SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC A BIG SUCCESS

Last Friday a large crowd of the members of the Federated Sunday School met at the church at about 10 o'clock and all motored to Van Horn's picnic grounds at Rush Lake.

The morning sports consisted of a base ball game between the Loyal Junior Son's Boys' class and the Flower Girls' Class. A most interesting seven-inning game was played and at its conclusion the boys were declared the winner by a 14 to 11 score.

At noon a most excellent dinner was served and enjoyed by everyone present.

After this several running races were held it being found that Misses Agnes Howard, Pauline Reason, and Cressy Haines were the best runners in the girls' classes and Floyd Campbell and M. Graves the winners of the boys' races.

Next came the base ball game between the Boys' Class and Men's Class. The boys taught the men inside base ball although they were at the short end of a 4 to 3 score.

The most interesting game of the day was the game between the girls and the ladies' classes. The girls were the winners by the one sided score of 34 to 4.

After the sports the crowd began to grow smaller and by evening each had gone his homeward way with the thought in mind that this had been a most joyful day for all who attended.

The Pinckney Federated Sunday school takes this method of expressing their thanks to Mr. Van Horn who so kindly furnished the picnic grounds.

FOWLerville WINS SECOND GAME

Local base ball fans were not in a happy frame of mind Sunday night, and there were reasons aplenty for feeling somewhat blue. The Detroit Tigers who have been playing championship ball for some time suffered two defeats Saturday and Sunday at the hands of the leading St. Louis team. Then the Fowlerville club didn't add any pleasure when they came over Sunday afternoon and copped from Pinckney at the rate of thirteen to four.

Fowlerville notified the Pinckney management that they would use a Lansing league battery, so Pinckney engaged the services of Caswell the Ann Arbor pitcher. However, Fowlerville changed their plans Gehring who pitched the Fowlerville high school team to glory this year.

Fowlerville made a good move in using Gehring, as he completely out-classed Caswell as the score will show and Pinckney would at least have done as well by using Lapham in the box and not depending on outside talent.

This is the second game between the teams, Pinckney winning the first game six to one and another game to decide the supremacy will no doubt draw a large crowd.

The batteries were:
Pinckney, Caswell and McClear.
Fowlerville, Gehring and Hart.
Umpire, S. D. Lapham.

Another game with the Ann Arbor Grottoes has been scheduled for Sunday, July 1st. This is the second game for this team, the first having been won by Pinckney, four to nothing.

I. O. O. F. PICNIC

Livingston county Oddfellows will hold a basket picnic at the Howell Fair Grounds July 20. A big time is assured as the program is well filled including 16 sport events and tug-of-war and three base ball games between different lodges. Speaking by prominent Oddfellows and a basket dinner. Everybody is invited to come.

CARD OF THANKS

The Juniors of 1922 wish to express their thanks for the ladies, students and all others who so kindly assisted in making the Banquet a success.
The Juniors of 1922

THE GAME WORKED

Three bonnie Irish lassies, with a brogue like a native of Cork, invaded the environs of Hastings the other day and before the housewives of the Barry shire town came out of their trance the fair creatures had unloaded about 17 miles of lace, that they claimed had been sent them directly from the "ould sod," and only dire necessity forced them to part with their treasure trove. Mixed in with the brogue were a few crocodile tears and a couple heart-rending groans over the terrible plight in which they found themselves, but it was exactly the leaven in the loaf that caused every woman they visited to make a frantic search of the premises and dig up every shekel she could to buy, and buy and buy. Finally it occurred to one of the ladies to take her purchase down to one of the town merchants, who promptly told her she could buy all she wanted of the same kind of stuff at a few cents a yard, whereas it had cost her dollars. By that time the three lassies were well on their way to other pastures green, leaving behind them some of the maddest women that one could well imagine.—Ionia.

Wolverine News Brevities

Benton Harbor—Sale of the Benton Harbor-St. Joe Railway & Light Co. to the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. has been completed.

West Branch—A team of horses, valued at $450, owned by Victor Nelson, was struck by lightning and killed in a field on his farm.

Birmingham—Fred Alter, of Grosse Pointe, was arrested following the alleged seizure of five cases of beer in his automobile. He was taken to the Pontiac jail.

Marshall—A special meeting, electors of Marshall school district voted to issue $100,000 bonds to erect a new high school gymnasium and auditorium by 1926 to '28.

Muskegon—Leaping from the grandstand to quell a threatened fight between Muskegon and Kalamazoo baseball players, Sheriff W. O. Matthews suffered a sprained ankle.

Grand Rapids—Henry Ward Beecher, 62 years old, head of a chain of motion picture houses here, and a pioneer businessman, died of appendicitis. He was prominently known as the "newsboys' pal."

Bay City—Egbert Sovereign, a pioneer lumberman of Michigan and vice-president of the Aladdin company, of this city, died at his home here. He was 81 years old, and leaves his widow and two sons.

Sault Ste. Marie—Oscar Settergren, arrested in connection with the slaying of Botolph Norberg, on a farm near Manistique last February, was sentenced to life imprisonment at Marquette by Judge Louis Fead.

Rochester—Helen, 14-year-old daughter of C. W. Mellok, manager of D. A. Brown's stock farm, died of Hodgkins disease, a gland disease so rare that but 30 cases were reported in Michigan in 65 years. All were fatal.

Ypsilanti—George Kapsouris, arrested in Detroit on a charge of issuing bogus checks, waived an examination in justice court, and was bound over to the circuit court. Bail was fixed at $1,000 which he was not able to give.

Fulton—A homecoming celebration was held here June 21 in observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the village churches' dedication. The chief address was made by Dr. Hugh Kennedy, of Detroit, secretary to Bishop Theodore Henderson.

Charlotte—Catherine, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Briggs, of Kalamazoo township, died here as the result of amputation of her left arm, made necessary after that member was crushed in a power wringer of a washing machine.

Port Huron—Members of the Kiwanis club have started a movement to secure the city manager commission form of government for Port Huron in place of the commission form. Under the new plan a city manager would be placed in charge of all city departments.

Lansing—The state's right to collect a fee for approval by the Michigan public utilities commission of bond issues of railroad and utility companies is to be tested in court by the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo Railroad Co. The company paid under protest a fee of $225 for the approval of a $3,000,000 gold bond issue.

Boyer City—The new consolidated school district recently formed, has elected the following officers: Herman C. Meyer, B. J. Grobaskie, George Matulski, William Pette and Frank L. Stewart who will engage a superintendent of domestic science and four additional grade teachers. The district will receive $1,000 state aid.

Flint—Rev. W. H. Holden, of Springfield, Ill., former head of the Illinois conference of Seventh Day Adventists, was elected president of the East Michigan conference during the business session held here. R. M. Harrison, of Grand Rapids, was elected secretary and treasurer to succeed Miss Tillie Barr, who leaves as a missionary for China.

Escanaba—Dr. William H. Taylor, of Ludington, Mich., was elected state president of the fraternal order of Eagles in the closing session of the Michigan annual convention here. W. P. Vaught, of Boyne City, was chosen vice-president. Robert Graham, of Grand Rapids, secretary and John Richter, of Saginaw, treasurer. The 1923 convention will be held at Boyne City.

Grand Rapids—Because his revolver slipped from his holster, Jimmy Lee, paroled convict and a fugitive for several months, was taken without bloodshed when a posse of officers raided an alleged rendezvous of thieves and moonshiners near Ada. Lee nearly made his escape, but stopped when he lost his gun and Deputy Sheriff Frank Linkfield emptied his revolver at him.

Traverse City—In increasing numbers, tourists are pouring into the north country for a breath of pine laden air. Every day the hotels add permanent names to their summer register and cars with varicolored license plates appear on the streets. Cottages at the smaller resorts in the region are rather well filled, and soon all the shutters will be down and the screens up. The state tourist park at the east head of Grand Traverse bay already has had many campers. Many summer people are coming by train this year instead of by automobile.

St. Joseph—Four men loaded a 400-pound safe, stolen from the Homer Grant store, at Coloma, into an automobile and escaped. The safe contained $250.

Oshkemo—Charles Campbell, Grange leader, and progressive farmer, of Oshkemo, is making plans for installing an up-to-date cold storage plant on his farm here. It will be the first in this vicinity.

Albion—Entering the building through two loose boards in the floor, left after pipes had been repaired, thieves took 1,000 pounds of sugar from the store of Mike Dubina, in the foreign settlement here.

Ann Arbor—Professor Jesse S. Reeves, head of the political science department of the University of Michigan, will take part in the institute of politics opening for a month's session at Williamston, Mass. July 27.

Adrian—Four acres of land have been purchased at Weston, Mich., by the Page Dairy company of Toledo, O., and, according to officials of that company, a milk station will be erected there. The location is in the center of Lenawee county's milk producing territory.

Charlotte—The board of directors of the Eaton County Agricultural society have authorized a new floral hall to cost $7,500. The new structure will be ready for the fair this fall. The society is one of the few prosperous county fairs, with a surplus of $10,000.

Muskegon—This city has reduced the assessed valuation on residence property more than $1,500,000, while a similar increase has been made on factory property. The factory boost is largely due to new buildings erected. The total assessed valuation will be around $52,000,000.

Mt. Clemens—Fourteen pints of beer, recently confiscated by Prosecutor Lynn Johnston, from the Green Tree cafe, was ordered returned to the owners by Judge Harry J. Dingeman, of Detroit, who held that the search warrant under which the raid was made was irregular and illegal.

Tecumseh—A bumble bee which stung the nose of J. D. Cox of Detroit, as he was driving his automobile near here, caused him to lose control of his car which swerved into the ditch and turned turtle. His wife and two sons were in the car, and Mrs. Cox suffered a broken arm.

Marquette—"We hope to be able to start work on the new Normal training school building this summer or early in the fall," President James H. B. Kaye, of the Normal school, declared. "At present plans are being modified so as to make the new school one of the finest of its kind anywhere," he said.

