what is called the joint congressional commission on the reorganization of government departments and bureaus. Mr. Brown is the only member of the commission who holds no seat in congress. So far as the formulation of the report is concerned he has been the whole commission.

There have been efforts, more or less apparent, to make it appear that no bitterness has been shown by any of the officials whose departments or bureaus probably are to be affected. There has been bitterness and there is bitterness today. What President Harding, and everybody else wants of course, is the good of the service. The difficulty has been to decide what is good for the service.

Wallace's Department Hit.

The proposal to transfer the forestry bureau from the Department of Agriculture to the Department of the Interior has revived the controversies of the past. One can hear almost anything with one ear that he is willing to hear in favor of the transfer, and then with the other he can hear almost anything that he is willing to hear against the transfer. A Solomon is needed to decide as between Secretary Wallace and Secretaries Fall and Hoover.

The Department of Agriculture will be harder hit than any of the other departments if the proposed changes in jurisdiction over certain bureaus of government shall be made. Secretary Hoover's outfit believes that it better can care for the bureau of public roads and the bureau of markets than it is possible for Secretary Wallace's outfit to care for them. The proposal, it is understood, is to transfer these two bureaus to the care of Mr. Hoover.

President Harding's letter to congress has shown what the budget system and the operations of General Dawes have done for economy and efficiency. It is held by persons here that second only in saving grace to the operations of the budget will be that which will come to the government if the bureau transfers should be effected. Time alone will tell. The opponents of some of the transfers say that extravagance rather than economy will result from the adoption of the report of Chairman Brown.

There seemingly is point to the argument of the Department of Commerce that it should have control of the bureau of public roads, because roads are the instrument of commerce. The same argument might hold true so far as the bureau of markets is concerned, but agriculture says that markets represent the products of the soil, and that the producers want the farming department of government to continue its control.

Memorial Day Plans.

Preparations are being made in Washington for the annual Memorial day exercises. In Arlington across the Potomac from Washington sleep thousands upon thousands of the country's dead. Federal officers and soldiers and Confederate officers and soldiers, side by side, and with them the dead of all the wars, including the World's war, in which American men have gone forth to the fighting.

Arlington is the camping ground of an army that never again will bear arms. Since the last Memorial day the unknown soldier whose body was brought from France has found a resting place in front of the great amphitheater. The people, of course, will remember the ceremonies attending the interment on Armistice day of the body of this soldier who in a high sense represented all of his fallen comrades.

On Memorial day the soldiers of the regular army and the volunteer veterans of all the wars will assemble and march to do honor to the dead. Northern veterans of the Civil war will remember alike the graves of Union and Confederate soldiers. A little later, however, there will be another observance at Arlington when the Confederate veterans and Daughters of the Confederacy will hold a special memorial service of their own, in honor of the southern dead.

Grant and Sherman Not There.

Grant and Sherman, the two greatest of the northern chieftains, sleep elsewhere—one on the shores of the Hudson and the other in a beautiful cemetery in the city of St. Louis. Their place is in Arlington. Generals, colonels, sergeants, corporals and privates are side by side in this encampment of the dead. The silent tents of Unionists and Confederates are pitched not far apart, and no guard stands between them. Schofield (federal) and Wheeler (Confederate) sleep almost side by side. They were friends, then enemies in war, and then friends again serving under the same flag, both dying while in the service of the United States.

There are soldiers of many wars resting in Arlington. Revolutionary veterans lie under the same trees that shelter their descendants killed in the Philippine Islands. Soldiers who were the victims of the Seminole and Sioux sleep side by side, and with them are the men who fell at Molino del Rey and Buena Vista, at Gettysburg and Chateau Thierry. Sailors who served on the Constitution and on the Maine are in port in Arlington.

True Detective Stories

NUMBER 2695

WHEN Policeman William Lawrence of Bath, Me., was found in a dying condition—a bullet having drilled a hole through his lung—it was only natural that Dennis Tracey should take up the trail of the murderers. Tracey was Lawrence's closest friend on the force.

No one knew anything about the circumstances which led up to the crime, and, apparently, there was little hope of discovering any clue, because Lawrence, though not dead when discovered on the following morning, was extremely weak from exposure and loss of blood. According to the physicians, it was practically a certainty that he would die without recovering consciousness.

After leaving orders at the hospital that he was to be notified at once if his friend showed signs of being able to talk, Tracey visited the scene of the shooting in the hope of being able to find footprints or other evidence which would assist him in the search which he intended to make. The investigation, however, was entirely fruitless.