Flint—Declaring that local justices of the peace are taking too many days off, including fishing and hunting trips, and other vacations, Mayor William H. McKeighan sent Justices Marshall Frisbie and Elwyn Tanner letters notifying them, that, according to law, a justice is entitled to but 14 days' vacation in the year.

Kalamazoo—Cliff E. N. Diver, of this city, for meritorious service, the Michigan Central Railroad, for which he worked 40 years, has granted him a pension and a gold medal, entitling him to a life pass on the line. During his 40 years' service on the road, Diver, as baggagemaster, never met with an accident or was involved in a damage claim.

Mt. Clemens—Judge Theodore J. Richter, of the Wayne circuit bench, effected a reconciliation between Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Hoffman, wealthy Grosse Pointe residents, principals in a divorce case. Hoffman brought the action against the wife, who is mother of 12 children. The two kissed, and marched out of court, hand in hand, with their 12 children following.

Alpena—John C. McKay, captain of the fishing tug Falcon suffered a fracture of the right arm and nearly lost his life when he was carried overboard with the pilot house of his craft when it was struck by a tow line between the barge Helen C. and a tow. With his broken arm McKay swam 50 feet, then found a life preserver, with which he kept afloat until rescued.

Grand Haven—Chief Pipple, of the police and fire department, no longer has to dash away on his bicycle when answering a fire alarm or a burglar alarm. For several years the city has equipped the chief of the two departments with a bicycle and he has pumped his way to the scene of trouble. But now it is changed. A bright red automobile has been purchased for the chief.

Clare—The last of the lumber towns of Clare county is doomed. The Pere Marquette started to tear up its tracks to Leota, famous in the lumberjack days of 40 years ago. Millions of feet of logs have been floated down the Muskegon, past Leota, but only small timber has been marketed the last few years. Inasmuch as the trunk line through the town is also being abandoned, little remains to keep alive a semblance of the town that once thrived there.

Pontiac—A pat on the shoulder accompanied by a squeezing of her hand by a married man caused Mrs. Emily Bowhall, 35 years old, of this city, such "great worry and mental suffering" that she is suing George Edgar Sherman, 65, a farmer, for $15,000 damages, according to the bill of complaint filed here. Mrs. Bowhall charges that Sherman insisted on making love to her, although knowing that she was married. Her husband is a machinist. She says that Sherman once suggested that they go out for a "good feed."

BODY OF YOUNG RECTOR FOUND

DEATH OF DETROITER IN CHARGE OF ONTONAGON CHURCH REMAINS MYSTERY.

MOONSHINERS MAY BE INVOLVED

Coroner's Jury at Eagle Harbor Does Not, However, Find Evidence of Foul Play.

Detroit—"The glorious Easter Day once more is near at hand. With its coming, victory over death once more is fully realized."

Thus George W. Jerome Dickinson, 20 years old, acting rector of the Episcopal Church in Ontonagon, Mich., wrote to his family at 636 Atkinson avenue, on April 7. It was his last letter. Three days later he disappeared. On June 21 his body was found on Keweenaw Point, on the shore of Lake Superior.

Dickinson had intended to begin his studies for ordination next fall. He had been a student at Northern High School, leaving there about three years ago to study pharmacy at the Cass Technical High School. He completed his course there and was a registered pharmacist, for a time in the employ of Grace Hospital.

He went to Ontonagon last fall to complete his high school credits. When he arrived, he found that the Church of the Ascension, the only Episcopal church in town, was without a rector. He offered to supply the pulpit and, after conducting several services, the congregation was so greatly impressed that they urged him to take charge of the parish.

He took a conspicuous part in the crusade against the liquor traffic. One of the first theories advanced to account for his disappearance was that he had been disposed of by moonshiners. This theory was discounted at the inquest, held in Eagle Harbor, where the coroner's jury found no evidence of foul play.

JURY ACQUITS GOVERNOR SMALL

Case of Illinois Executive Ends After Nine Week's Trial.

Waukegan, Ill.—The jury trying Governor Len Small found him not guilty in a verdict returned June 24. The jury was out one hour and 35 minutes.

Cheers that shook the rafters of the ancient Lake county courthouse greeted the verdict. Friends by scores poured through the gates to the bar enclosure seeking to grasp the governor's hand.

Governor Small was indicted about a year ago on an embezzlement charge but this later was changed to a charge of conspiracy to defraud the state of interest money. The case went to trial nine week's ago.

JURY BLAMES COAL OPERATORS

Verdict Declares Officials of Company Responsible for Massacre.

Herrin—Entire responsibility for the murder of 19 non-union workers and two union miners resulting from the riots and massacre at a strip mine near here last week, was laid upon officials of the Southern Illinois Coal company, mentioned specifically by name, in the verdict rendered by a coroner's jury here Sunday.

GOLD SITE DISCOVERY REPORTED

23-Foot Vein Uncovered in Hologden Mines, Report.

Sudbury, Ont.—It is reported that an important discovery has just been made in the West Shining Tree gold area, in the Hologden mines. A vein which measures approximately 23 feet in width, has been uncovered on surface, the composition being well-mineralized blue quartz. Negotiations are now under way with a view to equipping the property with a mining plant and carrying out an extensive scheme of operation.

YOUTHS ON DRIVE TO ALASKA

Graduates of Allegan High School Build Car for Trip.

Allegan, Mich.—In an automobile built out of old parts, with a camping body, Plen Miller and Emil Schmidt, Jr., who graduated this month from the Allegan high school, have set out on a trip to Alaska.

24 Injured in Train Wreck.

Leadville, Colo.—Twenty-four persons were injured, four seriously, when the first section of Denver & Rio Grande Western passenger train No. 2, eastbound, was wrecked at Keel, a small station 10 miles from Leadville. Spreading rails are believed to have caused the accident. Those who suffered sprains, cuts and bruises continued their journey. Three Pullman cars and the diner turned over while another Pullman jumped the track and turned partly over.

BRITISH MILITARY LEADER ASSASSINATED NEAR HOME

SIR HENRY HUGHES WILSON

London—Field Marshal Sir Henry Hughes Wilson, former chief of the British imperial general staff and late military adviser to the Ulster government was assassinated June 22 near the door of his home in Eaton Place, London.

Two men fired upon the field marshal as he was alighting from an automobile after attending a war memorial unveiling where he delivered a speech. Struck by three bullets, he staggered and fell. He was carried into his home where he died before the arrival of physicians.

$5,000,000 ROAD AID AVAILABLE

Michigan Has Neat Sum To Its Credit From Past Years.

Washington—In addition to the $1,499,688 Michigan will be entitled to draw in the coming fiscal year as federal aid for road building, it has a neat sum to its credit from past years.

Figures secured from the bureau of public roads show that Michigan's entire apportionment of federal aid from 1917 up to the end of May, 1922, was $10,210,878. Of this $6,805,228 was applied to roads completed or then under construction, leaving $3,405,650 still available for new construction.

The amount earned by the state in federal aid by completed road work at the end of last May was $4,952,912, and of this, $4,477,186 had actually been paid, the balance of federal aid earned and then due being $475,726. There thus would be available by the state in the way of federal contribution for road work more than $5,000,000.

START SURVEY OF STATE SOIL

University Experts Begin Inventory of Natural Resources.

Lansing—Officials in charge of the state soil survey, which is being undertaken by several state departments and educational institutions, left Lansing June 23 for Charlevoix, where the inventory of natural resources will start.

Prof. L. J. Young, of the University of Michigan, head of the survey forestry division; Prof. L. R. Schoenmann, of Wisconsin University, directing the basic soils survey, and Dr. A. E. White, of the University of Michigan, chief of the industrial development and peat resources divisions, are in charge of the party that will encamp this summer in the Grand Traverse district.

CANADA MAY TAX AMERICANS

Income Tax Proposal Submitted to the House of Commons.

Ottawa—Honorable W. S. Fielding, minister of finance, has introduced in the house of commons a bill amending the income tax act whereby Americans working in Canada and living in the United States must pay a tax of eight per cent on all earnings in excess of $1,000. No exemptions of any kind are allowed. This is the same tax as the United States government recently put into effect upon Canadians working in the United States and living in Canada.

The tax is to become effective by proclamation, which means that all that is needed for its enforcement is the scratch of a pen by the governor-general.

President Outlines Subsidy Plans.

Washington—President Harding gave formal approval to plans of Republican leaders in the house to bring the administration ship subsidy bill to a vote at this session soon after the tariff bill has been sent to conference by the house. The president's position was stated in a letter to Representative Mondell, of Wyoming, the Republican leader, which embodied also detailed arguments advanced by Mr. Harding in favor of enactment of the measure at the present session.

Items Of Interest in World's News

Agree on 12,000 Army Officers.
Washington—House and senate conferees on the army appropriation bill have agreed on a maximum of 12,000 officers as the permanent strength of the army for the next 12 months.

Fined for Mailing Obscene Literature.
Cincinnati, O.—John C. Kidd, head of a Cincinnati publishing house, was fined $1,000 by U. S. district Judge J. W. Peck on the charge of sending improper literature in interstate commerce.

Pussyfoot Shuns U. S. Ships.
New York—When William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson sailed for Liverpool to resume his prohibition drive overseas, it was on the British steamer Scythia. "I will not ride on American bootleg scows," he declared.

Woman, 85, Arrested As Bigamist.
Los Angeles, Cal.—Mrs. Alice Parker, who gave her age as 85, was arrested charged with bigamy. Philip La Tiez told the district attorney he was married to the defendant in 1918 and that he had learned she had married Nathan E. Parker in 1921.

Barking of Dog Saves Master.
Wilmington, Del.—The barking of a dog probably saved the life of Herbert Brown when the latter's bungalow, two miles below New Castle, caught fire. When Mr. Brown was awakened at 2 o'clock by his terrier the house was in flames. Brown had just time to escape.

Kills Raiders, Commits Suicide.

Albany, Ore.—David F. West, who shot and killed Sheriff Kendall and Rev. Roy Healy at his ranch home here, later shot and killed himself, after being barricaded in his home since shooting the officer and minister. The victims had raided the home in search of a moonshine still.

Detroit Masons Invite Harding.

Washington—President Harding has been invited by Senator Newberry, Republican, of Michigan, to attend the laying of the cornerstone of the "largest Masonic temple in the world" at Detroit some time in September. The president took the invitation under advisement.

Collects Fines on Installments.

Gloucester, N. J.—Mayor Anderson, acting in the capacity of magistrate, sees no reason why a public court should not extend credit like a department store and other institutions. So when two celebrators told him they had spent all their ready cash for liquor, he agreed to their request to extend credit on their fines of $5.75 each until "next pay day."

France Awarded $122,566.22 Damage

Trenton, N. J.—The verdict awarded in the Hudson county circuit court to the Republic of France against the Erie railroad was sustained by the court of errors and appeals. The amount of the verdict is $122,566.22, of which $22,918.81 is interest. The litigation grew out of the damage done to munition materials in the Erie's yard at the time of the Black Tom explosion July 30, 1916.

Exhume Body for Analysis.

Washington, Ga.—The body of Mrs. Mary Walker Saggus, first wife of Dr. J. C. Saggus, now in jail here on a charge of murdering Mrs. Saggus and Charles J. Wilbank, was exhumed in the Sandy Cross church yard near Crawfordville, and Sheriff G. W. Walton and Dr. A. W. Simpson started immediately for Atlanta with the vital organs for examination by the state chemist for traces of poison.

Loader Falls into Coal Hopper

New York—Losing his balance, Orlando Divordo, 48 years old, of Long Island City, fell into a coal hopper in the yards of the Casino Beach Gas company, Astoria, and was killed when 10 tons of coal fell on him. The Italian was placing the hoist in position to unload the coal into the hopper when he fell forward into the hopper just as a load was let loose. It was several hours before his body was recovered.

Lords Pass Washington Pact.

London—The house of lords passed the second reading of the "treaties of Washington act of 1922," introduced by Lord Lee, of Fareham, first lord of the admiralty. This bill makes effective the two treaties signed in February at Washington, one for the limitation of naval armament, and the second for the protection of neutrals and non-combatants at sea, and to prevent the use of noxious gases and chemicals in war.

Bulldog Pleads Own Case.

Chicago—"Buster," a bulldog, described by Alexis Lampe as a "large, awe-inspiring, evil-looking beast," successfully pleaded his own case in municipal court. Lampe told how the dog attacked him and asked $1,000 damages. Then someone whistled, "Buster" hopped off a chair, waddled to the witness box, sniffed Lampe's trousers, rubbed against the judge's leg, and then hopped back on his chair. In a few minutes came the verdict, "Discharged."

BREAK INTO JAIL TO FREE 2 GIRLS

FLINT YOUTHS ARRESTED AFTER ANSWERING CAPTIVE'S PLEA TO RELEASE THEM.

FAIL IN ATTEMPT AT GETAWAY

Detected Trying to Steal Autos in Which They Hoped to Elude Flint Officers.

Flint, Mich.—Breaking into the Genesee county juvenile home at midnight and assisting two young girls to freedom, caused the arrest, Sunday, of five young men, now held at the Genesee county jail facing serious charges.

The young men are: William Clark, 18 years old, of 118 Tillinghast place; Charles Lauderbach, 18 years old, of Flint; Cole Campbell, 19 years old, of 2022 Pine street; Ralph Kahn, 17 years old, and Everett Bailer, 16 years old, both of Coleman, Mich.

The escape of the girls, Reva Fleming and Mary Reiser, detained until they could be removed to the girls' state reformatory at Adrian, was not discovered until they were captured by the police, six hours after their romantic departure from the home.

About 9 o'clock, Saturday night, the five young men were walking with a group of 20 fellows to the Atherton road sand pit for a swim, when their attraction was drawn toward the detention home, they say, by the calls of a girl's voice.

The lads approached the home and the girls asked them to free them from the prison, they claim. The young men agreed to come back to the home about 11 o'clock, according to a statement in the hands of police, but appeared there about midnight. An unsuccessful attempt was made to remove window barriers with pliers and cutters, and the girls suggested that the men secure skeleton keys and gain entrance through a rear door.

A rear door was successfully opened by means of keys, and while three of the boys stood guard outside, two removed their shoes and walked past the quarters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burt, warden of the institution, to the rooms occupied by the girls and, unlocking it, guided the pretty misses outside, without disturbing the custodians of the home.

It was 4:30 Sunday morning that Patrolmen A. Smith and Schaff were directed to capture a band of youths attempting to steal an automobile on St. John street. Bailer and Kahn and Miss Reiser were taken by the officers, who were told that three other men and a girl escaped. Officers located the second group at the home of a friend and placed all under arrest.

BERLIN DECLARES MARTIAL LAW

German Capital Uneasy Following the Assassination of Rathenau.

Berlin—Martial law and state of siege were proclaimed in Berlin June 24 following the assassination of Dr. Walter Rathenau, the German foreign minister, that morning.

The murderers who were waiting for Dr. Rathenau at his door followed his automobile in another motor. As the foreign minister's car was passing a crossing they fired eight revolver shots and hurled a hand grenade at their victim. Dr. Rathenau was killed instantly.

The assassins, of whom it is stated there were three, escaped in their automobile.

The report of the crime spread rapidly throughout Berlin, causing a general uproar. Crowds gathered in the streets, discussing the necessity of a general strike which was being prepared by the labor unions.

All the roads to Berlin are being guarded by strong detachments of police who are controlling train and automobile traffic to prevent demonstrators from marching on the capital.

WILLIAM ROCKEFELLER IS DEAD

Brother of Oil King Passes Away Suddenly, Aged 81 Years.

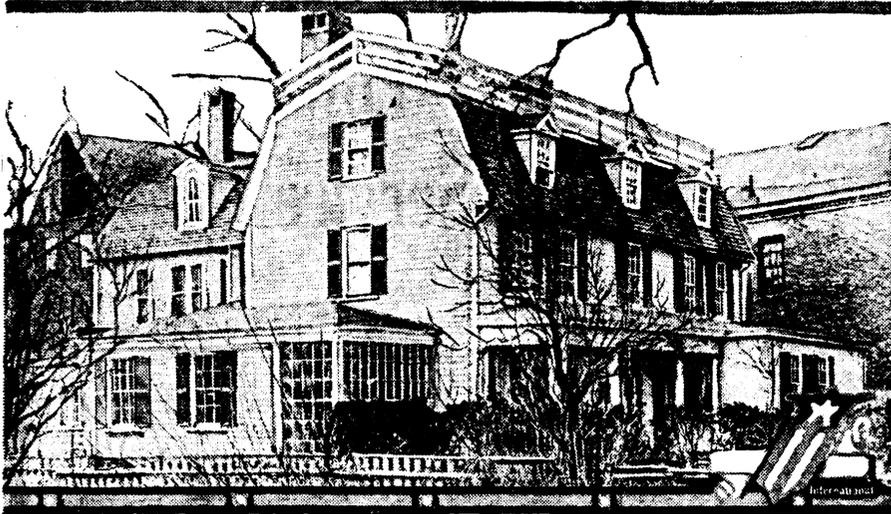

Tarrytown, N. Y.—William Rockefeller, who, with his older brother, John D., built up the family millions in the oil industry, died June 24 of pneumonia, complicated by a recurrence of kidney trouble, at his country estate overlooking the Hudson river from North Tarrytown. He was 81 years old.

To all but relatives and his closest friends, the end was unexpected, for while he lay fighting death behind the guarded gates to his beautiful acres, no hint was given that he even was indisposed.

Says Americans Don't Drink.

New York—The lure of Cuba for American tourists still is the climate and the winter sports—not, as some people suppose, the fact that one can buy drinks there, declared Fernando Andrae, former mayor of Havana, on his arrival here on the steamer Orizaba. "Americans get drunk!" he exclaimed. "No, no, no. That's a slander on the Americans. I have never seen an American drunk in Havana. Many who go there do not touch a drop."

Home of Revolutionary Patriot

The historic Page home in Danvers, Mass., from which Page, the first Revolutionary colonel of an Essex regiment, and a captain of the American army, started forth with the Minute Men of Danvers for the Battle of Lexington. It was in this house, also, that Page organized the Minute Men of the town.

The house is also known as the "Tea Party House." Forbidden by her husband to serve the tabooed English tea in the house, Mrs. Page served it to a party of friends on the roof, thus keeping the letter if not the spirit of her husband's orders.

Glorious Stars and Stripes

The flag is the emblem of our unity, our power, our purpose as a nation. It speaks to us of the past. It has witnessed a great history. Since its official adoption on June 14, 1777, it has been associated with whatever patriotic idea we worship and is the symbol of the great faith to which we are born.

"As long as men are men that flag chosen on June 14, 1777, is well chosen. It has a meaning, a message, a command," says Rev. William Norman Guthrie, who has written a book, "The Religion of Old Glory," to explain the meaning and message of America's flag to the nations of the world.

The flag of the United States came into being more deliberately and consciously than other flags, such as that of England, or France, or Spain. It was chosen after many popular experiments had been made, officially and unofficially, on sea and land.

Inception of the Flag.
The story of the actual making of the first American flag as we know it is not touched on by Mr. Guthrie. Omitting all minor particulars, the main points are these:

Washington, accompanied by two gentlemen, called one day in 1776 at the little upholstery shop in Arch street, Philadelphia, where Mrs. Betsy Ross was carrying on business, and asked her if she could make a flag. She said that she had never made one, but that she could try. They thereupon produced a design rather roughly drawn. She examined the design and, noticing that the stars were six-pointed, suggested that they be made with five points, showing them how a five-pointed star could be made with a single clip of the scissors.