The dying policeman's revolver had been fired three times, but without effect—for Tracey found the bullets lodged in the rafters of a nearby warehouse, sufficiently close together to provide a hazy outline of the place from which Lawrence's assailant must have fired. So far as Tracey was able to reconstruct the affair, Lawrence had come upon some one trying to break into the warehouse, had probably warned him by a shot over his head and followed that by two other shots which failed to take effect. The burglar had then turned and fired point blank at the policeman, dropping him where he stood.

But who was the other man?

This was the question to which Tracey determined to devote as much time as necessary, the problem without a clue.

It was late the following night before Lawrence's condition showed any signs of change, and then only for the worse. The physicians gave him only a few hours to live, and Tracey hung continually over the bed, hoping for some word or sign which would provide an indication of the murderer's identity. Finally it came.

With an almost superhuman effort the dying officer raised himself on one elbow, and gathering every ounce of his fading energy, whispered the single word:

"Wilkinson!"

Then he fell back, dead.

But that last word was enough. Had it not been Tracey who heard it, it would have meant nothing—for the two officers had been secretly working on a number of recent warehouse burglaries and they alone knew of the suspected connection of Daniel Wilkinson, son of a prominent New Hampshire family, with the one-man thefts. Now Tracey knew that not only was Wilkinson guilty of the burglaries, but of a far greater crime—the murder of Policeman Lawrence.

Putting himself in the place of the criminal, Tracey felt certain that the latter would not remain in or around Bath. He must have known that Lawrence had recognized him, and would fear that the dying man would find some way of imparting this knowledge. It was probable, therefore, that he would head for some hiding-place where he would be comparatively safe.

Knowing that Wilkinson's family, in an effort to whiten the character of the black sheep, had sent him to sea a number of years before, Tracey thought it likely that the fugitive would attempt to join the crew of a sailing vessel and lose himself in a foreign port. He accordingly warned the authorities of all the New England sea ports to be on the watch for a man of Wilkinson's description, and then, securing leave of absence, he took up the search—combing the waterfronts of every city and town from the Canadian border to Boston.

It was nearly six months later, after he had almost abandoned hope, that Tracey wandered along the wharves at Bangor and spotted the man he wanted "porting" lumber into the schooner Good Intent, at the foot of the Railroad street wharf. Without a sound the policeman edged his way along the dock until he was behind Wilkinson, and then dropped on top of his man, flattening him to the deck. Almost before he knew what had happened the fugitive found himself handcuffed and on his way back to Bath, there to be convicted of the murder of William Lawrence, after one of the hardest-fought legal battles in the history of the state.

The fact that, in the shadow of the state prison wall at Thomaston, there stands today a headstone bearing the numerals "2695," does not close the case, for there are many who claim that the murderer had powerful friends who succeeded in saving him from the gallows and helped spirit him out of the country into the Canadian Northwest. But Tracey, who is now house detective at a big Florida hotel, considers that he fulfilled his obligations to his dead friend, when, after months of patient searching, he located the man who was responsible for Lawrence's death and produced the evidence which led to his conviction.

"Maybe Wilkinson is still alive," says Tracey, "but the soul of Bill Lawrence and my conscience are both at peace."

Chinese Compliment

In China, if one desires to express high compliment of a person, the right thumb is stuck up above a closed fist. To extend the little finger, though, is to suggest that the person is beneath contempt. When the Changsha man refers to his fellow citizens, he always resembles a patient about to have his thumb bandaged. Long before Yale established the "Yale in China" college in Changsha, the city

LIVINGSTON COUNTY FAIR

At a recent meeting of the Livingston County Fair Association the dates for the Howell Fair were again fixed as August 29, 30, 31 and September 1. This is the ninth annual fair to be given by the present association and it has always been held the last week in August, but two other Michigan fairs are held on an earlier date.

The day and night fair idea will be featured this year. Extensive improvements have been made to the lighting arrangements and the grounds at night will be illuminated as light as day by hundreds of electric lights. All free act attractions will perform in the evening as well as twice each day and the lighting arrangements on the platform will make them even more spectacular than in the day time.

The greatest display of fireworks ever seen in Livingston County will be fired on Wednesday and Thursday evenings at 8:30 P. M. The directors have just signed a contract with the Italian-American Fireworks Company of Philadelphia, Pa., one of the leading fire producers in the United States, to furnish a display for those nights. The program for each night includes one hundred individual and distinct pieces. Such scenes as the sinking of the Lusitania will be graphically depicted in gorgeous colors and with realistic explosions culminating in one grand spectacle when the ship finally sinks from sight. The entire display will take nearly two hours each evening and should bring people from all all over this and surrounding counties.

These features are being worked out by the directors and will be announced from time to time as contracted for.