Design Approved by Congress.
General Washington then and there changed the sketch, and soon after a colored design by a painter named William Barrett was sent to Mrs. Ross as a sample, whereupon she set to work and completed a flag which was approved. This was the flag that was finally adopted by congress, and on June 14, 1777, congress entered on its journal an official indorsement of the Stars and Stripes in a resolution worded as follows:

"Resolved, That the flag of the United States be 13 stripes, alternate red and white, and that the union be 13 stars white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

The resolution says nothing about the arrangement of the stars in the field.

The ensign of the United States remained the same as fixed by the resolution of June 14, 1777, until 1795, when Vermont and Kentucky had been admitted to the Union, and on January 13, 1794, congress passed the following act:

"That from and after the first day of May, 1795, the flag of the United States be 15 stripes alternate red and white; that the union be 15 stars white in a blue field."

In 1818, at the suggestion of Samuel O. Reid, the original 13 stripes were restored and congress voted to add a new star on the Fourth of July succeeding the admission of each new state.

Significance of Symbols.
"When a white flag staff or pole is set up on a village green," says Mr. Guthrie, "it will doubtless show at the top on a golden ball the American eagle, also golden, flapping his wide wings, as if just alighting or about to exult in heavenward flight. This eagle is the very prime symbol of our defensive and aspiring Union. It is the bird or angel of our peace, our winged Victory, our Phoenix, the point of contact and the vehicle of grace in our intercourse with heaven. Embroidered on a blue field, star strewn, it is the emblem of the executive head of the nation."

In his right talon our eagle clutches the olive branch, with 13 green leaves and 13 berries, the leaves that are the show of life and the berries that are the fruit—that symbol itself carrying us back to the olive twig borne by the dove of Noah. This olive branch proclaims our constant purpose—a positive creative peace.

Now, in the left talon of our heraldic eagle are clutched the 13 arrows which signify the threatening thunderbolts. As Mr. Guthrie explains it, the 13 lightning bolts are ready to be shot out of the heaven and to establish with whatever violence may be needed against the tiger and ape, stampeding herds or howling wolf packs, the peace of perfect athletic humanity.

"Flag and eagle they are ours; they are historically one," says Mr. Guthrie. "Our flag flies to the winds, as we lift our eyes to it reverently we can and do swear fealty to it with whatever abides vitally innocent in us, white hot for the strife unto a better world."

Lord God of land and sea,
An ancient faith renew,
That still our stand may be
The trust our fathers knew;
We of the Legion pray, Lord God,
To follow in the way they tread.

What Freedom gave they shared—
The shores that made them free—
With true men brave who dared
The sea for Liberty;

We of the Legion, Lord, would share
Our heritage with them who dare.
In duty done, they wrought
That peace might still abide;
In fear of none, they fought
With right upon their side;

We of the Legion plead for light,
So we be upright in Thy sight.
Not theirs with gyve and chain
To bind the vanquished foe;
Not theirs to strive for gain
From out a people's woe;

We of the Legion under Thee
Would champion Democracy.
One Flag alone they flew,
Nor vain to them its call,
That we might own it true,
The bravest flag of all;

We of the Legion swear to hold
The Flag unsullied, fold and fold.
—Thomas G. Devine, in Kansas City Star.

Stories of GREAT INDIANS

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

RUNNING ANTELOPE'S VIEWS OF HONESTY OF AGENTS

IN THE spring of 1874, while the Seventh cavalry was stationed at Fort Abraham Lincoln, N. D., a band of Hunkpapa Sioux from a reservation near by came to the fort to ask General Custer for the food which they much needed. The steamer bringing the supplies issued them by the Indian department had been frozen in ice in the Missouri river and they had been compelled to eat their dogs and ponies to keep from starving.

Having decided to seek aid from the military, they brought with them their greatest orator, Running Antelope (Tabincasula Inyanke), a fine-looking, dignified old warrior, to present their cause. Running Antelope described at length the distressing condition of the tribe and denounced their agent, accusing all agents of dishonesty.

At this point General Custer interrupted and asked the interpreter to say to the chief that the Great Father selected only good men for agents before sending them out from Washington. When this was explained to Running Antelope he smiled grimly and, through the interpreter, replied: "Well, they may be good men when they leave the Great Father, but they get to be d—d cheats by the time they reach us."

After the council was over, General Custer invited Running Antelope and his chiefs into a dining room of his quarters for a feast. Dignified and impressive as the old chief was while speaking in a council, he was not so admirable as a table companion. After gorging himself on everything in sight, he emptied the plates and swept the remains of the feast from the very noses of his headmen, into the folds of his robe. Then he belted it at his waist, making a capacious haversack, granted his appreciation of the hospitality and stalked from the room.

Although Running Antelope had not learned table manners (according to white men's lights) in the teens of his fathers, he was a first-class fighting man.

The majority of his victims were members of the Arrikaras tribe. His bag of Arrikaras for 1856 was ten warriors and three women. His greatest single feat was the slaying of five warriors in one day. In the 12 years which the record covers he confessed, graphically, to dispatching no less than 30 of these hereditary foes of the Sioux, a record of systematic homicidism which doubtless gave him as great a reputation among his tribesmen for being a warrior as he enjoyed among the whites as an orator.

CRAZY HORSE FOILED THREE AMERICAN GENERALS

CRAZY HORSE (Tashunka Witko) chief of the Ogallala Sioux, was a fighter. As his name implied, his was a personality wild, untamed and something of a berserker. In going into battle no warrior was ever allowed to precede him. He was not an hereditary chief; he won his title by sheer ability. By the time the Sioux had begun to war on the white man, they looked upon Crazy Horse as one of their most promising war leaders.

When Red Cloud laid siege to Fort Phil Kearney in 1866, Crazy Horse was chosen to lead the attack on the woodchoppers, to draw out the soldiers. The strategy was successful. Lieutenant Colonel Fetterman marched out with 80 men, was lured into a trap and overwhelmed. It was Crazy Horse's first victory over the whites. His second came in the campaign of 1876. In March Gen. J. J. Reynolds attacked Crazy Horse's camp on the Powder river. He captured it, but the Ogallala forced him to retire hastily.

Next he fought Gen. George Crook to a standstill at the famous battle of the Rosebud, June 17. Eight days later Gen. George A. Custer rode into the valley of the Little Big Horn with the Seventh cavalry and divided his force to attack the big Indian camp. Crazy Horse instantly saw the mistake that Custer had made and led his warriors to cut off the chance to retreat. Within an hour Custer and his men were dead. It was the Ogallala's greatest victory.

Fetterman, Reynolds, Crook and Custer—Crazy Horse had met and defeated them all, and two of them were rated the greatest Indian fighters in the army. But the Ogallala met his master in Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who defeated the chief decisively at the Battle of Wolf Mountain, although the Indian withdrew in good order.

The next summer Crazy Horse surrendered. His enemies circulated the report that he was planning another outbreak and he came to Fort Robinson to deny it. The army officers decided to arrest him. As they led him, unsuspecting treachery, toward the guardhouse his friend, Touch the Clouds, exclaimed: "Cousin, they will put you in prison."

"Another white man's trick! Let me go! Let me die fighting!" shouted Crazy Horse, as an officer and Little Big Man, an Ogallala chief, seized his arms. The chief drew his hunting knife, his only weapon. As they struggled to disarm him he received a fatal wound—whether from the knife or a soldier's bayonet is unknown.

True Detective Stories SHADOW OF EVIL

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

"I'll be back in a few minutes," said Henry Goudle, cashier of the Bank of Liverpool, to one of his associates. "I'm just going across the street to get a bite of lunch."

An hour later the officials of the bank began to wonder where Goudle was, but the fact that his hat still remained upon its accustomed peg indicated that the cashier wasn't far away, and that he would soon return. But at the closing hour that afternoon Goudle was still missing—and when an auditor went over his books it was discovered that a hundred and seventy-five thousand pounds (some $550,000) had also disappeared!

Inquiry at the house where Goudle had lodged failed to bring to light any trace of the missing cashier, who had left home that morning as usual, apparently without any intention of being away over night. His clothes were in their accustomed position, and even his toilet articles were untouched. In fact, if it hadn't been for the disappearance of the money from the bank, the police would have searched the hospitals, on the theory that Goudle had met with an accident.

But as Frank Frost, superintendent of Scotland Yard, pointed out, it was hardly likely that a bank official and $550,000 would vanish at one and the same time without some connection between the two events.

"As luck would have it," continued Frost, one of the ablest detectives in England, "Goudle has chosen the simplest manner in which to make his escape—the easiest from his point of view and the most difficult from the standpoint of the police. It is comparatively simple to find a man who lays his plans in advance. You can usually trace his baggage or his railway tickets. But Goudle just walked out to lunch and lost himself somewhere. He left only one clue behind him—his hat."

Therefore, working on the assumption that a hatless man would be quite conspicuous, and that Goudle, knowing this, would immediately purchase another hat, Frost made the rounds of the shops near the Liverpool bank. From the clerk in one of them he obtained the information that a man answering to the description of the missing cashier had purchased a cloth cap of a distinctive pattern only a few moments after noon on the day that Goudle vanished.

By means of this clue and a detailed report on Goudle's appearance, Frost soon had every man connected with Scotland Yard searching for the absconding cashier. But it was several weeks before he was located and captured in a lodging house in the north of England.

However, the arrest of the man who looted the Bank of Liverpool did not by any means close the case.

Even before he was discovered, Frost had found out that Goudle had been in the habit of playing the races—patronizing a clique of "hard-book men" who had played upon his credulity in such a manner that they, and not he, had secured the benefits of his dishonesty. In order to recover the money, Frost therefore had to round up the members of this gambling ring and force them to disgorge.

It developed that the leader of the organization, sensing a way in which to make a lot of money, without running any risk, had approached Goudle with an account of a "fixed race" which was to be run at Epsom Downs, and that the cashier, believing that he could clean up a fortune in a single day, had taken twenty-five thousand pounds from the bank, falsifying the accounts to conceal the shortage. The man's credulity is evident from the fact that he placed the money at odds of 20 to 1, which meant that he stood to win half a million pounds, or $2,500,000 if his horse came in first. Of course, no bookmaker could afford to pay a bet of this size—but Goudle overlooked this fact and cheerfully wagered his "borrowed" capital. The horse naturally failed to win, and, in an effort to recoup his losses, the cashier commenced systematically to loot the bank's funds.

One of the odd features of the case which Frost discovered, by blind luck, Goudle one day played a big bet on a horse that won. When he went to collect his bet, with the firm intention of squaring his accounts with the bank, he was casually informed that the wager had not been placed in time, and he was advised to put it on another "sure tip," which lost. When his defalcations reached a point when it was hopeless to attempt further concealment from the bank authorities, Goudle "went out to lunch."

It didn't take Frost long to discover that, in planning a round-up of the gambling gang he was tackling one of the most difficult jobs of his career.

One by one Frost picked up the various threads of the tangled case. One by one he followed the various clues, at least one of which led to the suicide of a member of the bookmakers' clique. But, in addition to seeing that Goudle was sent to prison for ten years, Frost secured evidence which forced the return of all but a small amount of money which had been taken from the Bank of Liverpool and placed upon horses, which, save in a single instance, had no chance whatever to win.

St. Louis Citizen Eats Anything on the Table and Has Gained Several Pounds in Weight—Gives Tanlac Full Credit.

"The other medicines I tried before didn't even budge my troubles, but three bottles of Tanlac have fixed me up in fine shape," said H. Mohr, well-known citizen living at 112 S. Fourth St., St. Louis, Mo.

"Two years ago my stomach went wrong and my appetite failed me. Gas formed from what little I would eat and pressed on my heart until it palpitated so I could hardly breathe. I wasn't able to do regular work, because of pains in the back, bad headaches and dizzy spells.

"But I have gained several pounds now since taking Tanlac and eat just anything I want without any trouble. The pains and headaches never bother me any more, and I am only too glad to pass the good word along about Tanlac. It is simply wonderful."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

A smart man never makes the same mistake, but there are a million kinds of mistakes.

SUCCEEDS WHERE DOCTORS FAIL

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Often Does That.—Read Mrs. Miner's Testimony

Churubusco, N. Y.—"I was under the doctor's care for over five years for backache and had no relief from his medicine. One day a neighbor told me about your Vegetable Compound and I took it. It helped me so much that I wish to advise all women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and backache. It is a great help in carrying a child, as I have noticed a difference when I didn't take it. I thank you for this medicine and if I ever come to this point again I do not want to be without the Vegetable Compound. I give you permission to publish this letter so that all women can take my advice."—Mrs. FRED MINER, Box 102, Churubusco, N. Y.

It's the same story over again. Women suffer from ailments for years. They try doctors and different medicines, but feel no better. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you can see its value in the case of Mrs. Miner.

That's the truth of the matter. If you are suffering from any of the troubles women have, you ought to try this medicine. It can be taken in safety by young or old, as it contains no harmful drugs.

Betsy Ross' Grave Needs Care

Few Americans would think that this was the grave of one of the nation's most famous women—a great historic character. It is the resting place of Betsy Ross, who made the first "Star-Spangled Banner," used in the Continental army. No appropriation ever has been made for the care of the grave. The patriotic order, Sons of America, has taken the matter up.

NEIGHBORING NEWS

BRIGHTON—Babe Ruth, the home run king spent all his spare time at Island Lake, while the Yankees were playing in Detroit. He came out Wednesday evening instead of Friday evening as was expected, and only went into the city afternoons to play ball. The Island Lake Hotel was his stopping place.

Friday night a banquet was arranged in Detroit by prominent citizens for Babe, but when things were ready Babe was missing. No banquets for him when he could enjoy himself at Island Lake. Friday noon he had dinner at the hotel with Governor Groesbeck.

Saturday forenoon he amused himself and a crowd by hitting "home runs" out onto the lake for delighted boys in swimming to catch. A number of pictures were taken of him to be used in the Island Lake Souvenir this summer.

When Babe left Saturday it was with reluctance, and he said briefly, "Best place I was ever at. I'll be back in July."—Argus.

STOCKBRIDGE—Sometime between 11 o'clock P. M. Monday night and Tuesday morning a Chevrolet car ran off the bridge just south of Fleming's Corners on the Jackson-Bunker Hill road.

The accident was discovered Tuesday morning by passing motorists and upon investigation found the driver a Mr. Trumbull, underneath the car. With the aid of tractors and passing trucks the car was righted and the man removed. He had been dead for some time.—Brief-Sun.

CHELSEA—That he was "killed" when 6,000 volts of electricity passed through his body, and brought back to life by the shock he experienced when he fell to the ground from the roof of the store he was painting, is the belief of Raymond Platt, Tipton store-keeper. Platt grasped the live wire to steady himself while leaning over the side of the building. Dr. P. K. Hardy who attended him declared the man had been "killed" by the electric shock but that heart action had been restored by the fall. Platt resumed his work less than a half hour after his experience.—Chelsea Tribune.

CHELSEA—One of the finest improvements that has come to this vicinity in some time is now under way at Cavanaugh Lake. H. W. Schenk has organized a riding club which will be conducted at the lake. The name of the new club will be Pine Lodge Riding Academy and Club House. A club house has been fixed up and will be used for the present. As soon as possible it is planned to build a new club house which will have a large dining room and lounging rooms for the use of members. Tribune.

 About one-third of the gasoline used in automobiles is wasted. This is the conclusion reached by A. C. Fieldner of the United States bureau of mines from experiments under traffic conditions to determine the air pollution of the vehicular tunnels under New York city. CONTROL OF ALFALFA WEEVIL BY SPRAYING POISON OVER FIELDS

The Alfalfa Weevil and Work of Larvae.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Farmers in regions newly infested by the alfalfa weevil will be interested in knowing that an unusually effective method of control has been worked out by the United States Department of Agriculture. Specialists of the department say that rarely has any method of insect control been so thoroughly safeguarded against failure as alfalfa-weevil spraying. It has been tested every season for seven years. The cost of the operation—about $1 an acre—is trifling compared with the returns, and no farmer in the territory infested or threatened can afford to overlook it, the specialists say. There is no control measure, however, which can be applied advantageously this late in the season. Effective work must be delayed until next spring.

Control by Poison Spray.
Control is effective by spraying poison over the fields so that it will cover the growing parts on which the weevils mostly feed. Arsenate of lead and arsenite of zinc have been mostly used, but other arsenicals recommended for orchard spraying are thought to be about as good. There is practically no danger of burning the foliage of alfalfa, and therefore the range of suitable poisons is larger than in fruit-tree spraying. Arsenate of lead is said to be, everything considered, the best poison to use, principally because it sticks to the leaves more readily and costs less than most of the others. The poison is weighed or measured at the rate of two pounds of powder or four pounds of commercial paste for each 100 gallons of water, is stirred with a little water in a pail until it becomes a thin paste without lumps, is diluted and strained into the sprayer tank. Two pounds of laundry soap for each gallon should be added, in order to make the liquid stick to the leaves properly. The dry, powdered form of the poison is better than the paste. There is no danger of stock being poisoned by hay cut from sprayed fields where the poison is applied at a rate not greater than 100 gallons of spray mixture per acre.

Simple Outfit Sufficient.
The essentials of the spraying outfit are: A truck or other vehicle, a tank with an agitator to keep the poison from settling to the bottom, a pump, a pressure gauge, an engine and pumping jack, unless the pump is to be driven by hand, a strainer, a pipe for distributing the liquid from the pump, and as many nozzles as are required by the capacity of the pump. These essentials may all be contained in a barrel-pump outfit carried in a wagon. The pump must be capable of delivering four-fifths of a gallon or more a minute and maintaining a pressure of at least 75 pounds. If the pressure is less than that, the mist spray will not be fine enough to prevent the liquid from gathering in drops and running to the ground instead of drying on the tops of the plants.

The number of nozzles used should be sufficient to take up the capacity of the pump. At the average walking gait of a team, each nozzle should deliver nine-tenths of a gallon a minute. Therefore, a pump of nine-gallon capacity per minute will supply ten nozzles, each of which covers a strip two feet wide. By an arithmetical calculation of the cubical content of the pump cylinder and the number of strokes per minute, the capacity of the outfit can be determined. The spray should be applied at the rate of 100 gallons of spray mixture per acre.

Nearly any kind of spraying outfit can be adopted for this purpose. However, modern orchard spray outfits are usually designed to give a comprehensively small flow and high pressure, and are less suitable for alfalfa spraying than the older pumps with larger cylinders and longer strokes, designed for larger flow and lower pressure.

The spraying outfit should be mounted on the wagon or other vehicle used so that the nozzles will be about two feet above the tops of the alfalfa plants. Four 50-gallon barrels with an engine and pump mounted on an ordinary wagon, or, for a hand-pump outfit, an express wagon and fewer barrels constitute a satisfactory outfit.

A paddle, dasher, or some other form of agitator must be provided to keep the liquid stirred. A strainer of 20-mesh brass or bronze screen should be fitted to the opening through which the water enters the tank and another over the outlet leading to the pump. The parts of the pump in which close fitting is required should be of brass, bronze, porcelain, or some other substance less rapidly corroded by the chemicals than iron and steel. All commercial spray pumps are built in this way, but pumps which were intended for other purposes should be relined when used for spraying. An engine-driven outfit must have a relief valve near the pump, permitting the surplus flow to return to the tank. The pump must have an air-pressure chamber large enough to keep the flow steady and insure even distribution of the poison. Even pressure, indispensable for uniform spread of the poison, cannot be maintained without a pressure gauge. This gauge should be attached to the pressure chamber or near it and at a distance from relief-valve and nozzles. The boom or pipe which carries the nozzles and supplies them with liquid from the pump is made of two-foot pieces of one-half inch galvanized iron pipe joined by T's, each of which affords an opening for the attachment of a nozzle. The boom is connected with the pump by a one-half inch pressure hose. The boom should be supported by a piece of timber, two by four, clamped or hinged to the truck with the boom stapled, bolted, or wired to it. Plain misty nozzles, without strainers or other complications, should be used. Spray in Warm Weather. The best time for spraying is at what the specialists call the turning point of weevil infestation—from one to two weeks before the first crop is ready for cutting, when the young larvae become so numerous that they completely destroy the growing tips. After that point is reached the weevils, if left alone, consume the leaves until nothing is left but the woody fibers. If spraying is done at this time the crop recovers quickly. Spraying yearly in the spring sometimes entirely prevents damage, but it is uncertain. On the other hand, plants sprayed after they were entirely stripped of their foliage have been able to recover and bloom, but this allows destruction to go too far and makes recovery too slow. Spraying at the "turning point" not only protects the first crop but confers an even larger benefit on the second crop, which sprouts and grows without delay, and no treatment of the stubble is necessary. Stubble spraying, after the cutting of the first crop, has been successfully done, but it requires getting into the field immediately after cutting and a much larger quantity of liquid is required than if it were applied to the first crop. Stubble spraying, therefore, is advised only when earlier spraying has been impossible. Spraying should be done, if possible, at the beginning of a warm spell. The weevils do not feed so voraciously in cool weather. There are other control measures, but none of them promises much more unless applied before or immediately after the first cutting. One method is to pasture the alfalfa field until most of the eggs and young larvae have been destroyed. Another is to use the alfalfa as a soiling crop, cutting it green two or three times during the season. These methods, however, must be practiced before the turning point of infestation, as after that time the weevils destroy the plants so completely that there is not enough growth for either pasture or soiling. Another method is to cultivate the field with a harrow or other implement, immediately after the first cutting, in such way as to cover the field with a dust mulch, thus exposing the entire surface of the field to the sun and killing most of the weevils. In some instances, the second crop has been protected by dragging the stubble, while it is still wet from irrigation, with the land leveler or the clod breaker. This causes the insects to perish by embedding them in the mud, but it is harmful to the soil and is not recommended.

MARKET REPORT
FURNISHED BY U. S. BUREAU OF MARKETS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

(For the week ending June 22, 1922.)

May
Receipts in excess of demand, especially low grades. Unsold cars of grade accumulating. Demand only for top grades. Minneapolis reports receipts light, not enough arriving to establish a market.

Quoted June 21: No. 1 Timothy, Boston $31.50, New York $30.50, Philadelphia $27, Pittsburgh $23, Chicago $23, Cincinnati $20.50, No. 1 alfalfa Memphis $19, No. 1 Prairie Chicago $17.50, Minneapolis $18.

Feed
Wheat feed market slightly improved and fairly steady. Offerings limited. Buying light and only for immediate needs. High protein feeds inactive with very light demand.

Quoted June 21 soft winter bran Chicago $17.25, Philadelphia $22, standard middlings Chicago $18.75, winter wheat bran St. Louis $17.50, Gluten Chicago $31.55, linseed meal New York $33, hominy feed St. Louis $22.

Grain
Grain markets uncertain during the week but prices closed higher; Chicago July wheat up 4c; Chicago July corn up 2c. Reports of hot dry weather, premature ripening in southwest, drought in Canadian northwest, and removal of hedge against export sales were main factors. On the 22nd all grain showed more activity and prices advanced on forecast for another warm wave in central west and strength in coarse grains. Local sentiment bullish on corn.

Closing prices in Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat $1.18; No. 2 hard winter wheat $1.16; No. 2 mixed corn $3c; No. 2 yellow corn 64c; No. 3 white oats 37c.

Average farm prices: No. 2 mixed corn in central Iowa about 50c; No. 2 hard winter wheat in central Kansas 96c. Closing future prices: Chicago July wheat $1.13 3/4; Chicago July corn 63 1/4c; Minneapolis July wheat $1.31 5/8; Kansas City July wheat $1.07 1/2; Winnipeg July wheat $1.27 1/4.

Live Stock and Meats
Chicago hog prices generally 5c to 15c lower per 100 lbs. for the week lower grades beef were 15c to 25c lower. Better grades firm to 25c higher. On June 22 hogs closed weak and mostly 10c to 15c lower than Wednesday's average. Pigs were fully steady.

June 22 Chicago prices: Hogs top $10.85, bulk of sales $9.80 to $9.85; medium and good beef steers $7.75 to $9.40; butcher cows and heifers $4.80 to $4.85; feeder steers $5.65 to $5.75; light and medium weight veal calves $7.80 to $8.75; fat lambs $10.50 to $11.50; feeding lambs $10.50 to $12; yearlings $8.25 to $11.35; fat ewes $3.60 to $3.75.

Stocker and feeder shipments from 12 important markets during the week ending June 16 were: Cattle and calves 48,909; hogs, 12,068; sheep 22,082. In eastern wholesale fresh meat markets lamb was $2.44; veal and mutton $1.62; beef 50c and fresh pork loins weak to $1 lower for the week.

On June 22 eastern wholesale beef prices were firm to 25c higher than Wednesday's average. Veal and lamb were weak and generally 1c to 2c lower. Pork loins 50c to 1c lower; mutton generally steady. June 22 prices good grade meats: beef $13.60 to $15; veal $12.15; lamb $20.24; mutton $12.14; light pork loins $18 to $20; heavy loins $13 to $17.

Fruits and Vegetables
Potato prices lower in consuming centers during the week.
Tomatoes very weak. Much poor stock in markets. Mississippi stock pours down 35c to 75c most cities.
North Carolina cobblers sold in eastern markets on the 22nd at $3.75 to $4.25 per barrel. $4.25 to $4.65 in Chicago.

Dairy Products
Butter markets steady to firm during week especially on fancy goods. Current trade requirements and demand for storing continue to absorb increased receipts so that no surpluses of importance have occurred.
Closing prices 92 score butter: New York 37c; Chicago 36c; Philadelphia and Boston 37 1/2c.

East Buffalo Live Stock
Buffalo, June 22—Cattle: Receipts, 5 cars, steady. Hogs: Receipts, 12 cars; steady; heavy, $11.00 to $12.50; Yorkers and pigs, $11.50 to $11.60. Sheep: Receipts, 2 cars; steady; top lambs, $13 to $13.50; yearlings, $14 to $15; wethers, $17 to $17.50; ewes, $14 to $15. Cows, $11.50.

BRAN DISHES AND OTHERS

A few spoonfuls of bran may be mixed with any dry breakfast food, with no noticeable difference in the taste. Bran is a good broom for the alimentary canal and in various dishes may be made most appetizing.

Bran Layer Cake.—Take one quarter cupful of butter, add one unbenched egg and fill up the cup with sweet milk, stirring enough to mix. Sift together a tablespoonful of cornstarch, one cupful each of flour and sugar, and a teaspoonful each of baking powder and salt. Add one-half cupful of bran and mix with the liquid, stir until smooth and bake in two layers, using a cooked cream or jelly for filling. It may also be baked in a loaf, adding spice to taste.

Bran Jelly.—Sift bran into boiling water, stirring till it is like gruel. Cook slowly two hours, strain through a fine sieve and repeat. Mix a tablespoonful of graham flour with a little cold water, add to the boiling liquid and cook until it is smooth. Add a little salt, pour into wet molds and set away to harden. It will make a delicate jelly which may be served with fruit or milk. Fine for a delicate stomach.

A bonny clabber desert is one which it is wise to teach the children to enjoy. Set a pan of rich new milk away to just become thick. Place on ice until well chilled and serve with grated maple sugar or with a sprinkling of brown sugar with nutmeg or cinnamon. A child's luncheon with a piece of whole wheat bread and butter will make a good meal, even for an adult. Thick sour cream, when it is obtainable, makes the most delicious salad dressings. Whip it with a Dover beater; when stiff, add lemon or pineapple juice and such other seasonings as are appropriate to the salad which is to be served. The usual boiled salad dressing is made especially rich and tasty by the addition of a half-cupful of rich, sour cream, beaten stiff and added to three tablespoonfuls of boiled dressing.

Rhubarb Pudding.—Place sufficient sliced bread buttered to serve the family in a baking dish, cover each slice with chopped rhubarb, sprinkle with sugar and nutmeg and repeat until the dish is full. Add boiling water and bake until the rhubarb is well cooked and the bread saturated with the juice. Serve on a plate direct from the dish either hot or cold, with any desired

To be what we are, and to become what we are capable of becoming, is the only end of life. The pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art in life is to have as many of them as possible.—Bovee.

SAVORY DISHES

Now that the mushroom is growing in the fields a few dishes to remind us of its worth, are in season:

Scrambled Eggs and Mushrooms.—Break into small pieces one pint of fresh well-cleaned mushrooms. Sprinkle with salt and let them stand 30 minutes. Put into a saucetpan two tablespoonfuls of butter; add the mushrooms and their juice; cover and cook eight minutes after they begin to simmer. Season with pepper and more salt if needed. Add the yolks of five eggs, beaten slightly, to the stewed mushrooms. Stir until the eggs are set. Serve on toast.

Corn Fritters.—Put the contents of a can of corn through the meat chopper, add two well-beaten eggs, two or three tablespoonfuls of milk and two tablespoonfuls of flour. Add one-half teaspoonful of sugar, salt and pepper to taste. Fry by spoonfuls in hot fat or butter, browning well. Fresh corn may be used, omitting the milk.

Curried Eggs.—Take six hard cooked eggs. Peel three large onions and cut them in thin slices, put them with two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucetpan and cook until soft. Add one teaspoonful of curry powder, one clove of garlic, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of ginger, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of flour, one-half pint of stock or water; cool. Take three cupfuls of cooked rice, arrange around the edge of the platter, cut eggs in slices and place over the rice; over this pour the sauce and serve very hot. Garnish with green pepper or sprigs of parsley.

Mutton With Dumplings.—Take three pounds of the breast of mutton, simmer until tender, then set aside to cool; skim off all the fat, return the mutton to the liquid, add one or two onions finely chopped, salt, pepper and a little curry powder if liked. Just before serving time drop dumplings into the hot stew. If dropped from a teaspoon these will cook in eight minutes. A few peas added to the stew will change the flavor and improve the dish.

A Man To His Mate

Lund took swift inventory, lining them up as they came timorously out of the water or struggled against the cliff at his order. Tamada had come down from the fires. Peggy had told of his share, and Sandy's timid about. Lund nodded at him in a friendly manner.

"You're a white man, Tamada," he said. "You, too, Sandy. I'll not forget it. Rainey, round up these derelicts an' help Tamada fix 'em up. I'll settle with 'em later. Hansen, put the rest of 'em to work, an' keep 'em to it! Do you hear? They got to do the work of the whole bunch."

Lund turned to the two hunters who had stood apart. "Wal, you yellow-bellied neutrals," he said, his voice cold and his eyes hard. "Thought I might lose, and hoped so, didn't you? Pick up that skunk Beale an' tote him aboard. Then come back an' go to work. You'll git yore shares, but you'll not git what's comin' to those who stood by. Now git out of my sight. You can bury that when you come back." He nodded at the sodden corpse of Deming, flung up on the grit. "You can take yore pay as grave diggers out of what you owe him at poker. He ain't goin' to collect, this trip."

Rainey, lame and sore, helped Tamada patch up the wounded, turning the hunters' quarters into a sick bay, using the table for operation. Beale was the worst off, but Tamada pronounced him not vitally damaged. After he had finished with them he insisted upon Rainey's lying, face down, on the table, stripped to the waist, while he rubbed him with oil and then kneaded him. Once he gave a sudden, twisting wrench, and Rainey saw a blur of stars as something snapped into place with a click.

"I think you soon all right, now," said Tamada. "You and Miss Simms turned the tide," said Rainey. "If they'd got these tools first they'd have finished us in short order."

"Fools!" said Tamada. "Suppose they kill Lund, how they get away? No one to navigate. Presently the gunboat would find them. I think Mr. Lund will maybe trust me now," he said quietly.

"What do you mean?"

"Mr. Lund think in the back of his head I arrange for that gunboat to come. He cannot understand how they know the schooner at island. He think to come jus' this time too much curious, I think."

"It was a bit of a coincidence," Tamada shrugged his shoulders slightly.

"I think Japanese government know all that goes on in North Polar region," he said. "There is wireless station on Wrangell island. We pass by that pretty close."

Rainey chewed that information as he put on his clothes, wondering if they had seen the last of the gunboat. They would have to pass south through Bering strait. It would be easy to overhaul them, halt them, search the schooner, confiscate the gold. They were not out of trouble yet.

When he went into the cabin to replace his torn coat—he had hardly a button intact above the waist, from jacket to undershirt—he found the girl there with Lund. Apparently, they had just come in. Peggy Simms, with face aglow with the excitement that had not subsided, was proffering Lund her pistol.

"Keep it," he said. "You may need it. I've got mine."

"But you threw it into the water. I saw you."

"No," he laughed. "That wasn't my gun. They thought it was. I wanted to bring the thing to grips. But I wasn't fool enough to chuck away my gun. That was a wrench I was usin' this mornin' to fix the cabin stove—looks jest like an ottermattic. I stuck it in my inside pocket. I was in a mind to shoot when they showed their knives, but I didn't want to use my gun on that mess of hash."

He stood tall and broad above her, looking down at the face that was raised to his. Rainey, unnoticed as yet, saw her eyes bright with admiration.

"You are a wonderful fighter," she said softly. "Wonderful? What about you? A man's woman! You saved the day. Comin' to me with them drills. An' we licked 'em. We. God!"

He swept her up into his arms, lifting her in his big hands, making no more of her than if she had been a feather pillow, up till her face was on a level with his, pressing her close, while in swift, indignant rage she fought back at him, striking futilely while he held her, kissed her, and set her down as Rainey sprang forward.

Lund had set on the table and fired point-blank. She seemed to have missed, though Lund halted, his mouth agape, astounded.

"You big bully!" said Rainey. Now that the time had come he found that he was not afraid of Lund, of his gun, of his strength. "Play fair, do you? Then show it! You asked me once why I didn't make love to her. I told you. But you, you foul-minded bully! All you think of is your big body, to take what it wants."

"Peggy. Will you marry me? I can protect you from this hulking brute. If it's to be a show-down between you and me," he flared at Lund, still gazing as if stupefied, "let it come now. Peggy?"

The girl, tears on her cheeks that were born from the sobs of anger that had shaken her, swung on him.

"You?" she said, and Rainey wilted under the scorn in her voice. "Marry you?" She began to laugh hysterically, trying to check herself.

"I didn't mean you enny harm," said Lund slowly, addressing Peggy. "Why, I wouldn't harm you, gal. You're my woman. You come to me. I was jest—jest sorter swept off my hearin's. Why," he turned to Rainey, his voice down-pitching to a growl of angry contempt, "you pen-shoven whippersnapper, I c'ud break you in ha'f with one hand. You ain't her breed. But"—his voice changed again—"if it's a show-down, all right."

"If I was to fight you, over her, I'd kill you. D'ye think I don't respect a good gal? D'ye think I don't know how to love a gal right? She's my mate. Not yours. But it's up to you, Peggy Simms. I didn't mean to insult you. An' if you want him—why it's up to you to choose between the two of us."

She went by Rainey as if he had not existed, straight into Lund's arms, her face radiant, upturned.

"It's you I love, Jim Lund," she said. "A man. My man."

As her arms went round his neck she gave a little cry.

"I wounded you," she said, and the tender concern of her struck Rainey to the quick. "Quick, let me see."

"Wounded, h—ll!" laughed Lund. "D'ye think that poppin' of yores c'ud"

"What do you mean?"

"Mr. Lund think in the back of his head I arrange for that gunboat to come. He cannot understand how they know the schooner at island. He think to come jus' this time too much curious, I think."

Lund seemed utterly unconscious of the girl's revulsion.

"Comin' to me with the drills!" he said. "We licked 'em. You an' me together. My woman!"

Peggy Simms had leaped back, her eyes blazing. Lund came for her, his face lit with the desire of her, arms outspread, hands open. Before Rainey could fling himself between them, the girl had snatched the little pistol that stop me? The pellet's somewhere in my shoulder. Let it hide. By God, you're my woman, after all. Lund's Luck!"

Rainey went up on deck with that ringing in his ears. His humiliation wore off swiftly as he crossed back toward the beach. By the time he crossed the promontory he even felt relieved at the outcome. He was not in love with her. He had known that when he intervened. He had not even told her so. His chivalry had spoken—not his heart. And his thoughts strayed back to California. The other girl, Diana though she was, would never, in almost one breath, have shot and kissed the man she loved. A lingering vision of Peggy Simms' beauty as she had gone to Lund remained and faded.

"Lund's right," he told himself. "She's not of my breed."

CHAPTER XIII.

Lund's Luck

Lund glanced at the lucky of spray where the shell from the pursuing gunboat had fallen short, and then at the bank of mist ahead. They were in the narrows of Bering strait, between the Cape of Charles and Prince Edward's point, the gold aboard, a full wind in their sails, making eleven knots to the gunboat's fifteen.

more would settle it. Hansen had the wheel. Lund stood by the taffrail, his arm about Peggy Simms. He shook a fist at the gunboat, vomiting black smoke from her funnel, foam about her bows.

"We'll beat 'em yet," he cried. The next shell, with more elevation, whined parallel with them, sped ahead, and smashed into the waves.

"Hold yore course, Hansen! No time to zigzag. Got to chance it. D—n it, they know how to shoot!"

A missile had gone plump through main and foresails, leaving round holes to mark the score. Another fairly struck the main topmast, and some splinters came rattling down, while the remnants of the top-sail flapped amid writhing coils of halyard and sheet.

They entered the beginning of the fog, curling wisps of it reached out, twining over the bowsprit and headsails, enveloping the foremast, swallowing the schooner as a hurtling shell crashed into the stern. The next instant the mist had sheltered them. Lund released the girl and jumped to the wheel.

"Now then," he shouted, "we'll fool 'em!" He gripped the spokes, and the men ran to the sheets at command while the Karluk shot off at right angles to her previous course, skirting the fog that blanketed the wind but yet allowed sufficient breeze to filter through to give them headway, gliding like a ghost on the new tack to the east.

Rainey, tense from the explosion of the shell, jumped below at last and came back exultant.

"It was a dud, Lund!" he shouted. "Or else they didn't want to blow us up on account of the gold. But they've wrecked the cabin. The fog's coming in through the hole they made. Tamada's galley's gone. It's raked the schooner!"

"So long's it's above the water line, to h—ll with it! We'll make out. Listen to the fools. They've gone in after us, straight on."

The booming of the gunboat's forward battery sounded aft of them, dulled by the fog—growing fainter.

"Lund's Luck! We've dodged 'em!"

"They'll be waiting for us at the passes," said Rainey. "They've got the speed on us."

"Let 'em wait. To blazes with the Aleutians! Ready again there for a tack! Sou-east now. We'll work through this till we git to the wind agin. It's all blue water to the Seward peninsula. We're bound for Nome."

"For Nome?" asked Peggy Simms. "Nome, Peggy! An American port. The nearest harbor. An' the nearest preacher!"

THRESHING MADE A PASTIME

Italian Families Beat Wheat From Straw in Rhythm, and Seem to Enjoy the Work.

Gasparino Dante got up early Sunday morning, and before the sun was very high his day's work was well started on his farm near Capua, Italy. The two daughters—one eighteen and the other fifteen—started (and finished) the day with the men. The younger children were too small to be of any help, although the boy of ten scattered wheat over the stone threshing floor so that it would be ready when the older members of the family had finished with breakfast—bread and cheese and coffee, for Dante can afford coffee in the morning. He owns thirty acres.

When threshing started, the father paired with the oldest girl on the side of the floor; the other couple stood side by side opposite. The four flails were poised high in the air an instant and then at a shout from the farmer one pair descended and as they were lifted the couple opposite struck.

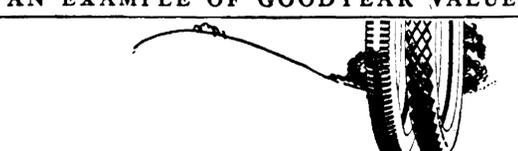

The four beat the grain, keeping perfect time and pausing only while the boy raked the straw into a pile at one side of the floor and swept the kernels of wheat into another heap, and threw down a fresh supply.

Then, with a shouted signal that seemed to welcome the new onslaught the rhythm of the thumping started again. The manner of the threshers was more like that of couples dancing an old-fashioned quadrille than that of harvest toilers under the blistering, blinding midsummer sun of southern Italy.

Difficulties to Be Overcome. Lord Beaconsfield was no idealist—though he had imagination—yet even he said: "Man is not the creature of circumstances. Circumstances are the creatures of men." "Nurture your mind," he said again, "with great thoughts. To believe in the hero is to make heroes." Difficulties are regarded by a great hearted people as things to be overcome, and to them duties are challenges.

AN EXAMPLE OF GOODYEAR VALUE

The 30 x 3 1/2 Goodyear Cross Rib Tire shown here alongside its companion, the 30 x 3 1/2 Goodyear All-Weather Tread Clincher, is a conspicuous example of Goodyear value.

The Goodyear Cross Rib has in it the same high grade Egyptian cotton fabric that goes into the All-Weather Tread Goodyear.

It has a differently designed but long-wearing tread, and it sells for considerably less money.

In the past five years more than 5,000,000 of these Goodyear Cross Rib Tires have been sold.

They have everywhere given remarkable service.

Their fine performance and known value have convinced thousands of motorists of the folly of buying unknown and unguaranteed tires of lower price.

Little Ethel was an only child and one day, when the minister called she was told to entertain him in the parlor until her mother could see him.

A few minutes later the mother, on her way downstairs, heard the visitor ask Ethel how many brothers and sisters she had, and, to her surprise and consternation, the little miss answered, "Seven."

After the minister had left, the child was taken to task and asked why she had said there were seven children. Ethel replied:

The Old Carriage Maker Had an Important Truth

"To make each part as strong as the rest," was his way of "building a wonderful, one-horse chaise that wouldn't wear out till judgment day."

This illustrates a fact that is keeping many doctors busy these days—human bodies, like chaises, break down because some part isn't as strong as the others.

Very often it's because of ill-balanced food, lacking in some important element of nutrition. This is especially true of ills developed in childhood, and carried on through life.

Grape-Nuts, that world-famous, ready-to-eat cereal, brings the plan of building each part as strong as the rest—to serve human need. Grape-Nuts contains all the nutriment of those best of the field grains, wheat and barley, including the vital mineral elements, and it is a wonderful food for building and sustaining health and strength.

The delicious flavor and crispness of Grape-Nuts make it a welcome dish whenever you're hungry.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY FAIR

The Livingston County Fair Association has joined the Southern Michigan racing circuit. The new racing circuit was organized by six of the strongest fairs in Michigan to assure clean, high class horse races with well filled fields in each race.

The circuit races open at Lansing, come to Howell for the week of August 28 to September 1 and complete the circuit at Hastings, Jackson, Adrian and Hillsdale. Entry fees have been reduced to three per cent all over the circuit. A number of stables have already signified their intention of competing in the fall six weeks of racing.

Accommodations for the horsemen have been improved at Howell again this year. The stables have been roofed and the stables will all be filled in and graded. The track is in good shape and fast, and a couple of weeks finishing in August should put it in such shape that the track record will be lowered.

The premium list is in the hands of the printer and will be ready for distribution the first week of July. Liberal premiums are again given in all classes. All stock and poultry classes will be judged by professors from the Michigan Agricultural College, insuring expert and unprejudiced awards.

Premium lists and entry blanks will be mailed upon application to the Secretary, Don W. Van Winkle.

Advocates Right Training For Boy Farmers of State

G. W. Dickinson Sees Need of Constructive Work For All Youngsters.

The true mission of the Michigan State Fair, as seen by George W. Dickinson, secretary and manager of the exposition for the past decade, is one of educating the rising generation of farmers in the correct atmosphere.

So far, the Michigan State Fair has been a splendid force in the lives of boys and girls on the farms in this state. This has been indicated with which the youngsters have participated in the competition to win a place in the Boys' State Fair School.

Speaking before the farmers' club division of the board of commerce at Detroit, recently, Mr. Dickinson outlined the course in manual training, judging of stock and other valuable training which is given the boys who are brought to the fair.

"I believe the Michigan State Fair can be of invaluable service in educating our boy farmers," declared Mr. Dickinson, "and I propose, this year, to concentrate on making the educational division for boys better than it ever has been before."

"The Michigan Agricultural College and the government now are cooperating with us through an extension course and the results are boldly apparent. The course for boys will be confined to stock judging and similar instruction and the training for girls will include cooking, canning, poultry raising and other things."

As has been the policy in the past, the expenses of 150 boys and the same number of girls to and from the fair and during their visit at the exposition will be defrayed by the fair.

Forest Lord of Mt. Clemens, will head the department of Boys' and Girls' clubs, R. A. Turner, state club leader at M. A. C., East Lansing, is superintendent.

E. F. Conner, of Lansing, will be superintendent of the educational department, assisted by F. W. Frostic, of Wyandotte, this year.

While discussing the educational department, the fair manager branched into a discussion of the interest in dairying in Michigan. Being a farm man he doesn't hesitate to criticize what he terms lethargy.

"There is a great opportunity for improvement in the Michigan dairy world," said Mr. Dickinson, "and I have had visions of the State Fair playing an important role in the realization of a greater dairy Michigan."

"This year, visitors to the fair will see the finest butter and sculptural exhibition ever put on anywhere. We also will show the various cheese products manufactured in Michigan, domestic, and dairy machinery of most modern type in operation."

Fred W. Warner, of Farmington, is the member of the board of managers, in charge of the dairy department.

Being raised in a small town where there were no tag days, naturally I had never had it explained to me.

While staying with an aunt in a somewhat larger town the annual tag day was observed. I was shopping that day and two young women asked me if I wanted a tag.

I readily replied, "Yes," and walked away with the tag without contributing any money.

I noticed the girls laughing, but could not imagine why, so when I arrived home I asked my aunt why they were giving those tags away. Imagine my consternation when she explained what I had done.—Exchange.

Can Send Checks by Wireless.

Through the invention of a Frenchman named Bellin it is now possible to transmit documents or checks by wireless. In future, not only will there be no impossibility in regard to the transmission of legal documents, autographs and manuscripts, but the very authenticity of messages will acquire fresh guarantees by their autographed transmission.

DON'T KICK at the WEATHER If it's Hot on the FOURTH

—how would we ever have corn on the cob without it?

But if you are wearing a suit of cloth that was meant to keep the heat in, naturally you are not very comfortable in real base ball weather.

Take a minute off and think it over—aren't cool clothes just plain common sense?

We have lots of nice ones to show you at

FARM BUREAU NOTES

The picnic held in Wm. Barnard's woods north of Fowlerville, was a big success. There were about 300 people present, and everybody reported a good time. A fine program was rendered very efficiently.

Livingston County is going to be close to the front ranks in Boys' and Girls' Club work. Conway and Handy townships have gone together and organized a Club with about 18 members. The needs for this club were worked out Saturday at the picnic grounds.

A meeting of the boys was held immediately after dinner to organize the Club for the coming year, and the following officers were elected: President, Glenn Gibson; Vice-President, Wayne Sober; Secretary-Treasurer, Raymond Hoyt. A unanimous vote was cast to have Orson Sober as their Club leader, and although he is crowded with his farm duties, he consented to take an active part in the work and do his utmost to make it a success. Make these, who are ready to succeed a little for others, are the ones who are going to make Livingston County one of the most outstanding on an aggressive agricultural activities.

This evening (Wednesday) a meeting is to be held on the lawn at the T. B. Gilkey home, one and one-half miles west of Howell, to organize the Boys' and Girls' Club in Howell Community. The whole families are invited, and, no doubt, an enjoyable and profitable evening will be spent. There is a friendly rivalry between the different townships to see who is going to get the largest Club.

Cornish Tin Miners.

The men who work in the Cornish tin mines are a class by themselves, and all their differences are adjusted by the statutory courts, as they are called from the Latin word stannum. These curiois courts have existed in their present form since the middle of the Thirteenth century, and, in a simpler form, much earlier; and the miners claim to be free from all other jurisdiction, "except in matters affecting the land, life or limb."

Pellagra and Income.

After a three-year study of pellagra in the cotton-mill villages of South Carolina, the United States public health service shows that pellagra varies inversely with the family income in this locality. As the income fell the disease was found to increase and to affect more members of the same family. As the income rose the disease decreased and was rarely found in families that enjoyed the highest incomes, even though this highest was still quite low.

A recent statement given by one of the large life insurance companies indicates that the "bad standards of Southern wage earners must have improved remarkably of late, for the death rate from pellagra has fallen from 0.7 per 100,000 in 1915 to 2.3 in 1919.
